GETTING FAMILIAR — Brigadier General Wesley Rice, deputy commanding general, Fleet Marine Force, Pacific, familiarizes himself with the cockpit and radar system of an F-4S Phantom on Thursday, May 3. After utilizing the 2F-55 trainer, a simulator of the F-4S, BrigGen. Rice was well prepared for an afternoon flight in an F-4S as the radar intercept officer. BrigGen. Rice participated in two days of aviation orientation training with Marine Aircraft Group-24.

Asian-Americans honored for U.S. achievements

President Jimmy Carter has pointed out, in proclaiming the week that began Friday, May 4, as Asian-Pacific-American Heritage Week, that "Asian-Americans have played a significant role in the creation of a dynamic and pluralistic America with their enormous contributions to our science, arts, industry, government and commerce."

Such contributions in time of war have been made with heroism and bravery.

During the fierce fighting for Italian ridges in April 19, 1945, a nisei (Japanese-American) infantryman inched up on a German machine gun emplacement. As he was about to throw a grenade, a German tossed one which nearly tore his arm off. Shaking off the assistance of his men, he took up a tommy gun and stumbled on, finally wiping out the enemy machine gun nest. This nisei, who subsequently lost his arm, became United States Senator Daniel K. Inouye.

It was an American ship under command of Commodore Matthew Perry whose visit in 1854 opened Japan to Western influence. A few years later in 1869, the first Japanese immigrants arrived in the United States. The Sacramento, Calif., Union wrote of the new arrivals, "It is in the interest of California to welcome and encourage these immigrants."

Chinese immigration to the United States began during the 1850s and 1860s. They often worked in the mining camps of California. Later, Chinese laborers assisted in constructing the railroads and canals that criss-crossed the United States.

Down through the years Asian-Americans from China, Japan, Korea, and the Philippines have made contributions of significance to our nation. There was, for example, Dr. Choh Hao Li, a biochemist, who in 1962 won the Albert Lasker Award as the world's leading authority on the pituitary gland. Senator Hiram L. Fong was the first American of Asian ancestry to be elected to the U.S. Senate. In 1964, Patsy Takemoto Mink became the first nisei woman to be elected to the U.S. House of Representatives.

In recent years the plight of refugees in Southeast Asia has resulted in tens of thousands of them finding sanctuary in this country. Undoubtedly, in years to come, they too will more than repay the nation's hospitality.

As President Carter said of Asian-Americans, "Their successful integration into American society and their positive and active participation in our national life demonstrates the soundness of America's policy of continued openness to people from Asia and the Pacific." — AFPS

COMBAT MARINES — Members of the Defense Orientation Conference Association (DOCA) receive a briefing by Marines of the 1st Battalion, Third Marines, during a static display set up for the DOCA members during their visit to the air station Wednesday.

Retirement ceremony held

Graham departs

Sergeant Major Joseph A. Graham Jr., outgoing sergeant major of Marine Aircraft Group (MAG)-24 of the 1st Marine Brigade, retired Monday after 29 years of service to the Marine Corps. Taking over as sergeant major of MAG-24 is Sergeant Major Samuel B. Moyer, former sergeant major of Headquarters and Maintenance Squadron (H&MS)-24.

Graham first enlisted in September 1950, and underwent recruit training at San Diego Marine Corps Recruit Depot.

His first assignment was with Battery "C," 1st 155 Gun Battalion, Camp Pendleton, Calif., as a field artillery batteryman.

Sergeant Major Graham saw action in Korea in 1953 and also served a tour of duty in Vietnam in 1968.

During a Mediterranean cruise out of Camp Lejeune, N.C., Graham participated in the Lebanon landing in 1958.

He attended recruit school at Parris Island, S.C., and served two tours of recruiting duty in Colorado Springs, Colo.

The sergeant major also served a two-year tour with the inspector-instructor staff in San Bruno, Calif., in 1974.

Sergeant Major Graham's first duty in Hawaii was in 1961, also with the 1st Marine Brigade. He returned for his second tour in Hawaii and final tour in the Corps in 1976, as the sergeant major of 1st Battalion, 3d Marines. In Sept. 1977, he assumed duties as MAG-24 sergeant major.

SgtMaj. Graham plans to retire in either Nevada or Arkansas with his wife, Joan, and their two sons, John and Jeff.

Sergeant Major Moyer, a 23-year veteran of the Corps, enlisted in the Corps in 1956 and underwent recruit training at San Diego.

During his career, SgtMaj. Moyer has been a member of the band, in the infantry, a cryptologist linguist, and a military policeman.

He has seen action in Vietnam and served as the first sergeant of Inspector-Instructor School in New Castle, Pa.

This is the sergeant major's third tour in Hawaii.

SgtMaj. Moyer is married to the former Miss Velvalie Kurusaka of Hamilton, Ala. They live in Kailua with their son, Eugene.

PASSING THE SWORD — Sergeant Major Joseph A. Graham Jr., outgoing sergeant major of Marine Aircraft Group (MAG)-24, 1st Marine Brigade, performs the traditional passing of the sword, to the Commanding Officer of MAG-24, Colonel S.A. Chaffgren, Monday at his retirement ceremony. Sergeant Major Samuel B. Moyer, former sergeant major of Headquarters and Maintenance Squadron (H&MS)-24, took over as sergeant major of MAG-24.

DOCA tours station

By Sgt. Lee Goodson

Members of the Defense Orientation Conference Association (DOCA) visited various military installations on Oahu Wednesday, including an afternoon at Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay.

While at the air station, the members viewed a video-slide presentation at Marine Aircraft Group-24's Warfare Training Center. After the multi-media presentation, the members were briefed by Colonel Paul Slack, Third Marine Regiment commander, on the Marine Air/Ground Task Force command post display set up adjacent to MAG Headquarters.

DOCA is a non-partisan, nonprofit organization with a primary function of acquainting its members with national security programs of the U.S. and our allied nations.

Although the Department of Defense (DoD) cooperates and assists DOCA in its efforts, it is not an official DoD organization and does not represent the Secretary of Defense in any official capacity.

DOCA members are distinguished community and business leaders from throughout the U.S. who are interested in our national defense and in assisting where possible. Their activities are planned and funded by their own members.

With the exception of those members who have joined DOCA by direct nomination of a DOCA member since 1976, all others have attended a Joint Civilian Orientation Conference sponsored by the Secretary of Defense.

The members departed Honolulu International Airport yesterday for an 18-day tour of military installations in Tokyo, Bangkok, Manila and Hong Kong.

HE DOES HIS JOB WELL. — Staff Sergeant Bernard Chapman of Station Operations and Maintenance Squadron received the Navy Achievement Medal, Friday April 27, for professional achievement in the performance of his duties as maintenance control chief for aircraft maintenance. SSgt. Chapman assigns priorities on aircraft maintenance as part of his daily work.

OVERTAKING AND PASSING SCHOOL BUSES

The Provost Marshal reminds us that the Hawaii Statewide Traffic Code, Section 291C-95 says: "Whenever a school bus is stopped on a highway with its visual signals on, the driver of any motor vehicle on the same highway shall stop his/her vehicle before reaching the school bus and shall not proceed until the school bus resumes motion or the visual signals are turned off." Furthermore, if you are cited for the preceding offense, appearance in Magistrate Court is mandatory. More importantly, such carelessness jeopardizes the lives of our children.

From 1 to 2 p.m. and 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. all staff NCOs and sergeants and below will be briefed in the station theater. On May 15 from 8 to 11 a.m., individual Marines will be screened at the Joint Career Planner's office.

All interested personnel should attend one of the two briefing on May 14. If you think the MSG program is for you, the briefing is the place to find out for sure.

ALCOHOLISM PRESENTATION

Captain Joseph Pursch, a nationally recognized expert in the field of alcoholism treatment and recovery, will give a presentation today in the Family Theater from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. The presentation is entitled, "Life, Death and Recovery of an Alcoholic." In addition, a panel of recovered alcoholics will be available for discussion and questions. All commanding officers, sergeants major, first sergeants, substance abuse personnel, medical personnel, chaplains, interested officers and staff NCOs, dependents and civilian government employees are requested to attend.

To put a new twist on an old expression, "The hand that rocks the cradle rules the United States." And Mother's Day is an apt occasion to recall that many American mothers have long dreamed that a son of theirs would become president of this nation. Today, that aspiration might apply to daughters as well.

So far, though, American presidents have been sons, and their mothers have had a powerful influence on them. One writer and researcher points out, "Almost without exception, in the cases where sufficient evidence survives to permit any verdict at all, the Presidents of the United States have been... no matter if they did or did not engage in sporadic fist-fighting... Mama's boys."

Another interesting point is that it was almost entirely the first-born offspring that became president. Reasons given for this fact is that, in most instances, they received the best education, as well as the most maternal prodding. This latter point could be a sore one for the sons involved.

George Washington, for example, stayed as far away from his domineering mother as possible. Our nation, however, owes her a debt of gratitude. A scheme was devised in the Washington family to send the Father of Our Country off to be a seaman in the British navy. But his mother, Mary Ball Washington, was against the idea and George eventually took up surveying and then soldiering. It was while in the Army that his mother wrote one of the few of her letters that still exist; it notes, in part: "... there was no end to my trouble while George was in the Army but he has now given it up." Fortunately, he went back into military service later.

Many of the presidential mothers were remarkable women, from Anna Pierce, mother of Franklin Pierce, who reputedly drank and wore red ribbon bows around her ankles, to the globe-trotting mother of the present incumbent of the White House, Jimmy Carter.

After John F. Kennedy became president, his mother, Rose, took it upon herself to become a spokeswoman on mental retardation. Martha Young Truman, on the other hand, just spoke out. When she arrived in Washington aboard the presidential plane on one Mother's Day, she remarked in a manner that "Give them Hell Harry" would have been proud of: "Oh fiddlesticks! If I'd have known there was going to be all this fuss, I wouldn't have come."

The contributions of the presidential mothers can be summed up in an ode that Sara Delano Roosevelt received from Rose Sverdluk of the Bronx, N.Y., which begins:

"To you we are grateful, for you are the one
To give our country such a noble son..." —AFPS

Squadron sharpens skills at PMRF

By Sgt. Lee Goodson

The mission of each unit aboard MCAS, Kaneohe Bay, is to stay in top shape, to be the very best they can be.

Last month, Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron (HMM)-265 spent 12 days on the neighbor island of Kauai at the Barking Sands training area, putting in additional hours of training to sharpen their combat efficiency.

"The primary purpose of our visit to Barking Sands," explains First Lieutenant Stan Hebert, intelligence officer for HMM-265, "was to increase our combat readiness percentage (CRP) and to get some additional training done through simulated combat experience."

Another training objective accomplished by HMM-265 was an exercise called "terf" (terrain flying). When the choppers are in the "terf" mode, they follow the contours of the terrain, keeping as low a profile as possible.

"We transported troops to the field," continued 1st Lt. Hebert, "and inserted and extracted them at different points. This help increase our CRP and to familiarize the crews and the infantry units with the turf exercise."

Marines from Bravo Company, 1st Battalion, Third Marine Regiment, accompanied HMM-265 in their turf-mode training.

The daytime raid exercise began with the simulation of an F-4 Phantom being shot down in a mountainous region near Barking Sands. Enemy forces captured some classified communications equipment off the Phantom. Flying turf-mode, HMM-265 picked up the infantry units and inserted them in the enemy's position, destroying the communications gear and most of the guerrillas.

The daytime exercise wrapped up the reinforced guerrilla forces trying to take the airfield. The infantry Marines were picked up by HMM-265 and delivered to the end of the runway, ejecting the guerrillas and ending the daytime phase of the exercise.

The night raid exercise was a simulated evacuation of all American forces, military and dependents, on Kauai. The choppers landed on the runway, in the darkness, in an effort to improve their coordination under abnormal conditions.

"The main purpose of our trip to Barking Sands," added Lt. Colonel Don Klingler, Commanding Officer, HMM-265, "was to prepare ourselves for our deployment to the western Pacific later this summer."

"This has been the best period of instruction we've had. We were here two other times with Marine Aircraft Group (MAG)-24, but this time we were on our own. We developed our own scenarios and we operated independently. I think we were able to use every minute of the day and night to gain the training that we really needed."

"All in all," Lt. Col. Klingler concluded, "I think we put as much training together as possible which would be almost identical to a situation we might find ourselves in if we were off-loaded into a remote area and had to operate for about two weeks before the MAG arrived to give support."

HMM-265 was not alone at Barking Sands. Also training with them were personnel from Headquarters and Maintenance Squadron-24; Marine Air Control Squadron-2; Marine Fighter Attack Squadrons-212 and 232; and Marine Heavy Helicopter Squadron-463.

QUESTIONS — After giving an incoming briefing to Marines at the Joint Reception Center, Brigadier General Harry Hagaman, commanding general, 1st Marine Brigade, answers Marines' questions concerning their tour of duty at K-Bay.

JRC helps Marines in processing

By LCpl. Tyrone Abdul-Rahman

Lance Corporal Newguy had just arrived at the Honolulu International Airport after a flight from Los Angeles. At 1 a.m., with bags over his shoulders, LCpl. Newguy appeared to be lost when a Marine sergeant arrived and asked to see his orders. "Ah, you're going to Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay. We'll have a driver from their Joint Reception Center (JRC) drive you to your new home." Within an hour, a driver was ready to take LCpl. Newguy to the JRC at K-Bay.

Marines coming to K-Bay for duty can expect to go through a two-and-a-half day processing cycle at JRC. According to Captain Bill Mackie, officer-in-charge, the purpose of the JRC is to decrease administrative work for individual units. "When Marines finish processing, they will be ready to go to their units and assume their duties right away." All units on station are served by JRC.

Capt. Mackie says during the processing Marines' travel vouchers are completed. Marines are examined to detect medical and dental problems, are given a reading test and have their record books screened.

"We want to put the Marines at ease," declared Capt. Mackie. "For example, if Marines don't score well on the reading test, we encourage taking after-hours courses to improve their ability."

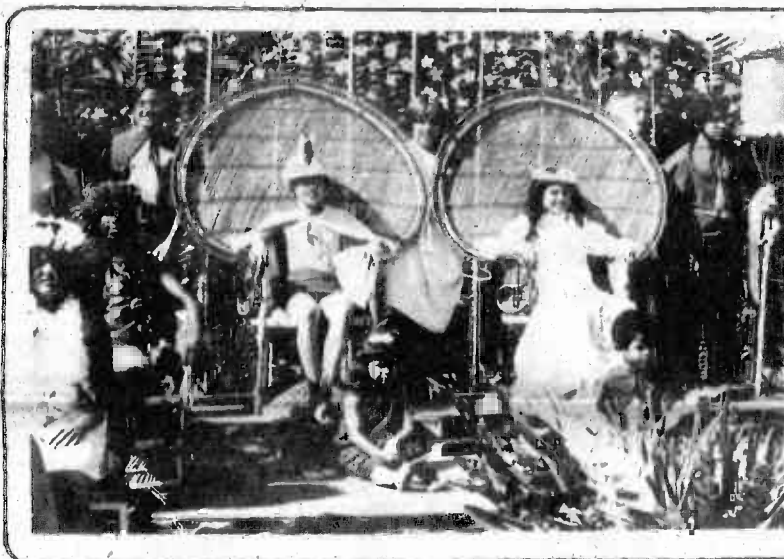

JRC provides living quarters for male Marines, sergeants and below. Married Marines, staff NCOs and officers are not asked to stay in the barracks; they are, however, processed by JRC. Woman Marines move directly into a barracks and complete processing at JRC.

Completing travel vouchers, according to Capt. Mackie, is the biggest service JRC provides the units. "The individual Marine enjoys this service, too," points out Capt. Mackie. "Usually, when they come here, Marines have little if any money, but before they leave, they are paid up-to-date."

According to Capt. Mackie, there are no limitations on the Marines' liberty while processing at JRC. "As long as they are back in time for formation, they are free to enjoy liberty. We do, however, inform them about the high prices, such as in Waikiki and safe places to swim."

One of the highlights JRC offers incoming Marines is a briefing by Brigadier General Harry Hagaman, commanding general, 1st Marine Brigade.

After going through the processing at JRC, Marines are asked to fill out questionnaires. Capt. Mackie says they have received valuable information about the services at JRC. "We have received constructive criticism at times and we have made changes."

Massaro: Sergeant major speaks on NCO responsibilities

By SSgt. John B. Simmons

The role of the noncommissioned officer hasn't changed in the last 200 years. That role was explained recently in an interview with Sergeant Major of the Marine Corps John R. Massaro.

"The role of the staff noncommissioned officer is two-fold," the sergeant major said. "His primary responsibility remains, as it has through the ages, to train his troops. It's his responsibility to train them so that regardless of the type of mission, the troops are equipped to execute and accomplish the mission."

The sergeant major also pointed out a facet of the role a SNCO plays that is sometimes overlooked in the modern Marine Corps.

"In addition," said Massaro, "the SNCO has a responsibility to the young officer. A SNCO has a wealth of practical experience acquired over a number of years. If this is presented to a young officer, in a fashion the officer is receptive to hearing, he has a wealth of knowledge that can be drawn from to assist in the accomplishment of his mission."

However, many SNCOs believe they have lost a lot of the prestige and responsibility they had prior to the Vietnam War. The reason for this and how to regain it were also explained by the sergeant major.

"There are a few areas that must be looked at that explain the loss of prestige that many felt happened during the Vietnam era."

"At one time 5,000 of our supposedly finest SNCOs were commissioned and another 2,000-3,000 were commissioned a short while later. This in essence took the heart out of the SNCO corps."

"The young NCO that had to step up and fill the vacated billets, didn't have the time in grade to acquire the practical knowledge needed to adequately advise his platoon commander."

This process is now reversing itself as the number of peace time years increase and the promotions slow down.

"In talking with officers today I find their respect and confidence is growing rapidly. SNCOs are getting the practical experience and technical knowledge to handle the pre-Vietnam position again," said Massaro.

The Marine Corps itself has done much to increase the knowledge of the young SNCO by providing an academy, to give instruction in leadership and other areas that budding staff sergeants should know.

"We're working to increase the knowledge of not only the young SNCO, but also the older SNCOs and to make them all better Marines," said Massaro.

The greatest thing for the young SNCO is the SNCO academies at Quantico, Lejeune and El Toro. Approximately one year ago, they were instructed to teach the same POI (program of instruction) so that regardless of the academy attended, they would get the same course."

For SNCOs who don't attend one of the academies, there is the SNCO Extension Course and other extension courses available. There is also a course for the senior enlisted grades to help in their career development.

"At the present time, on a limited basis, we send Marines to the Army's Sergeant Major Academy in El Paso, Texas," continued the sergeant major. "It's probably the finest non-technical school available in the armed forces today."

"The school is six months long and we are optimistic that in the future we can increase the number of master sergeants and first sergeants from the present authorization of six per class."

The sergeant major then pointed out areas young Marines should concentrate on during their careers that would put them ahead of contemporaries and help them develop into professional Marine SNCOs.

"There are some very important keys to look for in the career development of Marines," said the sergeant major. "I don't think they hold true for just the SNCO ranks, but start from the time a young Marine graduates from recruit training and remain however long he elects to stay with the Corps."

"The first is to seek jobs with greater responsibility instead of being complacent. He should strive to achieve in his present job, but should also keep his eyes open and when the opportunity presents itself, move to a job with greater responsibility."

"Those who plan on making a career in the Corps should set the example in all areas of being a Marine... appearance, wearing of the uniforms and physical fitness. I'm not saying a SNCO has to be the best in his unit in order to be a success... What I am saying is he has to be a participant."

"He must set the example in the day-to-day wearing of the uniform. He must demonstrate daily, through leadership and example, support of the Commandant and the orders we have to guide us."

Armed Forces displays set

The 1st Marine Brigade and air station Marines from Kaneohe Bay will be joining members of the other armed services Saturday, May 19, in observing Armed Forces Day, with a full slate of activities scheduled at Hickam Air Force Base and Naval Station, Pearl Harbor.

This year's Armed Forces Day theme is "Forces for Peace."

Visitors to the Pearl Harbor open house will observe Marines from Company A, 3d Reconnaissance Battalion, demonstrating rappelling and helo-casting techniques from CH-46 helicopters and marching band performances by the Fleet Marine Force, Pacific Band.

Open house activities will commence at 8:30 a.m. Tours of Pearl Harbor and the Arizona Memorial will be available about every 20 minutes until 4 p.m. Visitors to the Naval Station will also be afforded the opportunity to tour ships at Hotel Piers 1 through 4 starting at 9 a.m.

Service Squadron 5 and Harbor Clearance Unit 1 Navy divers will put on scuba and deep sea diving demonstrations at 9:30 a.m.

The Pacific Fleet Country Band will provide country and western and blue grass music at 10 a.m., backed up by a square dance exhibition conducted by the Bachelors and Bachelorettes International Square Dance Club of Honolulu.

Saturday at 11:30 a.m., recon Marines will demonstrate their expertise in rappelling and helo-casting into Halawa Stream across from the Hotel Piers. Two more demonstrations are scheduled at the same place at 1 and 3 p.m.

Marine Aircraft Group-24, F-4J and F-4S Phantom fighter attack jet aircraft as well as CH-53, CH-46 and UH-1N helicopters will be on display at Hickam AFB. Additionally, LVTP-7s from Company D, 3d Assault Amphibian Battalion will be on display at both Hickam and Pearl Harbor.

In addition to Marine Corps aircraft and other support equipment displays, the Air Force will also have its representative displays of aircraft and equipment. Navy P-3 Orions, A-4 Skylarks and H-2 helicopters will round out the aircraft displays at Hickam.

Church of Nazarene head joins

Local pastor sworn in as sea service chaplain

By Sgt. Brenda Martinez

Interesting. Knowledgeable. Self-Assured. Excited. All these words just begin to describe one of the Navy's newly acquired reserve chaplains, Pastor Craig W. Rench.

Now Chaplain (Lieutenant Junior Grade) Craig W. Rench, he was sworn into the Navy Reserve April 17. He is presently the pastor at the Church of the Nazarene in Kailua, where he has been for the past three years.

When asked what influenced him to join the Navy, Chaplain Rench replied, "God! There were a lot of steps to be taken before I could be sworn in, among them unanimous votes from my district pastor, the church board, the congregation, the Department of the Navy and others. At any point God could have barred the way, but doors continued to open. So you might say God is my commanding officer and I'm following his commands."

Born in Los Angeles, Chaplain Rench spent his sixth through seventeenth years in Taiwan with his missionary parents.

After leaving Taiwan, he attended Pasadena College in California, where he worked his way through as a youth pastor. While there he earned a Bachelor of Arts in Theology and a second degree in psychology.

Upon leaving Pasadena College, he attended the Nazarene Theological Seminary in Kansas City, Mo., for three years where he was ordained into the ministry. There he earned a Masters in Divinity and a Masters of Religious Education. He also worked as a youth pastor there.

From there he came to Hawaii, and is now working on his doctorate in his spare time.

One of the reasons he joined the Navy was to help improve relations between the military and the community.

Chaplain (Commander) Lowell Malliett, 3d Marine Regiment chaplain, first introduced Chaplain Rench to the idea of becoming a chaplain.

"Pastor Rench is one of the most outstanding men I've ever met," said Chaplain Malliett. "He has high academic, intellectual and spiritual qualifications to become an outstanding chaplain. He is also perceptive to the needs of the military, since a substantial amount of his congregation is military and he will be very valuable to the military community. I feel he is a definite asset to the Chaplain Corps."

Chaplain Rench reflected, "I halfway expected a little joking from the military in my congregation about my joining the Navy, but they have all been very supportive."

Chaplain Rench's wife, Connie, also has missionary parents and according to the chaplain, is an invaluable asset to him and the church. They have two children: Jesse, 3 years old, and Benji, 16 months old.

"I'm looking forward to a very rewarding time in the Navy," Chaplain Rench stated, "and I plan to be in for 20 years if God continues to show me that is what he has planned for me."

TALKING IT OVER — Navy Reserve Chaplain (Lieutenant Junior Grade) Craig W. Rench (center) talks about his recent swearing into the Navy's Chaplain Corps with Brigadier General Harry Hagaman, commanding general of the 1st Marine Brigade, who performed the ceremony April 17.

Chaplain Rench's wife, Connie, was present at the ceremony. Now the Pastor at the Church of the Nazarene in Kailua, Chaplain Rench will be attending reserve training with other reserve chaplains in the Kailua area once a month.

CPR IN THE FIELD — Two hospital corpsmen from the Navy Reserve 120th Medical Detachment, Naval Reserve Honolulu perform cardiovascular pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) on a simulated casualty (a Marine from 1st Battalion, 3d Marines), during a medical exercise Saturday.

Combat aid

Training held

Thirteen members of the Reserve Navy Medical Detachment 120, Naval Reserve Honolulu, conducted the first of what they hope will be many future medical exercises, Saturday.

The corpsmen began setting up their tents and medical posts at 7 that morning and by 9 were ready to begin the first of the four phases of the exercise.

The first phase consisted of five simulated casualties, Marines from 1st Battalion, 3d Marines (1/3) treated by 1/3 corpsmen. Stretcher bearer were also Marines from 1/3.

In the second phase the 1/3 hospital corpsmen were assisted by the 120th reserve hospital corpsmen, and then in the third phase the 120th corpsmen were on their own.

The corpsmen had to reach the wounded under simulated live fire without getting killed or wounded themselves. The casualties tried their best to lend authenticity to the exercise with moans of pain and definite symptoms of what they were suffering from if not a visible wound.

In phase four of the exercise, the casualties were increased to ten and again the 120th corpsmen were on their own.

There were 23 corpsmen from 1/3 who helped train the 120th reserve hospital corpsmen in combat aid. Thirty-seven Marines from 1/3 performed as casualties and stretcher bearers.

Lieutenant Commander Thomas G. Cahill, commanding officer of the 120th reserve hospital corpsmen, said, "The exercise went extremely well, and we were all very happy with it. It gave our corpsmen a chance to see what their role with the Marines would be in actual combat. We hope to repeat this in the future and make it a regular thing."

Reservists parachute for weekend training

Story and photos by SSgt. Steve Manuel
CAMP H.M. SMITH, HI. — The Marine Corps, famous for its shore-storming amphibious tactics, also occasionally likes to drop in on the enemy by parachute.

During a recent drill weekend, 27 Marine reservists from Hawaii's 4th Force Reconnaissance Company, 4th Marine Division, demonstrated this daring tactic by stepping out of a CH-53 Sea Stallion helicopter 1,500 feet above a predesignated drop zone.

The helicopter, flown by Brigadier General Harry Hagaman, 1st Marine Brigade commander, Kaneohe Bay, made several passes over the drop zone releasing groups of three to five Marines on each pass. Colonel D.E. Shatzer, chief of staff, 4th Marine Division, New Orleans, watched as the reconnaissance Marines floated quietly to the ground.

Each Marine, equipped with pack and rifle, carefully guided his parachute to the target area where he landed, gathered in his parachute and formed into six-man patrols for an overnight trek through the mountainous east range near Wahiawa.

"The jump is only a means of getting there," said Major R.S. Williams, inspector-instructor, 4th Force Reconnaissance Company.

"The majority of the training takes place on the ground in the form of patrolling, navigation and communication.

"In an effort to find out how effective their training has been over the year, we stage their food (C-rations) in various places in the field. In order for them to locate the food, they must make radio contact with the headquarters and be told the location coordinates.

"After receiving the coordinates they still must physically find the rations testing their ability to navigate with respect to map, compass and terrain features," said Major Williams.

Their weekend exercise, like all of their yearly training, is a prelude to what they'll be doing at this year's annual training duty (summer camp) at Twentynine Palms, Calif. in July.

According to Major Williams, parachute insertions are normally conducted at night. "When Gunnery Sergeant Roger Rook, the I&I gunnery sergeant, and I reported here about three years ago, almost all of the jumps were conducted during daylight hours. We're trying to upgrade our parachuting program by making more night jumps and always jumping with equipment. We are also trying to make more jumps in conjunction with tactical exercises," stressed Major Williams.

Entry into a hostile area by parachute, under clandestine conditions, fits right into the landing force commander's scheme of maneuvers explained Major Williams.

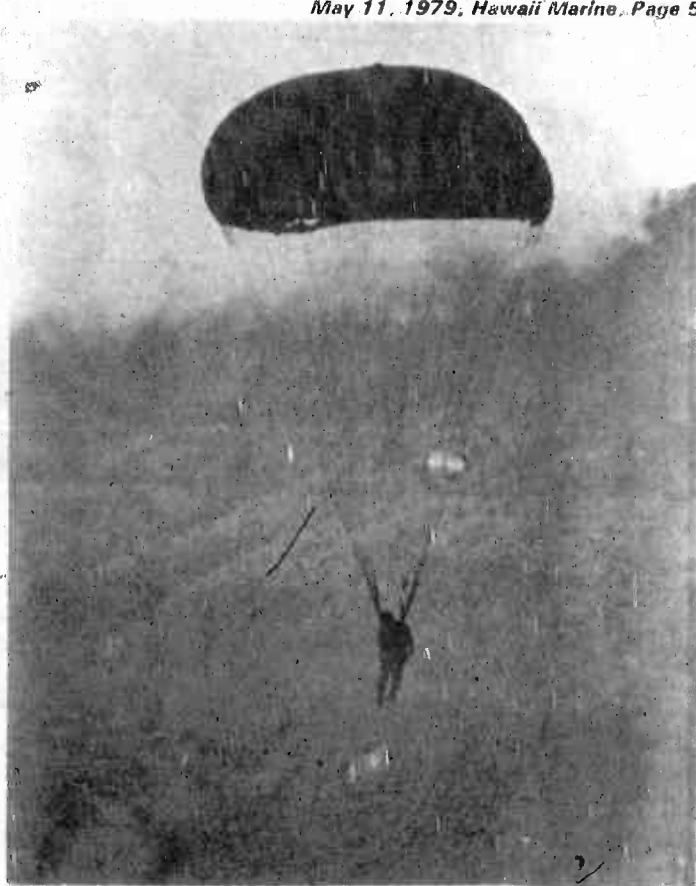

"As time goes by, weapons get more sophisticated and units are able to move greater distances in shorter periods of time. The landing force commander needs to have information on enemy troop concentrations and weapons much deeper from the beaches than he did 30 years ago.

"So, the force reconnaissance Marine and his parachute insertion capability is becoming more and more important. He can be dropped as far as 200 miles behind enemy lines under the cover of darkness," according to Major Williams.

The Marine Corps is still this country's ready line of defense with the capability of immediate deployment to hot spots throughout the world.

The Corps' place in history as the 'first ashore, first to fight,' will never be erased by its parachute insertion tactics.

But now enemy forces will be forced to look skyward as well as seaward for the Corps' shore-storming Marines.

Women # 1

By SSgt. Steve Manuel

The Fleet Marine Force, Pacific (FMFPac) Women's All-Star volleyball team played almost flawlessly to capture the 1979 All-Marine Women's Volleyball Championships held April 30 to May 4 at Pearl Harbor.

The FMFPac team, comprised of woman Marines stationed in Okinawa and Hawaii, finished the tournament without losing any of their four matches.

The East Coast All-Stars finished second winning two and losing two of their matches, while the West Coast women finished with no wins and four losses.

However, the final scores of the games played were not indicative of the fiercely competitive play exhibited by all three teams in the three-day tournament.

On the first day of play, FMFPac faced the East Coast All-Stars in the first match. The East Coast women started fast by winning game one, 15-9, but dropped the next two games, 15-12 and 15-3.

The FMFPac All-Stars played the second game of the twin bill against the West Coast women. FMFPac won the match, winning 15-12 and 15-9 to complete a sweep of the first two matches of the tournament.

The East and West Coast teams faced each other in the opening match of the second day of play. The West Coast women jumped out to an early 8-2 lead, but the East Coast team caught up and took the lead, 11-8. The West scored three straight points before they ran out of steam to drop the game, 15-11.

In game two, the East Coast All-Stars took an early 9-1 lead before the West battled back to draw within one point, 10-9, and then take the lead to win the game, 16-14. The third game went to the East Coast women, 15-5.

The second match of the day featured FMFPac against the East Coast. The FMFPac women swept both games by identical scores, 15-6.

In the final day of the tournament FMFPac faced off with the West Coast in the first match and won the opener, 15-7. The West Coast women came alive in the second game and blew the FMFPac team off the court, 15-1. Their sudden burst of energy was shortlived however, losing the third game, 15-5. FMFPac's win gave them their fourth consecutive match without a loss in the tournament.

In the final match of the tournament the East faced the West, and the East Coast women came out on top winning both games by scores of 15-2 and 15-12.

An awards ceremony was held for the three teams, and the following persons were named to the All-Marine Volleyball team which will compete in the 1979 Interservice Volleyball Championships to be held May 18-24 at Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio:

FASTER THAN A SPEEDING BULLET — With an intense look of sheer determination, Lloyd Cole, MCAS Audio Visual Support Center, takes the relay baton from the hand of teammate Linda Squires, during the 2d Annual Navy Relief Run at NAS Barbers Point.

Relief run is a Success

By Sgt. Lee Goodson

The 1979 Navy Relief Society kicked off this year's fund drive with the 2d Annual Navy Relief run at Nimitz Beach aboard Barbers Point Naval Air Station Saturday.

There were two races run at the event, a five-mile individual, and a 20-mile relay with five members on each team.

More than 760 runners participated in the two races, including 100 relay teams. Approximately $2100 was collected for Navy Relief.

The race was sponsored by the Honolulu Council of the Navy League. This year's race coordinator was Helicopter Anti-Submarine Squadron (Light) HSL-7 at NAS Barber Point.

The runners worked up a sweat in the 85 degree heat that accompanied the festivities that day. To help cool them off, a local soft drink bottling company donated cases of soft drinks that were quickly absorbed.

The Honolulu Marathon Association donated the use of a large digital clock to help the officials in determining the finishing time of the runners.

The following awards pertain to the five-mile individual races:

CLASS	RUNNER	TIME	PLACE
Open	Luis Borja	26:23	1st
Open	John Irving	27:47	2nd
Open	Joseph Tracey	28:09	3rd
Senior	Jack Cargol	28:22	1st
Senior	Terry Wade	33:51	2nd
Youth	Chris Courter	29:30	1st

A NEAR PERFECT GAME — As one of the representatives of the WestPac team in the 1979 FMFPac Regional Bowling Championships, Mike Boyd shows perfect form as he bowls his way to a 290 game. Although both the WestPac and Hawaii Marine teams submitted six men and one woman each, the stiff competition reduced the field to only three men and one woman each. The winning representatives and their averages are: Mike Boyd-200, Sonny Kincheloe-184, Mike Westerveld-183, and Ruth Wynn-168, from the WestPac team, and Mike Olsen-189, Tom Seelow-188, Lonnie Clark-186, and Donna Dilson-161, of the Hawaii Marine team. Each of these bowlers will continue to the All-Marine Bowling Tournament slated for May 14 to 18 at Cherry Point, N.C.

Sportsnotes

Only a few slots remain in the Competitors Flight of the 1979 Staff NCO Invitational Championship, to be played May 26 to 28, at the Kaneohe Klipper Golf Course. Registration for the 6632-yard, par 72 tournament course must be turned into the starter shack by Saturday, May 19.

This year's Intramural Bowling League season has drawn to a close with the top five teams being MACS-2, SOMS(B), USN(B), H&HS MCAS(A), and HMH-463(A). All totalled there were 24 teams in the league.

Sunny Manguha will be challenging all table tennis buffs during the MCX Table Tennis Demonstration tomorrow, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., in the sporting goods department. Prizes will be awarded to winners.

The Third Annual Downtown Relay, sponsored by the American Civil Liberties Union of Hawaii, will be run Sunday, May 20, at 7:30 a.m. near the Iolani Palace. Teams of five runners each will relay over a 12.5 mile course with a $5 entry fee per runner. The Fifth Annual Big Island Marathon will be run Sunday, July 1, and this advance notice is for the personnel who need to arrange for advance transportation and lodging. The course will be a standard AAU event of 26.3 miles and all runners must have a current AAU number. For more information on both these events, contact LtCol. Jim Hart at 257-2354/2240.

The University of Hawaii Womens Athletics and the Hawaii Women Runners are co-sponsoring a free lecture for all women runners at the Kapahulu Library Monday, at 7:30 p.m. The subject matter for the lecture will be "O.B. GYN Considerations" and will be presented by the Chief of the O.B. GYN Department, Kapiolani Hospital, Dr. Ralph Hale.

Camp Smith came from behind in the losers bracket of the Over 30 Basketball League to become the champions when they edged past the BSSG team 52-50 in the final championship game played Monday.

The K-Ray Jr. Golf Program has begun in association with the Hawaii Youth Sports League for military dependents 17 and younger. Group lessons and instruction will be provided by the Klipper Course golf pro, Terry Young. Intramural play against Jr. Golf Club members and other military bases are scheduled. For more information, call the golf course at 257-2914, or after working hours call 254-3284.

Summer Fun for keikis

Parents searching for just the right thing for their children to enjoy during their summer vacation need search no more. The Family Services Center has instituted a 10-week summer program for ages 6 through 12 called Summer Fun. The program begins June 11 and will end August 17.

From 9 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. each weekday for 10 full weeks with the exception of July 4th, children will be involved in supervised sports activities, games, arts and crafts, and lots more fun. During the course of the day there will be a snack break with juice and crackers. Parents must provide their children with sack lunches.

Registration for the Family Services Summer Fun program is Saturday, May 19. If you cannot register on this day arrangements can be made by calling Family Services at 257-3606. For those who want to register their child for a shorter term because you might be leaving the island before August 17, the cost can be prorated so your child doesn't have to miss out on all the fun.

The total cost for one child is $90 ($1.84 per day). One third of the overall price must be paid on the day of registration, one third on June 2 and the final payment is due June 16. To register your child be at the Family Services gym in the 7-Day Store Complex from 9 a.m. until noon May 19.

Paradise Pastimes

With Mother's Day just around the corner, Sunday as a matter of fact, warm hearts and fond memories begin to flow like the tears of joy on mom's cheek when she receives a letter from her loved one.

If you haven't sent a letter off to mom yet then it is probably too late to get one there before her special day. But it's not too late for a phone call, although the lines off the island may be a little busy.

BEYOND THE GATES: The Hale Koa beach concert series will feature "Pacific Country" in a Mother's Day concert at 1 p.m. The admission is free for this afternoon of sun and fun.

The Air Force Hawaii Youth Festival will be held at Hickam Air Force Base on May 18 from 5 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.; May 19 from 11 to 12:30 a.m.; and May 20 from noon to 9 p.m. There will be a midway of games, rides, food and drinks.

The New York Philharmonic, with Leonard Bernstein conducting, will be performing at the Waikiki Shell on June 18 at 7:30 p.m. Schumann's Symphony No. 1, "Spring" and Shostakovich's Symphony No. 5 will be performed.

The Preservation Hall Jazz Band of New Orleans will be playing at the Waikiki Shell on June 23 at 7:30 p.m. Gates open at 5:30 for picnics.

The public is invited to a special admission-free Armed Forces Day concert, pageant and fireworks display, presented by the Army at Fort DeRussy beach May 19 at 5 p.m.

Starting the concert will be a top soldier band, "Scorpio 79" followed by the award winning 25th "Tropic Lightning" Infantry Division Concert Band joined by the 25-voice Army Community Chorus. The pageant, "A Salute to the Nation," will introduce each state flag and the evening will end with the singing of the National Anthem to the accompaniment of exploding rockets and fireworks.

CHEAP SHOTS: "Da Kine Gong Show" will be held at the City Hall courtyard on May 19 at 8 p.m. Local comedian Andy Bumatai will emcee the show which will feature a slate of amateur novelty acts.

The 3d Annual Superkids games will be held tomorrow at 9 a.m. on the University of Hawaii's Cooke Field. The games are open to boys and girls aged 7-12 and three events will be held: standing long jump, potato sack race and 50-yard dash. All participants will receive a free T-shirt.
