Vol. 14, No. 43

MCAS Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii

October 24, 1985

CFC kicks off Friday; 'Your share helps' slogan

by SSgt. Dave Smith

The 1985 Honolulu Area Combined Federal Campaign begins tomorrow and the goal for Hawaii Marines has been set at $251,400, an increase of 22.8 percent based on last year's contributions.

"Over the past 24 years, federal employees and members of the Armed Forces have shown their concern by contributing more than $1.1 billion to charitable organizations through the CFC," said President Ronald Reagan in his announcement endorsing the fund drive.

Command coordinators are optimistic about the fund drive. "We're expecting a very successful campaign this year," said Maj. D.W. Kessler, MCAS coordinator,

"and this will depend upon the success of the many enthusiastic keypersons who will be personally contacting the federal employees here."

Donating to the CFC is easy. An allotment for as little as $2 a month can be obligated to organizations listed in the CFC pamphlet, or to one specific cause such as a hometown Boy Scout program or other charitable organization the individual selects. One-time, cash contributions are also welcomed.

"Everyone, no matter how young they are, must know someone who has benefited in some from one of the many organizations listed in the CFC brochure," said Maj. S.G. Hornberger, command coordinator for the 1st MAB.

COMBINED
CAMPAIGN

There are 177 local and international charities or campaign groups listed in this year's CFC brochure. Many of them provide either direct aid to underprivileged or diseased people; or research treatment or cures for those afflicted with a disease or disorder.

"While the decision to give is personal and voluntary, I encourage each of you to join me in wholeheartedly supporting this year's CFC," concluded President Reagan.

Guidelines listed for holiday mailing

The U.S. Postal Service has published guidelines for mailing holiday greetings and packages.

To ensure they arrive on time, November is when most parcels should be shipped. Packages can be shipped by Parcel Airlift Mail, or Space Available Mail.

Packages up to 30 pounds, and 60 inches in combined length and girth, may be sent by PAL. Patrons pay the regular parcel post rate to the United States exit port or from the port of entry, plus a fee for air service. The air service fee is 30 cents for parcels weighing 20 pounds or less; 60 cents for 2 to 3 pounds; 90 cents for 3 to 4 pounds; and $1.20 for 4 to 30 pounds.

Military parcels should be shipped in November by Space Available Mail. Items shipped by SAM are transported by surface means and flown on a space available basis from the United States to overseas destinations or from overseas destinations to the United States.

Packages up to 30 pounds, and 60 inches in combined length and girth, may be sent by SAM for regular parcel post rates to the United States exit port or from the United States port of entry.

When mailed from a military post office outside the continental United States, the weight cannot exceed 70 pounds and size is limited to 100 inches in combined length and girth.

The post office here normally handles 1,000 to 3,000 pounds of mail daily, but during the Christmas season they handle almost 6,000 pounds daily. This is why mailing early is stressed.

Wrapping is also important. If the box is dirty, use brown paper and seal the box. Nylon strap tape is best, and masking or scotch tape are not recommended.

The post office at the Marine Corps Exchange has a lot of business during the Christmas season. GySgt. David Retan, the Main Post Office operations chief, suggests, patrons use the Main Post Office to alleviate long lines at the Exchange Post Office. The Main Post Office is located in building 835 on Second and D street.

To ensure mail will be received by Christmas, domestic area letters, cards, and priority parcels going to the continental United States, Alaska, or Puerto Rico should be mailed by Dec. 14. Parcels being sent to those locations via surface transportation should be sent by Nov. 11. Letters, cards, and priority parcels destined for Guam should be sent by Dec. 11, and surface parcels by Nov. 11.

For letters, cards, and priority parcels bound for APO or FPO addresses in Europe and the Far East, Dec. 6 is the deadline. Parcel Airlift mail packages to those locations should be sent by Nov. 25 and SAM packages by Nov. 15.

Africa and Azores bound APO and FPO letters, cards, and priority parcels should be mailed by Dec. 2. Their PAL mailing date is Nov. 11 and the SAM mailing date is Nov. 4.

Mail to South and Central American and Near East APOs and FPOs should be mailed as follows: letters, cards, and priority parcels, Nov. 25, PAL, Nov. 11; and SAM, Nov. 4. All other APO and FPO destined letters, cards, and priority parcels should be mailed by Nov. 25, with PAL packages mailed by Nov. 4, and SAM packages sent by Oct. 28.

International mail should be mailed to Canada and Mexico, letters, cards, and parcels by air, Dec. 14; by surface, Nov. 11.

To South and Central America, letters, cards, and parcels by air, Dec. 4; by surface, Nov. 4.

To the Far East and Europe, letters, cards, and parcels by air, Dec. 6;

And all other countries, letters, cards, and parcels by air Nov. 25.

Surface mailing dates for the Far East, Europe, and all other countries has already passed and mail will not be guaranteed to arrive by Christmas.

Oct. 27: Daylight-saving time; Mainland sets clocks back

Daylight-savings time doesn't affect Hawaiian residents, but when it comes to calling the mainland, it's a good idea to remember that at 2 a.m., on Oct. 27 is when mainland clocks are set back an hour — except for Arizona.

Next year, people may be waiting until after Halloween for that extra hour if the bill in Congress passes.

Charcoal briquette manufacturers like the idea, claiming they will sell $56 million more of their product. Farmers think extending daylight-savings time would be a hardship, shortchanging them of morning daylight to do chores.

Parents of young children like the idea of more evening light at Halloween, but don't like the idea of their children waiting for early morning buses in the dark.

Daylight-saving time has long been a subject of controversy in the United States, and the bill being considered this year — which would also begin daylight-savings time at the end of March — is not the first such proposal.

Similar bills extending daylight-savings time were introduced in 1976, 1981 and 1983, but didn't become law.

In past years, daylight-savings time has been extended only for energy-saving purposes — during both world wars, during the entire year of 1974 and for eight months in 1975.

Hawaii Marine

The Hawaii Marine is an unofficial newspaper published every Thursday by RFD Publications, Inc., 46-016 Alaloa St., Kaneohe, HI 96744. A private firm in no way connected with the Department of the Navy or the United States Marine Corps. All advertising is provided by the publisher, RFD Publications, Inc., by calling 235-5881 or by visiting their office. Circulation is 8,000.

The editorial content is edited, prepared and provided by the Joint Public Affairs Office, Marine Corps Air Station/1st Marine Amphibious Brigade, Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii, 96863-5001, telephone 257-2178/2179. Opinions expressed by the publisher and journalists are their own, and are not to be considered an official expression of the Department of the Navy or the United States Marine Corps.

Articles for publication must be submitted to the Joint Public Affairs Office by 4:30 p.m. on Thursday for the following week's publication. The Hawaii Marine staff solicits articles and photographs from all Marine Corps, Navy and civilian organizations sanctioned by the Commanding Officer, MCAS Kaneohe Bay; however, the Joint Public Affairs Officer, or his designated representative, reserves the right to edit or rewrite materials submitted for publication. Submission does not constitute publication. All photographs published are Official Marine Corps photographs unless otherwise noted. The Hawaii Marine subscribes to the Armed Forces Information Service (AFIS), and Navy Editor Service (NES), which articles are published on a regular basis.

Items advertised in the Hawaii Marine must be made available for purchase, use, or patronage to everyone without regard to race, creed, color, national origin, religion, age or sex of the purchaser, user or patron. A confirmed violation, or rejection, of this policy of equal opportunity by any advertiser will result in the refusal to print advertising from that source. The appearance of all advertisements in the Hawaii Marine, to include inserts and/or flyers, does not constitute endorsement by the Department of Defense, the Department of the Navy or the United States Marine Corps, of the firms products or services advertised.

A voluntary monthly contribution of $1 from residents of government housing at the Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay, may be requested by Sun Press carriers delivering the Hawaii Marine. This contribution is strictly voluntary and residents will receive the Hawaii Marine whether they contribute or not.

Commentary

Give so others may live

"At this festive season of the year, Mr. Scrooge," said the gentleman, taking up a pen, "it is more than usually desirable that we should make some slight provision for the poor and destitute, who suffer greatly at the present time. Many thousands are in want of common comforts, Sir."

While it isn't the Christmas season yet, many of the problems facing humanity when Charles Dickens wrote "A Christmas Carol" are flourishing today. Also, while most would hesitate in comparing themselves to Ebenezer Scrooge, many of the lessons Scrooge learned can be applied today to Marines and sailors during the annual Combined Federal Campaign.

It isn't often that we are asked to look inside ourselves and find ways we can improve the lives of others.

As Marines and sailors, we often get so involved in our mission or personal lives that we forget how fortunate we are. We have our health, a steady job and an organization that looks after us during our times of trouble. Yet, there are others who are not as fortunate.

The CFC provides us with an opportunity to help those who can't help themselves. Whether it's because of disabilities, disease, lack of trained skills or education, this is our chance to help someone less fortunate than ourselves.

Contributions to CFC go for such diverse things as glasses for those who are sight impaired; wheelchairs for those whose limbs can't support themselves; reading classes for those who are illiterate; emergency care during disasters; research; or food for the hungry.

Hundreds of organizations that help those less fortunate than ourselves benefit through CFC. The money that is collected can be named to a specific charity or put where it is most needed.

Oftentimes we claim we haven't time for ourselves, much less for others. With CFC, time isn't what's important; the money you contribute is. By giving a one-time contribution or signing up for a monthly allotment, Marines and sailors have a chance to improve the lives of those who desperately need it.

As Marines and sailors, it is our duty to carry on our traditions and beliefs in helping those less fortunate than ourselves. With this year's CFC, we can show those people that we haven't forgotten them and more importantly — that we care.

MPS-3 ship

PFC Williams visits Hawaii

Story and photos
by WO Eric Carlson

Motor Vessel PFC DeWayne T. Williams, one of the four ships to be used by the 1st Marine Amphibious Brigade in its new role with the Maritime Prepositioning Ships program, visited Pearl Harbor Oct. 16-21.

Brigade Marines took advantage of the visit to familiarize themselves with the ship which will hold approximately one-fourth of the 1st MAB's prepositioned combat equipment.

Members of the 1st MAB's newly-organized MPS-3 Planning Cell conducted briefings and tours of the ship, and arranged familiarization training for vehicle and equipment operators from BSSG and the 3d Marines.

The ship is one of 13 being chartered and manned by civilian crews of the Military Sealift Command as part of the MPS program. All MPS ships are named after Marines who won the Medal of Honor. Two other Marine Amphibious Brigades — the 6th MAB at Camp Lejeune, N.C.; and the 7th MAB at Twentynine Palms, Calif. — operate in conjunction with MPS.

In the future, Marines will be able to be airlifted from their bases directly to, or near, an objective area where they will "marry up" with most of their equipment prepositioned aboard the merchant-class ships.

The four ships assigned to operate with the 1st MAB have been designated the MPS-3 squadron. The equipment the ships will carry will come from Marine Corps logistics bases on the mainland and will be loaded at an east or gulf coast port in mid-1986.

The four MPS-3 ships are: the Sgt. William R. Button, scheduled for completion in May 1986; the 1stLt. Jack Lummus, scheduled for completion in March 1986; the 1stLt. Baldomero Lopez, scheduled for completion in November 1985; and the PFC

DeWayne T. Williams, currently in operation.

No MPS ships will be homeported in Hawaii. The MPS-3 squadron will be operationally based at Guam and Tinian.

Jeeps and other vehicles await embarkation aboard the MV (motor vessel) PFC DeWayne T. Williams.

The MV (motor vessel), PFC DeWayne T. Williams is berthed at the V-2 Pier at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

Blue Angels featured at Open House

Story and photos
by SSgt. Greg Berry

Spectators from the surrounding community gathered here last Thursday to watch a performance by the U.S. Navy Flight Demonstration team, the Blue Angels. Children enjoyed sitting in the driver's seat of Amphibious Assault Vehicles and various types of earth-moving equipment, and staring through the sights of antitank weapons.

The visitors were also given an opportunity to see static display of tactical Marine Corps equipment, including CH-46, CH-53 and UH-1N helicopters and a variety of squad weapons.

Special demonstrations were also performed by a Search and Rescue team, military police working dogs, and a brief concert by the FMFPac Band

New dog tags will ease paperwork burden

Fans of the television series "MASH" no doubt remember the efficient company clerk Cpl. Radar O'Reilly.

"Radar" was the GI's dream: He knew where to find everything. In today's world of specialization, clerks usually don't have access to all the information "Radar" did. Finance people have the finance records; personnel folks have the personnel records; and medical people have the medical records.

After years of research, officials at the Soldier Support Division of the U.S. Army's Combat Development Directorate, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., believe the new soldier data tag — a computer chip sandwiched in plastic between two metal dog tags — will enable service people to carry detailed personal information with them.

Chris Occhialini, systems manager for the soldier data tag, said the computer chip was the overwhelming choice for information storage because it is more durable and its data can be erased and updated.

Laser cards and magnetic strips were considered, but magnetic strips could be erased by magnets and laser cards were susceptible to scratching. The chip being considered is about one-quarter inch square and has a 64K memory (about 15 pages of single-spaced typewritten information). Each chip is expected to cost about $30.

Before departing for overseas, checks must be made on each service member to see if they have a will, all necessary shots, a medical profile, or how many more years of service does he or she have.

Today, everyone awaiting deployment lines up and has their paperwork processed manually by finance, personnel, medical and other representatives. With the soldier data tag the computer chip would be handed over and placed into a reader. In 30 seconds or so, all needed information would be available.

A February 1983 test showed how efficient the soldier data tag could be to manifest troops boarding aircraft for deployment.

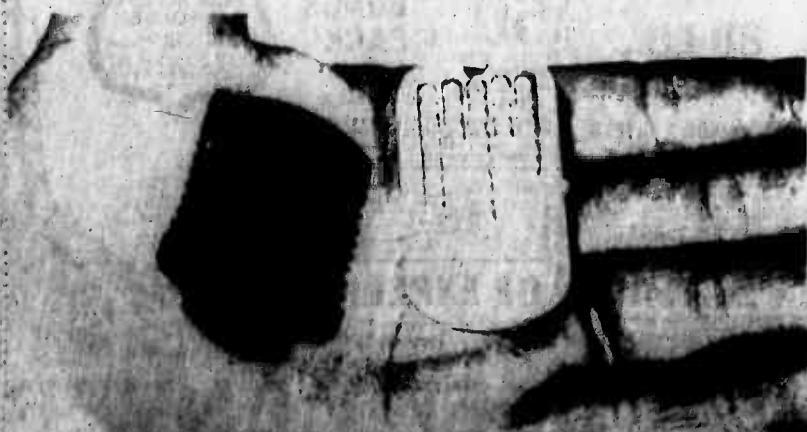

Presently, this information is compiled on paper, and changes must be sent back to administrative personnel for retyping.

During the test, soldiers boarding the aircraft handed over their computer chips, which were read into portable computers. Within minutes, a complete, accurate listing was provided to the aircraft commander.

The technology behind the soldier data tag and its associated equipment is impressive. Basically, the Army is studying ways to provide portable computers at lower command levels that are linked with larger computers at higher levels.

For example, during conflicts, soldier casualty information could be passed on to higher headquarters directly from the field. Not only would a casualty be identified, but higher

Helping Hands Defending The Defenseless

As one who cares about pro-life concerns, you are no doubt keenly aware of the principles of life and liberty that made this country the great nation it is today. You are aware that many of these great principles are in danger as you consider abortion, infanticide, and euthanasia. You are no doubt also concerned about the millions of people whose lives are affected or endangered.

At the National Right to Life Educational Trust Fund, we are concerned about both the philosophy of life that we as a nation choose and about the individual men, women, and children whose lives are affected by inaccurate information and uninformed choices. Through education, communication, and the support of related social services, we are helping the hands of those who can neither speak for nor care for themselves. We need your help to carry on this vital work on behalf of the lives of these innocents, whatever their age or situation. We believe that you are just the kind of person who could join with us.

Safe vaccine for Hib available

If you have a child between the ages of 2 and 5, and particularly if the child attends a day-care center, you're aware of "Hib" — hemophilus influenza type b — a dangerous and potentially fatal bacterial infection that affects children of that age.

What you may not have heard is that there is a new vaccine that protects children from "Hib" disease.

The U.S. Center for Disease Control recommends the vaccine for all 2-year-old children and for children in high risk categories from 18 months of age until their fifth birthday.

Dr. Ernest Takafuji, the Army's disease control consultant, goes a step further. "I strongly recommend that all 2- to 5-year-old military children get the shot. The disease is most common among children in clustered conditions, and most military children, whether they're in base housing, day-care centers or family day care, fit that description," said Takafuji.

Besides day-care children, those at high risk for Hib include children with no spleen, with Hodgkin's disease, with sickle-cell disease, and the poor.

The vaccine has been found to be 90 percent effective in children 18 to 71 months of age. Although the vaccine is not effective for children under 18 months, younger siblings and playmates will have a reduced chance of getting Hib if the 2-year-olds are vaccinated.

Unlike vaccines such as that for pertussis (whooping cough), the new Hib vaccine is made from only a part of the bacteria, rather than inactivated whole bacteria. Such a purified vaccine appears to cause fewer adverse reactions.

In clinical trials, the only side effects — which were infrequent — involved swelling and soreness at the injection sight, as well as some fever.

All service medical clinics are giving the vaccine, although temporary shortages may exist at some clinics because the vaccine's manufacturer has been having difficulty making enough to meet demand.

What is "Hib"?

Hib is the short term for "Hemophilus influenza type b," a bacterial infection that causes an estimated 12,000 cases of meningitis in the United States every year.

About 60 percent of the children who contract Hib get meningitis. Meningitis is a leading cause of acquired mental retardation, and can also cause deafness.

In addition, every year Hib is responsible for 7,500 cases of pneumonia, infectious arthritis — a potentially crippling form of arthritis that affects children — blood infection and epiglottitis, a swelling in the throat that can lead to suffocation.

Hib infection leads to an estimated 1,000 deaths per year. Overall, children in day-care centers have almost twice the rate of Hib infections as children in the general population. Day-care children 2 to 3 years old have 3.8 times the risk of Hib compared to children the same age in the general population.

American Forces

Hib vaccine available at Branch clinic

The Branch Medical Clinic, here, will be offering the Hib vaccination Nov. 7, to children ages 18 months old and to those who have not reached their fifth birthday and are attending preschool or day care facilities.

Hib vaccine has been recently developed to protect susceptible children from becoming infected with the bacteria Hemophilus influenza, type B (Hib), which can cause the serious illnesses of epiglottitis and one type of meningitis.

Because children in preschool and day care facilities come into close contact with other children, they are at particularly high risk of developing serious disease from Hib. This vaccine will now be a routine immunization given to children when they turn 2 years old.

To schedule an appointment call 237-3321. Walk-in patients will not be accepted. Only bring children being immunized. Availability of the vaccine is limited.

DOG/ from A-4

headquarters would also be able to identify the soldier's specialty and begin looking for a replacement immediately.

Occhialini said different types of information would normally be accessed through a password known only to the wearer. That means finance people couldn't access routine medical information and the medics wouldn't have access to personnel information. There would be open access to emergency medical information.

Occhialini said users wouldn't be able to keep all the information on the chip when deployed to hostile areas. "We can also erase sensitive information and load it onto computers in a safe area," he said. The only things that would remain are medical and Geneva Convention information.

The tag is not intended to replace paperwork totally. "We want to build in redundancy," said Occhialini. "We want to distribute the data base and to reduce the administrative burden through automation."

Occhialini said the tag was designed to provide timely and accurate information concerning the soldier when it was needed without having to rely on paper alone.

The concept of a soldier data tag has been approved, and funding has been appropriated. More application and durability tests are scheduled. Occhialini said procurement for Army and Army National Guard personnel should begin in late 1987.

Washer loan

To support military families living in the civilian community, the Oahu Consolidated Family Housing Office offers washers and dryers to all command-sponsored families.

The Housing Office will provide delivery of the appliances. To arrange for delivery, service members must present their military ID card, and a copy of their orders, at the Furnishings Management Office for their duty station.

For more information, call 257-2984; Catlin Park, all Navy/Marine personnel stationed at the Pearl Harbor area, 471-0053; and Barbers Point, 684-5154.

Marine Corps Museum Shop

The Marine Corps' Museum Shop in Washington, D.C., has a new catalog available for Christmas shopping.

Requests for the catalog with $1 refundable with first order can be sent to the Marine Corps Museum Shop, Washington Navy Yard, Bldg. 58, Washington, D.C. 20374.

Enlisted Marines' birthday ball

The Marine Corps Birthday Ball for enlisted is scheduled for Nov. 9 at the Windward Enlisted Club.

An "all-you-can-eat" dinner menu will include carved roast beef au jus, southern fried chicken, mahi-mahi in golden Pacific sauce, pork oriental delight, mixed vegetables, mashed potatoes with gravy, salad bar, rolls and butter, coffee or tea and birthday cake.

The FMFPac Band will perform at the ceremony. A live band will provide entertainment in the Main Ballroom and a DJ will provide music in the Moongate Lounge.

OWC bake sale

The Marine Officers Wives Club will have its annual Christmas Bazaar and Bake sale from 9 a.m. to noon Wednesday at the Camp Smith Exchange area.

Lost & found getting larger

Numerous articles of personal property have been turned over to the Military Police here. A large percentage of this property is unmarked, which causes a problem in locating owners.

Unclaimed property held by the Military Police includes numerous bicycles, a moped, rings, keys, glasses, cue sticks and athletic bags. To claim this property owners can contact the Military Police Lost and Found Custodian at 257-2103 with detailed descriptions. Items will be held for four months before being turned in for disposal.

The Military Police Crime Prevention Section can also help you mark personal property by calling 257-3110 during normal working hours.

Commissary holiday closure

The Commissary Store will be closed Nov. 9 in observance of Veterans' Day.

Parenting workshop

Parents Anonymous of Hawaii will be sponsoring free workshops for parents on "How To Talk So Kids Will Listen."

Topics include how to help your children deal with their feelings, using praise, and how to encourage cooperation. Free child care will be provided.

The workshops will be held at:

Windward Community Counseling Center, 45-691 Keaahala St., Kaneohe, Wednesday, 6:30-8:30 p.m.

Hoku Le'a School, 38 Kaneohe Bay Dr., Kailua, Nov. 12, 7-8:30 p.m.

Opportunities available to command recruiters include working in a recruiting office near home; composite points towards promotion; and a chance to see if recruiting might be an option for future assignments.

Information needed includes town from which the Marine was recruited; duty station address; name of unit sergeant major or first sergeant; whether the Marine has participated in the command recruiter/recruiter assistant program before; and the Marine's name, rank and social security number.

Permissive TAD periods average about 30 days. Marines in receipt of orders, or pending any type of administrative action, are not eligible.

The Hartford recruiting command includes all of Connecticut and most of western Massachusetts.

Courts-Martial Report

Private Richard E. Schafer, 3/3, was convicted during a Special Court-Martial, Aug. 30, of unauthorized absence from May 5 to June 11, 1985; stealing keys; and wrongful possession of a vehicle. He was sentenced to confinement at hard labor for five months; and forfeit $400 a month for five months.

Private First Class Kenneth L. McClam, H&MS-24, was convicted during a Special Court-Martial, Sept. 6, of failure to go to his appointed place of duty on two occasions; and of unauthorized absence, July 3-5. He was sentenced to be confined at hard labor for 45 days; reduced to private; and forfeit $150 a month for three months.

Lance Corporal Robert J. Ludlow, 1/12, was convicted during a Special Court-Martial, Sept. 9, of wrongful possession of drug paraphernalia and wrongful use of marijuana. He was sentenced to hard labor, without confinement, for two months; forfeit $200 a month for six months; and reduced to private.

Marines who enlisted from RS Hartford and want to try their hand at recruiting should call (203) 722-2691/2683, or write Commanding Officer, USMC Recruiting Station, 450 Main St., Hartford, CT 06103.

Public service volunteers

Volunteers are needed for the State of Hawaii Judiciary in a variety of positions and programs.

Some of the areas open to volunteers include adult probation case and bailiff aides; court and law clerical; law library; research statistician and teacher's aides; community service supervisor; reserve deputy sheriff; newsletter editor and staff; and building information guide.

Counselors are also needed to provide family, marital and individual therapy.

To schedule a screening appointment call Rose Lani at 548-2010.

Legal Assistance

Survivor benefit plan

Many career-minded servicemembers and those approaching retirement want to know what the Survivor Benefit Plan is about and how it affects retired pay.

The SBP law was enacted in 1972. Basically, it is designed to provide income protection for survivors of a retired uniformed services-member following the retiree's death. Survivors may include a widow or widower, dependent children or persons with an insurable interest in a retiring member.

Cost of the plan

Income protection is provided through a survivor annuity. The cost of the annuity is withheld from the retiree's retired pay. The Federal Government also contributes to part of the SBP cost. Under current provisions of the law, the maximum SBP survivor payment is 55 percent of the servicemember's retired pay.

For example, if the retired pay base is $2,000, the maximum monthly coverage amount payable to a spouse only is $1,100. The cost of such a plan would be $177.50 per month to the retiree.

Option to enroll

Upon retirement, a servicemember has the option to enroll in the SBP. He or she may choose to reduce the amount of retired pay on which survivor payments are based or decline to participate in the SBP. The decision should be made in writing to the appropriate service at least 30 days before the first day for which the retiree can receive retired pay.

Automatic enrollment

A servicemember who retires while on extended active duty who has not made an election is automatically enrolled in the SBP with maximum coverage when he or she retires if he or she has a spouse or dependent children at the time of retirement. A servicemember usually cannot withdraw from the plan once it is in effect unless he or she later becomes totally disabled.

If there is no spouse or dependent children at the time of retirement, then the servicemember can enroll in the program and name a beneficiary who has an insurable interest in him or her; otherwise, the retiree can start participation in the SBP when he or she acquires a spouse or child after retirement.

Participation in SBP during retirement may provide an important supplement to social security benefits and other income protection available to a widow or widower and/or dependent children of a retired servicemember.

Uniformed service-members should consider the advantages of the plan in connection with other financial planning and estate planning strategies.

DEA seeks agents

The Drug Enforcement Administration is seeking applications from qualified individuals for a career as a special agent (criminal investigator).

The DEA is responsible for enforcing Federal laws dealing with all aspects of drug trafficking, and has offices throughout the United States and in many foreign countries. Special Agents are law enforcement officers with powers of arrest and conduct search and seizure, and are licensed to carry firearms.

Applicants must be US citizens; have not reached their 35th birthday at the time of appointment; agree to be assigned anywhere in the United States; be in excellent physical condition; and pass a strict background investigation.

Additional qualifications include a bachelor's degree from an accredited college, and one year of specialized experience, met by a 2.9 GPA over four years, or 2.9 GPA over the last two years; or a 3.5 GPA in the academic major, or one year of graduate studies; or a graduate degree, or a full-time assignment of at least one year in the field of criminal investigation.

Upon appointment, special agents will attend basic training at the FBI Academy, Quantico, Va., for about 15 weeks. All appointments are made at the GS-7 level, and 25 percent of the base salary is added for compensation for uncontrollable overtime. Current starting salary is $23,424.

Applications may be obtained at the DEA Honolulu Resident Office, Prince Kuhio Federal Building, 300 Ala Moana Blvd., or at the Los Angeles District Office, 350 S. Figueroa St., Suite 800, Los Angeles, Calif. 90071.

For questions regarding the position call SA James Smith, at 213-8942650.

Energy conservation

It's critical to our mission

Energy use steadily rises

Americans use more energy per person than any other people in the world. We have only 6 percent of the world's population, but we use about one-third of all the energy consumed on this globe. Our total national energy cost is steadily rising.

Where does all this energy go?

Our industry takes about 36 percent. Our commerce uses about 11 percent for enterprises including stores, offices, schools, and hospitals. Our residences take about 26 percent. And transportation accounts for another 29 percent or so.

Most of the energy we use in the United States comes from petroleum (crude oil). Because domestic production falls short of our needs, we have to import almost half of it.

Expert estimates of our known and potential domestic reserves vary, but most likely we have somewhere between a 25 to 30 year supply of oil, if we keep our energy-use growth rate at about 2 percent per year.

However, if we continue using energy as we have become accustomed to, we could run out of domestic oil supplies in the year 2007, and we may run out of natural gas even sooner.

The overall energy situation in the United States is not rosy: Energy demand keeps rising; energy prices keep going up; the availability and future costs of supplies remain uncertain.

What can we do about it?

Conserve energy. This will help us extend our supplies and reduce our import burdens until we develop new energy technologies and resources.

Without personal hard-ship, we could easily cut our energy use by an estimated 30 percent or more — saving energy for our country and money for ourselves.

The energy we use for our homes and automobiles — gas, oil, electricity — draws on all of our energy resources. Cutting back on these uses is the simplest, most effective way to make our resources last longer. And each individual conservation effort, multiplied by millions, can serve as an "energy bank" — a supply that can be used to help balance our energy accounts.

We can conserve if we make energy thrift a part of our way of life — adopting commonsense energy habits.

Cooking energy savers

- Use cold water rather than hot to operate your food disposer. This saves the energy needed to heat the water, is recommended for the appliance, and aids in getting rid of grease. Grease solidifies in cold water and can be ground up and washed away.

- Install an aerator in your kitchen sink faucet. By reducing the amount of water in the flow, you use less hot water and save the energy that would have been required to heat it. The lower flow pressure is hardly noticeable.

- If you need to purchase a gas oven or range, look for one with an automatic (electronic) ignition system instead of pilot lights. You'll save an average of up to 47 percent of your gas use — 41 percent in the oven and 53 percent on the top burners.

- If you have a gas stove, make sure the pilot light is burning efficiently — with a blue flame. A yellowish flame indicates an adjustment is needed.

- Never boil water in an open pan. Water will come to a boil faster and use less energy in a kettle or covered pan.

- Keep range-top burners and reflectors clean. They will reflect the heat better, and you will save energy.

- Match the size of pan to the heating element. More heat will get to the pan; less will be lost to surrounding air.

- If you cook with electricity, get in the habit of turning off the burners several minutes before the allotted cooking time. The heating element will stay hot long enough to finish the cooking for you without using more electricity.

- When using the oven, make the most of the heat from that single source. Cook as many foods as you can at one time. Prepare dishes that can be stored or frozen for later use or make all oven-cooked meals.

- Watch the clock or use a timer; don't continually open the oven door to check food. Every time you open the door heat escapes and your cooking takes more energy.

- Use small electric pans or ovens for small meals rather than the kitchen range or oven. They use less energy.

- Use pressure cookers and microwave ovens if you have them. They can save energy by reducing cooking time.

About 8 percent of all the energy used in the United States goes into running electrical home appliances, so appliance use and selection can make a considerable difference in home utility costs.

Buying energy-efficient appliances may cost a bit more initially but that expense is more than made up by reduced operating costs over the lifetime of the appliance.

Energy efficiency may vary considerably though models seem similar. A wise selection requires a degree of time and effort.

Here are a few general ideas to consider when buying appliances:

- Buy products made of recycled materials or those that can be recycled — steel, aluminum, paper, and glass among others. More energy is used in the production of products from virgin materials than from recycled or reclaimed materials. For example, producing steel from scrap requires only one-quarter of the energy it would take when using virgin ores.

Appliance energy savers

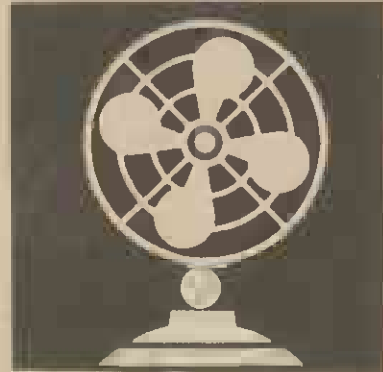

Making a product from recycled aluminum requires less than 10 percent of the energy that would be needed for the same product made from the ore.

- When you buy fabrics or garments, try to choose those that can be washed in cold water and/or require little or no ironing.

- When shopping for an unusual item, telephone ahead to see if the store has it. If it doesn't, you save the energy and time of traveling there and being disappointed.

- Give gifts with year-round benefits. If you have appliances on your gift list, select long-lasting models that use the least amount of energy.

- Don't buy motorized equipment or gadgets when hand-operated versions will do.

- Buy the household equipment that's right for you. Purchasing the right equipment for your home and needs, using it wisely, and taking good care of it can reduce energy costs considerably.

- Bigger isn't necessarily better. Don't buy a larger or more powerful piece of equipment than you need. Whether it's a furnace, air conditioner, or water heater, make sure its size and power are right for your home. Ask your dealer, a trade association, or a consumer-interest group for assistance in judging this factor.

Dishwashing energy savers

The average dishwasher uses 14 gallons of hot water per load. Use it energy efficiently.

- Be sure your dishwasher is full, but not overloaded, when you turn it on.

- When buying a dishwasher, look for a model with air-power and/or overnight dry settings. These features automatically turn off the dishwasher after the rinse cycle. This can save you up to one-third of your total dishwashing energy costs.

- Let your dishes air dry. If you don't have an automatic air-dry switch, turn off the control knob after the final rinse. Prop the door open a little and the dishes will dry faster.
- Don't use the "rinse hold" on your machine. It uses 3 to 7 gallons of hot water each time you use it.
- Scrape dishes before loading them into the dishwasher so you won't have to rinse them. If they need rinsing, use cold water.

Automobile gas savers

30 percent in city traffic.

- The use of air conditioning reduces fuel economy by as much as 20 percent. Air conditioning, as well as other optional equipment, also increases the weight of the automobile, thus further decreasing miles per gallon.

- Excessive idling wastes gasoline. The average American car consumes a cup of gasoline every six minutes when idling.

- Underinflated tires can decrease fuel economy by as much as one mile per gallon.

- Improper front wheel toe-in alignment can decrease fuel economy by 0.3 miles per gallon.

- Every additional 100 pounds of weight increases gas consumption by as much as 0.2 miles per gallon.

To save gas, here are some important tips to follow:

- Keep the engine in tune. Check plugs, points, fuel and air filters, and emission control devices.
- Prevent gas-tank

overflow by not filling it to the neck.

- Select the optimum route in terms of distance and type of highway.

- Travel light and avoid using a car-top rack. The less weight and wind resistance, the better the mileage.

- Combine short trips, such as visits, errands and shopping.

- The most economical speed varies from car to car. Therefore, find and maintain the moderate, legal speed that is best for your vehicle.

According to the Federal Energy Administration, many factors greatly influence actual mileage each driver will get with a certain automobile. A few economy busters include:

- Jack-rabbit starts and jerky acceleration can decrease fuel economy by

55

- Maintain a steady speed as traffic permits.

- Anticipate traffic signals to minimize stop-and-go driving.

- Build up speed before reaching an up-hill grade, not on it.

- Turn off the engine if you must park for more than a minute.

New eye surgery could affect military career

A controversial new eye surgery procedure designed to correct myopia (nearsightedness) could affect a person's prospective or current military career.

The procedure, called radial keratotomy, involves making small incisions in the cornea to change its contour. This diminishes the cornea's refractive power, permitting light to be focused closer to the retina. Improved focus results. If successful, the surgery diminishes the need for glasses or contact lenses.

However, first-year results from a five-year study by the National Eye Institute to determine the efficacy, safety, predictability and stability of radial keratotomy show that while a majority of the eye operations resulted in a decrease of nearsightedness, some problems occurred.

Of the 435 patients involved in the Prospective Evaluation of Radial Keratotomy study who underwent the surgery, 30 percent had undercorrected vision and continued to have some nearsightedness. Ten percent had their eyes overcorrected, resulting in farsightedness.

Two percent of the patients suffered a corneal perforation during surgery. Persistent glare, especially with night driving or flying, has been reported.

Since this is a relatively new procedure (having been performed in the United States since 1978), the long-term effects will not be known for another 15 or 20 years.

Navy Captain Ralph A. Sawyer, chairman of the Ophthalmology Department at Bethesda National Naval Hospital and ophthalmology consultant to the Navy surgeon general, reported that anyone who has had radial keratotomy is not a candidate to enter the Navy.

"Anyone on active duty who has the surgery is in violation of a Navy regulation," Sawyer said. One reason for the regulation is that no one knows the effect the surgery would have on persons operating in different atmospheric conditions both above and below the ocean, according to Sawyer.

Air Force Lieutenant Colonel John W. Shore, chairman of the Department of Ophthalmology at the Air Force's Wilford Hall Medical Center and special assistant to the Air Force surgeon general for ophthalmology, said people who have had radial keratotomy cannot enlist or be commissioned in the Air Force.

The status of anyone currently on active duty who has the surgery will be determined on a case-by-case basis. People who have had radial keratotomy will not be considered for flying duties, according to Shore.

"If results of the surgery are perfectly good and the member meets the visual requirements to remain on active duty, that person would probably be able to remain in the Air Force," said Shore.

If there are complications and the member no longer meets the visual requirements to remain on active duty, he or she would have to go before a medical board which would determine the service member's status.

Army recruiters are prohibited from enlisting recruits who have had radial keratotomy. And according to an Army spokesman, active duty soldiers who have had the operation are subject to medical reevaluation of their fitness to remain on active duty.

Soldiers in a non-flying status will not be considered for flying duties if they have had the surgery.

Service ophthalmologists agree — radial keratotomy is an investigative procedure, and the long-term results are not known. One points out that, even after 18 months, the incisions on the cornea are only 75 percent healed.

Kaneohe Klipper Women Golf Tournament winner, Nadia Ste-Marie (1), helps championship flight winner Lynn Wynn display her award, while tournament low net champion, Doris Ida, displays her award, at the Windward Enlisted Club.

UH students take 'Klipper'

Nadia Ste-Marie, of the University of Hawaii, shot 71 on the first day and 77 on the second to claim a six stroke victory in the 21st Annual Kaneohe Klipper Women's Golf Tournament Oct. 18, at the Air Station Golf Course. Her gross score was 148.

The two-day tournament, which featured five flights divided by handicap, attracted 144 ladies and saw six members of the University of Hawaii women's golf team finish in the top 10 of the championship flight.

Doris Ida, competing in the 15-18 handicap, A-flight, fired the overall low gross score of 169 for the tournament. Her net was 133, and played with an 18 handicap.

May Suzuki captured the 19-23 handicap, B-flight, with gross and net scores of 178 and 140, respectively. Junko Eguchi shot 191 gross and in the 28-32 handicap, D-flight, with a 196 gross score and a 138 net.

143 net to capture the C-flight; while Marilyn Davidson emerged victorious

The State Library offers a children's story hour Saturdays at 10 a.m. The program is geared to develop children's interest in the mystery of books. Call Murray at 257-3583 for questions or information.

Dangers of volatile liquids outlined

Explosions and fires can result while welding, cutting or performing other hot work on containers not entirely free of flammable vapors. Some substances that can produce flammable vapors when mixed with air or oxygen are:

Gasoline, naphtha, alcohol, thinner and volatile liquids that release vapors at atmospheric pressure and at normal and below normal temperatures;

Nonvolatile oils and solids that do not release flammable vapors at ordinary temperatures, but do so when exposed to heat; and

Acids that react with metals to produce hydrogen.

These are safety tips when hot work is to be accomplished on flammable liquids containers:

All sources of ignition should be removed.

The container should be emptied and drained of as much of its contents as possible.

Fuel tanks of cars and trucks should be removed.

All the residue should be disposed of safely by destroying it on an appropriate burning ground or disposing it at designated areas.

Before a container is cleaned, it should be determined if it contains, or has contained, a flammable or combustible substance.

Drums and other small containers should be cleaned in the open to minimize the accumulation of flammable vapors in the cleaning area. If the cleaning must be done indoors, the cleaning area should be ventilated so that flammable vapors will be completely removed.

The inside of the container should be inspected to determine if it is clean. An inspection light for inspecting barrel and tank openings can be used. Such a light should be explosion proof and approved by a recognized authority as being safe for use in flammable vapors. If the inside of the container shows signs of scale, sludge, or rust, it should be cleaned again.

A combustible gas indicator should be used to test for vapors in the containers. If there is any evidence of vapor, the cleaning operation should be repeated.

Contact the Fire Department before doing any hot work on containers for proper, safe procedures and requirements for a hot work permit before the cleaning starts.

There's a difference between these two children

And even their parents aren't sure why

Distinguishing between appropriate behavior and emotional disturbance in children and adolescents often requires professional assessment in a structured environment. Chronic sadness or repeated school failure may indicate a serious emotional problem. Kahi Mōhala's diagnosis and evaluation program provides a short-stay hospital assessment of children and adolescents whose problems cannot be evaluated safely in an outpatient setting. These services are designed to provide comprehensive treatment to patients and their families. For many children and parents, diagnosis and evaluation can replace confusion and frustration with insights and understandings.

"It's good to be back in training."

There aren't many part-time jobs that give you a chance to get interesting training, learn new skills and jobs and even give you benefits like retirement and discount shopping. Those are good reasons in themselves to join the Marine Reserve. But perhaps the strongest reason is the opportunity to get back with fellow Marines. Men you have something in common with. People you can count on. And part of one of the world's most elite fighting forces.

If you've left active duty or are about to, consider all you can get in the Marine Reserve. It's a smart move. Call 800-423-2600, toll-free. In California, 800-252-0241.

The hours are long and the work is hard, but we offer a chance to join one of Oahu's fastest growing publications. Send resume and clips to Michael Bryson, Editor, The Sun Press, 46-016 Alaiala St., Kaneohe, HI 96744.

BOSE has permanent Full or Part-Time sm. positions for 30 people. Start immediately in our Full Training Program. Great management potential in our Expanding & Growing Consumer Division. Bonuses, Incentives & big incomes possible for everyone. Report to Bose Consumer Division Career Opportunity Center exactly 9 a.m. Tuesday Oct. 29 (no other time). At the Walliana Suite 400A, Corner of Fina Rd. & Ala Moana.
