K-Bay Book-of-the-Month Is 'Harlow' by Shulman

By Maccine Titus
Chief Librarian

The Book-of-the-Month at the Station Library is "Harlow" by Irving Shulman.

Harlow!...no star ever blazed with such a dazzling light ... or left such an afterglow.

When Jean Harlow and Bern married, the most publicized marriage in Hollywood should have been consummated. What actually happened was one of the most carefully guarded secrets of all time. Even after Bern put a bullet through his head and left to posterity a cryptic note that made every front page in the nation.

While the famous blonde bombshell vacationed in San Francisco, rumor ran like electricity through movietown. What actually happened, carefully hushed by the watchdogs of the famous, was far more shocking than the rumor-mongers could ever have guessed.

Here is the full truth about Harlow, her brief, tumultuous reign as Hollywood's undisputed queen of sex.

Man's Greatest Wisdom Is Being Conscious of His Own Limitations

By Chaplain W.A. Lane

That we are living in extremely trying times is a well known fact to each of us. Perhaps there has never been a period of time of such duration when the whole world experienced as many great crises as has been true of our time.

There is a great deal of fear and apprehension throughout the world concerning the future. What is going to happen? Can mankind survive? These are some of the questions that are constantly on the mind of many people over the world today.

While the picture may seem dark, this is not to imply that it is hopeless. For with perilous times come great challenges to the human spirit.

These are not times to become frustrated, or to despair, but times to realize that this can be mankind's greatest hour—the time in which he may rise to his greatest heights of character and achievement.

Man's greatest wisdom is to realize his own limitations, and to understand that in his own strength alone he is not capable of charting his own course and the course of history.

Man needs to realize that he must come to know God and align himself with God in this great venture of faith. We must learn to appropriate God's wisdom and strength to solve the problems of life.

As we do this we will gain the victory for our own personal lives, and be able to assist others to do the same.

CNO Tells Of President Johnson's Appreciation—The Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral David L. McDonald has directed the following message to all naval personnel:

"In a one-hour meeting last Saturday the President repeatedly emphasized his appreciation of the steps which the Armed Services had taken in the implementation of his program to insure that we get the most for each defense dollar spent.

"It is his desire that each individual and each unit know that he is pleased by these results which indicate to him that we have full appreciation of the need for frugality and prudence in carrying out our responsibilities.

"Keep up the good work."

Reveen at Theatre #1 — Reveen, often billed as "The World's Greatest Hypnotist," makes his K-Bay debut tonight in Theatre #1 at 8:30.

Return the Red-Ringers—The MCAS Golf Committee needs help. The current supply of driving range balls is already low and more of the red-ringed golf balls seem to be disappearing. Member of 'Old Corps' Tours Station After 40 Years Absence from Hawaii

By PFC. John G. Barboa

How does Hawaii, with its vast military installations, look to a person who is seeing them for the first time in more than 40 years?

Fred M. Osborn, 66, of Sun Valley, Calif., finds it hard to describe.

"I can't express in words the vastness and modernness of the Station," Mr. Osborn stated after touring the Station recently with his wife and MGySgt. John Funk, ISO NCOIC.

Mr. Osborn, a former Leatherneck, who saw duty with the Marine Barracks at Pearl Harbor in 1918 and 1919, said,

"I remember that during the war (WWI) there was nothing but thick jungle engulfing the area on which the Station sits today."

After the outbreak of war in 1917, Osborn ran away from home and enlisted in the Corps at Stockton, Calif.

Six weeks later he completed basic training at the Marine Corps Training Center located at Mare Island, Calif., Naval Ship Yard. He joined the 118th Co. of the 7th Marine Bn. Part of the 7th Bn. went to France while the 117th, 118th and 143rd companies went to Marine Barracks, Pearl Harbor as a security detachment.

Osborn, then a private, was an expert rifleman making $35 a month, payable in gold, when he first arrived at the Barracks in 1918.

"My greatest thrill," Osborn said, "was when I would sneak away from the company at night to practice with the Barracks band. I was finally caught and reprimanded by my CO, but he eventually allowed me to become a member of the band," he added.

Osborn played a trumpet with the band for the duration of his tour of duty in the Corps.

"The band used to go to town and play in front of movie theatres. Upon attracting a crowd, the theatre management would usually let all of us into the movie free of charge," Osborn smiled.

"At one time we played in front of Hawaii's only hotel, the Moana, and were given a free meal in the dining room," he added.

Osborn was discharged in 1919 and moved to Modesto, Calif., where he started his own commercial bus company. Shortly after, he sold his company to the rapidly expanding Greyhound Lines.

He then opened a grocery store in Modesto. Osborn met his wife, the former Etta Lowry, when her parents purchased the store.

The Osborns then moved to Los Angeles where he was employed by the Los Angeles Metropolitan Bus Service as a driver. Mr. Osborn retired after 37 years with the company.

Mr. and Mrs. Osborn also toured Marine Barracks, Pearl Harbor, during their visit to the Islands.

After a conversation with Col. J.H. McMillan, Barracks CO, they toured the command with SgtMaj. J.H. Johnson.

SgtMaj. Johnson stated, "He (Osborn) has a most remarkable memory. He could still identify pictures of former Barracks officers and also tell what their duty assignments were at the time."

Mr. Osborn summed up the tours with, "The Corps today is indescribable compared to the equipment and facilities which were on hand during the first of the century."

The Osborns left Hawaii last week to return home for a short rest before continuing on to Alaska for a visit there.

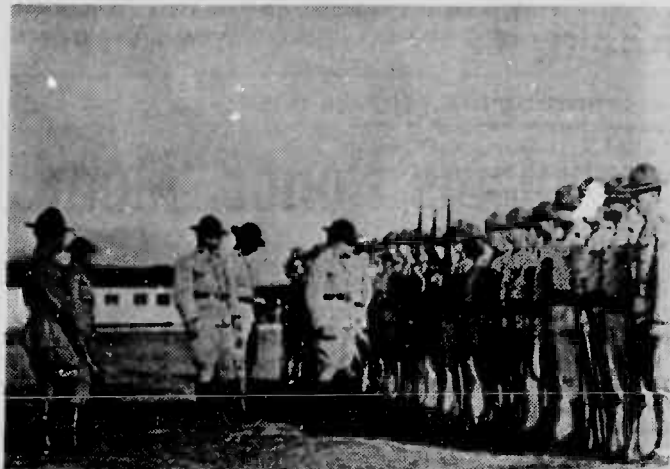

Mr. Osborn's final critique concerning the Corps—"If I had the chance to do it all over again, I would. The Marine Corps offers the best training a young man could ever hope to obtain."

PULL THAT STOMACH IN, MARINE—Personnel inspections have always been an important part of a Marine's life—even in 1918.

W-3 PROMOTION — Navy CWO J.I. Wagoner Jr., Station Sanitation Officer (c), receives congratulations from Col. Paul T. Johnston, Station CO (1), and Navy Capt. H.C. Nordstrom (MC), Station Senior Medical Officer. The occasion was CWO Wagoner's promotion to CWO-3.
