Taking the time to talk with "his" Marines was a major goal for the Commandant during his visit here.

CMC reactivates HMM-364 during visit to Hawaii

The Commandant of the Marine Corps, Gen. P.X. Kelley, visited the Air Station, Oct. 12, and participated in a wide-range of troop-oriented activities.

Accompanied by the Sergeant Major of the Marine Corps, Robert E. Cleary, the Commandant discussed current Marine Corps issues in sessions with junior enlisted NCOs, staff NCOs and officers.

The Commandant also reactivated HMM-364 when he presented the unit's colors to Lt. Col. T.W. Holden, the squadron's CO.

Commodore J.S. Cassells, medical officer of the Marine Corps, also accompanied the Commandant. Cassells talked with Brigade medical officers and corpsmen, and was the reviewing officer for the Navy Day Parade held at Dewey Square last Friday.

The traditional Navy cake-cutting ceremony ended with Cassells presenting the first piece of cake to the oldest and youngest sailors, here, Master Chief Furman R. Watt and Fireman Apprentice Bobbi D. Davis.

Additionally, Mrs. P.X. Kelley, Mrs. C.G. Cooper, Mrs. O.K. Steele, and Mrs. C.D. Robinson attended a presentation by the Family Service Center at Kansas Tower.

Representatives of Navy Relief, Red Cross and FSC's Outreach presented their programs in relation to the unique aspects of duty in Hawaii, such as isolation, high cost of living and cultural problems.

CFC contributions continue to grow

The fourth week of the Honolulu Area Combined Federal Campaign ended with approximately $128,000 donated by Hawaii Marines.

This year donors may specify any human health and welfare charity as benefactor, or contribute to the general CFC fund. The annual fund drive ends Nov. 1.

Although no official monetary goals were set for this year's drive, most units are striving to contact 100 percent of its members. The chart shows the percentage for the number of people contacted, not the number who have contributed.

FLIP THE SWITCH ON ENERGY WASTE!

"All Stop-Energy Waste" is the theme for the 7th Annual Department of the Navy Energy Awareness Week, Oct. 22-28.

Energy Awareness Week 1984 is an event in which military personnel, civilian employees and the Navy/Marine community can participate.

Although the Navy and Marine Corps energy management programs have improved, according to a recent message from the Secretary of the Navy, more achievements in energy savings can be realized through individual efforts.

Through awareness and education, energy efficiency can remain a high priority item for military and civilian personnel, providing low cost opportunities for saving energy.

The Air Station will observe Energy Awareness Week with an Energy Saving display by Hawaiian Electric Company at the Main Exchange Oct. 23 and a poster contest by the Mokapu School students.

For more information on energy awareness call Mr. Bill Buck at 257-3319.

Stability was the subject

Upcoming mission changes was one of the topics discussed by BGen. O.K. Steele, Commanding General, 1st Marine Brigade, who was the guest speaker for the OWC luncheon held at Kaneohe Bay Yacht Club.

"Next month, BLT 2/3, MSSG-31 and HMM-262 will embark on a 5½-month deployment, which will mark the last cycle in a five-year operational commitment of the 31st Marine Amphibious Unit. This change is dictated by operational commitments," said the general. Starting next March, units for the MAU will be furnished by installations located in southern California. The change will also improve the quality of family life for brigade Marines by drastically reducing deployed time.

"We have been furnishing these forces based on the strength of three battalions," said the general. That was the reason for the quick turn-around time. Units from southern California will be able to do the same mission, but they will have four battalions and more squadrons, so their turn-around time will be longer. They'll be going out for 5½ months and have at least 12-14 months back home," said BGen. Steele.

"We are trying to build more stability in families at home as well as the stability in units," said the CO. "Units who have trained together work better

The general also discussed trends he's noticed in the Marine Corps. According to BGen. Steele, the officers corps has never been more solid than what it is today. "It's no accident that four cabinet members in this administration are former Marines," said the general.

The enlisted ranks have made the most dramatic changes the last few years, according to the general. "For example, 10 years ago the drug problem affected 50-55 percent of the enlisted and only 50 percent of the enlisted were high school graduates."

Today, 95 percent of the enlisted personnel are high school graduates; drug use, as indicated by urinalysis tests, is approximately 4-5 percent. Of 9,000 Marines on Station, only 14 are UA or deserters. "The good guys are winning out," said the general.

Another trend noted was the increase in married Marines. "This is a blessing in that it produces more stable Marines. Once Marines get married they seem to settle down," said the general.

"Some of the challenges of marriage, such as meeting commitments, being torn between family and Marine Corps, come about because the spouse often doesn't understand deployment separations. Challenges are especially prominent here in Hawaii with the high cost of living, a different culture and a sense of isolation," the general commented.

General Steele encouraged the women to take the lead in stabilizing family affairs. "I don't want to sound like an alarmist, because I'm not. I'm probably more optimistic about the status of our defense posture and foreign relations than I've been in years,"

BGen. Steele said. "But we must understand that we are part of the operating forces and are frequently instruments when there's a crisis in the world."

In closing, the general urged the wives to be good listeners, establish solid relationships long before a deployment, exchange ideas and get involved with activities while husbands are away.

OOOPS!!

Right info, wrong place

In an article published in the Hawaii Marine last week, it was reported that Trans World Airlines joined more than a dozen airlines in offering a 50 percent leave discount fare to all military family members.

Although the information is correct, none of the airlines offer the discount to or from Hawaii.

Of the 13 airlines listed, only four service Hawaii: Northwest Airlines, Pan American World Airways, United Airlines and World Airways. Delta Air Lines begins Hawaiian service in mid-December.

According to Scheduled Airlines Ticket Office officials here, one airline does offer a discount to military family members, but it isn't in conjunction with the family member leave fare. World Airways offers discounts of about 50 percent.

Even though the family member leave fare isn't available in Hawaii, the program helps cut the cost of travel on the mainland. The airlines offering the family 50 percent discount are: Delta Air Lines, Eastern Airlines, Empire Airlines, Frontier Airlines, Northwest Airlines, Ozark Air Lines, Pan American World Airways, Piedmont Aviation, Republic Airlines, Trans World Airlines, United Airlines, USAir and World Airways.

For more information on travel arrangements and fares, call SATO at 254-1564.

SOMS Marines help - you can too!

There is an old saying that Marines take care of their own, and Sgt. Tony Oliva, of SOMS, probably couldn't agree more. Oliva's 6-year-old son, Matthew, is a cancer victim undergoing chemotherapy treatments at Tripler's Pediatric Clinic. His prognosis is unknown.

The Marines at SOMS, aware of the mounting bills the Oliva's were incurring, decided to "take care of one of their own" and have been collecting donations to help defray the added expenses.

In addition, an account in Matthew Oliva's name has been opened at the Bank of Hawaii on the Air Station so anyone who wishes may contribute to the fund.

To the SOMS' Marines, it's a matter of taking care of one of their own in the Marine Corps tradition.

Gen. P.X. Kelley, Commandant of the Marine Corps, troops the line during reactivation ceremonies for HMM-364. Accompanying the commandant are BGen. O.K. Steele, commanding general, 1st Marine Brigade, and LtCol. T.W. Holden, the squadron's CO.

Commandant visits

LtCol. T.W. Holden, the squadron's commanding officer.

HMM-364's reactivation was directed by Headquarters Marine Corps to enhance the rotational capability of Marine Aircraft Group-24, which now has four medium helicopter squadrons instead of three.

The squadron will be comprised of CH-46 Sea Knight helicopters and supported by approximately 156 enlisted personnel, 29 naval aviators, and 3 ground officers. Most personnel are being transferred to 364 from other MAG-24 units, except for some pilots who are coming from East and West Coast commands.

After it was first activated in 1961, HMM-364 served at MCAS Santa Ana, Calif.; MCAS(H) Futenna, Okinawa, Japan; and in the Republic of Vietnam. It left Vietnam in 1971, and was deactivated at Santa Ana.

Gen. P.X. Kelley, accompanied by LtGen. C.G. Cooper, is greeted by BGen. O.K. Steele, Brigade commanding general, and Col. C.D. Robinson, Air Station commanding officer, upon his arrival here Oct. 12.

The Sergeant Major of the Marine Corps, Robert E. Cleary (c), is greeted by Station SgtMaj. W.F. Trawick, Brigade SgtMaj. J. McGuirk, and FMFPac SgtMaj. Lee M. Bradley.

Commodore J.S. Cassells, Medical Officer of the Marine Corps, accepts the first piece of Navy Birthday cake from Capt. Herbert Stanton. Cassells reviewed the Navy Day Parade here Friday.

Fire mission!!

Bravo leaves its mark

by Cpl. Pat Lewandowski

"Following a limited nuclear strike, a division of enemy airborne and naval infantry seized the Pearl Harbor/Hickam Air Force Base complex. After a heavy counterattack by friendly forces, the enemy conducted an amphibious withdrawal by hovercraft to Waianae.

"The enemy, backed into the Waianae Range, was waiting for reinforcements. Offensive operations have been limited to small patrols in the foothills. The only effective way to inflict casualties on them is to shower the area with artillery fire."

Battery B, 1st Battalion, 12th Marines answered the call for supporting fire as they demonstrated their ability to shoot, move and communicate — the primary mission of a Marine artillery unit.

The battery used this exercise to evaluate their combat effectiveness during a Marine Corps Combat Readiness Evaluation Systems test conducted late last month. The cannoneers of "B" Btry practiced nearly every type of fire mission and evasive maneuver, including a night displacement and battery airlift.

According to MSgt. Gerald Harvey, Headquarters Battery, 1/12, the MCCRES tested the ability of the battery to accomplish mission performance standards established by Headquarters Marine Corps. Each mission was designed to test the flexibility and speed of the battery. Although a MCCRES was already completed during a recent combined arms exercise, the Marines were enthusiastic about another one.

"This evaluation was a little different from most," said Harvey. "Not only is this the second test for the battery, but it is also the last time a 1/12 unit will deploy taking the 105mm Howitzer. We came out here to evaluate the battery's combat readiness. From what we have seen, this is one of the best units we will send afloat," Harvey continued.

The Marines of "Bravo" Btry started firing by registering their weapons on the target area. As the big guns roared, a call came from the Fire Direction Center to move the guns to another position because enemy fire was expected.

The gun crews immediately took down the camouflage nets covering the guns and vehicles, ammunition was loaded onto 5-ton trucks, and the guns were readied for transport and hooked up.

The new position had been surveyed prior to offensive operations and was in range of the primary target. Before using the site, the team checked for mines, traps and enemy activity.

Within minutes of their arrival there, the base gun was set and a fire suppression mission was called. Shortly afterwards, all guns were in position and hurling well-placed rounds at the enemy.

As night fell, the "cannon cockers" breathed a little easier; the enemy had been beaten back for a moment. They tended to their guns,

Fine tuning his 105mm Howitzer, PFC James Wells bore-sights the piece with an elbow telescope to ensure the consistently accurate delivery of rounds on target.

Their position possibly compromised, cannoneers from "B" Btry, 1/12 hurriedly assemble their gun before moving to a safer alternate position.

The deft hands of LCpl. Wayne Fender and PFC Jesus Martinez place timed fuses on 105mm rounds prior to their delivery.

Battery Marines pack up to move to a safer position and more missions.

placed fuses on rounds and ate a quick meal.

After an illumination mission was conducted for friendly troops, the battery prepared for another move. This one proved to be more difficult as they maintained light and sound discipline in an effort to conceal themselves from the enemy and deadly counter-battery fire. They reached a new position and quickly answered another call for artillery support.

While the sun was making its first appearance of the day, the Marines were already hard at work, surveying other possible positions and planning another move.

During the move, an order was issued to shoot as soon as possible. The maneuver consisted of moving to an unknown area, setting the guns up by using a known point, and immediately shooting rounds toward the enemy. Accuracy, as well as timing, was evaluated during and after the move.

The battery then regrouped for what was to be their final test — a helicopter airlift of men and equipment. Three guns were lifted internally by three CH-53 Sea Stallions from Marine Heavy Helicopter Squadron-463, which had no problem lifting the men and their guns to a simulated ship offshore.

"Although the battery was evaluated during the CAX last month, it operated with an infantry element and was limited," said Maj. Rocky Chavez, operations officer for 1/12. "Having our own MCCRES gave us a chance to closely monitor the action without interfering with someone else's game plan.

"We gave the battery its own problems and scenario," Chavez continued. "They executed the plans well, and maintained a fighting organization despite numerous attacks and constructive problems. Battery B proved that they could successfully shoot, move and communicate under combat conditions."

Now's your chance

Marines. Every year around this time, a festive spirit descends upon us as we all go into full swing preparing for our annual celebration — the birthday ball in honor of our Corps' beginning.

I vividly recall my days as a young Marine — hoping that my sergeant major would bestow upon me the honor of asking for my participation in the numerous ceremonies which take place every year.

I cannot recall a birthday ball in which the heritage of our Corps failed to swell my chest with pride as the birthday cake was paraded between Marines with drawn swords. I am not ashamed to admit that a few tears even fell down my cheeks. Once again, it is time to make those last minute preparations and it is my pleasure to screen volunteers to participate in the enlisted birthday ball ceremony.

I know there are many sergeants, corporals, lance corporals, PFCs, and some privates, on this Station who have Dress Blues. It is these Marines whose support I need.

If you would like this celebration to be a special one for you, I can think of no better way than to be a front row spectator and participant during this year's events.

Please feel free to call me at 257-3443 anytime to volunteer for this honor, or stop me wherever you see me.

In the past, corporal and sergeant promotions were made on a quarterly basis. Under the new system, an individual's composite score will be valid for a three-month period. The cutting score will increase or decrease monthly, according to the needs of the field.

What this means to prospective corporals and sergeants is that all data used in computing their composite scores, such as MCI course completions and off-duty educational points, must be reported on time.

In June, HQMC published an October 1984 sergeant promotion announcement by ALMAR message. Commanding officers were to ensure that all information for composite scores on each Marine corporal was up to date as of Aug. 15. This information was entered through the unit diary into the JUMPS/MMS system. On Aug. 31, JUMPS/MMS calculated a composite score on each corporal, including time-in-grade and time-in-service credit up to Sept. 30.

The scores were then sent to each unit by message and also appeared on the individual's Visual Audit. These composite scores will be used for sergeant promotions in October, November and December.

On Oct. 1, HQMC announced cutting scores for promotion to sergeant in each MOS. Marines with composite scores to match will be promoted, if otherwise qualified. On Nov. 1 and Dec. 1, HQMC will again publish cutting scores by MOS for promotion to sergeant.

The quarterly cycle starts over again in December when Marines receive new composite scores to be used in January, February and March.

The same cycle applies to lance corporals eligible for promotion to corporal. After the October 1984 corporal promotions, new composite scores will be calculated and remain effective for the November, December and January corporal advancements.

Responsibility rests on administration personnel to make unit diary entries quickly and accurately, but individual Marines should help by making sure all information about their MCI and off-duty education is up to date and turned in as quickly as possible.

Absentee voters who have already requested absentee ballots should notify the appropriate election officials if their mailing address has changed.

These ballots are usually not forwarded to new addresses, so election officials must have a current mailing address so voting materials can be delivered.

All current mailing addresses must be indicated on item 11 of the Federal Post Card Application when requesting registration or an absentee ballot.

Tuition assistance

HQMC — Marine Corps officials are convinced that an individual interested in self-improvement is the kind of person who will shoulder responsibility.

Perhaps that philosophy is why nearly 43,000 Marines enrolled for off-duty education under the Tuition Assistance Program in 1984, and why officials at HQMC expect that figure to hit more than 45,000 by the end of 1985.

Tuition assistance makes good sense for those active duty Marines who need money for off-duty education. The program covers 75 percent of the tuition costs for Marines, with the exception of sergeants and above, with less than 14 years of service, who receive 90 percent of the tuition charges.

Marines applying for TA must enroll in classes at a college or university accredited by a regional association — New England, Middle States, North Central, Northwest, Southern or Western. Additionally, students are limited to a maximum of two concurrent courses, the off-duty education load determined by HQMC officials as being manageable by the student.

Marines interested in pursuing higher education, but who haven't graduated from high school, may use the TA program to get their diploma. A 100 percent tuition rate will be approved if the courses are applicable to a high school credential and are undertaken at approved public high schools or regionally accredited educational institutions. The maximum of two concurrent courses rule also applies.

Information on the TA program can be found in ALMAR 199/84 or by contacting SSgt. Moravetz at 257-3572.

Kion Tolbert, son of Cpl. W. Tolbert, takes a break from the festivities of Comm Spt Co.'s Family Day.

Getting acquainted

Comm SptCo hosts family day

by SSgt. W.S. Saunders

"Discovery Day" for most was a day of fun in the sun. For the family members of the Marines from Communication Support Company, fun in the sun was a time to discover how to cope with living in Hawaii.

"Oftentimes, many sacrifices and hardships are endured by our Marine Corps family," said Maj. E.C. Walke, Com Spt Co's CO. "Doing without their spouse on duty days, field problems and deployments, problems or situations often crop up which leaves them unprepared and not knowing where to turn.

"In Hawaii, a variety of professional services are available to military dependents free of charge," Walke added. "Not all of us are aware of what is available and how the service can assist in their daily problems."

Representatives from Navy Relief, Family Service center, Special Services, R&I Cross, Provost Marshal's Office, Counseling and Assistance Center, and the Brigade Chaplain provided information on their respective areas of expertise.

The highlight of the day was a chili-cooking contest, which pitted individual platoons of Comm. Spt. Co. against one another. The competition was "hot" and heavy, and the winning decision was on the taste buds of the commanding officer. After the taste test, Wire Platoon emerged victorious.

"Family activities are a major concern of the Commandant," said BGen. O.K. Steele, "and it's activities like this that keep our Corps healthier and happier."

Maintaining a party line

by SSgt Grog Berry

The Essential Subjects Test covers field sanitation, and even lists the dimensions for a sanitary hole, but not how to erect a general purpose tent.

Another section covers individual tactical measures, but doesn't list any suggestions on how to conduct defensive measures and continue performing "normal" duties.

With this in mind, Communications Support Company, 7th CommBn, spent five days in the field last week experiencing long nights and the discomforts and hardships of field life.

"This is my first time in the field," said Sgt. Sharon Scott, a seven-year veteran and one of six women who accompanied their 80 male counterparts. "It's not too bad, but I do miss hot showers."

"This is the best way for us to find out what we have to do in a combat environment," said Sgt. Joe White, whose section was responsible for supplying electricity for the camp set up at Bellows Air Force Station.

"Two men in my section haven't been in the field before, and this is helping them tremendously," White said. "I've encountered field problems I haven't dealt with before, so it's good training for everyone."

White and his crew laid more than 2,000 feet of cable, and constantly provided the camp with electricity.

"The name of the game is training," said 1st Sgt. William Haire, company first sergeant. "For this to get any better, they'd have to be shooting at us. Everyone here is where they belong, and we're working a three-shift system to maintain communications."

The three shifts kept several sections short-handed, but the idea behind the exercise was to give the Marines a taste of what it would be like in combat. Daily routines, such as Unit Diary feeds and routine message traffic, continued despite the added tasks of running a "field mess," maintaining security and providing routine and secure communication networks.

Every section of CommSpt-

Co. participated in the exercise, with motor transport, supply, security, admin and repair technicians taking their place alongside wiremen and other communicators. "The teamwork is necessary for the unit to perform its mission," Haire said.

"We support the field headquarters with complete communications capability," said 2nd Lt. Gary Burton, Comm Center platoon commander. During the training exercise, the communicators proved the reliability of their equipment by maintaining open lines of communication to a retransmission site at Kansas Tower, to the Naval Communications Area Master Station Eastern Pacific at Wahiawa, and to the satellite-equipped defense communications system.

The Marines used a communications van to keep the words flowing, and offered the simulated task force with a secure message circuit, via satellite, to anywhere in the world. A cryptographic machine provide the key for security of message traffic.

"We made a few mistakes this time, but that won't happen again," Burton said. "The more time we spend in the field, the closer we get to perfection."

Perfection may be difficult to obtain, but if they couldn't accomplish the unit's mission in combat, it would be a silent world for units commanders and, according to Haire, "If we can't talk, no one else can."

LCpl Julian Haywood, a field wireman, checks the circuits on a 30-line switchboard which allows Comm Spt Co. the flexibility of voice communications within the compound at Bellows Air Force Station, as well as between the compound and the Air Station by commercial telephone lines during the unit's 5-day field exercise.

Marines from Comm Spt Co. gather beneath camouflage netting for a meal when the company spent five days at Bellows Air Force Station last week improving its field performance.

Marines from Co. G, 2/3 race toward HMM-262 helicopters at LZ Boondocker. The aircraft inserted the infantry Marines at locations in the Kahukus training area.

MCCRES evaluates airworthiness

By SSgt. Bob Torres
Early morning briefings took place in a crowded, hot, ready room recently as HMM-262 prepared for their participation in the Marine Corps Combat Readiness Evaluation System Test "Cree Satyr-1984."

Intelligence reports of enemy strengths and possible strikes were passed. Reports on weather situations and points of attack, paths of regress, code words and problem situation maneuvers were discussed. Intelligence updates, as more information was received, were passed as the sun began to peek over the Mokapu peninsula.

As the ready room briefs were completed, pilots and crews prepared their helicopters for the mission. Cautious, yet confident, they began their day.

Helicopters left the pad for LZ Boondocker to pick up a contingent of "G" Co., 2/3 Marines for insertion into the Kahuku training area on the North shore of Oahu. With quick precision, the infantry Marines boarded the helicopters and were flown to their objectives. As pilots neared drop zones, they monitored their screens and visually searched for aggressor forces.

The Marines were offloaded and the helicopters prepared for another segment of their operation. More intelligence reports were received. The squadron was tasked with evacuating an American ambassador and a group of people that had been rescued by Marines.

Maps were pulled and locations for pickup were plotted. As the helicopters swooped into the area, Marines quickly escorted their "guests" aboard the helicopters and were extracted. Another part of the operation had been completed successfully.

Earlier in the week, however, there had been a surprise waiting for one of the helicopters.

"Basically, what we (the squadron) had was an insertion at Pukapu," said 1stLt. Steve Bennett. "Just prior to departure from the zone, we had a simulated gas attack. We received chemical agents of some type and on return to the pad, we went through a decontamination process. The aircraft called in and said they had gas. The area was quarantined, the pilots had their gas masks on and stayed in their aircraft until they were told to get out."

The squadron NBC team used several solutions of soap and water to wash the aircraft down. The pilots were then instructed to go through a field shower and then remove their NBC gear. "This was a test for the squadron decontamination team," continued Bennett. "This is the first time they had worked together, and they did alright. We used one aircraft for the purpose of the drill. There were a few minor problems but it was good training."

"This year, we had a lot of new people in as key personnel," related 1stLt.

Chuck Wright. "This was a learning experience for a lot of the pilots. Some of us saw basically how to do it last year, but most of the experienced personnel have been transferred. We used new people, and let them get out there and make a few mistakes. That's what the evaluators look for.

"They judge us on things like, did we brief everything, or did we continue to march if it wasn't briefed. Nighttime flying is difficult at best, but when we went out Wednesday night, everything about the mission had changed. We got out there (Kahukus) and things were different than what we had planned. But by making two 15 to 20 second radio transmissions, everyone knew exactly what we were going to do. That's what the evaluators wanted to see; that's realistic," Wright said.

"Overall, we got to the right place at the right time," said 1stLt. Mitch Bauman. "We picked up the people that we were supposed to, and it went well. Whether we got every detail perfect wasn't what mattered. The overall mission was done, and that's what did," Bauman related.

"We got all our aircraft in the air," said LtCol. D.M. McSorley, commanding officer, HMM-262. "The entire squadron flew. Overall, everything went well. We had strong maintenance of the aircraft, the morale is high — we're combat ready," concluded McSorley with a smile.

Four CH-46 helicopters from HMM-262 approach the helo pad as they return from the Kahukus training area.

Dust and debris are strewn about as Marines from Co. G, 2/3 board an HMM-262 helicopter during "Cree Satyr-1984" at Kahukus.

Terrorists no longer terrorize as Co. G, 2/3 Marines stand guard over them near a Kahukus landing zone. When HMM-262 helicopters arrived, the Marines quickly escorted their "guests" aboard the aircraft and returned to the Air Station.

Pig pickin — Hawaiian style

by Sgt. Christopher Wood

BELLOWS AIR FORCE STATION, Hawaii — Golden sunshine beamed through the foliage as approximately 1,400 H&MS-24 Marines and dependents celebrated esprit de corps — Hawaiian style — on Oct. 6.

A luau, featuring entertainment by the local band "Hawaiian Four," hula girls, softball and fun on the beach, was conducted to bring H&MS-24 Marines together. A variety of food and drink was offered, but the day's highlight was when a huge Kalua pig was "resurrected" from a smoking pit.

"Lauas are very Hawaiian, and watching that pig come out of the sand was nice," said LtCol. M.M. Sheedy III, H&MS-24 commanding officer. According to Sheedy, the luau was organized as a tribute to the squadron's sergeants and below.

"The officers and staff NCOs decided that they'd do something for the enlisted Marines," Sheedy explained.

"You can always tell Marines that they're doing a good job, but it's a little bit nicer to reward them for the good job they're doing."

Squadron personnel were encouraged to bring friends and relatives to the festivities. "If somebody showed up, we were going to feed them," Sheedy said. "It's tough for a unit as big as ours to get together very often, but I think it's very important for us to do so."

Both Marines and family members reacted enthusiastically to the luau. "I think it's fun," said Debra, wife of GySgt. Danny Vinson. "It's good for all of the families to get together. And it's nice to get to know other wives in the squadron."

Those who attended the luau could be found playing softball, dozing in the shade or joining their spouses in the ocean. But no matter what activity they were involved in, each shared the knowledge that they were part of a larger family: the family of H&MS-24.

Learn modeling

Le Elegance, a fashion troupe comprised of military personnel and dependents, will conduct auditions from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday at Fort Shafter's Kalani Recreation Center.

Le Elegance, a nonprofit organization, was formed to give servicemembers and military dependents an opportunity to learn modeling techniques and present fashion shows to the military and civilian community.

Models do not receive pay for participating in fashion shows, but gain valuable knowledge and experience which may lead to a professional career. Proceeds from each show are given in part to local charitable organizations with the remainder, excluding expenses, going into a scholarship fund set aside to assist models who plan to attend college.

Membership in Le Elegance is open to all servicemembers and military dependents. The minimum age required for membership is 16. No prior modeling experience is necessary; however, prospects must have the ability to learn simple routines which may be required during the audition. Models selected for membership are taught fundamental modeling techniques and routines for upcoming shows. Fashions worn by models in each show are donated by various military exchanges and civilian boutiques throughout Oahu.

DEERS Update

Family members not enrolled in the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System will now be denied nonemergency medical care at military health treatment facilities, according to DoD officials.

September Leave and Earnings Statements listed information contained in DEERS. Marines with incomplete information should contact their unit administrative office as soon as possible.

There are exceptions to this policy. People who will not be denied routine care for nonenrollment are children younger than one; families of Marines stationed overseas; and newly acquired (less than 120 days) family members. These individuals will be treated upon the presentation of a valid DD Form 1173. Parents/guardians may use their DD Form 1173 for children younger than 10.

Marines whose dependents are denied care can update the DEERS information through their unit administrative office without much time being wasted.

Monarch's Arnel Valbuena makes his way outside for a 15 yard gain. The Monarchs went on to score on the drive, leading the Generals 22-0 at the half.

Monarchs dump Generals

by Cpl. Pat Lewandowski

The Kaneohe Bay Generals failed to break a four-game losing streak when they were bested by the Kalakaua Monarchs, 38-0, in Youth Athletic Football action Saturday.

The Generals had problems dethroning the Monarchs since they dominated play almost scoring at will. The 1:35 lb. Midget Division game was played at Maunawili Elementary School before an enthusiastic morning crowd.

The Generals took the first possession of the game, but failed to produce any points. The offense couldn't get any momentum and was forced to punt.

The 25-yard punt put the Monarchs in good field position and they promptly marched down field for a touchdown. Jerry Ednilao added two points on the conversion with a sweep around the left side, making the score 8-0.

Joey Schwartz gave the Generals excellent field position on the ensuing kickoff but they failed to take advantage of it and were forced to punt again. The punt was slowed by strong winds, giving the Monarchs another opportunity to score. They used two plays and 45 seconds to add another 6 points to the board.

The Generals defense stood tall on the goal line, however, and refused to give up any more points. The Kalakaua Monarchs walked away with a 14-0 lead near the end of the first quarter.

The wind was blowing in the Generals favor at the change of the quarter but they failed to produce any yards in the air. The fierce Monarch defense put pressure on General quarterback, Richard Laskowski, shutting down their offense.

The Monarchs used the last possession of the half to march down the field for a touchdown and extra points, giving them a commanding 22-0 lead.

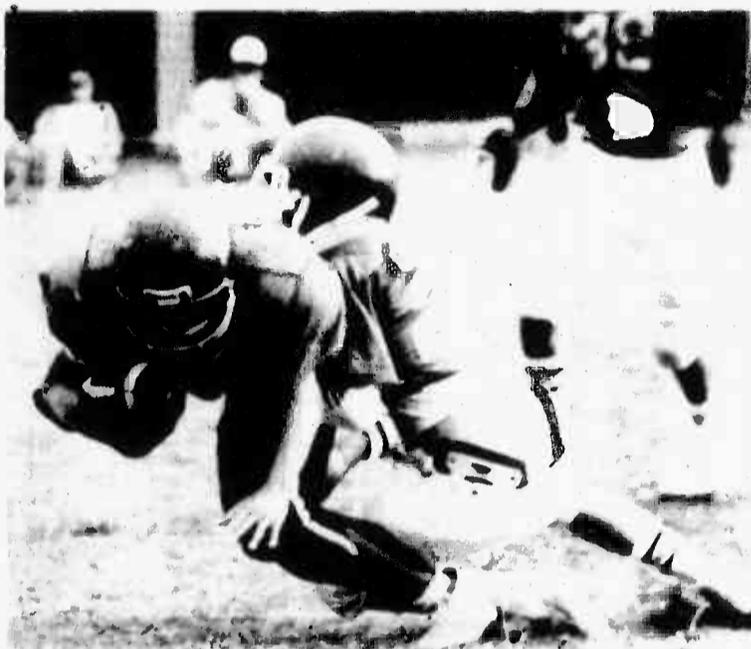

The second half was much of the same, as the Monarchs marched down the field at will scoring another 16 points making the final tally 38-0. The win gave the Monarchs a 1-3 record, and the Generals kept their winless 0-5 record.

"We executed our plays poorly, but I can chalk that up to a lack of live-play experience," said General's coach, Don Galvin. "We have a small team and get little scrimmage time among ourselves; these kids don't practice the way I'd like them to."

"Sixty percent of my players play both offense and defense and they get tired and some have only played football this year," continued Galvin. "Individually, every boy made a play; if he does his job once in a game, it's worth being out here."

In other action, the Pee Wee Generals lost to the Waipahu Raiders 14-0, lowering their record to 1 tie and 3 losses. The Termites also lost Saturday to Ewa Beach 21-0. Their record stands at 1-3 for the season.

General's Thomas Rowland stops a Monarch ball carrier just short of the end zone. The Monarchs boosted their record to 1-3 with the 38-0 victory over the Generals.

WATER QUALITY EXCEPTIONS

On 2 October 1984, officials at Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay learned that five of fifteen water quality samples of potable water taken on 1 October 1984, had positive coliform bacterin readings. The five locations and their respective coliform counts were as follows: Rifle Range - 3, Building 1387 at the Naval Ocean Systems Center - 87, Officers' Club pool - 6, Staff Noncommissioned Officers' Club kitchen - 21 and 2464 Cochran - 1. Although by law only those counts above 4 required subsequent samples, additional samples were taken at all five locations on 2 and 3 October 1984 as a precautionary measure. All locations except the Rifle Range, had 0 coliform readings from the samples taken on 2 and 3 October. The Rifle Range had a count too numerous to count from its 2 October sample and a count of 12 from its 3 October sample. As a result of the second consecutive positive reading at the Rifle Range officials secured the drinking water system at the Rifle Range about 1100 on 3 October 1984. The drinking system at the Rifle Range has since been returned to use.

The positive readings from the 1 October samples exceeded standards of the Safe Drinking Water Act in two ways: (1) the monthly average of samples resulted in a count of more than one colony of coliform per sample and (2) more than 5% of the samples had more than four colonies. Despite the aforementioned exceptions, officials at Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay stressed the following:

1. There were negative check samples from four of the five positive sites during follow-up testing on 3 and 4 October. Hence, there is no concern over the quality of the drinking water at building 1387, the Officers' Club pool, the Staff Noncommissioned Officers' Club kitchen and at 2464 Cochran Street.
2. The potable water system at the Rifle Range was secured from 1100 on 3 October until 1100 on 11 October. Signs were posted warning personnel not to drink from the potable water system and water tanks were placed at three sites as a source of potable water during the period when the potable water system was secured.
3. Before the potable water system at the Rifle Range was returned to use, the system was superchlorinated, flushed thoroughly, and had two consecutive days with negative readings on 10 and 11 October.
4. From discussions with medical officers at Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay there has been no higher incidence of gastrointestinal disorders, something which might occur if personnel were to be adversely affected.

Although there is no reason for alarm, this notice is being issued as a precautionary measure and because it is required by the Safe Drinking Water Act.

Birthday 10K

The Marine Corps Birthday 10K Fun Run will be held at 6:30 a.m. on Nov. 9.

The modern family room uses cabinetry to create attractive, functional storage and a unique bar alcove. Shown here is the Hallmark cabinetry line accessorized with matching wine rails and two handy corner appliance garages.

Cabinets organize areas

Now more than ever, the key word in designing or remodeling a home is functional. One way to make your rooms both functional and glamorous is through the creative use of cabinetry. Attractive and versatile, cabinets feature a multitude of special options, that can be put to work efficiently all around your home.

Here are some suggestions for organizing your home with style:

• Garden room or potting area

Base cabinets with an easy-care countertop are perfect. Use roll-out wire baskets to hold bags of potting soil, stackable clay pots and gardening tools.

• Living room storage

Consider lining your living room with cabinets and bookshelves. Store your seasonal decorations and family memorabilia out of sight but within easy reach.

• Built-in storage for a child's room

A well-planned storage wall eliminates the need for other furniture, with ample space for clothing and a desk surface for homework. Also, consider including an extra-deep roll-out wire basket to serve as an individual laundry hamper.

• Entertainment center

Every family room needs an organized system to house entertainment essentials. Television cords can be hidden behind cabinet doors, shelves above the cabinetry hold your stereo turntable and speakers, and a pull-out cutting board under a liquor cabinet is ideal for mixing drinks and slicing garnishes.

• Built-in buffet

Consider creating a built-in buffet with shelves to hold china and linens. An attractive laminate or tile countertop is perfect for serving buffet-style. And wall cabinets with stained-glass doors store your crystal and serving pieces while adding a decorative touch to the room.

• Bar

Turn an unused corner or a spare closet into a stylish bar. Use extra options to personalize your bar: a matching wine rail, panels with a classic stained-glass look and an appliance garage for your blender, for example.

• Corridors

In uneven or extra-wide hallways, cabinets keep everything from extra towels to vacuum cleaners out of sight but handy. Use open shelving above base cabinets for a mini-library.

Bring kitchen back to life

When it comes to remodeling and redecorating, the kitchen is one of the most popular places to start. Many of us would like to have more kitchen work space, but can't afford to add on. With a little organization and creativity, we can make the most of what we already have.

• When you need an additional cutting surface, place your large cutting board directly over the flatware drawer. Many cabinets now feature cutting boards that are built in to extend work space.

• If you've decided new cabinets are your best bet, be sure to include some of the latest convenience options. Buy cabinets that offer roll-out wire storage baskets, handy appliance garages, pull-out shelves, matching wine rails and many other step-saving options.

• For easy access to your most-used recipes and phone numbers, attach clear plastic divider pages, such as those found in photo albums, to the inside of a cabinet door.

• For cookbook storage, build a church-pew type bookshelf onto an island cabinet, the backside of a peninsula of cabinets or on the end of a row.

Plastic: a tough idea

"Plastics. There's a great future in plastics." When a businessman uttered these famous words in the 1968 film The Graduate, he thought he was making a profound statement. But many people knew better. Plastic was already an integral part of American life; it was the present.

In the 16 years since that classic prediction, plastic has flexed its versatile muscles in a myriad of applications and industries. It's shown its toughness, cost-efficiency, suppleness and attractiveness in a variety of products from football helmets to dashboards.

Even so, plastic still carries some negative connotations: You don't like plastic people, and that certain someone wouldn't be too tickled if you sent a bouquet of plastic flowers. Of course, when you drop the shampoo bottle, you're glad it's plastic, and an astronaut wouldn't protect his head with anything else. And if you build $200,000 homes, you'll certainly want plastic faucets throughout.

Plastic is elegant: Wait a minute. Plastic faucets in $200,000 homes? That's right. One manufacturer reports that more and more builders are using plastic bathroom, kitchen and laundry faucets almost exclusively in their elegant and architecturally rich homes. The builders are impressed with the ease of installation and with their customer's response; the homeowners are impressed with how the faucets maintain their good looks after years of service.

Little hands make big demands, but both the faucet and the football helmet, each made of tough ABS plastic, stand up under years of service.

Plastic's advantage: Plastic's main advantage over metal is that mineral deposits in the water cannot stick to the slick plastic surface of the faucet's waterway, the chamber that carries water to the spout. These mineral deposits cling to metal waterways causing the unsightly, corrosive buildup that eventually ruins the interior seal and allows the faucet to drip.

Good idea to replace old caulk

The next time you see unsightly seams around the tub and vanity, don't despair. Fixing the cracks is easy. You'll need only a few tools to close up the seam line: putty knife, cleanser, rag and a high-quality caulk made especially for bathroom applications. First remove the old caulk. Latexes and butyls become brittle and inflexible in as little as one or two years. Use a putty knife to pry out the old material. Wash the surface with a good disinfecting cleanser. After a couple of practice passes on an old newspaper, you will learn the proper combination of pressure and speed needed to produce an even, continuous bead. Make sure the caulk comes in contact with both the fixture and the wall to ensure a watertight seal.

Do-it-yourself quiz on home safety

Is your home attractive to burglars? Or do your precautions tell potential crooks to look elsewhere for an easy mark?

Despite the fact that burglary statistics are down by nearly 9 percent nationwide, according to recent FBI statistics, approximately one out of 14 homes will be burglarized this year.

The following do-it-yourself Home Security Survey, provided by Honeywell Protection Services, will take only a few minutes and can help you correct some of the most obvious danger points.

Home improvement: first step is to take inventory

Fall is an excellent time for home improvements. The autumn is a transitional season which, like spring, is neither too hot nor cold to accomplish major projects. During these seasons, people are more adventurous and desirous of trying new things or improving their current lot.

Besides satisfying an inner need to do "something," working on home repairs is productive. Before the winter cold sets in, analyze the "anatomy" of your house.

Beginning with the exterior, does your roof allow for proper drainage after heavy precipitation? Is the siding sturdy and aesthetically pleasing?

Are there any air leaks from the windows? Do the windows fit their frames? Do they open and close properly? If you don't have them, you may want to consider adding storm windows.

Are there security locks or gates on windows to discourage burglars from entering? An alarm system might be worth the investment to deter criminals and provide personal security.

Is there adequate insulation? Does the thermostat regulate the heat efficiently? With the government's suggestion of lowering thermostats to save energy, it might be worthwhile to stock up on decorative afghans and woolen blankets for the cooler rooms.

There's as much to do on the inside as on the outside. If you've been procrastinating, this is the perfect time to fix up the attic or basement. Investigate refinishing alternatives. If there are teenagers living at home, why not create a living space for them?

Or, consider using parts of these rooms as studios for hobbies. Wood and metal working shops would be great for working on home repair projects through the winter.

Sandwiched between the upstairs and downstairs are the main living quarters. Take a kitchen inventory. Are there sufficient appliances and work areas to aid you in your culinary expression? Is there a way of reorganizing your available space to make it more efficient?

Inspect the living room and den. Does any of the furniture need to be reupholstered or replaced? How about sprucing up these rooms with house plants?

Has each room's appearance been maintained?

Expansion ideas: Extra bathroom space

A plain bedroom and bathroom can become a luxurious health spa. Convenience, in the tiled "wet area" and in the compartmentalized design that allows for privacy, has not been forgotten in this remodeling idea.

Make bedroom a spa

If you like to work out, but don't have the time or energy to travel to a health club, here is a remodeling idea that will help keep you in shape. You can have your own health spa at home by converting a spare 10-by-12 bedroom next to a 9-by-5 bathroom into a luxurious area for daily workouts.

The bedroom becomes the main workout area by removing the closet to make room for weightlifting equipment. A trampoline and an exercise bar are also included to round out your routine of aerobic exercises. A mirrored wall behind the exercise bar visually expands space in the fitness area.

One corner of the bedroom becomes a sauna. By removing the wall between the two rooms and replacing the original tub with a shower, access to the bathroom is created and the entire "wet area" can be tiled. The extra space created by removing the wall also makes room for a whirlpool in the expanded bathroom. To maintain privacy, a door separates the main bathroom area from the sauna and fitness area.

The new construction in the two rooms will go quickly if your remodeler uses quality pneumatic tools. Power-driven tools do a quality job in about half the time needed to hand-nail.

These ideas and many more are included in a collection of design ideas called

"Design Directions: A Portfolio of Architectural Concepts."

This colorful portfolio is available for $8.50 from Duo-Fast Corporation through Juhl Associates, Dept. BV, 121 W. Franklin Street, Elkhart, Ind. 46516.

Ceiling fans save

Before air conditioning, there was the ceiling fan. Now there is still the ceiling fan, but with advantages of greater efficiency and modern design to help with summer heat and energy costs.

You can really heat the heat when you have both an air conditioner and a ceiling fan.

Simply set the fan to blow downward from the ceiling to set up a mild wind-chill factor. This cooling effect allows you to operate the air conditioner at a higher thermostatic temperature without discomfort.

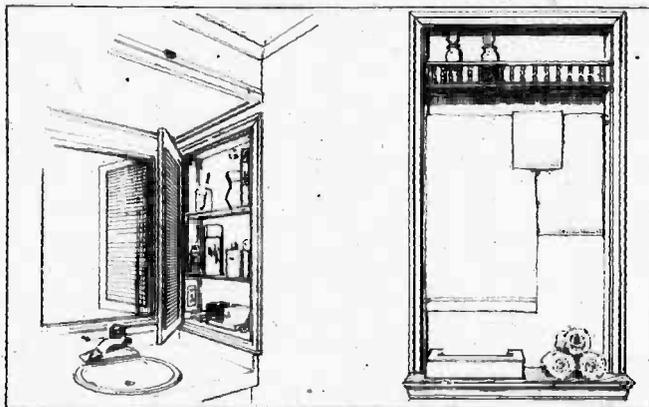

A 52-inch fan with four or five blades will use approximately 26 watts—less than most light bulbs—when operated at low speed. The fan allows you to set a higher temperature on the air conditioner and substantially reduce energy use and cost.

Today's bathrooms are as luxurious and dramatic as any other room in the house; and any old, plain bathroom can easily be transformed into stylish living space. One good idea is to use the stud area to add useful storage in an eye-catching way. A medicine cabinet recessed into the stud area can hold hair dryers and electric contact lens cleaners used every day, and an outlet can be included right inside for convenience.

This medicine cabinet and towel bar are two ideas for creating a beautiful and useful bathroom.

Caulking stops leaks

Water that leaks in around pipes, flashings and gutters can cause a great deal of damage to your home. Caulking is an efficient, easy way to stop leaks and save money. Most caulking compounds will effectively seal joints that are one-half inch or less in length or depth.

Successful caulking starts with proper surface preparation and the correct caulking material, according to researchers at Geocel Corporation, a leading manufacturer of caulks.

The surface must be thoroughly cleaned first to remove dirt and grimy residue. It's best to chip away any old caulk, remove old paint with sandpaper and then wash the area with a household detergent.

Areas where dissimilar materials form a seam, such as a brick chimney to metal flashings, a flexible caulk works well. This type of caulk is very elastic and accommodates the natural expansion and contraction of construction seams.

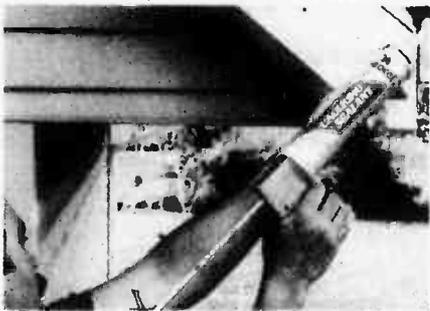

Caulking is not difficult, but it may take a little practice to feel comfortable during application.

Begin at the top or end of the joint.

Holding the cartridge nozzle at a 45-degree angle slowly pull down or across the joint, gently squeezing to leave a smooth bead.

Try to avoid making jerky stops and starts.

After you complete your first successful caulking job, go through your house and check for all the other places where caulking can supply an effective solution to air and water leaks.

How to buy paint

There is a saying that people will buy cheap paint once, but they'll buy quality paint again and again. But how can you be assured you're purchasing a good-quality paint — one that will adhere to the surface and be easy to clean when scuffed? There are a few guidelines that will assure you've bought a good-quality paint that will perform as you expect.

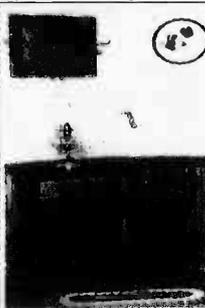

One of the first steps is to identify what characteristics you want and need in a paint. Do you need a paint that can be scrubbed? Do you need a coating for high-humidity rooms like the kitchen and bath? A tough coating for the porch floor?

In formulating coatings to meet this variety of needs, paint manufacturers must provide the benefits you expect, such as easy soap-and-water cleanup, quick drying, scrubability, stain resistance and strong hiding power. The result should be a good-quality coating that meets the need for which it is designed and also satisfies your expectations.

One of the best ways to ensure that you are buying a good-quality paint designed for your specific application is to consult a professional paint dealer. He can help you avoid costly mistakes such as using exterior-trim paint on metal downspouts, which may require a coating for galvanized metal.

Some tips for wood

The subtle warmth of real wood enhances almost any decor. Whatever the style — a Victorian theme with fine wood furniture, a contemporary setting with sleek wood floors or a dazzling 21st-century look with rich wood accents — wood finishes bring out the natural beauty of fine wood furniture.

To get the best results with a wood stain, follow these finishing tips from the experts at Fuller-O'Brien Paints:

Getting started
Remove all knobs, drawer handles and other hardware. Mask off the areas not to be stained. Doors and drawers should be removed and finished separately. Do not forget to place drop cloths under your staining project.

• Use good-quality, clean tools for the best staining results. A 3-inch pure bristle brush is perfect for most jobs. A soft cloth or cheesecloth is best for wiping surfaces. You can also use a spray gun for objects that can be finished in a large, well-ventilated room such as a basement or garage.

Woods and finishes
• Remember: Always sand with the wood grain, never against it.

• To prepare unfinished wood surfaces, sand the surface smooth. It must be completely clean and dry before staining.

• To stain a dark wood to a lighter color, you must sand and then bleach the surface.

Sealing windows valuable

If your home improvement schedule includes repainting windows, there are several steps that will ensure a better-looking, longer-lasting finish.

Proper surface preparation is essential. It will make painting easier and faster. Scrape away all loose paint, brush completely with a wire brush and smooth any paint edges by sanding lightly. Thoroughly clean all surfaces with detergent and water and let dry.

For added protection, coat the wood with a transparent, water-repellant which contains waterproofing solids that form a barrier against water penetration. For maximum protection, apply two coats of sealer. Brush on the sealer with a clean paintbrush.
