VMFA-235 heads to Iwakuni

Marine Fighter Attack Squadron-235 began its six month deployment to Iwakuni, Japan Sept. 24. The squadron replaces Marine Fighter Attack Squadron-232 personnel who have been stationed at MCAS Iwakuni since April 1980.

VMFA-235's FLIGHT to Iwakuni was made in two relays that took six days, Sept. 24 through

29. Wake Island, approximately 1,500 miles away, was the first stop of the journey the six jets launched Sept. 24.

Maj George Sweeney, squadron executive officer, stated, "Two relays are required since the Phantom F-4 jets have to be refueled before they reach Wake Island by C130 tankers. There are only a limited number of the tankers available for our use."

The second relay left the air station Friday to rejoin the first on Wake Island, where they both received routine maintenance from the advance maintenance party that had arrived a few days earlier.

The next leg of the flight was to Guam. The squadron left Saturday in one formation. According to Sweeney, the journey to Guam is a shorter distance and the tankers could accommodate all nine jets at once.

ONCE THEY REACHED Guam the squadron again broke into two formations. After their maintenance checks, the first relay left Guam Sunday to complete their flight to Iwakuni. The second relay arrived in Iwakuni Monday bringing the six day deployment flight to a close.

VMFA-232 will now repeat the process in reverse to return to Kaneohe Bay.

This deployment marks VMFA-235's third rotation. According to Sweeney, '235 was the first Marine F-4 jet squadron to start the six month deployment periods in Oct. 1977.

"There are approximately six Marines left from that first deployment, myself included," Sweeney added. "This marks the first time 95 percent of the squadron will be in the Far East or Japan."

HARD WORK AND long hours have gone into preparation for the rotation. "Every deployment is a real team effort. The men of the maintenance crews know these planes have to be in top condition to make the long flight across the Pacific.

"Even before the first relay left advance teams flew to Wake Island and Guam to prepare for the arriving jets. Once the jets arrive they work tirelessly to keep the jets in top order for the next lap," Sweeney explained.

When the squadron is together in Iwakuni as a whole unit again, business will continue as usual. "We will conduct normal air to ground runs and other routine training as we did in Kaneohe," Sweeney concluded, "but as always we'll keep an eye for the future. The jets will be maintained in top condition for the return flight."

GOODBYE — Wives and children of Leathernecks from Marine Fighter Attack Squadron-235 wave farewell as one of the squadrons Phantom F-4 jet aircraft leaves Sept. 24 for Wake Island, the first step of the six-day flight. The squadron will be deployed to MCAS Iwakuni, Japan, for six months.

PEOPLE WHO CARE — Col Mel Sautter, commanding officer MCAS Kaneohe Bay, presents his contribution to the Combined Federal Campaign to Sgt Fran Kuznar, one of the many keypersons for Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron. The six-week campaign began Sept. 10 and is designed to assist more than 77 human care agencies.

Commendations

Individuals reap rewards from years of service

Three distinguished individuals were honored at the monthly formal Colors Ceremony Friday in front of the Brigade and Station Headquarters building.

MGySgt Melvin Kwiatkowski, Supported Activities Supply System Chief, and GySgt Peter Vidito received the Navy Commendation Medal and Richard Chapman, associate dean of the Adult Education Program, St. Louis High School, received a Certificate of Commendation from BrigGen W.H. Rice, commanding general of the 1st Marine Brigade.

Kwiatkowski and Vidito were also released from active duty and transferred to the Fleet Marine Corps Reserve after 24 and 20 years of honorable service, respectively.

Reflecting upon his 24 years of service, Kwiatkowski stated, "The one thing I'll really miss about the Marine Corps is the reunion with fellow Leathernecks I haven't seen in awhile. You're bound to run into someone else who's stayed in this long since there aren't that many of us around."

"I received a lot from the Marine Corps including a college education. The one thing I tell my people repeatedly is to get an education while they're in. The reasons are twofold. One, I want the benefit of their education, and secondly, whether they're in or out of the Corps, it'll help them," Kwiatkowski remarked.

"I've been in the Marine Corps 24 years, and to this day my most vivid memory is that seemingly never-ending bus ride from Yamacee S.C. to Parris Island. It was about midnight and all I could see out the bus window was the trees with their hanging vines. I thought that ride would never come to a halt," Kwiatkowski reminisced.

Sixteen years of his career in the Corps was spent as a musician, playing bass. "My mother thought I was on a Marine Corps paid vacation since my first few duty stations were in nice areas. I was stationed in places like the air stations in Miami, Hawaii, Quantico, Va., and then Hawaii once again. I've had a well rounded career," Kwiatkowski concluded.

As Vidito reminisced about his years in service he stated, "My career has kind of been vanilla. No high or low points, just nice."

"I'll remember the Corps fondly, but you can't look back. I now own a restaurant in Kailua and plan to live in Hawaii with my wife Ruth and son, Pete Jr.," Vidito said.

Senior Medical Officer
NRMCMC, Kaneohe Bay

EDITOR'S NOTE: This article is the second in a four-part series designed to inform the 19,000 patients treated at the Naval Regional Medical Clinic, Branch Clinic MCAS, Kaneohe Bay on quality health care and the ways patrons can help improve the services.

Over the years, as the military operational tempo has increased, the number of medical personnel has decreased for several reasons. As mentioned in part one, our first allegiance is to the fighting forces. Retention is not nearly what we would desire. Medical manpower shortages are not peculiar to MCAS Kaneohe Bay, but are Navy-wide; indeed, they are tri-service wide. Although the type of shortage varies (medical officers, nurses, hospital corpsmen, etc.) the shortages persist in one field or another. Our present shortage is hospital corps personnel.

Our branch clinic has a dual staffing mix which employs both garrison 1st Marine Brigade and Naval Regional Medical Clinic, Pearl Harbor resources. Our manpower authorization provides for only 32 hospital corps personnel from NRMCMC supplemented by 45 from the 1st Marine Brigade by virtue of an agreement.

For more than two years we have had a shortfall in either medical officers or hospital corps personnel. Recognizing the progressive inability of the 1st Marine Brigade to provide its share of personnel, NRMCMC Pearl Harbor has augmented us over and above our manpower authorization of 32 people by assigning additional corpsmen as well as several civil service positions.

To give credit where due, I must mention that our Red Cross volunteers have done a smashing job in helping us to live with our losses. In spite of recurring personnel problems, however, a brave point of fact is that the number of persons we have cared for has hardly diminished. In a word, because of their dedica-minimum of 66 hours a week: hardly a useful notion to you, our patients, the corpsmen do more each day. There is no one in the clinic who knows what a 40-hour work week is like. In the recent past our corps personnel have averaged a recruiting or retention tool.

Although we're concerned primarily with the care of the sick and injured, without regard to established priorities, there are other duties with which we are tasked and must, by regulations, perform. Examples are: medical boards; physical exams required for various reasons such as annual flight, program application, reenlistment, pre-placement, release from active duty, ordnance driver and industrial health; involvement in industrial hazard programs including conservation, sight conservation, immunization, tuberculosis screening, asbestosis and a whole range of other industrial hazards; preventive medicine functions such as clubs and water quality monitoring and identification of potential health hazards.

In an effort to offset projected losses and maximize remaining resources throughout Oahu, Pearl Harbor

Clinic opened an extended primary care clinic which is available to all active duty and retired personnel and their dependents. The hours of the clinic are: Monday through Friday, 5:30 to 10 p.m. and Saturday, Sunday and holidays: 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

"Operation Long Life" was established and is held one Saturday each month at each branch clinic. Staffed by senior nurses, our invaluable Red Cross volunteers and medical officers of the rank of O-6, this clinic provides gynecological cancer screening services for those who are unable to keep appointments during the week because they must work.

Finally, a booklet titled, "Medical Advice for Everyday Use" was resurrected, modified and published in an effort to better educate our patients to determine the problems that should or should not have to come to the clinic, and measures the patient can perform at home. As an aid, you may pick up a copy in the clinic.

Through the booklet many of the "worried well" will be educated to the point that they are able to better cope with most minor problems rather than coming to the clinic. This will allow us more time to deal with those with more serious medical problems.

Fire Prevention Week emphasizes safety

by Sgt Dennis Litalien

"Early detection — your best fire protection" is the theme for the annual observance of Fire Prevention Week in Hawaii Oct. 5 through 11.

This year marks the 60th anniversary of Fire Prevention Week and gives national emphasis to the importance of practicing fire prevention methods year round.

THE WEEK'S statewide activities begin a day early Saturday at Diamond Head Crater with a 9:30 a.m. fire safety demonstration. The event is free, open to the public and features various city, county, state and military firefighting units. The highlight of the day should be the testing of a joint firefighting effort involving a simulated plane crash. There are also free refreshments and balloons for the keiki.

Mokapu Elementary School at MCAS Kaneohe Bay will have a firefighting and prevention display Monday. The program begins at 9:30 a.m. and features a hook and ladder truck from the Honolulu Fire Department's Company 18 in Kailua and two pumper trucks from the air station's Federal Consolidated Fire Department, Station Eight.

Among the statewide school activities throughout the week are test fire drills and a fire safety poster contest.

THE HONOLULU

Fire Department estimates that 90 percent of Hawaii's working force is unfamiliar with fire evacuation procedures for the buildings in which they work. This also applies to military personnel with their high turnover rate which brings in new people who have not participated in evacuation drills in their work sections.

Carelessness and inattention to fire precautions have been the cause of many disasters, one of which coincides with this week's observance.

WHEN THE GREAT

Chicago Fire erupted Oct. 8, 1871, 250 lives were lost before the raging inferno was brought under control. More than $200 million in damage was suffered by the "Windy City." All this havoc has been attributed to a cow that knocked over a lamp, setting a barn ablaze and subsequently a large sector of the city.

Fire Prevention Week is a reminder to all families to review their living habits in order to improve fire safety in their homes. Places of business should also use the week as an opportunity to survey their operations for potential danger areas.

Street Scoop

What question would you like to see addressed in Street Scoop?

1st Lt. Andy Hutchison, 3d Marines adjutant: "Do Marines feel the Physical Fitness Test adequately measures their physical strength and fitness. If not, why?"

Cpl. Don Watson, H&HS: "I would ask people what they think of the military pay system and if they think they are getting paid swiftly and accurately."

Doris Barlett, dependent: "How do people feel about the new check cashing policies at the 7-Day Store?"

Sgt. Perry Ezell, H&S, 3/3: "Do people feel the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance adequately covers them, considering the increasing inflation rate?"

Sgt. Dennis Mottishaw, H&HS: "People should be asked what they think of the fact that the Station Swimming Pool has been closed for almost a year."

NCOs shoulder responsibility

"Any officer can get by on his sergeants. To be a sergeant you have to know your stuff. I'd rather be an outstanding sergeant than just another officer."

—GySgt Daniel Daly

Impossible, an outrage, inefficient, and unheard of. That's what the Marine Corps would be without noncommissioned officers. NCOs are the backbone of the Corps. Try to imagine the Marine Corps without them.

What a nightmare!

WITHOUT NCOs the Corps would probably be a poorly-trained, ragtag, motley mob rather than the strongest, most versatile and elite fighting force in the world. Of all the services, the Corps has always had the lowest ratio of commissioned officers to enlisted strength, and that's simply because the Corps tasks its NCOs with greater challenges than those of other services.

The best way for a military organization to operate with fewer officers is to have top-notch NCOs, and the Corps can justifiably boast of having the cream of the crop.

ALTHOUGH WARS are nothing new to history, noncommissioned officers are as old as war itself. The Book of Deuteronomy speaks of "captains of fifties and captains over tens" among the forces of Moses. The Roman legion was commanded by a centurion, who was similar to a gunnery sergeant.

After Rome fell, there weren't any organized military forces. The first elements of military organization appeared during the 14th century, and with it emerged the noncommissioned officer.

The first military units consisted primarily of French, Swiss and Italian mercenaries who served under the flag of the state that fed and paid them. It was in these units that the ranks of corporal and sergeant came into being. Sergeant goes back as far as 1425.

By 1778 Prussian advisor Baron von Steuben attempted to mold the Continental Army into a professional force. He wrote, in part, the following regulation for the order and discipline of the troops of the United States:

THE CHOICE of noncommissioned officers is a subject of the greatest importance. The order and the discipline depends so much on their behavior. Honesty, sobriety and a remarkable attention to every point of duty, with a neatness in their dress, are indispensable requisites; a spirit to command respect and obedience from the men, an expertise in performing every part of the exercise and an ability to teach it are also absolutely necessary.

Von Steuben's attributes for a noncommissioned officer can be interpreted as character, attention to duty, loyalty, professional skill, command presence and ability to instruct. These characteristics are as valid today as they were at Valley Forge.

Noncommissioned officers exist in the military for five main purposes: to decentralize command authority in an orderly structure down to the smallest element in an organization; to provide links between officers and the troops; to provide a senior enlisted advisor — a first sergeant, a platoon sergeant, or a sergeant major — for each commander; and to afford avenues for advancement whereby enlisted personnel may realize their full potential as leaders. Not every Marine can become a general, but with dedication and a good attitude every Marine can win chevrons and, in so doing, demonstrate that the road to the top is always open.

THE NCO'S purpose is to recognize and reward outstanding technical and military skills, assisting a commander in leading, training and taking care of his Marines. As Reginald Hargreaves, a veteran British officer, wrote: "The NCO exists to teach the soldier the details of his business and to cushion those contacts between officer and man which would lead to disillusionment on both sides."

It's a well-known fact that the Corps' NCOs fulfill these purposes, and are different from NCOs of other services. The reasons for the distinctions are as varied as the differences themselves.

That difference in Corps leadership has been exemplified many times by legendary Marine NCOs such as Hayes, Quick, Diamond, Janson, Schriver, Basilone and Wilson.

Several outstanding Marine officers were once NCOs before commissioning. Among them were names like Puller, Cukela, Crowe, Hanneken, Berkeley, and Thomas, who was the last Marine in Corps history to rise from private to full general while on active duty.

WHEN MILITARY history is recorded, the generals who won battles will always be identified; but as the preceding names testify, Corps history has always identified and immortalized the NCOs who made victory possible.

The world changes for a Marine promoted into the NCO ranks. Upon appointment, he or she receives a certificate of appointment which is the basis of authority, rank, status and responsibilities. The words printed on the warrant sum up the reasons the Corps expects its NCOs to be the best.

The keywords in the new status are: "Special, trust and confidence." This phrase means that the recipient's commanding officer and the Marine Corps has specifically chosen this Marine for the rank in question.

The warrant also directs the appointee to "carefully and diligently discharge the duties of the grade to which appointed by doing and performing all manner of things thereunto pertaining."

Simply put, this tasks the Marine NCO to do the best job possible within the scope of the specified grade.

A Marine NCO's warrant also establishes authority over all seamen and Marines of lower rank. In the words of the certificate they must, "render obedience to appropriate orders."

Contrary to some belief, an NCO's authority is not confined to a squad, platoon or company. As far as junior ranks are concerned, a Marine NCO is the Marine Corps.

Living in an NCO's world is indeed an honor, and to keep the privilege Marine NCOs must professionally accept and meet the responsibility of molding the Corps into a smooth-running, precise piece of machinery.

The Corps recognizes its NCOs as the foundation upon which it is built. NCOs are entrusted with maintaining the Corps ideology, and grooming today's junior Marines to become tomorrow's leaders.

My Turn

School Physicals

Each August our Branch Clinic's dedicated medical personnel devote three days to a School Physical Examination Program in an effort to help get our children ready to return to school.

This effort keeps a tremendous number of dollars in the pockets of each of our military families since these physicals are not covered by CHAMPUS. Because of your cooperation, the clinic was allowed to devote the majority of its personnel to physical exams while minimizing services in other areas.

The program has been exceedingly productive and increasingly popular. In comparing data from previous three-day programs we noted the following:

	1978	1979	1980
Number of School physicals completed	777	911	937
Average time for completion	One hour	30 mins.	20-25 mins.
Estimated costs if out of pocket*	$50,000	$68,000	$79,800

*Costs based on current pediatric fees and include immunizations preparatory to the physical exam.

Throughout the period of the program, acutely ill patients were seen in the Emergency Room and figures, available only for 1979 and 1980, were similar. In 1979, 227 patients were seen and the average waiting time was 15 minutes. In 1980, 228 patients were seen and the average waiting time was 10 minutes.

A very special thanks must go to the Red Cross Volunteers who helped to keep the program moving. Their splendid assistance and dedication was invaluable.

Once again the cooperation, understanding and dedicated efforts of all concerned have contributed significantly to enhancing the quality of life for all of us here at MCAS Kaneohe Bay. Mahalo nui loa!

Kindness converts sinners

by Chaplain John Newton

Happiness and kindness go hand-in-hand. You simply can't separate them. The double reward of kind words and actions is the happiness they bring to others and the happiness they bring to ourselves. The very process of speaking kind words brings a happiness all its own. In the same way, there is a special glow that comes over us when we perform an act of kindness toward others.

On the other hand, the most frequent cause of unhappiness consists of the selfish and unkind words and actions of men toward one another.

A story is told that Abraham Lincoln was walking down the street one day with his two small sons, when the boys started fighting. "What's the trouble with your boys, Mr. Lincoln?" a passer-by inquired.

"The same thing that is wrong with the rest of the world," was Lincoln's reply. "I've got three walnuts and each boy wants two!"

This simple story reminds us that the bigger problems in the world have their roots in the unkindness and selfishness of men toward one another. By the same token, the world can be changed for the better insofar as each person does his part to bring kindness and love into every aspect of human affairs.

Kindness is contagious. One kind action leads to another. If we show kindness toward someone, he responds with kindness. This is the most important effect of kindness upon others — it makes them kind themselves. Kindness has converted more sinners than zeal, eloquence or learning. In fact, these have never converted anyone without kindness.

Prevention: Neglect and ineffective escape routes fan potential fire disasters in the home

By Sgt Dennis Litalien

National Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 5 through 11, is designed to call attention to the need for identifying and eliminating potential fire hazards.

Statistics from the National Fire Protection Association show that eight of every 10 major fires occur in the home. Late detection of these fires contributed significantly to heavy losses in lives and property. It has been estimated that 80 percent of all multi-death home fires occur between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m., when most people are asleep.

ADDITIONAL figures state that of all building fires occurring in this country, 16 percent are the result of heating and cooking, 16 percent are electrical in nature, 12 percent are due to smoking and matches, and seven percent are attributed to flammable liquids.

These statistics are indeed thought provoking, but what can we do to make our homes safer? Officials at the Federal Consolidated Fire Department at MCAS Kaneohe Bay offer the following suggestions:

- Discard items such as oily rags, old paint, unsafe containers for gasoline, old newspapers, rubbish, wood scraps, old tires, and unused clothing, boxes or bags.
- Keep matches away from children.
- Close matchbook covers before striking, being careful to light matches and smoking materials away from flammables, explosives, or fumes that might ignite.

- Extinguish matches and any lighted objects in deep-well ashtrays or similar non-flammable receptacles.
- Never throw the contents of an ashtray into regular rubbish containers. The best place to dispose of them is to flush them down the commode.

- Close the doors to all bedrooms when going to bed at night. This will keep fire out of the room long enough to allow escape through a window if departure through a door is impossible.

- Don't leave young children alone.
- Don't smoke in bed.

- Inspect appliances such as stoves and heaters for unsafe operating conditions.
- Hold family fire drills so everyone knows all exit routes.

- Have an escape plan which allows everyone two ways out of the house—a normal exit and an alternate.
- While every housing unit on the air station has a smoke detector an added safeguard might be considered, such as fire extinguishers.

If bedroom windows are too high to safely jump from, perhaps rope or chain escape ladder to keep at the window of each bedroom would be a wise purchase.

HERE ARE some other common sense suggestions that will help a person escape if a fire does occur:

- Always, before opening a door with a fire in the house, feel the door. If it is hot, keep it closed.

- If you must go through a smoke-filled room, crawl on hands and knees with head low to avoid breathing smoke.
- Have your family agree on a safe place to meet outside the home so you can count heads to make sure everyone is safe.

- When out, stay out. Countless people have been burned to death when they went back into a building after getting out safely.

- Don't call the fire department from a burning building. Get out safely, then telephone from a neighbor's home or use an alarm box.

AIR STATION residents are reminded that if a fire starts, do not call the 911 number used by the civilian community. This just wastes precious minutes at a time when every second may count. For fires on base dial 471-7117.

Awareness of fire prevention safety in the home can minimize the chance of fire and make the difference between life and death if one does strike. Remember, a little time spent on preventive measures and selecting escape routes can make all the difference, but the best rule is to never give fire an opportunity to start.

Chaplain sparks hope on horizon

by Sgt Chuck Henry

ABOARD THE USS NEW ORLEANS, AT SEA, SEPT. 17 — Slipping his white robe over jungle-camouflaged shirt and trousers, polished combat boots showing beneath, the lanky 35-year-old Roman Catholic priest creates an unusual fashion combination.

The look doesn't seem odd at all though, to the 20 or so Marines and sailors of the 31st Marine Amphibious Unit and crew of this Amphibious Squadron One ship who wait patiently in the ship's library. It's 11:30 a.m. and time for the Rev. George Ridick to preside over daily mass. What makes this celebration of the mass different from any other is that it's taking place in the Indian Ocean.

A staff officer with the 31st Marine Amphibious Unit, Ridick is a lieutenant in the Navy's chaplain corps, assigned to look after the religious interests of not only Catholic, but other denominational groups among the unit's 1,800 men. A select number of the Navy's 1,850 chaplains are assigned duty with Marine units. According to the chaplain, the work is both "fulfilling and fun."

Ridick grew up in the conservative, industrial and college town of Worcester, Mass., doing well both academically and athletically. For a brief time after graduating from high school, he worked with the Massachusetts Department of Public Works.

The chaplain went on to get a Bachelor's degree from his hometown's Assumption College, then studied at St. Mary's Seminary in Baltimore, Md., graduating in 1973. He was ordained for service with the Worcester Diocese and spent the following three years in parish ministry there.

IN 1976, Ridick volunteered for the chaplaincy, requesting the approval of diocesan authorities. Due to an overall shortage of individuals going into the priesthood, church officials are sometimes reluctant to assign priests outside of their parish. However, Ridick's strong desire to work with service people convinced them to allow the assignment.

He was commissioned a lieutenant junior grade in the Navy and reported to Newport, R.I. for an eight-week military indoctrination.

"I really made some lasting friendships during those first weeks in the service," remarks Ridick. "Here we were, a group of young priests, ministers and rabbis trying to get used to uniforms, paperwork, the rank structure... It was the same culture shock everyone goes through when they're first put in the military environment. Even though we represented different religious organizations, our group developed a real fraternal feeling. We were all there for the same purpose and had more in common than would separate us."

IN DECEMBER of 1976, the chaplain, along with another priest with whom he had been through orientation school, reported to Naval Station Guam to begin his chaplaincy. Working with soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines stationed on

Consumers Choice

EDITOR'S NOTE: Consumer's Choice is designed to bring various aspects of a subject to the consumer's attention. This article focuses on National Consumer Education Week, Oct. 5 through 11, and what members of this command can do to take an active part in the event.

All Americans are consumers in one form or another. Because of the nature of our complicated government and economic necessities from day to day, every citizen should seek skills to confidently take part in being a smart consumer. Everyone should strive to make knowledgeable decisions about how and where his money is spent.

President Jimmy Carter proclaimed the week of Oct. 5 through 11 "National Consumer Education Week," designed to focus a wide scale of attention to the innumerable benefits of consumer education.

MCAS Kaneohe Bay consumers can take advantage of this week by exploring the excellent programs available, and by working with them to expand and improve consumer awareness. For starters, groups on the air station may want to coordinate with the school activities to help educate children on consumer do's and don'ts.

NCEW can also be a perfect time to bring issues of definite consumer interest to public attention.

Marine Corps Exchange stores and the Station Commissary Store could conduct price and quality surveys on goods and services within their stores. If they're already doing so, now is the time for special emphasis.

He'll put you in your place.

Because wherever that place is, your Career Planner is the person to help you find it.

You've got a lot to look forward to.

Command workshops could also be organized to focus on topical issues, such as energy conservation, beneficial ways of utilizing the new pay raise, getting credit and making worthy long-term investments.

Consumer education, in or out of the classroom, can help many buyers develop skillful spending habits by learning to be more attentive shoppers, understand more about marketplace functions, and develop participatory skills in government and local financial decision making.

The president point ed out in his National Consumer Week address, "America's economy is the largest in the history of the world. Every citizen can benefit from knowing more about consumer laws, rights, and avenues of redress.

"Many people, including the young and elderly, need help in learning about buying skills, financial management, resource conservation methods, and self-help or alternate solutions to economic restraints."

The president concluded, "Schools, governments, consumer organizations, labor unions and business can all play a role in meeting the challenge. I count upon each sector of these mentioned to examine closely how individually and collectively, they can support Consumer Education Week."

Educated consumers are the best kind. Use the week to highlight the current activities and gain support for new programs. Get involved with your money and your future. Spread the word on National Consumer Education Week.

SAFE!—The umpire signals safe as a '262 runner crosses home plate and the 2/3 catcher searches for the ball during round two of the wives' softball tournament at MCAS Kaneohe Bay's Riesel Field Sunday. '262 defeated 2/3 14-8 to capture their second straight win.

Softball game reveals women's sportsmanship

by Sgt Pepper Davis

Flashback: Several wives of Marines deployed with 2d Battalion, 3d Marines and Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron-262 held their own softball tournament July 20, to the delight of many fans. Two-sixty-two won the first round 20-11, and both teams eagerly awaited the next showdown.

Round two of that tournament was played Sunday at Riesel Field and once again, '262 walked away as winners with a score of 14-8. But, as in the first game, there wasn't a need for the losers to hold their heads down because the women played with the hearts of champions.

HMM-262 wasted no time establishing a lead over their opponents as five runners crossed the plate. 2/3 popped-up a little in the second inning to cop a run, but '262 added three more to their count to lead 7-1.

In the top of the third, a 2/3 home run inched them closer as '262 made fewer mistakes and exhibited a fraction more aggressiveness.

The fourth inning brought two more runs for 2/3, but also dropped off three at '262's doorstep.

Blazing bats and quick reactions were 2/3's keys to their offense in the fifth as they scored four runs, however '262 came to bat and matched runs with their opponents to move into the fifth inning 14-8.

If 2/3 wanted to stay in contention they had to move now. '262, realizing the threat, buckled down on defense to hold 2/3 motionless for the duration of the contest. The game ended with '262 on top, 14-8.

Fun, excitement and togetherness were the real winners in the wives tournament. That was the whole intent. As evidenced by the spirit and enthusiasm exhibited by the players, the mission was more than accomplished.

Marines thwart Army

by Sgt Pepper Davis

"We're number one! We're number one! We're number one!" That chant was heard throughout the area surrounding MCAS Kaneohe Bay's Pop Warner football field Saturday as the Hawaii Marine tackle football team celebrated a 32-30 victory over the Army's 2d Brigade gridiron squad. The victory made them undefeated in four games.

Saturday was a duplication of the Marines' opening day, with warm temperatures, a slight breeze and bleachers filled with fans.

The Leathernecks entered the contest sporting a two-win, no loss and one-tie record. 2d Brigade, which captured the league crown last season, boasted a modest no-win, two losses and no ties.

The Army won the toss and elected to receive. Within two minutes they copped a touchdown. The two-point conversion was good, and last year's champs led 8-0. But the Marines had four downs to show their stuff, too.

On the first play from scrimmage, Leatherneck quarterback Cpl Rushton Gunter spotted SSgt Joe "Speedy" Blackburn streaking up the middle and laid a perfect pass in his hand for a 64-yard touchdown run. A few plays later LCpl Albert Wiley bulled across the goal line for six points. The extra point attempt failed.

Second Brigade picked up another TD before the first quarter expired and assumed a 16-14 advantage. In the second, a 25-yard pass from LCpl Ray Radarte to Blackburn was good for another Marine score. The two-point conversion was good and Kaneohe widened the gap 20-16.

On the kick-off, an Army runner danced his way around the Marine defenders for an 85-yard return, but an offensive clipping penalty nullified the score. The Marines forced a fumble on the next play, and took control on the one. Quarterback Radarte sneaked through the defense for a tally to 26-16.

The third quarter came and went with little fanfare on the Marine side of the house, but 2d Brigade picked up steam and added to their score.

The fourth quarter, the do-or die period for both teams, was the turning point for 2d Brigade as they stacked up a 30-26 lead over Kaneohe.

It seemed as if the Marines' momentum had abandoned them and defected to the Army side.

With minutes left in the game, Wiley, on a pitch-out from Radarte, turned a corner and headed full steam up the sideline for a 72-yard scoring run.

Wiley's sprint put the Marines on top 32-30, and the fired-up Marine defense held their ground and thwarted Army scoring attempts to destroy their undefeated streak.

the South-sea island, he kept busy.

"In Guam we dealt with people in quite a variety of situations. Not only were all of the services represented, but also a number of different fields, from submarines to barracks Marines. Each of these jobs had its own unique stresses and in our counseling sessions we tried to help men and women cope with problems and the loneliness sometimes felt in such duties," remembers Ridick.

AFTER THE 16-month tour ("Unaccompanied," he quips)

the priest was slated for transfer to Parris Island, S.C., but a Navy-wide shortage of Catholic chaplains required a reshuffling of orders and he was assigned to the Naval Training Center at Great Lakes, Ill. For nearly two years he served as the only Catholic priest working with recruits going through "boot camp" at the center.

"It was challenging, to say the least," he recalls. "During peak summer months there would be between eight and ten thousand recruits aboard, of which usually one quarter were Catholic.

"WHEN THE guys would enter the world of the military, sometimes the only thing they would find recognizable from their civilian lives would be a priest or minister. Most of the individual ministering I did went beyond denomination and was basically encouraging guys and helping them adjust to the new experience. With a 30 percent change in recruits every week, you were always dealing with different groups at mass, but because of their situation, those who came each week were always receptive."

March of 1980 found Ridick assigned to MCAS Iwakuni, Japan for duty as Marine Aircraft Group chaplain. Four months later the 31st Marine Amphibious Unit prepared for deployment to the Indian Ocean and the chaplain, along with his assistant, Cpl Mark Jones, 21, of Baden, Pa., joined them.

The good-natured Ridick has earned a reputation among Marines and sailors alike as "the chaplain you always see" in berthing, on the mess deck, jogging with troops on the flight deck, visiting those in the brig and dispensary, and "being there" when needed. He calls it a "ministry of presence."

"BEING A chaplain is unlike other service fields, even medicine," explains Ridick. "For someone to bring their very intimate problem to you, you've got to be a familiar face."

"I've always enjoyed my service with the Marines in that I'm always allowed access to the troops," he continues. The priest takes advantage of the access and also participates in special service activities alongside Marines and sailors.

His day-to-day responsibilities include saying daily mass and conducting confession, bible studies and rap sessions. He also handles messages from the American Red Cross concerning individual's family affairs, coordinates the activities of Catholic laymen leading mass on ships without priests and counsels young men thinking about marriage. Another activity he has participated in, exemplifying the ecumenical character of his staff position, is securing the elements needed for celebration of upcoming Jewish holy days by Jewish Marines and sailors.

"ATTENDING mass at lunchtime every day has been what's kept me going during this deployment," comments LCpl Mark Hammer, 21, of Bozeman, Mont., a Marine from Battalion Landing Team 2/3, the 31st Marine Amphibious Unit's ground combat component. "For me, the Mass serves as a break in hectic days when I have some time to stop and sort out my thoughts. Father Ridick has been a real boost to morale out here. He comes across like a teacher, straightforward and logical, someone you can really learn from. He's very approachable, the kind of guy who would sit and listen to your problems even after taps. I know, because he's done it for me."

In his easy-going New England accent, Ridick explains that he thinks most people are "trying to make something of their lives. They're looking for things like purpose, pride and happiness.

"I'M HOPING to help these guys integrate into their lives a spiritual dimension that goes beyond here and now so that even under the gloomiest conditions there can be a spark of hope on the horizon."

For many Marines and sailors with the Indian Ocean-deployed 31st Marine Amphibious Unit, the spark of hope on the horizon might be the Rev. George Ridick being lowered by harness from a helicopter to celebrate mass on their ship.
