New public website now live at Fort McCoy

The new Fort McCoy public website, <https://home.army.mil/mccoy>, is now live.

The new website is part of Installation Management Command's (IMCOM) mission to provide a unified web content management system for its public-facing websites. The Fort McCoy Public Affairs Office (PAO) remains responsible for approving and updating content on the public website.

The main page of the old website will redirect to the new address for at least six months, but users are encouraged to update their bookmarks or favorites as soon as possible.

As part of the website change, The Real McCoy Online also has a new address. The current issue is available at <https://home.army.mil/mccoy/index.php/my-fort/all-services/real-mccoy>. A limited number of editions will be archived on the website; older editions can be found at the Fort McCoy PAO page on the Defense Visual Information Distribution Service, located at <https://www.dvidshub.net/unit/FMPAO>.

The Real McCoy print edition will continue to be distributed through official mail and to newsstands in high-traffic areas, including the Exchange, Commissary, McCoy's Community Center, and Rumpel Fitness Center.

Tune into Fort McCoy TV6 (cable channel 6) to see programming on this closed-circuit, command-access channel. It features a community bulletin board with pre-recorded presentations and content featured

Maintaining readiness

Firefighters with the Directorate of Emergency Services Fire Department reset hoses after a structural fire drill Aug. 7 at Fort McCoy. Fort McCoy maintains two fire stations, allowing them to respond quickly to fire emergencies wherever they arise on post. During the first week of October, the fire department also supported Fire Prevention Week with numerous activities. See more about the fire department on Page 6.

Celebrate Halloween safely

Many events planned on post

BY AIMEE MALONE

Celebrate Halloween with a variety of events at Fort McCoy!

Start out celebrations with the Hidden Trails trip at 1 p.m. Oct. 20, departing from Pine View Campground.

Families can enjoy a wagon ride, visit the corn maze, and pick out pumpkins. The trip costs $7 for 4-10-year-olds and $10 for those 11 and older. Children 3 years old and younger are free.

Registration is required. Call 800-531-4703.

The Zombie Pool Party will be 5 p.m. Oct. 26 at Rumpel Fitness Center. The event features an underwater scavenger hunt and cookie decorating. The event costs $5 per person. Advance registration is not required.

The Halloween Bash is 6 to 9 p.m. Oct. 26 at McCoy's Community Center. It will feature costume contests, games, and prizes for children 14 years old or younger; free shoe rental and Extreme Bowling for $2 per game; and food specials.

At 11:30 a.m. Oct. 31, Rumpel Fitness Center will hold the "No Treats, Just Tricks" relay race/walk. All participants must be dressed in Halloween costumes. The run is a three-person relay race; each team member will run 1 mile. Walking teams will walk 1 mile and must start and finish together.

Prizes will be awarded to the fastest relay and walking teams and for the top three costumes. The (See HALLOWEEN, Page 2)

Hunting safety, winter prep are focus of fall safety council

BY AIMEE MALONE

Public Affairs Staff

The Safety and Occupational Health Advisory Council met Oct. 2 in building 905 to discuss potential safety issues affecting the Fort McCoy community.

Halloween, fall hunting, and the upcoming winter were the primary safety topics under discussion. The Installation Safety Office (ISO) highlighted the importance of staying safe during Halloween festivities. (See related article, this page.)

Deer season will be starting soon, both for hunting and possible deer/vehicle collisions. ISO Manager Randy Eddy spoke about how to avoid accidents while deer are more active than usual.

“Between the months of October and January, the deer are on the run,” Eddy said. It’s especially common to see deer around dawn and from dusk until late evening, when visibility is low.

Deer are pack animals and tend to travel in groups, so watch out for additional animals. “If you see one, expect you’re going to see another one,” Eddy said.

Use high beams to help visibility at night, though remember to turn them off when other vehicles approach. If a deer runs in front of a vehicle, brake firmly to try to stop but don’t swerve to avoid the deer.

“The majority of fatalities are people who drive into the other lane and get hit by another car or they drive off the road into a telephone pole or tree,” Eddy said. More than 18,000 deer-related accidents are reported each year in Wisconsin.

Hunting safety is another important topic during the fall, Eddy said. Following hunting rules and suggestions can help get a hunter back home safely.

Treat every firearm as though it’s loaded, and always point the muzzle in a safe direction. Be sure of a target: know what’s in front of and behind the deer or other prey. Also know where any hunting companions are, whether human or animal, to avoid injury.

It’s also important to make sure someone knows where you’re going and when you should be back, Eddy said. On Fort McCoy, hunters have to visit iSportsman to see which areas are open and check in to where they’ll be hunting. While family members are often the first to notice if someone doesn’t return in time, Directorate of Emergency Services personnel can also check to see if someone didn’t check out of the system and therefore might need help.

Hunters at Fort McCoy must also have the proper permits and register their firearms. For more information, visit <https://ftmccoy.isportsman.net/>.

As the weather cools down, it’s important to look ahead and prepare for upcoming snow and ice.

“Now is the time of year to get your vehicle ready for winter,” Eddy said.

Check every vehicle’s battery, antifreeze, heater, and defroster. Switch out windshield washer fluid for a variety that won’t freeze. Every vehicle should also have a cold-weather kit in the backseat or trunk in case it gets stuck on snowy or icy roads.

Vehicle kits should include a winter hat and gloves, reflectors, a flashlight with extra batteries, and a blanket. It’s also helpful to have food (such as granola bars) and water. Vehicles should also keep some sort of abrasive material, such as sand, gravel, or traction mats, and a small shovel to help drivers get them out of snow or ice.

“I carry a kid’s plastic shovel in mine,” Eddy said. “I’ve had to use it before, and it works really well.”

The meeting also included a visit to Fort McCoy’s Wastewater Treatment Facility to review potential safety issues and the precautions taken to prevent problems.

The council meets quarterly to discuss safety issues that could potentially affect the Fort McCoy community. It also provides garrison staff and tenants a chance to inform leadership of any safety concerns they have.

For more safety information, call the Installation Safety Office at 608-388-0335 event is free and open to all eligible Directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation patrons.

Registration is required by 11 a.m. Oct. 31. Call 608-388-2290 or visit Rumpel Fitness Center for information.

The Directorate of Emergency Services will be out in force at South Post Housing on Oct. 31 to help ensure families have a fun and safe Halloween. Police will patrol the area during trick-or-treat hours, which will be 4 to 7 p.m. The Fire Department will have a fire engine on display, and personnel will hand out plastic fire hats to children.

The Installation Safety Office offers several tips to keep Halloween festivities safe:

- Supervise children and stay in familiar, well-lit neighborhoods.
- Dusk is the time of poorest visibility for drivers. Try to trick or treat while it is still daylight.
- Choose a costume that is easy to walk in, easy to see out of, and can be seen by drivers. Light colors and reflective tape are recommended. Make-up is better for a child’s visibility than a mask.
- Costumes and wigs can be dangerous around open flames. Choose nonflammable materials, give children flashlights, and use battery-operated candles in decorations.
- Treats should be checked for potential poisoning or unsafe objects. Unpackaged items like popcorn or loose candies and candy with torn wrappers should be discarded.
- If you have any suspicions about any treats, report it to law enforcement so that other parents may be warned and the people responsible caught. The Fort McCoy Police Department can be reached 608-388-2000. Dial 911 in an emergency.

For more information about safety matters, call the Installation Safety Office at 608-388-3403.

Ammunition supply Soldiers enhance skills, expertise in ALC at McCoy

BY SCOTT T. STURKOL

Public Affairs Staff

Nearly a dozen “89-Bravos” from Army units across the country completed training in the 89B Advanced Leader Course (ALC) at Fort McCoy from August to September with the 13th Battalion, 100th (13th, 100th) Regiment.

An ALC is a branch-specific course that provides Soldiers selected for promotion to staff sergeant an opportunity to enhance leadership, technical skill, tactical expertise, and experience needed to lead squad-size units, according to the Enlisted Personnel Management Directorate of Army Human Resources Command.

An ALC consists of both a 90-day highly facilitated web-based common core program and a branch-specific resident phase. For the 89B ammunition specialist military occupation specialty, its ALC at Fort McCoy is four weeks (two two-week phases).

“This was the second fiscal training year we’ve had the ALC here at Fort McCoy, and it’s going well,” said Sgt. 1st Class Doug Dobitz, course coordinator with the 13th, 100th. “In this course, future enlisted leaders in this MOS build their skills to not only become better leaders and supervisors, but also better Soldiers.”

Soldiers who are 89B-qualified are tasked with receiving, storing, and issuing conventional ammunition, guided missiles, large rockets, explosives, and other ammunition and explosive-related items. During the two phases of the course, the students learn about advanced leadership and supervision skills required for their career field and more.

According to the Army job description, ammunition supply specialist NCOs supervise the receipt, storage, issue, and preparation of ammunition, ammunition components and explosives for transportation and storage. They also supervise ammunition stock control and accounting procedures for surveillance inputs, conduct ammunition inspections and tests, and perform inspections of containers and vehicles transporting ammunition.

89B NCOs also inspect storage locations, ensuring compliance with storage compatibility, quantity distance, and explosive safety limits. And, they ensure compliance with all ammunition safety requirements as prescribed in applicable Army regulations.

The 13th, 100th is an ordnance battalion that provides training and training support to Soldiers in the ordnance maintenance MOS series. The unit, aligned under the 3rd Brigade, 94th Division of the 80th Training Command, has been at Fort McCoy since about 1995.

Construction of new dining facilities continues on post

STORY & PHOTOS BY SCOTT T. STURKOL

Public Affairs Staff

Contractors continue work on two new dining facilities in 1800 and 2400 blocks of Fort McCoy.

The facility construction in the 1800 block for the new $13.5 million, 1,428-person annual training/mobilization dining facility began in May and, as of Sept. 25, was 25 percent complete, said Nathan Butts, contract oversight representative with the Fort McCoy Project Office of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (USACE).

The project is being constructed by contractor L.S. Black Constructors of St. Paul, Minn., and is supposed to be completed in 2019.

The construction of the facility in the 2400 block, also a new 1,428-person annual training/mobilization dining facility, began in July. The Louisville, Ky., office of USACE awarded a $12.3 million contract in May for the construction of this facility, Butts said.

The contract also was awarded to L.S. Black Constructors Inc. Also as of Sept. 21, this facility was at approximately 5 percent complete.

According to the contract scope of work for each facility, the new facilities will be built with food preparation and cooking areas; an entrance/control area; and serving, dining, dishwashing, administration, and locker areas. It will also have a state-of-the-art waste-disposal system, a receiving and loading dock, cold and dry storage, and more.

Once completed, these dining facilities will be the fifth and sixth brick-and-mortar dining facilities on post. Additionally, Army Corps of Engineer officials said building a dining facility is different than building other types of facilities and generally takes longer.

“These facilities require lots of specialty equipment, which means additional time is needed to build the connections and lines for that equipment into the infrastructure,” said Nathan Butts, contract oversight representative with the Army Corps of Engineers.

Fort McCoy Food Service Manager Andy Pisney with the Logistics Readiness Center Supply and Services Division said the new dining facilities are needed and will increase food-service capabilities. Pisney’s office oversees the food-service contract for Fort McCoy dining facilities.

“When these (facilities) are done, they will be more of a unit-operated dining facility,” Pisney said. “It will really work well for those larger units who currently might sign out two or three of our World War II-era facilities to feed their troops. Now they’ll only have to sign out one facility.”

The facilities are being built on several acres of land. They will have a large parking lot and plenty of space for customers.

ACP construction surpasses 80 percent completion

Construction on the new Access Control Point (ACP) project that will replace the current Gate 20 at Fort McCoy has surpassed the 80 percent completion point, said Ken Green, contract officer's representative with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (USACE), which is managing the contract.

A $9.9 million contract for construction of the ACP projects was awarded in 2017 to Catamount Constructors Inc. of Lakewood, Colo. Work on the project started in fall 2017 and was mostly suspended during the winter, then started back up in early spring. Ever since, the contractor has been making great progress, Green said.

As of Sept. 28, work was 88 percent complete, Green said. Contractors were testing heating and air conditioning systems, completing more electrical work, continuing work on road striping, installing physical security measures, and more.

"The contract duration is for 540 calendar days, which has the project's contract completion date set for November," Green said. "Everything currently is on or slightly ahead of schedule."

The project description states construction included the building of a new identification check area with a search office; inspection canopy; and development and construction of new roadways, parking, lighting, and traffic control signals.

The physical security items built into the project includes passive and active vehicle barriers with comprehensive control systems as well as security fencing, information systems, and more, Green said.

Active construction on the project area, which is near the Regional Training Site-Medical and Medical Simulation Training Center areas, continues daily until project completion.

Fort McCoy firefighters maintain response readiness

Exercise News Day

Firefighters with the Directorate of Emergency Services practiced a structural fire drill and dual-truck pumping operations at Fort McCoy in August. It was one way they practice maintaining readiness.

Due to high-intensity operations with flammable materials and explosive ordinance, all training operations require fire-safety considerations, and with access to a large variety of simulators, the post firefighters are prepared to support that demand.

"We have a full training area with a burn tower, a rappelling tower, all kinds of different props for different things," said Firefighter Matthew Wheeler.

"We'll do live fire training in the building, and we'll go in there and put the fires out on different levels."

These exercises, as well as a detailed knowledge of the training area, allow the Fort McCoy Fire Department to respond and suppress fires before they affect training missions.

"A lot of the guys here have worked here a long time. Our people are very knowledgeable on where these fires occur, they know where the ranges are located, (and) they've dealt with these units in the past," Wheeler said.

Wheeler also has fire-safety experience as a staff sergeant with the Army Reserve's 2nd Battalion, 411th Logistic Support Battalion, "It does help me be more well-rounded, and there's many other Soldiers who do the same thing," Wheeler said. "It just shows that people can do both, learn different roles, have lots of training, and get involved."

Wheeler said Fort McCoy well-positioned to respond to any emergencies that may arise during training on post, noting personnel are "ready to go, 100 percent, all the time."

Fort McCoy hosted more than 155,000 Soldiers for training in fiscal year 2017, and the fire department responded to an average of 900 calls to provide emergency services across the installation.

This month in Fort McCoy history

75 years ago — Oct. 5, 1943

A new band, a 77-piece unit belonging to the 76th Infantry Division, set up headquarters at Camp McCoy.

The band, under the leadership of Warrant Officers John Sandidge and Leonard Lambert, had played together as a unit since August 1943.

Formerly, it was divided into two sections, the artillery band and the infantry band.

The bands had played as units since July 1, 1942, soon after the division was activated.

An ambitious program was mapped out by Sandidge and Lambert, who were assisted by Tech. Sgt. Louis Nestor. Playing for reviews, drills, regimental ceremonies, and broadcasts were among the activities the band did all around the installation.

The unit's dance bands played at the service clubs on post as well.

The 76th's band was featured in the "Back the Attack" show, which was staged in Washington, D.C., and made a showing at the Capitol's Stage Door Canteen.

A broadcast was later repeated for audiences in La Crosse, Wis.

The band, which aided bond drives in the past, also lent its assistance to local and state campaigns.

72 Years Ago — Oct. 11, 1946

Camp McCoy was designated as one of the installations in the nation to function as a Regular Army Officer Screening center. It processed applicants either currently on active duty or already separated from the service and stationed or residing in Wisconsin, southeastern Minnesota, or the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, according to an announcement issued by Col. Newton Bush, post commander.

The new law authorized further expansion of the officer strength of the Regular Army provided for an increase in strength from 25,000 to 50,000 without time limitation during which appointments can be made.

It was anticipated that approximately 25 applicants from the designated area would be tested at this station daily.

High-ranking regular Army officers constituted the Interview Board and appointments to the board located here were made by Fifth Army headquarters.

The screening center and interview boards operated from Dec. 1, 1946, to March 31, 1947.

30 Years Ago — Oct. 28, 1988

The U.S. Army Reserve (USAR) Readiness Training Center added three new courses to its curriculum aimed at keeping good soldiers in the ranks.

Those courses, focusing on USAR retention, include a basic Retention Noncommissioned Officer Course, an advanced course intended to teach unit members how to train others in retention skills, and a Retention Manager's Course to teach officers how to manage a unit retention program.

The classes were moved to Fort McCoy from Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

10 Years Ago — Oct. 1, 2008

The Fort McCoy Directorate of Emergency Services (DES)/Directorate of Plans, Training, Mobilization and Security (DPTMS) have split into two separate directorates, effective Oct. 1, 2008.

DES includes the Public Safety Center, the Fire Department, the Intrusion Detection System, Vehicle Registration, and the Airfield Fire Station (Fire Station 2). DPTMS includes the Training Division; Management Support Division; the Plans, Operation and Security Division; and the Airfield Division.

The organizations were formed as part of the final phase of a Standard Garrison Organization transition in accordance with Installation Management Command guidance.

Command Sgt. Maj. Frank Gutierrez, command sergeant major of U.S. Army Communications-Electronics Command and senior enlisted adviser to the Aberdeen, Md., Proving Ground senior commander, gives his presentation Sept. 27 as guest speaker during the installation observance of National Hispanic Heritage Month at Fort McCoy.

Installation observes National Hispanic Heritage Month

Fort McCoy celebrated National Hispanic Heritage Month with a lunchtime observance Sept. 27 at McCoy's Community Center.

The guest speaker was Command Sgt. Maj. Frank Gutierrez, command sergeant major of U.S. Army Communications-Electronics Command and senior enlisted adviser to the Aberdeen, Md., Proving Ground senior commander.

"In celebration of National Hispanic Heritage Month, we honor the contributions of all Hispanics and their mark on our collective history," Gutierrez said.

"Let's look amongst ourselves and continue to ask how and what we can do to use our ambitions to create an even brighter future for those coming behind us."

Hispanic Heritage Month is Sept. 15-Oct. 15. Sept. 15 is significant because it is the anniversary of independence for Latin American countries Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and Nicaragua, according to www.hispanicheritagemoth.gov.

In addition, Mexico and Chile celebrate their independence days on Sept. 16 and Sept. 18, respectively.

"During National Hispanic Heritage Month, we honor all American citizens of Hispanic descent and celebrate their rich and vibrant traditions of faith, family, hard work, and patriotism," states President Donald Trump's 2018 Hispanic Heritage Month proclamation.

"We are grateful for the innumerable contributions they make to our society, which are vital to our thriving nation. We are especially grateful for the 1.2 million Hispanic-American men and women who have answered the call to serve in our Armed Forces, demonstrating remarkable loyalty, bravery, and dedication to duty."

The event was organized by the Equal Opportunity Office.

Disability Employment event set for Oct. 18

Fort McCoy's National Disability Employment Awareness Month observance is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. Oct. 18 at McCoy's Community Center, building 1571.

The guest speaker is Jason Glozier, disability rights and service coordinator for the Madison, Wis., Department of Civil Right. Glozier's background includes nearly two decades of working in disability rights with organizations such as Adapt, Not Dead Yet, and the Wisconsin Board for People with Developmental Disabilities.

Congress originally declared the first week of October as "National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week" in 1945. Later, in 1962, the observance dropped the word "physically" to acknowledge that not all disabilities are physical.

Federal legislature expanded the observance to a month in 1988 and officially changed the name to National Disability Employment Awareness Month.

The program starts at noon; participants may get lunch on their own from 11:30 a.m. to noon.

"Caregiving and the Sandwich Generation" is scheduled for 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Nov. 5 at Army Community Service (ACS), building 2111.

According to the AARP, the "sandwich generation" is traditionally defined as those who have a living parent and are either raising a child under age 18 or supporting an adult child.

This class will offer caregivers helpful information and tips. Topics include changing roles and responsibilities, coping with stress, communication challenges, finding support and services, and the importance of self-care.

ACS events are open to military members, retirees, civilian employees, registered Fort McCoy volunteers, and family members.

Registration is required by Oct. 29. Call 608-388-2412.

Meet at McCoy Mingle 1st Wednesday every month

McCoy Mingle, a chance to socialize with other Fort McCoy community members, is held 4-5 p.m. the first Wednesday of each month at McCoy's Community Center, building 1571.

Food and drink specials will be available. The event is open to the entire Fort McCoy community.

Upcoming dates include Nov. 7 and Dec. 5.

Nominations open for Military Child of the Year

Nominations are open for the 2019 Military Child of the Year.

The annual awards recognize outstanding children, ages 13 to 18, for their scholarship, volunteerism, leadership, extracurricular involvement, and other criteria while facing the challenges of military family life.

All seven Military Child of the Year Award recipients will be flown with a parent or guardian to Washington, D.C., to be recognized at the April 2019 gala, during which senior leaders of each branch of service will present the awards. They also will receive $10,000 each, a laptop computer, and other donated gifts.

Anyone may nominate a child for the award. Children must be legal military dependents; status will confirmed by military ID or DEERS enrollment form.

Nominations will be accepted through Dec. 5. For more information about eligibility requirements or to nominate a military child, visit www.militarychildoftheyear.org.
