Ready to sail

of spear
ext stop for
22d MEU

Months of an intense work-up cycle, Marines and Sailors of the 22d Marine Expeditionary Unit (Special Operations Capable) answer the call as America's 911 force. The 'Islands of Freedom' deploy late this month to the Mediterranean aboard USS Nassau, USS Annapolis and USS Nashville.

With the Nassau Amphibious Ready Group and the MEU's command element, Landing Team 1/8, MEU Service Company, 22d and Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron 22 (rein). For the past six months these Marines have jelled to form what is today's 22d MEU.

At the beginning of the pre-deployment cycle, we came together as individuals," said Terry Compton, 22d MEU intelligence officer. "By the end of the cycle, every Marine and Sailor could focus on their portion of the mission with full confidence in the other members of the team. I'm confident that this team is ready to handle any mission."

The missions the 22d MEU may be called to perform include Non-Combatant Evacuation Operations (NEO), Embassy Reinforcement, Tactical Recovery of Aircraft Personnel (TRAP), Humanitarian Assistance and Maritime Special Purpose Operations.

During the deployment, the elements used the crawl, walk, run concept to build confidence in the team. "We are going to replace the currently deployed 22d MEU with the 22d MEU," explained Compton. "We are literally taking away from conducting a wide range of MEU (SOC) missions."

During this deployment we will be conducting tempo exercises and conducting planning for contingencies," stressed Compton. "In the end, we need every Marine to have a good game. Knowing that they are doing important, and that their families support them, the 2,200 Marines and Sailors in the 22d MEU are ready to focus on the task at hand."

Replacing the 2,200 Marines and Sailors in the 22d MEU are the 22d MEU. "We are out front and leading the way ready response force," Compton said. "It means that we are on watch and ready to say, 'Send in the Marines.'"

Gunning for home

Tow gunner LCpl Brent Neil, from Waterford, Pa., watches with vigilance as the events of Exercise Slunj 2000 unfold in Croatia recently. Weapons Company, Battalion Landing Team 2/2 and the rest of the 26th MEU(SOC) will return to Camp Lejeune in December.

Versatile gun fired for effect

The new 'Dragon Fire' Mobile Fire Support System stands loaded with a high explosive 120mm round.

Cpl Zachary A. Crawford
Marine Combat Correspondent

Marines from 3d Battalion, 10th Marines here helped the Marine Corps Warfighting Lab test a new weapon system at Mortar Position 8 recently.

The new artillery concept is a 120mm rifled mortar Mobile Fire Support System known as 'Dragon Fire.'

Dragon Fire has several designers and contributors including the MCWFL, Army Development and Engineering Command, Picatinny Arsenal of New Jersey, Thomson-Daimier Armements of France and Rock Island Arsenal of Illinois.

"It's an experimental weapon system designed for expeditionary fire support for the new kinds of Marine Corps missions," said retired LtCol Forest R. Lindsey of Quantico, Va., and senior engineer in the technical branch of the Marine Corps War-Fighting Lab. "This is the first Marine Corps-designed piece of artillery."

This piece of artillery has a few unique features that most artillery in the military does not.

"This system can fire any kind of 120-millimeter mortar from any country. The system's tube is French and is also designed to use French 120-millimeter rounds. Depending on what kind of round is used, its max range is 8,200 meters and with rocket assist, you can get a max of about 13,000 meters. Whether it be a rifled or smooth bore round, this weapon can use it," said Lindsey. "It can also be transported in many different ways. It's designed to fit several in the Osprey and even be towed by a hummer."

According to Lindsey, the project is now in its final testing phases.

"It only took us about 17 months to put this weapon system together," said Lindsey. "We're just out here now to see how effective it is and what the Marines really think about it."

Some of the Marines think it's a great piece of weaponry.

"The hydraulics are nice and it's pretty low maintenance," said LCpl Garret T. Romosz from Aurora, Minn. "There is virtually no rust to bust on it."

Plan to survive

Compiled by Globe Staff

The Marine Corps Base Safety Office is urging the Marines and Sailors of Camp Lejeune to buckle up, use designated drivers, and consider the weather as they head into the holiday weekend.

As of this time last fiscal year, Camp Lejeune had already experienced two traffic-related deaths. Fortunately, the flashing light on the way out the gate has remained green so far this fiscal year.

"This time of year we like to include weather in our safety briefs," said Freeman White, traffic safety specialist at the Base Safety Office. "When you couple speed and alcohol with that (inclement weather) you increase the possibility of fatalities."

To reduce the risk of a life-threatening accident, the safety office is asking Marines and Sailors to plan their trips by familiarizing themselves with their routes and checking the weather along that route.

"You cannot be a defensive driver if you don't have proper rest, you don't know the area you are in or you are under the influence of drugs or alcohol," White said.

Alcohol, fatigue and speed work together to cause accidents said White. A defensive driver will eliminate all of these factors.

In addition, the safety office would like to remind everyone to make it snap. About 11,000 people die each year because they don't wear seatbelts. Seatbelts only work when they are used properly.

QUICKSHOTS

PIN Numbers

Base officials are urging Marines and Sailors aboard Camp Lejeune to safeguard their Employee/Member Self Service Personal Identification Numbers (PIN) when setting up direct deposit accounts in Jacksonville.

The PINs were initiated this year for servicemembers to control their allotments online.

To report problems concerning E/MSS, call CWO-2 Dean Roberts at 451-2232.

Beirut Vets

The Beirut Veterans of America is looking for new members.

The organization is open to active-duty or former servicemembers who have served in Beirut, Lebanon since 1958.

Associate and affiliate memberships are available to former servicemembers or anybody who wishes to contribute to or support the BVA.

A membership application can be found on page 3A.

Heritage Month

Navajo code talkers, who helped secure Marine victories at Guadalcanal, Tarawa and Iwo Jima, are just part of the Marine Corps' heritage being celebrated during American Indian Heritage Month.

In honor of American Indian Heritage Month, there will be a luncheon from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Nov. 30 at the MCAS New River Enlisted Club. For more information, call MSgt Philip McNair at 450-5474.

381 and counting

The 2d Marine Division continues to lead the way in retention.

According to officials, 226 Division warriors were mentioned on the Marine Corps Birthday.

So far this year, 381 hard-chargers from the "Follow Me" division have chosen to "Stay Marine."

Have a safe and happy Thanksgiving!

What is Montessori?

It's all about learning!

Our Montessori environment allows your child to reinforce their casual impressions by inviting them to use their hands for learning. The school's curriculum is based on your child's unique aptitude for learning, which Dr. Maria Montessori identified as the "absorbent mind."

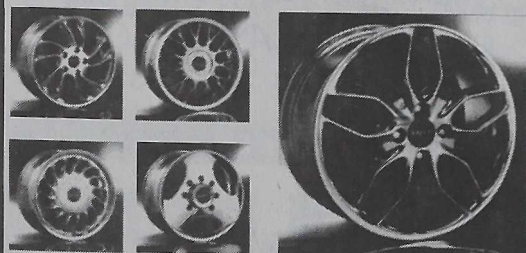

Contact the school at (910) 938-3826

We accept from 12 months to 8 years.

Stop by and see why...It's all about learning!

Montessori Children's School does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national or ethnic origin.
