Eagle Resolve 2017

Eagle Resolve is the premier U.S. multilateral exercise within the Arabian Peninsula, and has evolved to become U.S. Central Command's multi-warfare exercise for developing and exercising capabilities with Gulf nations. The purpose of Eagle Resolve is to address regional challenges associated with asymmetric/ unconventional warfare in a relatively low-risk environment. Eagle Resolve 2017 was held in Kuwait and in Kuwait's territorial waters. The exercise had three distinct, unrelated stages:

A Command Post Exercise (CPX) that included simulated situations to exercise participants' abilityto respond as a combined joint task force headquarters staff. CPX scenarios were based fictional adversary events ranging from air defense concepts, border security operations, and counterterrorism operations.

A Field Training Exercise (FTX) that consists of tactical demonstrations of land, maritime, and air forces from several nations.

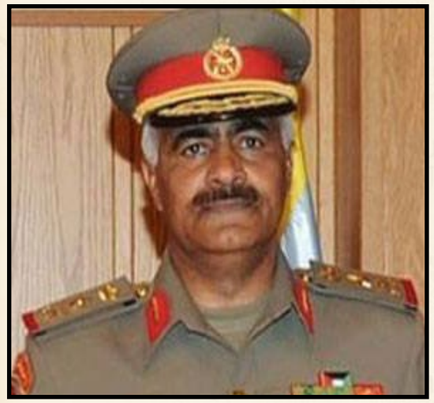

A Senior Leader Seminar (SLS) which was held at the end of the exercise to foster an environment for key commanders to discuss issues of regional interest.

More than 3,000 troops from Kuwait, United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and the U.S. participated in Eagle Resolve 2017.

Lt. Gen. Mohammed Khaled Al-Khader, chief of general staff of Kuwait's Army, delivered a speech at the start of #Eagle_resolve 17, praising the participation of the GCC countries and thanking the troops participating in the exercise for their effort to plan for and prepare the exercises.

He added that #Eager_Resolve 17 aims to strengthening regional defense cooperation between the GCC and the United States of America , and to allow participating units to exchange experiences and to standardize procedures in the field of planning and implementation

US and Gulf Cooperation Council elite special operatins forces simulate raid on hijacked tanker

KUWAIT TERRITORIAL WATERS, Kuwait - Elite military special operations forces from the Gulf Cooperation Council and the U.S. conducted a simulated rapid response to the hijacking of the oil tanker, the Hadiyah, April 3.

Special forces teams from the GCC, and U.S. Naval Special Warfare and rigid-hull inflatable boat teams simulated an air and sea-borne rapid insertion, search and seizure of the occupied tanker and its hijackers, and the safe release of the tanker crewmen.

The raid was a cumulative joint exercise that tested the participants' tactical skills and abilities to operate cohesively in an operational mission.

Exercise Eagle Resolve is the premier U.S. multilateral exercise within the Arabian Peninsula. Since 1999, Eagle Resolve has become the leading engagement between the U.S. and GCC nations to collectively address the regional challenges associated with asymmetric warfare in a low-risk setting.

General Chief of Staff of Kuwait Armed Forces

"These exercises strengthen the cooperation on defense level between the GCC and other friendly countries," said Lt Gen. Mohammed Al-Khudhur, General Chief of Staff of Kuwait Armed Forces.

"Hasm Aloqban (Eagle Resolve) also raises [Kuwait's] defensive capabilities to respond to crises. We should always be ready, so we have training to be able to defend ourselves. And I would like to thank all those who participated in this training," Al-Khudhur said.

The Honorable Lawrence Silverman
United States
Ambassador to Kuwait

"This is part of the US commitment to the security of Kuwait which is very long standing," said Lawrence Silverman US Ambassador to Kuwait.

"The training is part of the effort by the United States to support the capabilities of the Kuwaiti forces and our Gulf friends to deal with any threat from outside enemies and the terrorists," Silverman said.
