Senior Leaders SECARMY on The Army

"The entire Army is deployed at a very high rate now. I want to make sure that our units are at full strength, I want to ensure that our Soldiers are well trained, physically fit, mentally strong and tough."

– Dr. Mark T. Esper
Secretary of the Army

July 10, 2018, Fort Campbell, Ky.

On Point

The Army Ethic

The Army Ethic is the heart of the Army and includes the moral principles that guide the Army Profession, Soldiers and Army Civilians in accomplishing the mission, performance of duties and in all aspects of life. The Army Ethic, including the Army values, inspires and motivates the shared identity as trusted Army professionals that are honorable servants, Army experts, and stewards of people and resources. The Army must fight and win the nation's wars in the right way. Successful implementation of the Army's framework for character development strengthens understanding and application of the Army Ethic at all levels of leadership – strategic, organizational, and direct.

Antiterrorism Awareness

Expanding community outreach is a critical element to protect U.S. Army personnel and critical resources from the threat of terrorist action. People are the Army's greatest asset and protecting Army communities is a vital responsibility of the Army.

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. – The Secretary of the Army, Dr. Mark T. Esper, shared his recently published Army Vision with Soldiers, leaders, Families and Civilians of the 101st Airborne Division and Fort Campbell during a visit July 10.

"The Army Vision speaks about where we want to be in the year 2028 and within that it outlines: manning, training, equipping and leading," said Esper.

As Secretary of the Army, Esper has constitutional responsibility of all aspects in relation to the U.S. Army, including: organization, recruiting, equipping, training and supervision of over 1.4 million active duty, Reserve and National Guard Soldiers as well as Army Civilians and their Families. His visit allowed Fort Campbell leaders to provide an overview of Fort Campbell's readiness and training of its Soldiers and Civilians, to include the care and welfare of their Families.

The visit began with an intense physical fitness circuit training alongside the Soldiers of 3rd Battalion, 187th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Brigade Combat Team, 101st Airborne Division. Esper served with the "Iron Rakkasans" during his early days on active duty, including a deployment for Operations Desert Storm and Desert Shield.

"This morning we got the opportunity to work out with the Secretary of the Army," said Pfc. Holland Wiler, 3rd Battalion, 187th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Brigade Combat Team, 101st Airborne Division. "We always stay physically ready to deploy, our bags are always packed and we're ready to move out at any time of day, month or year."
