Coconut Island: Kaneohe Bay isle abundant in natural and cultural past

by SSgt Ken Strausbaugh

Like a giant emerald on a cloth of aquamarine velvet, Coconut Island rests serenely in the center of Kaneohe Bay.

Protected from the west by the Koolau Mountain Range, and from the east by the Marines, the island boasts a history as vast and as colorful as any of the islands in the Hawaiian chain.

Coconut Island, or more correctly Moku o Lo'e, is currently the home of the University of Hawaii's Institute of Marine Biology, but in years past the island has served a multitude of purposes.

Originally used exclusively by Hawaiian royalty, the island has also served as a playground for the rich; a location for several Hollywood movies; a private zoo, complete with an elephant and giraffe; a Rest and Recuperation Center for Americans during World War II; and even as a sanctuary for Queen Kalama's turkeys and chickens.

The origin of the island's real name, Moku o Lo'e, lies deep in Hawaiian folklore.

According to legend, long ago two brothers and their sisters were forced to leave their home at Kahua-iki (Wea) for constantly fighting with their parents. The brothers were named Pahu and Kahoe, and the sister's name was Lo'e.

After being expelled from their home, the outcasts traveled to the windward side of Oahu to begin a new life.

In order to practice his trade as a fisherman, Pahu set up his home by the bay, now known as Kaneohe Bay. Kahoe, the farmer, moved to the country where the soil was best for his crops. Lo'e made her home on what is now Coconut Island, thus the name Moku o Lo'e or the Island of Lo'e.

But perhaps the most celebrated resident of the island was Christian R. Holmes, the multi-millionaire heir to the Fleischman yeast fortune.

Holmes purchased the island in 1933 in a storm of controversy. Several Hawaiian families claimed the island had been granted to them by King Kamehameha III, but none could substantiate their claim.

Eventually the courts decided that Holmes' purchase of the island was valid, so he set about turning the island into a luxury retreat.

Holmes indulged himself with his new "toy." He stocked the island with pheasants and peacocks, imported an elephant and giraffe for his private menagerie, and covered the treeless island with coconut trees, thus its present name.

He later purchased a four-masted schooner named the Seth Parker. Filling the hull with cement, he permanently dry-docked the ship and turned it into a nautical recreation room.

But Holmes' most flamboyant venture had to be the enlarging of Coconut Island. Using coral dredged from the bay, Holmes more than doubled the size of the island, from 12 to 28 acres.

Chris Holmes did not get to enjoy his island retreat for long. In 1944, he committed suicide. His possessions were sold to the highest bidder and his paradise quietly deteriorated until World War II created a new purpose for the island.

During the war, the U.S. government paid $2,425 a month to use the island as a Rest and Recuperation Center for fighter pilots and bomber crews.

In 1946, a group of businessmen led by Edwin Pauly purchased the island for $250,000. They planned to open a businessman's club called The Coconut Island Club International. But offering the club's high-priced membership to an elite clientele did not work out.

Over the next decade, the proposed projects for the island ranged from a nudist colony to a heavenly home for Father Divine's angels. Both fell into obscurity.

Kailua parade draws thousands

by SSgt Ken Strausbaugh

Anticipation is high and preparations abound as the 33rd annual Kailua Fourth of July Parade draws near.

Mountains of popcorn, oceans of soft-drinks and enough balloons for an endless rainbow have passed through Kailua since the first Fourth of July parade was organized in 1949.

The stories and memories from the last 34 parades are as colorful and entertaining as the characters and floats that are the heart of each parade.

Joseph R. Farias, a resident of Kailua for more than 35 years, has been involved with the organization of every parade.

"I helped organize the American Legion Post No. 9 here back in 1948. We started with about 15 members," Farias paused, remembering his old pals.

"There were only about 1,300 people living in Kailua at the time. The legion decided that we had to do something to get people to come to Kailua. I came up with the idea for a Fourth of July parade and the boys agreed with me so we took it from there."

"We figured that people would come here for the parade, see how nice things are on this side of the island and move to Kailua. It worked."

Farias reminisced about that first parade. "We had about 20 floats and three or four bands that first year. It doesn't seem like much now, but it sure did back then."

The American Legion's float that year was really special. It was the flag raising over Iwo Jima ... we had real Marines raising the flag," Farias added proudly.

"We made a big day out of the Fourth of July. We had horse races and a great luau. The fireworks display at the end of the day had to be cut short because one of the men working the display burned his hand."

Farias explained that fund-raising during those first years was no easy task. "We had to go door-to-door to raise enough money to pay for the parades. It sure wasn't easy, but the Chamber of Commerce eventually took over and they have a much better system now."

Money is not the only ingredient that makes a good parade. Farias talked of some of the greats, and near-greats, who participated in the parade through the years. "In 1949 we had Jack Burns as the grand marshal. A few years later I got Johnny Yuma. 'The Rebel,' to do the honors. He rode his horse at the head of the parade, and then went to the judges stand to watch the rest of the parade."

"One year I almost got John Wayne and Kirk Douglas to be grand marshals. They were making a movie in Honolulu, some war picture about Pearl Harbor or something. I decided I'd just walk up to them and ask if they'd be in the parade."

Blaze destroys home of SOMS leatherneck

by Cpl Lorraine Brooks

While many people were gearing for a fantastic three-day weekend May 27, a fellow Marine and his family were burned out of their home.

Corporal Paul Mugge, Station Operations and Maintenance Squadron, did not have fire insurance and has no way of recovering his loss.

Material losses of approximately $10,000 included a recently purchased electric keyboard and accordion.

Irreplaceable articles were also lost. Those types of things most people never really think about until they don't have them anymore, such as high school year books, pictures and sentimental objects of days gone by.

"Mr. Walsh was the lone fatality of the fire. The parakeet died of smoke inhalation. 'The bird's death got to my wife,' said Mugge. 'She was really attached to it.'"

Mugge arrived on the island in March from Cherry Point, N.C., and had just started feeling at home in Kailua.

"I thought of all kinds of insurance when I got here — car insurance, life insurance ... but fire insurance? Most people don't have fire or theft insurance and neither did I, but I should have," said Mugge with a regretful tone.

The American Red Cross arranged for the Mugges to stay at the Pagoda Hotel during the weekend following the fire, and Navy Relief donated pots and pans to the couple.

"The Marines in my unit have really helped out. My officer-in-charge, Captain R. Betros, helped me salvage what was left after the fire, which wasn't much," said the corporal.

Other Marines in his unit have offered him things at dirt cheap prices including baby clothes for his expecting wife.

"The Monday following the fire I went to the housing office and they arranged for me to be on a special temporary living allowance until a housing unit is available," said Mugge.

They moved into station housing last week.

"It's such a drag having to start all over again. We had everything straightened out and were on a smooth road looking forward to the birth of our first child. Now we'll have to start all over again," said Mugge.

Arson is the suspected cause of the fire because a flammable liquid was found in the area, according to the fire marshal in Kailua.

Anyone wishing to donate something to a fellow Marine can call Mugge at 257-2121.

Intelligence Brief

EDITOR'S NOTE: Intelligence Brief is compiled by the intelligence section, 1st Marine Brigade, to acquaint Marines with weapons and tactics used by other forces.

The Soviet SA-7 GRAIL is a man portable, light anti-aircraft missile similar to the American Redeye. It utilizes an infrared homing system and relies upon tail interception to engage low flying aircraft.

Sighting the SA-7 is accomplished optically with the infrared seeker being activated when the operator has acquired the target. Once the indicator shows the seeker has "locked on" to the target, the operator can fire the missile.

Flares were found to be an effective counter measure against the initial model, however, later models are equipped with filters to combat this tactic. The missile is generally lethal only to small aircraft, but has been proven to be especially effective against helicopters. Many thousands of these simple, but reasonably effective weapons, are in service around the world, some of them with guerilla and revolutionary movements.

SecDef laudes U.S. 'dream'

As we observe yet another anniversary of our nation's independence, the thoughts of many Americans, my own included, turn toward you, the men and women who wear the uniform of your country.

It is you and your predecessors who have made it possible for generations of Americans to pursue the American dream. In the long run, that is all a government can honestly promise us — the opportunity for each to realize to the full all of his or her potential, free from external interference of aggression.

That in itself is a very large promise and one that requires a continuing, unified and steadfast commitment. We call that opportunity "freedom." Only an independent nation can offer freedom.

Declaring independence, as our forefathers did 207 years ago, is a far cry from achieving it. It took people like you to do that and to maintain it over the years.

Today, with ever increasing threats to the free world, it still takes the deeply committed and untiring efforts of all of us to preserve — to deter aggression, and to defeat aggressors if peaceful methods fail.

Marine retires

by Cpl Lorraine Brooks

"I had just taken the entrance examination for the Air Force and as I was leaving the office I saw two Marine recruiters in dress blues. I said to myself, 'Self, I want one of those!' I asked the recruiters how I could get one. They said, 'follow us' and I did."

That's the way Sergeant Major William Cockett, Headquarters Company, 1st Marine Brigade, described his decision to join the Marine Corps.

"Of all my experiences, next to combat, boot camp had to have been the most devastating experience," reminisced the sergeant major just minutes before he retired June 24.

"My first opportunity to leave Hawaii was when I enlisted in the corps. Back in 1957, it was a big deal just to go from one island to another and I had never even done that," he said laughingly. "It took 10 hours to reach the mainland and it was quite an experience for a young man who had never been off an island."

The flight time to the mainland has diminished to five hours since Cockett joined the Corps, and the leatherneck has witnessed other changes as well.

"I've seen better equipment developed, more intelligent troops and definitely a lot more comradeship. It seems to me that the troops are sticking together much more now than they have in the past. When a fellow Marine needs help his comrades are there to extend a hand," said the Hawaiian native.

Attitudes in the Corps have also changed, according to Cockett. "Senior enlisted Marines are giving 110 percent more toward the comfort of their troops. And, the troops' attitude has also changed. They are more vocal about their opinions, but at the same time they are respectful."

"My advice to young Marines is to keep working toward a goal in the Corps. Whatever you obtain in the Corps, whether it's work experience or life experience, you will be able to use it in civilian life, whenever you decide to return to it," said Cockett.

Future plans? "Well, my immediate task is to move home to Maui and go fishing," said the sergeant major as he imitated casting a line. "I've had a few job offers, but rest and relaxation are the immediate things on my agenda."

SNCO Wives Club isn't a gossip group

by Cpl Lorraine Brooks

"We are not a gossip group. We are a hard working group of wives who enjoy helping others," said Inez Thomas, president of the Staff Non-commissioned Officers Wives Club.

The SNCO Wives Club is a member of the Intra-Island Coordinating Council, a non-profit charitable organization of enlisted military wives.

Recently the council held their quarterly meeting at Schofield Barracks, where it was reported that the air station's club had given more than $1,384 to various activities during the last four months.

"Some of the money was given to local organizations such as Recreational Education for Adults and Children with Handicaps. However, most of the money was donated to organizations on the air station," said Thomas.

Donations from the wives club have provided disposable diapers at the dispensary, babysitters for families attending pre-deployment briefs, Operation Second Stage and Operation Homecoming, according to Thomas.

"We have also provided funds for the Hotline from the airport to the air station. The Hotline is used when a Marine comes to the island and there is no one at the airport to meet him. He can use the line to call the air station and someone will pick him up," said Thomas.

The club has also helped families in times of personal crisis such as fire or death.

Money that is donated by the club is raised through raffles and other fund raising activities.

Thomas says the wives are trying to draw attention to their purpose and goals. "We try to improve the lives of the Marines and their families here."

Anyone having the time and energy to devote to the club's goals are invited to join. Members must be wives of staff NCO's. However, women of junior enlisted men are invited to sit in on the meetings and participate in the activities, according to Thomas. The only difference is that they are not allowed to vote.

Meetings are held at 7 p.m. the first Monday of each month at the Staff NCO Club. For more information, call Inez Thomas (evenings), at 455-9541.

EDITORIAL / OPINION

Jogging craze draws fire/suggestions

by Sgt Inez J. Stoner

The best way to avoid accidents while jogging is to avoid jogging. It makes sense, but as evidenced by the herds of gasping, sweating bodies dotting the air station's roadways, joggers are just not going to stop jogging.

Americans in general and Marines in particular seem to have acquired an insatiable appetite for double-timing. It's got to be an ego thing. Why else would so many people claim so much pleasure from so much pain? Pain is good, extreme pain is extremely good.

Whatever their reasons, they continue to do it. And for every jogger beating feet down the road, there is a specialist telling him the "correct" way to do it. You'd be surprised at the number of jogging tips that come from people who don't even own a pair of designer jogging shoes.

Well, stand by (or double-time in place) while a few more rules and regulations are placed upon your already slouching shoulders. Because, if Marines are going to insist on running everywhere, they're going to have to show a little consideration for their safety and the safety of those with normal pulse rates and dry underarms.

First of all, jog facing traffic. This way, drivers can see by the jogger's face exactly when the convulsions are going to start and they can swerve to avoid messing up their cars. Marines will be Marines but they should avoid trying to stop moving vehicles with their bodies.

This is also a good reason for jogging as close to the edge of the pavement as possible. In addition, this gives the guy who's running only because he has to, the opportunity to trip over the edge of the pavement. The perfect excuse to stop jogging, if you're looking for an excuse.

If available, bike lanes and sidewalks should be used for jogging. This rule was designed either to (a) save the jogger from on-coming cars; (b) save the cars from runaway joggers; (c) run over the joggers with bicycles; (d) run over pedestrians with joggers; or (e) all of the above. Take your pick.

It is also advised that joggers wear light colored clothing. This makes the jogger more visible and gives the enemy a better chance at target acquisition.

Don't make a lot of noise by singing or chanting, especially near housing areas. If you do, the enemy will spot you quicker or you may find yourself doing a new form of exercise similar to dodging old shoes, rolling pins and dirty names. The only group of people more fanatic than joggers are mothers trying to get their kids to sleep.

There are several areas aboard the air station that are restricted to joggers. Don't jog in the swimming pool or in front of an F-4. Stay away from dogs, the commissary on payday and the clubs on the weekend. If you're a woman, don't run through gruntland unless you're working on increasing stamina and decreasing time.

Also, stay away from the air station's perimeter fence and the Nuupia Ponds. Don't run along the H-3 and stay away from (according to Station Message 271300W JAN 83) any other restricted access areas.

I suggest jogging through lava beds, straight up Kansas Tower, across the Pal or through Waikiki at night. Anything to get the blood pumping.

by Charlie Marshall

EDITOR'S NOTE: The story you are about to read is true. Only the names and route numbers have been changed to protect the innocent.

When was the last time you were tossed and turned while riding "The Bus?"

This topic of conversation arises quite frequently at scuttlebutts and coffee messes. Thanks to our "speed-demon" drivers, gossip circles on Oahu are kept alive and flourishing.

Quite often you hear, "Brenda, did I tell you what happened on The Bus this morning..." or "Last night, while I was waiting for The Bus..."

Everyone has a different version of the story and they get progressively funnier. Well, let me tell you about my last incident involving The Bus.

Last Friday, while waiting for the 56-KAILUA-Kaneohe bus, the 8 SALT LAKE zipped past my bus stop. As usual it was a new bus with nobody on it. The 52

EWA BEACH roared around the corner and again, a new bus with only three passengers. (I get it. Those new buses are only for show.)

Another five minutes passed (and another three empty buses) and a broken-down, graffiti-filled oil burner buzzed down the street packed to the brim. I just knew that this was my bus.

As I watched, I knew he had to be a veteran jockey, because, first, he sped up to 45 mph to make the yellow light, then, he crossed three lanes of heavy traffic to get into the right-hand lane and finally he came to a stop 10 feet down the road from where I was standing.

As the doors opened and a few passengers stumbled out, I dug into my pocket for a handful of change. I stepped on...but there was nowhere to go.

The bus driver kept saying, "Move to da back of da bus, da's plenty of room, keep movin'."

As always, there was a fatbody standing in the doorway. He couldn't hear the bus driver because he had a Walkman blasting in his ear, and he was taking his own sweet time counting change. I don't know why, but the bus driver was equally as slow handing him a transfer.

Everybody had to pay his fare and then squeeze by him. When it was my turn, he finally finished, took a step backwards and landed on my foot. (I picked a fine day to wear my Hawaiian sandals.)

The doors closed and The Bus started to move.

I had a handful of change and was trying to shake two quarters loose when a nickel fell into the change box. The driver glared at me; then, his eyes snapped back on the change box as he grated, "Hey Brah, ya guarda kinda shrunk, huh."

I really wasn't in the mood for this considering that I was already late for work. I almost told him to take his two bits and shove it.

As I slammed another quarter into the box my finger jammed and I dropped about $1.80's worth of change on the floor,

No sooner had the change hit when every kid from three to 13 was on the floor scrounging for it. Then, this little minion looked up at me and said, "Ya wanna move one foot, so I kin get dis dime."

As I reached down to strangle the "brat," the bus jolted from the transmission changing gears. Just like a set of dominoes, I hit the old lady with the umbrella, she smacked into the businessman clinging desperately to the rail, all three of us crashed into the nurse...and the chain went on.

The bus driver slammed on the brakes to see if anyone was injured and bam, bam, bam, bam...the whole sequence reversed. Now, instead of pinning the businessman against the college student, I was smeared against the windshield with the nurse's elbow in my jaw and the fat man's radio wire tangled around my throat.

"Bus driver, please open the door. I'm only a few miles from the air station and I'll walk from here."

Presidential curse nears death

by GySgt Theresa Gallagher

Voodoo priests, witch doctors, medicine men, satanists, sorcerers and wizards — do they exist?

Hexes, curses, whammies, spells, evil eyes, black magic — are they effective?

Seven United States presidents would probably say yes if they were alive to do so.

William Henry Harrison, who was elected in 1840; Abraham Lincoln, 1860; James Garfield, 1880; William McKinley, 1900; Warren Harding, 1920; Franklin D. Roosevelt, 1940; and John F. Kennedy, 1960 were all presidents elected in a year divisible by 20. Incidentally, they all died while still in office.

Legend has it that an Indian curse was put on Harrison that would also affect any U.S. president elected after him in a year ending with a zero.

Harrison, the first probable victim of the curse, was appointed governor of Indiana Territory by President John Adams in 1801, and set out to steal their land for settlers.

In their plight, the Indians combined forces with the British in the War of 1812.

Harrison, then a major general, recaptured Detroit from the British and in October 1813, defeated them and their Indian allies, led by the Shawnee chief, Tecumseh, and his brother, the Prophet, in the Battle of the Thames, in Canada.

Tecumseh died in that battle and the Prophet, who was the Shawnee medicine man, put a curse on Harrison and his government.

The March 30 assassination attempt on President Ronald Reagan's life would have brought the curse full circle and into the present...

had John W. Hinckley been successful. Although Reagan's reign isn't over, his powers may be those needed to neutralize the curse.

Names aren't enough

Once upon a time, a name was one of an individual's most unique features. But now that the Veterans Administration has entered the computer age, names and numbers distinguish people.

Consider this: VA computers contain the names of more than 304,000 Smiths, 202,000 Johnsons, 149,000 Williams and 144,000 Jones. The agency even lists 50 Ronald Reagans and more than 100 Harry Walters, the name of the new VA administrator.

Names become problems when former service members write to the agency and don't include military serial numbers, social security numbers or VA claim numbers. It isn't impossible to locate a veteran's file without one of these numbers but, with approximately 30 million names of former service members in VA files, including one of these numbers will help the Veterans Administration answer an inquiry more quickly.

3/3 Marines declared 'Super Squad' of 1983

by SSgt Ken Strausbaugh

In the tradition of victorious warriors, 14 Marines of Company I, 3d Battalion, 3d Marine Brigade brought honor and distinction to themselves and to the 1st Marine Brigade by winning the coveted title, "Super Squad."

The Super Squad competition, May 3-14 at Quantico, Va., tested the Marines' technical and tactical proficiency in seven events. Their victory was the direct result of months of intensive training.

The first event, the rifle range competition, tested the Marines' skills with light anti-tank assault weapons, M-203 grenade launchers, night firing, calling support fire from 81mm mortars, and the combat trophy course.

The Kaneohe devil dogs made an impressive showing in this event and their combined skills earned them second place in the rifle range competition.

The next event was the combat endurance run, a three-mile course, up and down the hills of Quantico, in a simulated combat situation.

Charging forward

The course took the Marines over, under, around and through strategically placed obstacles that pushed the leathernecks near their limits.

"There were officials all along the course," said Sergeant Carl Wilson, squad leader. "They were judging our endurance, teamwork and motivation. We were really up for that event."

According to Wilson, each squad was given a complete personnel and equipment inspection at the end of the run. "They wanted to see how much equipment we lost along the course. We had every piece of gear we started with," Wilson added confidently.

The squad members were then required to fire their weapons to ensure serviceability.

In this event, the Kaneohe Marines secured a solid first-place victory.

On the third event, the individual fire teams and squad leaders were tested on their ability to function separately.

One fire team was given a nuclear, biological and chemical problem. The team was required to treat a Marine who had been exposed to an unknown chemical agent and then transport him to a secure area.

Another fire team was given the undesirable task of locating and clearing a minefield. "We went strictly by the book on that one," said Corporal Richard Demais, grenadier rifleman for the first fire team. "We cleared the entire field with no problems. That's where training and teamwork come in handy."

The third fire team was judged on its ability to administer combat first aid to a wounded Marine, sans corpsman.

Explosive test

The squad leaders' test in the third event was no easy task. They were required to set in, fire and retrieve a live Claymore anti-personnel mine. Wilson's presence at evening chow attested to the success of his mission.

As would almost become habit, another first-place victory was secured by the India Company grunts.

The fourth event was a defensive combat problem. The scenario was as follows: A Marine platoon, set in a defensive position, was being attacked by an enemy force of unknown size. The platoon had taken numerous casualties and was in desperate need of reinforcements.

The squad's objective was to make its way to the beleaguered platoon and prepare defensive positions. Throughout the entire eight-hour exercise, the Marines were required to wear NBC suits.

To further test the endurance and initiative of the grunts, three Marines were designated as casualties at the start of the event. Since Marines never abandon their own, the casualties had to be transported by the rest of the squad to the objective.

Real casualty

As if the NBC suits and the designated casualties weren't problem enough, one of the Marines from here actually became a heat casualty during the exercise.

In true Marine Corps fashion, the 1st Marine Brigade devil dogs administered to their wounded, reached their objective in time, and established defensive positions. Mission accomplished, and another first-place victory.

The fifth event in the competition was a security patrol. The squad's objective was to locate several checkpoints and radio their locations back to the judges.

"At one checkpoint the enemy was waiting to ambush us," said Cpl Thomas Bullins, second fire team leader. "They hit us hard. We had a quick firefight, then they retreated back into the bush."

Bullins said a helicopter on a reconnaissance patrol radioed to the squad that an enemy patrol had been spotted at the next checkpoint, waiting in ambush.

"We had another firefight at the next checkpoint," Bullins said excitedly. "We beat them back again, but this time we found ourselves with two prisoners of war."

In order to test the effectiveness of the squad's chain of command, the officials declared the squad and first fire team leader killed in action during the second ambush. Bullins, being the next Marine in the chain of command, immediately assumed control of the squad.

"I knew I had a real problem on my hands," said Bullins. "I had KIAs and POWs to transport, and not enough men to provide flank security."

Initiative

"But I knew my problems were solved when I saw a field ambulance coming down the road. I told Cpl (Louis) Ward to get us that truck...any way he could."

Since Marines always follow orders, Ward halted the ambulance and "convinced" the two Navy corpsmen inside that it was in their best interest to give up their vehicle. They did.

"The corpsmen weren't even involved in the exercise," Bullins said amusedly. "Not until they ran into Ward that is."

Their initiative, judgement and aggressiveness secured another first place for the Kaneohe Marines.

The sixth event was an offensive combat problem. After flying into a landing zone, the squad moved to an assembly area to prepare for a live-fire attack on an enemy position of pop-up targets.

During this phase of the competition, the squads were judged on how well control was maintained during movement to the objective. Once at the objective, the squads were graded on their fire control and marksmanship.

Another first-place victory for the 1st Marine Brigade was added.

The seventh and final phase of the competition was the land navigation course. This 23-mile course zigzagged through dense Virginia countryside and took more than eight hours to complete. "I had checkpoints that were more than three miles apart," said Wilson. "We really hustled through the land-nav course, but only tied for third place."

Although the Kaneohe Marines swept the competition with five first-place, one second-place and one third-place victory, they were not informed of their standing in the competition until the Sunset Parade in their honor at Marine Barracks 8th and I.

"When they started to announce the winners, we all had butterflies in our stomachs," confided Wilson. "As soon as the announcer named the first runner-up, we knew we were the winners. When he announced us as the 'Super Squad of 1983,' we went wild. We ooh-rashed so loud that we drowned out the announcer."

After the parade, the new super squad had the honor of being photographed with General Paul X. Kelley, then Assistant Commandant of the Marine Corps and then Sergeant Major of the Marine Corps. Sgt Maj Leland Crawford.

"It was the greatest moment of my Marine Corps career," Demais said proudly. "It was even better than graduating from boot camp at Parris Island...and that's saying a lot."

Kailua parade...

"John Wayne couldn't make it because of a tight shooting schedule. I found Kirk Douglas at a bar in Waikiki. He couldn't make it either because of the film they were shooting."

Another famous person who "almost" participated in the parade, had to cancel his planned visit at the last minute. "In 1979 President Jimmy Carter was supposed to be in the parade. The whole island was excited about that. We had a lot of entries in the parade all of a sudden," said Farias. "The place was covered with secret service agents. President Carter had to cancel for some reason... but we still had a great parade."

The Kailua Fourth of July Parade has become a tradition on Oahu. From a modest beginning of less than 2,000 spectators, to the more than 40,000 people who lined the parade route last year, the parade has grown at an impressive rate.

This year's parade has the potential to be the biggest and best parade ever, according to Jack Richardson, chairman of the parade committee and honorary mayor of Kailua. "There will be over 4,000 people marching in the parade this year," said Richardson. "We have floats, clowns, horse units, car and motorcycle clubs, military units and at least seven bands. We'll have something for everyone."

Richardson explained the theme behind this year's parade "Polynesian Fourth of July." "Kailua is a small town but we have as much patriotic spirit as any town on the mainland. We might be the 50th state, but we're just as proud to be Americans as the people from any other state."

Organizing and controlling an event of such magnitude is by no means an easy task. Hundreds of hours of labor, plus months of planning and preparations are required to make the parade a success. "There will be over 200 people working behind the scene while the parade is going through Kailua," said Richardson.

One of the highlights of this year's festivities will be the fireworks display that will conclude the day's activities.

According to Al Mongeon, pyrotechnician in charge of the fireworks display, this year's display will be the largest ever seen in the skies of Windward Oahu.

An aerial portrait of light and color will be painted above Flat

Island beginning at 8 p.m. and lasting about an hour.

Grand Marshal Irmgard Aluli will preside over the parade that is scheduled to begin 10 a.m. at O'ahu Road in Kailua. The parade will travel more than a mile down Kailua Drive, working its way past tens of thousands of spectators, and will end at the Kailua Intermediate School on South Kailua Drive.

The reviewing stand for the judges will be located in front of St. Christopher's Church.

Adding to the festivities will be the Arts and Crafts Fair located in the parking lots of the Kailua Library and the Kailua Elementary School from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Consisting of more than 100 food and craft booths, the fair will offer a wide variety of tasty dishes and impressive products.

Continuous onstage entertainment will be provided during the fair. Hawaiian, contemporary and pop music will fill the air for those who come to shop, munch or just browse the day away.

ENTER THE FRITO-LAY CRUNCH COMPETITION AND WIN A TRIP TO DISNEYLAND VIA AMERICAN AIRLINES!

Celebrate the grand opening of Frito-Lay's new snack factory where great tasting chips are made fresh daily. Right here in Hawaii! The Frito-Lay "Crunch Competition" Grand Prize is a round trip for 4 via American Airlines to Disneyland. Or win one or 10 round trips for 2 via Aloha Airlines to the neighbor island of your choice. Or one of a 1000 half-pound bags of RUFFLES® or LAY'S® potato chips. Just visit the Frito-Lay display at your favorite participating store. Tear off a "Crunch Competition" entry form like the sample below. Then fill in the right Frito-Lay brand next to each clue! Listen to our favorite participating radio station for more fresh clues and a chance to win more great prizes. Let Hawaii's #1 chip maker send you to California's #1 attraction: Disneyland!

GRAND PRIZE: Round trip air transportation via American Airlines for a family of 4 to Los Angeles. Hotel accommodations (2 rooms) for 5 days and 4 nights. • unlimited passes for 2 days each to Disneyland. 10 First Prizes: Round trip air transportation for 2 via Aloha Airlines to the neighbor island of your choice. 1000 Second Prizes: A half-pound bag of RUFFLES® or LAY'S® potato chips, any flavor.

No purchase necessary. Pick up an entry blank and official rules from the Frito-Lay of Hawaii "Crunch Competition" display at your favorite participating store by July 23, 1983.

Entrants must be Hawaii residents, age 21 or older. Void where prohibited.

Shift gears for regionals

Leathernecks falter in league finals

by Cpl Christopher Wood

The Hawaii Marines stamped to within three games of the Armed Forces Softball League Championship Saturday, but were reined in by Richard's Hawaiians, 9-6.

Saturday's loss followed a four-game winning streak, which saw the leathernecks rout Sizzler, Athletes in Action, the Air Force Flyers and the Al Harrington team. The Marines lost their first tournament game Tuesday to Koolau.

"We're just going to have to shift gears going into the regionals," said Master Gunnery Sergeant Dave Burnett, Hawaii Marines coach. The regionals, which pit Hawaii leathernecks against Marines from the Western Pacific, began Monday at Rieley Field Complex.

Here's how the action went: The Marines rebounded from Tuesday's loss with a stunning victory over Sizzler. Outstanding defensive plays and powerhouse hitting contributed to a 16-6 rout.

"We got ahead, kept the pressure on and played well defensively," Burnett remarked. "We got back in our game tonight."

When both teams are at their best, the Hawaii Marines and Athletes in Action are the best ball clubs in the league, Burnett said. That's why Hickam's cool winds seemed charged with electricity as the two teams faced off Friday.

With the help of Hawaii Marine errors, AIA pulled ahead with a 5-0 lead in the first inning. The leathernecks retaliated with three, but remained on the bottom until the fifth inning, when Sergeant Guillermo "Panama" Foster tied the score at nine with a two-run homer over the left field fence.

AIA edged ahead briefly in the sixth, but the HMs finally pulled in front at the bottom of the inning and maintained their lead through the seventh, winning 14-12.

Saturday's action began with an incredible victory over the Air Force. With home runs by Lance Corporal Thad Hammond, Private First Class Roger Dunnam, LCpl Clint Evans, Sgt Scotty Nobles, and Foster, the devil dogs shot down the Flyers, 17-5, with play ending in the fifth inning because of the enormous lead.

That victory contrasted sharply to their next triumph, over the Al Harrington team, which took on a sour note. After going down one, two, three in the first, the Marines were anxious to hold the Harrington team in the bottom of the inning. But when a ground ball, ricocheting like a rocket, smacked Chief Warrant Officer-2 John Roberts (1st baseman) in the face, the team was visibly shaken.

Roberts, a veritable giant, went down like a sack of potatoes and was rushed to Pearl Harbor Regional Medical Facility, where he was given 15 stitches above the mouth.

After holding "Ais," the Marines went to work. Evans started the softballs soaring with a two-run homer over the left field fence in the second inning. Dunnam scored later in the inning, giving the Marines a 3-0 lead. Ais retaliated with one.

A couple more runs were exchanged during the game, but the leathernecks emerged victorious, 5-3. Then came the Hawaiians.

For awhile, it seemed that the Marines would carry their winning momentum right through the game. Indeed, a five-run first inning got them off to a good start.

They stayed in front until the bottom of the fifth, when the Hawaiians came across with four runs, taking the lead and maintaining it to the end. The Hawaiians won, 9-6.

"We just ran out of gas," Burnett commented. "Of course it's a psychological effect when you lose one of the team leaders. Everybody presses themselves trying to pick up for him."

Sportsnotes

The Hawaii Marine Athletic Council Golf Tournament tees off July 1-4 at the Kaneohe Klipper. Deadline for registration is tomorrow at the station gymnasium. Eligible handicaps: seniors (over 40), 6 or below; open, 7 or below. Camp Smith and Marine Barracks personnel are eligible, but must pre-register with the Kaneohe athletics office by tomorrow at 257-3550/3622.

Staff Sergeant Bob Seale, Marine Fighter Attack Squadron-212, has volunteered to coach this year's varsity volleyball program. Extensive practice and conditioning starts now and ends with the All-Marine program in May of next year. All superior athletes, men and women (especially basketball players), are urged to contact Seale at 257-2856. Practice will be Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7:30-9:30 p.m., starting next week.

The tri-annual racquetball tournament will start at 9 a.m. July 23-24 and will continue the following week, after duty hours, until completed. Players are urged to pre-register now on the sign-up sheets by the racquetball courts in the gymnasium.

Hawaii State Class "A" Men's Slow-pitch Softball will be July 1-4 at Fort Shafter and Schofield Barracks. The Hawaii Marines are the three-time defending state champions. Schedules of games will be available at the athletics office tomorrow.

The Kilihi Jets Athletic Club will host the Sixth Annual Charlie Kaulukui Women's Softball tournament Friday through Sunday.

Opening ceremonies will be 7 p.m. Friday at Cartwright Field. This is located at the corner of Kainua and Keeaumoku streets. The games Saturday and Sunday will be played at Kamamalu Field at the corner of Pali and Vineyard behind the Nuuanu Young Men's Christian Association.

Organizational meetings for upcoming sports are as follows:
Recreational slow-pitch softball July 13
Intramural volleyball July 14
Flag football July 27
All meetings are at noon at the station gymnasium.

The Hawaii Division of Forestry and Wildlife urges all citizens to report game law violators to the island office of the Conservation and Resources Enforcement Division. After hours on weekends and holidays, call the Conservation Hotline at 548-5918 on Oahu. From other islands, make a toll free call by asking the operator for Enterprise 5469.

The first invitational Mr. and Ms. Hawaiian All-Service Physique Championship will be conducted Saturday at Camp Smith. For more information, call First Sergeant Henry Hill at 477-5071.

The Fleet Marine Force, Pacific Slow-pitch Softball Tournament continues at 4 p.m. tonight, with the men playing a double-header at Risely Field Complex. If another game is required, it will be played tomorrow at 5 p.m. The women's program commences at 5:30 p.m. tomorrow at Camp Smith. Evening games will be held Friday, with afternoon games on the weekend.

If you have a suggestion concerning possible sports stories — or complaints about articles already published — please contact the Hawaii Marine sports editor, Corporal Christopher Wood, at 257-2170.

Windward Triathlon scheduled for August

The Oahu Triathlon Association has announced scheduling of the Windward Triathlon to be hosted by the Marine Corps Air Station Kaneohe Bay, Aug. 21, to benefit the Boys Club of Honolulu.

The race course will be on the Marine Corps Air Station and elsewhere on Windward Oahu. It will consist of a one-mile swim, a 50-mile bike contest (parts of the original ironman course) and a 10-mile run.

Entries will be limited to 500 and categorized in approximately 18 5-year age groups.

The one-half ironman was listed on recent mainland calendars, and applications have been received from triathletes in several states.

Race sponsors are providing trophies, awards and prizes valued in thousands of dollars, including elite division prizes and a special award to finishers in the top 50 percent bracket.

T-shirts will be included in the race packet, and training programs will be available to entrants at the Kapiolani branch of the Courthouse Racquetball & Health Club.

For race applications and further information, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Oahu Triathlon Association, P.O. Box 90141, Honolulu, 96835.

'Armed Forces night' declared by Islanders

The Hawaii Islanders have designated Tuesdays as "Armed Forces Night" for all 1983 home games at Aloha Stadium. A 2-for-1 discount will be given military personnel and their families with a military I.D. card at the stadium ticket window.

General admission is normally $2 each for a serviceman and his wife, Sunday through Thursday, and $2.50 on other days of the week. However, it will be $2 for both — or any other military twoosome — Tuesdays. Five Tuesday "Armed Forces Nights" are scheduled as follows: July 5 — Islanders vs. Portland; July 12 — vs. Phoenix; July 19 — vs. Phoenix; August 9 — Islanders vs. Tacoma; Aug. 16 — vs. Tacoma.

Secrets of the Russian Army...

INSIDE THE SOVIET ARMY

by Viktor Suvorov

Viktor Suvorov is a high ranking Soviet Army officer who has defected to the West. In this timely book he reveals, for the first time, secrets about the armament, tactics and attitudes of the world's largest conventional army, our chief military rival. Despite its technical nature, he discusses the subject in conversational, understandable terms. This is one of the important books of the year.

Golf:

by Cpl Christopher Wood

Teamwork contributed to a comeback victory for 2d Battalion, 3d Marines Wednesday, in the Intramural Golf Championships at the Kaneohe Klipper.

The ground forces matched scores with Station Operations and Maintenance Squadron (Crash Crew) at the final hole, so the winners of the first hole were declared tournament champions.

Sergeant Douglas Hunter, Headquarters Company, 3d Marines, was largely responsible for the eleventh-hour tie.

"Hunter was the deciding factor," said Sgt Rick Miller, team captain. "He played outstanding."

The leatherneck's "outstanding play" was a sand shot on the 18th hole. From the sand, he worked his way to within four feet of the hole. A skilled putt tied the two teams at six.

"It was big-time pressure," Miller remarked. "The tournament was a team effort, but Doug deserves the glory."

"I just concentrated and tried to get close to at least have a chance at a putt," Hunter commented. "It's a very good feeling. But it was a team effort — not just one shot."

Private First Class Jay Monrrial, another member of the team, agrees. "If one of us wasn't here, we would have lost," he said.

2/3 takes spring title edges past SOMS (CC)

According to Sgt Don Felts, all it took was practice. "We spent a lot of time in after-hours practice," he remarked. "Everybody coached each other, and we all worked well together."

"We proved that the ground side can do something besides go to the field," he added with a grin.

SOMS (team 1) and SOMS (Aircraft Maintenance) took third and fourth places respectively.

IRS taxes extra income

Hobbies... most people have at least one, whether it be sewing, bowling, gardening, gourmet cooking, or making pottery. Hobbies are designed to give personal satisfaction — and in some cases, extra income.

As any tourist will attest, many people are into crafts. Gift stores have sizeable stocks of handmade items which tickle the fancy of most shoppers. Although these craft items were made as a hobby, the income derived from them is taxable for federal tax purposes, the Internal Revenue Service points out.

Many people breed and sell animals as a hobby; others farm a few acres of land while working a full-time job elsewhere. It's important that hobbyists know how the IRS sees the difference between a hobby and a business. Generally, a hobby is more for pleasure than for business and losses from a hobby are not deductible. A business hobbyist is allowed to deduct operating expenses, but not more than the amount of taxable income the business generates.

In order to claim an activity as a business rather than a hobby, a crafter must be able to show that the activity was for the specific purpose of making a profit. He must have conducted the business as a hard-headed, profit-motivated person would; that is, advertising, promoting, and doing what can be done to maximize sales and minimize costs.

If a business is run from a basement, for example, the operator must be able to prove that the basement was not used for any other purpose in order to claim the home office deduction.

With respect to hobbies, if people make items for sale at such events as flea markets, for instance, they must report the income derived from the sales.

Many activities that began as simple hobbies blossomed into business ventures. Records should be kept because any equipment purchased for business may be subject to depreciation, a plus for the taxpayer's tax situation.

Carrier of the Week

A newspaper route can be a classroom.

There are no walls, no blackboards, no desks on a newspaper route. Nothing but fresh, open air. Yet you will find on the route a young person learning.

Learning to keep records.
Learning to handle money.
Learning the value of money.
Learning to make change.
Learning responsibility.
Learning to get along with people.
Learning how business operates.
Learning how to manage time.
Learning lessons that will help toward success in later life.

If newspaper route management as a learning experience looks like a good idea for your son or daughter, talk today with our circulation department. They'll tell you how it works and they are there to help the youngster. There is no obligation.

HAWAII MARINE CIRCULATION POLICY

Each week, the HAWAII MARINE is delivered to all homes and apartments. Your carrier delivers the HAWAII MARINE and will call on you every few weeks.

If delivery service is satisfactory, and you enjoy the HAWAII MARINE, your voluntary payment will be a reward to our young businessman for a job well done. It's an incentive to work hard, and it's a way of letting our circulation department know which boys and girls are giving the best service.

The young carrier pictured above is a local businessman... a HAWAII MARINE carrier. Most likely, this is his first business venture, and it is an important educational experience. As one of his customers, you can make his route a way to genuine personal achievement and growth.

If you have any complaint about your HAWAII MARINE or the delivery service, please call 247-8755.

CARRIER APPLICATION

The HAWAII MARINE has openings for carriers. Responsible HAWAII MARINE workers earn as much as $10 per week for only a few hours work. If you want a business route of your own near your neighborhood, please mail in the application for information.

MESSANGER SERVICE — Marine Attack Squadron-513 "Hootowls" bring the message home in formation. Each runner logged approximately six miles of the estimated 175-mile run from Lake Havasu City to MCAS, Yuma delivering a message from the mayor of Lake Havasu City.

Yuma Marines run relay race for Navy Relief

MARINE CORPS AIR STATION, YUMA, Ariz. — In true Olympian tradition, 30 Marines representing Marine Attack Squadron-513, ran almost 200 miles of hot Arizona desert in relay style, passing on a message from the mayor of Lake Havasu City to MCAS, Yuma officials.

The Navy Relief benefit run in platoon formation started at 11 a.m. May 1 in Lake Havasu City and finished in front of the 513 Hootowls' hangar at 9 a.m. the following day.

After 22 hours of continuous running, the message was presented to Lieutenant Colonel T.J. Klug, Marine Combat Crew Readiness Training Group-10 executive officer, and Colonel R.C. Andreas, air station commanding officer.

The message read in part: "Whereas traditionally VMA-513 holds an annual relay run for the Navy Relief Society dedicated to raising funds for those Marines and their families who have met with tragedy or misfortune."

"Whereas Lake Havasu City is the American home for England's London Bridge."

"Therefore I, Richard L. Hilman, mayor of Lake Havasu City do hereby proclaim this year's annual relay run to be known as 'England to America, AV-8s all the way.'"

STRETCH YOUR MIND WHILE YOU STRETCH YOUR COLLEGE DOLLARS.

The Army College Fund way to get the money for college makes a lot of sense. To qualify, you must be a high school graduate, make good marks on the Armed Services qualification test, and enlist and train in one of several selected skills that will challenge and stretch your mind.

You can start immediately putting aside the money for college. And for every $1 you save out of your salary (over $570 a month), the government will add more than $5. If you put up $100 a month in a 2-year enlistment, you'll have $15,200 for college. And you'll have a technical skill that might help you decide what to take in college.

Your Army Recruiter has a booklet that explains all about the Army College Fund. Pick one up.
