fficers of 10th Marines came together Dec. 7 at the Paradise Point Officers Club to pay homage to St. Barbara, the patroness saint of the artillerymen.

Maj. Gen. John F. Sattler, Commanding General, 2d Marine Division, was there accompanied by his wife Ginny, and were both the guests of honor for the evening.

According to history, the tra-ditions of St. Barbara dates back to 300 A.D. when her father a wealthy heathen named Dios-corus, locked her up to protect her from the outside world, fearful that due to her beauty and taken away from him.

While her father was away she learned the teachings of Christianity and accepted it as her belief. Her father upon his return was angered by her ne found beliefs and dragged her front of the perfect of the province, who sentenced her to death by beheading but not before being tortured.

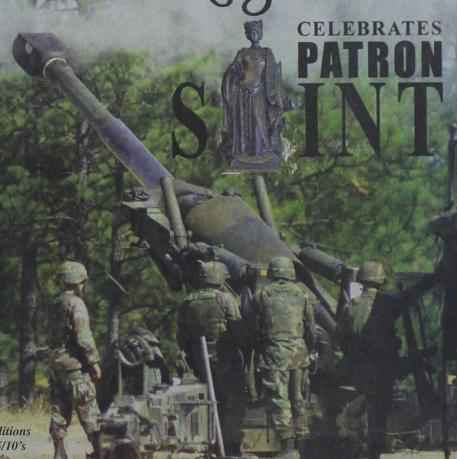

Her father carried out the death sentence and on his way home was struck and killed by

With the appearance of gun-powder in the Western World, St. Barbara was invoked to aid against accidents resulting from explosions, as some of the earlier artillery pieces blew up instead of firing their projectile, St. Barbara became the patroness of Approximately 300 officers and their spouses turned up to celebrate St. Barbara's Day which included dinner, followed by rehearsed skits by 10th Marines officer's which poked fun at themselves and others but which was all in the name of fun.

It's quite challenging to say good-bye after 10 years. I am excited about the opportunities that await me in Greenville, but it sure isn't easy leav-

In July 1991, a young and energetic chamber executive came here with some bright ideas and maybe a few ide-alistic tendencies. Having worked with the Air Force while with the Myrtle Beach Chamber in the 80s, I thought I had all sorts of knowledge about deal-in fact, some even wanted me to fail. After all, I was a girl in a man's world. I'll never forget Brig. Gen. Mike Downs, who invited me out to the base in my first weeks on the job, spent a day with me personally and got me started on what would end up as a pretty significant amount of knowledge about the Marine Corps. Thanks to leaders like Downs and other active-duty Marines like Col. John Kopka, I was destined to succeed in learning about the Marine Corps (and then there was Master Chief Marty Goldman, who made certain that I learned a thing or two about the Navy as well!).

And now, well, I'm honored beyond words to have worked with our nation's finest warriors. The esprit de corps of the United States Marine Corps is unmatched, and I will take my patriotism with me wherever I go. I'm espe-cially proud that my child has spent the first decade of her life here and has that same sense of patriotism. This "village" has made a positive and significant mark on the raising of my child.

Ten years is a long time; a lot of water under the bridge, a lot of challenges met, a few failures along the way and memories that will last me a lifetime. This chamber has indeed come a long way, but not just because of me, because of dynamic volunteer leadership and people working together to make good things happen. Anybody who knows me knows that I

The United States is engaged in conflict. So far only relatively small numbers of Marines from Marine Expeditionary Force Headquarters Group have been deployed as a direct result of that conflict.

However, over the next several months that may change. To ensure that we are ready to go when called, we continue to train our Marines in war-fighting skills

But there is another aspect of readiness that leaders at every level need to emphasize. That aspect is personal and family readiness.

On the personal side all Marines and Sailors need to have a plan for how they will take care of paying bills, vehicle storage, legal matters and other miscellaneous administrative and financial affairs.

With regard to family matters, Marines and Sailors must have a plan for ensuring that spouses and children have adequate funds for housing and food, knowledge how to receive medical care, instructions on what to do in case of emergency and a power of attorney to take care of legal mat-

AFGHANISTAN – The thunderous thumping of Marine CH-53E Super Stallion helicopters ripped through the cold, black desert night signaling the start of Operation Swift Freedom as the 15th Marine Expeditionary Unit (Special Operations Capable) seized a forward operating base in southern Afghanistan Nov. 25.

Marines with Charlie Company, Battalion Landing Team 1/1, 15th MEU (SOC), charged down the helicopter ramps through clouds of dust and into the darkness sweeping across vast areas of deep sand, clearing buildings and establishing a secure airstrip for hundreds of follow-on forces who arrived before dawn.

The airstrip was setup less than an hour after the first helicopter stirred up the Afghan sand. Lights were added to the runway allowing KC-130 aircraft filled with Alpha Co. Marines and tactical vehicles to land here. Planes and helicopters continued the inflow of troops and gear non-stop through the night and early morning.

"It was exciting seeing the Marines going into action," 1st Sgt. Fascetti said. "You know there is a possibility that there could be enemy forces out there."

The raid force flew several hundred miles directly from USS Peleliu to the desert strip aboard six Super Stallions. The long flight required tricky night-time aerial refueling with the KC-130 Hercules aerial refueling and transport aircraft.

Hundreds of hours of planning, rehearsals and briefs preceded the mission back aboard Peleliu in the North Arabian Sea. Terrain models were built. The raid force kept a special open for business.

The research center, named after 29th Commandant of the Marine Corps, Gen. Gray, officially opened its doors May 6, 1993. At 5 p.m. Nov. 15, the gold letters naming the research center were revealed.

Gray established the Marine Corps University to ensure that professional military education of Marine leaders would help prepare them for future assignments. Realizing that a first-rate research facility with an academic library, archival and conference support to students, faculty and staff was essential to the university, Gray personally led the effort to fund the construction and staffing of the Marine Corps Research Center.

Kerry Strong, director of the center's archives, said that was what led her to Quantico. "The research center was the reason I came here," said Strong, who has been with the center since February of 1990. "We have everything here to support the Marine Corps in PME and lessons learned. I consider the research center a weapon of learning that we can aim at the enemy."

that we can aim at the enemy."

In his welcoming remarks to the guest of honor, Brig. Gen. Leif Hendrickson, Marine Corps University president, said that Gen. Gray should be considered the father of the research center and that the dedication is just a small token of appreciation for his work. Gen. James L. Jones, the current commandant, agreed.

"As Frederick the Great observed, 'War is not an affair of chance alone. A great deal of knowledge, study and meditation is necessary to conduct it well," said Jones to the dozens of guests. "General Gray realized the importance of educating our Marines. He also recognized the need for a world-class facility that serves as an educational hub through which everything flows. Thanks to our twenty-ninth commandant, professional education is a reality for all Marines, and will undoubtedly allow us to outfight and outsmart all of our future enemies."

As Gray addressed the crowd, many of whom were close personal friends and family, he made it a point to say that the university and the research center were musts for fighting the battles of the Corps future.

"This dedication is a great personal honor and a thrill, but I agreed to do this only because I know those honors belong to all of those Marines that I was able to serve with," said Gray. "It's a great day to be an American, a great day to be a Marine

... Let's go forward, and remember that, for the war we're in today, we have to be smarter and quicker than the other guy. We're going to have to make great use of this university and others like it."

After the ceremony, a reception was held so Gray could meet and greet the many friends and guests there to show their respect.

As one astounded guest noticed, there were centuries of Marine Corps history, wisdom and knowledge under one roof, there to honor a man who understands education and knowledge are the keys to victory and success.

Once again, Jones agreed.

"A driving factor for all Marines is education," said Jones.
"People come into the Marine Corps, whether it's for four years or thirty, and by the time they leave our ranks, they're better than when they come in. Education does that. As the twenty-ninth commandant, General Gray was one of the key motivators for getting us into the business of education and we felt very strongly that this was the right thing to do – recognizing his tremendous contribution to our Corps in a fitting way."

positive identification of their positions," he said. The FACs signal from the ground until the pilots see their position, which is aided with a latitude and longitude coordinate. Once the pilot has a positive ID of the FAC, the FAC will use the pilot as his 'eyes' above the battlefield.

Raible said a conversation might go something like this:

FAC: "Do you see the highway running east to west, three miles south of my position?"

Pilot: "Yes, I have 'eyes on."

FAC: "Are there any vehicles headed my way from the west?"

Pilot: "Roger, I see three vehicles moving your way from west to east."

The FAC then processes the information he

The FAC then processes the information he receives from the pilot and forwards it to 'high-er command' to wait for the possible 'go ahead' to destroy the target.

The FAC gathers information on enemy convoys, positions and strengths through a variety of intelligence resources, said Raible.

A sequence very similar to this took place on Capt. Nathan 'Yank' Berryman's first mission. Berryman, a Cherry Point Harrier pilot, was flying in the same division(a four airplane formation) as Raible.

"That's how I became the first VMA-223 pilot to drop a bomb in combat since 1969," said Berryman. Berryman's parent squadron, Marine Attack Squadron-223, attached six Harriers and nine pilots to HMM-365, giving the MEU commander a robust fixed-wing combat asset.

"It was near the end of a six-hour mission.
We had twenty minutes left 'on station,'" said Berryman. "I was very surprised to hear the FAC clear us 'weapons-free' on those targets.'

Before the Harriers attacked, the targets were cleared by two F-14D Tomcats using their thermal-imaging equipment to identify the target.

"A bomb can kill a lot of people," said Raible, "so as an artack guy, you have to have a 'warm and fuzzy' that they are the enemy."

That 'warm and fuzzy' was given by the Tomcat's ability to magnify the image of the target, which confirmed that it was in fact an enemy target.

At this point Berryman became concerned that the sun would come up before they could drop their ordnance. If this happened, the pilots would have had to fly without their night vision goggles, thus making it much harder to get a 'visual' on their target in the morning fog.

"The F-14s each made a pass destroying two of the vehicles in the convoy," said Berryman. "We coordinated with them so they could 'laze' [laser designate for guided bombs] the targets."

The Harriers ran bombing runs on the tar-

The Harriers ran bombing runs on the targets, separated by time, to give the Tomcat crew a chance to shift to the next target. This helped ensure multiple bombs wouldn't be dropped on an already destroyed target.

Berryman said that when he made his pass and released his bomb it was just as he had rehearsed so many times before.

Raible is also very serious about his job, and he and his fellow Harrier pilots have no second thoughts or reservations about performing it, he said.

Berryman said that performing these missions makes the pilots feel very proud, "... proud that the Marine Corps can provide this kind of support hundreds of miles from the ship."

Berryman said his ability to drop bombs on target begins long before he gets into the cockpit. He said what makes it possible is "a lot of

He said what makes it possible is "a lot of training and hard work by the mechanics that have our birds ready to go, by the ordnance shops who load the ordnance and by the Marines and Sailors who work the flight deck the entire night."

"We load bombs, run fuses and make sure everything is 'good to go,'" said Cpl. John Cascamisi, an ordnance technician from Exeter, N.H. The Marine added that he and his Marines do extensive checks on the weapons systems before the pilots leave the deck.

Cascamisi explained in detail one of the most important systems, the release mechanism. When the hand of the pilot in the cockpit activates the release, an electric impulse flows to an explosive fuse called a 'CAD.' The 'CAD' sends a blast through a series of gas tubes, which pushes the bomb away from the aircraft.

"Otherwise, given the speed of flight, the bomb would just get carried back into the plane," said Lance Cpl. Corey M. McGann, ordnance technician and coincidentally, also a New Hampshire native.

McGann said no words could express the rush he felt the first time he saw one of his 'birds' fully loaded.

Describing his first time loading ordnance with his squadron, McGann said, "Guys like Cpl. Cascamisi ... you could tell they had experience and knew what to expect."

"But it feels good to see a 'bird' come back empty knowing that I did my job," said McGann.

Some of the reasons the Harriers are able to continue to fly are the mechanics that do the repairs and constantly check and recheck the engine and mechanical components.

"The operations tempo is up," said Staff Sgt.

"The operations tempo is up," said Staff Sgt.Vincent F. Young. "But the longer that they are flown, the better they seem to perform." The New York Marine added that just because the "birds" are performing better doesn't mean they are inspected less frequently. On the contrary, high "ops tempo" means greater opportunity for wear and the harder the Marines must work to keep their safety record high.

Young spoke on behalf of many Marines when he stated, "Things have kicked up a notch, but we're doing nothing different. We train for war everyday."

"I will ensure the aircraft are safe so they can get where they need to go to put bomb on target," said Young.

The Harrier pilots of the 26th MEU (SOC) have truly operated at the "tip of the spear" and have done so much farther inland than MEU Marines traditionally operate; however, for the pilots and support crews alike, this is a team effort whose tangible results on the battlefield are the rich reward.

GOODBYE from 2A

I could write pages and pages about programs and partnerships, but what is most important to communicate through these words is the enthusiasm I feel for what this chamber has accomplished in the last ten years. And even greater enthusiasm there should be for what it can accomplish in the next ten years. This organization doesn't have to miss a beat. Its foundation is built on solid programs and respected leadership. Hats off to the board chairmen who have served with me: George Collins, Dr. Ron Lingle, Eddie Rose, Don Williamson, Rob Jones (who has since relocated to Greenville and will be on my board there!), Harry Brown, Sheila Pierce, Clyde Hurst, Ty Hart, Gary Levitch and Mike Alford.

With Alford finishing out his year as chairman and Lingle coming on board as the 2002 chairman, the volunteer leadership will be outstanding. And internally, Mona Padrick is well equipped with knowledge and experience to be at the helm of this ship as its interim president. She is backed up by a very dedicated and talented staff: Judy, Megan, Jennifer, Donna, Ginny and last but not least, Nicole (my right arm without whom I would never have made it!). I leave knowing that all is well.

Folks, please continue your commitment to the Partnerships in Progress. Please continue to commit and work toward the accomplishment of every goal in that plan – from new chamber quarters to image development to governmental affairs to workforce development. My sincerest wish is that you keep working together, that you reinforce any bridges that may be shaky right now and that you make this community all that it can be. This is truly one of the greatest places on earth – the vision to make Jacksonville•Onslow the premier place to live, work and raise a family can come true.

Keep your shoulders to the wheel and always know that this lady is honored to have had the life enriching opportunity to be a part of this community's growth for a decade. I hope I made a difference, because Jacksonville and Onslow County – you sure made a difference to me. God bless.

Sartelle is the former president of the Jacksonville*Onslow County Chamber of Commerce and the drive behind Partnership in Progress. She is now the president of the Greenville-Pitt County Chamber of Commerce. Reprinted with permission from Jacksonville*Onslow Chamber Voice.

SS BATAAN - His commands echoed off the steel bulkheads. More than 15 Marines assigned to Weapons Company, 3d Battalion, "Fightin" 6th Marines, are learning a new "discipline" while deployed aboard USS Bataan LHD-5 in the Arabian Sea.

Staff Sgt. Larry J. Harrington of Gastonia, N.C., and Sgt. Carlos R. Gonzales of Denver, are passing on to machine gunner. "Additionally, they their Marines the finer points of the become proficient with bayonet fighting."

Marine Corps' new martial arts pro-gram. "This [martial arts program] incorporates the old close-combat training and martial and martial arts techniques vidual Marines' fighting skills, said Gonzales.

Today's Marines commonly involved in mili-ant evacuations, where deadly force may not be authorized. Marines might be forced to make split-second decisions regarding the escalation of force and must understand both the lethal and non-lethal results of their actions.

"We're going back to the basics," said Harrington. "This is a discipline. We're not just teaching Marines how to go out and beat people up.

The instructors provide their pupils the proper tactics, techniques and procedures for close combat. During the program, students are familiarized with the fundamentals of close combat, strikes, blocks, throws, target and pressure point areas of the body, and a defensive posture - "the warrior stance.

Follow-on training will give the non-lethal weapons, such as knives and batons and their employment. They will also learn several chokes, holds and ground fighting moves as well as "pain compliance" measures like the wristlock takedown – a restraint maneuver. He said that this training allows younger Marines that might not have ever been in a fight before to get more physical.

"We also teach the use of weapons of opportunity, such as our Kevlar helmets and the E-tool," said Gonzales, a heavy

"We have to Sgt. Carlos R. Gonzales work around our Heavy Machine Gunner Navy shipmates and 3d Bn, 6th Marines other commitments," he said. "It's very tary operations other than war, such as intense. We key on fundamentals by using repetition drills," said Gonzales.

The new martial arts program is 1ess than three years old and has five skill levels: tan, gray, green, brown and black. After completing 30 hours of entry-level instruction and passing a written exam, the graduates are awarded the tan belt. According to Harrington, there are less than five sixth degree black belts in the Marine Corps.

"It's a confidence builder," said Lance Cpl. Joseph R. Justice of Shirley, Mass. The 81 mm mortarman worked up a sweat during an early morning session recently. "This is great conditioning.

Lance Cpl. Marlon R. Jones of Jacksonville, admitted that the martial arts training has been the hardest physical training that he has endured yet. "Even after a few lessons, I think I can take care Leathernecks the knowledge of lethal and of myself in a fight now," he said.

Saint Barbara

the patron saint of artillery

Her legend is celebrated each year by artillerymen of 10th Marines ccording to legend, St. Barbara was the extremely beautiful daughter of a wealthy heathen named Dioscorus, who lived near Nicomedia in Asia Minor. Because of her singular beauty and fearful that she be demanded in marriage and taken away from him, he jealously shut her up in a tower to protect her from the outside world.

Shortly before embarking on a journey, he commissioned a sumptuous bathhouse to be built for her, approving the design before he departed. Barbara had heard of the teachings of Christ and while her contemplation. for From the windows surrounding countryside and mar- from explosions veled at the growing things; the trees, animals and the people. She decided that all these must be part of a master plan and that the idols of wood and stone worshiped by her parents must be condemned as false. Gradually she came to accept the Christian faith.

As her belief became firm, she directed that the builders redesign the bathhouse her father had planned, adding another window so that the three windows might symbolize the Holy Trinity.

When her father returned, he was enraged at the changes and infuriated when Barbara acknowledged that she was a Christian. He dragged her before the perfect of the province, who decreed that she be tortured and put to death by beheading. Dioscorus himself carried out the death sentence. On his way home he was struck by lightening and his body consumed.

St. Barbara lived and died about the year 300 A.D. She was venerated as early as the seventh century. The legend of the lightning bolt which struck down her persecutor caused her to be regarded as the patron saint in time of danger from thun-derstorms, fires and sudden death.

When gunpowder made its appearance in the Western world, St. Barbara was invoked for aid against accidents resulting from explosions – since some of the earlier artillery pieces often blew up instead of firing their projectile, St. Barbara became the patroness of the artillerymen. St. Barbara is usually represented stand_ ing by a tower with Christ and while her father was gone She was invoked three windows, carrying the palm of a spent much time is against Often, too, she holds From the windows of her tower she looked out upon the accidents resulting a chalice and a sacramental wafer and sometimes cannear her. In the pres-

The Order of St. Barbara is an honorary military society of the United States Field Artillery. Both U.S. Marine and Army field artillery, along with their military and civilian supporters, are eligible for membership. The order is managed by the U.S. Field Artillery Association and two levels of recognition exist. The most distinguished level is the Ancient Order of St. Barbara and those who are selected for this honor have achieved long-term, exceptional service to the field artillery surpassing even their brethren in the Honorable Order of St. Barbara. The order links field artillerymen of the past and present in a brotherhood of professionalism, selfless service and sacrifice symbolized by St.

Each year, artillerymen around the world honor the patron saint of artillery, St. Barbara. 10th Marines give special recognition by coming together for an annual celebration to give thanks for her protection.

In an interview with Col. James A. Pace, commanding officer of 10th Marines, explained the reasons his unit honors the saint.

Q. What does St. Barbara mean to 10th Marines?

A. We are still in a dangerous business. Not to the extent of the ancient artillery pieces. She has protected us throughout the centuries, and we still have her watch over us and keep us safe

Q. Is the Marine Corps the only service that celebrates this occasion?

A. No. The Army artillerymen also believe in her. There is an international flavor to Saint Barbara that has been traced back to Napoleon's age

Q. When did 10th Marines start the tradition of recognizing the patron saint?

A. There is no real-hard documentation that shows when we first recognized her. 10th Marines observed the patron saint back to our foundation when the regiment was formed and redesignated Jan. 15, 1918.

Today, we are the oldest artillery regiment in the Corps.

Q. What are some of the successes of 10th Marines of providing fire support throughout the

A. To name a few: Southern Pacific, Guadalcanal, Tinian, Okinawa and more recently, Desert Shield and Desert Storm. Today we provide artillery support to three infantry regiments here in 2d Marine Division.

Q. How does 10th Marines celebrate this spe-

A. Primarily we have two formal celebra-tions. In both the officer and Staff NCO (staff noncommissioned officer) celebrations we go through the story of the patron saint and our history. The guest of honors at the officer ceremony were Col. Martin D. Julian, who was the former regimental commander from July 1978 to 1980, and Brig. Gen. Webber, who is the CG of Twentynine Palms, (Calif.).

Q. What is the "Order of Saint Barbara?

A. Essentially, it is recognition of artillerymen, and on some occasions not artillerymen, who have made a significant contribution to artillery over the years. They receive a certificate and a medallion. During the ceremonies ten to twelve people are awarded. Also, we honor wives who have provided service to artillery and who exemplify the spirit of sacrifice and devotion of Molly Pitchard.'

Q. What kind of Marine is today's artillery-

A. He is dedicated, smart, hardworking and understands his importance in supporting maneuvers. I tell everybody in the regiment our primary mission is to provide continuous fires in support of this division.

Q. What is your vision for the artilleryman in the 21st Century?

A. There has been significant changes in artillery since I have been in, almost 25 years. Our artillery today is more lethal than it has ever been. We have computerized our firing computations, and we are on the leading edge of technology in our digital fire support networks. The artillerymen of the 21st Century will be on the cutting edge of technology and will provide even more lethal fire support to the maneuver.

A reenlistment ceremony for two reservists was held recently in front of the John A. Lejeune Memorial Statue.

Sgt. Kevin Goings, a supply sergeant with II Marine Expeditionary Force Augmentation Element, and Cpl. Gilles Pruneau, a supplyman with the 2d Longshoreman Platoon in Wilmington, swore to defend the Constitution of the United States while serving in the Marine Corps Reserves.

"Having the ceremony at the traffic circle (in front of John A. Lejeune Hall here) is really neat because everyone who drives by can see what is going on," said Goings, a native of Charlotte.

The ceremony came about after Master Sgt. Sterling Stokes, a prior service recruiter, decided the statue was representational of the Corps.

"I just thought it would be a special place to welcome back Goings and Pruneau," explained Stokes, a 22-year servant of the Corps. Goings became a Devil Dog in May 1984 because he wanted to challenge his mental and physical limits.

"I never thought I was going to be able to handle the physical training or the hard work or the long hours while I was in the Corps," said Goings, "but I did, and I thank the Marines for that."

Pruneau admitted that he also joined the organization which has boasted such legends as Lt. Gen. Lewis B. "Chesty" Puller because he wanted to put his fortitude to the test.

"When I first came in in 1993, I wanted to be a grunt, but I ended up being a TOW gunner," stated Pruneau, of Rockville, Md.

A TOW gunner is skilled in the uses and capabilities of the Tube Launched, Optically Tracked, Wire Guided (TOW) Missile Weapon System.

"I got out of the Marines in 1997, and "I got out of the Marines in 1997, and now at the end of my Inactive Reserve commitment, I am reenlisting into the Reserves," said Pruneau. "I missed the people and the way of life you can only find in the Corps, but I didn't want to go active-duty again because I have a good job in the civilian world.

"Another factor for joining is what is going on in the world. I want to help out my fellow Marines who are fighting overseas," stated Pruneau. "I want to stay in the Marines until they tell me I can't do it anymore."

It's time once again for another mini truckload sale in Tarawa Terrace Housing Area Monday. The sale is scheduled for Monday in the Chapel Parking lot from 11 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. or dark. Since there aren't enough lights in the parking lot for us to see to clean up, we have to close down a bit early so we can get the remainder of the products loaded back on the truck and spruce up the parking lot.

contingency plan in case of foul weather. I think rain is probably the only thing we really have to worry about right now. I sent out an e-mail survey out and it was almost unanimous in voting to hold the sale at the commissary on the sidewalk. So, in case of rain, just keep in mind that the location will change to the main store. I think we will probably use this same contingency plan for all future mini sales in the housing area unless the foul weather is snow or hurricanes, in which case we will have to make a decision on a case-by-case basis.

If you would like to know what is going to be on the sale and about all future sales and events, just send me an e-mail at ccalcso@east.deca.mil and ask to be added on to my group listing. You can also leave your e-mail address with any manager at the commissary and they will ensure that your name gets added.

Don't forget about the Scholarships for Military Children program currently going on. The applications are available at the commissary or by going on line to www.commissaries.com. The deadline for these applications is Feb. 5. All applications must be turned in to the commissary prior to that date.

If you are planning any parties or need a very inexpensive gift to give to a friend or neighbor, keep the commissary in mind. With just a couple days notice, we can have large quantities of product available for you for your parties or a beautiful fruit basket for a friend. These fruit baskets are great gifts to take to a friend in the hospital as well. We also have a Christmas gift section set up in the corner of the store by the ice cream section with many inexpensive choices which range from bath and beauty items to candy or toys. Be sure and check out all the selections we have available for you before you shop anywhere else. Remember, the commissary sells all merchandise at cost which saves you big bucks in the long run. The average savings has now risen to over 30 percent nation wide.

GREENE JR.

The Navy's Lifelines Services Network has set up a Web site where messages to service members can be posted and read.

The online "To: Any Service Member" program was created as an alternative to the annual "Any Service Member" and "Operation Dear Abby" postal programs that have forwarded Christmas greetings to military service members. Those programs have been halted because of the anthrax threat.

The online program can be reached at www.lifelines2000.org or www.anyservicemember.Navy.mil.

Because of safety concerns and the anthrax score, the military is not issuing APO and FPO addresses for Operation Enduring Freedom. However, the Department of Defense and the Pentagon have issued other suggestions for showing support for our troops. Suggested tips are: do a good deed in a service member's name, or 'volunteer in your community to replace someone who was called up for active-duty; visit VA hospitals and nursing homes; coach a children's sports team; feed the homeless or volunteer for other community outreach programs; reach out to those families who have loved one deployed overseas; or donate to military relief societies and assistance funds for victims of the Sept. 11 attack on the Pentagon.

For more information, access the DoD Web site at www.defenselink.mil.

Sept. 18-22, 2002, the Marine Corps Mustang Association, Inc., will be having their reunion in Daytona Beach, Fla. For further information, contact Bill Max, P.O. Box 1314, Delran, NJ 08075, 1-800-312-USMC or e-mail topmustang@aol.com.

The herb burdock root claims to treat skin conditions, but it may do more damage than good

Dear Dietitian,

My brother is a health food fanatic, and has recently begun taking a lot of herbs. He is taking one for his skin, as he says it helps prevent acne. It's called burdock root, and I just wondered how safe it is. I have heard some herbs are dangerous.

Thanks, N. M.

N. M.

Dear N.M,

I'm glad you feel that some herbs are dangerous, because there are some that can do some damage. Burdock or burdock root is the dried first-year root of a plant called the "great burdock" or "common burdock." The plant was originally brought from Europe to the United States. It is a biennial herb with burs that get stuck in clothing or animal fur and may grow to a height of nine feet or more.

Herbalists recommend burdock mostly as a "blood purifier," but it has also been used to treat a lot of skin condition acne. Herbalists also say it has a diuretic quality to these claims have been substantiated by clinical triannical studies of the root have not shown any active in might give it these so called "purifying" or "diure of does, however, contain a large amount of carbon sucrose (sugar).

Of major concern is that commercial samples of do to also have a large amount of belladonna (otherwish deadly nightshade) in them. The roots of the two places lar, and can get mixed up wh Dulharvested. Remember that thus it yeontrol on herbs, so ident stic cessing, dosage, and package regulated. There have been as not of poisoning from drinking row which have now been trace amounts of belladonna four the tea mixture.

No solid evidence exists that shows burdock jess therapeutic activity. In fact, in view of the potential ation with belladonna and the lack of regulation coning and certification of a pure product, it would be less it.

Snyder's selection was based off his maturity, leadership, proficiency and soldierly virtue.

"Staff Sergeant Snyder is an outstanding leader who gets the job done. He inspires others to give a maximum effort by his own actions and personal example." said Snyder's platoon sergeant, Gunnery Sgt. Timothy Hatcher.

What is truly amazing is that he was selected as Team Leader of the Year as a sergeant, a Force Reconnaissance Team Leader is ordinarily a seasoned staff sergeant.

Snyder's commanding officer, Maj. Robert E. McCarthy, echoed Hatcher's remarks. "Staff Sergeant Snyder is the epitome of a Force mestic Disturbance (PG-13), now playing on base, is a thriller filmed at various Wilmington and surrounding area locations, including Southport. However, story transports the town of Southport to a Maryland seaside shore. Domestic Disturbance is the story of a divorced father who discovers that his son's new stepfather is not what he made himself out to be. Soon he embarks on a mission to keep his son safe.

John Travolta (Swordfish) stars as Frank Morrison, a boat builder who no longer lives with his ex-wife Susan, played by Teri Polo (Meet the Parents and their son Danny, played by Matt O'Leary. Susan and Danny now live ith Susan's new husband, played by Vince Vaughn (The Cell).

The film received notoriety when, while on location filming, Buscemi was stabbed in the face and neck during fight with locals at a downtown Wilmington bar. Vaughn and screenwriter Scott Rosenberg were arrested in the scuffle, fined and released.

FROM HELL

From Hell (R), now playing at New River, is the latest attempt to tell the story of the legendary serial killer "Jack the Ripper." This adaptation is based on the acclaimed novel Hell, by Alan Moore and Eddie Campbell, about the hunt for Jack the Ripper. It puts an intense psychological spin on the horrific legend and unravels a chilling, alleged conspiracy involving the highest powers in England. Jack the Ripper committed five heinous, ritualistic murders during a tenweek span in London in the fall of 1888, creating a frenzied atmosphere of gossip, rumor and terror. He was never caught. Johnny Depp (Blow, Sleepy Hollow) stars as Scotland Yard Inspector Frederick Abberline who investigates the murders within the Whitechapel district. He is aided in his troubled investigation by the imposing and cynical Sgt. Godley, played by Robbie Coltrane (Frogs for Snakes).

Also assisting the Inspector is the renowned Sir William Gull, a physician to the royal family, played by Ian Holm (Bless the Child). Heather Graham (Boogie Nights) plays Mary Kelly, a prostitute in danger of falling victim to the Ripper's knife and the inspector's seductive appeal Directors Albert and Allen Hughes, Behind Enemy Lines (PG-13), now playing in Jacksonville, is a very realisaction war drama.

Owen Wilson (Zoolander) stars as the cocky Lt. Chris Burnett, a top naval aviator who is frustrated that politics have kept him from what he does best flying F/A-18 Superhornet jets into combat and kicking the enemy's butt in Bosnia. "We are watching, not fighting," he tells Admiral Reigert, his commanding officer, played by Gene Hackman (Crimson Tide, Heist). When Burnett, during a routine reconnaissance mission, photographs something no one was meant to see, he is shot down. He struggles to survive the relentless pursuit of a ruthless secret police enforcer, a deadly tracker and countless hostile troops. With time running out, Reigert makes the wrenching decision to go against the rules and orders a desperate rescue mission.

Zorro) as Admiral Piquet, Olek Krupa (Thirteen Days) as the Serb para-military leader and Gabriel Macht (American Outlaws) as Burnett's pilot friend.

First-time feature director John Moore, a veteran of commercials, makes an impressive debut with this intense, tion packed movie. With producer John Davis, he tried to make a new kind of war movie that mixes action, state-of-the-art special effects, politics and heart. The Department of Defense granted the filmmakers the rare opportunity to film aboard two actual aircraft carriers: U.S.S. Constitution and U.S.S. Carl Vinson.

The writers of this movie might have modeled their script after the real-life story of Air Force Capt. Scott O'Grady, who was shot down in Bosnia six years ago and survived extreme hardship for days before being rescued.

tone Street Chess Club returns

Cherry plots her strategy against current Chess Club champion William Bradley. Cherry, ing of 940, is is trying to close in on Bradley's rating of 965.

Maj. Gregory K. Tesch GLOBE Contributor

Competition, respect, development - these are words often associated with sports. However, they apply equally well to the "sport" of chess. An even match, the thrill of expectation - does your opponent see the move, the developing plan? Oh, no! You didn't see that knight. Checkmate? How could this be? A good game ("Where DID that knight come from? My opponent's better than I thought."), a handshake and the club time is over. Time to go back to regular classes ("How could I miss that knight? I won't make THAT mistake again").

Although the Knights of Stone Street Chess Club went through the same shuffle of members that all Stone Street Elementary School clubs go through at the second quarter, some students were able to return and build upon what they had learned in the first quarter. These returning "veterans" helped the new students review the United States Chess Federation (USCF) rules, the proper names for all of the pieces, "algebraic notation" (the shorthand used to record the moves in chess) and ratings. Because of their help, the club was able to progress to tournament play more quickly this quarter. William Bradley continues his reign as champion with a rating of 965, but he is facing serious competition from some of the Tyros ("novice gladiators"): Sammie Cherry, one of two girls who joined the club this quarter – she has a rating of 940 – and Jack McKeon – he has a rating of 930. Nick Milburn and Joseph Ratté, two Chess Club veterans, contribute to the pressure on the champion with ratings of 925 each.

The last "club day" for this quarter is Friday, but the clubs will start again next quarter - provided that Stone Street parents volunteer to lead them. The club choices are as follows: for kindergarten through - second grade, Blocks & Puzzles, Storytelling, Horseback, Youth Center, Gymnastics, Sewing, Bowling, Cooking & Crafts, Arts & Crafts, Spanish, Board Games, Piano, Math Games, Computers, Girls Scouts and Sports Club; for third through fifth grade, Arts & Crafts, Yearbook, Youth Center, Girl Scouts, Bowling, Gymnastics, Gotta Have Fun, Library Jingo, Jump Rope, Legos, Piano, Woodworking, Scrapbook, Horseback, Computers and Who Wants to be a Millionaire.

By the way, without a new leader next quarter, the Chess Club will not be able to meet - the Knights of Stone Street will have to join the Knights of King Arthur's Round Table and become the stuff of legend and myth. If you are interested in volunteering for any of the above, please contact Nann Orr at 451-2431. Now, where ARE those Knights?

Student council betters community New Bridge Middle School 'decks the halls' of USO

Sgt. Sharon Allen

JACKSONVILLE - The student council at New Bridge Middle School has taken the Jacksonville United Service Organization (USO) on as a pet project. Recently, they headed down to the historical building to add some Christmas cheer by decorating it.

"This is our fourth year coming down to the USO to help in different ways, and our second year decorating," said Kathy Morgan, a seventh grade English teacher at the school. "We asked what we could do to help out, and this was one way to make a difference.

Morgan said that the middle school students actively find ways to make a difference within the local community by helping with various programs, such as Toys for Tots, Christmas Cheer and sponsoring eight children this year for Christmas. The USO happens to be an organization that sparked the interest of the student council. Many of the children have parents serving in the military, so they have a keen interest in the USO because it is the "home away from home" for service members.

"I think the children realize the whole idea of Christmas is not only receiving, but to give,' added Morgan. "By giving to the community, the children demonstrate their wish to give and put those feelings into action.'

The decorating only took the children about 45 minutes, but they worked in teams and socialized as they worked. Some students were in such a holiday spirit that they also decorated themselves. By the time they had finished, the doorways, stage, large hall and other rooms were all filled with holiday motifs. The children invented creative ways to use traditional decorations to add holiday spirit.

"I want to thank the students, Kathy Morgan and John Sweeney (seventh grade social studies teacher) for all their support and hard work," said retired Sgt. Maj. Joe Houle, Jacksonville USO interim executive director. "We certainly appreciate all they have done for us and their continued support.

The USO gave each student a candy cane and military collector cards. The cards are similar to baseball cards and were made after Sept. 11 for Operation Enduring Freedom.

New Bridge Middle School student council members said they look forward to returning to the USO in the future to find new ways to support their local military community.

Scouts honor veterans Pack 90, Troop 490 thank those who made ultimate sacrifice

Maj. Gregory K. Tesch

"Help Win the War" was the slogan of the Boy Scouts of America in 1917 when America entered "The Great when America entered "The Great War," World War I. And help they did: selling Liberty Loan bonds and war savings stamps, the Scouts raised more than $200 million, distributed more than 300 and contributed to food and fuel conservation, amongst other things.

With this help, at the eleventh hour, on the eleventh day, of the eleventh month, WWI, also known as the "war to end all wars," came to a close in 1918, with a list of more than 8.5 million men killed in action. Despite its cost, it didn't "end all wars," but it did give us a day to pause, to reflect and to remember the sacrifices of our heroes: the service members who have given their lives in the cause of freedom so that we may partake of the privileges that we enjoy today.

So on a warm Sunday, the eleventh of November, with a gentle breeze lightly lifting the flags and tugging at our clothes, Maj. Gen. John F. Sattler, Commanding General, 2d Marine Division, reminded the audience gathered at the State Veterans Cemetery of our debt - the debt we owe to the heroic warriors in the ground at our feet and the debt we owe to the veterans gathered at the front of the group - the veterans from the battlefields of Korea, Vietnam and Iraq who honored us with their presence.

The Tigers, Wolves and Webelos of Cub Scout Pack 90 and the Boy Scouts of Boy Scout Troop 490 - both sponsored by Camp Lejeune - were present at that ceremony to pay a portion of that debt. Bill Yarnall, the local DAV adjutant, and Steve Ryan, DAV

Commander, coordinated the event. while Navy Lt. John Ingersoll, MSC of the Naval Hospital, coordinated the Scouts. The Scouts arrived about an hour before the start of the ceremony to help set up chairs and hand out programs. Some of the older Scouts also helped the veterans to their seats. Many of the fathers who came with their sons wore their service uniforms to show strate their brotherhood with the honored veterans before them.

Prior to addressing the audience. Sattler made a point to visit personally with each veteran - a handshake, a smile, a greeting, a passing and receipt of memories. Always a motivational speaker, he was in exceptional form this day, and all of the boys remained riveted to their seats throughout his speech. Afterward, he took a few moments to have his picture taken with the boys, who had the extra bonus of getting a picture with Sgt. Maj. Morgan, 2d MarDiv. Sergeant Major.

After the service, the cemetery cleared quickly, but a few Boy Scouts remained to examine some of the graves and headstones more closely. The Scoutmaster of Troop 490, Chief Warrant Officer 2 Charles Thompson, maintenance officer at MWSS-272, accompanied them as they wondered aloud about the lives these men had lived prior to making the ultimate sacrifice. Ultimately, one Boy Scout was left: 2nd Class Scout Kyle Thompson, who turned to his father, hugged him and said, "Thank you. I love you, dad."

After the Thompsons left, the gentle breeze remained and lifted the American flags flying throughout the cemetery and standing guard over the final resting place of our greatest

Now is the time to help those who need us right here at HOME.

Let us unite to give generously and make sure our community has the resources it needs to stand strong in the face of national or local adversity.

The national response to terrorism and a weakened economy create more urgent needs for human services here at home.

Children, families, and neighborhoods count on United Way and our partner agencies to respond to pressing human needs. These agencies, in turn, count on our United Way for funding.

No organization unites our community and rallies the good people among us more effectively than our United Way.

WE NEED YOUR HELP TODAY MORE THAN EVER.

'Rough men' return to 'Na

R.R. Keene I

We sleep safe in our beds because rough men stand ready in the night to visit violence on those who would do us harm." - George Orwell

James Webb, author of the Vietnam War classic Fields of Fire, takes a hard look at those rough men who fought that war in Vietnam and what has happened to those who by chance and mostly by choice remain in Asia more than three decades

His latest novel, Lost Soldiers, is a rousing adventure, an Asian Elmore Leonard plot with more twists, turns and sudden surprises than the road over Vietnam's Hai Van Pass.

In recent years the number of veterans returning to Vietnam to revisit the sites of old battles now almost forgotten has grown just as our force strength grew in South Vietnam in the early 1960s when America decided to spend its youth on a Southeast Asian war. Having just finished Webb's book prior to returning to Vietnam for the fourth time in as many years, what struck me was how similar we are, and by that I mean all Vietnam veterans, when it comes to looking back at the war.

Former infantryman Marine Sgt. Don Hanson was on his fourth return trip. He smiled before trekking into the foothills of the A Shau Valley and said matter-of-factly, "I did some of my best work here. "It don't mean nothin," we said back then, "Get over it and move on," we say today. But in truth it meant everything, and though we will move on, we never will get over it.

It is the same for Brandon Condley, Lost Soldiers main character. A Marine captain of infantry during the Vietnam War, Condley has become somewhat of an expatriate adventurer: cynical, bombastic, terribly flawed, but still harboring that innate sense of honor and duty drilled permanently into his soul by uncompromising sergeants a well-seated service rifle. at Quantico, Va.

Condley faces his squandered existence: "He had felt an immediate, overwhelming sense of sadness. He had abandoned his mother, indeed his entire family, for this odd and unproductive life. He had never decided to. It had simply happened, one tragedy and one failure at a time, until he no longer had a place to come home without having to explain it all, and it would have taken forever to He had not visited his mother in ten years. ... The same reasons that had kept him in Asia after the war somehow prevented him from going home.

In one passage, he asks, "Okay, where would we begin? Long time no see. So here's how this disaster happened. I fell in love with a woman and kept killing bad guys so that I could stay with her. What was I supposed to do, come home and apply for a job at the Chamber of Commerce?"

Condley still takes the Vietnam War personally. He has never gotten over the assassination of his Vietnamese wife. What's more, he's never forgotten that two of his Marines were gunned down by non-Asians, one a Caucasian and the other black: "Salt and Pepper."

And of those murderers one is still alive. For Condley the war cannot end until he completes one last mission: To find him and kill him.

Salt and Pepper were malevolent, wartime urban legends described to young Marines assigned to guard major bases - bedtime stories that started circulating as early as 1966, designed to keep sentries awake.

Depending on various versions, the two were Marines or perhaps U.S. Army soldiers or even French legionnaires who had gone communist and earned their keep by fooling unwitting Americans into thinking they were "friendlies" and then murdering them.

Webb, always a powerful and satisfying writer, has matured. Where, in previous novels, his themes of duty and honor were beat into us as with a rifle butt, Webb, now a seasoned and confident storyteller, weaves a tale of Vietnam today as subtle and easy as the trigger squeeze on

When Webb originally returned from Vietnam, he entered Georgetown Law School. As he sat in class and listened to those who had never been there discussing the war, he wrote on a piece of

" And from those few words came Fields of Fire, arguably the best piece of fiction to come out of the Vietnam War.

Webb has returned once again from Vietnam and tells "what it is like" in another masterful moraliplay. Although his novel dwells on the seamier sides of Saigon, he ponders not only the fate of Vietnam veterans, but also the fate of the people and the country of Vietnam.

Webb no doubt would agree with former infantryman Don Hanson. We did do some of our best work there. Although we left ignominiously from an embassy roof in Saigon, we had "visited violence" and exacted a horrific price. Today there are few Vietnamese men of our generation to be found. The government of Vietnam officially states that more than two million were killed; privately they concede the number to be closer to four million, a whole generation lost.

Lost Soldiers is about all those who fought, including the communist Vietnamese soldiers, many who seem to have long forgotten the fervor of self-sacrifice that drove them through the gates of the South Vietnamese presidential palace. It is about aging, former Army of the Republic of Vietnam soldiers nonentities consigned to begging or peddling Woven through it all are the expatriates: American, Russian and French - a pathetic lot of old men addicted to drink, drugs and debauchery.

"And it all had a sickly ring to it, a false resonance," that reminded Webb of "too many foreign correspondents posted in Sai Gon during the war. They could count months and even years spent in Viet Nam. ... And yet few of them had ever known much about what happened.

Because they prefer to leave such things as combat soldiering to "rough men," they seldom ventured then or today to Dong Ha, Con Tien or An Hoa. They do not know the Que Son Mountains or the upper reaches of the Thu Bon or zine said that in 1997 there was an experiment done with two photons that were intertwined, separated and then sent in two different directions. Even when they were seven miles apart, when one photon was able to make a random choice, the other photon instantly did exactly the same thing no matter how many times they tried it, the other photon did exactly the same thing They were not able to neasure the time difference in the communication. They were able to say that it's at least 10,000 times faster than the speed of light. And so they start out the paragraph by saying, 'Einstein was wrong.' As far as Einstein was concerned, nothing could achieve speeds faster than the speed of light, and yet here we have proof that something can.

Acknowledging his interest in the subjects at the heart of his first novel, Mehl smiles. "I probably should have gone into a scientific field.'

Instead, Mehl followed a career path that, at age 17, led him into the Marine

"I had always had an idea that I wanted to go into the Marine Corps," he says.

After attaining the rank of sergeant, he was accepted into Officer Candidate School and eventually retired as a major after 23 service. He then attended East Carolina University, earning first his bachelor's and then his master's degrees

Today, he teaches business administra-tion at Coastal Carolina Community College, but he's never lost his love for or his interest in things scientific.

While originally working on the novel, his wife died and he shelved the project. After he remarried, his wife Margaret convinced him to return to it.

"The basic idea has always been there when I first started writing in I had a pretty good idea where I wanted it to go," he says.
"(However) I did make some changes as to the progression of the story. I had been reading Astronomy and National Geographic and keeping up with science, so I kind of updated a lot of things and ideas I had in there in terms of science

Very little of what I have in (the novel) is just purely made up, so to speak, from my mind or fantasy in some way. For example, it's my idea how to make the moon habitable, but the fact that ilmenite is an ore type of rock that you would find on the moon, that you could use to make helium three, which could be turned into a fuel is fact; it's not fantasy," Mehl explains

"I tried to mix as much fact in there as possible and keep as much fantasy out as possible, because I believe much of what is written in there will one day come to pass."

Mehl will be on base at the Main Exchange Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. signing copies of his novel The Sabertops: Time Does Not Exist.

Phelan gears up for 48th seaso

Once a Marine, always a Marine

JOHN GUNN

With only one senior and four juniors, six W sophomores and two freshmen, Coach Jim Phelan of Div. I Mount St. Mary's (Md.) has gotten off to an expected slow start in 2001-02 men's basketball. But Phelan, a Marine veteran, has begun his record-tying 48th season as Mountaineer coach, equaling Phog Allen's total at Kansas, Baker, Haskell and Central Missouri for most in the collegiate ranks. Phelan, entering the campaign, also holds the NCAA coaching record for most games (1,300) and is the winningest active coach in the country with 816 victories against 484 losses. He trails Dean Smith (879) and Adolph Rupp (876) for most wins in Div. I.

Of all who have coached college basketball, only former Winston-Salem State coach Clarence 'Big House' Gaines (1,275 games and 828 victories) had spent more time on the sideline than the man with the bow ties until last season.

Mount St. Mary's – enrollment 1,300 opened the 2001-02 season with an 85-73 victory over Champion AAU. But then came an 82-59 loss at Virginia Tech, 66-57, at Robert Morris, 75-54, at St. Francis (Pa.), 80-69, against Central Connection and 62-84 against Quinnipiac (Conn.).

The Mount will host Loyola on Saturday in the oldest college basketball rivalry in Maryland. The Greyhounds will be followed by Butler on Monday. Then the Mount gets back on the road, heading to the West Coast to play California and San Jose State.

When Phelan left Philadelphia in 1954 to become coach at the small school in Emmitsburg, he did so with one thought - only staying for a couple of years. Forty-eight seasons later, Phelan has guided 16 Mount teams to NCAA tournaments, including five trips to the Div. II Final Four and the College Division national championship in 1962. Eighteen teams reached the 20-win plateau, while just 10 posted losing records, and he can boast of his second NCAA Div. I tournament team and one National Invitation Tournament bid.

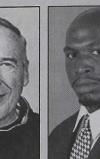

In 1967, he also became athletics director. He served dual roles over the next 22 years, helping lay groundwork for the Mount's move to Div. I in 1988. Once the move was made, however, he resigned as AD to devote his attention to the basketball program.

Among those who played under Phelan at Mount St. Mary's are former Philadelphia '76ers coach Fred Carter, '69, who also played in the NBA with the '76ers, Washington Bullets and Milwaukee Bucks; Jack Sullivan, '57, the school's all-time leading scorer with 2,672 points; and John O'Reilly, '63, a two-time All-America who led the '62 championship team. (Sullivan also played in the ABL, starred two seasons at Quantico and averaged 31.3 points for Lejeune in 1960-61.)

Asked why he chose to coach at Mount St. Mary's, "Well, this was the only bona fide offer I had at that time, and I'm talking about 1954. I had opportunities to be an assistant coach, but this was the only head coaching position I was

As a player at La Salle, Phelan made the All-Philadelphia team three straight years. He then went into the Corps and helped lead Quantico to two All-Marine titles. After his discharge, he played briefly with the Philadelphia Warriors of the National Basketball Association and the Pottstown Packers of the old Eastern League.

Jim Phelan

Rick Lantz

During the 1951-52 season, Phelan scored 498 points as Quantico posted a 37-7 record in a schedule that included at least 10 college opponents, won the All-Marine title by beating San Diego, two games to zero; and extended its home winning streak to 42 games

But Quantico in the 1952-53 season with Phelan and Hall of Famer Paul Arizin (Villanova) became one of the strongest Marine teams ever, winning 42 and losing six. Quantico defeated Villanova, 76-74, at the Palestra in Philadelphia on a last-second shot and scored at least 100 points six times. Quantico competed in the AAU Tourney and beat Sampson NTS, 79-60, but lost to NAS Los Alamitos, 91-77, in the Inter-Service Tourney final. Five other players

Perhaps the only comparable Marine teams were MCB San Diego in 1943-44 and 1944-45, FMF Pacific in 1944-45 and 1945-46 and Quantico/Arizin in 1953-54.

During the event, participating civilian clubs offer reciprocal hunting opportunities to individual Marines and Sailors by allowing them to hunt with those clubs on their private hunting club lands.

> Hunting Clubs and dates are as follows: South Creek (Verona) Dec. 15, 29 Wildcat (Halls Run) Dec. 15, 29 United (Sneads Ferry) Dec.13,19 Oak Island (Holly Ridge) Dec. 15, 29 Flag Pond (Holly Ridge ) Dec. 15, 29

Additionally, the Lejeune Rod and Gun Club sponsors organized hunts at Camp Lejeune on Saturdays and holidays, and Marines and Sailors are invited to participate on these hunts as well. For more information, call the Camp Lejeune Game Warden office at 451-2196.

For a preak in the normal routine, members of the 4th MEB (AT) Battalion recently participated in a group deer hunt aboard Camp Lejeune. Though no deer find the state of the 10 th ed from the event, names of the hunters have been withheld in lieu of possible retaliation from local wildlife.

Krosh - a fellow instructor with Bartley on the Marine Corps Food Management Team - also took first place in the recent 4-on-4 Volleyball Tournament held at Camp Johnson. As a Marine and a dad, I try to motivate my boys by participating in events like this with them so when they get older they will stay involved with programs that benefit others," said

Second place winners Fast n' Furious also enjoyed the time on the court that supported a

"I have always supported Toys for Tots each year, but this was my first time being able to do it in a basketball tournament," said team member Cass Johnson, a corporal with 1/10.

"It feels good to help out with families who can't afford to do much at Christmas time Teammate Marcus 'Big Will' Williams, agrees. "There's a good energy out here because everyone is doing this for a good cause," said Williams. "But there was also a lot of good competition, I even saw someone get dunked on here

Master Sgt. Gary Coates and Sgt Brian Page of the II Mace unit of the Marine Corps Reserve were on hand at the event to collect toys for the program, which was the criteria for the

"There is a really good crowd here today and tournaments like these provide an excellent venue for Marines to get involved in the program," said Coates, who been involved with Toys for Tots when he joined the Marine Corps over 20 years ago. He gave a special award to the Bravo team for bringing the most toys, 24, to the tournament. This is a way for Marines to be able to participate in a competitive event and also help out children out there who otherwise would not have a Christmas if the Toys for Tots program was not in exsistance. The team of Praise stayed undefeated for the first four games of the tournament and took home third place. Participants in the event, the Globe Trotters,

TT Boys, Tanks, Engineers, 2d Maintenance, and BMP all received certificates of apprecia-

Event Coordinator Sgt. Bobbie J. Bryant, of the Consolidated Public Affairs Office newly appointed marketing coordinator for THE GLOBE and LCTV-10 who sponsored the event, along with the Single Marine Program, was pleased with the tournament results.

The tournament was a huge success for the children I especially want to thank everyone who gave their time. It was teamwork and sportsmanship that made this event go smoothly

Bryant said plans are under consideration for a future basketball tournament that would benefit the local community. "Because we had such a huge response to this tournament, the next event will be open to more teams. We hope to double the amount of teams that can enter TRADERS is a free service provided by the Public Affairs Office and submitted by active duty and retired military personnel and their dependents, and civilian personnel aboard Camp Lejeune and MCAS New River. Ads must be remitted each week and reach the Public Affairs Office by noon THURSDAY for the following week's publication. Ads should be submitted on a trader form, available here or at the Public Affairs Office. Ads are reserved for the exchange or sale of personal goods only. Ads for personal services or businesses may not be printed. The Public Affairs Office reserves the right to withhold ads that may be deemed inappropriate for any reason. Official phone numbers CANNOT be listed. Limit is three ads per week. If the Public Affairs Office receives more ads than space permits certain ads may not be published until the following week.

 Individual forms must be filled out for each "category" of items (automobiles, pets, etc.) and written legibly. No more than 25 words per form.
Trader ad submissions cannot be accepted by phone, guard mail, or fax, as these means are reserved for official Changing with the times...

There is a new and improved method of submitting trader ads from your home, through the Camp Lejeune website. Follow these easy steps to submit your trader ad in THE GLOBE.

· Go to the Camp Leieune website at www.leieune.usmc.mil

Click on "Trader Ads" on the right side, read the rules and follow the steps to submit your ad.

Make sure and include your phone number IN THE AD along with your personal information and do not type in ALL CAPS. LIMIT THREE ADS PER WEEK PER PERSON.

You can also submit your ad through mail by dropping it off at the Public Affairs Office.
