Grime and guts glorify grunts

by Sgt Lamar Johnson

They are called "Uncle Sam's mountain climbers," "grunts," "trees," and a few other names. But across the nation and throughout the world they are known specifically as United States Marines.

These names are all fitting to a Marine's true style of living. When push comes to shove, the Marine Corps has proven itself time and time again. A battle fought by Marines is a battle won.

WHAT MAKES THE grunt's style unique? His association with dust, dirt and mud, as well as the ability to defend himself and his country when the need arises.

Grunts are "dirt Marines." They sit on dirt, walk on it, climb up it, sleep on it, dig in it, live in it, and if the winds are high, they'll even take a little of it in their chow.

Lance Corporal Victor Bransome, Dragon Platoon, Weapons Company, 2d Battalion, 3d Marines describes the infantryman's dream. "I love going to the field and being gungy. It's my job and it's something that has to be done. I don't mind getting out in the dirt or mud. Nor do I mind eating C-rations. You just gotta love it, and I can't get enough of it."

NEXT TO HIS RIFLE, dirt is a grunt's best friend. It enhances his camouflage techniques when he has to take cover, or rub some of it on his face to blend with the environment. According to Lance Corporal Ralph Veltre, also of 2/3 Weapons Company, "I like putting myself to the test against the elements of the natural environment. Being able to successfully accomplish the mission in weather conditions that prevail over us at any given moment is more motivating in the field because that's what our job is all about."

Although it isn't a permanent part of him, a Marine wearing dirt isn't anything unusual. It is a part of the uniform he wears while in the field. Bransome explained, "Working in the field is when you actually earn your pay as a Marine — under the blue skies breathing fresh air. This is the main reason I don't mind being called a grunt. In fact, I may nickname my first born son 'Grunt,'" he said laughingly.

THERE IS NO WAY Marines expect to live in a fighting hole, or shelter tent, or even march through mud, dust or on pavement and not expect to get some of the land for which they are willing to fight on their boots.

Lance Corporal Bernard Livingston, G Company 2/3 has mixed feelings about living the life of an infantryman. He said, "Sure garrison life is more to my preference. However, on some occasions if we are going to do some really aggressive activities and get right down to the real nitty-gritty, that's worth a trip to the field. It breaks up the monotony of garrison living."

In garrison, it's a payday-to-payday world for the majority of Marines today. They go out, party hard, live it up and just have a good time, until the money runs out. Then they borrow from each other what's left to go around since they are all somewhat related.

WHEN THE MONEY is gone and there are still two days left before payday, nothing is left for the Marine to do except complain about those things he loves most.

In a Marine's book of favorites, most will agree that field days and haircuts are the pits. Veltre gives reasons for his feelings on the issue.

"I think we should be able to grow our hair at least within Army or Navy standards. The fact remains that you can always distinguish a military man simply by looking at his haircut, whether it's Army, Navy or Marine Corps. "In addition, I'm really glad that we have to field day only once a week because, of all the things we do as Marines, that's really a drag."

ON THE OTHER HAND, favorite Marine Corps pastimes include liberty or leave, hot chow and a heat tab, and plenty of practice time in the field.

Some think of him as half crazy, while others don't even try to understand him. He may hold any specialty the Marine Corps has to offer but he still falls under the basic category of Marine rifleman. He is the guy all the rest will follow closely when crossing the beach or swinging through the jungle. Some call him the best, but he is best known as Marine.

1st Marine Brigade calculates 80 years of history

As the 1st Marine Brigade prepares to celebrate its anniversary as the Marine Corps' unique collocated air/ground team, we pause to reminisce on the history of the brigade, how it began and how it has grown.

ITS MOST RECENT inception began in a windswept area called Kaneohe Bay on the island of Oahu, Territory of Hawaii Jan. 19, 1953. It was on this day the 1st Provisional Marine Air-Ground Task Force was activated but other Marine Corps units have borne the title of 1st Brigade, 1st Marine Brigade or 1st Provisional Brigade, so the brigade goes back further in history.

All of these units, formed between Jan. 1, 1901, and Jan. 7, 1950, were temporary. They were formed as expeditionary forces to serve a specific mission. Once this mission was accomplished the units were either redesignated or disbanded. While the present 1st Marine Brigade can only claim continuous lineage and honors to the formation of the 1st Provisional Marine Air-Ground Task in 1958, the brigade still celebrates its birth with the activation of the original 1st Marine Brigade Jan. 1, 1901.

WITH AIRCRAFT supplied by Marine Aircraft Group-13 and ground units from the 3d Marine Division, the task force was formed to be ready to respond to any emergency or contingency in the Pacific area. Units were originally rotated between Hawaii and the Mainland every six months.

The first ground unit to be actually assigned to the task force was 3d Battalion, 3d Marines (Rein). The rest of the regiment replaced 3d Battalion in July 1953, but departed Hawaii for Japan the following month.

Oct. 1953 saw the arrival of the 1st Provisional Reconnaissance Group at Kaneohe Bay. As the ground component of the task force, the Group consisted of a recon company reinforced by a 75mm pack howitzer battery, a reinforced engineer platoon, an amphibian tractor platoon and other combat support units from Force Troops, Fleet Marine Force, Pacific. Training in amphibious assault and vertical envelopment tactics were stressed by the Group.

THE 4TH MARINES (Rein) relocated from Japan to Hawaii in Jan. 1955 to serve as the ground echelon of the task force. In July of that year ground units previously on a six month rotation schedule were now permanently stationed at Kaneohe Bay.

Designation as the 1st Marine Brigade, Fleet Marine Force, came May 1, 1956. This air-ground team now consisted of the 4th Marines and MAG-13 along with fire support and logistical support including units of artillery, service, anti-tank, reconnaissance, motor transport, engineers, and amphibious vehicles.

OVER THE NEXT few years the brigade took part in training maneuvers in California, Taiwan, the Philippines and other areas. One of the training exercises, Operation Green Light in March-June 1961, demonstrated the brigade's versatility.

Units from the brigade were deployed to Okinawa and from there to the Republic of Vietnam in early 1965 as part of the increase of American involvement in Vietnam.

With the 4th Marines involved with operations in Vietnam, 1st Battalion, 5th Marines, became the ground element of the brigade. Dec. 1965 marked the first return of a former brigade unit to its parent command with the Hawaii arrival of All-Weather Fighter Squadron-212.

IN FEB. 1966 1st Battalion, 5th Marines, detached and deployed to Vietnam, leaving the brigade without a ground element. Therefore, on June 1, 1966, 1st Battalion, 27th Marines, was activated and attached to the 1st Marine Brigade.

The brigade was again without a ground element in Jan. 1968 when 1st Battalion, 27th Marines was ordered to Vietnam to assist the Allied forces in quelling the Communist "Tet" offensive. In Sept. 1968, as the heavier fighting slowed, 1/27 was redeployed to Hawaii and reattached to the brigade. Since that time the unique air-ground team of the 1st Marine Brigade has remained intact for deployment as a combat ready, combined arms organization.

Marine Aircraft Group-24, from MCAS Cherry Point, N.C., became a part of the brigade team during April 1968. Then Dec. 2, 1969, 1/27 retired its colors, and was redesignated as 1st Battalion (Rein), 3d Marines.

THROUGHOUT 1970 the brigade increased in strength. In March, A Company, 9th Engineer Battalion, arrived from Vietnam. The Provisional Service Battalion was activated June 30 and added to the brigade's logistic and maintenance capabilities.

A third Phantom-equipped fighter attack squadron joined the brigade team Sept 17 when VMFA-122 arrived from Vietnam.

The MAG received its first helicopter squadrons since 1965, as Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron-262 arrived May 17, 1971, followed by Marine Heavy Helicopter Squadron 463 May 30.

The year 1971 saw the brigade's continued growth. On April 18 the colors of the 1st Radio Battalion were officially presented to the brigade. The third Engineer Battalion was born May 20 as the colors of the 9th Engineer Battalion were retired. June 4th marked the joining of 1st Battalion, 12th Marines, to the brigade and June 9 the 3d Marine Regiment presented its colors to the brigade.

TWO OF THE BRIGADE'S three Phantom squadrons were ordered to the Western Pacific in April 1972 to help the South Vietnamese. While VMFA-122 stopped at Iwakuni, Japan, VMFA-212 continued on to DaNang, South Vietnam. From there, VMFA-212 began flying combat missions within a few hours after their arrival.

Both squadrons had returned home to Kaneohe Bay by the fall of 1972. It was about this time that HMH-463 went to the coastal waters of North Vietnam to participate in the mine clearing operation "End Sweep." After completing this operation, HMH-463 returned to Hawaii in Aug. 1973.

The brigade lost one of its F-4 Phantom jet squadrons in 1974. VMFA-122 retired its colors and returned to the Mainland leaving behind two fixed-wing outfits, VMFA-235 and VMFA-212.

THINGS REMAINED fairly stable for the brigade until March 1975. It was then that HMH-463 was ordered to return to Southeast Asia. The squadron of CH-53 Sea Stallion helicopters soon found themselves flying from carriers to evacuate Americans from Cambodia as part of Operation "Eagle Pull."

With "Eagle Pull" barely in the history books, HMH-463 was again in action air-lifting American and Vietnamese citizens from the falling Vietnamese capitol of Saigon. During the 20 hours of Operation "Frequent Wind," 463 was responsible for evacuating more than 2,000 refugees.

At about the same time, 1st Battalion, 3d Marines, deployed to Okinawa as part of a back-up force to the 3d Marine Division in case of a need for amphibious missions in Southeast Asia. Although the battalion trained hard in the Western Pacific, they were never called upon for combat. In May 1975 the battalion return to Hawaii followed closely by HMH-463, and the brigade together at home again.

DURING OPERATION "Life", in July 1975, two companies from 2d Battalion, 3d Marines assisted with security of military equipment and facilities on the island of Guam.

The brigade got its third fixed-wing rifle battalion Oct 1, 1975, as 3d Battalion, 3d Marines was reactivated and attached to the brigade.

The year 1976 was highlighted by two major training exercises.

The first took place Feb. 16-20. During "Bearing Thunder" more than 4,000 combat-ready Leathernecks deployed to the Big Island of Hawaii. The operation was designed to test the combat efficiency and ability of the brigade to rapidly deploy.

The second operation was Kangaroo II. In October Battalion cont. on A-2

In Memoriam

Memorial services were held Friday at MCAS Kaneohe Bay Chapel for SgtMaj William D. Cale, 1st Marine Brigade Sergeant Major who died Dec. 23. His death was attributed to an apparent heart attack. He was 50 years old.

Cale, a native of Macomb, Ill., was a veteran of nearly 30 years active Marine Corps service. Before assuming duties as Brigade Sergeant Major in June he served as Sergeant Major of the 3d Marines.

Burial was held at the National Cemetery of the Pacific. Cale is survived by his wife Tita and their eight children.

Act stresses uniformity for officers

WASHINGTON, D.C. (MCNews)—It appears that a new compromise version of the Defense Officer Personnel Management Act soon will be enacted into law. The bill passed the House Nov. 17, and the Senate Nov. 21, and is awaiting presidential approval.

DOPMA amends Title 10 of the United States Code to make uniform the provisions of law relating to appointment, promotion, separation and retirement of regular commissioned officers of the Marine Corps, Navy, Army and Air Force. The bill equalizes the promotion standards for men and women, and establishes a one-star rank for the Navy, to be titled commodore admiral.

This legislation imposes new grade limitations on the service for the numbers of O-4/5/6s, and it creates about a five percent reduction to the maximum limitations of these senior officer grades from those in the original version of DOPMA as submitted by DoD. However, no actual reduction in numbers of officers will be required since the new ceilings for the Marine Corps are above our current strength levels.

The bill will provide for a single permanent promotion structure for each service.

DOPMA will establish standardized career expectations of 30 years for colonel, and 28 years for lieutenant colonel. The bill provides that captains and majors, who twice fail selection to the next higher rank, will be subject to involuntary separation or retirement, if eligible. However, when the needs of the service require, the Secretary of the Navy may convene boards to recommend O-3s and O-4s to stay on active duty up to 20 and 24 years, respectively.

Under normal circumstances, O-4s are expected to continue to 20 years of service. The feature regarding O-3s was added by Congress to provide limited flexibility to address shortages in specific skill areas.

The bill also includes selective early retirement provisions for O-5s and O-6s. The Secretary of the Navy may conduct continuation boards for officers after four years in grade as colonels and for lieutenant colonels who have twice failed for selection. The bill requires service in a pay grade above major for three years before an officer may request voluntary retirement in that grade.

DOPMA also raises the maximum amount of separation pay from $15,000 to $30,000, that may be given to an officer. This compromise version of the bill was supported by the Deputy Chief of Staff for Manpower after a series of negotiations and modifications which incorporated features desired by the Marine Corps.

Implementation of DOPMA by Sept. 15, 1981, will require significant revisions to current policy and directives. However, individual officers should experience little difference in the management of their careers. There will be no cuts to existing officer inventory, nor will promotion timing and opportunity be adversely affected. Flexibility in the law and care given to transition assure no detrimental effect to officers now on active duty.

DOPMA provides an officer management system which affords more flexibility in meeting requirements of the services and accommodating the careers of individuals. Additional information will soon be made available regarding this legislation.

Brigade

Landing Team 2/3 joined other units to form the 9th Marine Amphibious Brigade.

The 9th MAB then deployed to Shoalwater Bay, Australia, to conduct five days of extensive amphibious assault training.

Also, in July of 1976, the Provisional Service Battalion was redesignated as the Brigade Service Support Group.

THROUGHOUT 1977 the brigade continued to train in the Hawaiian Islands and on the Mainland.

Another first came in Sept. 1977 when BLT 2/3 and Logistic Support Unit "G" from BSSG became the first brigade unit to take part in a Western Pacific deployment as part of Headquarters Marine Corps' six-month unit deployment rotation plan. VMFA-235 deployed in October to meet the BLT in Japan followed by Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron-262 in November. Under the rotation plan one reinforced battalion landing team, a logistic support unit, a composite helicopter squadron and a fixed wing fighter attack squadron deploy from Kaneohe Bay to the Western Pacific.

Training in areas such as Kahoolawe and Pohakaloa on the Big Island, Twentynine Palms and Yuma on the Mainland was the schedule during 1978 and 1979.

During 1980 the first units were deployed to the Indian Ocean as well as training elsewhere in the Western Pacific.

AS THE BRIGADE looks ahead to 1981, it continues to bear the pride and readiness that has been its trademark through the years. The uniqueness of its air-ground team has helped this combat-ready Band of Brothers to remain one of a kind in an elite Corps.

HONOLULU COMMUNITY COLLEGE
University of Hawaii

IS COLLEGE RIGHT FOR ME?
This is probably one of the most important questions that you can ask. Did you know that college provides you with the opportunities to:

- Know yourself better
- Develop basic skills
- Obtain education or training for your first job or for a job change.

Perhaps you're in the middle of a career change, or you're a woman looking for a way to earn more money. Perhaps you're a veteran, an immigrant, or an adult thinking about the right career for you but not knowing what your options are. Honolulu Community College offers you a chance to find out more about yourself and the job opportunities that may be right for you. How about trying?

INTERPRETING FOR THE DEAF - Interpreting for the deaf is a growing field in Hawaii with an increasing demand for interpreters. Educational, legal, medical, television and business institutions. Just to name a few, provide job opportunities for interpreters. Is this the field for you?

STENOGRAPHY - Perhaps an office job involving typing, shorthand, filing and machine transcription appeals to you. Don't wait, inquire now. Act now. Call 845-9130 for more information.

LIBERAL ARTS PROGRAM*
Honolulu Community College offers a broad range of daytime and evening courses in the liberal arts program. In addition to the excellent selection of lower division courses in the language arts, social sciences, mathematics, humanities, and natural sciences, students can also select related courses such as mechanical drawing, pre-engineering, and sign language.

OPEN VOCATIONAL-OCCUPATIONAL PROGRAMS*

- General Clerical
- Fire Science
- Human Services
- Industrial Education
- Interpreting for Deaf People
- Occupational Safety and Health
- Stenography

Street Scoop

What is your New Year's resolution?

Capt William Basham, MACS-2: "I hope to do a little better in next year's marathon."

Cpl Robert Ross, H&S Co, 2/3: "I'm going to out do my lieutenant in the weight room before I leave the Marine Corps."

Dianne Capewell, dependent: "I'm going to quit smoking."

Petty Officer 3d Class Dennis Stachelski; H&S Co, 2/3: "Just to make it through the year with 2/3."

SSgt James Dever, Recon: "Next year I will quit smoking and PT more."

Teamwork unifies unit spirit.

Bart Starr, a legend in professional football, writes in his book, A Perspective on Victory, "A big phrase around young people is 'getting it together.' Well, with the Packers we did just that. We were so in tune with each other and ourselves that we really did function as one..."

IN THE ARMED FORCES as in football, teamwork is all-important. The reason for the 1588 English victory against the Spanish Armada, it has been said, was the teamwork know-how picked up on the playing fields of Eton.

The team spirit of military units comes through in the writings of Bill Mauldin who noted of the GIs in World War II, "While men in combat outfits kid each other around, they have a sort of family complex about it. No outsiders may join. Bomber crews and paratroopers and infantry squads are about the same in that respect..."

THE ARMY Military Leadership Manual points out, "As in football, if the team is 'up' for the game, they can often defeat a superior team, so it is with soldiers. If the unit spirit is 'up' they can often accomplish extremely difficult tasks."

Stressing the importance of teamwork begins in each service's basic training and is reiterated throughout the career of every soldier, sailor, airman or Marine. While there are only 22 men on the gridiron, there can be thousands of servicemembers involved in air-land-sea maneuvers, thus increasing the importance of teamwork.

THERE ARE, OF COURSE, stars on the battlefield and the playing field, but just as there is no room in football for the grandstander, the same holds true for the military profession. In either arena, one person can cost the game or the battle.

The effect of a careless blunder by a non-team player is reflected in the outcome of one of the costliest and bloodiest battles ever fought on this continent, the Battle of Antietam, Md., when the confederate forces invaded the North for the first time.

A CONFEDERATE OFFICER had wrapped a copy of Gen. Robert E. Lee's plans for the battle around a cigar—and had lost it. It was found by a Union soldier who delivered it to Union Gen. George B. McClellan, who waved the orders before his subordinates shouting, "Here is a paper with which, if I cannot whip Bobby Lee, I will be willing to go home."

Although McClellan did not "whip" Lee at Antietam, the Confederates had to retreat south after the battle, decidedly affecting the course of the war.

IN WAR AND PEACE, each person's understanding of and contribution to the unit's operation can mean success or failure for the military team. Ultimately, the lack of use of teamwork is the way battles and wars are lost or won.

My Turn

HASAC Tourney

As coach of the Marine All Star Team during the Hawaii Armed Services Athletic Council tournament conducted Dec. 11-13 at Hickam Air Force Base, I was elated with the performance of my Marines in their successful quest for the championship.

They exhibited pride, exceptional talent and a team character that was an inspiration for all to observe.

IT IS TRULY unfortunate that the Hawaii Marine could not capture in words this esprit de corps. But then, maybe that's asking too much.

After reading "Marines capture football title," in the Dec. 24 issue my elation turned to disgust. This incredulous mass of words did little to identify what actually occurred during three days of the championship tournament. Not one name from the Marine squad appeared in print. The scores of the Army and Navy defeats by the Marines were incorrect.

Who were the men elected "Most Valuable Players?" Who were the Marines that scored a total of 60 points? Who are these champions and how did they field a team capable of waxing its sister services so convincingly?

The list of questions can only be limited by one's imagination, an attribute the Hawaii Marine obviously does not possess.

EVEN MORE disturbing, is that all of the above questions were answered by the Marines themselves to the Joint Public Affairs reporter from MCAS Dec. 18. Photos were taken and interviews conducted...none of this appeared in the Hawaii Marine.

Instead an interview with the quarterback from Air Force saying... "If we had another 30 seconds to work the ball, we could have beaten the Marines." Well if this quarterback would have taken that wishful 30 seconds and talked to a Marine recruiter instead of his Air Force recruiter he just might be a champion rather than in second place, that is providing he could have made our team.

It is ironic that this news forum is entitled

Hawaii Marine while so much neglect is exhibited toward identifying those Marines most deserving recognition for a tremendous performance.

THE MARINE ALL STAR Squad reached the championship with talent, knowledge, execution on the field of play, aggressiveness, and a little luck. Good luck in your future and toward your goals Hawaii Marine, you're going to need it!

Housing playground

I live in base housing next to a small playground. Many of the children who play there are four years old and under and have no adult supervision. Because of this I've had to nurse kids with bloodied noses, missing teeth and even broken bones on several occasions.

I'm not looking for praise for my actions, I'm merely concerned for the well-being of the children. I especially want to emphasize the importance of adult supervision for them.

As a parent, I realize how trying kids can be, but they are our responsibility and are dependent on us. We brought them into the world and they deserve our respect.

It often seems that people living on base are afraid to get to know their neighbors. I say lets drop this silliness and get to know each other. That way we can set a system where our kids could receive more adult supervision. Then we could all get a break knowing our youngsters are safe.

Naturally, there will continue to be children who suffer bloody noses and loose teeth but at least with adults around the problems can be handled better.

I urge all parents to take the time to get involved with their children. They are worth the time and effort.

Women attempt to overcome barriers

by Cpl Nora Parrish

For years women have attempted to cross the male dominated boundaries of work, religion, the home and now the military. In fact, one of the main topics of conversation today is "a woman's place in the service."

AS I LOOK AROUND the Corps I am appalled at the way my sisters attempt to overcome the barriers set to keep us from combat.

It was stressed to me in boot camp that the motto of the woman Marine is "Free a Man to Fight." This motto has meant a lot to me during my three years in the Corps. It has shown me that the Marine Corps is willing to treat me as a woman.

I am not in the service to take over a man's position, or to crush his ego by attempting to out-do him on the rifle range or in the office.

And I'm definitely not here because I want to fight. I joined the Corps because I am an American with a responsibility to help defend the right to live in a free country

I am carrying out that responsibility in the best way I can.

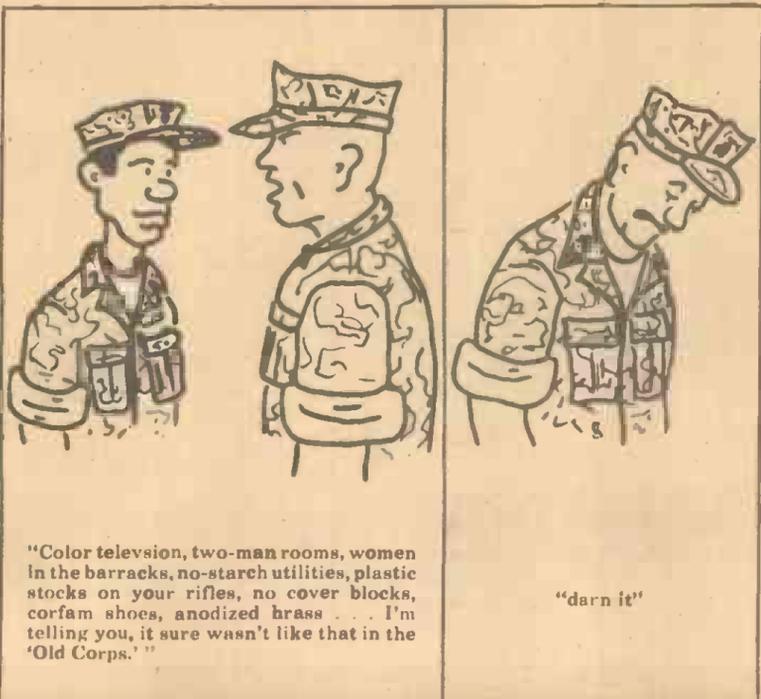

THE CORPS HAS TAKEN steps to change the role of women in the Marine Corps in small ways, but they still support us as women and not a bunch of crazy girls trying to change ourselves into 200-pound amazons, with war paint smeared on our faces.

Decision makers consistently refused to assign women to combat related fields. This indicates to me that they do not intend for us to deal directly with the atrocities of war.

Still, they are taking positive steps to prepare us for combat roles by training recruits in marksmanship and defensive combat tactics.

I don't want anyone to have to go to war, be they men or women, but I realize history has proven it impossible to avoid.

I ADMIT THAT there are jobs women can do as well as men but I don't feel the art of combat is one of them.

"Color television, two-man rooms, women in the barracks, no-starch utilities, plastic stocks on your rifles, no cover blocks, corfam shoes, anodized brass... I'm telling you, it sure wasn't like that in the 'Old Corps.'"

TAKING GENERAL INTEREST — Attacking Devil Dogs of India Company, 3d Battalion, 3d Marines were under close scrutiny of evaluators during their Combat Readiness test. Brig Gen W.H. Rice, Readiness

3/3 Marines combat touchy situations at Kahuku

by Sgt Moses Reynolds

KAHUKU TRAINING AREA, Hawaii — After three days and three nights of attacks and counterattacks throughout this six-mile training area, only two words can describe 3d Battalion, 3d Marines, 1st Marine Brigade: "combat ready."

"THERE'S NO doubt in my mind they're ready," said Maj William Clark, one of the senior evaluators. "We've thrown so many situations for them to encounter and they have responded extremely well to each of them," he said.

Under the close scrutiny of evaluators, the battalion completed their Combat Readiness Evaluation Exercise here Dec. 18.

The battalion, commanded by LtCol. K. D. Jordan, was put through a test of readiness utilizing hypothetical situations and against spirited resistance from G company, 2d Battalion, 3d Marines.

THE SITUATIONS may be hypothetical, but tomorrow they can be for real. For example, one contingency the battalion was faced with was an emergency evacuation of 14 Americans held "hostage" by a small group of terrorists. Within hours, India Company's First Platoon and CH-46 helicopter crews from HMM 165, 1st Marine Brigade, planned and quickly executed the rescue of the Americans.

"This was a touchy situation and time was of the essence," said Capt. John Moyer, air liaison officer for the battalion. "Of course, the battalion responded well in coordination with the helicopter pilots and crew," he said.

OBJECTIVES had to be taken throughout the training area. The muddy ground, steep cliffs, humidity and the aggressors added a touch of realism to the exercise. Booby traps and "dummy" anti-personnel mines were also set up to harass the advancing Marines.

"We're giving them the max while my men take advantage of the small unit training," said Capt. C. L. Baker, Golf company commander. "My platoon and squad leaders are given the chance to be on their own, which I think is excellent training," he added.

The small unit training worked out for both the battalion and the company-size aggressors.

WE'RE LEARNING so much it's incredible," said LtCol Jordan. "Exercises at this level cannot be overemphasized. Our Marines are learning and improving by the hour."

The taking of objectives and fighting wily aggressors did not cease when the sun set. Fighting was around the clock. Patrols and reconnaissance teams were constantly maneuvering.

The final night attack was the peak of the evaluation exercise according to senior evaluators. Kilo Company undertook the mission and achieved one of the most important elements for success in combat: they surprised the "enemy."

LIMA COMPANY also conducted night and day attacks and counterattacks. They were faced with "heavy casualties" because of "enemy" artillery fire. Reporting and retrieving the killed in action and wounded men kept the company commander and his staff on their toes.

The company's first sergeant was also bustling in the field. "I always go where my men go. Helping with situation reports and personnel matters benefits the company whether we are in training, being evaluated or in actual combat," said 1st Sgt Floyd Buffington.

THE COMPANIES were not the only ones bombarded with casualties. The battalion combat operation center also received harassment. Ironically, the battalion artillery officer, 1st Lt Edward Trudeau was constructively "killed" by simulated "enemy artillery" shell fragments.

Most of the Hawaii Marines seemed to agree that crawling up a steep hill, sleeping on wet ground and fighting stealthy aggressors and mosquitoes was well worth the effort.

As Pvt Michael Brown, a grenadier rifleman, summed it up, "This training is down to earth and knowing your stuff keeps you out from under the earth."

Battalion logistics support longevity of combat Marines

by Sgt Moses Reynolds

KAHUKU TRAINING AREA, Hawaii — For lack of a starter, a truck was deadlined. For lack of a truck, ammunition could not be delivered. For lack of ammunition, an artillery battery could not fire. For lack of fire support, a fire team could not maneuver. And for lack of a fire team maneuver, a Marine died.

ALTHOUGH 3d Battalion, 3d Marines 1st Marine Brigade was not confronted with this situation, it sums up the importance of logistics.

The battalion completed their Combat Readiness Evaluation Exercise here Dec. 18. Part of the success of the exercise depended on the age-old "beans, bullets and bandages" support for the battalion.

"Combat situation or training, our bottom line here is production," said Sgt Nelson Quelez, a battalion logistics man. "If it has anything to do with supporting that rifleman at the front lines, we'd have the equipment to accomplish his mission. If not, we can requisition from higher headquarters and be supplied by airdrop," he said.

"WE HAVE everything a deployed unit needs to sustain itself on the battlefield," continued SSgt Alex Ortiz, logistics chief. "This can be anything from paper clip to a two-and-a-half ton truck." As part of the battalion's combat readiness, the logistics section was also evaluated.

"We've been kept awfully busy," said

Capt. W. F. Blankenship, battalion logistics officer. "Of course, each time we go to the field it's a new challenge for everyone."

The battalion, under the close scrutiny of evaluators earned the status "combat ready" after a week of maneuvering throughout the training area according to Maj William Clark, one of the senior evaluators.

FOR THE Marine infantryman on the line slogging through the rugged terrain here, supply is the furthest from his mind. But, when it comes to running out of food or ammunition, or when his buddy needs to be medically evacuated, he is reminded there are unsung heroes supporting him every step of the way.

Management unit stocks spare parts

by Sgt Phillip Williams

Maintaining spare parts for items used throughout the entire 1st Marine Brigade can be a very demanding job at times. But the 13-man shop of Materials Management Unit, an integral part of the Brigade Service Support Unit, MCAS Kaneohe Bay, find the job more of a challenge than a task.

"WE MUST provide materials for the electrical, ordnance, motor transport, tracked vehicle, small arms and artillery repairs that may be needed," comments 1stLt Robert Mastroianni, officer-in-charge of the unit.

Facilitating requests made by Maintenance Company, BSSG, the supply unit provides all materials needed by the repair unit to replace broken parts. They have the responsibility of maintaining parts to fix everything from a Marine's rifle to the amphibious tracked vehicle.

Keeping on top of items that have to be constantly in stock is a continual job.

"WE COLLECT usage data from the shops doing repairs and compile a list of items needed to be stocked," says GySgt Carlos Contreras, noncommissioned officer-in-charge of the supply shop. "Items not in stock are requisitioned on an 'in demand' basis."

The supply warehouse operates out of Building 1058 which, according to Mastroianni, is something new in warehousing. "The idea of efficiently operating a complete supply warehouse within the confines of a barracks building is a new concept," he affirms. He adds that although the move is temporary the Marines in the shop have made the transition with no apparent difficulty while continuing to perform their duties "diligently, with a sense of professionalism."

AT ONE TIME, Materials Management Unit shared warehouse Building 1505 with the Maintenance Float Supply Unit, also a part of BSSG. But, as the float supply unit's responsibilities grew, the unit grew and forced the need for additional space.

Maintenance Float Supply Unit was divided and settled into various locations around the air station. When coordination became inconvenient the search for a larger warehouse began. It was decided that Building 1505 could best serve the float supply unit's needs. Subsequently MMU was relocated in Building 1058.

The supply unit receives parts needed not stored on their shelves from the General Account Unit. Should the first source of supply be understocked the supply unit sends for parts from the continental United States. The unit sends orders to centers as far away as Rock Island, New York to fulfill supply demands. The mode of shipment and level of priority will determine the amount of time it takes for the unit to receive shipment orders.

THE SHOP cross-trains its Marines to fit the needs of the section.

"All the Marines are trained internally as either supply clerks or warehousemen," said Contreras.

Providing materials for third and fourth echelon repair units with the 1st Brigade. That's the mission accomplished on a daily basis by the Leathernecks of Materials Management Unit.

FOR MERITORIOUS SERVICE — MSgt Joseph Bunch, provost sergeant, Provost Marshal's Office, MCAS Kaneohe Bay, received the Navy Commendation Medal from Col Mel Sautter, commanding officer, MCAS Kaneohe Bay. Bunch, who retires today after 22 years of "honorable and dedicated Marine Corps service," was cited for enhancing the effectiveness of the security department, improving the coordination and cooperation between the department, the brigade and the air station, and "contributing significantly toward the department's ability to meet its Mission." Bunch and his family will reside on Oahu.

- 1. RAISE THE TITANIC — Jason Robards, Richard Jordan, R, action drama. The Titanic sank in 1912. Now almost seven decades later, the U.S. Government discovers there is a rare and valuable mineral ore in the Titanic's hold. In order to secure this treasure, the U.S. Navy is sent to search for the remains of the old vessel two miles below the surface of the Atlantic.
- 2. CAN'T STOP THE MUSIC — The Village People, Steve Guttenberg, PG, musical comedy. A fashion model needs some singers to make a demonstration record of songs written by a struggling young composer. She goes out into the streets of Greenwich Village and picks up the guys one by one with the help of Altovise Davis.
- 3. THE HUNTER — Steve McQueen, Eli Wallach, PG, action-drama. Steve McQueen is a modern day bounty hunter in an urban police setting. There is a fist fight and a chase scene. McQueen most notably pursues a homicidally-inclined bail jumper and a vengeance-crazed convict.

- 4. PLAYERS — Ali McGraw, Dean-Paul Martin, PG, drama. In gratitude for saving his life, McGraw takes Martin to her sumptuous mansion outside Mexico City and promotes his tennis game among other things.
- 5. THE SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME — Jack Palance, Carol Lynley, PG, science-fiction. New Washington, the creation of an enlightened post-earth society, lies on the moon under its translucent dome. Suddenly, under attack by the robots and space ships of Omus, they prepare for war.
- 6. AGATHA — Dustin Hoffman, Vanessa Redgrave, PG, drama. In December 1975, famed mystery writer Agatha Christie took part in a real-life drama that remains mysterious to this day. She suddenly disappeared from her home in England.
- 7. DRESSED TO KILL — Michael Caine, Angie Dickinson, R, suspense-thriller. A suburban housewife is obsessed with erotic fantasies. She is violently murdered in an elevator. The only witness, a high-class call girl, is brought in for questioning. Dickinson's psychiatrist is also questioned.

- 8. RICH KIDS — Trini Alvarado, Jeremy Levi, PG, comedy. A comedy about divorce and its effects on husbands, wives and their offspring. Together two 12-year-olds learn to accept the ups and downs of divorce, but not completely. The children's continual alternation between romantic games and harsh reality keeps them both going and growing.
- 9. DRIBBLE — Freya Crane, Joseph Hardin, PG, comedy. A scrappy and impoverished girls basketball team make it despite the obstacles.
- 10. THE MOUNTAIN MEN — Charlton Heston, Brian Keith, R, adventure. Heston and his sidekick are two grizzled trappers constantly battling Indians in the wilderness. They are protecting a runaway Indian from her former mate.
- 11. OH HEAVENLY DOG — Chevy Chase, Benji, PG, comedy-mystery. Private eye Chevy Chase is murdered while examining the corpse of the London interior decorator whom Omar Sharif had hired him to protect. Chase's celestial counselor allows him to return to earth and investigate the murder in the form of a dog.

Advertising and labeling create misconception

Symptoms such as occasional joint and muscular aches, pains and stiffness, and swelling of joints are indications to see a doctor. Don't try to treat yourself with aspirin.

panel on internal analgesics, and there are some definite reasons behind it.

Arthritis affects individuals differently. Although one person's case can be much different from another's, the symptoms exhibited are often the same.

FDA, products available over-the-counter often mislead consumers into thinking they can medicate themselves, especially when the word "arthritis" appears on the label.

ACCORDING TO the panel, aspirin, contrary to popular belief, is a powerful drug safe only when taken in the prescribed dosage at the prescribed rate. When taken in the high dosages required for it to be effective against inflammation, aspirin can have serious side effects.

In addition, persons who treat with aspirin what they think are arthritis symptoms, without a doctor's supervision, increase the dangers.

Unfortunately through advertising and the labeling of products, drug retail manufacturers create the general impression that arthritis is a minor disease.

FOR THESE reasons, the FDA warns against self-medication for any of the many forms of arthritis. The FDA is recommending that the following information be required on all over-the-counter medication: "Do not take this product for the treatment of arthritis, except under the advice and supervision of a physician."

Intelligence Brief

by Combat Intelligence Center

The T-62 was introduced in 1961 and has become the main battle tank in the Soviet Army. The tank has also been exported to the Warsaw Pact nations along with many other countries worldwide. Egyptian and Syrian forces have employed the T-62 in the various Middle Eastern wars, and Israel has used it in a highly modified form.

IN ARMAMENT, this tank has a 115 mm smoothbore main gun which fires a hyper velocity armor piercing round at 1615 meters per second. The gun also fires high explosive and high explosive anti-tank rounds at a range of up to 2,000 meters. In addition, the T-62 mounts a 7.62 mm machinegun in its turret. On the T-62A model, a 12.7 mm anti-aircraft machine gun is included with these two guns.

The T-62 uses a nuclear protection system known as the PAZ (Protivoatomnaya Zashchita) system. The PAZ system consists of a radiation detector, five separate explosive mechanisms and a blower/dust separator. Upon sensing the initial pulse of radiation which proceeds a nuclear blast wave, the radiation detector activates firing mechanisms which close louvers and apertures of engine ports and gun sights. If not already buttoned up, the sound of the exploding mechanisms warns the crew to shut all hatches. The blower/dust separator filters out radioactive particles, but not toxic gases from the air supply.

SOME ADVANTAGES to this tank include the following:

The tank presents a low silhouette, thus making it a more difficult target to find and shoot at.

The armor on the T-62 has a good amount of curve and slant to it. This asset helps protect the tank from the impact of enemy fire it may receive.

Fairly low ground pressure is produced by this tank, which aids in traversing soft ground. Some disadvantages to this tank are:

The barrel on the main gun can be lowered only 5 degrees below being level with the rest of the tank.

A limited ammunition load is provided for its guns. That is 40 rounds for the main gun, 250 rounds for the 12.7 mm anti-aircraft machinegun and 2,000 to 3,000 rounds for the 7.62 mm machinegun.

The tank commander is unable to override the gunner's control of the main gun. This deficiency can cause target acquisition problems.

Poor handling qualities affect the driver's efficiency over extended periods.

THE NEXT area of concern for this tank is that of stopping it. The T-62 can be immobilized by damaging the roadwheels, tracks or engine (located aft). Much of the fuel and ammunition is located forward on the right-hand side of the hull. This location is the tank's most vulnerable point to anti-tank weapons.

The prominent recognition features for the T-62 are:

Five road wheels are located on each side of the tank.

The bore evacuator is located one-third of the tube length from the muzzle.

The left turret hatch is set farther back than the right turret hatch.

AT PRESENT, the T-64 and T-72 are replacing the T-62 as the Soviet main battle tank. T-62s, however may very well be seen throughout the world for some time to come.

Preparation tips smooth tax time troubles

Income tax time is around the corner, and many people will prepare their tax returns themselves.

THE SOLDIERS' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act protects active duty people from double taxation. However, if the service member has a part time job in the state where assigned, that state has the right to collect taxes on any money earned. Spouses of servicemembers are not protected by the act. Servicemembers who are legal-residents of New Jersey, New York, or Oregon who claim exemption from State Income Tax withholding must recertify their exemption status annually by Jan. 15.

In order to recertify, members should contact their disbursing office and obtain an annual recertification certificate for completion and mailing, by the member, to the appropriate state.

If taxpayers run into trouble preparing returns they can visit one of the Internal Revenue Service Offices or get help from a specially briefed tax advisor in the military.

The IRS has offered a few tips to help make filing tax returns easier.

FIRST GET organized. This begins by keeping all receipts, wage statements, medical payments and any other pertinent information in one place, so they may be easily gathered when tax time rolls around.

The IRS explains that most questions that come to mind while preparing taxes are answered in the form's instructions.

Before preparing tax returns go over the entire form line by line. Because tax laws are continually changing, the forms are altered each year. All clauses do not necessarily apply to all tax-payers, however, an overlooked line can be a costly mistake.

People using additional schedules or forms should ensure that their names and social security numbers are included. Schedules need to be in alphabetical order and forms in numerical order. If a required document is forgotten the IRS will notify the filer.

A RETURN with no signature is like no return at all. It is sent back to the taxpayer. Be sure to sign the form.

Two signatures are required on joint returns. If returns are taken to someone else for preparation remember, the primary people responsible for them are the filers.

In any case, for quick refunds, mail early.

Images of changes seen as new decade unfolds

by Sgt Randy Daugherty

Life at Marine Corps Air Station Kaneohe Bay, like anywhere else in the world, is full of changes. 1980, the first year of a new decade brought many changes and with its end we reflect upon its beginning.

Nationally, the '80s began with MajGen Paul X. Kelley pinning on his third star and taking command of the newly formed Rapid Deployment Joint Task Force. Locally, 3d Battalion, 3d Marines brought in the '80s by capturing first place in the Second Annual 1st Marine Brigade Field Meet, celebrating the brigade's Jan. 1 anniversary.

MOTHER NATURE lent a hand in washing away the '70s. Jan. 8 Oahu was hit with its worst storm in recent history. On Mokapu Peninsula 60 knot winds (gusting higher in some areas) uprooted large trees, blew roofs off buildings and lanais and knocked power out. Windows and vehicles were damaged by flying debris and many homes and offices were flooded. Elsewhere on the island boats were washed ashore, cable channels were out along with the power and a small twin engine plane crashed into the slopes of Koko Head.

The storm clean-up on Mokapu took 10,000 man-hours and cost $700,000 in repairs. In addition to the clean-up on Mokapu, Marines aided Hawaiian Electric in restoring downed power poles using a CH-53 Sea Stallion from Marine Heavy Helicopter Squadron-463.

Gen Robert H. Barrow, commandant of the Marine Corps, in his 1980 posture statement reflected, "A rapidly changing world situation in 1979 underscored the Marines constant emphasis on readiness." During a visit to Hawaii in March, the commandant told troops, "More and more interest in the Corps is being generated nationally. The Marine Corps is being rediscovered and its present and future capability and usefulness are being realized."

THE SERGEANT MAJOR of the Marine Corps Leland Crawford reemphasized the Commandant's feelings during his visit to Hawaii in April. "The future of the Corps looks great, as a matter of fact, I wish I was 20 years younger so I wouldn't miss any of it," he said. The sergeant major also backed the commandant on his policy of getting back to basics. When asked about changing the grooming standards, Crawford said, "We're not changing a thing. If you wanted to grow your hair you should have joined some other service. Our grooming standards are a part of what we are. Marines are a whole different breed of cat. We've held onto our regulations, the other services changed and now wish they hadn't."

Feb. 12, President Carter ordered four Navy ships and 1,800 Marines from Battalion Landing Team 3/3, Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron-165 and Marine Service Support Group-31 to join other U.S. Naval forces operating in the Persian Gulf. The four ships were: USS Okinawa, LPH-3; USS Bernadino, LST-1189; USS Alamo, LSD-33 and USS Mobile, LKA-115. According to Department of Defense officials deployment of the amphibious force was a demonstration of the United States' intent to maintain an appropriate presence in the region.

Some notable changes in the Corps during 1980 were the restriction of women from combat related military occupational specialties, women's uniforms and the introduction of the sea service ribbon.

IN A CHANGE to Marine Corps Order 1300.8L women were restricted from all combat related jobs. The change stated women would train to provide essential support of combat operations but would not be assigned to any unit within which they would likely become engaged in direct combat with the enemy. The order also stated that women could be assigned as enlisted crew members aboard base and command support aircraft as well as to any aviation squadron for the purpose of providing the service/support for which they are trained.

Women were restricted from assignments to: infantry regiments; artillery, tank, assault amphibian, combat engineer, recon, and LAAM battalions; force recon, and air/naval gunfire liaison companies, FAAD batteries/platoons and Marine Air Support Squadrons. Women also may no longer be assigned to headquarters elements.

They can be assigned to units in the deployment cycle as long as their unit deploys to and from Western Pacific by air. The final change states that women can comprise no more than 10 percent of a unit's table of organization or wartime strength.

In the latter part of March, Kathleen Carpenter, deputy assistant secretary of defense for equal opportunity, during a visit to the air station commented on women's uniforms. "The camouflage utilities were designed with males, not females in mind," said Carpenter. "The utility uniforms tend to hang loose at women's slimmer waists and the excess material could be a safety hazard. What we want to do is identify safety and wear problems and correct them."

April 1 was the deadline for women to have their new uniform items. Women are now required to have one long and one short sleeve khaki shirt, one green collar tab, green on khaki chevrons and one pair of green poly/wool slacks. They are also required to have four shirts in any combination and two poly/wool skirts.

ANOTHER UNIFORM item introduced in 1980 was the camouflaged cover. The new cammie cover, which blends in well with the camouflaged utilities, made the term "starch a cover" obsolete.

The new sea service ribbon was authorized in May by Secretary of the Navy, Edward Hidalgo. The ribbon was first awarded to the crew of a three-ship battle group returning from extended duty in the Indian Ocean, by Hidalgo.

Also receiving other awards were the men of Marine Fighter Attack Squadron-212, Marine Heavy Helicopter Squadron-463, and Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron-265. Each squadron was recognized by the Chief of Naval Operations for aviation safety.

The month of April saw the Lancers of VMFA-212 returning from their second successive six-month deployment to WestPac. Upon '212s return the Red Devils of VMFA-232 deployed to WestPac. April 10 the American flag was flown over the U.S. Capitol in honor of BLT 3/3 for their faithful service during their deployment to the Indian Ocean in the wake of the Iranian crisis.

During June the brigade bid aloha to BrigGen Harry Hagaman and welcomed aboard their new commander, BrigGen W.H. Rice. The brigade also welcomed BLT 3/3 home from their deployment to the Indian Ocean. The Marine Corps added 75 young men to its ranks June 20 when the All-Pacific Platoon enlisted and left for basic training. Fifty-one of those new Marines returned to Hawaii to serve under the "Come Home to Hawaii" program.

NEW LEAVE AND EARNING Statements began finding their way onto desk tops in June also. The new format offered Marines more information in an easy-to-understand statement.

The Selective Service Act was reintroduced in July. The act stated that all male citizens born during 1960-61 were required to register for the draft. It bore much controversy and to this day the constitutionality of this act is questioned by many because women are not required to register.

Near disaster struck MCAS Kaneohe Bay July 26 when residents of Cochran Street were rudely awakened by fire. The fire was caused by live electrical wires which had fallen. Two vehicles were destroyed and two more damaged by the fire and other minor damage was reported, however no one was injured.

DURING 1980 much destruction and construction took place. In July, the "old SMU Building" was totally destroyed and the site was cleared due to termite infestation.

The Windward Enlisted Club took on an addition in August with the Couple's Lounge, which was later also designated an NCO Lounge.

Before reconstruction, Hale Koa Beach was a place to go, now it's a nice place to go. With efforts from air station personnel the beach was transformed into a family picnic area as well as a beautiful beach. One long awaited project was the station pool, out of commission about a year, equipment was updated and the pool retiled. All totaled, nearly $10 million was spent in 1980 on construction, repairs and maintenance.

Oct. 1 military personnel received an 11.7 percent raise in basic pay, basic allowance for subsistence, and basic allowance for quarters. The inflation rate at that time was 13 percent.

Also in October, HMM-265 replaced their metal helicopter rotor blades with fiberglass blades. The new fiberglass blades offered added strength and durability.

WITH THE YEAR coming to a close, the Marine Corps celebrated its 205th Anniversary, Nov. 10. Also that week, the brigade welcomed the return of BLT 2/3 from their WestPac deployment.

Nov. 19 the Search and Rescue team from Station Operations and Maintenance Squadron added one more to their long list of life saving rescues. The SAR team rescued the victim of a civilian helicopter crash one mile off Kaaawa shore.

With the Christmas season come and gone, Marines have a new year ahead. In a senate address, the commandant stated, "The total effort of the Corps is directed toward maintaining forces in the highest state of readiness — available for immediate use, whenever or wherever they may be required." He concluded that address with the assurance... "the Marine Corps is ready, today, should the call come."

Evaluation: Pohakuloa Training Area explodes as Leathernecks exercise readiness

by Sgt Phillip Williams

POHAKULOA TRAINING AREA, Hawaii — Combat ready is something every Marine Corps unit must be. C Battery, 1st Battalion, 12th Marines is no different. The unit was graded on combat readiness evaluation exercises conducted here Dec. 16 through 17.

A dense, low-circulating mist clung to the range area the morning of the evaluation, almost forcing cancellation of the exercise. However, Mother Nature did allow the Leathernecks to display their artillery abilities when they were assaulted by a band of vicious "aggressors" C Battery's main body quickly reacted.

THE UNIT unhooked their 105mm howitzer guns from the rear of the two-and-one-half ton trucks, aimed in the direction of the enemy and repelled the assault. The battery then sent men into the fields to ensure the enemy had been eliminated or had retreated.

Meanwhile, the battery's advance party moved to the initial firing point and began to secure the area. Machinegun teams with .50 and .60 caliber guns provided perimeter security. One 105mm gun team attached to the advance party prepared to fire.

Once the main body had thwarted the ambush, the mission was underway again and the unit proceeded to the first firing point. At that position, the main body joined the advance party and quickly set up the remaining five guns, while two additional machinegun teams were added to the perimeter security force.

AS THE OTHER gun teams were getting firing coordinates, the team that arrived with the advance party began shooting registration rounds at the enemy. (Registration firing involves taking coordinates of the enemy's approximate location and shooting a series of three rounds at them. The closest round to the enemy's locale is the area on which the battery sets the sights.)

A meteorological team assisted in measuring wind direction and speed. The information they gathered was relayed to the gunners.

The fire mission began and rounds were hurled into the enemy's camp. Aggressors attacked the artillery battery and immediately, the perimeter forces repelled the attack. The fire mission continued without a break in procedure as the enemy made a surprise attack. Then it hit!

BELLS STARTED clanging, signaling a chemical attack. The artillery Leathernecks hastened to don field protective masks. This portion of the exercise continued for about 40 minutes.

The fire mission concluded and the artillery unit made way for their second firing point.

Enroute to this position, the forward observer, posted on a nearby vantage point, called in and reported a friendly infantry unit was being overrun. To assist the unit, C Battery deployed their guns.

A smoke grenade marked the turn-off area where the Marines began setting up their weapons. A gun team signaled they were ready to fire. Sights and coordinates locked on, they were given the okay to fire. The unit was saved from annihilation.

OPERATIONAL procedures at the second firing point remained basically the same. However, the unit did receive a simulated artillery "incoming" attack and were forced to make a hasty displacement. They moved to an alternate position and awaited nightfall.

During night operations, the battery moved to their third and final, firing point. This operation was conducted similar to the previous two missions with the exception of the use of illumination rounds.

At the end of the fire mission, the battery returned to base camp and bedded down for the night.

As the sun began to lighten up the sky, C Battery, 1st Battalion, 12th Marines was underway to complete the final phase of their readiness evaluation.

THE DIRECT fire stage simulated an enemy target directly in front of the gun lines. The battery was given one minute and three rounds to destroy the enemy target, and that they did.

The unit's exercise was successful in fulfilling the requirements needed to be declared combat ready. Having passed the evaluation, C Battery, 1st Battalion, 12th Marines have only to be called.

Canvas condominiums create combat cities

by Sgt Phillip Williams

POHAKULOA TRAINING AREA, Hawaii — While participating in field artillery exercises on the Big Island Dec. 9 through 20, 1st Battalion, 12th Marines, 1st Marine Brigade, endured the hardships of field life within the boundaries of a self-sustaining canvas empire commonly referred to as "Tent City."

The dusty road which led to the "artillery estate" bore the unit's calling card. "1st Battalion, 12th Marines, King of Battle."

THE CITY, built by battalion Marines, was furnished with practically every facility needed to make a unit self-sufficient in a field environment. Although some facilities were primitive in nature, they still provided the field Marines with many comforts of home.

To supply the battery with the proper nutrition needed to maneuver the big 105mm and 155mm howitzer guns, hot Marine Corps meals were provided. The artillery Leathernecks took their own cooks with them to the field to prepare the chow.

The battalion, currently composed of a headquarters battery and three firing batteries, had their own "canvas condominiums" to retreat to after a hard day's work or whenever they had a few extra minutes to relax. These tents alone made up the majority of the city.

MOVING A battalion of artillery Marines from point-to-point, with all the weapons and equipment needed to complete a mission, requires a lot of transportation support. First battalion, 12th Marines, however, had this problem licked. The unit had its own motor transport section available to move anything from the size of a coffee pot to a 155mm howitzer gun.

A field dispensary tent with a highly qualified medical team was available to assist with medical problems.

A communication center was set up in the field to provide constant contact with units separated from "Tent City" during training.

NO CITY would be complete without a theater. The artillery Marines were treated to an occasional nightly showing of war films. Most of the films were of a historical nature featuring some of the Marine Corps' courageous campaigns, but a John Wayne movie was shown every now and then.

For the most part, the troops participating in the battalion field exercise had very few complaints about the living conditions. One Marine was heard to say, "It may not have all the comforts of a Winnebago, like cold and hot running water, or color television, but like a Winnebago, we can pack it up and take it with us when we leave."

ALL TOGETHER NOW . . . — Gun teams from K Battery, 1st Battalion, 12th Marines fire live rounds in unison at a simulated enemy target on Pohakuloa Training Area's firing range. The 155mm howitzer battery participated in field artillery operations Dec. 9 through 20.

THE BIG BANG THEORY — Marines cover their ears to block out the loud noise as a 155mm high-explosive round exits the barrel of the huge howitzer, leaving behind a puff of smoke. K Battery, 1st Battalion, 12th Marines visited Pohakuloa Training Area on the Big Island Dec. 9 through 20 to participate in field artillery exercises.

Wizard of gauze gains ground in paramedical career goals

by Sgt Lamar Johnson

Hospital Corpsman 3d Class Michael Gilhooly, Emergency Department, Navy Regional Medical Clinic, Kaneohe Branch, successfully completed the Hawaii State Emergency Medical Technician Course Nov. 21.

Fourteen people were selected for the 10-week program. Gilhooly and seven others completed 315 hours of training and graduated from the course in preparation for the National Registry Examination.

GILHOOLY, a 20-year-old Floridian was one of two corpsmen selected from MCAS Kaneohe Bay, by the NRMCC, Pearl Harbor to undergo the Hawaii State EMT-C. He was the second member from the Kaneohe Branch Clinic to complete the course.

Gilhooly received instruction and experience through a paramedic instructor, a classroom instructor, a paramedic and doctors who worked closely with the students concentrating on the medical tools of the trade.

Upon being selected for the program, he was sent to Queen's Hospital in Honolulu to take the California Equivalency Examination. The exam was designed to test and determine whether selected persons qualified to participate in the course.

Gilhooly was later screened by the sponsor, the Hawaii Medical Association, and Emergency Medical Services Committee. The committee wanted to know his career goals and the reasons he felt qualified to take the Hawaii State Emergency Medical Technician Course.

"The MEMBERS of the board are also the instructors who work with the students during the emergency medical training program.

According to Gilhooly, "At this particular stage in my career, this is my first step up the ladder to achieve the rating of a capable and qualified paramedic."

He continued, "This course is the foundation for advancement course toward becoming a mobile intensive care technician, or a paramedic."

Gilhooly spent four and one half weeks of classroom study at the Hawaii State Library at Queen's Medical Center. After the classroom studies, he entered a clinical phase of practical application at various ambulance stations throughout Honolulu.

"In Hawaii, you have the advantage of receiving more detailed instruction."

Gilhooly returned to his duties in the trauma room located in the emergency room of the NRMCC, Kaneohe. He is responsible for all the equipment and supplies kept in the Trauma Room and conducts patient care and ambulance runs.

Gilhooly concluded, "I feel good about this accomplishment."

HM3 GILHOOLY now holds a diploma of completion through the HMA, EMS, Hawaii State EMT Course and American Heart Association CPR Certificate and a Defensive Driving Certificate for emergency ambulance driving. Soon he will receive results from his National Registry Examination, his key to the field of paramedical emergency services.

"THE DOCTORS, paramedics and instructors didn't try to take it easy because this is a very serious business. You must be able to clearly explain what you've learned, as if you were teaching it. In addition, you have to be able to apply the skills properly."

"The Hawaii State Medical Technician Course is considered to be the best in the nation. It consists of 315 hours of training, while mainland courses are only 88 hours long," he pointed out.

ENGLISH FOUNDATIONS PROGRAM

The English Foundations Program is a top quality program available for serious students of English as a second language and is excellent preparation for TOEFL examinations. All courses are credit courses and are designed to teach all language skills—grammar, listening, speaking, reading, writing and study skills. There are three levels: lower, intermediate and advanced. New students are given our English Proficiency Examination to determine which level is appropriate. In addition to regular courses, students are also given tutoring and lab work to help with individual language problems.

Register early by contacting the Director, Mr. Joseph O'Connor, telephone 521-8061. An appointment can be made for an interview with Mr. O'Connor at 1164 Bishop (2nd floor) and students may register for the English Proficiency Examination at that location. 1-20 Student Visas are issued to students from other countries. Financial aid is available to qualified refugee and immigrant students. Call the Financial Aids Office, 521-8061, for further information.

Celebrations ring in New Year

Ancient Egyptians beat each other over the head to observe the New Year. Indebted Japanese once committed suicide on Jan. 1. Modern Americans watch football.

From the pyramids to the Rose Bowl, people have greeted the New Year with revelry, ritual, and often a touch of violence, the National Geographic Society says.

THE CUSTOM of making noise on New Year's Eve dates back to the ancient custom of driving out evil spirits. In Scotland, young men and boys still parade in the village streets Dec. 31, shouting loudly to drive out supposed demons and witches. In Denmark, young people smash the New Year in by bangin' on doors. Father Time survives as a descendant of the Greek festivities featuring the god Cronus, lord of the universe. Cronus bore the lines of inestimable years on his face, and he carried a scythe. Later, Cronus' name was confused with the word chronos, meaning "time." So the hourglass has been placed permanently in the hand of the white-haired gentleman with the scythe who hobbles out with the old year.

THE WIDE-SPREAD observance of Jan. 1 as the start of a new year stems from Roman times. Julius Caesar arbitrarily chose that date as the first day of the year when he initiated the Julian calendar. More-over, January, the first month, is also Roman, named after Janus, a god of doors and gates in Roman mythology. His two faces symbolize the passage from something old to something new. Several New Year's Day traditions in the United States have become better known through the medium of television. Few Americans who settle down in their chairs on New Year's Day afternoon to watch the traditional Pasadena Rose Bowl game are aware that for a decade before the games began in 1916 the main New Year's Day attraction in Pasadena was chariot races.

MANY U.S. and Canadian cities now feature New Year's Day parades. The grand-daddy of them all is the Philadelphia Mummers' Parade, first held 101 years ago. For many years before the parade, the Mummers, — a Philadelphia fraternal group — roamed the countryside, making merry and playing music from Christmas until New Year's. Then in 1876, Mummer bands were assembled into a parade, the forerunner of today's New Year parade festivities.

As to resolutions, probably as old as New Year observances, consider what Nathaniel Hawthorne wrote: "There is no such thing in man's nature as a settled and full resolve for good or evil except at the very moment of execution." Be that as it may — Happy New Year!
