Aerial 'Change Train' On Track Today; Timetable Calls for 6 a.m. Take-Off

First Brigade "Blacksheep" pilots were scheduled to begin departing K-Bay this morning at 6 to put Operation "Change Train" into the air.

Destination for the 20 A4B "Skyhawk" jet attack bombers is MCAS, El Toro. The distance: approximately 2233 miles.

The Pacific Ocean crossing will be postponed at least 24 hours if inclement weather prevails along the flight route.

The first four-plane division was to be led by the squadron CO, LtCol. O. "E" Howe Jr., and was to be followed by two more divisions at 45-minute intervals. The remaining two divisions will take off from K-Bay tomorrow.

Trading their A4B "Skyhawk" aircraft for a later model, the A4C, the Blacksheep squadron will fly to MCAS, Yuma, Ariz., for two weeks of intensive flight and weapons training.

Change Train involves some 32 officers and 200 enlisted Marines. The advance party flew to the West Coast Mar. 1 to accept the new aircraft.

KC-130 "Hercules" tankers from VMGR-352 will provide enroute refueling. K-Bay's Skyhawks are to be refueled twice during the over-water flight. The tankers will also provide weather reconnaissance along the entire route.

The squadron plans to conduct Operation "Turn Table," the return trip via air to K-Bay, Apr. 20.

BLT 1-4 Praised for 'Back Pack' Showing

Operation "Back Pack," one of the largest military training exercises ever conducted in Taiwan, ended last week and was declared highly successful by senior military observers.

The exercise involved about

47,000 American and Chinese Marines and Naval personnel both ashore and afloat.

Under cover of naval guns and Marine and Navy fighter aircraft, U. S. Marines hit the beaches and joined with Nationalist Chinese Marines to battle the aggressors who had invaded southern Taiwan.

Adm. Charles L. Melson, commander U. S. Taiwan Defense Command, said after watching the exercise he feels that the United States would be ready and able to carry out the terms of the Sino-American mutual defense treaty of 1964, if called upon.

MajGen. James M. Masters Sr., commanding general, 3d-MarDiv, had high praise for Marines who participated in Back Pack.

"They did their jobs well and absolutely without monkey business," he said.

SecNav Expected Here Tomorrow

Secretary of the Navy Paul H. Nitze is scheduled to visit K-Bay tomorrow morning during his first trip to Hawaii since taking the Navy Department helm. He will be accompanied by LtGen. V. H. Krulak, CG, FMFPac.

The Secretary was to arrive at Hickam AFB early this morning for two days of conferences with top military leaders and inspection of local Navy and Marine Corps facilities.

ORI for Leeward NAS

MCAS Inspectors at BarPt.

Station Marine and Navy officers and enlisted personnel this week participated in the Administrative/Material and Operational Readiness Inspections of the Barber's Point Naval Air Station.

The inspections, which began Tuesday, were concluded yesterday afternoon with a critique at the NAS.

Col. P. T. Johnston, Station CO, served as chief observer.

Eighteen officers and one Navy hospitalman acted as inspectors for the admin and material inspection which commenced Tuesday.

The ORI was conducted yesterday. Sixteen officers and three enlisted inspected the recovery team. Twenty-six officers, a number of whom participated in other phases, and two enlisted Marines were observers for the battle problem.

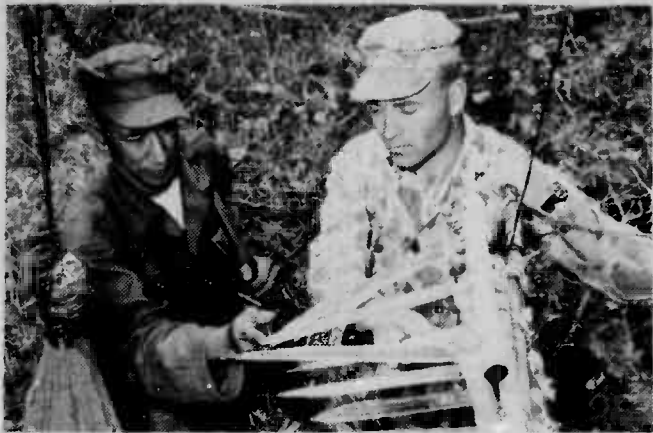

Approximately 25 members of the Provost Marshal's section served as aggressors during the ground defense phase of the ORI.

APPOINTMENT ACCOMPLISHED — LCdr. Robert J. Schultz, Senior MAG-13 Medical Officer (c), received assistance with the pinning on of his new rank insignia last week from BrigGen. M. E. Carl, Brigade CG, while the Commander's wife, Marcella, smiled her approval.

CONGRATULATIONS RENDERED — Maj. John Strahan, Station Maintenance Officer (l), and LCdr. A. R. Carpenter, Station Optometrist (r), received congratulations upon appointment to their present ranks last week from Col. P. T. Johnston, Station CO (c). DEATH-WIELDING BAMBOO — Seabee reservist UT1 David M. Akui (l) checks the "Swinging Pangee Spikes," a deadly trap used in guerrilla warfare, as Cpl. H. W. Gough, instructor at the Brigade's Guerrilla Warfare School, explains its operations.

Seabee Reserves Complete Brigade's Guerrilla School

Nine officers and 62 enlisted local Seabee Reservists graduated today after completing two weeks of rugged training at Brigade's Guerrilla Warfare School.

More than two decades have past since three of the officers took Seabee training at Camp Perry, Va., with Marine drill instructors as their teachers.

These same three officers, Cdrs. G. J. Cooper and R. K. Hoefener, COs of Hawaii's Construction Battalion, Divisions 14-1 and 14-2, respectively, and Cdr. O. M. Mayer, recruiting and public information officer for 14-2, were among today's graduates.

Both Seabee units arrived at K-Bay Mar. 8 for their two weeks active duty training.

This is the third time the Reservists have trained here. In 1961, they spent one week erecting quonset huts and another week at tending NCO Leadership School. Last year they attended a modified two-week course at the NCO Leadership School.

Average age of the Seabees completing the Guerrilla Warfare School is 43. The youngest is James G. Balaz, 17, and the oldest is Alfred E. C. Wong, 58.

Palm Sunday Celebrated Centuries Ago Commemorating Christ as King

By Chaplain W. A. Lane

On a Sunday many years ago — later known as Palm Sunday — Jesus Christ presented Himself to the nation of Israel in the fashion prescribed in the Old Testament that King Messiah would come.

History, of course, records the manner of reception given Him and is witness to their rejection of their king.

Israel, steeped in the traditions of Jewish history and religion, and purportedly looking and waiting anxiously for Messiah's coming, was too spiritually blind in recognizing Him upon his advent and, as the New Testament reveals, cast Him out and crucified Him.

Free Hootenanny shows will be staged twice nightly.

There will be game booths, food concessions and many exhibits.

One of the main attractions will be the MABS-13 "dunker," a feature of the K-Bay Water Carnival. It is on loan to the Elks for the carnival, then will be readied for the forthcoming K-Bay event.

The carnival will be located at Kailua Field adjacent to the Kailua Intermediate School.

Warning! Danger! Caution! — Sixteen dynamite blasting caps are temporarily unaccounted for in an Air Station warehouse. PMO asks all hands to be on the alert and K-Bay residents to inform children soonest. If any are seen, PMO officials should be notified immediately.

The caps resemble a thin metal shell approximately 2 1/2" in length. They may or may not have two wires at one end. They could still be enclosed in a tubular paper container marked "Dupont", "Heyco" or "Atlas".

PMO reiterates: Do not touch — contact them immediately!

It was the Band's way of welcoming St. Patrick's Day.

Game's Same; Names Lane — Most units in the Marine Corps have plenty of men named Smith, White, Jones, Brown and Kelly, but VMF-232 doesn't claim a one.

Sgt. Maj. T. J. David thinks the alphabet has more than 26 letters every time he checks his roster. All he finds are names like Zanatos, Trujillo, Krzywicki, Hornberger, Schnathorst, two McLaughlins, one McLoughlin, two Wagners, Farmers and a couple of Stouts.

Sgt. Maj. David's comment: "Anyone for alphabet soup?"

Dinner Will Be Served — K-Bay Marines planning to eat brunch tomorrow in either messhalls are in for a pleasant surprise.

In lieu of the regular Saturday mid-morning snack, a full-course dinner, highlighted by Pineapple Chicken, will be served from 11:30 a.m. until half-past noon.

Breakfast goes between 6:15 and 7:15 a.m., with supper scheduled from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Better To Be Safe Than Sorry — K-Bayites can tune to Channel 13 Sunday at 9 p.m. and learn medical facts that could save someone's life in your family.

LtCol. Edward Tomsovic, Pediatrics Chief at Tripler Army Hospital, will appear on "Call the Doctor" to discuss accidental poisoning and ingestion cases involving children.

Al Roth, Station Safety Officer, recommends the program for all adults.

Scratch One More — The K-Bay ISO roster had another deletion this week with the departure of SSgt. Al Steele for duty in the Corps' New York Information Office.

While aboard, he held a number of key positions in the ISO shop, from WM editor to Information Chief. Shortly before departing, he wrapped up a final draft of a history of the Air Station and Mokapu Peninsula, complete with sketches by former Cpl. Stan Hunter of Station Training Aids.

VMT-1 Adds Jet Transition Training

Marine Training Squadron-1 (VMT-1) at MCAS, Cherry Point, has established a new three-month Jet Transition Course for 2d MAW pilots.

The transition course is primarily designed to provide helicopter pilots with enough jet experience to qualify them for further training with a tactical jet unit.

The course syllabus teaches the pilot flight formations, fighter tactics, air-to-ground ordnance delivery, in-flight refueling, night flying, and low level navigation.

In the instrument phase the student pilot is taught basic instrument flying, instrument navigation, and cross country flying.

Students attending VMT-1's training program fly the TF-9J Cougar jet, an aircraft with characteristics similar to tactical jet fighter and attack aircraft in current use throughout the Marine Corps.

Red Cross Keymen Want You! Get on Bandwagon!

Although the widespread flood waters of the Ohio River and its tributaries began to recede last Friday, Red Cross continued to aid 100,000 persons in 99 stricken counties in the five-state Ohio River Valley.

President Lyndon B. Johnson, along with Red Cross President Alfred M. Gruenther and the governors of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky made a low-altitude air survey of the disaster area.

Many dollars will be spent to aid these unfortunate people in providing health and comfort now and in helping them to reestablish themselves after the waters recede," Cliff Hadley, KMCAS Field Director said.

Volunteers have joined Red Cross in setting up communications at Disaster Headquarters in Louisville, Ky. Mobile canteens have been at the scene to feed more than 100 volunteers from Fort Knox.

Since the disaster about 27,800 families have been affected, as many as 15,000 in Ohio alone.

"I urge every K-Bayite to be as generous as possible in contributing to Red Cross' current fund campaign to replenish the funds which are being expended to bring relief to disaster-stricken families," Mr. Hadley said.

All K-Bayites, military or civilian, who are concerned about their families or relatives in the disaster area should contact the Red Cross Field Office.

Red Cross will dispatch a message to the locale desired. Inquiries and personal contact will be made in each case.

Mr. Hadley or one of his staff will contact the K-Bayite at anytime, day or night, when the return message is received.

The Red Cross Office is located in Bldg. #221, phone 72606.

Local Records Fall as Marines Romp; Cindermen Face Rainbow Tomorrow

The Marines earned 88 points to run away from Church College of Hawaii and Navy.

Army Runs Show

Scribes To Train Together

Beginning in July, the Army Information School at Ft. Slocum, N.Y., will become the Defense Information School for would-be journalists and radio-television specialists of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard.

"Consolidation of information training," Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara declared, "will promote economy and efficiency by eliminating administrative overhead and permitting use of common training facilities."

DOD said the school will be jointly staffed with personnel from the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps. The commandant will be an Army colonel.

The Navy journalist school at Great Lakes, Ill., will be phased out and its staff and faculty transferred to DINFOS. The Air Force has no information school, but its personnel have been training with the Army at Ft. Slocum.

The first class under the new setup is expected to begin in July, officials said. Classes will be of varying lengths up to 10 weeks.

Fort Slocum is scheduled to be deactivated by July 1966. DINFOS will then be moved to Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind. (AFPS)
