Team Spirit '89 underway

Brigade Marines in ROK to show U.S. commitment

By SSgt. Christopher Grey

POHANG, Korea — The last of approximately 1,500 1st Marine Expeditionary Brigade Marines, who began leaving Hawaii at the beginning of March, landed in the Republic of Korea last week to participate in the combined training exercise dubbed "Team Spirit '89."

This is the 14th annual regularly scheduled Team Spirit exercise. The exercise demonstrates the United States' commitment to the defense of the Republic of Korea against external aggression.

The Kaneohe-based Marines are here to participate in the Maritime Prepositioning Force portion of the exercise for the third year in a row.

In all, more than 2,400 U.S. service people from various bases in the U.S. and Pacific regions are participating in the MPF portion of the operation as part of the 200,000 military personnel from the U.S. and the Republic of Korea involved in this year's Team Spirit.

The MPF operation that is underway at the Port of Pohang and off the east coast of Korea involves a partial download of two of the four civilian ships of Maritime Prepositioning Squadron-3.

These ships contain enough equipment, supplies and weapons to sustain a 16,500-man Marine Expeditionary Brigade in a combat environment for 30 days.

In its MPF role, the 1st MEB is conducting an independent operation and will reinforce the 111 Marine Expeditionary Force once it "stands up" as a fully combat-capable air-ground task force.

Sgt. David A. Ybarra (then corporal) of the 1st MEB MP detachment, awaits the off-load of supplies and equipment from a maritime prepositioning ship during Team Spirit '88.

'Great' Marine families recognized

To advance to national competition

By Cpl. Doris Carrero

Two Air Station families were selected to represent the Marine Corps for the state of Hawaii in the nation-wide recognition of the military families for the national program, the "Great American Family."

GySgt. and Mrs. Jim Roddy of Marine Fighter Attack Squadron-235 and SSgt. and Mrs. Gary DeWitt of the Brigade inspectors office will be evaluated against all Armed Forces families for the opportunity to represent the Armed Forces at the White House Ceremony, hosted by the First Lady, Barbara Bush, in late November.

The Great American Family program emphasizes the basic contributions strong families make to America through three criteria: services to their community, teamwork and love within the family, and individual growth of each family member. Annually, all units are invited to nominate families they feel emulate those criteria.

GySgt. and Mrs. Roddy were nominated by LtCol. Craig Sooy.

"When first I met them (10 years ago), they were stationed in Yuma and in the process of helping a son of a Marine who contracted leukemia," explained LtCol. Sooy. "I thought, 'What a great family.'"

"When they joined the squadron in 1987, that caring behavior was readily apparent. The Roddys were always there if anyone needed help. So when I saw the message about nominations for the Great American Family and read the criteria, they immediately came to mind."

GySgt. Roddy and Barbara were married in February of 1975 when he was a corporal. The Roddys are a blended family, with children from Barbara's previous marriage.

Mrs. Roddy is a substitute teacher for grades 7-12 in the Windard School district. Warren, 21 and the youngest of the four Roddy children, is living at home and currently attending Windard Community College, where he is working towards a degree in sports medicine. GySgt. Roddy is currently in Yuma, Arizona attending Weapons and Tactics Instructor school.

Being separated from her husband because of GySgt. Roddy's military obligation is a reality that Barbara has learned to deal with, but, according to her, no matter how long you're married, they

Cheney unanimously confirmed

The Senate voted 92-0 Friday to approve Rep. Dick Cheney (R-Wyo.) to be the next Secretary of Defense.

Cheney will be officially sworn-in to be the nation's 17th Secretary of Defense later this month.

The Senate's confirmation comes one day after the Senate Armed Services committee unanimously recommended that the 10-year congressman be confirmed.

Group claims responsibility for bombing

Federal agents are investigating a phone call to a Los Angeles radio station from a man who said his group — The Guardians of the Islamic Revolution — was responsible for the March 10 bombing of a car being driven by Sharon Rogers, wife of USS Vincennes' skipper, Capt. Will Rogers III. Last year, Capt. Rogers, ordered the shooting down of an Iranian Airbus in the Persian Gulf that the crew of the Vincennes had mistaken for an attacking Iranian fighter.

Mrs. Rogers was stopped at a red light when a bomb on the underside of the van exploded at 7:45 a.m. A nearby construction worker helped her to safety just before flames engulfed and destroyed the van. Shaken but uninjured, Mrs. Rogers was taken to a nearby hospital.

Lt. Unger found guilty, to resign

The Navy lieutenant who objected to providing a urine sample under direct observation was found guilty of direct disobedience of a lawful order by a special court-martial March 8.

Lt. Elizabeth Unger was awarded a punitive letter of reprimand, will lose 150 lineal numbers, and will forfeit $500 a month for four months. Lt. Unger has submitted a letter to resign her commission.

Last January, the U.S. Court of Military Appeals ruled that compulsory urinalysis is appropriate and necessary to maintain the effectiveness of the military.

Support squadron sharpens grunt skills at Dillingham

Story and photos by Sgt. W.M. Alexander

Marine Wing Support Squadron-174 conducted its largest-ever field exercise March 13-16 to "trim the fat" from the way it performs its combat mission. That mission is to support the Aviation Combat Element of 1st MEB's Marine Air Ground Task Force.

One of the goals of commanding officer Lt. Col. James Ahelee was to put more punch in the squadron's new operating procedures by tailoring them, as close as possible, to what his Marines would encounter in a real war.

"This exercise helped us to be more realistic about our knowledge and capabilities in the field," said Lt. Col. Ahelee, a former infantry officer. "It gave us a chance to integrate all of the various sections, which is something we really don't get to do in garrison."

The squadron focused on three areas: aviation ground support, rear area security and NBC defense.

The aviation ground support role, that of providing aircraft with fuel and a place to land, came into play immediately as the squadron deployed to Dillingham Air Force Base to set up a helicopter support base. MWSS-174 provided a 24-hour Forward Air Refueling Point (FARP) to helicopter squadron's from MAG-24, who were using the area for night vision goggle training.

During wartime, the squadron would be required to build roads and a helicopter pad when there are not alternatives. Since building could only be simulated, the bulk of the actual work within their support role was limited to refueling.

But, as in a real war, this helicopter support base wouldn't remain stationary. To capture that realism, the Tactical Evaluation Exercise Control Group formulated scenarios where the squadron's only recourse was to move the (FARP).

In this case, battalions from 3rd Marines advanced forward to pursue the enemy and needed quick helicopter support. It would take too much time to go back to Dillingham to refuel. When the regiment requested that this time be shortened, the MAG determined that a forward support base was necessary.

Lt. Lt. Grady Ogburn, '174's assistant operations officer, explained that such a feat presented a challenge to the squadron because it had to displace while maintaining its support to the MAG.

"So the questions we had

"Our procedures will be more refined because of the things we've learned."
— 1st Lt. Grady Ogburn
MWSS-174 assistant operations officer to answer were, "What do you move first?" said 1st Lt. Ogburn. "When you have to send equipment out piece by piece, what's the most important thing to send to establish a new support base, and what can wait? How should we displace to make the best use of our people during the displacement so we maintain the level of support needed?"

Because its commanding officer is tasked as the Rear Area Battle Officer for the Aviation Combat Element, MWSS-174 acts as the "grunts of the airwing." Throughout the exercise, the battle officer marshaled the forces of the MAG to defend the perimeter surrounding the helicopter support base.

Even when the squadron wasn't moving, providing security for the rear area kept the troops spread thin as they simultaneously performed their support role.

Twenty-four aggressors from 1st Bn., 3rd Marines, provided the squadron with a constant threat. To give them the home-field advantage that a real enemy would have, these aggressors set in at Puukapu before the helicopter support base displaced there.

"We recently published an operations SOP," said 1st Lt. Ogburn. "We wanted to take it out there and tweak it — see where it was strong and where it was weak. We ran according to this SOP, and the aggressors helped us find those weak areas. So, as a result, our procedures will be more refined because of the things we've learned."

Once the squadron displaced, it set up a counterattack force in case lines were penetrated; a reactionary force to reinforce the lines before they were penetrated; and an 18-man Surveillance and Target Acquisition team, which served as the squadron's eyes and ears far outside the perimeter to report enemy activity.

"We learned about the coordination problems involved in rear area security," said 1st Lt. Ogburn. "We have to perform both our security mission and our support mission. And every other unit that contributes to the rear area security plan also has their combat mission. That's a real coordination burden. Even without having those people there, just with our sections — our maintenance section, combat engineers, heavy equipment, our utilities and our motor transport people — we learned how difficult it was to coordinate manning the lines, and making them truly responsive to the requirements. It was tough. But we learned a lot of new tricks that are going to make us better prepared in the future."

If this dual mission wasn't already difficult to make things difficult for the Marines, the difficulty intensified when, in the heat of the day, the enemy launched a gas attack which resulted in the squadron operating in full MOPP-4 gear for two hours.

The squadron had to activate an NBC defense plan which included decontaminating a CH-46 helicopter after it returned from transporting an NBC survey team to a forward LZ in a contaminated area.

The four-day exercise, dubbed EMU II, was named after a combative, flightless bird from Australia which resembles an ostrich. A microcosm of this exercise, EMU I was conducted in 1985.

Cpl. Charles Masterson, (c) a maintenance mechanic from MWSS-174, gives instructions to fellow Marines after the squadron activated its NBC plan during a chemical attack.

200 turn out for second Health and Safety Fair

Story and photos by Sgt. Tom Allen

More than 200 Marines, sailors and their family members attended the 2nd Annual Red Cross Health and Safety Fair here Sunday.

The fair, held in conjunction with National Red Cross Month, was designed to educate Air Station families on the American Red Cross and its services and programs. The Provost Marshal's Office, Air Station Fire Department, and medical personnel teamed up with Red Cross workers to present information to everyone in an entertaining manner.

The Red Cross provided demonstrations on cardiopulmonary resuscitation, water safety, first aid techniques and information on its new program for station teens: Station Teens Accepting Responsibility.

One of the highlights of the event was the military working dog demonstration. Sgt. Sean Kelly, of the Military Working Dog Section of PMO, enceed the show which gave the audience a glimpse of what the dogs are trained for and capable of. Each of the two demonstrations during the day were attended by nearly everyone present at the fair.

Other PMO sponsored activities included the fingerprinting booth and the seat belt "convincer."

The fingerprinting booth was one of the busiest booths around. Parents lined up to have their children fingerprinted so they would have them at home if ever needed.

Cpl. Marvin Hinds, PMO, gave "Convincer" demonstrations to show the effectiveness of the seat belt, and was on hand to give out printed safety information.

One of the "stars" of the day was "McGruff," the "take

Understanding the Killer is best AIDS defense

By Sgt. W.M. Alexander

For some time now, eerie statistics have dominated TV screens, magazines and newspapers to jolt public apathy to the AIDS threat.

On the coattails of the media's information campaign have been numerous misconceptions about how the disease is transmitted.

Janet Christman, a teacher at the Chancellor Avenue School in Irvington, N.J., heard some of these rumors when she asked her sixth-graders what they knew about the disease.

According to the New York Times article, one boy said, "I heard you can get it from toilet seats." Others added that they heard AIDS could be contracted from being too fat, by being attacked by an animal, and through casual, non-sexual contact.

Here's the breakdown of a CBS poll that posed the same question to "grown-ups":

AIDS can be transmitted by

- drinking from a glass used by an AIDS victim — 47 percent.
- kissing an infected person — 32 percent.
- contact with a toilet seat — 28 percent.

The poll noted more than one in 10 believed they could get AIDS by touching or working in the same office with an infected person.

Surgeon General blasts 'unreasonable fear'

Admitting that fear can be effective in helping people avoid behavior that puts them at risk for AIDS, Surgeon General C. Everett Koop has said that unreasonable fear or "fear of the unknown" can be as crippling as the disease itself.

In his report to the American public on the subject, the Surgeon General estimated that by the end of 1991, there will have been 270,000 AIDS cases with 179,000 deaths. He said about 54,000 of those deaths will occur in that year and believes that a reversal of national misconceptions about the disease could prevent the disease from claiming as many as 14,000 lives.

People who are sick with AIDS are in the last stages of a number of health problems caused by a virus named Human T-Lymphotropic Virus Type III (HTLV-III). The accepted short term for this is the AIDS virus. The disease is passed chiefly from one person to another during sexual contact or through sharing contaminated needles among users of intravenous drugs. Infected mothers can also pass the virus to their babies during pregnancy.

According to a pamphlet put out by the American Red Cross, the following groups are at high risk:

- Homosexual and bisexual men (about 70 percent of all AIDS patients), or men who have had sex with another man since 1977
- People who inject illegal intravenous drugs or who have done so in the past
- Persons with symptoms of AIDS or AIDS-related illnesses
- Persons from Haiti and Central African countries, where heterosexual transmission is thought to be more common than in the United States
- Male or female prostitutes and their sex partners
- Sex partners of persons infected with the AIDS virus or at increased risk of infection
- Persons with hemophilia who have received clotting factor products
- Infants of high-risk or infected mothers been infected, one of several things will happen:

- The person may be well but still able to infect others.
- Development AIDS-Related Complex (ARC), a less severe disease than AIDS with the symptoms such as appetite/weight loss, fever, night sweats, skin rashes, diarrhea, tiredness, lack of resistance to infection, or swollen lymph nodes.
- Virus destroys protective immune system and germs such as bacteria, fungi, and protozoa and cancers that would not normally attack the system causes opportunistic diseases (using the opportunity of lowered resistance to destroy and infect).
- Develops classic AIDS, where cancers such as Kaposi's sarcoma begin to develop.

While there is yet no cure for AIDS, experts believe the disease can be corralled if the proper precautions are taken. The Surgeon General suggests that those who've been involved in the high-risk sexual activities or have injected illegal intravenous drugs should get a blood test. If the test is positive, the sex partner should be informed. Those not involved in the high-risk groups mentioned above should avoid them.

He also said sex with prostitutes should be avoided because infected male and female prostitutes are frequently intravenous drug abusers. Couples who have maintained a monogamous relationship for at least five years are at no risk of contracting AIDS, according to the Surgeon General.

For more information on AIDS, contact Lt. Cmdr. W.F. Sullivan, Air Station AIDS coordinator, at 257-1689.

What's it really like in the Soviet military?

By Jim Garamone
American Forces Information Service

Life in the Soviet military is no bed of roses. In fact, American soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines would consider the pay awful, the chow lousy and conditions primitive.

But don't be misled by that. The Soviet armed forces are formidable and receive realistic training and impressive equipment. The key to the Soviet military is universal military service. All 18-year-old males serve. Women serve in the military but are not conscripted.

The training actually starts much earlier.

"The Soviets start military training in the first grade," said Army Lt. Col. Lester W. Grau, an analyst with the Soviet Army Studies Office at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. "American parents would probably go ballistic at the things Soviet children are taught. They march and learn close-order drill along with other studies through elementary school."

About 90 percent of Soviet youth join the Young Pioneers at 9, and their military training continues. "While the Young Pioneers do some of the things that the Boy or Girl Scouts would do in this country, they also learn military skills," said Lt. Col. Grau.

Among them: field stripping an AK-47 assault rifle, how to attack in a platoon line, how and when to put on gas masks, and lessons on Soviet heroes.

Soviet youth receive about 140 hours of military training per year in the equivalent of American high school. Graduates must pass a physical training test called the "Be Prepared for Labor and Defense Test."

Once graduated, almost everyone serves in the military. There are no conscientious objectors in the Soviet Union. Some men may be granted medical or educational deferments. Teachers—if they volunteer for remote assignments—can also be excused, but normally everyone is called up.

Men report to the local military committee and their school records and physical characteristics are examined. The more advanced, and potential party members, go into the more technically oriented forces such as the air force, strategic rocket forces or the navy. Those with lesser qualifications are recommended for the ground forces.

Conscripts are brought into the service every six months. They serve for two years—three years in the seagoing elements of the navy—so there are always four cohorts of conscripts. The conscripts take the oath Jan. 1 and July 1 each year. "Recently, there have been some astounding stories about the abuse visited upon the younger conscripts," said Harriet East Scott, author of the book Armed Forces of the Soviet Union. "New conscripts are blackmailed, beaten up and are victims of extortion. The senior conscripts get the best duties, the best uniforms and demand watches, cigarettes and sugar rations form the newest conscripts. You could liken it to very brutal hazing."

Nationalistic sentiments caused part of the problem. "One nationality will gang up on others," said Scott. "This adds a whole new aspect to the equation."

One solution would be to put only one nationality in a regiment. This is unacceptable to the Soviets because they cannot be sure of the loyalty of those troops. In fact, few Soviet service members serve in the area they grew up in for the same reason.

The Soviet military leaves very little free time for service members. "The typical day starts at 6 a.m. and ends at 10 p.m., and the schedule is full," Lt. Col. Grau said.

"There is a lot less personal freedom and very little spare time. There are a number of classes, and someone is accountable for the people at all times. Servicemen are under the control of a warrant officer or an NCO. "The Soviets believe in physical training," he continued. "It is very tough. When the troops go for field training, that training is realistic and rugged."

Those in the Soviet military do not have "leave," as members of the U.S. military would call it. They go as a group to visit museums, cultural activities or sporting events. Again, they are always under the control of a warrant officer or NCO.

Pay for the Soviet conscript is nothing more than "cigarette money," according to Lt. Col. Grau. Officers are paid well by Soviet standards. They receive a base pay plus a "responsibility pay" that enables them to do quite well. Parents send their conscript sons money, and that's great cause of the harassment in the barracks," he said.

Soviet food is not up to American standards, either. "Most regiments have a farm where conscripts work to supplement the official issue," Lt. Col. Grau said. "They raise chickens and fresh vegetables and some fruits to supplement the diet. This is especially true of isolated units, although most regiments have a farm set up."

Many nationalities complain of the food because it is not what they were brought up on. Some dietary concessions are made—Muslims are not forced to eat pork—but others are ignored.

Unlike the Americans, the Soviets do not have a professional NCO corps. "When the conscripts first process in, some are selected as potential NCOs," Scott said. "These people receive extra training and become the sergeants or petty officers of the military. Their duties are limited. Officers do most of the work that we would associate with NCOs. This is one of the great shortcomings in the Soviet military."

The conscript system gives the Soviet Union an incredible number of trained reserves at call. After discharge from the service, all men must report regularly for additional training. All stay in the reserves until they are between 46 and 50.

Political education is conducted at all levels of the Soviet military. "Each unit has a political officer," Scott said. "These men wear the uniform of the service, but they report to the Communist Party rather than the military hierarchy. They are in charge of the political education of the conscripts and the political orthodoxy of the unit."

Political studies are conducted two days a week for two hours at a time. Marxist-Leninist teachings are discussed as are the dangers the Soviet Union faces from foreign enemies, unit history, the "glorious history of World War II," regimental heroes and the life stories of those in the communist punishment.

"In addition, there is a magazine published every two weeks that forms the basis for political education throughout the service," Scott said. "Also, political officers put out news of the day with a communist interpretation of the events."

While everyone must serve in the military, the re-enlistment rate is so small it is negligible. "They do their two years and get out," Scott said.

Changes may be coming. The proposed reduction in the Soviet military may mean that conscripts will serve shorter tours. "The Soviets still want to have the great reserve to work with," Scott said. "If they are serious about the cuts and they still want universal training, then the only way to do that is by shortening the length of service."

The Kaneohe branch of the American Red Cross selected its 1989 volunteer of the year during a recognition dinner held at the Enlisted Club March 9.

Peggy Jones, chairman of volunteers, was presented a plaque for her contributions and dedication as a volunteer.

"When I was 15 years old, our house literally burnt down to the ground," said the Cleveland native. "Within five hours, the Red Cross was there to help us pick up the pieces. That day I told myself that I would repay them in some way," she said. "I feel this plaque is a symbol of fulfilling that promise I made 15 years ago."

After the incident, Jones became a teen volunteer at the local hospital.

The drive to continue her promise returned in 1986 when Jones and her husband, GySgt. J. P. Jones of Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron 364, were stationed in Camp Lejeune, N.C.

"Terri Totemeier was a good friend of mine and she was a Red Cross volunteer. I would go with her to the office so she wouldn't have to go alone at night," she said. "She was so full of energy and she enjoyed what she was doing. It was contagious."

As chairman of volunteers, Jones coordinates the volunteers and helps with the fund raising.

She has also worked as a caseworker, receptionist, and in the baby clinic here. The mother of five feels that because of her experiences, she is able to tell the volunteers first-hand what their jobs involve.

Jones has also found that volunteering is an outstanding cure for the "deployment blues."

"I've been separated from my husband during four deployments. After a while, you get used to it, you learn

Marines often find themselves assigned to commands in foreign countries for three years or more. During extended tours outside the U.S., it is not uncommon for a Marine or a dependent to take a job in the local economy.

Extra income is a benefit, but when it comes to income taxes, there is a question as to how that money should be treated for tax purposes.

The simple answer is that foreign earned income may be treated very differently from income earned in the United States. U.S. citizens who fit into certain categories can earn as much as $70,000 while in a foreign country, and that money will not be taxable by the U.S. government.

This article will cover the Foreign Earned Income Exclusion as it may apply to Marines and their dependents.

Tests for income exemption
Most U.S. citizens working abroad must file a tax return even if the income they earn is exempt from taxes. Form 2555 must be filed to show that you are claiming the income exclusion.

The Bona Fide Residence Test is met when the taxpayer has been a resident of a foreign country for an uninterrupted period that includes the entire tax year.

This form must be filed along with the 1040 form that you use. To claim the foreign earned income exclusion, you must first meet one of two requirements.

You can set up a bona fide residence in a foreign country even though you intend to return to the U.S. at a later time. When you go to a foreign country to work for an indefinite or extended period and set up permanent quarters for you and your dependents, you have probably set up a bona fide residence for tax purposes.

The taxpayer has the burden of proving to the IRS that he has been a bona fide resident of the foreign country. This is the less useful of two tests under which a service member may qualify for the exemption.

It is very demanding in terms of time spent in the foreign country and the requirement that a residence be set up.

The second test is the Physical Presence Test. This is by far the more workable of the two tests for service members. You will meet the physical presence test if you are physically present in a foreign country for 330 full days during a period of any 12 consecutive months. Again, you may have any 12-month period in which to acquire the 330 days.

Further, the 330 days do not have to be consecutive. You could take leave back in the U.S. and, as long as you have the 330 days in the requisite 12 months, you can qualify for the tax exemption. The 12-month period can begin on any day of any month and it will end on the day before the same calendar day 12 months later.

You must have the 330 days unless you are driven from the foreign country by war or civil unrest. The physical presence test is concerned solely with how long you stay in a foreign country. It does not depend on the kind of residence you set up, your intentions about returning, or the purpose of your stay. However, your intentions with regard to the nature and purpose of your stay abroad are relevant in determining whether you meet the tax home test. (The tax home test will be covered later.)

If you are stationed overseas and take a job in the civilian sector, you may be able to exempt all of that income from taxes. The Physical Presence Test is your best bet.

Tax Home Test

To qualify for the foreign earned income tax exclusion, your tax home must be in a foreign country throughout your period of residence or physical presence abroad. Usually, your tax home is the general area of your main place of business, employment, or post of duty, regardless of where you maintain your family home.

Your tax home is the place where you are engaged to work as an employee or self-employed person. Having a tax home in one location does not mean that place is your residence or domicile for other tax purposes. A tax home is not the same as a person's abode. You are not considered to have a tax home in a foreign country during a period when your abode is in the United States.

Your abode is not in the U.S. when your are temporarily in the U.S. such as on leave. Neither are you considered as having an abode in the U.S. merely because you have a house there or whether or not your wife or children live in the house. Abode has been defined as a home, habitation, domicile, or place of dwelling.

Foreign earned income defined

Once a service member has determined that he has satisfied either the Bona Fide Residence Test or the Physical Presence Test and the Tax Home Test, he must determine what income is excludable. The computation of what income can be excluded is based upon foreign earned income. For these purposes, foreign earned income is earned income you receive for services you perform in a foreign country during a time when your tax home is in that foreign country and you have met either of the residency tests.

Earned income is pay for personal services rendered. This includes wages, salaries, or professional fees. As a service member, this income must normally be earned in your capacity as a private citizen. The Federal government may not be the source of the income. Working as a contract employee in the club system will not generate excludable income.

Miscellaneous information on foreign income taxation

If you pay any foreign income taxes, you can take a U.S. tax credit. But the credit is limited to the part of your total U.S. tax that is the part of your taxable income from sources outside the U.S. compared to the total taxable income.

Instead of taking the foreign tax credit, you may deduct foreign income taxes as an itemized deduction on Schedule A of Form 1040. Taken as a deduction, foreign income tax reduces your taxable income. Taken as a credit, foreign income tax reduces your tax liability. All foreign income taxes must be treated by the same method. You may not deduct some and take credit for some.

If both you and your spouse work in a foreign country and you both meet either of the residency tests and the tax home test, you may each choose the foreign earned income exclusion. This means that it is possible for a married couple to exclude as much as $140,000.

If you should have any further questions concerning foreign earned income, questions should be directed to Bill Thomas at the Legal Services Center Tuesdays and Friday mornings from 8 a.m. to 12.

The IRS publication #4, "Tax Guide for U.S. Citizens and Resident Aliens Abroad," will answer most questions that would come up in this area.

Alcohol Incidents

A Marine was apprehended by MPs for DWI. The Marine was stopped for operating a motorcycle on Craig St. with no reflective vest. After noticing alcohol on the Marine's breath, MPs administered a field sobriety test which the Marine failed. An Intoxilyzer test revealed a .16 percent blood-alcohol content. The Marine was later released to his unit.

A Marine was apprehended by an MP for drunk and disorderly conduct, underage drinking, and communicating a threat. The Marine was observed walking in the outboard lane near the H-3 gate. Upon confrontation, the MP smelled alcohol on the Marine's breath and found that he was underage. While being transported to the MP Dept., the Marine allegedly threatened the MP. The Marine was given an Intoxilyzer test, which showed a .25 percent blood-alcohol level. The Marine was later released to his unit.

A Marine was arrested by the Honolulu Police Department for disorderly conduct and terroristic threatening after he allegedly became disruptive at the Lollipop nightclub in Waikiki. The Marine was transported to HPD Central, where he became combative and was confined in a protective cell. The Marine was held on bail and was scheduled to appear in Honolulu District Court.

A Marine was arrested by HPD for DWI and underage drinking. The Marine was found asleep at the wheel of his vehicle with the engine running at an intersection in Kaneohe. The Marine was transported to HPD Central where he submitted to an Intoxilyzer test which showed a .22 percent blood-alcohol content. The Marine was held in lieu of bail and appeared in court. The Marine was later released from court on his own recognizance.

Other events

Two Marines were apprehended by the Military Police Department for possession of narcotics. During a command-authorized search of their room, a clear plastic bag, containing approximately one ounce of a white powdery substance was found in their chest of drawers. The Marines were later released to their unit. The case is under investigation.

A Marine was arrested by HPD for contempt of court after he failed to appear on three counts of abuse of a household member.

A Marine was apprehended for shoplifting by the Hickam Air Force Base Security Police after he was allegedly observed attempting to leave the Main Exchange at Hickam with amplifier parts concealed in a box containing speakers that he had purchased.

To report a crime, or any suspicious activity on the Air Station, please call the Military Police Department's 24-hour Crime Stopper number:

257-2123. Off station, call 911 for HPD.

HASAC Tourney Best military bowlers clash here

Story and photos
by Sgt. Brad Mitzeffell

The best bowlers from all the military services on the island rolled for bragging rights as the Hawaii Armed Services Athletic Council champions here from March 15 through Friday.

Topping the overall field was the Army's Bill Anthony, of Co. H, 25th Aviation Regiment, Fort Shafter.

Anthony not only cleaned out everyone else in the field with his 4,040 points, but stunned everyone Thursday when he threw a perfect 300 game as well.

The all-Army bowler will add his sanctioned ABC 300 game ring to the hand that already sports one each for a 299 game, a 298 game, and an 800 series.

The men's overall runner-up was Bert Fukuda of the Air Force, who had a score of 3,847. Fukuda also teamed up with Mel James to take home the men's doubles trophy for the Air Force with a score of 2,557.

Topping the overall field for the women was Jennie

Bench of the Air Force had a score of 3,153.

Runner-up for overall women was Antoinette Aila of the Army, who had a score of 3,110. In the women's doubles category, the Air Force emerged on top as Gwen Davis and Denise Bonaventura rolled a score of 2,120. The women's team trophy went to the Navy, who threw a score of 3,937.

The men's team title was taken by the Army, by a total score of 7,313.

Anthony also took home the trophy for the men's singles championship as Marine Renee Himes won the women's singles championship with a score of 1,096.

High series for the men went to the Coast Guard's Lucky Atkinson. For the women, the winner was Himes of the Marines. Overall bragging rights, however, went to the Air Force. "They're like machines," said Marine bowler Butch Matson, who, along with W. Blanton, was fourth overall in the doubles competition for men.

All-around runner-up Bert Fukuda watches as William Anthony pulls away in the men's singles competition.

Youth cagers cap season

By Mark Nishiyama
Special Services

Determination, defense, and discipline were the keys to a perfect 10-0 season as the MCAS Kaneohe Bantam (15-17 years) basketball team garnered the championship of the Hawaii Youth Sports League Bantam Post-Season Tournament by defeating the Hickam Sonics 59-36 March 4 at the Station Gym.

Kaneohe advanced to the finals with a victory over Waipahu Friday evening. Kaneohe vaulted to a 15-2 first-quarter lead with Jeff Seymour's bucket and long distance trey leading the way. Coach Yves Ladouceur's squad coasted to a 28-11 halftime advantage before Hickam mounted a third quarter comeback and narrowed the gap to 37-26.

The fourth quarter was showtime featuring Darren Riley's spectacular drives to the hoop, David Harm's seven assists, Gurney Holley's ferocious 11 rebounds, Michael Turner's intimidating shot blocking skills (3) and 18 rebounds, and Johnny "Silver" Latimore's inside scoring (12) and 18 rebounds.

Ten players scored as coach Ladouceur substituted liberally while still maintaining control of the game.

Kaneohe players Holley, Turney, and Latimore were named to the All-Tournament Team.

Dependent Rec Volleyball nears finale

With two weeks remaining in the regular season, the Locals remain undefeated in the women's volleyball league.

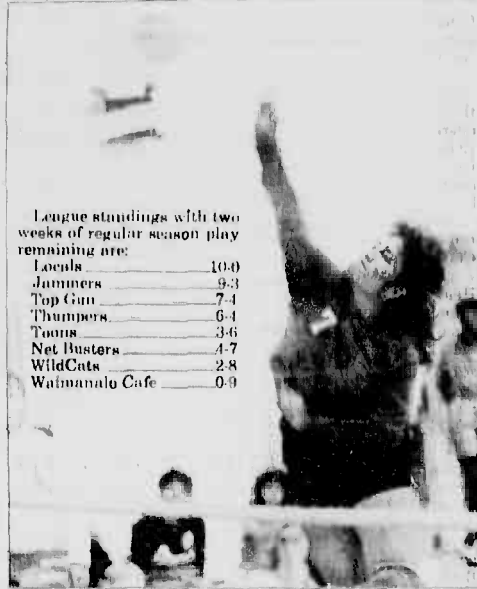

The Locals came into Sunday's matches with an 8-0 record. In the first game, the Net Busters' aggressive play enabled them to take a one-game-to-nothing lead over the league leaders.

The Locals demonstrated why they are at the top of the league as they regrouped after their loss and came back and captured the match by winning games two and three.

The Locals' tenth victory came easier in their next match as they went up against last-place Waimanalo Cafe. The lady locals attacked the nets and racked up two straight games, solidifying their place at the top of the league.

In other action Sunday, the 2nd place Jammers crushed the nets against 3rd place Top Gun. The night belonged to Top Gun as setter Manuella Santos continued to set the ball at the net for bitter Denyse Simmonds, who pounded the ball at the Jammers. Top Gun went on to take two straight games and narrow the margin between 2nd and 3rd place.

League standings with two weeks of regular season play remaining are:

|----------------|------|
| Locals | 10-0 |
| Jammers | 9-3 |
| Top Gun | 7-4 |
| Thumpers | 6-4 |
| Tools | 3-6 |
| Net Busters | 4-7 |
| WildCats | 2-8 |
| Waimanalo Cafe | 0-9 |

Manuella Santos, setter for Top Gun, slams the ball back at the Jammers on the way to a victory Sunday night. Top Gun defeated the Jammers in two straight games to capture the match.

In short, defending the Constitution is defending America. For the Constitution is the foundation of our country and is the means by which we achieve the rule of law and protect our freedom.

Surveys reveal, however, that many Americans have little or no knowledge of the Constitution. Or fully understand their rights guaranteed under it.

As we commemorate the Bicentennial of the Constitution, there is no better way for you as an American to reaffirm the principles for which our country stands than to learn more about the Constitution.

to deal with it," she said. "Volunteering helps the time pass quickly because you're involved in something that keeps your mind off of counting the days."

Jones feels that she wouldn't be able to be a volunteer if it wasn't for two people in her life — her mother and her husband.

"I wouldn't be the type of person I am if I wasn't for my mom. She raised me and my four brothers and sisters alone," she explained.

"Without the help from my husband, I would not have been able to volunteer. He would sometimes babysit our children during his lunchtime so I could go to meetings. There would be times when I would get home five minutes before he did, so dinner wasn't on the table. Without his understanding and support, I wouldn't be a Red Cross volunteer."

FAMILY/From A-5

been "always be available." That motto was the foundation for contributions that the Rodlys have made to others.

To some, their home has meant shelter from the weather and problems, but for others it was the starting point.

In 1979, the Rodlys dedicated most of their time to helping a group of refugees from Laos settle. Not only did they help the Laotians find places to live, but they also taught them many of the things they needed to live as Americans.

The other Rodly children are Denise, Marlin, and Lance.

The Dewitts were nominated by LtCol. John Holdstein, brigade inspector.

"When the Naval message looking for Great American Family nominations ran across my desk, I felt that the Dewitts were the type of family the committee was looking for," said LtCol. Holdstein.

"I've seen him in action not only with his family during unit outings, but also with his fellow Marines," he added. "He offers counseling on financial management to the Marines in the building. I feel he is an outstanding role model and Marine."

While stationed in California in 1982, SSgt. and Mrs. DeWitt became certified foster parents to accept children of women convicts. Here in Kaneohe, the DeWitts offer emergency foster care for families in crisis or with special needs.

They maintain their church's food ministry, which includes receiving and inventorying donated food, and verifying and distributing food to needy families and people.

In 1984, tragedy hit the family when their second son, Aaron, died after being born three months premature.

According to SSgt. DeWitt, the family was able to take that negative part of their life and turn it into a positive one by offering support and counseling to grieving parents.

The DeWitts also help health care providers, military, and civilian, understand the emotions involved with losing a child, so they can provide better services for parents.

"We never think about our children being taken away from us, but it happens. They can be taken away as fast as they were created," said Mrs. DeWitt. "You can't take advantage of the little things like their first words and their first steps."

According to SSgt. DeWitt, what he and his wife are involved in is an extension of the assistance they needed in the past.

"When we were going through our hardships, there was always someone we could turn to and knowing that helped us a lot," he said. "We feel we can offer effective help, because we know how these families are feeling and what they're thinking."

"We're not doing anything special. We're just being ourselves."
