A former K-Bay Marine has been cited at Camp Pendle-ton, Calif., for preventing serious injury to two Marine trainees.

Cpl. R. C. Strome, who served as a rocket man with M=3/4 until last June, received the Meritorious Mast from MaiGen. R. E. Cushman, Base CG

Cpl. Strome, who is currently assigned as an instructor with the 2d Infantry Training Regiment, was lauded for his actions on the regimental flame thrower range.

During the training the flame thrower's gun group jammed causing an uncontrollable stream of flame.

The assistant trainee gunner fled and the trainee gunner attempted to flee.

Strome held the gunner Cpl. in position and placed himself between the trainee and the runaway gun. He then directed the gun into the target area until the fuel was exhausted. Cpl. Strome was treated for first degree burns on the face and neck last July. LtCol. C. H. Ludden, VMF (AW)-212 CO, made his 200th carrier landing aboard the aircraft carrier. When the landing gear touched the deck of the carrier at 10 a.m., the Colonel also achieved a "first." His 200th carrier landing was also his first carrier landing in a jet aircraft. Six of the twenty pilots boarded the Hancock for their first carrier landings with the squadron. To qualify, the pilots had to make two touch and go landings and ten arrested landings with catapulted takeoffs.

The six pilots are 1stLts, R. O. Meyer and W. C. Joos, Capt. Robert Brown, and 2dLts. D. B Dambrosch, G. R. Bollenbach, and K. A. Blanch.

Col. B. H. Spanjer, MAG-13 CO, made the first touch and go on the bobbing deck to show the "new comers" how it was done. Col. Ludden was next to hit the deck.

Qualifications were cancelled Saturday. The squadron resumed qualifying Tuesday afternoon.

Spiritual Training Parallels Methods Used by Military

By Chaplain G. S. Thilking

One of the primary concerns of a military organization in peacetime is training. A commander does not assume that because his men have been through boot camp that they are forever thereafter combat trained.

He must view his unit's training as a continuing process. New skills and techniques must be taught and learned and old ones recalled and rehearsed.

spiritual life. Because a person has gone to Sunday School or Catechism as a youth does not insure that he will be forever be prepared to meet his God.

A person may be promoted of spiritual training, but there is no such thing as graduating from the need for more reli-gious training.

Circumstances often make it necessary for much of our spiritual pursuit to be individual and private, such as Bible reading and prayer.

Religious growth with other people may take place in the various activities of churches and chapels.

Currently our Station chapels are offering special programs of adult religious training. St. Michael's Catholic Chapel has a Weduesday evening series of Adult Christian Education classes.

Trinity Protestant Chapel will have a Christian Lay Leader training course on Monday evenings beginning Oct. 5. Then there is the regular Adult Class in the Protestant Sunday School each Sunday morning.

Jesus Christ blessed little children. Certainly His teachings have raised the status of womankind. But to assume that Christian training is for women and children alone is missing the point.

The first disciples of Jesus were rough and ready fisher-men, tax collectors and the like. In the 20th century He is still calling men to be His disciples. "Come, and learn of me," He said.

Marines Were in Combat 20, 14 Years Ago-Twenty years ago Marines were fighting on Peleliu in the open against a cleverly concealed and fortified Japanese enemy. Six years later Marines clambered over a stone seawall on Korean soil at Inchon Harbor to eject Korean communists

On Peleliu riflemen moved mainly across open terrain dominated by high ground to destroy 10,700 Japanese defenders.

In Korea Marine riflemen fought across mud flats, from bunker to bunker, house to house until the communists were kicked out of Inchon and it became American-held real estate

The basic mission of the Peleliu operation was accomplished within a week. From the action-packed moment a Marine hooked his scaling ladder onto the seawall at Inchon and scampered over, until the moment Gen. Douglas Mac-Arthur returned Seoul to its people it had taken Marines only 15 days to complete their campaign.

Director of Fun Program Lauded by Col. Johnston

Miss Shirley Yamashiro received a letter of appreciation from Col. P. T. Johnston, Sta-tion CO, last week for her outstanding performance as Di-rector of the K-Bay Youth Activities Association Summer Fun Program.

Miss Yamashiro directed 500 youngsters in the first four-week session and 400 in the second session.

She was cited for her pa-tience and fortitude in overcoming many obstacles. Her extreme cheerfulness, effervescent personality and initiative were the prime ingre-dients in the most comprehensive youth endeavor ever undertaken by the K-Bay Youth Activities Association.

The program included field trips, swimming, hiking, class-room work, and other fun programs.

The Summer Fun Program eached 364 families and 601 different children at an aver age cost of 7 cents an hour per child. The many volunteers who

Don't Forget Danger Zone When Driving

What is the DANGER ZONE? When speaking about safe driving, it is the distance within which a driver cannot stop according to Al Roth, Station Safety Officer.

Slow driver reaction and vehicle speed lengthen the DANGER ZONE, he added. Mr. Roth gives the following example: when the aver-age person first notices a hazard while driving at 20 MPH, his automobile will travel 22 feet before he starts to apply the brakes. It will take another 21 feet before the brakes will stop the vehicle. But at 40 MPH, the driver's reaction time will allow the vehicle to travel 44 feet and the braking distance will increase to 84 feet.

This is a total stopping dis-tance of 128 feet (almost the length of 19 coffins placed end to end).

"So, the next time that you have the urge to push a slow driver along by following too ciosely, think about the DAN-GER ZONE," Mr. Roth said.

Academy Football 'Outlook Cloudy'; Hopes Ride on Coaches, Quarterbacks article in a series of three on the 1964 Football Season provided by the Armed Forces Press Service.)

Roger Staubach, Paul Dietzel, whoever replaces Terry Isaacson and Otto Graham!

With the talents of these four personalities rest the hopes of the 1964 football for-tunes of the four service academies: Navy, Army, Air Force and Coast Guard.

At Navy, Coach Wayne Hardin has built his entire offense around quarterback Staubach, the nation's best. When Roger's jolly, the Navy attack is devastating.

But can Roger stay hot for 10 straight Saturdays, es-pecially on that 10th Saturday when the Middies go after their 6th straight over Army?

At Army, the Long Grey Line pins its hopes on the coaching genius of Dietzel, who is out to put the Cadets back on the foot-ball map. Can Dietzel take his thin ranks and put together a winning season, let alone achieve a cherished victory over Navy?

At the Air Force Academy, triple threat quarterback Terry Isaacson is gone, leav-ing Coach Ben Martin with an almost unfillable hole.

How far can the Falcons go against a tough schedule with no proven quarterback?

At the Coast Guard Academy, they don't play the big boys but they play good football, nonetheless.

Last year Coach Otto Gra-ham directed his charges to an 8-0 season. But with his vetgraduated, can old pro erans Otto do it again?

NAVY-To go with Staubach, Navy has some of the best in-dividual talent it has ever enjoyed. There's fullback Pat Donnelly, halfback Ed Orr and tackle Jim Freeman. However, a few key men do not a se son make, and Hardin's biggest problems rests with developing depth to go with his hotdogs.

ARMY-Dietzel thinks he found a quarterback in the final game of last season-Rollie Stichweh. He runs well, but his passing is only so-so.

Dietzel's line is his brightest spot. although the ranks are woefully thin. Names that will make news are tackles Bill Zadel and John Carber and guards Pete Brauh and Sonny Stowers AIR FORCE-Neither Navy nor Army is on the schedule, and it still could be a long year. With Isaacson gone. Martin's attention has turned to the defense, which he thinks will be stronger. It'll have to be.

Key defenders are Wendell Harkleroad, Nate Sanderson and Bill Lacey. On offense, halfback Dick Czarnota has All-America potential. Quar-terback candidates are Dave Backus and Tim Murphy.

COAST GUARD-Pre-season practice for Otto means first things first, which is to find replacements for 10 graduated first-stringers.

Team leaders should be quarterback Ed Barrett, ends Bob Christiansen and Bill Ku-charski and fullback Cecil Allison
