Chaplain's Corner

To 'Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself' Is The Divine Law For Us To Obey

By Chaplain K. M. Loughman

While waiting for a small job to be done on his car, a customer watched a man change the oil in another car without spilling a drop. He saw him check the battery and radiator, close the hood, wipe away all finger marks, clean the windshield and sweep out the car.

"There is the man to work on my car," observed the customer.

"That's his own car," replied the foreman.

In many ways we favor ourselves. We do not take as many pains in doing something for others as we do when we are personally concerned.

Still the divine law sets a sound standard for all of us, "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

God expects us to care for ourselves. That is true. At the same time, however, he expects us to show a similar concern for others.

Until we honestly strive to attain this balance, very little order will exist in the world.

Escorts Needed — Approximately 40 children from the Crippled Children's Home will be guests at the 4th Annual K-Bay Water Carnival. To insure them of a fun-filled day, volunteers are needed to escort the children.

Individuals or units desiring to make their services available for this cause are asked to contact 1stLt. Stensland at 73520 or 72548.

Refrigerator Danger — In-view of the large number of personnel moving into government housing at this time of year, housing officials, ask that extreme caution be exercised in the storage of personally-owned refrigerators and freezers.

Several deaths, throughout the Nation, have resulted from small children being trapped in a refrigerator or freezer.

Housing officials advise tenants having personally-owned refrigerators or freezers that are accessible to persons outside the living areas of their quarters to:

- (1) Make sure that the door is secured in such a manner that it can be opened from the inside.
- (2) Install a lock on the outside of the appliance if it cannot be easily pushed open as indicated in (1) above.
- (3) Place the appliance in a storage or other area which can be locked when not under the immediate supervision of a qualified person.
- (4) Remove or render inoperative all closing or latching devices so that the door will not remain closed.

The Sergeants, who donned their chevrons June 16, were addressed by the senior staff NCOs, who, according to Brigade SgtMaj. W. W. McElliott, represent more than 150 years of combined Marine Corps service.

General Carl congratulated the Marines on their promotion and reminded them of the added responsibility, prestige and authority that accompany their new rank.

The General's closing remarks instructed the Sergeants "to be tough, but be fair."

The top enlisted men commented on their personal experiences in the areas of planning personal management and leadership traits.

Other senior NCOs speaking to the group were SgtMaj. E. W. Snyder, MAG-13; SgtMaj. L. E. Vickers, 3/12; SgtMaj. J. A. Nastasi, 4thMarines, and 1stSgt. Tony Byars, 1stRadCo.

K-BAY FORMATION — One hundred twenty-six Station and Brigade Marines, selected to don the chevrons of Sergeant, hold a "K-Bay roll call" on Dewey Square. The new Sergeants officially received their promotion warrants June 16.

IN THE ASSAULT — Assault troops found the enemy to be fascinating actors when engaged on the many puus of Pohakuloa. The aggressors "died in position" or were "shot down" attempting to evade capture.

WANTED — This sign, one of many found at aggressor positions, offers a promotion, or "Basket" leave to the captor of Capt. R. E. "Evil Eye" Lefevre, B-1/4 CO.

STRATEGY BRIEFING — Capt. L. H. Buehl, Assistant S-3, 3/4 (sitting), briefs LtCol. N. W. Hicks, Battalion CO, on the latest location of the enemy during the final phase of the battalion's tactical test.

4th Marines Tactical Tests, Live-Fire Exercises Rated 'Outstanding' Training

The return of BLT 1/4 to K-Bay this week marked the completion of the Fourth Regiment's annual Battalion Landing Team tactical test training conducted on Hawaii from May 3 to June 20.

More than 2500 Marines from the "Fighting Fourth" underwent the test amidst the lava flows of the Army's Pohakuloa Training Area on the Big Island.

Col. E. P. Dupras Jr., 4th Marines CO, summed up the Pohakuloa training with one word "Outstanding." He said "The tactical test and live-fire exercises provided the Regiment with an excellent proving ground to demonstrate their outstanding capabilities and combat readiness. The results of this training can only be termed as a highly satisfactory performance on the part of those involved."

Two-Four kicked off the cycle May 3 when they were air-lifted to Pohakuloa six-days earlier than scheduled in a surprise mount-out drill.

With 2/4's return May 23, 3/4 boarded the KC-130 "Hercules" transports and headed for Hawaii. They returned to K-Bay June 6 and were replaced by 1/4.

The tactical tests presented the same problems for each battalion and followed the same format. They were designed to test the proficiency and unit training of participating elements under battlefield conditions.

Each battalion began the test on a Tuesday, by conducting reconnaissance patrols and repulsing small probing attacks by the aggressors.

At sunrise Wednesday, the battalion being tested started its drive against the enemy, but was delayed by road blocks and sabotage tactics of the aggressor forces. By noon the battalion had successfully overcome the enemy at Puu Menehune.

Each battalion continued to press the aggressors Wednesday night with night attacks on hills Maile, Moanalua, and Lehue.

At dawn Thursday they attacked and secured Puu Kea, and encountered the enemy again at Puu Ka Pele.

Each battalion was hit hard Thursday night when the enemy launched a counter-attack and spread tear gas in the battalion CP areas. Shortly after the counter-attack, the test was brought to a close.

During the test, the aggressors harassed the battalions with attacks in small numbers, and erected road blocks 30 to 40 feet high from the plentiful lava rock. Brigade bulldozers from B-Engineers were brought up from the rear to clear the "rock-blocks" and enable supporting weapons and supplies to flow through to the advancing infantry units.

The aggressors found that their road blocks proved only to slow the battalion's vehicles, as the troops bypassed obstacles in close pursuit of their enemy.

Marines from F-2/4 and two platoons from B-Recon acted as aggressors for 1/4 and 3/4, while M-3/4 and the two Recon platoons aggressed 2/4.

The aggressors were commanded by Capt. R. H. Philon, Recon CO.

Clad in their khaki uniforms, the aggressors furnished combat conditions for each of the three battalions during the tests.

Support for the battalions consisted of detachments from B-Engineers, B-Med., 1stLt-SuptCo., 1stLandSuptCo., C-Motors, and detachments from HMM-161 and VMA-214.

Artillery support for 2/4 was furnished by H-3/12. Three-four received its supporting artillery fire from the 105mm Howitzers of "I" Battery. "G" Battery supported 1/4 during their test.

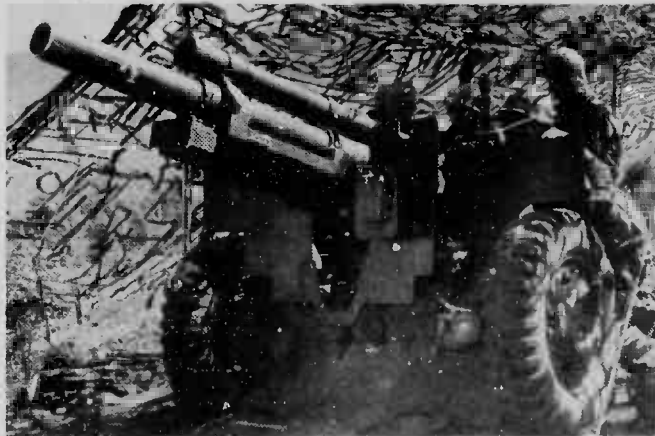

AGGRESSOR STRONG HOLD — 1stLt. W. T. Sweeney, B-Recon FxO (standing), points out approaching 1/4 Marines to Sgt. W. H. Carden, squad leader, from their position atop Puu Menehune.

MINED ROAD — A team of combat engineers from B-Engineers clears a roadway for a temporarily halted battalion. Almost all road blocks erected by the aggressors were accompanied by mined approach roads.

PRISONERS OF WAR — As in any "War", prisoners were taken and interrogated by intelligence personnel attempting to learn about the enemy's strength, location and tactics.

SUPPORTING FIRE — Targets and fire missions were plentiful for the howitzer batteries of 3/12 during the Pohakuloa training. Each infantry battalion was supported by an artillery battery consisting of six 105mm Howitzers.

WIREMAN — LCpl. R. J. Miller, H&S-1/4, makes use of a tree to string comm wire within the CP area on Lava Ridge.

CAUGHT AT HOME — K-Bay's softball catcher Bernie G. Zickefoose gets set to tag Army's shortstop at home plate. Ready to call the play is Umpire Brewington. K-Bay won the game 2-1 last Thursday to gain a second place tie in the standings at the end of the first half of league play. Wheeler won the first half title.
