'On Base' Insurance Must Be Replaced

The Secretary of the Navy now requires automobile insurance policies sold by authorized insurers to meet all statutory and regulatory requirements and be issued in amounts not lower than the minimum limits prescribed by the state in which the installation is located.

PMO states that "on base" policies must be replaced by policies that meet the Hawaii State law requirements and are issued by accepted or accredited insurers.

However, according to PMO, policies now in effect will be good until they expire or until Aug. 1, 1965.

This change, according to PMO, will affect about one-third of the drivers currently permitted to operate civilian vehicles aboard the Station.

F-2/4 Wins Brigade Title In Top Squad Competition

Brigade honored its "Top Squad" of F-2/4 last Friday at a Regimental Review on Platt Field.

After the review, BrigGen. M.E. Carl, Brigade CG, presented the squad with the winner's trophy.

Led by Sgt. R. W. Bradley, the squad was selected from three finalists from the 4th Marines' 108 rifle squads in competition held at the Kahuku Army Training area last week.

The winning squad is scheduled to attend the 7th Annual Squad Combat Practice Competition Sept. 21-23 at Quantico. For three consecutive years 4th Marine squads have won the Corps-wide title.

During the Brigade contest, each squad was graded on individual conduct and on the squad leader's ability to co-ordinate his unit under simulated emergency conditions.

Clad in full combat equipment, the squads were tested under simulated combat conditions including the use of smoke grenades, live ammunition and demolitions. Hidden "enemy" Marines added to the realism.

Top squads from all of the Corps' infantry regiments are slated to vie for the title "Top Squad in the Marine Corps," at Quantico.

Members of the Brigade Top Squad are; Sgt. R. W. Bradley; Cpls. P.J. Noon Jr., G.W. Mulherin and J. E. Thompson.

CMC Says More Marines Needed for New Weapons

The Marine Corps is reportedly ready to ask for a boost in its present 190,000-man strength, according to Navy Times.

While the size of the increase was described as "modest" by a Corps spokesman, Gen. W.M. Greene, Jr., CMC, was quoted as saying an increase is necessary because new planes and weapons coming into the Corps require more men to maintain and operate them.

The new F4B Phantom jet fighter bomber was cited as an example of the need for more men. The Commandant pointed out that this plane requires a two-man crew, rather than single crewman of earlier aircraft used by the Corps.

This means that up to 100 more men per squadron will be required just to maintain this technically sophisticated type of plane, according to Gen. Greene.

The Corps got its last strength boost four years ago when the late President Kennedy allowed it to swell its ranks by 15,000 men.

President Okays Military Pay Raise

President Johnson has signed the Military Pay Bill and the pay increases are expected to go into effect in September.

The $207 million pay increase for more than 1.8 million members of the U.S. Armed Forces sailed through the House of Representatives and the Senate with little debate before going to the President.

The pay increase ranges from 2.5 per cent to 8.5 per cent and affects all members of the Armed Forces except enlisted personnel with less than two years of service.

The pay raise is the second in the past 12 months for military personnel.

Old Health Record Folder May Shrink to IBM Card

A pilot program designed to reduce the individual Marine's health record folder to a single IBM card began last Monday at MCAS, El Toro.

Cdr. F.E. Stewart, administrative officer to El Toro's medical officer and one of three developers of the program, estimates the revamped system will cut the present 280-man-hours needed annually to screen health records to 12.

He also pointed out that, in addition to releasing more medical personnel from administrative work for patient care, the system is expected to almost eliminate human error in maintaining health records.

The cards will carry information on the Marine's unit, rank, immunization record, blood type, x-ray record birth date and history of sensitivity tests.

The idea for the system called the mechanized Health Immunization Program, came about during an inspection at the El Toro Station Hospital last January.

The IBM card system idea was incepted and developed by Cdr. Stewart, Marine CWO E. D. Johnson and HMC G.B. Dunn.

CMC representatives and the Navy's Bureau of Medicine and Surgery reviewed the trio's proposal in Washington and authorized the El Toro test program.

Among the advantages of the IBM card system, according to Cdr. Stewart, is the ability to project medical requirements in advance for units which may be deployed and also to obtain a complete history of unit personnel within minutes.

Matters of Faith Require Practical Application To Enhance Schooling

By Chaplain J.H. Lampe

In the book about "Chesty" Puller, which is now on the newsstands, there is a very interesting comment about his feelings about schooling.

He asked to be sent to the various schools which were available to him because he felt that he needed to know what could be gained from them in order to enhance his ability as a military leader.

But while he was in school, he usually asked questions which were difficult for the teachers to answer because they were not too familiar with the practical application of the subjects that they were teaching.

Puller felt that it was possible to be "over-schooled," and that one needed to get out in the field and make sure that he could demonstrate the practicability of his knowledge.

This is true in any field of endeavor. One may become steeped in the knowledge of the Bible and answer any question which has to do with the content of this "book of knowledge," but being a real follower of Christ means implementing our knowledge by the kind of action and love which prompted Him to give Himself for us.

'Cease Fire' To Ring Out At Matthews

Silence will prevail at Camp Calvin B. Matthews, weapons training facility for the San Diego Marine Corps Recruit Depot after the last shots are fired next Friday.

The command "Cease Fire" will ring out after 47 years of operation. More than one million shooters have fired more than 300 million rounds of ammunition during that time.

Recruits from MCRD will now fire for qualification with their M-14 rifles at a new rifle range, Camp Stuart Mesa, Camp Pendleton.

Camp Matthews has served Marines for annual rifle requalifications since it was built in 1917 under the supervision of Capt. E. C. Martin. It has served recruits since boot camp was established in San Diego, August 1923.

Shooters from all branches of the Armed Forces, plus reserves and civilians have fired on the range.

The Commanding Officer of the Weapons Training Battalion, which has already started its move to Camp Stuart Mesa, is LtCol. R.B. Ettenborough.

Closing down ceremonies next Friday will include the firing of the last rounds by former distinguished Marine Shooters who have served at Camp Matthews and played a part in training the thousands of Marine recruits who learned to shoot there.

The land will be turned over to the University of California to be used to expand its San Diego campus in early October.

To Blend as Chameleon Does

Scientists Research New Battle Dress

American combat uniforms may one day be able to change color and blend into the natural background—much the way a chameleon does.

Army and industrial scientists have been doing extensive research in this direction, although a workable system is reported to be a long way off.

If the research pays off, servicemen fighting in the jungle would be hard to spot because their uniforms would turn lush green.

In the desert, the battle dress might change to sand color and in the arctic it might become snow white or glazed silver ice in color.

The camouflage cloth now used is basically the same as that of WWII—a mottled combination of greens, browns and yellows.

A major problem encountered by the present experiment seems to be a retention of a color after a change has been made. Sometimes the dyes fade and then come back.

The main research at the present time is aimed at find-

Dedicated July 31

Postage Stamp Message Reminds Citizens To Vote

A special United States commemorative postage stamp depicting an American flag and a simple, two-word message: "Register...Vote," was dedicated in Washington, D.C., July 31.

Usually the issuance of a commemorative stamp is a way in which the U.S. government honors persons or events whose contributions to the history and development of the Country, or culture, are of national significance.

Speaking at the dedication ceremony, John A. Gronouski, U.S. Postmaster General, stated that "With the issuance of this five-cent stamp, we are dedicating ourselves not to the past but to the future."

"Today we have in our nation at least 40 million citizens who take no part in (the) process of consent (the government's derivation of its

K-Bay Honors Japanese Award-Winning Newsboys

"Bikurishi Mashita" (magnificent) is the way Kenji Naito, one of 10 Japanese newspaper boys, described his visit to the Air Station Monday.

Kenji and the other newsboys arrived at 9:30 a.m. and proceeded to the crash crew area where they saw a demonstration of fire-fighting techniques utilizing crash crew vehicles and foam fire extinguishers.

While photographer Sgt. L.D. Choate took pictures of the boys, Kenji had a ball taking pictures with his own camera. He took almost three rolls of film—all with the lens cover on his camera. When Sgt. Choate pointed this out to him, his comment was "Hitotsu Mo Nai" (no sweat).

"Sashino Torareru No Ga Dai Tsuki," (I really like to have my picture taken), he said.

The lad readily acquired the nickname "Smiling Jack" from the many Marines whom he questioned continuously through an interpreter, SSgt. S.S. Michaels.

Col. P.T. Johnston, Station CO, met the visitors at the Station boathouse for the next phase of their tour. After being welcomed by Col. Johnston, the boys took a ride on Kaneohe Bay aboard one of the Station's rescue boats. While on the Bay, the visitors saw a sea-rescue helicopter pick up a Marine from the water in a simulated "downed pilot" rescue demonstration.

After the rescue demonstration, the boys visited Hangar 105 where they saw a display of Marine aircraft.

The tour concluded with a visit to K-Tower. There the boys photographed the Station from every angle.

The "Honor Newsboys," sponsored by the Asahi Shimbun daily newspaper of Tokyo, Japan, are: Kiyoshi Jinbo, Nagaoka City, Niigata; Takahisa Soga, Nerima, Tokyo; Yoshitaka Osakabe, Yachiyo, Chiba; Yoshinori Okada, Irumagawa, Saitama and Kironobu Daido.

Also Omuda City, Fukuoka; Koichi Sagara, Nagoya City, Aichi; Kunyoshi Katsumoto, Tokushima City, Tokushima; Kenji Naito, Neyagawa City, Osaka; Takayoshi Takei, Miyasu City, Kyoto; and Isamu Yamamoto, Naie, Hokkaido.

The boys, accompanied by Yukio Hasegawa, group leader, and Teruyuki Kuroda, assistant group leader, departed the Air Station at 11:45 a.m.

VISITING FIREMEN—Kenji Naito (I) and Kiyoshi Jinbo, two of 10 newspaper boys from Japan currently visiting Hawaii, try on an asbestos hood used by the crash crew at K-Bay.
