

State legislature honors air station

The Senate of the State of Hawaii awarded a citation Wednesday to Colonel Mel Sautter, air station commanding officer, in recognition of the air station's ecological conservation efforts. In Senate Resolution No. 348 Colonel Sautter was congratulated on the station's receipt of this year's Secretary of the Navy Award for Environmental Protection.

According to the resolution, the command and staff of the air station are commended for such accomplishments as installing and operating a 20-kilowatt, wind-driven electrical generator, keeping a census on the endangered Hawaiian stilt and the introduction of endangered Hawaiian ducks into the station's Nani Ponds Refuge, and working to control litter with projects such as the conversion of a 26-year dump into a scenic park.

"All of the people of Hawaii benefit from the activities of the station in the area of environmental protection, and these activities set a commendable example for others to follow," reads the citation which was given to the air station commander during an afternoon session of the Senate.

This is the second year the air station has been recognized for efforts to conserve the natural environment here. Two years ago, the air station received the Secretary of Defense's Environmental Quality Award.

CMC sends letter

Lambert lauded

MSgt. Lambert

While serving at the Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N.C., Master Sergeant Jefferson Lambert, noncommissioned officer-in-charge of the Human Affairs office here, set up several human affairs projects. The projects were so well planned and organized that he received a Letter of Recognition from the Commandant of the Marine Corps, which was presented by Brigadier General Harry Hagaman, commanding general, 1st Marine Brigade, Friday, March 30.

Master Sergeant Lambert organized local and state Special Olympics, Big Brother, Big Sister Programs, Senior Citizen and Juvenile Court Volunteer Programs. In the Letter of Recognition, the Commandant noted, "Your involvement in these programs has gained added respect from your fellow Marines and community leaders."

According to MSgt. Lambert, the program's goals were to improve the relationship between the civilian and military communities. "One of our more successful programs was home winterization for the elderly," declared MSgt. Lambert. "Before we had our success in this program, we hadn't done so well in the civilian community," said MSgt. Lambert, "but after so many Marines volunteered their services, civilians began to appreciate our assistance."

CMC VISIT — General Louis H. Wilson, Commandant of the Marine Corps, takes time out to chat with some troops at the Combat Simulation Center during his tour of brigade activities Thursday, March 29. The Commandant was on a tour of Pacific commands and was headed back to the mainland after his visit here. For a story and more photos on the CMC's stop in K-Bay see page 4.

BEACH CLEAN-UP — Dependent youths from the Youth Athletics Association pitched in Saturday to clean up Ft. Hase beach and North beach from Pyramid Rock to Ulupad Crater. About 300 youngsters, who comprise the station little league, swept through the beach leaving it clean as a whistle. The youths periodically tackle clean-up jobs around the air station.

THINGS

Nobody should have a day like this. You might have known, the way it started. Your light breakfast evaporated when the toaster jammed and made the kitchen smell like an indoor barb-que. The bus was late and you barely got to work on time.

Then the real trouble started. There you were still sleepy-eyed signing in, in a bad mood, and your boss comes rushing up looking harried.

He says all in one breath, "You know the thing you were working on yesterday, well, I need it by noon instead of the end of the week—get someone to help because it's critical."

You find a co-worker to help and, as your approaches, you finish.

You march into the boss's office and wait for the "thanks" as he glances over the papers. He scowls. The wrong project? You had two due by the end of the week. How could this happen to you—and to him?

The answer, both of you were victims of poor communications and you were both at fault. First, he was wrong in the way he gave you the assignment.

Can Get So Darned Messed Up Sometimes

assignment. His direction was not specific ("You know the thing you were working on yesterday...") and he assumed you were both talking about the same thing.

Second, you were wrong by not asking for enough details to be sure you understood the assignment.

This problem happens every day and costs time and money. Three basics can help avoid it.

- Be specific about what you're talking about. Fill in the details.
  - Encourage questions. Make it easy for people to ask you what you mean. It doesn't help you if they feel uncomfortable about getting more details from you.
  - Ask them to tell you what they're going to do. (Get their version of the assignment.)
- These hints seem obvious and simple, yet they are often ignored. The problems that result can be avoided if you take the time to communicate complete information in a direct, informative manner.

Souvenir hounds beware

Deadly duds dangerous

A Marine died at Pohakuloa Training Area (PTA) about two months ago supposedly due to handling an unexploded grenade he found.

These unexploded ordnance or duds are found in all major training areas in Hawaii.

Marines here are continually exposed to areas where explosives of one sort or another have been used. Kahoolawe, PTA and Kahuku training areas are prime examples where small arms, artillery and even aerial ordnance are employed during routine training operations.

Units usually pass by these impact areas and the temptation to pick up a souvenir is great. However, these temptations may cause a lot more grief than delight.

One of the most dangerous duds around, according to the Brigade Safety Office, is the 40 millimeter grenade fired by the M-203 grenade launcher. The grenade is small (see drawing) and easily pocketable.

The safety office offers the following guidelines when traveling near these training areas.

- Never enter any impact area unless you are accompanied by an explosives ordnance disposal expert and have a valid reason for entry, for example, missing person search or ordnance sweep.

- If for any reason you find yourself in an impact area, do not handle any man-made objects you may find lying on the ground. Move out of the area immediately.

- Ordnance items, including unfired cartridges and pieces of shrapnel should never be taken as souvenirs. Those innocent looking 20mm tracer rounds and .50 caliber cartridges contain phosphorus which can cause serious burns. Shrapnel can cause cuts that are highly susceptible to infection.

- Never disturb the ground near a dud or throw anything at or toward one. The slightest disturbance can cause it to explode.

Ordnance items are designed to inflict casualties and produce death. Don't find out the hard way just what it takes to make a dud explode.

Motor T: Air station transport section greases wheels to keep K-Bayites rolling along

By Sgt. Lee Goodson

READY TO ROLL — Sgt. Rosepe Gordon, dispatcher for the Station Motor Pool, fills out a trip ticket for Lt. Cpl. Julian Sagon. The motor pool is manned by a dispatcher 24 hours a day.

Everything from small Jeep CJ-5s to tractor-trailers to small fork-lifts to a 30-ton crane can be found in the Station Motor Pool. Vehicles of every size roll out of the motor pool each day to fulfill the needs of the air station.

"We exist to provide transportation to the station and to the tenant activities aboard the station," explains First Lieutenant Pat Herd, station transportation officer. "The regiment and the MAG (Marine Aircraft Group-24) have their own tactical motor vehicles but they don't maintain much in the way of vehicles such as buses, pick-ups and other commercial type vehicles. So we provide a motor pool here to lend out to them and also to the people who work aboard the air station itself so they can accomplish their mission."

The station motor pool has approximately 700 vehicles and pieces of engineering equipment utilized by regiment, MAG and station personnel.

"One of the jobs we do all the time that a lot of people may not realize the motor transport section handled," Lt. Herd added, "is the picking up and dumping of the trash dumpsters located around the station. Also the sanitary landfill out by the rifle range is run by our people. Another duty they perform is issuing military driver's licenses, about 300 each month."

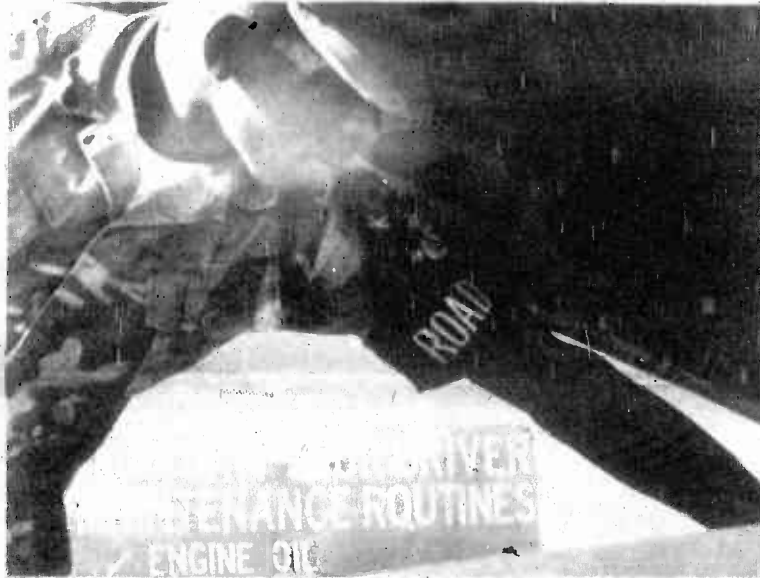

A force of 24 Marines works for the motor pool. They accomplish such duties as driving the liberty bus, the dependent bus to Tripler Army Medical Center and a 24-hour dispatch watch. These Marines are joined by 50 civilian personnel who perform such duties as the maintenance work on all the vehicles and also some of the specialized work with the engineering equipment, such as the cranes.

"All of our maintenance is done by civilian personnel," Herd pointed out. "Interestingly enough, a great many of our maintenance people are former Marines."

One of those former Marines is Vincent Dijos, automotive mechanic foreman. "I really enjoy my work," said Mr. Dijos. "I've been here at the air station since 1969. I really like working with the personnel of the motor pool. The best part of my job is meeting new people every day, and being in charge of the automotive section. They come in with a problem concerning their vehicle and we take care of their problem and send them on their way as fast as possible."

FINAL INSPECTION — Sgt. Earnest Sumbry, roadmaster for the Station Motor Pool, looks over a military vehicle at the motor pool's preventive maintenance station. Approximately 700 vehicles occupy the grounds of the motor pool and each one undergoes an inspection before leaving.

It's one of the most important documents around yet most people don't take the time to check it out : Leases

Part II

Leases are one of the most important, yet least understood, of documents military people encounter. An extra special scrutiny is a wise move especially here in Hawaii where a lease demands a larger chunk of your paycheck.

In last week's Hawaii Marine, Part I of this article discussed clauses which you should seek to delete from that "Standard Lease Form."

Landlords may not be too willing to change any of the clauses but ask anyway. Here are some clauses which you should think of adding to the lease before signing:

CLAUSES TO ADD

- A good military clause that gives the tenant the option of vacating the premises upon receipt of orders.
- Clauses which specifically set forth the tenant's entitlements with regard to swimming pools, parking lots, recreation rooms, and other such facilities.

• If the landlord has promised to paint the apartment, a clause to that effect should be inserted. If an agreement has been reached as to the color, that should also be specified in the lease. If the landlord agrees to furnish materials so that the tenant can restore and redecorate, such arrangements should be clearly spelled out.

• If the apartment comes with furniture and appliances, the lease should specifically state what items the tenant is entitled to have the use of during the lease period.

• A clause which permits the tenant to hang pictures, decorative furnishings, lighting fixtures, etc.

• A clause which provides that pictures, shelves, furnishings and lighting fixtures installed by the tenant do not become the property of the landlord upon the termination of the lease.

• Clauses which allow the tenant to assign the lease or sublet the premises to a reputable person with the consent of the landlord. Such clauses should also contain a statement that the landlord may not unreasonably withhold his consent to such an assignment or subletting.

• If the landlord refuses to delete the provision concerning attorneys' fees, a clause could be inserted to the effect "in the event it becomes necessary for the tenant to take legal action against the landlord, of whatever kind, because of violation of any covenant, term, or condition of this lease agreement, landlord will, in addition to any damages awarded by the court, pay all court costs, service fees, notary fees and, unless prohibited by law, reasonable attorneys' fees."

• A clause indicating that the landlord shall timely make all repairs (and comply with all legal requirements relating to the premises) to keep the premises in good order and repair.

• A clause to the effect that rules and regulations will not become effective until thirty days after notice to the tenant of their promulgation.

• A clause to the effect that rules and regulations shall apply to all occupants, and the landlord shall make any reasonable effort to enforce them equally against all occupants.

Obviously, no landlord is going to agree to all of these deletions and insertions referred to above. Nevertheless, a checklist of this type can be a good starting point in reviewing a lease. Where the landlord will not agree to specific changes in the lease, you should at least be aware of the ramifications. Do not hesitate, however, to prepare a proposed addendum to a lease where the landlord is willing to negotiate or if you are not sure. "Nothing ventured; nothing gained." The addendum can take the following form:

AMENDMENT

This Addendum amends and forms a part of the lease dated _____

_____ between _____

_____ and _____

The parties agree with each other as follows:

1. If any provisions in this Addendum conflict with the provisions of the lease referred to above, the provisions in this Addendum shall prevail.
2. Additional clauses, clauses to be deleted, etc.

Tenant

Landlord

In addition to the provisions of the lease, many states have laws which apply to leases. Some states prohibit the enforcement of certain types of lease clauses (for example, prohibit attorneys fees for landlord). Clauses which are prohibited by state law are not binding on you. One word of caution clauses which are prohibited vary depending on the state, and state laws are subject to change. Thus, you cannot rely on your past experience. Some states have laws which place various duties on landlords in addition to your lease. (Examples are: handling of security deposits, supply of water and other services, and repairs.) To fully understand your rights and obligations when renting, you must understand the terms of your lease and the applicable state laws.

In summary, the lease should not necessarily be viewed as a "take it or leave it" proposition. While some landlords will be totally unwilling to vary from the printed form, others may be quite flexible. Obviously, a big apartment complex will be less likely to make exceptions than an individual who is renting out a single unit. In any event, after an in-depth analysis of the lease, if your proposed deletions and additions are rejected by the landlord, at least you should have a better understanding of what you are signing. When the landlord refuses to consider reasonable changes, that unyielding attitude alone will sometimes cause you to reconsider whether or not you want to enter a contract with such a landlord.

If you have problems or questions, consult with your housing referral office. And remember, the best time to get advice is before you sign.

CMC tours base; speaks with troops

By Sgt. Lee Goodson

General Louis H. Wilson paid his final visit as Commandant to the 1st Marine Brigade and Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay, last week. He arrived Tuesday evening, spent Wednesday touring the station facilities and all of Thursday visiting different units of the brigade.

Thursday an honors ceremony was held at Dewey Square, which began with a 19-gun salute. After reviewing the honor guard, the Commandant attended a joint brigade and station briefing at Kansas Tower, conducted by Brigadier General Harry Hagaman and Colonel Mel Sauter, followed by a tour of the Combat Simulation Center (CSC), hosted by Colonel Paul Slack, commanding officer, Third Marine Regiment.

At the center General Wilson took a few minutes to reenlist four members of the 1st Battalion, Third Marines. Raising their right hands and re-taking the oath were Corporal Thomas Stinnett, Headquarters and Service Company; Lance Corporal Ricky Hickstein, Bravo Co.; and LCpls. Asencion Salazar and Francisco Chavarria, both from H&S Co.

The Regimental Day Movement Course was the next stop. At the course, the Commandant fielded questions from members of Company "A," 1/3. One Marine who will surely not forget the Commandant's visit is Private First Class Kenneth Clark, of Alpha, 1/3. General Wilson asked, if there were privates in the platoon, and Clark raised his hand. After learning that Clark had been a private for eight months and had a clean record, the Commandant shook Clark's hand and said, "Congratulations, you're now a PFC." And then, much to everyone's surprise, the general added, "and the warrant will be back-dated two months so you can get the back pay. Nobbydy," said the Commandant, "stays a private for more than six months unless he has been the subject of disciplinary action."

A tour of Marine Aircraft Group (MAG)-24 facilities followed, and the Commandant talked with staff NCO's and enlisted Marines who were recently deployed.

General Wilson then promoted four members of MAG-24. Major George Tullios, Marine Fighter Attack Squadron (VMFA)-212; Captain William Conklin, Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron-165; and Captains Robert Hanson and Gary McCutcheon, both of VMFA-212, were promoted to their present rank.

The Commandant closed out the day by addressing more than 4,500 brigade and station Marines massed in hangar 104.

"I want to say how delighted I am to be back in Kaneohe," began the general, "and to see the brigade, the readiness, the quality, the training and the standards of conduct, all of those things, which I consider to be so important for our Corps, and I believe that you do too. These things are embodied here in this splendid organization which operates in such delightful surroundings."

General Wilson briefly talked about the Corps' status and some future changes concerning uniform regulations.

"The quality of our Corps," confirmed the Commandant, "has never been better. The UA (unauthorized absence) rate, the desertion rate, all of those things by which we measure our quality, are in the right direction."

The grooming standards, Gen. Wilson continued, "the weight control, those things which we are proud to characterize as Marines, I think, are very good."

The general then talked about the "rotation to the Western Pacific" program that was started in 1977. "I think this provides a variety of training, locations and the opportunity of seeing places and things that you may not ever see, to be a whole Marine... I believe it's as much as an ideal set-up as we can find."

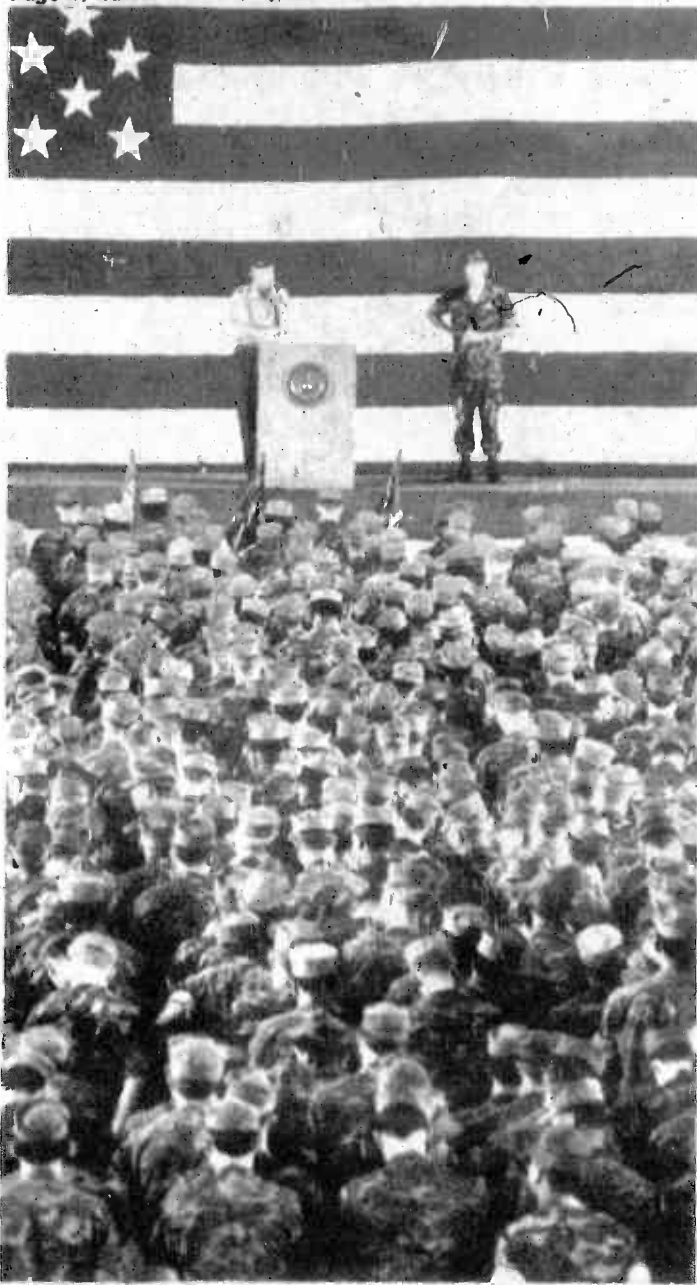

"There are some problems connected with it," added Gen. Wilson, "which we are trying to iron out. That is we need certain additional critical skills because I am very much against anybody going on back-to-back deployments, and we must not have that done."

On the subject of uniform changes, Gen. Wilson noted the Corps is going to change from the sauteen utility cover to the camouflaged utility cover, which does not require starching. Another change is a new combination raincoat/overcoat.

"You know we have a raincoat that doesn't keep you dry and an overcoat that doesn't keep you warm," Gen. Wilson explained. "We are trying to combine these characteristics into one coat that doesn't do either." Over the laughter and applause of the crowd, the Commandant added, "I suppose that's what they call 'progress' in Washington." (Recent test wear results show the new overcoat/raincoat is a large improvement.)

General Wilson wrapped up his conversation with the Kaneohe Marines with these words. "I would like to say how delighted I am to have been in the Marine Corps some 38 years. It's been a great experience for me, one which I shall never forget. The dedication, the hard work and support, which was given to me by Marines of every rank, over many years, is always a great satisfaction to me. And I can only say how proud I am to be associated with each of you, and that the future of the Marine Corps has never been brighter."

Welcome back

HMM-165, LSU, 3/3 return from Western Pacific cruise

By Sgt. Nevin Pratt, Jr.

Many families were waiting with open arms, unfurled banners and teary eyes at Pearl Harbor Monday as the elements of Battalion Landing Team 3d Battalion, Third Marines (BLT 3/3), Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron (HMM)-165 and Logistic Support Unit (LSU) Golt returned from their seven-month deployment to the Western Pacific.

Their arrival, which was staggered over an approximate five-hour period, was heralded by a musical fanfare of "Star Wars," "The William Tell Overture," both the Navy and Marine Corps hymns and other popular favorites by the Fleet Marine Force, Pacific, Band.

The first of the five ships to reach the pier was the USS Vancouver, followed by the USS Durham and the USS Monticello.

Docking fourth was the largest of all the ships in the group, the landing platform helicopter ship USS Okinawa. The greatest concentration of family and friends was here, as the Hawaiian sun beat down on an estimated gathering of 600 people.

Arriving last was the USS Racine, which was involved in amphibious vehicle off-loading operations at Fort Hase earlier that morning.

In all cases, before the mooring of each ship was totally completed, wives and girlfriends began pouring up the gangway, looking for their loved ones.

While retired Gunnery Sergeant Carson Bryan and his wife Audrey, both residents of Pacific Palisades here, waited patiently for their son, Lance Corporal Scott Bryan of 3/3's Kilo Company, Weapons Platoon, Vee Bracken, the wife of Lieutenant Danny Bracken, also of Weapons Platoon, voiced her anticipation by saying, "He's been gone too long."

While on the 204-day deployment, brigade Marines, the 2d Platoon, Bravo Company, 1st Tank Battalion of Camp Pendleton, Calif., and Marines from the Okinawa-based Third Marine Amphibious Force (commanded by Lieutenant Colonel J.C. Conlin) participated jointly in several combined services operations such as Operations "Double Dragon" with Republic of Korea Marines in Kang Nun, Korea, and in Operation "Team Spirit" near Pohang, Korea. Ports-of-call for liberty during the float included stays in Subic Bay, Philippines (some Marines had the opportunity to visit Cebu City and Manila), Yokosuka, Japan, Pusan, Korea and the British Crown Colony of Hong Kong.

arrived, the Fleet Marine Force, Pacific, Band played various popular melodies.

Close game ends in forfeit

With fear of a forfeit in their eyes, members of the Headquarters and Maintenance Squadron (H&MS)-24 fastpitch softball team waited for one more player to show up before starting time to make a full team. With only minutes left before game time, a player finally arrived and the game between H&MS-24 and Brigade Proficiency Unit (BPU) Monday began.

BPU was first at bat and H&MS-24 took to the field. The first two innings moved by swiftly, with both teams putting men on base but no one scoring.

The first man to cross home was Anthony Woods of BPU. BPU scored one more time during the game, and stayed ahead of H&MS-24 until the closing inings. H&MS-24 couldn't seem to get a rally going. They did tie the score up in the sixth inning, 2-2, but could not score in the seventh.

BPU came to bat with a score and win situation. With two men on base it looked as though they were going to score. But no one will ever know for sure.

On the next pitch, the catcher for H&MS-24 injured his hand and could not continue the game. With no substitutes on the bench H&MS-24 had to forfeit the game to BPU.

Due to the forfeiture the final score of the game went in the records as 7-0.

SAFE OR OUT? — You're out!, calls the umpire as Tim Tucker of Headquarters and Maintenance Squadron-24 slides into the tag of Brigade Proficiency Unit's third baseman Lyonell Fields. BPU won the game by forfeit but until the forfeit the score was tied up, 2-2.

Fishing

Military team captures 3d place

Waiting until the last minute isn't the best way to accomplish a task, but it worked out well for Steve Johnson and the crew of the "Mavis." Johnson hooked a 574½-pound Pacific Blue Marlin in the last hours of the final day of the $40,000 Pokai Bay Bonanza Jackpot Fishing Tournament held March 28 through 30.

The four-man crew of the Mavis took third place in the tournament winning a $3,000 prize. The weight of the marlin combined with a 102½-pound ahi caught on the first day by Hank York put the four-man crew of the Mavis in third place, to win the prize. The captain of the boat was Ed Watkins of the Alcohol Rehabilitation Drydock. The crew consisted of Johnson and Y66K of Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron (HMM)-265, and a retired Navyman Bryce Lyndsey.

Johnson hooked the marlin at 3:30 p.m. about 12 miles off Barber's Point and the fight began. And what a fight it was! "The fish became tail tied, (the line wrapped around the marlin's tail) making it very difficult to fight," remarked Johnson. The fight lasted five hours before the fish was finally boated about 30 miles out to sea.

"I never thought that a fish could put up such a fight, it was quite a struggle," Johnson explained. "After a five-hour fight I was relieved to get the fish in the boat. I was very tired and my arms were numb," he added.

It was past midnight before the Mavis and her crew returned to the Pokai Bay headquarters to end Oahu's first big money fishing tournament. The tournament had 80 teams entered and a $20,000 first prize.

The Waialua Boat Club Team Four took the first place prize with a 603-pound marlin and two ahi. They were followed by Chuck Machado's Luau team which only caught one fish but it was a whopping 779 3/4-pound marlin. The Machado crew won $4,000 for second place and an extra $1,000 for the largest marlin boated.

Entry blanks and information can be obtained at the golf course starters desk.

Camp Smith to hold tournament

The 1979 Camp H.M. Smith Intramural Handball Tournament will be played April 23, 24 and 25 at the Camp H.M. Smith handball courts from 1 to 5 p.m.

All active duty military personnel and civilian employees authorized exchange privileges assigned to Headquarters and Service Battalion, FMFPac/Camp H.M. Smith, CINCPac or other organizations located aboard Camp H.M. Smith are eligible to participate.

Tournament entries must be submitted to Special Services Sports Director GySgt. Pitts at 477-6467 or 477-6468 prior to 1 p.m. April 19.

The double elimination singles tournament will be played under official U.S. Handball Association Four-Wall Handball Rules for a 21 point game. Participants will be required to play a best of three game match.

For more information see Camp/Battalion Bulletin 1710 dated March 26, 1979, or contact GySgt. Pitts at 477-6467/6468.

WINDING UP — Marvin Franklin (left), of Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron attempts to beat Sunny Manguba who put on a table tennis exhibition at the Main Exchange Saturday. Many Marines tried and too many failed! All of them but one as a matter of fact. Jesse Ferguson of Brigade Service Support Group won one game from Sunny after losing six to him. As if winning that many games wasn't enough, Sunny did it with a 2" by 2" hairbrush! He is still willing to take on all challengers.

NEW PAINT — Hangar 103 Gym got covered with plastic because of a new paint job this week. Since damage to the gym floor could result from the settling paint, the Special Services office has revised the schedule for the gym as follows: Monday to Friday 4 to 9 p.m. and on the weekend from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The painting is tentatively scheduled to be completed by May 7. The gym will then resume normal weekday hours.

Paradise Pastimes

Money is an important commodity because it is the exchange that opens doors to entertainment, restaurants, museums and a wide variety of places available on Oahu. But before you spend that almighty dollar reflect upon "Things Money Can't Buy." Money can't buy real friendship — real friendship must be earned. Money can't buy happiness — happiness is a mental attitude and one may be as happy in a cottage as in a mansion. Money can't buy sunsets, songs of birds and the music of the wind — these are as free as the air we breathe. Money can't buy inward peace — peace is the result of a constructive philosophy of life (From Farmer's Almanac). Something else money can't do is change the weather — if rain is the forecast, punt... call a friend, hope it's only mauka showers, turn on the stereo or just reflect on memories that made you happy in the past. Rain can't last forever, but it is the most welcome thing around if old man sun has shown his merciless rays on tender skin.

CHEAP SHOTS: An International Exchange School Concert will be held Sunday at the Kapiolani Park Bandstand. If you're in the area, plan to attend. The concert begins at 2 p.m.

BEYOND THE GATES: Igor Oistrakh, the famous Russian violinist, will appear with Sidney Rothstein and the Honolulu Symphony for three performances of all-Russian concert at the Blaisdell Concert Hall tonight at 8 p.m. There will also be performances held Sunday at 4 p.m. and Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The program for the April concerts consists of Glinka's "Overture to Russian and Ludmilla," Tchaikovsky's "Violin Concerto in D Major," and Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring." Tickets, priced from $5.75 to $13, are on sale at the Honolulu Symphony Box Office, all symphony substations, all BASS locations and at the concert hall on performance days. Call BASS at 521-2992 or the Symphony Box Office at 537-6191 for more information.

Children will surely enjoy the puppet show and an egg and basket display tomorrow at 10 a.m. at Beretani Community Center's Easter Eggstravaganza. There will be an Easter egg hunt for the kids at 11 a.m.

William Shakespeare's 419th birthday anniversary will be commemorated at the 14th Annual Shakespeare Festival, renamed this year as the Clarkin Memorial Shakespeare Festival. The festival is slated from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Saturday, April 21 at Chaminade University's Henry Hall. For more information contact Blanche Kort at 732-1471. Children of all ages are invited.

WITHIN THE GATES: If you're interested in art then the art exhibit/auction beginning at 7 p.m. at the Officer's Club here is the place to be tonight. The "members only" exhibit will feature original lithographs, etchings and graphics signed and numbered by many of the world's most renowned artists. There will also be an enthralling array of water-colors and original oil paintings from all parts of the world.

Each work of art is beautifully framed and ready to hang on your wall. Come early, (no-host bar with special prices on house wines), receive your free catalogue, spend time studying, examining and questioning the personnel there to help you and their... at the magic moment each piece of art can be yours for the bidding! An original oil painting will be given away as a door prize. The charity fund raiser is being presented by the Kaneohe Officers' Wives Club.

Special Services sells tickets for BASS, discount dining

How would you like to save money when you take your date or your wife out to eat? Sure you would. And maybe get tickets for concerts right here on the air station. Even get 20 per cent discounts on the nation's number one rent-a-car. Believe it or not, after Monday the Special Services office here will have all of it available.

Alto Diner Cheques went on sale this week at Special Services for $2. This entitles the bearer to four $5 discounts at various restaurants on Oahu. There are stipulations stating the occasion must have two or more people and the total dining bill must be at least $20.

The Best Available Seating Service (BASS) will be opening an outlet here Monday and sell tickets to concerts, most major events and also offer discounts for dinner shows for various clubs in town. The ticket service will be handled here by Mrs. Barb McCravy. The tickets will be sold to provide a service to the Marines and dependents on the air station. Movie tickets will also be sold to some theaters on the island.

Special Services will take cash, checks of traveler's checks for all tickets, but be sure to have your mind made up on exactly what event you want to see. There can be no cancellations or refunds once the sale is made.

The procedure for getting the tickets is simple: go to Special Services and pay for the tickets, you will receive a voucher. Give Special Services one day to order and pick up the tickets and then you pick it up the next day. Be sure to bring along the voucher to save time researching the records.

Hertz Rent-A Car discount stickers are being given out now by Special Services. The stickers are attached to the credit card of your choice and when presented to Hertz you can rent any size automobile and receive a 20 per cent discount on the regular rates. In Hawaii there is also unlimited free mileage. Compact, standard and full-size cars are available at $20, $21, and $22 per day and $100, $105 and $110 per week, all rates respectively.

Rent cars cheap and conveniently

Rental agencies are available all over the island here. The majority are in Honolulu with others dotted at various points for customer convenience. The air station has its own rent-a-car concession, American International Rent-A-Car, next to the Family Theater complex.

Fifty cars are on hand in five categories, all in compact models including the Ford Fiesta, Toyota, Datsun, Plymouth Arrow and Dodge Colt.

Eligible customers must be 21 or older active or retired or be a military dependent. You must show an ID card if in civilian attire. Patrons must also have a valid driver's license. Keep in mind that sixteen states do not extend or validate driver's licenses after expiration while the holder is in the military service. They are: Alabama, Alaska, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Idaho, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Oregon, Wisconsin and Wyoming. Twelve states' licenses can be renewed or extended by mail. These include Arkansas, Colorado, Delaware, Washington, D.C., Illinois, Kentucky, Maine, Michigan, Nevada, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and South Carolina.

Personal guests of eligible renters can be named as additional drivers if their name is added on the contract.

A deposit is required when the car is picked up. The amount of deposit depends on the number of days the car will be rented and the election of insurance coverage. The deposit must be paid in cash, any major credit card or traveler's checks.

A contract is filled out with the renter's name, address and military unit (active duty) and his phone number. All drivers are encouraged to buy collision coverage or be able to prove they have insurance to cover them in a rental car. The cost for full collision coverage is $5 plus the rental fee. Electing the $100 deductible plan makes the deposit $120.

Cost of the cars vary per day depending on the make. Fiestas rent for $13 a day of $70 a week. The Datsun and Toyota models rent for $15 a day and $80 a week. The Arrow and the Colt cost $17 a day and $90 a week.

Each driver has three principle obligations after he signs the rental contract. He must not loan the car to an unauthorised driver, drive the car over unpaved roads nor fail to fill the gas tank when you return the car.

If the car is loaned to an unauthorized driver, the insurance becomes null and void and the renter becomes fully responsible for any accidents and all resulting charges.

If the car is not filled with gas when it is returned there is a $3 service charge plus the cost of the gas. The gas is charged at a higher rate than the gas station.

American International Rent-A-Car is open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

Cars can be reserved in advance of your proposed rental date by calling 254-3384. The weekends are always busy so remember to think ahead and reserve early.

American International Rent-A-Car is here to serve you, the customer. It is convenient, close at hand and the rental fees are reasonably priced. If you need transportation and need it quickly, see Kathy at the desk.

VARIETY SINGER — Rod Young will perform every Friday night from 9 p.m. to 11 a.m. during the month of April at the Staff Noncommissioned Officers' Club.

VOTING ASSISTANCE ACT

Military personnel, their dependents and U.S. citizens overseas may find it easier this year to cast an absentee ballot. This is due to changes signed into law by President Carter last November.

Public Law 95-593 amends the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 (FVAA) and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 (OCVRA). The amendment is aimed at improving the administration and operation of the absentee voting program, thus making it easier for eligible citizens to exercise their constitutional right to register and vote in federal elections.

The states are required by PL 95-593 to register and provide absentee ballots for eligible citizens. Previously, the voting acts only suggested that this be done.

Also, spouses and dependents are now given equality with their sponsors. It is still the responsibility of the U.S. citizen overseas to convince the state in which he seeks to vote that the citizen is a bona fide resident of that state. Traditionally, length of prior residence; voter registration; and tax payment, based upon the state's provisions, determines a voter's eligibility within a particular state.

The FVAA applies to active duty military and merchant Marine members, their spouses and dependents, and to civilian employees of the U.S. overseas and their spouses and dependents when residing with or accompanying them. Members of the armed forces, their spouses and dependents may vote absentee while away from their place of voting residence whether they are stationed within or without the U.S. The same consideration is given to civilians, such as Red Cross employees accompanying U.S. forces overseas.

The OCVRA applies to U.S. citizens residing outside the U.S. and its territories on more than a temporary basis. Some voters may be eligible under both voting acts.

Details on PL 95-593 are in ALMAR 022/79. Specific questions should be directed to unit voting officers. — MC News
