October is Disability Employment Awareness Month

By Kevin S. Abel
USAG Stuttgart Public Affairs Office

October is National Disability Employment Awareness Month; the purpose of this designation is to raise awareness and educate everyone about disability employment issues and celebrate the many contributions of America's workers with disabilities.

This effort to educate the public about the issues related to disability and employment began in 1945, when Congress enacted Public Law 176, declaring the first week of October each year as National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week. Some 25 years later, Congress expanded the week to a month and changed the name to National Disability Employment Awareness Month.

The American Disability Act defines an individual with a disability as "a person who has a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities; a person who has a history or record of such impairment; or a person who is perceived by others as having such an impairment." People with disabilities are a diverse group, crossing lines of age, ethnicity, gender, race, sexual orientation and socioeconomic status.

U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart supports the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, which prohibits discrimination on the basis of disability in programs run by federal agencies; programs that receive federal financial assistance; in federal employment; and in the employment practices of federal contractors and requires federal employers to provide reasonable accommodations.

When faced with recruitment/selection employment actions, managers and supervisors are to hire the best-qualified candidate based on their knowledge, skills and abilities and not based on whether they have a disability or not.

There are a large number of resources out there if a new employee has a disability or a current employee becomes disabled that can help. Two of these resources are; Job Accommodation Network (JAN) <https://askjan.org/> and Computer/Electronic Accommodations Program (CAP) <http://cap.mil/>.

JAN is the leading source of free, expert, and confidential guidance on workplace accommodations and disability employment issues. It represents the most comprehensive job accommodation resource available and helps people with disabilities enhance their employability and educates employers how to capitalize on the value and talent that people with disabilities add to the workplace.

CAP is the centrally funded reasonable accommodations program for employees with disabilities in the DoD. Congress granted it the authority to provide assistive technology, devices, and support services free of charge to Federal agencies that have a partnership agreement with them. These technologies, which can be used to maintain, increase, or improve an individual's job performance, are available to accommodate people with apparent or hidden disabilities such as Blind/low vision, cognitive, communication, Deaf/Hard of Hearing, or dexterity.

To learn more about reasonable accommodations, contact the your Disability Program Manager or the USAG Stuttgart Equal Employment Opportunity Office.

Absentee Voter Tips for Military, Overseas Citizens

Federal Voting Assistance Program News Release

With less than forty-five days until the general election on Nov. 8, absentee voters are beginning to receive their state ballots.

During Absentee Voting Week, Sept. 26 through Oct. 3, the Federal Voting Assistance Program reminded the Stuttgart Military Community to submit their ballot as soon as possible and to follow up to ensure that their ballot is received by their election office.

Here are FVAP's top reminders for ensuring Americans vote successfully wherever they are:

Know that your absentee ballot counts the same as ballots cast at the poll site

All ballots submitted according to state laws are counted in every election. The media often will report the projected outcome of an election before all of the ballots are counted. In a close election, the media may report the preliminary results or say that the outcome cannot be announced until after the absentee ballots are counted. However, all ballots, including absentee ballots, are counted in the official totals for every election and every vote (absentee or in-person) counts the same.

Check your state deadlines, instructions, and options

Each state sets its own deadlines for registering to vote and its options for how absentee ballots are sent to voters. States can also differ in their requirements and deadlines regarding how to complete and submit absentee ballots. Some states require ballots to be postmarked by Election Day while others must receive ballots by Election Day. www.fvap.gov has your state's deadlines and requirements.

Postmark and send your ballot on time

Every election, states receive some absentee ballots past the deadline for acceptance — but this is easily preventable. Follow your state's specific deadlines and recommended mailing dates for returning your voted ballot. If you're a registered military or overseas voter and don't receive your requested state ballot early enough to submit it on time, you can go to the FVAP website and use the backup ballot called the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot. Voters who end up receiving a state ballot after submitting a FWAB should still complete and return it, as well.

States only count your backup ballot if your voted state ballot is not received by the deadline.

Fill out your ballot and election materials correctly

Many states have specific requirements for signing the envelope or an affidavit enclosed with your ballot. Be sure to follow the instructions sent with your ballot to ensure it gets counted.

Check that your voted ballot reaches its destination

If you're wondering if your vote made it home, check the status of your ballot by selecting your state at the FVAP website and contacting your election office directly.

Military and overseas voters who need to register or re-election visit the Stuttgart FVAP website at <http://www.stuttgart.army.mil/services-vap.html>, or call the civ. 07031-15-2865 or DSN 431-2865, hours of operation are Mon. – Fri. 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Federal Voting Assistance Program

The Federal Voting Assistance Program is a Defense Department organization that works to ensure service members, their eligible family members, and overseas citizens are aware of their right to vote and have the tools and resources to successfully do so — from anywhere in the world.

FVAP assists voters through partnerships with the military services, Department of State, Department of Justice, and election officials from the 50 states, U.S. territories and the District of Columbia. State and local governments administer U.S. elections, including those for federal offices. FVAP supports state and local election officials by providing absentee voting information, materials, training and guidance.

Voters can contact FVAP's call center at 1-800-438-VOTE (8683), DSN 425-1584 or at vote@fvap.gov. Toll-free phone numbers from 67 countries are listed at the FVAP website. Find FVAP on Facebook at facebook.com/DoDFVAP and follow @FVAP on Twitter.

Panzer Exchange Associate looks back on military career spanning three major wars

By Army & Air Force Exchange Service Public Affairs

Most people who encounter Jack Goldman know him only as a cashier at the Panzer Exchange—little do they know the stories that ripple under the surface from a military career spanning three decades and as many major wars.

Goldman, now 90, enlisted in the U.S. Army on Oct. 25, 1944. He had just turned 18 and was eager to contribute to the effort to defeat Hitler's Germany and an Imperial Japan. He wanted to enlist earlier but was unable to get his parents to sign papers allowing him to enlist at age 17.

"When I was in high school, the big heroes were the guys who would come back to school in a uniform," he said. "Every male student was chomping at the bit, anxious to get going."

First, Goldman was deployed to Austria, which was under Allied occupation following the fall of Nazi Germany. He was assigned to the border with Germany, where his platoon monitored the huge influx of POWs and displaced Germans pouring back into the country.

"As I recall, the devastation in Germany was unbelievable," Goldman said. "You drove through Frankfurt, and it was just block after block of mounds of rubble. There were some cities that weren't touched, like Heidelberg, but any major cities were pretty well leveled."

Goldman then left the Army in November 1946, taking a four-year break in the reserves before being called back to active duty in September 1950. He was deployed to Korea, where he manned the border between the newly fractured North and South Korea as part of the 24th Infantry Division for 13 months.

"It was somewhat the same [as WWII], but I think there was more of a sense of urgency because of the tension between North and South Korea," he said. "During duty in Austria, Austria and Germany weren't at war. Here, there was more of a feeling that something could happen."

Opting to remain active duty after Korea, Goldman's next deployment came in 1967, when he was shipped out to Vietnam with the 101st Airborne Division. In 1971, he deployed to Vietnam a second time at the U.S. Army headquarters in Saigon.

"I never really was in combat [in Vietnam]," Goldman said. "It was more of a readiness force than anything. In Saigon, we were in a major headquarters. It was almost like stateside duty, to be honest. You lived well and you had nice facilities."

Goldman's last duty station was at the VII Corps headquarters in Stuttgart, West Germany, where he took his retirement in November 1978 at the rank of Chief Warrant Officer 4. Shortly after, he established the first ROTC program at Stuttgart American High School, where he remained as an ROTC instructor for the next 31 years.

After retiring from the school, Goldman looked to work at the Exchange not only as a way to stay busy, but to continue serving the military community.

"You see people coming through the register quite regularly, so every so often you run into someone who was in the ROTC program when you first started it at the high school, and they've already retired," Goldman said. "Many times they're field grade officers, many times they're very successful in business, some are teachers. So it's a nice feeling when they come in to touch base to see if I'm still working, to see how I'm doing."

One soul whose military career Goldman certainly influenced is that of his son, 53-year-old Glenn Goldman, who graduated from West Point in 1984 before serving 30 years in the Army, retiring as a Colonel and deploying to Iraq with the 82nd Airborne Division during Operation Desert Storm.

"Today, he has a very, very good job at West Point as a GS civilian," Goldman said. "You can imagine how proud I am of him."

Sam Shinault, Panzer Exchange Main Store Manager, said Goldman's example sets a bar for newer Exchange associates to work toward.

"There are people who say if you're five minutes early, you're late," Shinault said. "Chief Goldman rides 45 minutes one way to work, and he's here at least 30 minutes prior to the start of his shift every day. Being prompt, doing the many functions of a cashier and taking care of the customer is what he teaches by his actions."

Influenza vaccine now required for DoDEA students

Department of Defense Education Activity

Beginning this fall and continuing for every subsequent school year, the Department of Defense Education Activity (DoDEA) has added the requirement for an annual seasonal influenza vaccine for students attending DoDEA Schools.

The influenza vaccine has been added to the list of required immunizations for students attending DoDEA schools, following guidance and recommendations by the Centers of Disease Control and Prevention's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices and the Department of Defense Joint Military Medical Services regulation on immunizations.

"The annual seasonal influenza vaccine is the best defense against influenza. Because the military community is a highly transient one, which increases the potential for exposure and the spread of infectious diseases, DoDEA added the influenza vaccine to the list of required vaccinations for school-age children," said Dr. Linda Curtis, DoDEA Principal Deputy Director and Associate Director for Academics. "Reducing the spread of preventable infections in schools and the military community, improves students' health, safety and attendance. A reduction in absenteeism greatly improves student academic achievement."

The Stuttgart Health Clinic is hosting school and community vaccination dates October through December at the Stuttgart Health Clinic located on Patch Barracks, open to all eligible Stuttgart military community members. People can also make an appointment outside of the scheduled hours by contacting DSN: 590-2900/civ. 06371-9464-2900.

School-age open dates are on the following Saturday's from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.: Oct. 22 and 29 and Nov. 5 and 19.

Community dates are on the following Friday's from 6:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.: Oct. 28, Nov 4 and 18, Dec. 2.

Students will not be dis-enrolled from schools if the vaccine is not available at the Military Treatment Facility (MTF) or the MTFs cannot administer the vaccine before December 1, 2016. DoDEA will work with the MTFs to ensure students can receive the vaccine when it becomes available and the MTFs can provide the service.

School nurses can also provide information about the immunizations. The complete list of required immunizations and at what age they should be administered is on the DoDEA website at <http://www.dodea.edu/StudentServices/immunizationPgrm.cfm>, as well as on individual school websites.

DoDEA plans, directs, coordinates, and manages pre-kindergarten through 12th grade education programs for school-age children of Department of Defense personnel who would otherwise not have access to high-quality public education. DoDEA schools are located in Europe, the Pacific, Western Asia, the Middle East, Cuba, the United States, Guam, and Puerto Rico. DoDEA also provides support and resources to Local Educational Agencies throughout the United States that serve children of military families.

Stay healthy this flu season: Influenza explained

Stuttgart Health Clinic

Flu season is fast approaching, and it's time to protect yourself, your family and your friends by getting your annual flu vaccine. One important change to note for this Flu season year is the Center for Disease Control's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices recommendation not to give the nasal spray flu vaccine (FLU Mist) due to vaccine effectiveness. Studies indicating poor or relatively lower effectiveness. Only injectable FLU vaccine will be available this year.

Flu, also known as the influenza virus is a contagious viral respiratory disease which tends to increase and spread between early fall and late spring months.

Many people die every year from the Flu virus. The Flu virus is unpredictable and can result in hospitalization or even death.

How is the flu spread? Flu is spread person to person through respiratory droplets when a person coughs, sneezes, or talks. You can also get the Flu by direct contact if you touch surfaces and objects or someone infected with flu virus germs. You can be contagious even before the symptoms appear and you can continue to be contagious about a week after you have symptoms.

What are the symptoms of the Flu? Symptoms can range from mild to severe. Someone infected with Flu may sneeze and cough often; have a fever, chills, headaches, muscle aches, stuffy nose, experience fatigue, possible diarrhea, nausea, vomiting, and abdominal pain.

What can you do to avoid, protect yourself the Flu virus? The best protection is to get your Flu shot and wash your hands often with soap and warm water. You should avoid close contact with sick people, stay home if you're sick, and cover your nose and mouth when coughing and sneezing.

Who should get the Flu shot? Everyone who is age appropriate (6 months and up) and who does not possess an allergy or medical condition which prevents them from getting the Flu vaccine should get a Flu shot. CDC recommends the Flu shot each year for highly susceptible individuals such as: Seniors over the age of 65, pregnant women, young children, healthcare workers, policemen, persons who work at prisons, persons with asthma, diabetes, or other chronic medical conditions.

Kevin Hart: What Now? – In Universal Pictures' Kevin Hart: What Now?, comedic rock-star Kevin Hart follows up his 2013 hit stand-up concert movie Let Me Explain, which grossed $32 million domestically and became the third-highest live stand-up comedy movie of all time. Hart takes center stage in this groundbreaking, record-setting, sold-out performance of "What Now?"—filmed outdoors in front of 50,000 people at Philadelphia's Lincoln Financial Field—marking the first time a comedian has ever performed to an at-capacity football stadium.

Task Force Sparta teach Humanitarian Mine Assistance training to AMISOM Troops

Story by Staff Sgt. Tiffany DeNault

Combined Joint Task Force - Horn of Africa

A team from Task Force Sparta, assigned to Combined Joint Task Force-Horn of Africa, is teaching lifesaving skills to Kenya Defense Forces (KDF) combat engineer soldiers and officers during Deliberate Kindle 2016, Sept. 5-30, at a training center in Kenya.

Deliberate Kindle 2016 is a four-week course designed to prepare the KDF soldiers for future deployments in support of the African Union Mission in Somalia (AMISOM). Approximately 53 KDF soldiers are given various Humanitarian Mine Action lessons focused around countering improvised explosive device (C-IED) tactics, including tactical combat medical skills, demolition training and train-the-trainer skill sets.

The training provides basic skills the KDF can rely and further build upon while deployed with AMISOM by increasing their effectiveness, and thus allowing them to return home safely, said U.S. Navy Ensign Christina Hammervold, Deliberate Kindle 2016 mission commander.

“It’s important to conduct C-IED training for all troop contributing countries (TCCs) because it is the most detrimental threat they are currently experiencing while supporting AMISOM,” Hammervold said. “Creating better trained AMISOM TCCs is vital to our success in obtaining the overall regional stability (CJTF-HOA) is seeking.”

A KDF commanding officer also stressed the importance of the combined training for their future missions.

“It’s very important to come together [for this training],” said KDF Maj. Anthony. “We learned some new tactics and ideas from [the Americans]. We also have different training techniques. Therefore, when we come together in partnership, we learn a lot from each other.”

The course goes into detail on identifying different IEDs, how to effectively use mine detectors, what to do when an IED is found, and also how to treat someone who has been injured from an explosion. At the end of each course portion the soldiers will complete practical applications of the skills learned in each class.

“It’s nice for the partnerships to be together because we are learning from [Task Force Sparta] and their experiences,” said KDF Warrant Officer Athumani, a squadron sergeant major. “That will help us fight the fight.”

During the last week of the course, the soldiers will have the opportunity to train other KDF soldiers on what they have learned in the training environment for effective transmission of skills.

“It’s paying it forward,” said U.S. Navy Hospitalman 1st Class Aaron Christensen, Deliberate Kindle lead medical trainer and a dive independent duty corpsman. “We are trying to make sure they have the skillset to pass it on to other soldiers. So it’s not just these 53 people who were able to take the information, but for them to take it and [further] expand upon it. That way, we are growing the medical and IED awareness knowledge-base to continue the growth of their abilities to respond to emergencies.”

Task Force Sparta utilizes small explosive ordnance disposal teams and maneuver units to conduct partner nation training throughout HOA to build partner capacity, Hammervold said.

“It’s awesome. I like the instructors because they are friendly and they have the knowledge and experience,” said KDF Lance Cpl. Mohamed. “They are not just giving us what is in the books, and we are very much confident that [this] is the kind of gift we will never forget.”

Raider Soldiers earn Air Assault badge while in Europe

1st Armor Brigade Combat Team,
3rd Infantry Division

While the majority of the Soldiers from 1st Armored Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division were getting ready to return to Fort Stewart at the end of a 6-month rotation in Europe, five Raider Brigade Soldiers took the opportunity to challenge themselves while earning the Air Assault badge at Camp Aachen, Germany.

The course was offered through a mobile training team from the U.S. Army National Guard's Warrior Training Center out of Fort Benning, Georgia.

Sgt. 1st Class Derrick Koth, the noncommissioned officer-in-charge for the Air Assault cadre, said from the first day the course challenges Soldiers physically and mentally, starting with the prerequisites required to make the course, which include a two-mile run and an obstacle course.

"On zero day, the individuals get a lot of physical training sessions in the morning," said Koth. "Once the Soldiers complete the two-mile run in the allotted time, Soldiers will proceed to the Air Assault obstacle course. The Soldiers will have nine obstacles to complete, two major and two minor obstacles, which both must be completed in order for the Soldier to receive a go."

Soldiers do not officially start the Air Assault course until they have completed all of the prerequisites.

Once completed, they start the three phases of the course.

"We get them going from a bunch of individuals to working as a team in one cohesive unit," said Koth.

The first phase is the combat assault phase, where Soldiers receive instruction on the various aspects of combat air assault, to include aircraft orientation, aircraft safety, aero-medical evacuation, pathfinder operations, combat assault, and hand and arm signals.

After testing out of the first phase, Soldiers continue to the second phase and learn about sling load operations.

Sgt. Nicholas Edwards, a quartermaster and chemical equipment repairer for 10th Engineer Battalion, gets his Air Assault badge during a graduation ceremony at Camp Aachen, Germany, September 23, 2016. Edwards was one of five Soldiers from 1st Armored Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division, to earn the Air Assault badge before returning to Fort Stewart, Georgia, after a 6-month rotation in Europe.

"Sling load is the hardest phase of Air Assault school," said Koth. "On average, 1-in-10 Soldiers fail that portion of the school."

Soldiers receive instruction on preparing, rigging, and inspecting various military sling loads during this phase. They must pass a written and a hands-on test, identifying three out of four deficiencies on the hands-on portion, to receive a go and continue to the third phase.

Sgt. Nicholas Edwards, a quartermaster and chemical equipment repairer with the 10th Engineer Battalion, said the second phase was the hardest phase of the Air Assault course.

"Paying attention to detail; touch what you see and see what you touch," said Edwards.

"The whole school is attention to detail, but this particular phase is the most difficult, because the smallest deficiencies could result in catastrophic effects on the aircraft."

Soldiers who passed the sling load phase moved onto the final phase, rappelling, arguably the most enjoyable part for those Soldiers without a fear of heights.

In this phase, Soldiers receive instruction on tying a rappel seat, hook-up techniques, lock-in procedures, belay procedures, and rappelling.

Soldiers repel from a tower anywhere from 34 to 64 feet in height, depending on the tower.

The Soldiers must also complete a 12-mile road march within three hours before they are able to graduate and earn the coveted Air Assault badge.

Spc. Ryan Skinner, a mortarman with Troop C, 5th Squadron, 7th Cavalry Regiment, was thankful for the opportunity to take the course before going back to Fort Stewart.

"Air Assault School with the Warrior Training Center was a great experience," said Skinner. "The cadre came in strong with day zero, and throughout the course they taught us a lot."

Edwards said the course not only challenged him to become a better Soldier and leader, but it will also benefit his unit.

"The training was tough and I have learned a lot about myself in the process of training, both physically and mentally," said Edwards. "This training teaches us how to be an asset to our unit."

Career roadshow intends to 'shake up' civilian workforce

USAG Stuttgart Public Affairs Office

The Career Program 26 — Manpower and Force Management Proponency Office Roadshow visited U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart, Sept. 20 on Patch Barracks.

CP26 is one of the Army's centrally managed civilian career programs aligned under the Deputy Chief of Staff, G-1, and is based in the Pentagon. CP26 management analysts work in a variety of organizations such as resource management, plans and training, documentation, and management engineering at installations and major commands across the Army.

The purpose of the roadshow is to inform CP26 careerists in USAG Stuttgart about the importance of manpower and force managers within the Army. As resource managers, CP26 careerists play an integral role in developing, designing and resourcing the Army's Operating and Generating forces.

Although the event was hosted by the CP26 office, the information presented during the day-long roadshow was applicable and open to all 31 types of civilian professions. Topics focused on civilian professional development, education, and advice on how to take charge of your career.

Beryl Hancock, CP26 Proponency Office chief said that civilians sometimes don't get all the information on what is available to them within their offices. The roadshow enabled civilians to have in-person interaction, question and answer sessions, and one-on-one career counseling on the spot.

Civilians can find which career program number they are a part of within their position description.

"From administrative to functional skills, to stretching yourself - what I call Career Yoga, it is important to learn how to build your breadth and depth of experience. My point is to try and shake people up," Hancock said.

Whether you are a new or seasoned employee, careerists should think about what will take them to the next level. Hancock encourages all professionals to ask themselves, "What do I need to do in order to grow, personally and professionally?"

Hancock recommends that new civilian employees take time to learn their Army Civilian, Training, Education & Development System (ACTEDS) plans. All 31 Army career programs have plans posted online with competitive professional development on programs offered. Employees can contact their functional proponent for more information, or if they aren't sure who to contact, civilian professionals can email the CP26 office for guidance at: usarmy.pentagon.hqda-dcs-g-1.mbx.cp26@mail.mil.

According to Hancock, there is a laundry list of resources and opportunities available to the civilian workforce including the Civilian Education System, which is open to all civilians, the Army Career Tracker and Go Army Ed to view training, as well as Army programs to grow and develop leaders.

"I am eligible to retire soon and I want to know that I am comfortable turning over 'my Army' to the person coming behind me," Hancock said.

Persons transitioning out of the military service into a civilian career, or planning to retire, should look at their personnel file folder well in advance and take advantage of retirement classes offered at least one year prior to retirement, Hancock advised. It is important to keep personnel files up to date throughout your career, she said.

Service members in Stuttgart can contact the Transition and Retirement Services Administrator for assistance in their civilian or retirement transition at DSN: 431-3673/civ: 07031-15-367.

The Army Career Tracker website will have new references available online in October, including do's and don'ts for resume writing.

Stuttgart's Army Community Service offers resume free writing classes to all military community members monthly. Contact ACS for more information at DSN: 431-3362/civ: 07031-15-3362.

Show Some Love: CFC-O 2016 kicks off in October

Story by Holly DeCarlo-White
USAG Stuttgart Public Affairs Office

The 2016 Combined Federal Campaign Overseas kicks off this month on Oct. 3 with an event at the Main Exchange on Panzer Kaserne from noon to 1 p.m.

The CFC-O is an annual workplace giving campaign providing Department of Defense personnel serving overseas the opportunity to extend their service by supporting charitable causes of their choice.

The theme of the 2016 CFC-O is “Show Some Love” whereby contributors are encouraged to show their love by supporting life-changing programs in military communities, at home and abroad. Contributors have the option to give to the overseas military community through the Family Support and Youth Program fund.

Distinctive to the CFC-O, six percent of campaign gross, from undesignated contributions, is returned to the overseas installations Family Support and Youth Programs which is then used to invest in better quality of life programs for service members, their families, and federal employees.

Furthermore, contributors can support programs back home through the “CFC All-Around Giving” program, which allows contributors to pledge to thousands of local charities across the U.S. The complete, searchable charity list is available on the website, <https://cfcoverseas.org>.

In 2015, units across U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart raised $270,000 for charities, $117,628 toward Family Support and Youth Programs.

According to the CFC website, the following are

Free English Tour of Three Leading Corporate Facilities and Downtown Böblingen

Everybody knows that Böblingen has a thriving economy and a rich business landscape, but few have had a chance to peek into production facilities or company headquarters in and around town. Now, thanks to the Böblingen Tourist Board, some of these doors will open for one night – not only to local citizens, but to the U.S. military community, as well.

The program of the first doors-open night of Böblingen business on Wednesday Oct. 19 – called “Wirtschaft Live Erleben!” – features three high-profile, global companies: pharmaceutical wholesale

a few examples of how donations can make a difference:

- $10 provides a month's supply of clean drinking water.
- $25 provides a backpack and school supplies in South Sudan.
- $50 gives emergency medical supplies in the days following a natural disaster.
- $80 provides refugee children with a safe place to play.

Paperless options

The Defense Finance and Accounting Services myPay system offers contributors the opportunity to electronically pledge via payroll allotment. In addition, the CFC-O eGiving system allows contributors to complete a one-time or monthly recurring paperless contribution via credit card, debit card or transfer from a checking or savings account.

CFC History

Fundraising for charitable organizations in the Federal workplace can be traced to the late-1940's, but in 1961, President John F. Kennedy officially authorized the U.S. Civil Service Commission to regulate fundraising in the Federal service by signing Executive Order 10927.

The CFC is:

1. A strong military tradition.
2. An extension of service.
3. A way to connect federal employees to charitable organizations.

The CFC-O is the second largest CFC in the world with the five commands across six continents, there are 209,755 potential contributors and more than 3,000 campaign representatives. In 2015, with just 17% participation, $6.8 million was raised.

cooperative Noweda in Böblingen, plant engineering Eisenmann in Holzgerlingen, and the Mercedes-Benz factory in Sindelfingen. Starting from 5:30 p.m. they will open their doors, show visitors around state-of-the-art production and storage facilities, and share interesting details on their corporate history.

Additionally, to three tours for German speakers, the Böblingen Tourist Board is offering a dedicated tour in English for the U.S. military community. Registered participants will board a van outside the main gate of Panzer Kaserne and start on this unique tour at 5 p.m.

The first stop will be at NOWEDA eG to discover what state-of-the-art logistics processes allow for efficient daily supplies to 8,700 pharmacies, which are also the company's cooperative members.

The tour will continue with a brief guided bus tour of the historic area and downtown Böblingen, followed by a “pit stop” in the Mercedes-Benz factory Sindelfingen. The highlights here are a chance to see how the upper-scale vehicles with the three-point star are born and discover the groundbreaking developments of the Mercedes-Benz Technology Center.

The third company to offer a glimpse behind the scenes is a leading plant manufacturer and service provider in high-tech fields ranging from surface treatment to material flow automation and environmental engineering. The van will then return to the Panzer main gate and is planned to be back by 10 p.m.

Participation is “first come, first served” and cost free for a maximum of 25 people. To sign up, send your name, address and contact number to the city tourist board at stadtmarketing@boeblingen.de.

Halloween 2016 installation access procedures

There are a few rules to follow for visitors and guests to gain access to the U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart installations for Halloween 2016 Trick-or-Treating. — Photo by Monkey Business Images / Shutterstock.com

Monday, October 31, 2016, Halloween trick-or-treating is scheduled on Stuttgart installations from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m.

There will be a few rules to follow to gain access to the U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart installation(s). There will be no normal visitor sign-in at the gates beginning two (2) hours prior to trick-or-treating activities. Beginning at 3 p.m., no visitors or guests will be allowed to sign on to the installation. Sign-on privileges will resume at 10 p.m., two (2) hours after the completion of trick-or-treating.

To bring guests/visitors onto any of the Stuttgart installations the following procedures must be completed:

1. All visitors/guests must be placed on an access roster list.
2. To add a visitor to the access list, submit an Access Roster Request (Download Form: AE Form 190-16F) to the Installation Access Control Office no later than close of business (4:30

3. p.m.), Oct. 21. Access roster requests may be dropped off in person to the IACS Office located in Building 2915 on Panzer Kaserne during business hours, or submitted via the sponsors official government email by the deadline to: ussarmy.stuttgart.Imcom-Europe.list.pmo.IACS@mail.mil.
4. Sign-in limitations: Each individual can sign-in no more than four (4) visitors/guests.
5. Children under 10 years of age are required to be listed on the Access Roster. Complete the request form with their names, then under the section labeled "PIN/ID card number Reisepass/Ausweis Nummer," just annotate "child."
6. Children 10 years of age and over must have their identification card number entered the section labeled "PIN/ID card number Reisepass/Ausweis Nummer."
7. All visitors (either signed in or on the access roster) must be escorted / accompanied by the sponsor at all times.

8. If planning to visit more than one installation during the hours of 3 p.m. to 8 p.m., each installation requires a separate Access Roster Request be submitted.

More Trick-or-Treating Rules On-Post

1. There is no trick-or-treating allowed in the stairwells.
2. Door-to-door trick-or-treating is set to end at 8 p.m.
3. Keep in mind that you're on a military installation in Germany, so use good judgement when picking your costume. (Inappropriate examples: "terrorist", "suicide bomber", or Nazi themed costumes etc.).
4. Ensure your guests and yourself are identifiable when signing in, or arriving, at the respective main gates.
5. Note that the regular garrison child supervision policy applies during Halloween.

Trick-or-treat tips to remember from the

Stuttgart Safety Office:

- Masks can obstruct vision. Use facial make-up instead.
- Inspect all treats before anything is eaten.
- Walk on sidewalks, not in the street.
- Use flashlights, glow sticks, and wear reflective clothing to help see better, and be seen more clearly.
- Watch for children darting out from between parked cars.
- Watch for children walking on roadways, medians and curbs.
- Watch for children in dark clothing.

Editors Note:

Updated Oct. 4 to clarify community questions, Form 190-16F is the correct form USAG Stuttgart IACS office is accepting for installation access roster requests for visitors to the Halloween event. Community members should disregard the form's title stating use for contractors and Common Access Card registration. Additionally, IACS requests all sponsors submitting the form via email should use their official .mil or .gov email address.

Color Run raises awareness of suicide prevention

Runners of all ages that passed a color station during the 5k Color Run at Husky Field Sept. 24, 2016, got a good splash of color. Over 200 Service members, families, retirees and community members joined the Morale, Welfare and Recreation (MWR) 5k Color Run, and were pelted with orange, yellow, blue, pink and green powder, held on Patch Barracks Sept. 24.

In partnership with the Army Substance Abuse Program (ASAP) and the USO the family-friendly Color Run 5k brought awareness to suicide prevention and how we as a community can help to prevent the suicide of our loved ones and community members by being aware of the signs leading up to this tragedy.

“Sharing of resources in times of constraint is our goal,” said Dr. Bala M. Fischer, Alcohol & Drug Control Officer. “If you look at it from the macro perspective each agency is vested with the goal of reaching out by offering and spreading their message, so we use this campaign to accomplish our mission. When we combine all our efforts and energy, we have had the experience of causing sustained impact. We are ONE TEAM!”

“The Color Run is about Celebrating Life,” said Fischer. “We want everyone to come out and enjoy the beauty of life. Staying strong and being there for others are the goals of this campaign.”

The run was a close out event for the Suicide Prevention Month that is consistent with the DoD Suicide Prevention theme 'Be There'. “Celebrating live is about fostering overall wellness, it connects people,” said Fischer. “Families and individuals were collectively having fun.”

The first 200 runners to register received a commemorative t-shirt, sunglasses and a color bomb to toss onto fellow runners at the start of the race.

The focus is on having fun and learning about the signs of suicide, rather than racing as runners get splashed with brightly colored powder at different stages on the course.

Throughout the race runners were met by volunteers who cheered them on with words of encouragement and a doused in colored powder, made of corn starch and food coloring to ensure their white shirts didn't remain that way.

At the conclusion of the event, nearly all those who started were painted with bright colors and even brighter smiles.

Soldiers' fest unites international forces

By Laura Cambiango Spangler
USAG Stuttgart Public Affairs Office

Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines from the Stuttgart military community met their German counterparts in uniform on Sept. 26 on the capital's fest grounds, Cannstatter Wasen, for "Soldatenwasen," or Soldiers' Wasen Day. The event is a unique tradition to Stuttgart's Cannstatter Volksfest dating back 41 years.

Soldatenwasen was initiated in 1975 by beer tent owners Gerd and Hans Atz, who expressed their support for the local troops' morale by offering two mugs of beer and a "Göckele," or half chicken to every attending service member of Theodor Heuss Barracks in Stuttgart.

Two years later, invitations were extended to the U.S. Forces, and in 1982, French and Canadian military units stationed in Baden-Württemberg also joined in the celebration.

Since 2007, this festive "joint exercise" has been organized by the German Army State Command Baden-Württemberg, which in 2008 recognized the long-time host of the Stuttgart military, Alexander Laub, with a golden Cross of Honor for his long-standing support through Soldatenwasen, as well as charitable donations to the German Military Musical Corps' for research on Multiple Sclerosis.

The baton was then passed on to Peter Brandl, owner of the Fürstenberg tent, who has been carrying on the tradition since 2009. On Sept 26, German Army State Commander Col. Dieter Bohnert acknowledged Brandl's hospitality with a framed award for "Special Operations," while U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart Commander Col. Glenn K. Dickenson presented him with the prized commander's coin.

Following tradition, the two commanders jointly welcomed the troops from the tent's stage. For the first time, though, there was also an "exchange of languages" that raised enthusiasm from all sides. Bohnert easily switched back and forth from German to English, while Dickenson addressed host nation troops in their mother tongue.

"This is symbolic of how we work together as one team," Dickenson said.

Typically, a large gathering of multinational forces means that a collaborative military training is taking place. This annual tradition, instead, focuses on fostering a spirit of camaraderie among as many as 4,000 international service members.

Pumpkin circus open in

USAG Stuttgart Public Affairs

The pumpkin festival in Ludwigsburg is the largest of its kind worldwide. This year's creations and exhibit transform the Ludwigsburg Palace gardens, or Blühendes Barock into a very peculiar circus ring, until Nov. 6, from 9 a.m. – 8:30 p.m.

More than 450,000 pumpkins of over 600 different varieties are artistically arranged in the shape of clowns, knife throwers, wild animals and other circensian attractions for the 2016 theme: "The Pumpkin Circus is Coming to Town!"

Pumpkin-based foods and drinks are another much appreciated part of this event, and the food creations are just as unusual as the artwork. This is the only place where visitors can savor not just pumpkin soup, stew, and pie, but also "maultaschen," spaghetti, burgers, strudel, candy, and even sparkling

wine, all made of p

Visitors may have the chance to see a local masterpiece break the current record weights of 812.5 and 1,054 kg, respectively. Pumpkin carving sessions will be held on the last two Saturdays before Halloween: on Oct. 22 and Cut the feta cheese into four equal slices. Take four pieces of aluminum foil that are big enough to hold all the ingredients. Remove the stalk from the bell peppers. Cut the bell peppers in thin slices and cut the tomatoes in half. Peel the shallots and cut them in thin slices.

- Ingredients (for 4 people)
- 500 grams of feta cheese
 - 1 bell pepper (or if you can get them, take these little bell pepper mix boxes to add a little more color to your meal)
 - 8 to 10 small vine tomatoes
 - 4 green peperoni
 - 4 small shallots (I would suggest the purple ones for a nice color)
 - Basil, oregano, sea salt, black pepper corns, a bit of chili powder (if you like it a little spicy)
 - Olive oil
 - Aluminum foil

Put some olive oil in your aluminum foil, then put the sliced feta cheese and some sliced tomatoes in it. Add the bell peppers, shallots/onions and one peperoni. Spice it up with some basil, oregano, sea salt, black pepper and chili. Put some more olive oil on top of it.

Then wrap it, and put in the oven or on your grill. Let it bake for about 8 to 10 minutes. The time depends on how darkly baked you prefer it. When done, you will have a delicious Mediterranean side dish for any steak!

Preparation

You can prepare this recipe on the grill or in the oven. Both will taste great.

To prevent it from cooling down too much, put the parcels on the plates and open them up right before you start eating. The smell will just be awesome when you finally open it, believe me.

Guten Appetit!

Like to ride bicycles, I have creating a new group on Facebook. I love riding my bicycle and would like to have a group of people that also love riding. Anyone can create an event as we grow we will have a format of those who want to plan a ride. I am a single track rider, not real technical mountain biking but love the trails. If you are a hardcore mountain biker, road biker, someone who enjoys family fun rides and want to explore with others. Please join and lets get some events planned. This is a group for any nationality....Lets Ride. If interested please visit and join the group on Facebook at "Rhineland-Pfalz Area Cycling Group"
