ere notified of the nce through the Key

Volunteers organization.

"There are lots of ways families can keep in touch, and this is just another valuable resource they have over the holiday season," said Lefebvre.

According to Allyson R. Barnes, wife of Cpl Jacob A. Barnes, a radio operator with 8th Communication Battalion, 2d Marine Division, the chance to see her husband made the holidays easier.

"We were just married April 24, so this is the first Christmas I have had to be away from him," said Barnes from Las Vegas. "This made me feel better about the holidays with him being away."

Lefebvre said Key Volunteers looks out for those families who are experiencing deployment for the first time.

"The Key Volunteers is a motivational kind of force for the families that are going through this for the first time, and showing them we care really helps," she remarked. "I can help them understand what it is like having a husband with the MEU. We share our experiences and I let them know they can get through this."

Barnes added the support she receives from the volunteers keeps her going when times get rough.

"Doing things with the Key Volunteers helps remind me that someone else is out there going through the same thing I am," said Barnes.

Lefebvre remarked the teleconferences, along with the support of the volunteers, will help these families get through the holiday season.

"There is no substitute to having your husband home," said Lefebvre. "But having a group of ladies around to support you is paramount to keeping your family together."

Dragon breath

Cpl Zachary L. Martin of Richmond, Va., Weapons Company, 2d Bn, 6th Marines, fires the last Dragon rocket that will ever be fired by 2/6. This shoot was the climax of a recent two-week Crew Served Weapon Leaders Course during which the gunners fired the Dragons and the new Javelin system.

Training leaves station

"I think I can, I think I can, I think can," said the little engine who could.

This little engine, which departed the rail yard here recently, transported the equipment Marines and Sailors will use at the upcoming Combined Arms Exercise in Twentynine Palms, Calif.

The work and planning involved in this mission began in June, according to CWO Mike Erickson, an embark officer with 6th Marine Regiment.

"When you have a lot of heavy equipment to transport, using the rail system is key," he said.

According to 1stLt Joseph J. Zwiller, Landing Support Platoon commander with 2d Transportation Support Battalion, 2d Force Service Support Group, this is a rare and unique opportunity for the Marines in the unit.

"This is only the second time in six to eight years that CAX has moved by railroad," Zwiller added. "It is uncommon to move by rail, so the experience itself is great."

Erickson of Charleston, Ill., added this opportunity is invaluable for future rail operations.

"Each time we do this we will gain experience on how to do it better for the next time," remarked Erickson.

According to Erickson, the normal method for transporting gear is by commercial vehicles, but the Corps is saving money using the railways.

"It costs half as much to the Marine Corps by using the railroads," said Erickson.

"It normally costs around two and a half million roundtrip. This year the cost will be around eight hundred thousand dollars."

Marines will be waiting for the equipment at the scheduled drop-off point in Barstow, Calif.

"There will be Marines in Barstow on January 5th to receive the equipment," said Erickson. "From there, they will convoy the equipment to Twentynine Palms."

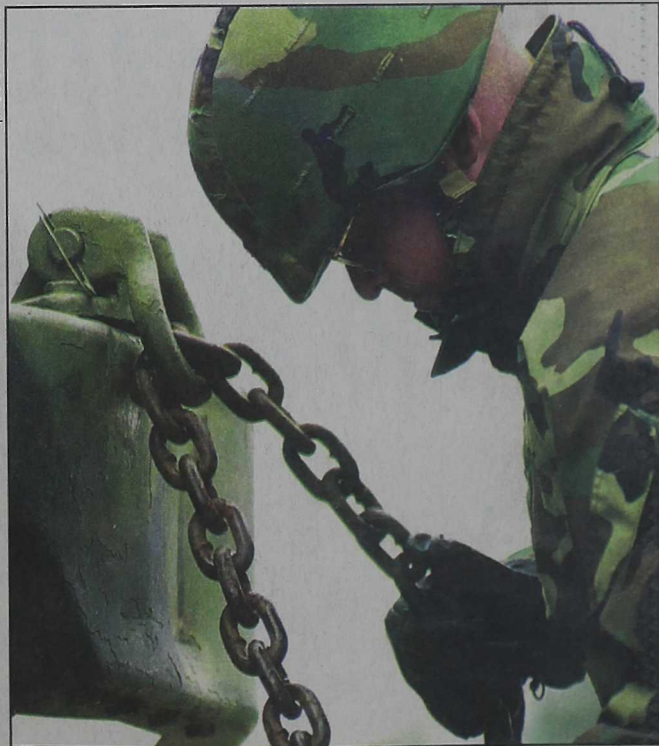

Before the train is allowed to depart, train inspectors must ensure the safety of the equipment on the cars.

"There are a lot of standards we have to go by, so the train inspectors will let us pull out," he said. "We had to strip the gear off the 5-ton because of the vibrations on the train."

He also added the hard work of the Marines loading the cars has put them ahead of schedule.

"So far, we are two days ahead of schedule," Erickson remarked.

LCpl Brandon Bridges of Charleston, S.C., Landing Support Platoon, prepares equipment for the cross-country rail trip.

The Patent Office was amazed.

You will be, too.

"...it has enough technological materials and ergonomic breakthroughs to keep the patent office busy for weeks."

—Chee Perlmutter, I.D. Magazine

You're looking at the Aeron® chair. It comes in three sizes to fit more people. Its innovative Pellicle® suspension eliminates heat build-up and conforms to the unique shape of the person using it. Its innovative Kinemat® tilt allows natural movement from forward upright to reclining positions.

The Aeron chair. From Herman Miller, the world's leader in cross-performance work chairs.
