Voluntary payment

Voluntary donations of $1 per month per household will be collected for delivery of the Hawaii Marine. The donation is strictly voluntary and is used exclusively to pay the carriers.

All display and classified advertisements in the Hawaii Marine are handled by Community Publications, Inc. Deadline for classified ads is 4 p.m. Monday for the following Wednesday edition. Call 235-5881.

Deadline for copy submission to the Hawaii Marine is noon Thursday for the following Wednesday edition.

Optometrist shortage

Optometric services for military dependents and retirees will be temporarily suspended after June 12 at the Medical Branch Clinics, Kaneohe Bay, Barbers Point and Pearl Harbor because of a shortage of optometrists at the Naval Regional Medical Clinic, Hawaii. A tentative replacement is scheduled for September at Kaneohe Bay. Until then only active-duty personnel will be examined by a "hosting" doctor from NRMCC, Pearl Harbor Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

For further information, call the base eye clinic nearest you.

New organization

A new organization, the Combined Arms Command, has been activated at the Marine Corps Air/Ground Combat Center, Twenty-nine Palms, Calif.

BrigGen Harold Glasgow, commanding general Twenty-nine Palms, has assumed command of the CAC as a concurrent duty.

The CAC, a subordinate unit of Fleet Marine Force, Pacific includes the 1st Battalion, 4th Marines, 3d Marine Division; the 4th Bn., 11th Marines (Rein), 1st Marine Division; 3d Tank Bn., 3d Marine Division; Communication Support Company, 9th Comm. Bn. and the 13th Counterintelligence Team. All are currently located at Twenty-nine Palms.

The CAC will provide a command headquarters for the FMFPac units garrisoned at the Combat Center and ensure the combat readiness of those units for deployment.

Dependent information

A Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard Information School will be held May 19-23 from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. daily in the Fellowship Hall of the new Naval Station Chapel at Pearl Harbor. The objective of the 25-hour course is to provide up-to-date information on programs and benefits available to single and married military personnel and their families.

Among the 30-plus topics to be discussed will be housing, medical care, legal assistance, survivor's benefits, CHAMPUS, exchange, commissary, wives clubs and ombudsman programs. Family Services, child abuse, travel and recreation, responsibilities and budgeting.

Special programs stressing personal development, life skills training and family support have also been included: "The Family Today: Coming Apart at the Seams - or Better than Ever?"; "Image Workshop-Discover the Successful You"; "Stress Management"; "Enrichment - Just What the Doctor Ordered for Your Marriage"; "Getting Yourself Organized"; "Coping with Deployment"; "Make your Spare Time Count-Go to School"; "Hawaii State Employment Service: Where are the jobs?"; "Save Your Sanity - Become a 'Cool' Parent"; "Do you know the Basics of Good Nutrition?"; "Decision Making: How to Get What You Want"; "I Am Somebody: Developing Self-Esteem."

The school is free and open to all Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard active duty personnel, their spouses, dependents and fiancées.

Registration deadline is May 15 by calling 474-3278/5143 or visiting the Family Service Center, Building 150, Naval Station, Pearl Harbor.

Aviation luncheon

Past and present members of the Marine Corps Aviation Association are invited to attend the association's next meeting Wednesday, May 21 in the Officers' Club at Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay.

Guest speaker at the noon luncheon will be retired Marine MajGen Frank Lang, deputy national commander of the association. He will present the recently formed Hawaii Squadron with its new charter.

The MCAA is a nonprofit organization perpetuating the spirit of excellence and annually recognizing noteworthy achievements in Marine aviation through the annual Marine Aviator of the Year award. The MCAA is a community of Marines and their special friends who have a deep, abiding interest in Marine Corps aviation matters: past, present and future. The association represents the entire spectrum of Marine Corps aviation including all ranks and all skills.

Reservations may be made by contacting the adjutants of either the Marine Corps Air Station or Marine Aircraft Group-24 at Kaneohe Bay.

Aviation marks birthday

On May 22 Marine Corps aviation will be 68 years old. Since its inception in 1912 the fledgling has grown to a full-sized eagle and is increasing in size so that it may well reach the proportions of the ancient roc. The Marine Corps' first aviator, Lt. Alfred A. Cunningham, soloed on August 1, 1912 after only two hours and 40 minutes of instruction. Suiting up could take that long today.

Marine aviation cut its teeth on action during World War I. During this initial growing period 282 officers and 2,180 enlisted men served in the field. Approximately half saw action overseas.

Between the world wars the only U.S. military service that actually saw combat was the Marine Corps with its aviators. Marines saw action in Santo Domingo (1919-1934), Haiti (1919-1934) and Nicaragua (1927-1933). During this time Marine pilots contributed new tactics to ground and air warfare: dive-bombing against an organized enemy, employing air-to-ground communications in combat and transporting troops and supplies by air.

The attacks on Pearl Harbor and Wake Island during WWII had a devastating effect on Marine Aircraft Group-21. The group lost practically all of its aircraft during the attacks. From this low point Marine aviators reached new heights from the shooting down of their first enemy plane at Wake and their last at Okinawa. Marine aviators shot down 2,355 planes during WWII producing 121 aces, five of whom downed 20 or more aircraft each.

During the Korean War the Marines again found themselves setting records and performing new tactical maneuvers.

Peacetime found Marine aviators taking part in humanitarian missions such as aid to flood victims in Ceylon and Taiwan during 1959.

The Vietnam conflict saw Marine aviation operating at its peak. Helicopters were again utilized in the capacities for which they were designed. The pilots of the fixed wing aircraft and the helicopters distinguished themselves with increasing examples of bravery and excellence.

MAG-24 is Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay's representative of Marine Corps aviation. MAG-24 is comprised of three Marine F-4 Phantom Attack Squadron-212, -232 and -235; Marine Heavy Helicopter Squadron -463; three Marine Medium Helicopter Squadrons-165, -262, -265; Headquarters and Maintenance Squadron-24; Marine Air Base Squadron-24 and Marine Air Control Squadron-2.

Maj David Buell, MAG-24, explained the group's role, "We are the largest MAG unit in the Marine Corps. There is one VMFA unit in the Western Pacific at all times. The purpose of any air group is to support the ground units."

"Currently we fly the F-4J Phantom jet aircraft which is a multi-role aircraft. The F-4J is capable of action as an interceptor, a ground attack craft and a fighter."

Buell expressed every pilot's desire, "While the F-18 is the newest craft out, it is still being field tested and modified. The ideal plane would have a two man crew, possess modification potential, perform as an interceptor, a fighter and a ground attack plane equally well, and be easily maintained."

Marine Aviation has come a long way since 1912 but its future is bright. We have only the stars to reach for. Happy Birthday!

Defense role prominent

Marines' understanding vital

WASHINGTON, MCNews — There has been increased interest and growing recognition of the Marine Corps' unique capabilities during the Persian Gulf crisis.

The Commandant wants Marines to understand more readily the issues involved and the Corps' prominence in the role of defense of our nation in the years ahead.

The Commandant considers it essential that every Marine understand current programs in which they play a vital role. Enclosed within White Letter 9-80 is a recent speech made by the secretary of defense, the Honorable Harold Brown. It is an excellent source of information concerning the current situation, measures being taken to strengthen the U.S. presence and our ability to respond if our interests are threatened.

The Commandant considers material, such as Brown's speech and other official news releases which focus on the Rapid Deployment Joint Task Force and Maritime Prepositioning, important reading for Marines. Keeping informed on the issues and programs they will take part in will better prepare Marines for the challenges the 80s will bring.

The following are excerpts from a speech given March 6 by Brown to the Council on Foreign Relations:

—These are the United States interests in the Persian Gulf - Southwest Asian region, for the long term:

- (1) to insure access to adequate oil supplies,
- (2) to resist Soviet expansion,
- (3) to promote stability in the region, and
- (4) to advance the Middle East peace process.

As President Carter said in his State of the Union speech, "... an assault on the vital interests of the United States ... will be repelled by use of any means necessary, including military force."

In our military planning for the Persian Gulf and Southwest Asia ... our first objective is to deter. The ability to defeat aggression and the will to use such an ability constitute the most effective deterrent.

"The United States has been in the rapid deployment and power projection business for a long time. If you doubt that, ask the Marines who five years ago celebrated their 200th anniversary.

"... it has long been a part of our military doctrine to be ready to engage in contingencies in remote areas, without unacceptably compromising our ability to maintain deterrence and defense in other theaters."

The American people are wise enough and experienced enough to understand and accept a few simple truths:

—military forces alone cannot solve all the world's problems,

—their commitment is a very serious business;

—such forces and the will to use them when necessary are essential to the defense of our vital interests, and;

—those interests must be carefully defined.

"Meeting the objective of deterrence will require a combination of local forces for self-defense, U.S. forces present in the area, and ... forces capable of rapid deployment to reinforce threatened areas."

"... deterrence involves both U.S. military presence in a troubled region and U.S. forces which can be quickly moved to it. What is important is the ability to move forces into the region with the numbers, mobility and firepower to preclude initial adversary forces from reaching vital points."

"It is not necessary for our initial units to be able to defeat the whole force an adversary might eventually have in place. It is also not necessary for us to await the firing of the first shot or the prior arrival of hostile forces; many of our forces can be moved upon strategic warning and some upon receipt of even very early and ambiguous indications."

"An effective U.S. response to aggression ... consists of several ingredients."

"The first — an enhanced peacetime presence — will involve primarily naval forces ..."

"Prepositioning of equipment is the vital second ingredient. We have begun a program to procure a number of maritime prepositioning ships which will give us greater flexibility and avoid the problems of large, permanent U.S. bases overseas in sensitive areas."

"As a near-term option we are now actively assembling a seven-ship force of commercial tank vessels including roll-on, roll-off ships, break-bulk cargo ships and tankers to provide us with this capability within the next several months."

"These ships will be loaded with unit equipment, supplies, fuel and water that would enable a Marine Amphibious Brigade ... as well as several U.S. Air Force fighter squadrons to operate until further logistic support can arrive from the U.S."

"The loaded ships will be prepositioned within a few days' sailing distance of the Persian Gulf — Arabian Sea area. In an emergency they could move to a designated port near the objective, and join up with personnel and planes flown directly from U.S. bases. This arrangement will provide us the capability of responding to a crisis in the area in days rather than weeks."

"Mobility — especially air and sealift capabilities — is the third ingredient. We are not without such capabilities today ... a full Marine Amphibious Force (one division and air wing) could be deployed in four weeks."

"Moreover, we are now programming major improvements to our rapid deployment capabilities ..."

"Fourth is the access and transit rights ... We are asking various countries in the area to enable us to come more effectively to their assistance if and when they need and want us."

"Frequent deployment and exercises in the area comprise another key ingredient ..."

"For the United States to assume its proper role in deterring ... aggression in the future, we must have adequate military capability and the will to use it if necessary."

We must enhance our military capability, "including an ability to deploy forces rapidly to areas far from but vital to us ..."

"These tasks will not be easy ... But if we fail to carry them out the twenty-first century will be a dangerous one indeed ..."

ALOHA—high school queen tells a story in her dance of the modern hula during "La Hui Like" held at the Windward Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay Wednesday evening.

BEFORE—Hale Koa Beach, west of the airfield, was covered with broken glass, driftwood, rocks and other debris prior to the start of the clean up project. The 7,200 man-hours of volunteer work from March 11 to April 9 saved the air station an estimated $80,000.

Renovation project pau

The Grand opening and completion of phase one of the new Hale Koa Beach culminated Friday aboard Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay.

During the dedication ceremonies Col Mel Sautter, commander officer of the air station said, "When this project was first proposed a few months ago, I did not think it was going to turn out this well. I truly believe the beach can be one of the best show places on the island. The 7,200 man-hours of work that went into this project will be shared by all our friends and families."

BrigGen Harry Hagaman, commanding general 1st Marine Brigade announced, "We all will benefit from the work done to this beach. Let's try to preserve it for ourselves and for future Marines to come."

The work did not detach from anyone's primary mission. The equipment was used only when not committed for any other project.

The project removed all underbrush, including 70 stumps, built a parking lot and outlined it with old telephone poles, replanted trees and painted the barbecue pits and trash cans. More than 100 volunteers working in their spare time saved an estimated $80,000. Most of the volunteers were with Station Operations and Maintenance Squadron. The heavy equipment and graders were from motor pools throughout the air station.

"Special Services will take over the responsibility of the upkeep of the facility and camping is being emphasized," according to 1st Lt Frank Foster, officer-in-charge of the communications center. "It is one of the most secure camping grounds in Hawaii."

Salesmen defy regs

In a memorandum sent last month to all commanding officers aboard MCAS Kaneohe Bay, the staff judge advocate explained violations in the solicitation and sale of commercial life insurance aboard the station.

Commercial life insurance and annuity salesmen have been conducting business aboard the air station in direct violation of naval regulations concerning solicitation.

EXAMPLES of prohibited practices include: visiting barracks areas, giving "financial information talks" without authorization of the installation commander, coercing personnel into providing allotment forms and personnel rosters and talking to Marines who did not sponsor the individual aboard the station to discuss life insurance and annuities.

THE SOLICITOR must be duly licensed and, if a representative of an insurance company, accredited under applicable federal, state or municipal laws. In addition the solicitor must also comply with the installation commander's regulations regarding registration and pass control procedures.

Secretary of the Navy Instruction 5370.2G details standards of conduct applicable to all naval personnel and provides that special treatment will not be accorded to individuals or firms unless equivalent treatment is also accorded other individuals or firms. It also indicates that naval personnel shouldn't give the appearance of endorsement of insurance, stocks, mutual funds, real estate, or other commodities, goods, or services to personnel who are junior in rank or grade at any time, on or off duty. It is believed that a junior Marine could easily interpret the fact that a commander allowed an insurance or annuity salesman to make a presentation as an endorsement of the salesman or his firm.

STATION ORDER P5500.6A requires each insurance or annuity agent be licensed in accordance with the laws of the state of Hawaii and to comply with the provisions of SecNavInst 1740.2C.

For each proposed sale of insurance to enlisted Marines in pay grades E-1 through E-3, an interval of seven days must elapse between the signing of a life insurance application and the certification of an allotment unless the first two monthly premiums have been paid in advance.

Insurance agents may be sponsored to station headquarters (Building 215) to meet military personnel who do not live in family housing or unaccompanied officers' quarters. The officer of the day or duty clerk will arrange for use of the station conference room.

FURNISHING LISTS of personnel or Alpha rosters to unauthorized persons is an extremely serious matter. The Privacy Act, 5 USC 552A, provides that any person or agency not entitled to receive such information shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000.

In summary, insurance and annuity salesmen may only talk to Marines who live in the barracks when authorized to do business by the installation commander or when a specific prior appointment has been made with the individual concerned. Appointments should be conducted in the station conference room. Violations of these regulations should be reported to the Provost Marshal's office, 257-2123/2103.

Street Scoop

How do you spend your non-payday weekends?

Sgt. Frank Decker, Maintenance Co. BSSG: "I stay at home and watch tv or put in extra hours at work. Sometimes I practice my bowling since I bowl four nights a week."

Seaman Anne Faulner, SOMS Boathouse: "I go for drives, or to movies. I spend a lot of time at the beach trying to get a tan."

Sgt. Dave Schmidt, H&HS: "I take my girlfriend to the beach and for long drives around the island. I enjoy motocrossing and going camping on the beaches on Oahu."

Tracy Wagner, dependent: "I go to the beach, church and play sports. I especially like bowling and tennis. Sometimes I just go to bible study."

GySgt Charles Waters, MATC-1A, Det B: "Usually it's spent enjoying the family and taking my kid to the beach and different places. No matter what, I do things with my family."

Armed Forces Day salutes services

by Capt William Wood

Whenever the world situation heats up and diplomatic efforts are unable to cool things down and restore cordial relations, U.S. leaders and the population at large look to the military with renewed interest. And the military forces have always been there to provide the quiet strength that gives our leaders confidence and causes other nations to temper their actions and language.

Military strength is built on the strength of individuals, working and training to be ready when called upon. It is the individual military men and women of the Army, Marine Corps, Navy and Air Force who are being recognized this Armed Forces Week. Their quiet strength, often ignored or taken for granted, is the subject of discussion in the media, in civic meetings and among people on the street.

Saturday, May 17, the 30th Armed Forces Day will be celebrated and the theme is appropriate, "U.S. Armed Forces Strong and Ready."

In Hawaii, the military and civilian communities will celebrate Armed Forces Day with the traditional open houses at Hickam Air Force Base and at Naval Base, Pearl Harbor. Activities begin at 8 a.m. at Pearl Harbor, gates at Hickam open at 10 a.m. and everyone will be able to view aircraft, ships, equipment displays and entertainment until 4 p.m. at both locations.

Island based military units will be represented in force. The 1st Marine Brigade will be providing equipment and aircraft displays as well as helicopters for the parachute, rappelling and SPIE-rig demonstrations. Divers from Harbor Clearance Unit One and Service Squadron Five will demonstrate scuba and deep-sea diving techniques.

Parachute jumpers from Explosive Ordnance Disposal Group One will free fall over Pearl Harbor and land in the water near the Arizona Memorial.

Armed Forces Day is traditionally an occasion when the military puts on a show for the community. In Hawaii we have a unique situation. All branches of the Armed Forces are represented and work together to provide the most well rounded presentation of military equipment available anywhere in the nation.

There are more than 57,000 military people in Hawaii. Saturday is their day

My Turn

Leadership and Apathy

The Marine Corps has two major problems in its infantry units that are badly hurting its effectiveness as a fighting force. Leadership and apathy.

There are many capable Marines filling the NCO billet. The problem is that most of them are non-rates. The problem needs to be solved fast especially in light of the current world situation.

The Marine Corps needs a few good men, but it must be prepared to give something in return. Promote the eligible Marines to the rank they are billeted as and deserve. Many Marines show apathy because they feel that doing their best benefits only the Corps and not themselves.

Isn't our society based on the individual's desire for advancement? The Marine Corps should use this philosophy on its troops. If the promotion system can't solve the problem (and it hasn't in recent years for the infantry) then one should be designed which does.

Past commandants have called the infantry the backbone of the Marine Corps. Well, the command needs to bring its attention to this deadly deficiency in its backbone before the Corps is paralyzed.

LCpl Donald Brunt

Examples Sought

How can our superiors expect young Marines to follow established military customs and courtesies when some of our seasoned old-timers fail to do so?

I was headed into the Family Theater last week when evening colors sounded. I was standing at attention when I spied four Marines nonchalantly moseying along, oblivious to the fact that colors were being played. I ordered them to come to attention and they did, but I couldn't help notice the looks of resentment they gave me. What surprised me was these guys all appeared to be several years older than I. I'm assuming that they probably outranked me also.

How can these Marines conduct themselves in this manner and expect subordinates to respect them? I wonder how readily these fellows would correct one of their own Marines if he displayed such a disregard for an honored tradition. There is absolutely no excuse for such apathy from senior enlisted Marines.

How often have you seen some young Marine, fresh from recruit training, snap a purposeful hand salute and receive only a half-hearted acknowledgment in return? Is it really fair to expect that youngster to continue rendering salutes with the same pride and vigor when it appears some of his superiors just don't care?

We've all heard tales of how today's Marines aren't as disciplined as 'we' were. That's absolutely ridiculous. Young people, Marines in particular, have always responded to good leadership and effective discipline. They just need effective examples of these traits to follow.

Just for once let's take a look at ourselves. Just how good an example do each of us set? It may be that today's Marine really isn't so bad but that the problem lies elsewhere. Can we rightfully expect something from them if we offer nothing?

Money: Dollar-saving ideas promote efficiency for future budget planning spending

by Sgt Lamar Johnson

Rising inflation and decreasing amount of available dollars has promoted a general solicitation of ideas on ways personnel at Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay, can save money for themselves and the command. These steps can also help conserve energy.

In order to save money, each individual must take the responsible attitude of avoiding waste. Through assistance from the air station's Facilities Department, 42 money-saving ideas have been compiled.

These ideas can be used as guidelines for beneficial suggestions you might devise to present to the command. Such suggestions promote more efficient ways of saving needed dollars and help in future budget planning and command spending.

The following list includes suggestions that can be implemented to fight inflation's squeeze on vital areas. It is divided into three categories: Water, Electricity and Energy, and Materials and Equipment.

WATER

- 1) Monitor irrigation. Do not water lawns every day. Watering lawns once a month should be sufficient when there has been little rainfall.

MATERIALS AND EQUIPMENT

- 1) Make sure calls to the Facilities Department's trouble desk are really necessary.
- 2) Report malicious property damage aboard the air station. It costs each of us tax money to repair such acts.
- 3) Avoid typing internal department memos. Instead, make it personal. Write it out in long-hand.

- 2) Utilize the base Facilities Department. Call them to repair or replace washers in leaking faucets.
- 3) Wash clothes in cold water. Small loads and lightly soiled clothing can be cleaned using cold water.
- 4) Fully load washers and dryers.
- 5) Dry clothes outdoors.
- 6) Take showers instead of baths. "Navy" showers are quick and effective. Simply wet down, turn off the water, soap yourself and rinse.
- 7) Reduce the necessity of street cleaning. Get out around your house or office and pick up litter and sweep curbs yourself.
- 8) Consolidate packing. When forwarding correspondence to a central agency, use one package for several items.
- 9) Carefully estimate materials needed for each job. Issue only what is required.
- 10) Conduct operators' checks. Examine all equipment, oil level, lubricants, etc.
- 11) Keep all frequently used tools sharp and in good repair.
- 12) Use recycling facilities.
- 13) Turn in excess drained oil to motor transportation units aboard the air station for recycling.
- 14) Make sure an item is available for purchase at the location to which you plan to go. Call before you make the trip.
- 15) Keep vehicles, tools and work spaces clean. Save time for the next day's use.

ELECTRICITY AND ENERGY

- 1) Open windows to ventilate your quarters. This will minimize air conditioning usage throughout the command.
- 2) Walk or ride bicycles around the air station.
- 3) Turn off the lights when you leave a room.
- 4) Share rides around and off-station.
- 5) Do not allow your vehicle to idle. Turn off the engine while at a complete stop for more than 30 seconds.
- 6) Recycle extra copies of correspondence by preparing drafts on the back of waste paper.
- 7) Minimize reproduction. Instead of copies for everyone, route one copy to the staff and have them initial it as it is read.
- 8) Prepare an outline of subjects for long distance phone calls to limit the length of the conversation.
- 9) Be sure to observe posted speed limits.
- 10) Control temperatures indoors. Utilize shades, draperies and blinds to block out the afternoon sun.
- 11) Turn down the water heater in your home or office.
- 12) Reduce frequency of lawn cutting at organizations and open areas.
- 13) Keep doors and windows closed in air conditioned spaces.

- 14) Buy a thermometer. Make sure you don't overheat or overcool your home or office.
- 15) Replace 100 watt bulbs with 60- or 40-watt bulbs.
- 16) Consolidate office supply, delivery and pick-up runs.
- 17) Consolidate trips by organizing car pools.
- 18) Drive sensibly. Avoid jack-rabbit starts and stops.
- 19) Listen. Others have suggestions on ways to conserve energy and save money.
- 20) Use the Beneficial Suggestion Program.

Everyone's cooperation is needed in order to fight back at inflation. Try putting these ideas to use when applicable. Maybe the command can turn the big bite of inflation into a nibble.

Energy

The purpose of the Energy Thermometer Column which will appear monthly in the Hawaii Marine is to compare cost and consumption of electricity at MCAS, Kaneohe Bay for identical periods of fiscal year 1979 and fiscal year 1980. The thermometer shows the cost and consumption over a seven-month period illustrating the increase for that time. The column will provide residents and employees of the air station with an update of progress we, as a team, are making towards our goal of cooperative energy efficiency.

100% TOTAL SOLAR HEATING

The NEW Solar Disc Photovoltaic Module provides 12 volts of direct current from the sun to power the Solar Disc Water Heating System. NO PUMP IS NEEDED ON THE TANK. NO TANK IS NEEDED ON THE ROOF! Gone are sensors, controls, costly electrical wiring. Water is heated naturally, as the sun shines, at a speed equal to the amount of sunlight falling on your home. Sunny or cloudy, the circulation through the collectors varies to provide the optimum amount of hot water. It's simple, reliable, and 100% Total Solar.

Electric rates are steadily increasing. The latest HECO proposal is for a 90% increase next year. What happens if you invest in an energy saving device that only would save 2/3 the cost of heating water? By next year alone you could be paying 24% more than your present bill after making such an investment. Who knows how much costs will increase in 5 years? 800%? Don't accept anything less than a 100% Total Solar System as long as you live in Hawaii.

Marine discovers $18,500 in money deposit bag

by LCpl Jeanette Stines

A long awaited honey-moon turned into an adventure for 1st Lt. Arthur Friend and his wife Carol. The Friend's trip to Lahaina, Maui had been dampened by the constant rain but was brightened when they found $18,500.

According to Friend, he and his wife were looking for a place to buy film for their cameras when they found the money. "At first we thought it was a woman's purse lying there in about four inches of water," Friend stated.

Once the bag was in the car it was identified by the markings as a money deposit bag from Loomis Armored Car Company. "The thickness of the bag indicated that it contained a large sum of money," Friend continued. "All I could think of was 'where is the closest place to turn it in?'"

Friend turned the bag and its contents into a savings and loan office nearby. The manager called the police and an investigation was pursued.

"The manager of the savings and loan couldn't get over the fact that we found the money just lying there," Friend added. Loomis Armored Car Company provided the Friends with a free dinner and sent the lieutenant a letter of commendation for his actions.

"Just about everyone who has heard about the money has asked, 'Didn't you want to take the money and run?' I can honestly say that the thought never crossed my mind," Friend explained. "Few people have complimented me on doing the right thing."

One of those few was BrigGen Harry Hagaman, commanding general, 1st Marine Brigade. "When Gen Hagaman found out what had happened, he called me in to congratulate me for a job well done," Friend related. "He told me how proud he was of what I had done not only as a citizen but as a Marine." Friend is the Maintenance Material Control Officer at HMH-463, Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay.

Leash laws violated

by Sgt Dennis Litalien

Because of the increase in numbers of stray dogs aboard MCAS Kaneohe Bay and violations of station regulations concerning leash laws, base residents are reminded to heed the following control measures.

All dogs must be on a leash while in the owner's yard, when not accompanied by the owner or when outside of the owner's yard and in control of a responsible person.

OWNERS ARE responsible for the daily removal and sanitary disposal of their pet's droppings from any site on the air station.

Pets are considered to be a nuisance when they become offensive to the senses of others. Owners must keep pets under control at all times. Proper control means that unattended animals be kept indoors, enclosed in a fenced area (with approval of fence and permit by Station Housing Office) or attached to a line or leash.

SOME EXAMPLES of animal nuisance are:

odors, unprovoked vicious temperament, excessive noise or barking, scattering of trash and garbage, soiling of the premises of other persons or in public places and damaging shrubbery or flowers.

State laws hold that pet owners are liable for any and all damages caused by their pets. Depending on circumstances civil court action can be initiated against the pet owner.

When violations of regulations occur pet owners will receive a letter of warning from the station's commanding officer via the commander of the individual involved. In serious cases where the health or safety of station residents deem it necessary, immediate removal of the animal will be required.

MILITARY POLICE will pick up any unlicensed, stray or lost animals on the station. If an owner no longer desires to keep a pet, the owner may call the military police to have the animal picked up and delivered to the Hawaii Humane Society.

OBSERVE the following ten rules of kindness to pets:

1. Make sure your pet has fresh clean water at all times.
2. Give your pet an appropriate diet of healthful, nutritious food.
3. Make sure your pet is properly identified by tags and licenses to ensure they will be returned to you if lost.
4. Sterilize your pet so it does not unnecessarily contribute to animal overpopulation problems.
5. Take your pet to the veterinarian regularly for shots and checkups.
6. Spend some time with your pet each day, playing, exercising and training it.
7. Never allow your dog or cat to bark, meow or howl annoyingly. Noise is a nuisance to your neighbors.
8. Never allow your pet to soil sidewalks or neighbors' lawns. If it does, clean it up immediately.
9. Pet and praise your pet daily.
10. Make your pet's life as interesting and happy as possible. A bored pet can be a destructive pet.

Operations conducted at versatile site

Editor's note: This is the first in a series of articles to acquaint Hawaii Marine readers with the various training areas throughout the Hawaiian Islands in use by the Marine Corps.

Bellows Air Force Station is located on the Windward side of Oahu in the Waimanalo district. It is approximately 13 miles from MCAS, Kaneohe Bay.

The U.S. Marine Corps utilizes the facilities at Bellows for many different types of training. Air, ground and amphibious operations can all be conducted at this versatile training area.

Bellows has the only beach on Oahu available for use in amphibious training. It is only a short trip across Kailua Bay from K-Bay's Fort Hase beach to the training site at Bellows. The close proximity to the air station makes Bellows ideal for amphibious training purposes.

Facilities at Bellows are divided into six separate training areas. Areas 1A, 1B, and 1C make up the beachfront area. All amphibious landings and exercises are conducted in this area.

No live firing is authorized at any of the training sites and no ordnance of any type is allowed on the beachfront area.

Areas two, three and four are used for various training purposes. The emphasis is on small unit tactics, helicopter crew training and communications / command post exercises.

The airstrip is available for conducting daytime helicopter operations. The Air Force and Bellows' base commander have been extremely cooperative in providing usage of training areas.

There are some training deficiencies at Bellows, however. The area itself is limited in size, and as mentioned earlier, no live firing of ordnance is authorized. The close proximity to the community of Waimanalo makes it imperative to keep noise to a minimum. There are also various restrictions on air operations.

Negotiations are in progress with Pacific Air Force to secure an additional 400 acres at Bellows for training.

All amphibious training ceases at 11 a.m. Fridays to allow the civilian populace the opportunity to use the beach. Bellows is used primarily as a recreational facility. The beachfront is divided by a stream serving as a natural boundary between the first portion of beach for use by the general public and the second area which is for military personnel and their dependents only. An all-ranks club, exchange facilities and beach cottages are available for service persons use. Training resumes on the civilian beachfront at 8 a.m. every Monday morning.

"If you don't think scuba diving is a team sport, try these waters alone sometime."

"The buddy system. It means that even when the water gets so dark you can't see your hand in front of your face, you'll have someone you can count on at your side. It comes natural to someone who's trained in team thinking every day, like in the Corps. Not that you'll ever need help. But if you do, the guy beside you is gonna be a Marine. And I can't think of anyone more dependable, in or out of the water."

You've got a lot to look back on. And even more to look forward to.

Sportsnotes

The fourth all-service parachuting championships have been scheduled for May 24-27, 1980, at Fort Bragg, N.C. The championships will be sponsored by the 82nd Airborne Division, XVIII Airborne Corps, and Green Beret Sport Parachute Clubs.

Participation will be limited to active duty service members and cadets attending a service academy or service school. Also, each contestant must be "A" license qualified.

Five events will be included in this year's competition — individual accuracy, four-way team accuracy, individual style, four-way sequential relative work and eight-way speed relative work.

For additional information, write: 82nd SPC, PO Box 70067, Fort Bragg, N.C. 28307. Additional information can also be obtained by calling one of the following at Fort Bragg: Staff Sgt. Dave Bullen, (919) 436-2919; Sgt. 1st Class Bill Gatter, (919) 436-5858; Sgt. 1st Class Don Ward, (919) 436-4010; Sgt. 1st Class John Tippy, (919) 436-4056; US Army Parachute Team (Capt. Jeppeson or 1st Sgt. Wrenn), Autovon 236-4800 or 236-4828. Autovon numbers are not available for any point of contact except the Army Parachute Team.

Individuals from the air station and the 1st Marine Brigade who are interested in playing Hawaii Marine Varsity Baseball are asked to contact Sgt. Bob Vandyne at 257-2942 DWH. The league is scheduled to begin at the end of June.

A Women's Open Slow-pitch Softball League beginning June 8 with games scheduled on Sundays is being planned. A meeting will take place May 15 in the Family Theater at 2 p.m. Eligible players are active duty personnel, dependents 18 years old or over and civilians who work aboard the air station. Contact the Athletic Department at 257-3108 for more information.

A Women's Open Volleyball Program is being arranged. A meeting to discuss the program will take place May 16 at 10 a.m. in the Family Theater lobby. The program is scheduled to start Wednesday, June 4. Authorized participants are active duty personnel, dependents over 18 years old and civilians that work aboard the air station. Call Special Services' Sports Department at 257-3135/3108 for information.

Congratulations to Maj John Krueger, Brigade Service Support Group, who won the 1980 All-Marine Handball Singles title at Marine Corps Development and Education Command, Quantico, Va. He teamed up with Maj John Theisen of G-1, 1st Marine Brigade, and placed second in doubles competition. Krueger also placed second in the State of Hawaii Singles Handball Tournament held in April.

The 1980 Intramural Bowling League has season drawn to a close. The Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron team, composed of Maj Joe Yetter, MGySgt "Z" Zombro, 1st Lt Bob Countryman, Capt Ron Isa, SSgt Dave Graber, Bill Lukins, Ken Eshelman and Harvey Howe captured first place.

Weise conquers YWCA 10k Run

Of the 480 participants who started Kokokahi YWCA's annual all women's 10,000 meter race, the heat and hilly terrain kept about 80 competitors from completing the 6.2 mile run held Sunday, May 4, in Kaneohe.

Candas Weise, leader for most of the race, crossed the finish line first with a time of 41:24.7. The exhausted but excited winner said, "The course was so hilly and the heat was almost unbearable, but all-in-all I think everyone had a good time. I sure had fun."

Karen Courter, 12, daughter of Marine LtCol Rip Courter, was second with a 42:25.8 run. Her mother Nancy followed her three minutes later to finish 14th. Hot and winded from the race Karen announced, "I didn't think I was going to do so well."

Last year's winner Leah Farris finished the race in 12th place with a 45:34.1 finish.

Race Director Judy Brown commented that, "the temperature is really up today. Next year we're going to run the race earlier in the morning. We had about the same number of women participating last year but last year more people signed up and didn't show."

After the race, refreshments were served to the runners. Participants received decorative running shirts and commemorative medals.

YPF tests students' strength and stamina

by Sgt Chuck Henry

Nearly 70 students from 10 island high schools converged at the Kapiolani Park Bandstand Saturday to take part in Youth Physical Fitness Day, 1980.

The youngsters, representing schools from Oahu, Maui and Lanai, competed in five events for over $1700 in cash awards to schools and individual scholarships.

Co-sponsored by the Aloha Detachment of the Marine Corps League and McDonald's of Hawaii, Youth Physical Fitness Day began with a marching-on of the teams from Moanalua, Kamehameha, Lanai, Kaiser, St. Louis, Mililani, Kaimuki, Leilehua, Hawaii Baptist and Doris Todd Memorial Christian high schools.

After opening ceremonies, 11 six-member teams, made up of both young men and women, began strenuous competition in push-up, sit-up, pull-up, standing broad jump and 300-yard shuttle run categories.

Although entering only one team for score,

Lanai High School, extremely active participants in Youth Physical Fitness Days over the past several years, entered a second team of youngsters who had not done quite well enough to be selected for the "A" team in their own pre-entry eliminations.

Kaneohe Bay-based Marines acted as scorekeepers and monitors during the competition which lasted from 9 a.m. until noon.

Families watched intently as their sons, daughters, brothers and sisters exerted all available energy in "pumping out" extra numbers of pull-ups, push-ups and sit-ups. Fellow team members shouted words of encouragement as the youth athletes jumped lengths beyond their own height and ran the dizzying shuttle course.

After the final teams had cleared all five events, and while scores were being tallied, an exhibition tug-of-war competition was held among teams representing the Army, Air Force, Navy, and Marine Corps. Primary heats eliminated the Army and Air Force and in the final pull the Navy team defeated the Marines.

Award ceremonies followed, at which time the top 25 individual athletes received special recognition and top team honors were presented to the "A" team of Lanai High School. Individual high-scorer was Lanai's Clive Cabiles, who compiled a score of 484 out of a possible 500. Other individuals of note include Tina Ferrara and Darlene Presto of Mililani High School who both scored in the top three of their coed team.

Awards were presented by officials of the Marine Corps League and Patrick Kahler, president and managing director of McDonald's of Hawaii.

The Youth Physical Fitness Day came to a close with a bodybuilding exhibition presented by state bodybuilding champion and former Marine Ernie Santiago.

110 PERCENT—Mario Bandalan of Lanai High School "gives it all he's got," trying for the maximum possible number of pull-ups at Saturday's Youth Physical Fitness Day, 1980 held at Kapiolani Park Bandstand. ## Cars challenge clock

Slalom fires racers

by Lt Mary Wilkowski

Porsche. Pantera. BMW. Ferrari. Lotus. Jensen-Healey. Names to whet the vicarious appetites of all but the most hardened "buy American" auto buffs.

MCAS Kaneohe Bay was the site of Solo II Autocross Saturday. Sports Car Club of America, Hawaii region, sponsored the races, the first held aboard the air station. More than 75 foreign and domestic sportscars competed in timed events beginning at 10 a.m.

Club members and drivers were delighted with the West Field location, although they cited differences between the course and others set at Campbell Industrial Park. "The gravel out here makes it a really slick track," commented Pat Sims after completing his 71.33 final lap. Sims' skill in weaving his yellow 1964 'vette through gates and around pylons in the slalom course grabbed him the best time in the early stage of the races.

The newness of the course demanded that changes be made on an "as required" basis. Good-natured heckling was offered by onlookers to officials who declared the first run of the day void.

"Whaddya gonna do, change the course after every run?" challenged assembled Corvette owners. The initial change—tightening up of the last two gates before the timing lights—was greeted with concern as drivers re-evaluated their strategies.

Autocross is a test of a driver's skill and a car's maneuverability over a course marked with pylons, or traffic cones. Cars pass through gates created by two pylons and slalom around single cones. Each driver's four runs per event are timed and recorded through the use of electronic timing lights at the beginning and end of the course.

Prior to registering for an event each car is "tech inspected." Brakes are checked. Lug nuts are tightened. Engine compartments are inspected for loose parts and all unsecured items, including mats and spare tires, are removed from the car. Glove compartments are emptied. Upon successful completion of the inspection the car is assigned to a class determined by make of the car and its modifications and preparation.

A drivers' meeting precedes each series of laps and a thorough briefing on course layout, flagging and technical procedures is presented. A point of interest in the course Saturday was the 360 degree turn at the halfway point.

Then the fun begins. Helmeted, buckled in and strapped down, drivers parade their cars through the course on a familiarization run at a speed of 20 miles per hour. Later speeds would approach 55.

After the parade run, cars line up for the first timed lap. A flagman motions the first car forward. When the driver nods to the flagman's "Is the driver ready?" he drops the green flag and the car is off.

The enthusiasm generated by the drivers and observers was contagious. After the club's thorough police of the area following the races, the only reminders of the excitement of autocross are the streaks of rubber on the course, a clear indication that a good time was had by all.

Local schools gather for May Day festivity

by LCpl Charles Marshall

A combined effort of three high schools and an elementary school presented "La Hui Like" or "Day of Coming Together" at the Windward Enlisted Club Thursday night aboard MCAS, Kaneohe Bay.

As the narrator spoke the children from the Mokapu Elementary School displaying beautiful costumes of ancient Hawaii, paraded down the center of the room. After the king, queen and their royal court were seated, Capt William Wood and 2d Lt Mary Wilkowski crowned the young couple. Singing and dancing followed the coronation as the king greeted his guests, representing the different islands. Each high school Castle, Kailua and Kalaheo entertained with their own versions of the modern hula and Tahitian dancing.

For the finale the entire gathering of Marines and civilians, young and old, held hands and sang "Hawaii Aloha."

Rick's Review

THE JERK was "born a poor black child." Unfortunately, they made a movie about it.

Steve Martin, starring in his first motion picture role, plays a young white boy abandoned by his natural parents and adopted by a black sharecropper's family.

As the movie opens Martin is seen with street bums relating the tale of his misfortunes.

He describes how one year on his birthday his "family" gave him gifts. In spite of their demonstrations of affection, Martin feels out of place, different. To relieve this anxiety his adopted mother tells him of his true origin.

That night he decides to leave home and discover the world. The character's lack of knowledge and life experience is brought to the screen in Martin's true style.

Those viewers who find laughs galore in "the wild and crazy guy's" night club acts will feel at ease with his simplistic humor.

Martin starts out as a gas station attendant. When his new phone book is delivered to the gas station Martin attempts to show the banality of his character's existence by exclaiming, "The new phone books are here! I'm somebody! I'm somebody!" He supports this profound proclamation by immediately looking up his telephone listing in the directory.

Don't leave yet, there's more.

His goal is to achieve fame and fortune. It is while helping a customer at the station that the road to fulfillment of this dream begins. It's a long one.

While traveling Martin joins a circus as a weight guesser. A female motorcycle daredevil takes a liking to the bumbling boy. Throughout their courtship she helps him discover a "special purpose," which he vows to pursue more often.

But his true love is played by comedienne Bernadette Peters. Peters' typecasting from previous roles as a shallow-minded girl of questionable wits continues to haunt her. A far better actress than the role allows, she downplays it well enough to support this sagging saga.

After a confrontation with Martin's other girlfriend Peters temporarily leaves the plot. The audience should take a hint.

Martin searches tirelessly for his lost love. At the same time a private detective and a crazed killer are looking for him. The killer for obvious reasons and the detective to tell him a financial empire is his. To the viewer's dismay, the detective finds him first.

Soon after, Peters and Martin reunite and wed. The movie follows the pattern of most rags to riches stories, a short stay on top followed by a sharp drop to the bottom.

It is difficult for "The Jerk" to leave his worldly possessions and does so in typical Martin style. However, all is not lost forever. As you will discover if you last this far into the show, his luck, born of bumbling idiocy, saves him again.

Considering the material, actors and actresses present an acceptable effort. However, if given a choice, this writer suggests you try investing the cost of admittance in a television schedule book.

THE HERTZ CORPORATION 1980

Many 4x4's are large expensive gas eaters.

Not the Subaru Brat.

Subaru has designed a unique blend of sub-compact vehicle and four wheel power. With the flick of a lever it goes from front wheel to four wheel drive. To take you places you'd never consider venturing in a small car.

Through mud. Through sand. Through roads that are no bed of roses. What's more it'll get better mileage off the beaten path than most 4x4's get on the smooth and flat. The 1980

Subaru Brat gets 33 EPA estimated mpg and 33 estimated highway mpg. (Remember, use estimated mpg for comparison only. Mileage varies with speed, trip length, and weather. Actual highway mileage will probably be less.) The Brat's low price includes two outdoor bucket seats and full-time front wheel drive. In fact, Off-Road Magazine gave the Brat a special award for engineering excellence. See and test drive one now.
