What is a first sergeant?

Commentary by Master Sgt. James Hunt
50th Operations Group first sergeant

SCHRIEVER AIR FORCE BASE, Colo. — As a first sergeant in the United States Air Force, I get the distinct opportunity of helping our Airmen overcome challenges, and be better performers and wingmen because of it. When I first became a first sergeant, one of the things I noticed early on was the majority of the unit did not understand what a first sergeant truly does.

Since then, I ask every new person to the unit what they think first sergeants do. Most of the responses are similar to, “we come see you when we are in trouble,” or “if we have to take emergency leave, we come see you.” Helping Airmen overcome disciplinary issues is definitely a part of what we do, but there is so much more.

One of the most satisfying elements of being a first sergeant is helping Airmen overcome challenges, grow from failure, and become better wingmen and leaders. Schriever Air Force Base is already home to the world’s finest Airmen, but we all face adversity at times. Building camaraderie, teamwork and a sense of belonging will only strengthen the already outstanding team that serve at this installation. Initiatives like First Friday and intramural sports are a fantastic way to increase these aspects of cohesion, as well as build networks and friendships.

The First Sergeant Council loves to recognize superior performers through the Diamond Sharp Award. If you have an Airman of any rank you would like to brag about, do so with your first sergeant. My challenge to everyone is to take the initiatives that the wing has started, and use them to influence unit pride and cohesion at each level. Supervisors, take the time to recognize the great accomplishments of your team, and promote morale building activities. By taking the time to truly know our members, we can be more than managers. We can be leaders.

When I arrived at Schriever AFB, my first Air Force Space Command assignment, I was blown away with what this base does on a daily basis. The technical expertise displayed by our youngest Airmen is outstanding. Work accomplishment is not something anyone on this base is lacking. The wing command team exudes pride in what you do every day, and for good reason. This fact was exemplified in the recent Unit Effectiveness Inspection, and is a testament to the proficiency and professionalism Team Schriever exhibits daily.

I have never been more proud than I am right now to be a part of this championship team, Team Schriever!

“One of the most satisfying elements of being a first sergeant is helping Airmen overcome challenges, grow from failure, and become better wingmen and leaders.”

SECAF announces resignation

By Secretary of the Air Force Public Affairs

ARLINGTON, Va. — Upon a favorable final vote by the regents, Secretary of the Air Force Heather Wilson announced her resignation March 8, after serving in her position as the service's top civilian since May 2017, to accept the role as president of the University of Texas at El Paso.

Wilson will continue to serve as the 24th Secretary of the Air Force until May 2019.

"It has been a privilege to serve our Airmen over the past two years," said Wilson in her letter of resignation to the President of the United States. "I am proud of the progress we have made to restore our nation's defense."

During her service, Wilson has been responsible for the affairs of the Department of the Air Force, including organizing, training and equipping and providing for the welfare of all active-duty, Guard, Reserve and civilian forces as well as their families.

Moreover, she has been leading the way in improving the lethality and readiness of the Air Force. What was once 660,000 total force in 2017 is now 685,000 total force today — a 15 percent increase.

She oversees the Air Force's annual budget of more than $138 billion and directs strategy and policy development, risk management, weapons acquisition, technology investments and human resource management across a global enterprise.

"We hit the lottery with Secretary Wilson," said Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. David L. Goldfein. "Under her leadership, we became a better U.S. Air Force and our Airmen will continue rowing hard, becoming even faster, smarter. As she takes her talent and leadership to my home state of Texas, I wish her the very best."

Prior to assuming the secretary of the Air Force position, Wilson was president of the South Dakota School of Mines and Technology, a member of the U.S. House of Representatives, a member of the National Security Council staff and also served in the private sector.

"My greatest appreciation and thanks to Secretary Wilson for her premier leadership of the world's greatest Airmen and Air Force," said Under Secretary of the Air Force Matthew P. Donovan. "We wish her the best at the University of Texas El Paso."

Why I wear the uniform

By Airman 1st Class Katie Marie Naquin

50th Force Support Squadron

SCHRIEVER AIR FORCE BASE, Colo. — "Remember your why," is repeatedly said from Basic Military Training, urging Airmen to remember their initial motivations for joining. Even when things are hard, just remember your "why" and push through.

Why did you choose this? Why are you here? Essentially, why do you wear the uniform? After being asked so many times, you would think the answer would be simple, and for some people it is. For me though, it's a little more complicated, because my reason for enlisting then isn't the same reason I now lace up my combat boots each morning.

When I first decided to enlist it was sort of on a whim. I'd been raised as a military dependent, on military installations my entire life and had a general idea of what the career entailed. I had just never thought it would be for me. I wasn't overly fond of rules and restrictions, could never stick to a workout regimen, and most importantly, I had been soured on the idea by a lifetime of frequent relocation and a constant fear of my father being deployed to dangerous locations. All I had ever wanted was to be an ordinary civilian, up until the time when that dream finally came true. Suddenly, I got to experience the harsh realities of civilian life, and with the additional freedoms came a myriad of worries and concerns.

I needed a reliable job with benefits, and the military was there, ready to provide me with that in exchange for a few of my personal freedoms. Along the way, something changed. I don't know when it happened exactly. Maybe it was the first time I swore the oath, and really let the weight of those words settle on my shoulders. Or when I stopped focusing on the rote memorization of the Airmen's Creed and instead focused on what it meant. Maybe it was when I realized just how proud my family really was of me for making this decision, my father especially. Maybe it was the first time a stranger stopped me on the street to thank me for my service. I think maybe it changed the moment I realized that more important than what the uniform means to me, is what it means to everyone else.

When I was first issued Airman Battle Uniforms in BMT, I didn't like wearing them at all. I found them heavy. After several months, I realized the weight of the fabric is nothing compared to the weight of the expectations the uniform carries. The weight of the promises and commitments I've made to my country and to myself. I may have joined for financial security, but in doing so I became a part of something so much larger than I think I understood at the time. It's heavy, but it's the sort of weight that presses coal into diamonds. It's the sort of weight that will help shape me into the best version of myself.

Why do I wear the uniform? To put that weight on myself. To live up to the promises, expectations and responsibilities I swore to fulfill. To be the sort of person worthy of being stopped on the street and thanked by complete strangers for a service commitment that I've only barely begun.

TRANSITION SPOTLIGHT
Behavioral Health Volunteer Mimi Chough

Mt. Carmel celebrates team member Mimi Chough who volunteers 15-20 hours each week at Mt. Carmel conducting behavioral health counseling for our clients – veterans, transitioning service members and their families. The Marriage and Family Therapist Candidate for licensure serves on a team of licensure candidates and master's degree-level interns who provide more than 8,000 hours of care each year at Mt. Carmel through traditional and alternative therapies.

Mimi has been with Mt. Carmel since completing her master's-level clinical internship here in 2018. She was drawn to the behavioral health field by an interest in people and a passion for the stories unique to each person's life. Today she helps veteran and military couples through workshops, retreats and counseling services to improve communication, increase connection and assist with transitions in marriage.

"I'm drawn to serve the veteran population to honor my father, Daniel R. Costello, who served two tours with the Navy during Vietnam," said Mimi. "I grew up around veterans; most of my Dad's friends were veterans and my brothers and I were never far from a veteran mentor to teach us the 'Army way' or 'Navy way' to do something.

"My father was deeply touched by his time in the military and was impacted by the people he met, and he always passed his pride in being an American to his children. We lost my father several years ago but I recognize his spirit in the veterans, young and old, that I meet each day at Mt. Carmel," said Mimi. "I'm proud to serve veterans of all eras and branches and honored to be a part of an organization that reaches so many. I volunteer to give back to those who have given to our country, and to bring healing and fulfillment to service members and their families, for they are my family too."

NH-1102-03 Contract Specialist Term Vacancies

The 50th Contracting Squadron is seeking qualified candidates to fill two modified term appointment NH-1102-03 contract specialist positions. These positions fall under the DoD's Civilian Acquisition Workforce Demonstration Project compensation and appraisal system and are considered GS 12-13 equivalent positions. These modified term positions are funded for two years and may be extended up to five years with a one year, local approved extension for a total of six years.

The primary purpose for these positions are to serve as experienced contract specialists for all phases of pre-award acquisition and post-award contract administration on service and commodity contracts. Positions will be filled using Direct Hiring Authority. Relocation costs are not authorized.

Employees hired under the modified term appointment may be eligible for conversion to career or career conditional appointments in the competitive service provided they:

1. Have an announcement specifically stating that the individual(s) selected for the term position may be eligible for conversion to career conditional or career appointments at a later date.
2. Have served two years of continuous service in the term position.
3. Have been considered to have adequate contributions and a fully successful performance rating for two assessment cycles (including the current assessment cycle) immediately preceding conversion. Service under a modified term appointment immediately prior to a permanent appointment shall count toward the probationary period requirements described in 10 U.S.C. Section 1599e.

NH-1102-03 desired qualifications and experience includes:

- Wide-ranging knowledge of various contracting approaches and methods
- Preparation and coordination of acquisition documents for pre-solicitation/award
- Contract administration (post award)
- Prefer warranted Contracting Officer experience
- APDP Contracting Level II Certification

Interested candidates must send a current resume, copies of transcripts and a copy of your Department of Defense Form 214 (if applicable) to kristin.heikkila@us.af.mil — Subject Line: NH-1102-03 Contract Specialist Term Vacancy, no later than March 31.

Your resume should include breadth/depth of experience, and qualifications which make you the best qualified candidate for these positions. Candidates will be assessed to ensure they have the skills, education, training and behavioral attributes that provide for successful job performance.

For more information, contact Kristi Heikkila at 719-567-7332.

Hiring Fairs for Defense, IT, Cyber and Intel

The Airman and Family Readiness Center is hosting a hiring fair, 11 a.m. — 2 p.m. March 13 at the Schriever Air Force Base event center, Building 20. The event is open to all active duty, veterans, guard/reserve, civilians, contractors and family members who have access to military installations. RSVP and resume upload is required (even if you can't attend, register and upload your resume). To upload a resume or RSVP, visit: www.transitioncareers.com.

For more information send email to: jobseeker@transitioncareers.com.

If you are an employer and want to recruit at these events send an inquiry email to: employer@transitioncareers.com.

Multi-Domain Warfighter Integration Council

The 310th Space Wing will host the Multi-Domain Warfighter Integration Council April 1 — 5, at the U.S. Air Force Warfare Center Detachment 1. The event's purpose is to develop solutions to multi-domain challenges faced by the United States Armed Forces at the tactical and operational levels and identify specific space effects and support that increase combat effectiveness in these problem sets.

For more information contact Maj. Megan Tovado at 719-567-6834.

Civilian Developmental Education accepting nomination packages

Nomination packages for Career Developmental Education opportunities are accepted through May 1. Applicants can apply for up to four programs.

The majority of the courses require a continued service agreement in accordance with Air Force Instruction 36-401, Employee Training and Development. Applicants may incur up to a five year commitment upon completion of the training. This commitment begins when the students complete the program and is transferable to another federal agency if the employee leaves the Air Force.

For up to date CDE information, visit the Civilian Force Development page on myPers from a Common Access Card enabled computer, or select "Civilian Employee" from the myPers dropdown menu and search "developmental education." Required documents, application instructions, a list of CDE opportunities and other criteria are available on the page.

For more information visit: <https://www.afpc.af.mil/Force-Development/Civilian-Developmental-Education/>.

AAFES continues Free Friday giveaways

The Army and Air Force Exchange Service continues its Free Friday giveaways in 2019, offering Schriever Airmen and their families a chance to win riding lawn mowers, furniture, grills, blenders, espresso makers and more, conducted online at facebook.com/shopmyexchange.

To enter the contests, authorized shoppers post a comment answering the question posed on each Free Friday post at facebook.com/shopmyexchange. In addition to active duty, National Guard, Reserve and retired shoppers and military families, honorably discharged veterans who have verified their eligibility to shop at ShopMyExchange.com can enter the weekly drawings.

Veterans can visit <http://bit.ly/VetForLife> for more information. Entries made by 11:59 p.m. central standard time on the day of the posting will be entered into a drawing. Drawings are held on the Monday after each Free Friday giveaway. For more information, contact Michael Casserly at 719-576-6174.
