Secretary Korth Sees K-Bay

NAVY SECRETARY VISITS K-BAY—Secretary of the Navy Fred W. Korth (2d from l) takes a scenic look at K-Bay from historic Kansas Tower. On hand to point out Station facilities were BrigGen. C. A. Youngdale, Brigade CG (1), and Col. P. T. Johnston (r), MCAS CO. The Secretary's administrative assistant, Mr. J. H. Dillon (3d from l), accompanied him.

Secretary of the Navy Fred W. Korth paid K-Bay a short visit Wednesday morning, his first to the Windward Air Station.

He was accompanied by Mr. J. H. Dillon, his administrative assistant, Navy Capt. M. G. Bayne, his Naval Aide, and Marine LtCol. R. S. Robertson, his Special Assistant for Public Affairs.

The Navy Secretary and his party arrived aboard an HMM-161 helicopter at Dewey Square shortly before 10:30. He was greeted by BrigGen. C. A. Youngdale, Brigade CG, and Col. P. T. Johnston, Station CO.

Arriving at Kansas Tower

by motor caravan, Secretary Korth was introduced to BrigGen. T. F. Riley, Corps IG, and Brigade and Station staff officers assembled there. He then received a briefing on the Brigade from Gen. Youngdale.

Col. Johnston followed with remarks on the mission and composition of the Air Station and the housing situation for military families.

Secretary Korth then received an informal orientation of Station facilities from the K-Tower conference room.

Before departing the tower, he stopped briefly to talk with LCpl. Ernest L. Graham, a BOQ steward, who was dispensing coffee to the guests.

The Secretary then returned to Dewey Square where he boarded his helicopter for the trip to Makalapa. He departed the Station at 11:15.

Piloting the SecNav's helicopter was LtCol. L. V. Tope, CO of HMM-161. Co-pilot was Capt. M. O. Martinez and crew chief was Cpl. J. W. Jackson. They picked the Secretary up at Camp Smith for the trip to K-Bay.

Mr. Korth has been Secretary of the Navy since December 1961. He and his party departed Hawaii for the Mainland Wednesday evening.

CMC Labels Symposium Beneficial to All in Corps

"From the symposium will come many, many fine ideas—those which we can adopt and others which we can pursue further which will be in the greatest interest of the Marine Corps."

These were the words of Gen. David M. Shoup, CMC, in his address to delegates at the conclusion of the 1963 Staff NCO Symposium last week.

The delegates to the symposium had been hard at work, and all questions in the published agenda were thoroughly discussed and recommendations prepared for submission to HQMC.

In addition to the agenda items, the delegates also added a few of their own making. HQMC also submitted some extra topics to the conference for consideration and recommendations.

SgtMaj. Frank A. Miller, symposium coordinator, expressed his belief that the delegates had carried out their mission in a most commendable way and that many good ideas were submitted which would be beneficial to personnel of the Marine Corps.

The Commandant thanked all who had participated in the symposium and expressed his belief in such a conclave as being beneficial and worthwhile.

Delegates departed Camp Lejeune Aug. 10 for their respective duty stations.

Swim Meet Scenes — Finals of the AAU Junior Olympics for age group swimmers held at the "E" Pool last weekend were something to behold. Absolute determination and good sportsmanship were bywords of participants and efficiency by Meet officials was with a capital "E."

It was K-Bay's Doreen Smith's last meet in Hawaii. The Smiths departed for the Mainland and a new duty station yesterday. Mrs. Helen Thomas, victorious K-Bay coach, received the traditional treatment afforded the winning coach — she was thrown into the pool when the winner was announced, to the cheers of her young red-clad swimmers. A few more team boosters accompanied her into the drink.

Meanwhile, the busy refreshment booth manned by volunteer swim club mothers dispensed more than a 1000 chocolate bars, 950 hot dogs, 86 gallons of punch, 30 gallons of coffee, 30 dozen donuts, 25 dozen muffins and hundreds of cups of soft drinks.

Jack Costa's K-Bay Inn staff beat a path from the Inn to the stand to keep the ladies re-supplied all four days of the meet.

Editorial Change — Returning to the WM Sports Editor's Desk for the third time in less than two years is SSgt. W. L. Phillips. He relieved Cpl. J. C. Schwaninger who departed Tuesday night for the Mainland. "Swanny" returns to civilian life on Sept. 1 and plans to become the "terror of the campus" at Southeastern Missouri State College on Sept. 5.

Big Biz for Ex-K-Bayite—Former Air Station Supply Officer, Cdr. Ira Smith Jr., has become the first Naval officer to command the Chicago region of Defense Subsistence Supply Center.

He succeeds Army Col. Wilbur M. Johnson. The Chicago region spends more than $240 million annually.

Get Together — More than 450 Marine flyers are expected to attend the Fall 1963 Marine Corps Aviators' Reunion to be held at Marine Corps Schools, Quantico Oct. 4.

Traditionally, officer pilots from the Quantico, Washington and Norfolk areas have been reuniting twice yearly for the past eight years. However, as in the past few reunions, invitations are extended to aviation officers throughout the Corps.

All active, retired, regular and reserve Marine aviation officers, their wives and guests, are invited.

Forty Years of Marine Making—Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, last week celebrated its 40th year of turning out recruits.

Gen. David M. Shoup, Commandant of the Marine Corps, was in San Diego to help mark the occasion and reviewed a parade of 1500 recruits and regular Marines.

The first batch of recruits arrived at San Diego Aug. 12, 1923, and underwent nine weeks of training. Three of these weeks were spent at the La Jolla rifle range, later known as Camp Matthews.

SWORN IN—Navy Lt. George F. Cagle, a helicopter pilot with PMRF's recovery department, is sworn into the Regular Navy by Capt. S. H. Lane, Pacific Missile Range Facility CO. Lt. Cable became a Regular last week.

25 Brigade Marines Finish Three-Phase 'Scout' School

Col. W. H. Marsh, CO, 4th Marines, presented certificates of completion to 25 graduates of the Regiment's recent Scout/Radar Training Course last Monday.

Conducted in three phases, the classes began July 15 and ended Aug. 16. The first and third phases were instructed by the Regimental S-2 section and consisted of map and aerial photo reading, intelligence, communications and AN/TPS-21 radar training.

Phase II consisted of instruction in scouting, patrolling and observation. It was presented by Recon personnel.

Scouting and patrolling training emphasizes intelligence gathering techniques and missions appropriate for scouts when attached to platoon and company size patrols, and short range reconnaissance missions by two and four man patrols.

The newly trained Scout/Radar Operators and their organizations are:

Life of Moral Excellence, Closer Friendship with God Best Values

By Chaplain Paul W. Power

One of the most revealing questions that we can ask ourselves is: How important is what I want? If our only need is the next pay check and our sole aim material, then our approach to life and its challenges and problems will correspond accordingly.

The next pay check and material improvement are necessary, but they should have their place in our scale of values.

There is more to living than what is found in the nearby attractive shopping center; there are higher values than enjoyable luxuries.

Our most important value should be our own personal integrity. This involves our relationship to our Creator, to our family, and to others. It implies that we place a high estimate on sound moral values and actions.

The word "value" may suggest many ideas to us. It may imply to some a good bargain or a beautiful diamond, but to all it should mean a daily life of moral excellence and a close friendship with God.

And these values are the priceless diamonds of life.

WILL TO WIN — With faces clearly depicting the strain, members of H&S-2/4's tug-of-war team give their best at the Battalion's field meet held on Platt Field last Friday. However, their will-to-win wasn't enough. Company "H" pulled them across the mark for the victory. Company "F" took first place at the meet with "G" and "E" Companies coming in 2d and 3d, respectively.

Patio Barber Shop 'Trims' Hours, Room

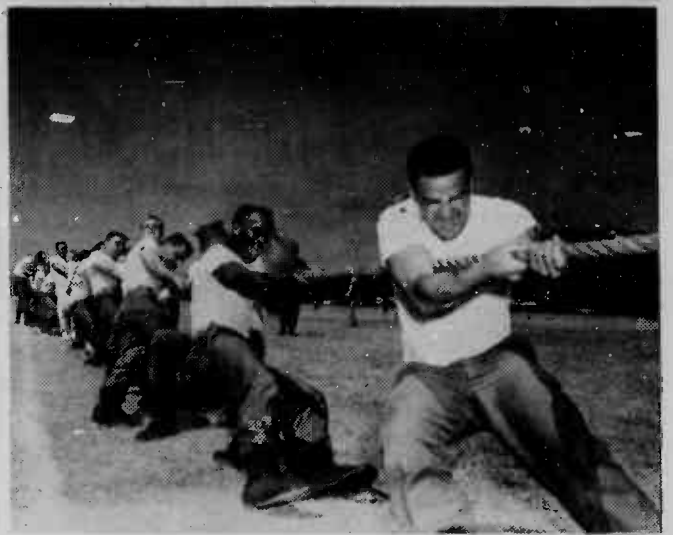

K-Bayites won't be getting clipped — haircut wise that is — as often as usual at the Patio Barber Shop in Bldg. #244.

Ye ole barber shop will be closed intermittently during the next two weeks beginning Monday.

The shop will undergo a trimming itself, receiving a complete remodeling of its interior.

Definite hours cannot be predicted as to closing and opening times during the renovation, so patrons will have to chance it on a hit-or-miss basis, according to WO Bruce Ellis, MCX officer.

The #1090 shop will remain open as usual.

DOUBLE BONUS—Tuesday was Brigade SgtMaj. W. W. McElliott's "red letter" day. Sharing the happy occasion with him was his boss, BrigGen. C. A. Youngdale. The General administered the reenlistment oath to him and in turn received a cigar. The cigar was given in celebration of a daughter born to the McElliotts at 11 a.m. that day.

UofH, Kailua Adult School Fall Semester Slate Firm

There are many ways in which a Marine can improve his education — if he has the will.

Two of these are offered K-Bay Marines through the University of Hawaii and the Kailua Community School for Adults.

The UofH has announced its schedule for both on and off campus courses for the fall semester.

Entrance examinations will be given tomorrow at 8:30 a.m., Sept. 4 at 6 p.m., and Sept. 14 at 1 p.m., at Bilger Hall (room 152) on campus. A $2 fee will be charged.

A Station bulletin with handouts will be distributed indicating date of registration, classes and courses offered.

There will be no courses offered on Station this semester due to lack of interest. If sufficient interest is shown, courses will be offered during the winter semester.

In addition, the Kailua Community School for Adults has also announced its courses for the fall semester. The California achievement test will be given Sept. 10-11 at 6:30 p.m. This is a requirement for obtaining a high school certificate through the school.

If you are interested in entering the UofH for the fall semester or the Kailua school, contact the Station Education office for further information.

MERIT MAST — LCpl. Robert W. Wachter, C—Motors mechanic, was awarded a meritorious mast Aug. 7 for outstanding performance of duty while TAD to the Pohakuioa Training Area on the Big Island.

'Come Home Winner'

'Top Squad' Dines on 3-4; Called 'Cream of the Crop'

A testimonial dinner was given for the Brigade's "Top Squad" last Friday night at the Crossroads.

The dinner was attended by 101 Marines including BrigGen. C. A. Youngdale, Brigade Commander, and Col. W. H. Marsh, Regimental Commander.

Also attending were the T/O squads of each company in 3/4, their COs and platoon sergeants.

The members of the "Top Squad" were each presented a handbag with the unit's emblem and their name printed on them. They also received leather shaving kits. The gifts were presented by members of the Third Battalion.

While making the presentations, Gen. Youngdale referred to the "Top Squad" as "the cream of the crop." He went on to say that the Brigade is "100 percent behind them" and he "expects them to come back as winners."

During the past week the squad has been undergoing intensive training on the latest concepts of mapping and compass reading. They are also brushing up in other areas of squad tactics.

The squad is slated to leave K-Bay Sept. 11 for Quantico. The Corps-wide competition is scheduled for Sept. 16-18.

'Top Squad' Leader's Hand-icap Becomes Squad Good Luck Item

By SSgt. Jim Di Bernardo

"If at first you don't succeed, try, try again..." might well be the inspiration that Sgt. James R. Cannon, I—3/4, and squad leader of the Brigade's "Top Squad," needed to emerge victorious in the recent contest.

For the past two years Sgt. Cannon has led a squad in Brigade-level competitions to second place. The first year his squad was 3/4 runner-up; and last year he took back seat to 2/4's "best."

However, "It wasn't all in vain," said Sgt. Cannon. "The experience I gained during the past competitions really paid dividends for me this year."

But things didn't look so rosy at the beginning of the competition some three months ago. Shortly after announcement of the annual event, the 26-year-old squad leader shattered his thumb during an exhibition softball game.

He was playing second base for the battalion's non-com team when a ball thrown to him by the first baseman caught him "just right" on his thumb.

He played out the inning, but had to retreat to the bench in the next inning. At sick bay the X-rays revealed the thumb was broken in three places. Sgt. Cannon left the dispensary wearing a five-pound cast that would have spelled disaster to a less determined individual.

The 3/4 squad leader went home to a sleepless night, thinking about the effect this might have on his squad's chances.

Perhaps a more selfish person wouldn't have given it a second thought. But Sgt. Cannon couldn't — and didn't — make the final decision.

Meeting with the squad the next day, Sgt. Cannon laid his cast on the table and put it bluntly: "do you want me to remain your squad leader, or would you rather I drop out and act in a supervisory capacity?"

The squad elected to retain their leader.

With the vote of confidence, the Sergeant set about the task

Sgt. J. R. Cannon

of preparing himself and his Marines for the rugged competitions before them.

During days following, the squad averaged a 14-hour workday. Classes began in the early hours and were followed with practical field application often late into the night.

Throughout the local competitions Sgt. Cannon had to have the cast replaced eight times. Today it is looked upon by the squad leader and his men as a good luck piece. Removed Aug. 16 the cast will accompany the squad to the Quantico competition, but less conspicuously.

Sgt. Cannon instructed the squad at all the classes except mapping and compass instruction.

When asked what factor he felt contributed most to the squad's success, he replied: "having full control over the squad's training, both at the company and battalion levels, and knowing that help was available anytime I needed it."

"But the biggest contribution, to me personally, came from the men themselves.

Their esprit de corps, enthusiasm, teamwork and determined will to win were my greatest assets."

As for his chances at Quantico, the usually outspoken sergeant became reticent. After much deliberation, he answered: "let Quantico speak for itself."

Prior to joining the Corps in August 1954 at Washington, D.C., Sgt. Cannon served as a tank driver for the Virginia National Guard's 176th Regimental Combat Team.

He is married to the former Freda L. Robinson. They have three children, Kevin, 6; Cory, 4; and Dawn, 5 months.

Besides making the Corps a full-time activity, the Sergeant likes to shoot, swim, play football and softball.

He served five years at Quantico before joining the Brigade in April 1961. At Marine Corps Schools he served with the MP Company, the rifle team and as a marksman-ship instructor at Annapolis.

'Chow Down' in K-Bay's 2 Messhalls Means Food for 4500 Men - Times 3

"A good mess sergeant not only has to be a mathematical whiz, he has to be psychic, too."

SSgt. Edward J. Munn of the MCAS Mess Administration office offers that description.

Elaborating, he explains that "The two messhalls here at K-Bay feed 4500 men a day, or 13,500 meals. The mess sergeant must figure how many portions of each item on the menu he will need for each meal, then he has to order these items from one to two weeks in advance."

The Food Services section of the MCAS Supply Department has the job of putting $130,000 worth of groceries on K-Bay mess hall tables each month.

Specifically, that's 50,000 pounds of meat and 80,200 pounds of potatoes in an average month.

Coffee, the "staff of life" to the average Marine, goes down at the rate of 7500 gallons a month.

How does this chow get to the troops?

Heading the 146-man section is Capt. Sheldon M. Emerson, the Food Services Director. Capt. F. W. Simutis is next in charge as the Mess Administrator.

Top enlisted man in the section is MSgt. Irving C. Miller Jr., the Food Services Technician.

Four major branches make up the mess complex at K-Bay. Mess One, headed by MSgt. Buel B. Swann, and Mess Two, with GySgt. Robert W. Fuqua as NCOIC, do the actual feeding of the troops.

Supporting the messes are the Bake Shop, run by SSgt. N. W. Hoes, and the Butcher Shop, with GySgt. F. D. Hindbaugh at the helm.

The Mess Administration office makes up a master menu two or three months in advance. The Station Menu Board, headed by Navy Capt.

Gennaro Basilicato, Senior Medical Officer, then checks the menu to make sure it meets Marine Corps diet requirements.

commands, and training schedules to see who is going to be in the field.

From these figures, the mess sergeant orders necessary foodstuffs.

Orders go to the Issue Commissary, another section of the Food Services Department, one to two weeks in advance of a day's requirements.

The Issue Commissary orders all foodstuffs used at K-Bay through the Naval Supply Center at Pearl Harbor.

The messhalls, butcher and bake shops, in turn, order their supplies from the Issue Commissary in bldg. 20B.

For meat or bakery needs, mess sergeants go to either the butcher shop, located in Mess Two, or the bake shop in Mess One, where they purchase required amounts.

As any good housewife knows, food preparation takes time. The working day at K-Bay messhalls starts at 4 a.m., with preparations for breakfast.

Until nearly seven that night activity never ceases. While one meal is being served, ovens are hot and big kettles are boiling for subsequent meals.

The nearly 100 men at Mess Two and 30 at Mess One are split into two shifts to keep the chow on the mess lines seven days a week.

Special courses in food service are conducted regularly. Most of K-Bay's cooks have completed at least one MCI course relative to their professions.

The three-man Mess Property office has the task of maintaining more than a million dollars worth of mess equipment.

The 146 Marines regularly assigned to the Food Services Section, supplemented by nearly 150 temporary messmen, put forth much effort to see that they serve the best the Corps has to offer.

They realize that a well-fed Marine is that much closer to being a ready Marine.

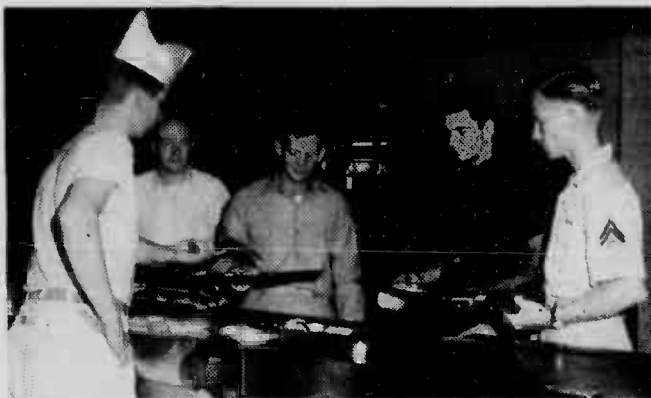

STIR WELL, THEN SERVE—GySgt. Julian E. Dodd, Asst. Management Chief for Messhall #1 (l), watches Chief Cook, SSgt. Noah I. Standiford, prepare one of his specials—spaghetti sauce.

SWEEPERS, MAN YOUR BROOMS—Following each meal messmen man their stations for a clean mop-down fore and aft. Messmen are rotated every 30 days at K-Bay.

SIMMERING POT—Steam's aplenty as PFC. J. L. Dooley (l) and Cpl. J. R. White (r) brew up a pot of vegetables in preparation for another meal in Messhall #2. Sgt. B. E. Adams, Cook on watch (c), offers expert advice as appropriate.

TWO OVER EASY - PFC. A. W. Schlosser of Messhall #2 serves eggs to Sunday's late sleepers. Brunch from 7 to 11 a.m. and supper is served on Saturdays and Sundays.

HOT ROLLS - SSgt. Nelson W. Hoes, Station Bakery, adds the finishing touches to a pan of hot, golden rolls for messhall use.

MOST POPULAR PLACE—Take all you want; eat all you take is the motto for K-Bay Marines as they enjoy a noon meal in Messhall #1. Tables seat four, cafeteria style. More than 4500 Marines are fed at each meal, totaling at least 13,500 meals daily in both messhalls.

POLISHING - Messmen serving at Messhall #1 clean, polish and store silverware three times a day except on brunch days.

The K-Bay Swim Club piled up 47 points to win the 6th Annual Junior Olympic Long Course Swimming Championships at the Enlisted Pool last weekend.

The Pearl Harbor Swim Club took second place with 28 points during the two-day meet in which 16 Hawaiian records were broken, five of them by K-Bay.

Palama Swim Club was 3d with 302, followed by Hickam, Schofield, Aina Haina, Puna-hou, Wheeler and Nuuanu.

Three of the eight individual trophies were captured by K-Bay youths.

Murdock Injures Finger

Marauder Hopes Snuffed in Ninth Inning; Schofield Wins Tilt 3-2 With Late Single

By John Funk Jr.

A sharp single to left in the bottom of the ninth by Schofield catcher Jack Coleman snuffed out K-Bay's visions of second place and gave the Schofield teens a 3-2 edge over the local teen club Marauders last Saturday night at Schofield.

In the bottom of the ninth the score was locked at two-all when Marauder pitcher John Murdock developed a finger injury.

When Murdock attempted to pitch despite the injury, he was tagged for a double.

Reliever and new addition to the Marauders, Joe Bekeris was tagged for the game-winning single.

Schofield led all the way until the top of the ninth when short stop Dan Jefferson singled, stole second and third and scored on a single by 1st-sacker John Funk.

Funk stole second and reached third on Willy Jefferson's ground-out but was unable to score.

Winning pitcher was Schofield's Ray Winston. He allowed seven hits, struck out 11 and walked three.

The losing pitcher, Murdock, hurled an outstanding game allowing only four hits, fanning 15 and walking four.

Both of K-Bay's runs were earned. Schofield earned only one run.

For the Schofield teens, catcher Coleman and 2d-sacker Jim Thomas had two hits apiece.

Leading K-Bay's offensive punch were pitcher Murdock and short stop Jefferson, each having two hits.

Tomorrow the Marauders meet the 1st place Pearl Harbor Vikings at Riseley Field. Gametime is 2 p.m.

Navy and Marine Officers Encouraged to Read More

Navy and Marine officers are being urged to broaden their intellectual and cultural horizons.

It's all part of a recently issued Navy instruction to both Navy and Marine officers saying they should read timely and significant books and articles for intelligent growth and development.

The instruction states that, "to keep abreast of new knowledge, the rapid changes in the national and world situation and scienti-flic and cultural progress, it becomes increasingly important that officers continue to learn by developing purposeful reading habits."

As a way of helping officers decide what is significant, the Navy plans to send out recommended reading lists four times a year.

The first two lists have already been distributed. For the most part, the recommended works discuss Communism and the Soviet Union, peoples of the world and aid programs, missiles in warfare and counter insurgency.

The recommended reading lists are drawn up by an advisory committee of five Naval and civilian specialists. (AF-PS)
