Teach a man to fish ...

203rd BSB chaplain works to create fish pond for Hammer Soldiers

SPC. BEN HUTTO
3/3RD INF. DIV. PUBLIC AFFAIRS

FORWARD OPERATING BASE HAMMER, Iraq — In the bible, Jesus fed multitudes with one fish. A 203rd Brigade Support Battalion chaplain is hoping fish will satisfy the appetites of some Fort Benning, Ga., Soldiers.

Chaplain (Capt.) Mike Swartz, from Winston-Salem, N.C., and an avid fisherman, has been working to build a fish pond on Forward Operating Base Hammer for the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team Soldiers.

Swartz, who wants to do his part in increasing morale, has transferred approximately 30 fish from the canals outside FOB Hammer to a raw water pond inside the wire since May 26 using a fishing net he made from supplies donated to him by the 203rd BSB Soldiers.

Leaders crack down on sexual assault

SGT. LUIS DELGADILLO
TF MARNE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

A person who survives a sexual assault can have long lasting psychological and emotional trauma. The results of an attack can cast a dark, ominous cloud over the otherwise sterling image of a unit.

That is why Task Force Marne leaders enforce strong preventative approaches to combat sexual assault.

Sgt. 1st Class Delanor Nurse, equal opportunity noncommissioned officer in charge and 3rd Infantry Division's sexual assault response coordinator, said that TF leaders encourage TF members to have battle buddies when they are traveling.

Nurse also said that there have been informative news articles published in the Dog Face Daily and a public service announcement playing in the TF Marne dining facility.

As 3rd Inf. Div.'s SARC, Nurse said he also provides sexual assault prevention training where TF members learn about the two methods of reporting sexual assault.

"The preferred method would be unrestricted because with unrestricted there's a full investigation and the alleged perpetrator, if it's substantiated, would be punished under the (Uniform Code of Military Justice)," said Nurse.

The first kind of reporting is unrestricted and it is for victims of sexual assault who desire medical treatment, counseling and an official investigation of the crime.

Nurse said the second kind of reporting is called restricted and is least favorable because the alleged perpetrator is never placed under investigation.

Nurse said that without unrestricted reporting a perpetrator is free to continue assaulting other people, but the choice is up to the victims who have the option of choosing which type of reporting is best for them.

For reporting Sexual Assault call the Multinational Division Center Sexual Assault Hotline at 9*790-194-1974.

REPORTING SEXUAL ASSAULT

Restricted Reporting

- Restricted reporting is for victims who wish to confidentially disclose the crime and receive medical treatment and counseling without triggering the official investigative process.
- Sexual assault victims who chose restricted can report the assault to a SARC, a victim advocate healthcare provider or chaplain.
- When notified, the SARC will immediately assign a VA to the victim, who will explain the different processes of restricted and unrestricted reporting.
- Healthcare providers, if notified first, begin the appropriate care and treatment and report the sexual assault to the SARC in lieu of reporting the assault to law enforcement agents or the victim's command.
- At the victim's request a trained healthcare provider shall conduct a sexual assault forensic examination which may include the collection of evidence.

Unrestricted Reporting

- When selecting unrestricted reporting, a person should use current reporting channels, e.g. chain of command, law enforcement, report the incident to the SARC or request healthcare providers to notify law enforcement.
- Upon notification of a reported sexual assault, the SARC will immediately assign a victim advocate.
- At the victim's request, the healthcare provider shall conduct a sexual assault forensic examination.
- Details regarding the incident are limited to those personnel who have a legitimate need to know.
- Unrestricted reporting is for victims of sexual assault who want medical treatment, counseling and an official investigation of the crime.

one of the people helping Swartz to create the pond.

"I can't think of a better way to spend my time," said Hoffinger. "Soldiers are the whole reason I came out here. I wanted to make sure they had water and in the process found a way to give them fish."

Swartz hopes to add more fish to the pond so it will be ready to be used by 3rd HBCT Soldiers by August. He hopes the net he receives from a Columbus, Ga., vendor will allow him to stock the pond.

"The one I use now is just a modified cargo net with washers tied to the bottom, to add weight to the base and some water bottles connected to the top to make it float," explained Swartz.

Swartz thinks the pond will provide the Soldiers a place to go and relax.

"Just being next to the water and having a place to cast and retrieve, will really give Soldiers an avenue to unwind," said Swartz. "Fishing gives Soldiers a way to get close to nature. It's a freedom you get just by being there. There is nothing like pulling in a big fish."

Chief Warrant Officer Stephen Campbell, commander of the Marne Division Band, promotes his son Shawn to captain at a promotion ceremony at Forward Operating Base Anaconda June 2. Shawn is assistant support operations officer for the 32nd Multifunctional Medical Battalion. He is stationed at Fort Bragg, N.C.

"This is the first time we've both been in the same theater at the same time," said the senior Campbell, a 24-year Army veteran who has deployed twice to Iraq — once for Operations Desert Shield/Storm and now for Operation Iraqi Freedom. This is Shawn's second tour in Iraq as well, both times in support of OIF.

If you would like to send a Father's Day shout out to your father, go to the Task Force Marne headquarters courtyard between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

ATTENTION, 3RD INF. DIV. PARENTS!

A DVD copy of the graduation ceremonies from the following Fort Stewart, Ga., area schools is now available:

- Bradwell Institute
- Liberty High School

Safety Thought of the Day

Generator Operator Safety

- Allow only licensed operators to operate and maintain generators.
- Ensure generators are properly grounded.
- Ensure that Soldiers wear hearing protection when working around areas where generators are running.
- Store spare cans of fuel a minimum of 50 feet from generator sets.
- Position a fire point between the generator and the fuel storage area.
- Never refuel a generator while the engine is running.
- Keep generators and the area around them clean and free of oil and fuel spills to prevent fires.

HEADLINE HIGHLIGHTS

Students invent alcohol powder

REUTERS

AMSTERDAM — Dutch students have developed powdered alcohol which they say can be sold legally to minors.

The latest innovation in inebriation, called Booz2Go, is available in 20-gramme packets that cost 1-1.5 euros ($1.35-$2). Top it up with water and you have a bubbly, lime-colored and -flavored drink with just 3 percent alcohol content.

"We are aiming for the youth market. They are really more into it because you can compare it with Bacardi-mixed drinks," 20-year-old Harm van Elderen told Reuters.

Van Elderen and four classmates at Helicon Vocational Institute, about an hour's drive from Amsterdam, came up with the idea as part of their final-year project.

"Because the alcohol is not in liquid form, we can sell it to people below 16," said project member Martyn van Nierop.

The legal age for drinking alcohol and smoking is 16 in the Netherlands.

The students said companies interested in making the product commercially could avoid taxes because the alcohol was in powder form. A number of companies are interested, they said.

Goodbye 'WC' for Beijing Games

REUTERS

BEIJING — Beijing's battle to standardize and correct English-language signs ahead of the 2008 Olympics has claimed another head -- "W.C."

By the end of the year, all public conveniences in the city will be called "toilets" instead of the venerable, Victorian-era sounding abbreviation for "water closet," state media reported on Wednesday.

"In many Western countries they don't use the term W.C. at all," the Beijing Morning Post said.

"Because in English, it's equivalent to what we would call in China an out-house, and is a rather crude slang term," it added, without explaining how it had got this impression.

Also on the list are road signs. Use of the romanized form of Chinese, known as "pinyin", will be replaced by the actual English word, except for proper names, the newspaper added. Out will go Dong Changan Jie and in will come East Changan Avenue.

But a rather more vexing question has been what to do about menus to help the hundreds of thousands of tourists, athletes and reporters expected to flood the city, many of whom will not speak a word of Chinese, let alone understand Chinese characters.

All restaurants and hotels rated three star and above will have to use the standard names once they come out, it added. Linguists are struggling about the best way to translate popular dishes like "ants climbing the tree" — spicy fried vermicelli with finely chopped pork — into English accurately yet preserving the original meaning, officials have said.

They are hoping to avoid confusing visitors with the mish-mash of translations now on offer. One well-known Beijing restaurant chain has dishes called "It is small to fry the chicken miscellaneous" and "mixed elbow with garlic mud."
