The first doses of the COVID-19 vaccine have yet to arrive at Fort Riley. No matter when they get here, the team from Fort Riley's Irwin Army Community Hospital is ready. Dec. 15, the medical professionals from IACH completed their second rehearsal of the process they plan to implement. This second event was a full dress rehearsal with needles, vials of fluid to simulate the vaccine and every stage in the process manned and practiced.

With the news that a vaccine will soon arrive at Fort Riley, Installation leaders spent some time talking about how the process will work to administer vaccines. Also covered were some of the facilities that will be open for holiday activities, the rules for post-travel exposure mitigation and on-post visitation. Leaders also wished the Fort Riley family happy holidays and encouraged them to get out and see the lights.
