Take a moment to honor fallen on Memorial Day

FROM NAS KEY WEST PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Naval Air Station Key West Commanding Officer Capt. Bobby Baker will honor the nation's fallen military Monday as the speaker for a Memorial Day service at the USS Maine Memorial in the Key West Cemetery.

The Navy League Key West Council hosts the annual ceremony, which begins at 9 a.m. The observation lasts about 20 minutes; seating is available but limited.

That service is the first of three scheduled Monday morning. The public is encouraged to attend one or all to show respect for those who died while in defense of America.

Naval Air Station Key West Commanding Officer Capt. Bobby Baker recognized the installation Drug Education For Youth (DEFY) Program for five years of continued service to youth and families.

The award was presented at an all-hands quarters Thursday to ACC Joseph Blocker, who accepted the award for ETCS Clyde Anderson, the longtime program manager who recently transferred. Blocker has assumed management of the program.

"The program provides education, skills building, and positive experiences so that the participants can choose healthy alternatives instead of substance abuse and gang involvement."

Blocker said in describing the purpose of DEFY.

DEFY is a two-phase program. Phase one is a challenging and fun-filled week

The standard of greatness

Mirror, mirror on the wall who is the greatest of them all? We all have our own opinions of who we think might be the greatest person in different categories.

When you ask who the greatest president might be, or the greatest musician of all time, you will receive many different answers.

How do we define and measure greatness? How can we tell who the greatest of all times is? The way the world measures greatness does not line up with God's metrics for greatness.

The world measures greatness in terms of accumulation and accomplishment.

We tend to think people who either have a lot or they have done a lot are great. We identify greatness with success.

If we are measuring things by how big, how much, or how many

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

NAS Key West
Command Chaplain

Lt. Cmdr.
Scott Mason

then we would not come close to qualifying for the semi-finals of the greatest of all times. If we are to look at how God measures greatness we must look at servanthood and the heart of serving.

In a world that says you need to be number one, we are told in scripture that we must humble ourselves and look for ways to be last.

Mark 9:35 say "If anyone would be first, he must be last of all servant of all."

So even though our world says being last is bad we see that statement does not always ring true.

The moment we choose to have a servant spirit, a servant attitude and a servant heart, then we can see how we measure up to greatness in God's eyes.

Please come and join us for worship service at 10:30 a.m. Sunday at the Sigsbee Community Center with our Praise Band and Children's Church.

Suicide prevention resources available to all

FROM NAVAL HOSPITAL
JACKSONVILLE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, suicide was the 10th leading cause of death, for all ages, in the U.S. Building resilience and preventing suicide requires all members of the Navy and Marine Corps community to work together.

Suicide prevention is about being there for every Sailor, Marine, and family member, every day.

Suicide can be a complex behavioral response influenced by a multitude of factors within one's personal experience with life. These potentially include individual, relational, community, or societal circumstances; or any combination thereof. Specific risk factors and stressors associated with suicidality have been linked to illness, isolation, family and marital discord, financial issues, depressive disorders or other mental health concerns (including prior suicidal ideation or attempts), impulsive behaviors, lack of sleep, or changes in brain chemicals due to alcohol or drug abuse.

Warning signs include thoughts or comments about suicide, substance abuse, purposelessness, anxiety, feeling trapped or hopeless, withdrawal, anger, recklessness, and mood changes.

Effective treatments and interventions are available for depression, situational stressors, and other health problems that are risk factors for suicide. Understanding warning signs and risk factors can help prevent, identify, and enable early intervention to save lives.

Tips to help Sailors and Marines stay mission-ready include: Find time for yourself - improve sleep habits, try yoga or meditation, participate in enjoyable activities; break down obstacles into small steps and tackle one at a time; improve physical conditioning with regular physical training, which strengthens the muscles and the mind; avoid alcohol and substance misuse, which can affect how you manage stress and interfere with sleep, relationships and responsibilities; and identify people to turn to when in need whether it is a friend, family member, chaplain or health care professional.

For free, confidential support 24/7, call the Military Crisis Line at 800-273-TALK (8255), text message to 838255, or chat online at www.veteranscrisisline.net. The Crisis Line is available to current and former service members, their families and friends.

Active duty can call Naval Branch Health Clinic Key West's Family Medicine department at 305-293-4834/4850 to be directed to the appropriate provider. Family members, retirees and retiree families can call TRICARE Value Options at 800-700-8646 for mental health care.

For someone in immediate danger, go to the nearest emergency room or call 911.
