Jaycee award goes to Crossan

The competition for the Hawaii State Jaycees Annual Recognition Program drew to a close recently as the Outstanding Military Man of the Year Award for the Marine Corps was presented to Staff Sergeant Mackie Crossan, acting first sergeant for the Brigade Proficiency Unit (BPU).

The Jaycees' awards were presented January 27 at a recognition banquet at the Hilton Hawaiian Village Coral Ballroom to the representatives from all military services in Hawaii.

The winners were selected on the basis of excellence in leadership, personal achievements, contributions to the community, state or nation; contributions to the command's mission; professional performance of duty and commendations for acts of heroism or awards for other achievements.

"The selection process is extremely competitive," said Major Robert MacPherson, director of the Brigade Proficiency Unit, "and it takes a special breed of Marine to meet the qualifications."

But SSgt. Crossan is that special breed, and is one to get involved not only with his fellow Marines, but also with the community in which he lives.

One of the initial members of the Regimental Proficiency Unit (now BPU) back in September 1976, Crossan was first assigned as noncommissioned officer in charge (NCOIC) of the Correctional Custody Unit (CCU).

In January 1977, the Physical Training Unit (PTU) was formed to assist Marines with weight problems, and SSgt. Crossan was selected as its NCOIC.

During this past April, SSgt. Crossan took charge of the Administrative Processing Unit, which facilitates paperwork procedures on Marines being considered for discharge.

"I feel like I'm needed," Crossan said, "and it's a job that can help me in my career."

Finally, due to his leadership ability, SSgt. Crossan assumed his current duty as the first sergeant of BPU in June 1978.

In addition to his military duties, Crossan serves as a member of the Station School Board Advisory Committee and as the executive officer of the Hukulea Division of the Naval Sea Cadets. He is also the assistant station coordinator for the Hawaii Big Brothers Association. Crossan was also solely responsible for the creation of a joint assistance program between the air station and the Hawaii State Prison. This program, in which inmates from the prison speak with CCU Marines, is designed to show how petty crimes can lead to serious consequences.

Although busy, Mackie still has time to be a family man. He and his wife, Tina, have two daughters, Michelle 6, and Christy 4.

Community meeting Tuesday

Wives of active duty military personnel living in family housing here are invited to attend an open meeting with air station officials to discuss the possibility of establishing a Family Housing Council. The meeting will be held at 10:30 a.m. on Tuesday at the Family Theater.

The meeting will be hosted by Col. Mel Sautter, air station commanding officer, to determine the community's interest in forming a Family Housing Council. In addition to Col. Sautter, the principal officers from station housing, facilities, security, the inspector's office and public affairs will be in attendance. According to Col. Sautter, "We wish to provide the residents of the air station an opportunity to voice their concerns and answer their questions about family housing. If there is sufficient interest and there are enough volunteer representatives we will establish a Family Housing Council, similar to the Health Care Council that was formed last month." The decision to form a council, based on the demonstrated interests of volunteers to represent their areas in Family Housing will be made at Tuesday's meeting.

The Family Housing Council is the second of three wives' advisory groups which were proposed by Col. Sautter last month. The first group to be established was the Health Care Services Council which will be holding its second regular meeting today. The third organization being considered is a consumer's advisory council which will be addressed during an open meeting tentatively scheduled for March.

are joined by Regimental Chaplain, Commander Lowell Malliett in a moment of meditation at the recently-held air station/brigade prayer breakfast.

Prayer Breakfast Gathering calls for faith reaffirmation

A combined air station and brigade prayer breakfast, similar to the type held annually by federal legislators in recent years, was held here on Thursday, Feb. 1, at Adderson Hall.

The non-denominational program began early in the morning with Marines and sailors from throughout the station gathering for their morning meal. After breakfast, ceremonies began with opening remarks by Captain Oliver Wetzel, the brigade chaplain, who introduced a variety of speakers. Lieutenant Colonel Leon Obenhaus, Commanding officer of Marine Air Control Squadron-2 read the "Marine's Prayer," and First Lieutenant Mike Dossett of 2d Battalion, Third Marines, led the assembled group in a "Litany for the Nation."

Special musical selections for the prayer breakfast program were provided by the Kaneohe Chorale, a group of singers drawn from active-duty Navy and Marine Corps units here and directed by Gunny Sergeant Richard Hulbert.

After the first musical segment of the program, Station Commanding Officer Colonel Mel Sautter read the 23d Psalm and then introduced the morning's featured speaker, Brigade Commanding General Brigadier General Harry Hagaman.

The commanding general spoke of how, while stationed at Headquarters Marine Corps last year, he had attended a similar breakfast held by the House of Representatives and had been inspired by the faith demonstrated by leaders of Congress. He called on all Marines and sailors of the brigade to "reaffirm faith in the Lord and seek his help in our training."

General Hagaman used the example of Jesus Christ and his disciples to show what a faithful "band of brothers" can accomplish.

"In our role as peacemakers through strength," the general also said, "we must strive for effective leadership on an individual basis."

The general concluded by saying that with "our extra edge, guidance from the Supreme Being, we should strive to build a strong brigade, Marine Corps, and country."

COMMENDED BY GENERAL — Brigade Commanding General, Brigadier General Harry Hagaman congratulates Sergeant Danny Cuello (left), a Brigade Recruiting contact team member who has referred 22 enlistees into the Marine Corps, and Private First Class Florencio Maganis, a member of the Brigade Service Support Group Motor Transport Company, who the general meritoriously promoted to PFC after the Marine referred one man who went on to enlist.

Recruit today

Recruiting Marines is a responsibility shared by all in the Corps today. In a Marine Corps order written in 1977, guidelines were established to recognize Marines who refer men and women who enlist.

According to the order, a private or private first class may be meritoriously promoted for referring applicants who enlist. Lance corporals and corporals can receive a 20-point addition to their composite scores for each individual enlistee they refer (up to five); sergeants and above will receive a favorable mention in their fitness reports for similar activity. Complete details about this program are available in Marine Corps Order 1130.62. (See related story on page 4.)

As a switch this February 14th, give your lady-love a bird feeder on St. Valentine's Day — but be careful what kind of customers it attracts. One of the fables or foibles associated with this lover's day is that the young lady's destiny is determined by the first bird that she sees on St. Valentine's Day.

If she a blackbird, she will marry a man of the clergy; a red-breast or bunting, a sailor, a goldfinch or yellowbird, a man of wealth. If the first bird is a sparrow, she is assured of love in a cottage; a bluebird, poverty; a crossbill, a quarrelsome husband; a wryneck, she will never marry; a flock of doves, good luck in marriage in every way.

The whole idea stems from an ancient custom in the folklore of many peoples that on Feb. 14 birds choose their mates for the coming year.

The name Valentine is associated with several martyrs of the Christian church who lived in various parts of the world. The two most prominent were Italians: a priest in Rome and a bishop in Umbria, both of whom lived in the third century A.D.

Some say that the holiday with its romantic connotations dates back to an early Roman event. In old Rome Feb. 15 was the festival of Juno Februata, and it is said that the Church substituted St. Valentine for the heathen goddess.

The present custom of exchanging Valentines is more firmly rooted in the English practice of the early 1800s. By that time nearly everyone was learning to read and write through free schooling, and with the passage of the Penny Postage Act in England, the price of mailing Valentines was affordable by all.

In 1875, German immigrant Louis Prang had designed Valentines in the United States that were considered works of art. Although Prang refined the printing of Valentines, Esther Howland of Holyoke, Mass., was the first noted maker of Valentines in America. Her ornate, handmade cards often sold for as much as $35 each during the 1850s and 1860s.

In the 1890s the penny postcard craze swept America. Although the postcards were crude, the price was right, and they drove Prang and other publishers of the more expensive cards out of business.

Today, Americans young and old send Valentines to express their affection to loved ones, whether sweethearts, family or friends. Whatever the origin of the custom, it seems to be a wholesome idea, for psychologists point out that nearly everyone thrives on knowing that he or she is loved.

Lincoln's birthday Monday

Hands depict the man

Awed by the brooding serenity of the face of Daniel Chester French's great statue of Abraham Lincoln, few visitors to the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C., notice the hands of the famous work.

But it was this aspect of the 19-foot-high statue that French and his assistants, the Piccirilli brothers of New York, spent much time and effort in sculpting. Before beginning work on the statue, French studied copies of the life casts of Lincoln's hands done by Leonard Volk on May 21, 1860.

According to Volk's granddaughter, when Volk learned that Lincoln had won the nomination for the Presidency of the United States, he hurried to Springfield, Ill., where he was one of the first of thousands of well-wishers to congratulate Lincoln before the historic day was over.

The same evening, Volk asked permission to cast the future President's hands. Lincoln disappeared and returned minutes later with a short stick saying, "I cut off the end of my wife's broom handle and whittled the edges to make it look nice." The clinched left hand of French's famous statue is an almost exact copy of the Volk cast.

In fact, French relied greatly on the Volk life casts of Lincoln's hands in attempting to show Lincoln's strength, power and tension, as well as the relaxed character of the 16th President. But after talks with Robert Lincoln, the President's son, French disagreed with Volk's observations that Lincoln's hands were disproportionate to the rest of his large frame and finally portrayed Lincoln's hands as being in proportion to his body.

Lincoln himself may have shed some light on the controversy through a short autobiography written for the campaign of 1860 in which he said: "Abraham, though very young, was large for his age and had an ax put into his hands at once, and from that time till within his 23rd year he was almost constantly handling that most useful instrument."

There are a number of accounts describing Lincoln's hands. The provost marshal general of the Army at that time noted, "His hands were more conspicuous even than his feet due perhaps to the fact that ceremony at times compelled him to clothe them in white kid gloves which always fitted loosely."

The London Times correspondent of the day said of Lincoln's appearance: "There entered a tall, lank, lean man, with . . . long pendulous arms, terminating in hands of extraordinary dimensions, which, however, were far exceeded in proportion by his feet."

Another Englishman wrote that Lincoln was "a man six-foot high . . . with large rugged hands, which grasp you like a vise when shaking yours."

There can be little doubt that Lincoln's hands were shaped by the hard physical labor of his youth. It is Lincoln, the rail splitter, the farmer, and the working man, that sculptor French has portrayed along with Lincoln, the President.

A closeup of French's statue of the 16th President at the Lincoln Memorial reveals the strength of character expressed in Lincoln's furrowed face and clinched left hand.

Brigade and station men of the quarter

CITED — Sergeant Vic Lacey, a technical publications clerk and tool room supply man with Station Operations and Maintenance Squadron, checks his tool inventory. Sergeant Lacey, a 22-year-old Marine from Chico, Calif., has been honored as the air station Noncommissioned Officer of the Quarter for the final quarter of 1978. Lacey, in addition to his numerous other duties, is a qualified search and rescue swimmer. For his outstanding performance of duty, he was awarded a meritorious mast; and plaque; and from the Noncommissioned Officers Association a weekend for two at the Hale Koa hotel.

HONORED — Lance Corporal Dennis Brohmer, a crash crewman with Station Operations and Maintenance Squadron, prepares to don an oxygen tank during crash simulation training. The 19-year-old native of Sparta, Wis., was recently awarded the title of Marine Corps Air Station Marine of the Quarter for the last quarter of 1978. In addition to receiving a citation and plaque, LCpl. Brohmer has been presented with a free weekend at a Waikiki hotel by the Aloha Detachment of the Marine Corps League.

HONOR MAN — Corporal Michael Schappert, a fire team leader with Company "G," 2d Battalion, Third Marines, looks over one of his men prior to an inspection. Eighteen-year-old Schappert, from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, was meritoriously promoted to his present rank upon his selection as the fourth quarter 1978 Marine of the Quarter for the First Marine Brigade.

RECEIVES AWARD — Twenty-two-year-old Sergeant Russ Avery, a manual morse code intercept operator with the First Radio Battalion, scans the airwaves with monitoring receivers searching for coded message traffic. The Fenton, Mo., native was recently lauded for outstanding service to the Marine Corps and named Noncommissioned Officer of the Quarter for the First Marine Brigade.

Energy Conservation Day Wednesday

Human physical energy is a marvelous resource. Once the human body burns it up, this magnificently efficient machine can regenerate energy through sleep and rest. And it can do this over and over again until the machine wears completely out.

Energy, both the kind generated from within and without, are important in keeping man's body and mind functioning and in making his environment more livable.

Athletes have learned that conserving energy is important in whatever sport they may be participating.

For years, the people who know have been telling us of the great need to conserve precious fossil fuels. After all, when the last dinosaur bit the dust and the last carboniferous fern rotted in the swamp, that was the end of the ingredients for making fossil fuels. You may remember that the dinosaur was blessed (?) with a pea-sized brain. Unfortunately, there are a lot of their descendants around... they don't conserve.

The air station's Public Works Department and Utilities Conservation and Appraisal Board are sponsoring an Energy Conservation Day on Wednesday.

A home economist from the Hawaiian Electric Company will be on hand at the Family Theater to pass along some tips on conserving precious energy, and there will be a locally produced Army film shown on this topic. All this starts at 9:30 a.m.

The briefs will be supplemented by displays of a miniature solar panel module and a computerized doll house from the State Energy Office. The house can be programmed with your 24-hour energy consumption habits to show how much you may actually be wasting.

Vehicle emission testing will be conducted on some public works vehicles, and interested drivers are invited to check out whether or not their car is one of those "gas hogs." This testing will be conducted from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the open field adjacent to the Public Works Department/Station Supply parking lot.

The keikis from Mokapu School will have a chance to show what they know about energy conservation, through a poster/slogan contest, sponsored by the Family Services Division to be conducted in conjunction with Energy Conservation Day. Prizes will be awarded to the winners of this contest.

In keeping with the energy conservation theme, the Department of Energy and the American Museum of Science and Energy, Oakridge, Tenn., will be presenting an Energy Lab at Kahala Mall beginning Monday.

The Energy Lab will feature a gravity machine and other displays depicting thermal, electrical, electro-magnetic, chemical, nuclear and mechanical energy use.

The lab will open at 10 a.m. on Monday and will be at the mall until Feb. 25. The traveling exhibition will be officially opened by Governor George R. Ariyoshi as well as other Hawaii dignitaries.

Students see Corps via recruiter team

In a recent white letter from the Commandant of the Marine Corps, Marine commanders were encouraged to put renewed emphasis and increased participation in Command Recruiting Programs.

The Marine Corps Command Recruiting Program is designed to involve all Marines in the recruiting process and to provide incentives and recognition to individual Marines and their parent commands.

Here in Hawaii, the First Marine Brigade instituted a pilot Command Recruiting Program in April of 1977 which has met with excellent results.

The Brigade Recruiting Program was conceived by Brigade Chief of Staff Colonel John Studt, then commanding officer of the Third Marine Regiment, and has been approved by Headquarters Marine Corps through fiscal year 1979. The Brigade Recruiting mission is to refer qualified applicants. However, the bulk of the recruiting effort is handled by First Sergeant Langdon Kiel, officer-in-charge of the Honolulu recruiting Service and his staff of seven recruiters who canvas the Hawaiian Islands.

"The success of the Brigade Recruiting program is a direct result of the untiring effort of the local recruiters who spend long hours contacting, screening and following up on the names we provide; remarked First Lieutenant Mike Moriarty, officer-in-charge of Brigade Recruiting.

From an office in the Family Theater complex, 1st Lt. Moriarty and his staff of seven "contact team" members organize efforts to help island recruiters. Acting as the liaison between recruiters and the command, the Hawaii Marines of Brigade Recruiting arrange to have displays of equipment and demonstrations by Marines presented at various high schools and to civic organizations.

"We try to achieve two things with our high school presentations," said 1st Lt. Moriarty. "Hopefully they will interest potential recruits and help create a positive impression of the Marine Corps in the minds of the people of Hawaii."

Two recent efforts coordinated by Brigade Recruiting received positive response at windward high schools: At Kalaheo High School in Kailua, an hour-long program was arranged which included a static display of brigade, station and Marine Corps Reserve equipment, Marines representing many different occupational fields were also on hand to talk about their jobs.

RIFLE REVIEW — Kalaheo High School ninth-grader, Michael Frame, receives a familiarization on the workings of the M-16A1 rifle from Lance Corporal Robert Wolfram of Company "C," 1st Battalion, Third Marines.

AND ABOUT THE RESERVES — Lance Corporal Roman Thomas of the Honolulu-based Fourth Force Reconnaissance Company (Minus), a local reserve unit, explains the job recon program arranged by the First Marine Brigade Recruiting Office to acquaint area high school students with Marine Corps opportunities.

WOMAN'S TOUCH — Lance Corporal Vicki Taylor of the Station Operations and Maintenance Squadron talks about living and working as a woman in the Marine Corps with a group of girls at Kalaheo High School in Kailua. Lance Corporal Taylor was one of several Kaneohe-based Marines who participated in a Marine Corps orientation program at the school.

SHOW AND TELL — Sergeant Richard Tahan, a crew chief with Marine Heavy Helicopter Squadron (HMH)-463 shows his photo album to a Kalaheo High School student and talks about the places he has been able to travel while in the Corps. Tahan and other Marines from the brigade and air station were on hand to acquaint students with the Marine Corps during a recent Brigade Recruiting presentation at the school.

In Kaneohe at Castle High, the reigning "Mr. Hawaii," Staff Sergeant Earnest Santiago, presented a clinic on weightlifting and bodybuilding that amassed a large crowd and elicited plenty of "roos and ahhs" from students.

"Since the beginning of this year, by visiting three to four schools every week, we've been able to talk to nearly 3,000 students," estimated Sergeant Joe Degrandis who handles most of the logistical arrangements for the office.

"When Brigade Recruiting was organized, we put together an All-Hawaii Platoon for training at the San Diego recruit depot in June of 1977. Last year we assembled a 75-man All-Pacific Platoon and this June we hope to send 100 enlistees. We don't consider this goal unrealistic with our office and the recruiters out in town working together."

A valuable asset to Hawaii recruiters is the "Come Home to Hawaii" enlistment option which guarantees a recruit service with a Hawaii-based unit for his entire first enlistment.

"There has been a noticeable increase in the number of recruits we've been able to enlist since we introduced the 'Come Home to Hawaii' option," stated Sergeant Danny Chello, a contact team member whose proficiency in two Filipino dialects has proven beneficial in dealing with Filipino recruits and their families.

"In addition to the Hawaii option," added Sgt. Degrandis, "a smart young man can get a $7,500 combat arms bonus by requesting an infantry occupational specialty."

"Through our efforts with local recruiters we want to show high school students that there are more job opportunities in the Corps than just the infantry," concluded 1st Lt. Moriarty. "And we hope that, in the spirit of the Command Recruiting Program, all Hawaii Marines will help out in the recruiting effort."

SHORT ROUND — Tom Kekunwela, a freshman at Kalaheo High School, sights through the scope of an M-202 multi-shot flame weapon as Cpl. Carlos Garza of Company "C," 1st Battalion, Third Marines, looks on. Garza and several other Marines from "Charlie" Company arranged a display of infantry weapons for students to examine during a Marine Corps orientation program at Kalaheo High School.

PREDEPLOYMENT LOOK — An inspection team headed by Brigadier General Harry Hagaman, commanding general, 1st Marine Brigade, inspects an aircraft crew from Marine Fighter Attack Squadron-235. The squadron underwent the general's inspection Tuesday in preparation for its upcoming deployment to WestPac.

More than 230 members of Marine Fighter Attack Squadron (VMFA)-235 stood tall and ready early Tuesday morning for a predeployment inspection by Brigadier General Harry Hagaman, commanding general, 1st Marine Brigade.

The squadron, which was the first brigade squadron to deploy to the Western Pacific in September 1977, will again soon depart Hawaii for Iwakuni, Japan.

In his closing comments, General Hagaman said, "I'm very pleased with what I've seen here today and your commanding officer, Lieutenant Colonel (Jed) Pearson, can be very proud of VMFA-235."

Black history honored

"History, Torch for the Future" is the theme of Black History Month, observed during February 1979.

Much was written about the history of blacks during the 1978 Bicentennial; but the black experience and struggle to win freedom in the United States pre-dates and post-dates the American Revolution.

The struggle has taken various forms: sometimes flight, sometimes fight. Prior to the Civil War, there were a number of slave revolts, perhaps the most famous being the 1831 Nat Turner rebellion in Virginia which did not gain freedom for the slaves but did influence Southern thinking for years afterwards.

In 1849, when John Brown and his followers seized the Federal Armory at Harpers Ferry, Va., and attempted to rally the blacks of the area to their causes, the surrounding states, remembering the Turner revolt, reacted by sending hundreds of militia to quell the disturbance.

More successful in their attempts to win freedom were the blacks who allied themselves with the so-called Civilized Indian Tribes in the southeastern United States. During the period after the Revolutionary War through the War of 1812, escaped black slaves and Indians groups united in several battles against the whites. In one part of Florida, there were so many escaped slaves that the area became known as Negro Fort.

During the early part of the 19th Century, several thousand blacks were sent to Liberia and Haiti where many proved instrumental in the efforts of the new nations to survive after gaining independence.

Numerous individual blacks assisted their fellows in gaining freedom via the Underground Railroad. Harriet Tubman, for example, made 19 trips to the South and guided some 300 slaves to freedom, and rewards for her capture totaled more than $40,000. One of the outstanding leaders of the abolitionist movement before the Civil War was former slave Frederick Douglass. Born around 1817, he was an articulate and bold spokesman for black freedom, and a stationmaster of the Underground Railroad, as well.

Forced servitude ended for blacks with the Emancipation Proclamation of 1863, but the struggle for equal rights and unqualified citizenship had just begun.

Obtaining freedom for black Americans has been a long-sought and elusive objective. Today, blacks are ensured equal rights by law, and the light of freedom kindled by their history has become the torch for the future.

MARINE CORPS LEAGUE

The Aloha Detachment of the Marine

Corps League holds their regular meetings every second Wednesday of the month at the 19th Puka.

The social hour begins at 7 p.m. with the business meeting beginning at 8. All active duty Marines, retired or former Marines are eligible to join the league and are cordially invited to attend.

BARSTOW COLLEGE

Electronics 10A "D.C. Circuits" will be offered aboard base beginning February 26. The course schedule will include lecture classes Mondays and Wednesdays from 5 to 7 p.m. with a lab class on Wednesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. A second course will be held, if sufficient student interest warrants, with lecture classes on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5 to 7 p.m. with a lab class of Thursdays 7 to 10 p.m.

Math 1A and Math 1B "Technical Mathematics" will also be offered beginning February 26. These classes will be conducted either Mondays or Tuesdays from 7 to 10 p.m.

Registration for the above classes will be held at the Joint Education Center February 12 through 22. For further information call 257-2061 or 257-3572.

E-WIVES CLUB

The Enlisted Wives Club is reorganizing and looking for new members. All enlisted men's (sergeant and below) wives are invited to attend an organizational meeting at the Family Services Center, Room #2, on Monday at 10 a.m.

Free child care is available for the wives who attend. Reservations for child care must be made at the Day Care Center by calling 254-2617 or 254-4253 by 5 p.m. tomorrow.

POWER OUTAGE

The traffic light near the H-3 gate will be out of service from 12:45 until 3:30 p.m. Thursday due to a power outage.

EMBRY-RIDDLE COUNSELING HOURS

Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University is extending its counseling hours at the Joint Education Center to 9 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

USC DOCTORATE DEGREE

The University of Southern California School of Education will offer a doctoral program leading to an Ed. D. degree beginning in mid-March. The course will take approximately two years to complete.

Classes will be held at the Education Center at Hickam AFB on weekend schedules. The program is only for military personnel.

Dr. Charles Brown, special administrative assistant for off campus programs, will be at Hickam AFB Monday through Thursday for counseling on the University of Southern California's doctorate in education program. To make an appointment or obtain more information on the program call Evelyn Anderson at 449-9702 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

PEPPERDINE UNIVERSITY

On Friday, Feb. 16, Mr. Jon Torp will be at the Joint Education Center to give a presentation on Pepperdine's Master of Arts in Human Resources Management Degree.

The presentation will be held in Room #1 at 10 a.m. and at 2 p.m. at the JEC.

TRAFFIC HAZARD

The Station Safe Driving/Safety Council has identified three intersections on Mokapu Road which are possible hazards to motorists.

Drivers are warned to be careful at Harris crossing to Harris (b5 service station), "E" Street crossing to Moffett and Lawrence crossing to "G" Street. These three roads are too narrow to be legally marked for two-lane traffic. However, motorists do pull up on the right, abreast of another vehicle at these corners making them two lane traffic.

If the vehicle which pull abreast on the right turns right and the other vehicle either goes straight or turns left, then there is no problem.

But both vehicles cannot proceed straight across the intersections simultaneously. That maneuver has caused many near misses. So watch it.

A vehicle which does come abreast on the right of another vehicle at these intersections can only go straight if the other vehicle has indicated a left hand turn.

FAMILY SERVICES

New classes are being offered by Family Services this month. They include: disco dancing, SCUBA diving and basic furniture making. Other classes already underway are: guitar; Tahitian dancing; hula; creative dancing and pre-ballet; macramé; knitting and crocheting; oil painting; women's exercise; karate and the kwon-do.

For information on all these classes call 257-3606.

FMFPac edges Japanese team

International competition brought forth cheers from fans at the Station Gymnasium, Sunday, Feb. 4, as the Japanese National Basketball Team, Matsushita Electric Company, yielded a close yet convincing victory to the Fleet Marine Force, Pacific (FMFPac) All-Stars by a score of 87 to 76.

After announcing both team rosters, the spirit of good sportsmanship accelerated as the teams exchanged gifts to set the tone for a dynamic athletic performance. The athletes also shook hands and bowed to one another signifying respect and honor.

During the first 12 minutes of the game, the lead changed seven times. The game stayed close until the All-Stars ran a series of fast breaks, exhibiting speed and agility. While dominating the offensive and defensive boards, the All-Stars accumulated a 13-point lead and at halftime were up 47 to 34.

The lead the All-Stars obtained in the last eight minutes of the first half proved to be the deciding factor, as throughout the second half the two teams played superb offensive basketball. In fact, Matsushita outscored the All-Stars 42-40.

Jerome Freeman, a former University of Hawaii basketball star, led the scoring for Matsushita with 17 points. Hirobumi Yamata, Matsushita's 6' 8" center, also had a good day, scoring 12 points and controlling his team's backboards. "We knew we had to be in good shape," said Freeman. "The All-Stars were quick. They were faster on the court than we were."

Leading the scoring for the All-Stars was Bruce Hawkins, a 6' 2" forward, with 12 points. The All-Stars however, ran a balanced attack with William Alexander, John Stover and Miguel Curl each putting 10 points through the hoop.

"We only practiced one time since the All-Star were selected," declared Captain John Clendenin, head coach. "I believe this game showed us how good we can play as a team."

Pointing to the fact that the Matsushita team has done extremely well in Japanese competition and took first place in the All-Japan tournament this year, Capt. Clendenin is optimistic about the All-Marine Tournament. The All-Stars will represent FMFPac in this year's All-Marine competition.

"The Japanese have a good team," Capt. Clendenin said, "but I think we demonstrated a well-balanced and strong attack. I think we will do well in the All-Marine Tournament."

UP AND OVER — Norris Chappell (20), attempts a jump shot even though he is partially blocked by two Okinawa defenders, Leon Haskins (right) and Bruce Hawkins (under Chappell). This was the final game of the FMFPac Regional Basketball Tournament played here at the Station gymnasium Jan. 30, 31 and Feb. 1. Okinawa won the game 104 to 96 and also the tournament besting Hawaii two games to one.

Youth sports

Cancelled without volunteers

The air station's Youth Athletics Program is in danger of being cancelled. All of the activities that are conducted during the year, such as baseball, Pop Warner football and basketball may have to be discontinued due to a lack of volunteer adult help.

According to Major Joe Yetter, special services officer and president of the Youth Athletics Association, "Youth athletics is not a part of Special Services. It is a private, non-profit organization staffed by volunteer parents and other interested adults. Funds are provided by registration fees, donations and money raising projects."

At the present time the association is sponsoring basketball and bowling for youths ages five to eighteen. The next program slated to begin is baseball. Team registration was scheduled for Feb. 5. However, due to a lack of volunteer help, registration has been postponed until a decision is made as to whether the program will be continued.

"We have most of the coaching jobs filled, but we need more coaches and unless we get an additional 30 to 40 volunteers to work as board members, equipment managers, league coordinators and umpires we will have to cancel the spring baseball program," stated Yetter.

The decision to cancel the baseball program and all other youth activities programs except bowling will be made next Friday. "The only way to save the program and give our youth an opportunity to participate in adult-supervised athletic programs is for the adults to care enough to volunteer," concluded Maj. Yetter.

People interested in volunteering to work in the Youth Athletics Program should contact Maj. Joe Yetter at 257-3108 or Staff Sergeant Bob Boswell at 257-3376.

Sports cast

The Intramural Fastpitch Softball Program will start March 5 here. All interested units wanting to enter a team should attend the meeting for coaches and representatives Feb. 6 at 9 a.m. in the Family Theater. Fastpitch softball has one special requirement. The pitcher must have an innate ability to control the softball as it travels the distance to home plate and still be in the strike zone.

Slowpitch Softball tryouts will begin for Hawaii Marines Feb. 12 at Risely Field and continue for four days. The tryouts will be held from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. each day. Interested players should call Poke Stiers for more information at 257-2902 DWH.

The St. Paul Pitching Clinic is a seven-member team of pitching all-stars that travel around the country showing their wares and giving their time for the love of fastpitch softball. What is really unique about the St. Paul Clinic is that age doesn't play a part in its membership. It is pitching ability that counts. They will be here Feb. 19 and 20 and play against the Hawaii Marine team. In between the two games on Feb. 19 the St. Paul Clinic will give a demonstration at Risely Field tentatively scheduled at 12:15 p.m. If you want to see a good game or just enjoy the spirit of competition, come on out and see the Marine team take on the St. Paul Pitching Clinic.

The K-Bay Soccer All-Stars will battle the French Navy Soccer Team at the Station Football Field Wednesday, Feb. 21 at 4 p.m.

The all-star team from K-Bay will be selected from the 1978-79 Intramural Soccer program.

Three K-Bay Marines participated in a 24-hour skate-a-thon held at Skateland Saturday and Sunday for the benefit of the Hawaii Association for Retarded Citizens. Some 550 participants obtained an estimated $30,000 in pledges. The Kaneohe Marines were 1st Lt. James E. Jewell of H&S Co., BSSG, and Cpl. Michael R. Smith and 1 Cpl. Russell D. Peterson, both of H&S Co. 1/3.

If you have ever been interested in dirt bikes or specifically, motocross, then the numbers below will be a starting point for you to see motocross events here again. Ten years ago, there were international motocross events held here. For more information contact Gunnery Sergeant Gary Hill at 257-2304 or GySgt. Sunny Lewis at 257-2048 DWH.

Personnel interested in an Intramural golf program starting here will have a meeting at the Station theater Tuesday at 10 a.m.

Oki All-Stars take tourney

The Okinawa Marine All-Stars took the last two games in the Fleet Marine Force, Pacific, Basketball Tournament to chalk up a two to one game advantage over the Hawaii Marine All-Stars.

The three games were played in the station gymnasium here January 30, 31 and February 1.

The Hawaii All-Stars won the first game by a close, three-point margin 110 to 107, using their speed and agility to get around the taller Okinawa team.

Okinawa held a one-point lead at halftime but could not widen their advantage until seven minutes into the second half. With five minutes of play left, Hawaii took over the lead. Okinawa made a scoring comeback, but Hawaii stayed with them point for point to win the first game.

In the second game, Okinawa ran away from Hawaii for a 115 to 76 win. In the lead throughout the game, Okinawa used their tall men like Don Haether, Leon Haskins and John Stover, all over 6' 6", to control the boards in shooting and rebounding. The second-game win, played January 31, assured Okinawa of a playoff game in the tournament.

In the third game February 1, Okinawa led in the first half and had stretched their lead to 10 points with six minutes remaining in the game. The Okinawa All-Stars slowed down the tempo of the game and won by eight points 104 to 96.

The Okinawa All-Stars Head Coach, Captain John Clendenin, commented that "this was the best overall talented team sent to the All-Marine Tournament from FMFPac in the last four years. I think we should have an excellent chance of bringing the All-Marine crown back to FMFPac."

Capt. Clendenin stated that "it was an excellent tournament. There was good competition and sportsmanship on both sides."

Jim Tiessen, Hawaii's assistant coach said, "They were really tough on the offensive boards. Their advantage in height made it rough on our smaller team members when trying to make inside shots."

An all-star team was chosen from the 24 team members in the tournament. Included are 10 Marines from Okinawa and two from Hawaii. They left yesterday for Camp Pendleton, Calif., for the All-Marine Tournament.

FMFPac All-Stars traveling to Camp Pendleton from Okinawa are Miguel Curl, Elvin Jeter, Leon Haskins, Kevin Brickhouse, William Alexander, Walter Heigher, Bruce Hawkins, John Eley, John Stover, and Don Haether. Norris Chappell and Mark Jackson were chosen for the All-Star team from Hawaii.

A WORLD OF HIS OWN — Like the storybook character, Gulliver, Sergeant Ron Jackson stands like a giant over his creations. Working from scratch or model parts, Ron has built his hobby according to his imagination.

Model trains

New club builds steam

By Sgt. Nevin Pratt, Jr.

If you are looking for an unusual hobby with which to spend your leisure time, Sergeant Ron Jackson of Headquarters Battery, 1st Battalion, 12th Marines, thinks he has the answer; an HO scale model railroad club. Working out of a spare bedroom in his station housing duplex, Ron has amassed more than 200 feet of track (130 feet of which is currently being used), 40 locomotives and yard rams and close to 200 boxers, tankers and other railcars. "It's difficult starting a train club," declared the St. Louis born, former employee of the Rock Island Lines, "because most people don't realize a club like this exists, and some haven't the room for either storage or set up." Ron has scheduled the first meeting for this evening at 7 p.m. All you would-be conductors and brakemen, 18 years or older, will get the chance to stoke your fires by routing yourself to "Jackson Freight Lines" at 2577-B Moffett Place on the air station. If anyone has any questions, you should contact Jackson by calling 254-2412. "And by all means," says Ron, "don't bring anything. . . I have a closet full of equipment already."

Paradise Pastimes

Sleepy old Haleiwa Town will come alive once again this President's Day weekend. On Saturday, February 17 and Sunday, February 18 as the Haleiwa Sea Spree celebrates their 13th anniversary at Haleiwa Beach Park. From a meager beginning back in 1966, the Haleiwa Sea Spree program has developed into one of the most successful and colorful festivals on Oahu. The Sea Spree offers many types of free activities this year. Hawaiian music by Eddie Kamae and the sons of Hawaii for example, as well as comedian Frank De Lima, rock music, jazz, wind surfing competition, the annual "Round-the-Island" bicycle race, a mini-marathon (12 miles), Jet-Ski races and Hot Dog competition, a moto-cross, sky diving into the park, 3d annual Milk Carton Raft Races, bikini contest, wet Tee-shirt contest, fishing tournament, a farm show and much, much more. Performing at the Sea Spree on Saturday at 8 p.m. will be the Pacific Fleet Band's top-40 disco-rock group, "Tsunami." An 8-piece group, "Tsunami" plays music that runs the gamut from "Chicago" and "Santana" to "Evelyn Champagne King" and "Gino Vanelli." Performing on Sunday at 6 p.m. will be the Pacific Fleet Band's down home country and bluegrass group, "Pacific Country." Kahuku Sugar Mill, on the North Shore, is offering a special bonus to military personnel and civilian on-base personnel and their families during the month of February. . . a free, full color poster depicting sights around the restored sugar mill and highlights of the C and H guided tour. The poster can be obtained with proof of military status and a Sugar Shack Club membership card. The cards are available at no charge at both Special Services Desks and the Kahuku Sugar Mill information booth. They entitle the bearer and his or her guests to free admission to the Sugar Mill, restaurants, shops and Pavilion Stage Shows. It is also good for a discount on the C and H "World of Sugar" guided tour. The Bishop Museum Planetarium presents "Celestial Shadows," a show on light and shadow in the universe until February 25. Showings are 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Monday through Saturday, 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. and 3:15 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is $3 for day showings and $1.50 for evening shows. For your music fans, the Hale Koa Hotel has a wide variety to choose from. For Country & Western fans, the Bayan Tree Room features Earl Hughes and His Band from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m. on Fridays. And for the disco and rock fans, the Banyan Tree Room features "Freestyle" from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m. on Saturdays. There is a $1 cover charge at the door both nights. Special Services travel and tours is offering the 1979 Navy Wives Orient tour from March 4-24. The tour will visit Manila, Singapore, Bangkok, Hong Kong and Canton. For information, call 422-9444 or contact Mrs. Erica Lowery at 422-5615.

CHEAP SHOTS: True or False? In order to see the sights on Honolulu you have to spend mucho dinero. False! Many things in Honolulu are open to visitors at no admission. The Honolulu Zoo is one example. It has over 300 animals in addition to a special collection of tropical birds and is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. The Arizona Memorial is another prime example. It is one of the most visited sights in Honolulu. Tours go Tuesday through Sunday from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. The Kodak Hula Show at Kapiolani Park is presented 10 to 11:15 a.m., Tuesday through Friday especially for amateur photographers. Aloha Tower, Pier 9 at the foot of Fort Street, is one of Hawaii's most famous landmarks. It offers spectacular views of Honolulu from the 10th floor observation deck and is open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily. A place of historical interest is the Kapiolani Rose Garden. The Rose Garden has hundreds of varieties of roses and is open from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily.

For military history buffs, there are one hour shuttle boat tours of Pearl Harbor. The tours run Tuesday through Saturday, 8:30 a.m., 9:30 a.m., 10:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 2:30 p.m. Also of interest at Pearl Harbor is the Pacific Submarine Display Museum, open Wednesday through Sunday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The museum display historic and modern objects covering submarine service since the Navy's acceptance of submarines in 1900. Information on upcoming entertainment events can be contributed to Paradise Pastimes by contacting LCpl. Randy Daugherty at 257-2431 or 257-2142.
