Military justice streamlined

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article is being used with the permission of Navy Times.

by Martha Lynn Craver

WASHINGTON — Either the government or the accused will be able to appeal decisions by the Court of Military Appeals to the Supreme Court following passage by Congress of the Military Justice Act of 1983.

In the last days of the session, Congress gave final approval to the bill which also will streamline the military justice system by changing pre- and post-trial procedures and the appellate review process. The Reagan administration supported the bill, and the President is expected to sign it into law soon.

"Allowing the government or the accused to appeal to the Supreme Court is a very significant change," said a senior staffer on the House Armed Services Committee.

"Of course, the review of cases would be at the discretion of the supreme Court justices," the staffer said.

"Before this bill, there was no authority for either party to seek Supreme Court review of decisions by the Court of Military Appeals."

There is no other major federal judicial body whose decisions are similarly insulated from Supreme Court review," added a staffer from the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Limiting the automatic appeal of courts-martial to death sentence cases is another significant change in the legislation, said both staffers.

Currently, every court-martial involving a sentence of death, confinement for one year or more or a punitive discharge must be appealed to a Court of Military Review, even if the accused does not want to appeal. Also, every general court-martial where review by a Court of Military Review is not required must be reviewed in the Office of the Judge Advocate General.

The legislation approved by Congress would end the automatic appeal/review requirement, except in cases where the death penalty is involved. The accused would have to request the appeal in all other cases.

Current pretrial procedures require the convening authority (usually the installation commander) to make a legal determination as to whether or not a case should go to a general court-martial. The legislation approved by Congress will allow these judgments to be made by the staff judge advocate, although the convening authority would have the final say.

Current law also requires the convening authority to review cases after the trial for legal error. The bill will end this requirement.

"The bill retains the requirements that the convening authority act on the case, but emphasizes that this role primarily involves a determination as to whether the findings or sentence should be modified as a matter of command prerogative (as a matter of clemency) rather than as a result of formal appellate review," a Senate staffer said.

A separate article dealing with drug offenses also will be added to the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

"This has become necessary due to the seriousness of the drug offense matter and, therefore, the necessity for a distinct and common punitive article in all of the military services," said Rep. G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery (D-Miss.) when the bill was being debated on the House floor.

A change was made to the Manual for Courts Martial by President Reagan last year that accomplishes the same thing, so as a practical matter adding the separate punitive article for drug offenses will have no effect on the individual soldier or commander, a DoD official explained.

"The addition of the separate article for drug offenses is mostly to emphasize congressional concern about the drug problem," said the official.

Finally, the bill will establish a nine-member commission to study further changes to the military justice system and make recommendations to the Congress.

NCOs renovate playground

Story and photos
by Sgt R.D. Dewey

The noncommissioned officers of Headquarters and Service Company, 3d Battalion, 3d Marines embarked upon their first community awareness project at Mokapu Elementary School, Dec. 17.

Approximately 15 Marines and their supporting Navy corpsmen turned out to renovate the school's playground equipment, which was badly in need of repair and paint.

"We formed our 70-man NCO mess about three weeks ago, to instill the ideas of NCO unity and leadership within the community and our own command," said Sergeant Marvin Kennedy, president, NCO mess. "We then volunteered to renovate the school equipment to prove our community awareness.

"I initially spoke to the principal of Mokapu Elementary School," continued Kennedy, "about the possibility of volunteering NCO mess manpower to the school. I then presented my proposal before a meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association."

"The PTA provided paint, brushes, and stripping equipment," explained Kennedy. "Some members of the NCO mess also brought their own equipment from home."

The NCOs weren't the only individuals to show up during the playground equipment renovation. Sergeant Major James McGuirk, 1st Marine Brigade, jogged by to motivate the NCOs in true "McGuirk" style.

"I started out with many of you when you first got here, as your sergeant major," said McGuirk, who was formerly sergeant major of 3/3. "I know the kind of material you're made of. I just wanted to say that you've still got it! You're still fired up! And, I'm very proud of you!"

The playground equipment renovation was the first project for the NCO mess, but it won't be the last.

"We haven't decided what we'll do next," said Kennedy, "but we do want to continue our work within the community. We don't want to get started too fast however, we want to complete one project before going on to another. We'd also like to get our company area squared away."

"Our command thinks the NCO mess is a great idea," continued Kennedy. "They're willing to give us all the support we need."

'Hawaii Marine' takes DoD award

by GySgt Theresa Gallagher

"We did it!" resounded through the four-room complex of the Joint Public Affairs Office. "We won the T.J.! We're the best civilian commercial enterprise newspaper in the Department of Defense."

The shouts echoed the response to a telephone call Dec. 20 from Major Bill Wood, former air station public affairs director. Official notification came the next day.

Less than a month ago the office staff received word that the Hawaii Marine had won the Headquarters Marine Corps level of competition in the prestigious Thomas Jefferson Awards contest and would represent the Corps in the DoD portion. The staff was equally excited then, but was concerned about the stiff competition from the Army, Air Force and Navy.

The annual contest is sponsored by the Office of Assistant Secretary of Defense (PA) to stimulate and reward excellence and professionalism in military print and broadcast journalism.

"They also recognize outstanding achievement in promoting a fuller understanding of the missions of the United States Armed Forces; and in informing our military personnel on the events of the times, their heritage as American citizens, and the vital roles they play in the defense of the nation and the preservation of peace," said Gunnery Sergeant Steve Merrill, Division of Public Affairs, Headquarters Marine Corps.

The 1983 T.J. Awards judging was held at the Defense Information School, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. Nov. 29 and Dec. 8, and covered 22 categories — half print, half broadcast. The Hawaii Marine was judged in the "civilian commercial enterprise newspaper" category.

Judges for the print competition were: Paul V. Peterson, professor of journalism and communication, Ohio State University; Anne Keegan, feature writer, Chicago Tribune; and Gene F. Polinski, deputy page one editor, USA Today.

The judges studied three issues of the Hawaii Marine selected from the eligibility period of Oct. 1, 1982 through Sept. 30, 1983. Incidentally, each paper had a different editor. They were Staff Sergeant William Saunders, Sergeant Greg Berry and Corporal Christopher Wood. The issues were evaluated on content, the quality of stories, priority of those stories, headlines and photos, and layout and design.

"It's a due reward for the hours spent in preparation, format changes, and the weekly sweat of maintaining standards and surpassing them," said Captain Mary Wilkowski, air station PA director. "It represents a culmination of a lot of people's efforts who have come and gone in this office. It's been an evolutionary process. I'm glad the Marine Corps won, and particularly glad that we won."

In addition to the HQMC Division of Public Affairs Merit Award earned for winning the Corpwide competition, the staff will receive a first-place plaque from DoD.

That excites Bill Buck, deputy director and one-time public affairs chief here. "It's utterly fantastic. It reflects recognition of long hours and personal sacrifices the writers, editors and photographers make to produce the Hawaii Marine each week."

And how do the sacrificial lambs feel? "Great!" according to Corporal Maria Chambard, media clerk/OJT writer and most recent addition to the staff. "I'm not even permanent personnel yet, but it's a nice feeling to know you're working for the best."

Marriage preparation

A Marriage Preparation Workshop will be conducted at the Bellows Beach Club from 7:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Jan. 11-12. Service members and their fiancées are encouraged to attend in addition to those recently married.

Topics to be presented at the workshop include Couples in Communication, Health and Sexuality, Fair Fighting and Conflict Resolution. Interested parties should contact their commanding officer, for a quota and issuance of no-cost TAD orders in accordance with BdeO 1752.1. Deadline for registration is Jan. 4, 1984.

Automotive excellence

The National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence Tests will be administered nationwide May 15, 17 and 19. These written tests given twice yearly, are designed to measure the diagnostic and repair knowledge of automotive mechanics.

When you pass one or more of the NIASE tests, and meet the two year work requirement, you become certified by NIASE and earn the right to wear the NIASE patch. Car and truck owners, as well as vehicle service employers, are always looking for competent mechanics to diagnose and repair vehicle problems. By achieving NIASE certification, you can show them that you have the knowledge and skills that they are seeking.

If enough interest is shown in the tests, they will be administered at the Joint Education Center here. There is a $10 registration fee and a $10 examination fee per test. If you have any questions about these tests or would like to register for one or more of them, contact the Joint Education Center, Building 219, by March 15, 1984.

Roosevelt courses

Roosevelt University

ty's satellite campus at the Joint Education Center here offers computer science courses to Marines and their dependents. A Roosevelt representative is available for student counseling.

A typical semester runs eight weeks with classes meeting 40-48 contact hours. Lab classes, which include hands-on use of the computer terminals, meet twice weekly for three-hour sessions. Students find this convenient because it doesn't interfere with their jobs or require them to be in class more than two evenings a week.

Another advantage to this program is that it can be completed in a short period of time. This attracts the Marine who works irregular hours or who frequently deploys and cannot be tied up with night school for long periods of time. With eight-week semesters people can make short-term adjustments in their planning.

Students at Roosevelt have the chance to work with state of the art equipment and to do so in a comfortable environment. Control Data Corporation, a leader in computer technology, provides Roosevelt students a modern facility including carpeted, air-conditioned classrooms and a recently expanded terminal room.

Who can attend? Anyone with a high school diploma who passes the admissions test. Transfer students with 12 semester hours of college credit do not take the test.

Counseling is available to provide interested persons with detailed information concerning the various degree options and certificate programs. Appointments can be made by calling 836-2254. At Kaneohe call 254-2687.

Roosevelt counselors visit the Education Centers at military bases on Oahu. The Roosevelt Computer Science program is approved for both veterans and active duty personnel utilizing tuition assistance.

Commandant testifies on Beirut bombing

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the third in a series of articles featuring remarks by General P.X. Kelley, Commandant of the Marine Corps, to the Senate and House Armed Services Committees on Oct. 31. In his statement, the Commandant discussed the tragic bombing of the Marine Headquarters in Beirut, Lebanon on Oct. 23.

In late August, armed conflict between the LAF and AMAL militia in West Beirut began in earnest. On Sept. 4, the Israeli Defense Forces withdrew to the Awali River, bringing active fighting and factional conflict to the Alayh and Chouf regions above Beirut. Sustained hostile fire, some directed primarily at our Marines, impacted at the airport with increasing frequency. The shooting in and around Beirut was at ammunition levels rivaling major battles of World War II — over a million artillery rounds. Our Marines took appropriate measures to harden their positions, increase their alert status, and to move all support personnel in the terminal complex into reinforced buildings for protection against this intense shelling. The shelling was sufficient to halt all operations at the airport. When fired upon, the USMNF fired at specific targets with appropriate counterbattery fire.

Our naval gunfire support for the LAF was a major influence on the subsequent ceasefire, but unfortunately some could conclude that it may have increased the Moslem perception that our Marines were pro-Christian and no longer neutral. Be that as it may, I am in no position to judge. During this trying period of heavy fighting, the intelligence community continued to carry terrorist attacks as an active threat, but the threat was non-specific and general, and overshadowed by the very specific and active reality of conventional military action.

The ceasefire on Sept. 26 brought a fragile and uneasy peace to Beirut, but sniping at Marines became a daily occurrence. This brought us to a new phase. The warnings of the terrorist threat resurfaced from the intelligence community. While terrorist bomb intelligence continued to be non-precise, the focus of attention appeared to be the threat of car bombs to convoys providing support to the U.S. diplomatic community in Beirut. Roughly 100 car-bomb possibilities were developed since June 1, 1983. In some instances, the makes, colors and license numbers were provided. Marines on security duty received this information. All U.S., French, Italian, British and LAF units were looking for suspicious automobiles — particularly as they related to convoys. The threat became a reality on Oct. 19, 1983, when a car-bomb was detonated in an attempt to impede a Marine supply convoy en route to the temporary Embassy about 12km from the headquarters. Alertness and protective measures already taken by the Marines minimized the results of this attack. Like the car bomb at the beach the previous November, the attack against the convoy can be judged a failure.

At the same time, it must also be remembered that the cease fire was beginning to break down. Artillery fire in the Chouf was intermittently resumed, as was the small arms fire against the Marines. The terrorist threat remained vague while the active threat from artillery and small arms was increasing.

What I have been attempting to paint for you is a picture of Beirut for the past year. It is only within the framework of that picture can you have any hope of understanding the tragic events of a week ago.

A world where violence and normalcy live side by side. Marines on a diplomatic mission — located in a busy airport complex whose traffic and congestion rival that of any city — a Marine unit whose well-being depends upon the intelligence furnished to protect itself. A Marine unit which for months has undergone the indignity of attack with discipline and forbearance. A force of men whose morale remains high in spite of all that has happened.

I would now like to describe what occurred on Sunday morning, Oct. 23, and why we believe that only extraordinary security could have met that massive and unanticipated threat.

At daybreak, a 5-ton capacity Mercedes truck (roughly the size of a large dump truck and a type commonly seen at the Beirut International Airport) entered a public parking lot adjacent to the four-story, steel-reinforced concrete and sandbagged building which housed the headquarters elements of BLT 1/8. After making a complete circle of the parking lot for acceleration, and while travelling at a high speed, this truck:

—crashed through the outer defense of a barbed wire emplacement,

—moved at high speed between two sandbagged sentry posts,

—passed through a gate in an iron fence — jumped over a sewer pipe which had been placed as an obstacle to impede the forward movement of vehicles,

—plowed through a sandbag barrier,

—hit with precision a four-foot wide passenger entry into the lobby where its cargo, estimated by the Defense Intelligence Agency to be 5,000 pounds of explosives, detonated.

The entire event, which can best be described as the delivery by a suicidal driver of a 5,000-pound truck-bomb at very high speed, took approximately six seconds from start to finish. Rough calculations indicate that it would require a massive concrete wall to stop a vehicle of this weight and travelling at this speed. It is of particular importance to note that the Commander's security was oriented toward the threat of the past several months, i.e., artillery, rockets, mortars, small arms and car-bombs. In this context, his security efforts had been successful. Obviously, the Commander's security arrangements were inadequate to counter this form of "kamikaze" attack. But, we have yet to find any shred of intelligence which would have alerted a reasonable and prudent commander to this new and unique threat. There was not even the indication of a capability to undertake such a monumental and precise action. General Tannous, the commander of the Lebanese Armed Forces, informed me that he cannot recall, in his vast experience, a terrorist attack of the type which hit the headquarters of BLT 1/8 on Oct. 23, 1983. In his opinion, it represents a new and unique terrorist threat, one which could not have been reasonably anticipated by any commander.

Almost simultaneously, a smaller vehicle approached an eight-story apartment building to the north of Beirut International Airport which housed the French contingent. Since this building is on a busy thoroughfare, there would be no reason to suspect its intention. As it approached the building, it accelerated, took a sharp right into the driveway, and forced entry into an underground garage — where it exploded. During a personal conversation, General Cann, the commander of the French contingent of the MNF, informed me that he had no intelligence which would have warned him of this threat, as did General Anziani, the commander of the Italian contingent.

I believe it important to recognize that there is sufficient evidence to conclude that both incidents were not suicidal acts by some individual fanatic. They were instead, well planned and professionally executed acts of terrorism which appear designed to drive our U.S. presence from Lebanon.

To bring you up-to-date, it is my professional estimate that our Marines have been targeted for terrorism by highly professional non-Lebanese elements. In my view, these acts of violence will continue, and the perpetrators will carefully examine and analyze our vulnerabilities and make every effort to exploit them. In short, I firmly believe that highly sophisticated and well-trained terrorists will target our Marines in the months to come. Therefore, I do not believe that we can ever create an effective passive capability which can counter all forms of terrorism in Lebanon or anywhere else.

With the foregoing said, I will now discuss initiatives which are underway or contemplated for an increased security. The 24th MAU is in the process of decreasing vulnerability associated with large concentrations of Marines. Specifically:

- LAF APC's have been positioned at the BIA terminal and at the traffic circle in front of the airport.
- Vehicle access to command posts is now restricted to emergency and military vehicles.
- Civilian pedestrian access to the command posts has been restricted to one location.

— MAU units have been placed in an indefinite "Condition 1" (highest level) alert status.

— All entrances to the command posts have been blocked and reinforced.

— All rifle companies have reinforced the perimeter fence lines adjacent to their positions.

— An additional 50 caliber machine gun has been positioned to cover avenues of approach into the command post.

— Additional guard posts have been established throughout the MAU area, and an additional rifle company was sent from Camp Lejeune to provide security during the period of the recovery operations.

— Mobile reconnaissance patrols with anti-tank weapons have been established within the BIA perimeter.

— BLT 2/6 command element arrived at Beirut on Oct. 25 to replace BLT 1/8, command elements.

— Definitive action is underway to strengthen the 24th MAU positions and to reduce vulnerability to terrorist attacks by isolating and barricading command and control and support areas.

In summary, I believe that:

— Our security measures were not adequate to stop a large, heavily laden truck, loaded with 5,000 pounds of high explosive, travelling at a high speed and driven by a suicide driver, which executed the attack in seconds from start to finish. This "flying truck bomb" was an unprecedented escalation in the previous terrorist threat, both in size of the weapon and method of delivery. I must continue to emphasize, however, that under our current disposition, restrictions, and mission, we will always have vulnerabilities, and that the other side will make every effort to exploit them.

That completes my statement. I would like to make two final comments:

I recognize that there remain many unanswered questions and a great deal of confusion surrounding this tragic event. For example, it is reported that the commander, Colonel Geraghty, stated that he received a warning of the threat two days before the incident. The following message from him clarifies what he actually said, and I quote: "Sir, comment made to media was a general statement on car bomb warnings. At the weekly intelligence meeting between MNF Intel Officers and the Office of Beirut Security (SURETE GENERALE), a listing of suspected car bombs, complete with car descriptions and license plate numbers, is disseminated to the MNF by security officials. These car descriptions are copied and disseminated to our posts. Since our arrival, at least 100 potential car bombs have been identified to the MNF. After the attack on our convoy on Oct. 19, 1983, the car bomb threat was quite obviously real to the USMNF; however, specific information on how car bomb attacks were to be conducted (i.e., kamikaze) or a description of the large truck that conducted the attack on the BLT were never received by 24 MAU."

Another example is that I was reported to have stated last week that security was adequate. Here let me set the scene and the context in which my remarks were made.

Five thousand pounds of high explosives destroyed a four-story steel reinforced concrete building. It was a heap of rubble. For over fifty hours, day and night, young Marines clawed at steel and concrete — more to save the injured who were trapped at the time than to recover the dead. The emotional scars were already deep — "Why me?", they asked. "Why am I alive and my buddies are dead?"

Their Commandant was asked, "was security adequate?" I replied yes — it was adequate to meet what any reasonable and prudent commander should have expected prior to dawn on Sunday, Oct. 23, 1983. And, I want you to know in that atmosphere my remarks were directed to weary and frustrated Marines."

Let me phrase what I was saying in a different way:

If you were to ask me whether the security around the headquarters building was adequate to protect the occupants against a 5-ton Mercedes truck carrying 5,000 pounds of explosives at high speed — my answer would be NO!

If you were to ask me, on the other hand, would a reasonable and prudent commander have sufficient cause to suspect such a threat from intelligence sources available to him — again, the answer would be NO!

And, if you would ask me whether the commander should have known, given the explosion in the Embassy in April, my answer again would be NO! Both instances involved a terrorist bombing from a motor vehicle, but there the similarity ends. The delivery system was totally different as was every other aspect of the two incidents.

For these reasons, Mr. Chairman, I urgently requested the inquiry previously mentioned to determine the facts in an atmosphere that is conducive to such an inquiry. Knowing the Secretary of Defense as I do, and the respect I have for Admiral Long, there is no question in my mind that it will be a complete and thorough examination of this awful tragedy. I suggest we all await the board's findings.

I could not conclude my report to you without addressing the manner in which we reported our casualties. I know of your concern and share it. Our procedures have appeared to be excruciatingly slow. Please understand that in the impact of the destruction of the BLT Headquarters, and the tragic loss of life, our casualty reporting procedures for BLT 1/8 were destroyed. The requirements placed on the survivors to extricate and evacuate killed and wounded Marines as soon as possible, and the necessity to proceed slowly with regard to reporting for the sake of accurate identification and notification of the next of kin, were staggering. Due to the size of the task at hand and the painfully slow progress in this regard, the decision was made to release the names of those Marines who survived this disaster. We did not do this before for obvious reasons. The process was slow, mainly because of the need for complete accuracy. We didn't want to hurt anyone needlessly. Marines and members of your staffs worked tirelessly to ensure that timely and accurate information was released. The enormity of the situation is still upon us, and no one could feel more remorse than I over the prolonged suffering caused to many families by unavoidable delays in notifying them of their loved one's status.

The Marine Corps is proud of many things, but nothing more than the way we take care of our own. I want each of you to know that everything humanly possible is being done to facilitate the process. I would like to thank you and your staff for your assistance and understanding.

In closing, Mr. Chairman, let me say that the subject of increased terrorism against all Americans around the world may be one of the most serious problems which could be addressed by this Committee on a priority basis. This unprecedented, massive "kamikaze" attack was not against young Marines, sailors, and soldiers — it was a vicious, surprise attack against the United States of America and all we stand for in the free world.

Let me say, with all the emphasis I can, that there are skilled and professional terrorists out there right now who are examining our vulnerabilities and making devices which are designed to kill Americans, lots of Americans around the world, in further acts of mass murder by terrorism. Let there be no doubt about it!

I would hope that the Congress would use this incident of cruel and premeditated mass murder to help us determine ways which tell nations that they cannot export and support terrorists who kill innocent Americans with impunity.

The perpetrators and supporters of this challenge to the rights of free men everywhere must be identified and punished. I will have little sleep until this happens.

Thank you.

NCOs renovate . . .

The work will be done by the NCOs on their own time, a prospect they don't seem to mind. "Our payment or reward is the finished project," said Kennedy. "The NCO mess should inspire young non-rates (private through corporal) to work toward that next higher rank."

The NCO corpsmen of Battalion Aid Station, 3/3 are a part of the NCO mess as well.

"We're working as a team with the Marine NCOs to help the community," said Hospitalman Second Class William Healy, BAS, 3/3. "The community needs things which we can provide for them." The Navy corpsmen ensure safety measures are maintained while machinery is operated. And provide emergency medical care in the event of an emergency.

Another benefit of the NCO mess, one which is not as apparent, reestablishes the NCO as a responsible leader.

"The NCOs have lost a great deal of responsibility and leadership," said Corporal Sterling Larmen, treasurer, NCO mess. "We have people serving as NCOs who don't know what it means to be an NCO. Leadership and a great deal of responsibility have been taken out of our hands by higher ranks. We have NCOs within our own organization, who don't even know how to fill out a charge sheet."

"We are 'non-commissioned officers' in the Marine Corps," continued Larmen, "and we should be treated differently than non-rates. The only way for us to learn responsibility, is to let us experience responsibility."

"As a result, to re-establish our responsibility and leadership ability, we formed our NCO mess," explained Larmen. "We came together on our own, to work within the community, and provide a better image of the Marine Corps NCO."

He said it was never money or status that prompted him to pursue the question of "can cheaper skirts be made for our aircraft?" He was just tired of seeing the Navy pay more than it should. After all, Naval Reserve Chief Aviation Anti-submarine Warfare Operator Greg Mitchell has to ultimately use what his command, Patrol Squadron 68, buys.

3/3 takes intramural championship title

by GySgt C.D. Gilbert

From the coast of Lebanon to the air station gym floor, Battalion Landing Team 3d Battalion, 3d Marines proved it could accomplish the mission while facing any situation.

BLT 3/3 received a well done while standing duty off the coast of Lebanon. And when they returned to the air station here, members of the unit's intramural basketball team didn't rest on their laurels—they accomplished the mission again by winning the intramural basketball championship Dec. 21.

The 3/3 team downed Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron 58-49, to clinch the title, but it wasn't an easy win.

Although 3/3 controlled the opening tip-off and drew first blood with an outside shot by Lance Corporal Tim Pettaway, H&HS had come to play. The air station team traded 3/3 bucket for bucket during the first half, but its members began to show a weakness that would be their undoing—missing free throws.

BLT 3/3 was never behind during the course of the game, but H&HS stayed hot on their heels, tying the score on several occasions during the first half.

At the half, H&HS was behind by three points, 30-27, but had only made one free throw. From the floor, the gray team had out-shot its opponents by a bucket, and 3/3 had put six points through the hoop from the free throw line.

The second half began as the first had, with 3/3 controlling the tip-off and Hospitalman Rick Howerton putting the ball through the hoop with a jumper.

But the never-say-die team from H&HS tied the game, 36-36, after five minutes of play. That seemed to be the turning point for the gray-glad Marines of H&HS as they began missing outside jumpers and failed to put the ball in from the foul line.

With 2:40 left in the game, 3/3 scored two more on a fast break, giving them an eight point lead, 50-42. And with 1:10 left 3/3 was up by 10, 54-44.

H&HS had come back all evening, showing enough finesse to tie 3/3, but time had run out as 3/3 won it, 58-49.

"I was impressed with H&HS," said 3/3 coach Hospitalman Third Class Robert Perry, referring to the team's caliber of play. "We stomped them the first time we played, but they developed into a better team."

The H&HS Marines had indeed improved, as they barely made it into the play-offs with a regular season 6-8 won-loss record.

"We were the Cinderella team," said H&HS coach, Staff Sergeant Arnett Rogiers. "We had protested a regular season game with Battalion Landing Team 1st Battalion, 3d Marines, because there were three officials on the floor at one time. We weren't allowed to play that game over, but because we had a better won-loss record than Marine 1st Battalion Helicopter Squadron-165, the wild card slot was ours."

As H&HS began battling its way through the play-offs, 3/3 knocked off Motor Transport, 68-48, Dec. 20, and waited for a contender.

On its way to meet 3/3, H&HS squeaked by Headquarters and Maintenance Squadron-24, 44-41; defeated 1st Radio Battalion, 63-49; destroyed Station Operations and Maintenance Squadron, 65-37; and beat BLT 1/3, 62-54.

"Someone waved a magic wand over the team," said Rogiers. "All we needed was an opportunity, and that sparked us. We had a chance, and that was the motivating factor in the play-offs."

HOW MUCH DO YOU KNOW ABOUT TIRES?

During the early months of each calendar year, skilled personnel at Lex Brodie's Tire Co. carefully examine the first 5,000 steel radials that come in for replacement. Unfortunately, a significant number of these tires are units that have failed prior to tread wear-out. Moreover, most of these tire failures are caused by either inferior factory workmanship or material and/or car owner neglect.

DRIVE TO THE BASKET — Sergeant Henry Jefferson, Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron, drives to the basket during intramural basketball play-off action at the Main Gym. Jefferson's attempt was blocked and so was his team's bid for the Intramural basketball championship title Dec. 21. Battalion Landing Team 3d Battalion, 3d Marines won it by defeating H&HS, 58-49. ## 3/3 champs. . .

As the magic disappeared from Cinderella at the King's ball, so did the magic for H&HS. Its magic disappeared as its members stepped to the foul line. The ball seemed to turn into a pumpkin and refused to fall through the hoop. Out of 21 attempts in the second half, H&HS made only 10.

While 3/3 was waiting for H&HS to arrive, the team didn't have any doubts as to the outcome of the championship game.

Although 3/3 had only participated in the second half of intramural play, its record spoke for itself. The team had only lost one game and that was to 1stRadBn.

"We were ahead at the half in that game," said Perry, "but we gave it to them in the second half. In our other games we were never behind. After the first couple of games during the regular season, we felt we could take the championship."

And 3/3 was never behind against H&HS. To win it, three members of the team hit double figures. Howerton put 18 points through the hoop; HN Sebastine Moorehead scored 12 and HM3 Richard Smith pumped in 11. Sergeant Darryl Cash put nine points on the board and Pettaway and Corporal Charles Gunn each contributed four.

The big gun for H&HS was Aviation Storekeeper Third Class Al Davis with 21 points. Cpl Steve Lawrence scored nine, while Cpl Russell Banks pumped in eight. Sgt Henry Jefferson hit the hoop for six; Lance Corporal Larry Jones contributed three and Sgt Anthony Alexander added two.

In another action-packed game Dec. 21, Motor Transport, Brigade Service Support Group battled it out with BLT 1/3 for third and fourth place honors. BLT 1/3 took third place, defeating Motor T, 65-60.

For 1/3, LCpl Kenneth Staten and Cpl James Roberts led all scorers with 19 and 18 points, respectively. Sgt Kenneth Gray scored eight and Sgts Roth Coleman and Charles Woods and LCpl Arthur Fliggins each hit the board for six. Cpl Larry Bishop added two.

Sgt Julius Gordon, and LCpls Tony Riggins and Johnathan Williams were the big guns for Motor T. Gordon hit for 17 while Riggins and Williams scored 16 and 13, respectively. Sgt Wayne Munn hit the boards for six and Sgt Russell Hicks and LCpl Allen Jackson each added four.

BOXED-IN — Lance Corporal Tim Pettaway, Battalion Landing Team 3d Battalion, 3d Marines, is boxed-in by members of Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron during intramural basketball play-off action at the Main Gym here. But Pettaway, along with his teammates maintained control of the ball to beat H&HS, 58-49 and earned the title "Intramural Champs." (Photo by Cpl Pat Lewandowski)

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. — From the sands of Iwo Jima to the jeeps of Rat Patrol, through the history books of Hollywood, who were the real Marines?

For true Marine Corps trivia buffs, this could be a fitting task — names like Wayne, Scott, Peppard and Ford have filled television and movie screens during the Twentieth Century in rolls depicting Marines. But who was actually put through the strains of United States Marine Corps boot camp?

It's not fiction to most Marines to know that while "The Duke," John Wayne, made many appearances on movie screens as the ever-inspiring Sgt. Stryker, that's as far as the legendary actor's Marine Corps career took him — to Hollywood film sites, for he was never a real Marine.

The history books do point out several movie and television stars who wore the uniform of the world's finest. Take, for instance, Lee Marvin. The World War II vintage USMC veteran went on to fame through various screen showings, including "The Dirty Dozen" and "The Professionals." Marvin received an Oscar as best actor for his starring role in "Cat Ballou."

What about a most prominent television star announcer? From "The Tonight Show," on NBC, comes Ed McMahon, a retired brigadier general from the Corps' reserve ranks.

And who can forget the Academy Award winning portrayal of General George Patton in the 1970 movie "Patton," performed by one of the movie industry's best, George C. Scott. Could his selection to play the role of Patton have come from his Marine Corps background (1945-49)?

Few people may recognize the name of Gwyllyn Samuel Newton Ford, but he started in numerous movie houses following a three-year stint in the Marine Corps Reserve (1942-45). He is known to most as Glenn Ford.

A 1958 Swedish immigrant by the name of Bo Svenson joined the Marine Corps in 1959, and stayed in for six years. He later went on to star as Buford Pusser in the box office hit, "Walking Tall."

Another of the Corps' veterans went on to national acclaim for his role as Harry Truman in "Give 'em Hell Harry." James Whitmore served as a Marine in the reserves from 1942-46.

For younger Marines, a star on the current hit television series "CHIPS" attained the rank of sergeant while fighting in Vietnam from 1967-70. Larry Wilcox, a Navy Commendation Medal recipient, plays the character of Officer John Baker with costar Erik Estrada.

Wilcox may be one of the easiest USMC vets to remember since he was awarded his Good Conduct Medal 12 years later. He received wide media coverage in 1982. He has also been very active in the Marine Corps Reserve's Toys for Tots program.

Lincoln Conspiracy watchers may remember Bradford Dillman, but few probably know he was a first lieutenant when he was discharged from the Marines in 1953.

Brian Keith, one of Hollywood's mainstay veterans, may not have had a starring role in World War II, but he is a Navy Air Medal winner and is a 1941-45 veteran of the Marines. He currently stars as a retired judge on television's "Hardcastle and McCormick" and has various other successful TV screen shows under his belt, such as "Family Affair" (late 1960s) and the "Brian Keith Show" (early 1970s).

No matter how serious they may be, a couple of Hollywood's funny men got their start, so to speak, in the Marine Corps.

Who? Try "Get Smart's" Don Adams, a World War II veteran who is probably best known for his role as the wacky agent 86, Maxwell Smart from 1965-70. And, would you believe, Jonathan Winters, a well-known comedian, was a not-so-well known Marine from 1943-46.

Here are some more names for the "Gee, I didn't know he was a Marine" file: Gene Hackman (The French Connection), Bob Keetchum (Captain Kangaroo) and Clairabell on the Howdy

Doody Show, Hugh O'Brien (Wyatt Earp), James Franciscus (Doc Elliot, Good Guys Wear Black), Christopher George (Rat Patrol), John Russell (Gunfight at Apache Wells), George Peppard (The A Team), Martin Milner (Adam-12), Robert Ryan (Dirty Dozen), Flying Leathernecks, Robert Wagner (Hart to Hart), Switch, It Takes a Thief, Pat Paulsen (The Smothers Brothers), Peter Lupus (Mission Impossible), Jack Mahoney (Tarzan) and Red West (Baa Baa Black Sheep).

While names like Robert Duval, Robert Conrad and Lou Gossett, Jr., come to the minds of Americans for their roles as leathernecks, nothing but history books can tell the true life story of who filled the ranks as United States Marines.

Lend a hand to readiness.
