'Fightin' 6th fires last Dragon

Cardovich
Correspondent

f 3d Battalion, 6th Marine fired the last of the soon-to-be Dragon missiles here at Hadnot Point on Nov. 17.

Guided Dragons, used primarily as anti-aircraft weapons, will be replaced by the Avenger.

They fired the last of the Dragons from inoperable tanks. The live-fire exercise marked the end of an era for the Dragon, which has been used since the Vietnam War.

The AT-4, the Dragon is a shoulder-launched missile with a maximum effective range of 1,100 meters, said LCpl Ryan Bender, Dragon gunner for 3d Bn, 6th Marine.

The weapon is wire-guided, the person in the tank guides the round through his scope to impact with the intended target," Bender said.

Bender, from Benmidji, Minn., said it takes 10 seconds for the round of a Dragon to reach the target. One disadvantage of this weapon is it may be exposed to incoming fire while guiding the missile to the target.

The Dragon is a reliable weapon, but the new Avenger is more up-to-date, said Sgt Sean Bender, platoon sergeant for Weapons Company.

Bender is from Pettet, who is from Eldens, Mo.,

Marines from 3d Battalion, 8th Marine Regiment will leave for a six-month deployment to Okinawa to conduct training under the Unit Deployment Program Saturday.

"We live to deploy," said LtCol Louis N. Rachal, battalion commanding officer.

"The battalion is extremely excited about the upcoming deployment. We have trained hard over the past year and we are anxious to be forward deployed where we can use our skills in an operational setting, should the need arise," said Maj Timothy E. Winand, battalion operations officer. "We have many exciting training opportunities ahead of us, to include Fuji and Korea, and we look forward to continuing to enhance our units' combat readiness and show other nations' militaries the tremendous capabilities and professionalism of our battalion and our Corps."

While in Okinawa, 3/8's mission is to provide responsive and fully ready ground combat capability in support of III MEF contingencies throughout the area of operations.

"We're ready to see the other side of the world. We've done a lot of workup for this one. We had a good CAX (Combined Arms Exercise) in August," said Capt Anthony M. Marro, Kilo

With the tears of loved ones still wet on their shoulders, the Marines and Sailors of the 22d Marine Expeditionary Unit (SOC) departed this week for a routine six-month deployment.

The 22d MEU will spend two weeks on USS Nashville, USS Portland and USS Nassau while they cross the Atlantic Ocean.

Once the MEU reaches the Mediterranean region, they will participate in several training exercises, keeping them prepared to be called upon for non-combatant evacuation operations, humanitarian missions or Maritime Special Purpose operations.

"During this deployment we will be conducting several high-tempo exercises and conducting planning for contingencies," said Hot Springs, Ark.'s Maj Terry Compton, the 22d MEU intelligence officer. "I'm confident this unit is prepared to handle any mission."

According to Compton, the MEU's intense work-up cycles have prepared the unit to answer the call as America's 911 force.

The currently-deployed 26th MEU is scheduled to return to Camp Lejeune later this month.

Expeditionary: Marine Corps sets standard

For compelling reasons, America's armed services have embarked upon efforts to revitalize their expeditionary capabilities. During the last decade, US military power has increasingly been used to mitigate chaos and restore stability in places all around the world beset both by natural disasters and man-made crises. Indeed, as the Cold War's monolithic threat recedes, consensus in the US national security community has formed that less-predictable dangers to American interests continue to lurk all around the world.

The forms of disorder are many: frequent and urgent requirements to ameliorate human suffering; challenges to our allies; and threats to regional stability, to name a few.

The bulk of our nation's land and air forces — "heavy" forces designed to defend Central Europe against the Soviet Union — are not optimally suited for the missions that are increasingly common today. Thus, each of the military services is changing — "transforming" — to enhance their strategic responsiveness and broaden their utility. The Army, for example, is becoming lighter in order to reach the scene of crises more rapidly. The Air Force is forming "Aerospace Expeditionary Forces" to gain increased flexibility. The Navy is implementing doctrinal changes to address operations in the littorals.

The Marine Corps, however, requires no such renovation. With a long history of expeditionary operations, the Corps has long been organized, trained, and equipped for this role. Marine Air Ground Task Forces provide our nation a unique military capability that has been tested and proven in various contingencies over the past half century. From this experience, we have developed a distinct perspective concerning what it means to be an expeditionary force, although our concept appears to differ somewhat from the various definitions that are currently emerging as the other services pursue their respective transformation processes.

One thing is clear: the expeditionary age of the 21st century demands military forces different from the heavy forces that comprised the bulwark of US conventional defense for the last five decades.

DEFINING CAPABILITIES

So, with many services using the term, what exactly does "expeditionary" mean? The 1998 edition of the Defense Department Dictionary of Military and Associated Terms offers this: "an armed force organized to accomplish a specific objective in a foreign country."

Command Commentary

GEN JAMES L. JONES

This is a very broad and unfocused definition. In fact, it embraces virtually every operational formation and military unit.

Marines believe that the term "expeditionary" encompasses far more than simple task organization and a mission involving actions beyond US borders. To Marines, the term "expeditionary" describes a pervasive mindset, a perspective that influences all aspects of organization, training, and equipment. We propose that an appropriate description of an expeditionary force is: "an agile and flexible force organized to accomplish a broad range of military objectives in a foreign country or region. Such a force must be able to deploy rapidly, enter the objective area through forcible means, sustain itself for an extended period of time, withdraw quickly, and reconstitute rapidly to execute follow-on missions."

Gen Jones is the Commandant of the Marine Corps. This commentary is the first in a three-part series on the commandant's definition of "expeditionary."

Pardon our grammar

Embarrassed is the predominant word on the collective mind of THE GLOBE staff.

Some might blush at the uttering of words such as prostitute, harlot or strumpet, while we at THE GLOBE are more abashed by the simple misuse of such a word.

I am referring to page 8A of the Nov. 17 issue where it was printed that BGen Robert C. Dickerson, 2d FSSG commanding general, was serving tea and strumpets to Royal Netherlands Marines.

Although the correct word would have been crumpets, even that does not sound appropriate in describing warrior "chow."

THE GLOBE staff is in agreement that the customs of the Royal Netherlands Marine Corps are unknown to us, but we are certain that the United States Marine Corps does not provide strumpets to any guests, regardless of status.

Moving on... On page 3A of the same issue, BGen Robert M. Flanagan is cited as being the former II MEF assistant commanding general.

In fact, BGen Flanagan is currently deputy commanding general of II MEF in addition to his re-

2d MEB commanding general. Last but certainly not least — our apologies to those who are wishing to send completed applications to Beirut Veterans of America for membership information, which appeared on page 3A of the issue of THE GLOBE, had no address for such a form, complete with a return address.

God outweighs technology advances

As I pen this article I am listening to National Public Radio. Garrison Keillor's Writers' Almanac has just given an interesting bit of trivia. It is the birthday of American astronomer Edwin Powell Hubble, born Nov. 20, 1889. Hubble's observations of the heavens reaped this piece of knowledge: the universe is expanding. It expands seemingly infinitely, going into the vast reaches of space. It is scarcely fathomable. This is a universe that seems to keep going farther and farther away. But we do not have to necessarily look through the telescope named to honor scientist Hubble to realize just how expansive the universe is. Anyone who purchases a computer and connects to the World Wide Web knows how expansive the technology is in this world.

Humanity is always attempting to reconstruct this world, to complete creation, to master the universe. But in the end we are just a fragile, insignificant particle in it.

A few weeks ago I took leave to visit friends in Florida. One day, we went on a tour of Kennedy Space Center. A stop on the tour was at a large building housing artifacts from the US space program including a Saturn V rocket. This machine, the size of a 37-story building, was displayed on its side. From the five huge nozzles of the initial launch stage engines to the tiny capsule to hold three astronauts, it was awesome to behold.

It struck me, as I looked at this device, that this technology was over 30 years old. It was obsolete. This was "bear skins and flint" technology compared to what has developed since for the space program. Still, it struck me with wonder.

It boggles my mind to know how much this world moves and changes. This past Sunday, a Scripture passage used at Church reminded me that no matter how expansive or awe-inspiring our universe is, it is impotent in the presence of God. "The sun will be darkened, the moon will not shed its light, stars will fall out of the skies, and the heavenly host will be shaken." All, which seems so immutable to human beings, will be changed; will come to an end.

My first reaction to these words is to see them as remote, to see them in reference to some distant place. Naively, I tend to say, these words to be interpreted as immediate for me to remind myself that this is not just some fantastic literature to be simply interpreted. If I rest content with that explanation for me to reduce my faith expression to word play. There is much more to it.

Many prophets and sages used to sort to describe God's manifestation of His people. Who among us has some experience or distress that separates us? Our world no longer existed. There were no stars in our heavens and moon no longer shined. The earth, been death, illness or personal failure, our whole inner equilibrium. The earth seem to "pass away."

That which seems as though it seems ever must pass away. This universe can only expand, will, and must, in an end. For only one is eternal. Beyond comprehension. And it is we are called at the end of our time maximo (to God, the best and greatest).

Chaplain Dillon is the Catholic priest for MCB.

Students of Lejeune High School are now able to enroll in Marine Corps Junior Reserve Officer's Training Corps.

In its first year, the MCJROTC company currently has 67 cadets from grades nine through 12, according to CWO-4 William F. Lang, senior Marine instructor of the program.

According to the High School Cadet Handbook, the missions of the program are to develop informed and responsible citizens, strengthen character, promote an understanding of the basic elements and requirements for national security, help form habits of self discipline, and develop an understanding of the need for constituted authority in a democratic society.

Once a student becomes a cadet, he is held to an honor code. This code is the primary means of developing character and integrity in the members. All cadets are treated like the ladies and gentlemen they are expected to be. They are taught not to lie, cheat or steal and are encouraged to keep others from doing so. Willful misconduct will not be tolerated and is grounds for dismissal from the program.

"I'm a much better behaved student than before I joined. I used to talk back to teachers, but now I'm more respectful," said Cadet 1stSgt Mathew D. Pennington, company first sergeant of Lejeune High School MCJROTC program. "Teachers treat you different when you show them you care."

Upon entering the program, cadets are taught how to wear and care for the Marine Corps uniform. Once a week, and during events prescribed by the senior Marine instructor, cadets wear the uniform.

Cadets are expected to meet many of the same standards as active-duty Marines. Male cadets must be clean shaven and hair must be tapered and neatly trimmed.

The curriculum for the program was derived from the MCJROTC

Cadet Handbook.

The program is split into four year-long classes, each more advanced than the year before.

Each class is split into four basic courses.

The leadership training portion of the course teaches leadership principles and techniques along with communication and human relation skills. Cadets are given different billets in which they can practice these skills.

Cadets learn drill, ceremony and fitness during the course to improve their physical condition and instill pride and discipline.

They learn self-confidence and weapon safety in the marksmanship and weapons class.

Military customs, courtesy, history and traditions are taught to cadets during military orientation and organization. Students receive one credit for each successfully completed year of instruction.

For more information, contact CWO-4 Lang at 451-2451.

24th MEU conquers Fort A.P. Hill

Marines from 3d Platoon, Fox Co, BLT 2/8 engage in squad rushes during a rehearsal for a live fire exercise held at Fort A.P. Hill in Bowling Green, Va.

Sgt Kevin Dolloson
Marine Combat Correspondent

FORT A.P. HILL, Va. — "Beans, Bullets and Band aids" — There was a lot more than that around Fort A.P. Hill recently when the 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit's Battalion Landing Team 2/8 (BLT 2/8) and MEU Service Support Group — 24 (MSSG — 24) took part in their first integration field exercise.

Marines and Sailors spent the first weeks of November transforming knowledge into razor-sharp skills.

BLT 2/8

For the BLT, the training involved individual and collective measures, which focus on team, squad and platoon-level maneuvers.

According to LtCol Daniel Rogers, BLT 2/8 commanding officer, this training strengthened the battalion.

"Training at A. P. Hill allows the BLT to solidify itself as a unit," he said.

"The majority of the training is live-fire and since training day one, Marines of the BLT have averaged 10 to 13 live-fire ranges per day," added Rogers.

He also added that his Marines shot more than 250,000 rounds of various caliber weapon systems to include the MK-19, .50 Caliber and M240G machineguns.

Fort A. P. Hill afforded the BLT quite different terrain and live-fire capabilities than Camp Lejeune does.

"This has been a good training evolution for all the Marines," said SSgt Norville Howe, Fox Co small unit leader, from Moundsville, W. Va. "It's been an eye-opener for some of them, but we all benefit from it."

Cpl Jeremy Barron, of Dothan, Ala. and Jersey City, N. J. native LCpl John Friend, both Fox Co infantrymen, echoed each other on the necessity of the training.

"It's definitely a part of training that's needed," they said. "And we get a little taste of the cold weather while we shoot live rounds."

Some of the Marines and Sailors learned valuable lessons while enjoying the experience.

"It's been a fun exercise," said Pvt Ronnie Stewart, infantryman from Memphis, Tenn. "I've learned that you have to rely on communication, and it has to be a one hundred percent team effort."

Hospitalman Apprentice Thomas

Tatman, of Port Arthur, Texas, echoed Stewart and added that he's enjoyed learning the "concepts of fire team rushes and how a squad works together to complete an objective."

According to LtCol Rogers, another important aspect of training for the BLT, is the interaction with MSSG-24.

"We actually had to use their dental services because a Marine needed some dental work done," he said.

MSSG-24

For the MSSG, A. P. Hill training allowed performance at full capacity, which prepared them for PMINT [PHIBRON — MEU Integration exercise] in December.

According to Maj D. Flynn, MSSG-24 executive officer, this was the first in a series of exercises that prepares them for deployment in April 2001.

"This is our first evolution in preparation for SOCEX," said Flynn. "Our next focus is PMINT, and with each exercise we want to take our a Marines a step closer to preparedness."

The training evolution for the MSSG began with a convoy. Once they arrived at the area of operation, the first objective was to set up the Combat Service Support Operations Center (CSSOC).

Then tents for all aspects of service and support followed, like medical, dental, trucks, maintenance, engineers, personnel bivouac site, as well as the humanitarian assistance site.

Once security from its own military police detachment was formed around the perimeter of the Combat Service Support Area (CSSA), the MSSG prepared to deal with any contingency.

In a field environment, engineers have the capability to build 'field showers' that provide hot water.

According to LCpl Kendrick Thomas, utilities water engineer, from West Columbia, S.C., MS capability of providing commodity for a field environment the entire MEU if necessary.

"We can provide hot sl entire MEU," he said.

In addition to providing MSSG supports the BLT capacity that is needed, transportation, medical, supplies.

During this training, Marines and Sailors of focus on a little basic training.

"For some of these Sailors, this is their first recruit training to do live be in a field environment. "We should be able to support the entire MEU, in addition fire and movement course in general."

"This is where we learn he added.

"We've focused on team," said LtCol John L. 24 commanding officer, definitely met our goals."

Several Marines we appreciated the experience environment had to offer.

"Doing this training, understand my job and I with the bigger scheme MSSG operates," said Gilbert, computer tech Lexington, Tenn.

Pittsburgh native, Seldon, welder, said Marines don't get the knowledge in garrison training learned here is world situations."

"The [Humanitarian] helped to clarify a lot Ricardo Walker, fabric artist from Silver Spring, Md. out here and setting it up better picture of what makes you more prepared world situation."

Cpl Nathan Ratliff, repairman from Orlando, the training evolution pretty

"Coming out here ap we've learned is a good block," he said, "and it better from here."

DEERS problems are easily avoided

Teresa Slater
Naval Hospital

Do you believe DEERS is a herd of four-footed mammals that live in the woods? Not exactly!

DEERS stands for Defense Enrollment Eligibility System and is a world-wide database of active duty servicemembers and their family members, retirees and their family members and others who are eligible for TRICARE benefits.

Active duty servicemembers and military retirees are automatically registered in DEERS, but active duty family members (ADFM), non-active duty family members (NADFM) and eligible survivors must physically register.

Why would someone need to be registered in DEERS?

If a person is not registered in DEERS they are not eligible to receive care in any military treatment facility, nor are they eligible for cost sharing of medical expenses under any of the three TRICARE options.

Information in DEERS is frequently used to send out information about health benefits and in-processing claims for medical care.

It is estimated that about half of the addresses for active duty family members are incorrect because DEERS was not updated when the families moved.

DEERS information is not automatically updated. YOU must update your file when you move or when there is a change in the family status, such as marriage, divorce, death, birth or adoption.

If a medical claim was paid by mistake because DEERS has no record of divorce or death, the government is required by law to request reimbursement, regardless of who is at fault, and you may be responsible for the bill.

There are several ways to update your DEERS information.

- go to the nearest military personnel office
- fax changes to (831) 655-8317
- mail changes to: DEERS Support Office, Attn: COA, 400 Gigling Road, Seaside, CA 93955-6771

d. call the DEERS Support Office at 1-800-334-4162 (California only); 1-800-527-5602 (Alaska and Hawaii); or 1-800-538-9552 (all other states).

DEERS Support Office hours of operation are 6 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Pacific Time, Monday through Friday. However, to avoid delays, the best times to call are from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Pacific Time on Wednesday, Thursday, or Friday.

When you initially report the birth or adoption of a child, the new family member may not have a social security number assigned to them yet.

Once you receive their social security number, you will need to provide that information to the DEERS Support Office or the ID card center.

Enrolling family members in DEERS is not the same as enrolling them in TRICARE Prime.

To enroll in Prime, visit the TRICARE Service Center located in the Piney Green Shopping Center or the Satellite Information Office located at the Naval Hospital.

DRAGON from 1A

battlefields of today have changed since the introduction of the M47 Dragon, and many of today's tanks have counter-measures against guided missiles.

Nomenclature and appearance of the Javelin will be similar to the M47 Dragons; the prime exceptions will be the Javelin's laser-guided missile and 2,000-meter maximum effective killing range, said LCpl Scott Bender, Dragon gunner for 3d Bn, 6th Marines.

"The advantage of the laser-guided Javelin's will give Marines the ability to fire and take immediate cover, unlike the M47 Dragon where the Marine must wait to guide the round to the intended target," said Pettet.

At 5:30 p.m. Thursday, the last of 3d Bn, 6th Marines' 83-mm M47 Dragon rounds were fired as the cool November nightfall set here.

"It's the end of our Dragons, we all can't wait to get familiar with our new toys," said an excited Bender speaking of the Javelins.

PME Appearance

Noted author and veteran's champion, Dr Johnathan Shay, chatted with LT David P. Johnson during the 11th MEF's monthly PME at the Lejeune Room recently. Shay candidly addressed the successes and failures of American combat leadership and the psychological stresses of battle, based on years of patient interviews over the years.

OKINAWA from 1A

Company commander. "For a lot of them, it's their first deployment. They've worked hard, spent lots of time in the field, and I think they're ready."

In addition to the August live-fire exercise, the Marines received training in nuclear, biological and chemical readiness, and were evaluated in September.

A small number of Marines also attended a small-arms weapons instructors course in November.

Training for 3d Battalion, 8th Marines did not stop there. Family readiness remained at the top of the list.

"The Key Volunteers network is strong and healthy. We have a lot of quality wives in the battalion who believe in the program," said Jacquelyn Rachal, Key Volunteer coordinator.

"We want to make this as smooth as possible for everyone during this time. There is a definite integrity to the program and the coordinators have the families' best interest at heart."

The Marines and their families have attended a number of meetings to settle questions and issues that may come up while Marines are overseas during the holidays.

All this preparation has 3/8 ready to go.

"I'm really excited to get this underway. (I am) just ready to see what Oki's like," said LCpl Matthew D. Chupp, battalion legal chief.

"I'm looking forward to Fuji. Climbing Mount Fuji is going to be a new and exciting experience for me," said LCpl Trevor A. Darrell, database clerk.

"This is going to be a chance to see the other side of the world," said Cpl Roy V. Jones, Weapons Company clerk. "Don't have any family, but I'm leaving my pit bull at home. He's alright—he doesn't care too much."

During their six-month tour, the Marines will conduct various training exercises to include the new Marine Corps martial arts program.

"This is a chance a lot of people don't get in a lifetime, and I'm excited to go," said LCpl Todd L. Wallis, from Springdale, Ark., man in the 81mm mortar.

"I'm looking forward to the martial arts program and can't wait to start."

"(I am) anxious to see face. I'm looking forward to meet new people and some new training," Feroze M. Munim, Kilo clerk. "This new martial arts must be a good idea."

"We get to do some jump and I'm excited about that. Marines will also take a little warfare training and refresher."

"We're looking forward to these Marines qualified a range," said SSgt Thomas assistant operations chief.

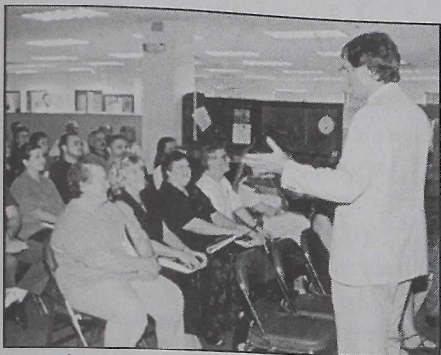

During the deployment of contact for the battalion Marvin McWhite, family staff noncommissioned 451-1054/1095. The battalion line is 451-1087.

The Marines are expected to Camp Lejeune in June.

What is Public Administration?

Administration differs significantly from private administration in that its emphasis is on the public. A public administrator must serve the public's best interest and in doing so must be a student of constitutional law and values and have developed some skills and knowledge in the political sector. But on the whole, the functions of public administration are the same as private administration. Both administrators are tasked with diffusing conflicting opinion and debates, directing, decision making, coordinating, budgeting, and increasing of internal and external resources.

In early February, the Marines and Sailors of Marine Forces Unitas, II Marine Expeditionary Force (II MEF), came together from various sections of II MEF to begin the pre-deployment training for their trip around South America.

They set sail in July aboard USS La Moure County and returned in early November aboard USS Tortuga.

During the deployment, Unitas participated in training exercises with five South American countries including Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Chile and Argentina.

The Unitas Marines and Sailors were also afforded the chance to communicate with Marines and civilians from several South American countries while conducting many training evolutions and community relations projects.

These evolutions include amphibious landings and beach assaults, mechanized raids, Noncombatant Evacuation Operations, and Project Handclasp.

Visiting the various South American nations gave the Marines and Sailors a chance to enjoy some exotic liberty ports and interact with the locals.

The trip around South America included many highlights for MarFor Unitas' warriors.

Brain Tumor Foundation of America Helps Save Life of Son of Federal Employee

February 22, 1987, was just another Sunday afternoon at the home of Clint and Colleen Reimer. Colleen, a federal employee who works for the Department of Health and Human Services and is a Combined Federal Campaign volunteer, received a telephone call no parent ever wants to receive. Their 21-year-old son Craig was calling from the emergency room, he had just had a grand mal seizure and was scared.

Craig had no history of seizures and the family had no inkling of what was to come. After three Computerized Tomography (CT) scans and one Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI), they were informed that Craig had a brain tumor in the left frontal lobe that required immediate removal. Following the surgery, they were referred to the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco (UCSF) to continue his treatment.

They immediately began gathering information about brain tumors, which led them to the Brain Tumor Foundation of America. The Foundation gave them current information on Craig's tumor, which allowed them to make informed decisions regarding his options. With this information, Craig entered an experimental chemotherapy program while simultaneously receiving radiation treatment.

Within six weeks of surgery, Craig returned to college, where he was a music major, and performed in a concert. He was overjoyed to participate, knowing that the surgery and treatment had not robbed him of his memory or coordination. The Reimer's continued their search for information about brain tumors and the side effects of treatment. Also, the Brain Tumor Foundation of America's volunteer Support Network helped to link them with other families in order to share information and support.

Thirteen years later Craig is still involved in music as a performer and teaching private lessons. Most importantly, his yearly MRI continues to show no tumor recurrence. The Reimer family believes donations to the Combined Federal Campaign helped save their son's life.

The Brain Tumor Foundation of America participates in the Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) as a member of the Medical Research Agencies of America federation.

Fifty-seven years have passed since the Marines and Sailors of 2d Marine Division were called upon to defend their country during World War II. Their legacy was remembered here recently during Tarawa Day.

More than 40 veterans of the battle for Tarawa were present at the ceremony that commemorated the action that claimed about 1,100 American lives.

RADM Meichi Shibasaki of the Imperial Japanese Fleet said it would have taken the Americans a million men and more than 100 years to take the island. It took the Marines 76 hours and about 4,500 Japanese lives.

The day's events for the Tarawa veterans began with a colors ceremony at Julian C. Smith Hall and a speech by 2d Marine Division Commanding General MajGen Robert R. Blackman Jr. The event was highlighted by a static display featuring modern-day landing craft at D-29 range.

"The Marines and Sailors of the Division will always live in the shadow of your legacy. Your presence commands respect from each and everyone here," said MajGen Blackman, referring to the veterans.

The battle began on the morning of Nov. 20, 1943. American assault craft

Camp Lejeune Young Marines 'make the grade'

Dedication pays off at graduation

LCpl Charles W. Palmer IV
Marine Combat Correspondent

For many Marines graduation from recruit training and earning the title of Marine will be remembered for the rest of their lives.

The transition from recruit to Marine may be the most difficult challenge in a person's life.

The transition is no different for the Devilpups who earned the title of Young Marine here Nov. 8.

The Young Marines held a graduation ceremony for their second boot camp this year.

The boot camp met once a week and occasionally on weekends for 13 weeks.

"I'm really gonna miss them," said GySgt

Donald E. Shanks, senior drill instructor from Charlestown, Ind. "You spend a lot of time with them. You start to think of them like your own kids."

Boot camp made the kids work as a team, explained Shanks.

"They came from different backgrounds and areas. Some come from Marine families, some don't. Some are from Camp Lejeune, others come from other areas such as Swansboro," said Shanks.

"We got them as 20 individuals, but they graduated as one big group."

Young Marine PFC Jake E. Rabidou, 8, of Hubert, stood out as the honor graduate scoring highest on the final test for graduation.

The program's main purpose is to keep children out of trouble and teach drug abuse awareness, according to Shanks.

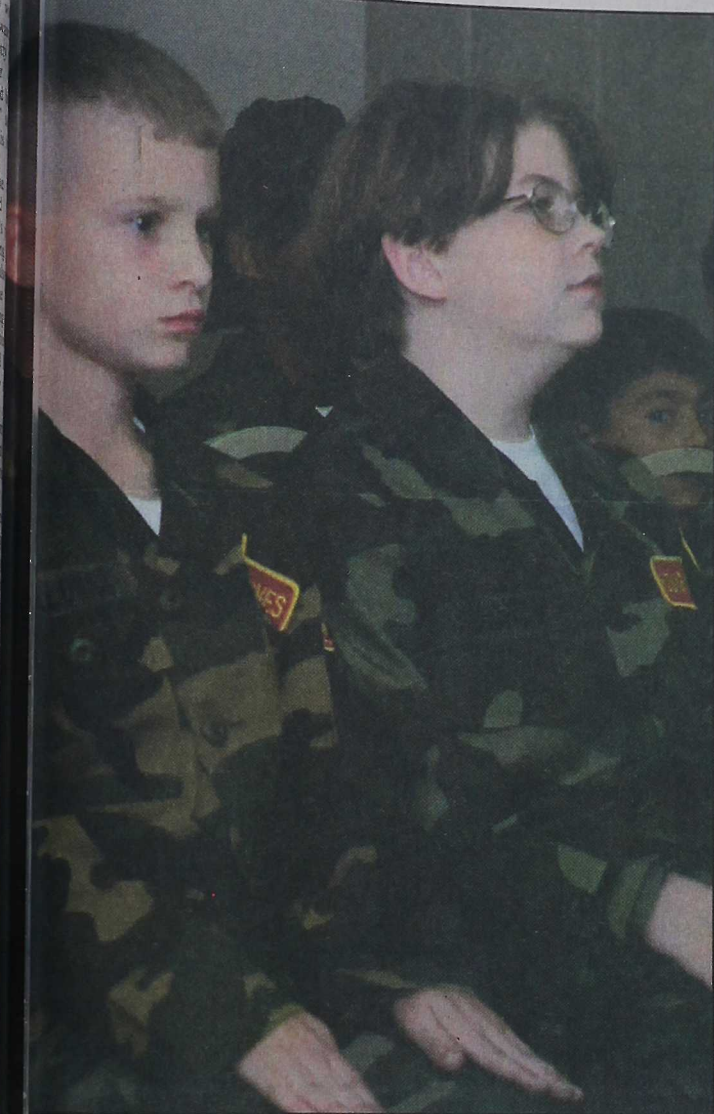

"We hope the Young Marines' lives will be better because of the lessons learned here."

"Young Marines did something for me. I'm just trying to give back to these kids what I got from my instructors,"

Electronic targets score high marks

Stone

at the Stone Bay training area witnessed the change recently with the unveiling of a new electronic system being readied for implementation here.

The system, called LOMAH (location of miss and hit), is in use by the Army in one form or another, but was never configured for the Marine Corps' distance (KD) rifle qualification course, according to Montgomery, a technical consultant with SIUS Systems in Columbia, S.C.

Montgomery, a 22-year Army veteran, set up the prototype LOMAH system on Alpha Range at Stone Bay to demonstrate its capabilities to the Marines of Camp Lejeune.

That the system would withstand weather conditions ranging from zero degrees to 113 degrees and submersion in up to five inches of water, was also insect and rodent proof.

The system records shots on any target on the line and indicates if a shooter fired on the wrong target, according to Montgomery of Knoxville, Tenn.

The system also shows where shots that totally missed were located, in addition to suggested windage and elevation adjustments.

Specifications can be modified to accommodate the use of any small-arms weapon in the Marine Corps' arsenal.

The system can also be programmed to display any size of target and can be zoomed in to show close-up shots, such as those commonly seen during a competition. A shooter can also print out a copy of the target.

New system to improve warfighting

Weapons Company, Infantry Training Battalion, School of Infantry participated in its last shoot at the G-3 Infantry Weapons Range Nov. 7, before introducing a new program of instruction for future warfighters.

The current set-up is similar to an infantry battalion — three rifle companies and a weapons company — with the training schedule lasting 15 days.

"The new course will be two days longer with four line companies and an instructor group," said Sgt Jeffery A. Edwards of Sherman, Texas. Edwards is an instructor for the Tube-launched, Optically-tracked, Wire-guided weapons system. The TOW fires a missile normally used to penetrate enemy armored vehicles.

"This provides a better instructor-to-student ratio and additional days to help the students concentrate on the training segments," said TOW Instructor Sgt Ron E. Ducharme of Athol, Mass.

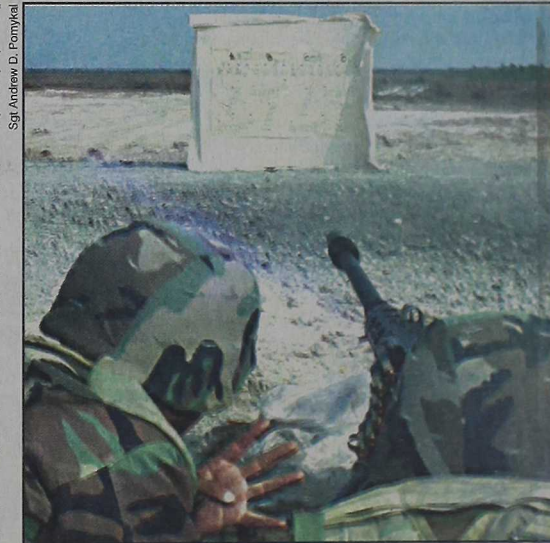

During a training cycle, the students practice infantry squad tactics, patrolling and weapon camouflage/concealment, compile data cards describing pertinent battlefield information, learn weapons' nomenclature and proper maintenance and how to recognize the armored vehicles of various allied and enemy forces.

Additionally, TOW students are also licensed as humvee operators. The complicated missile system is normally employed from atop a humvee.

After graduating from the weapons course, the machine gunners (military occupational specialty 0331) are qualified to fire the 240G 7.62 MM and M2 .50-caliber machineguns and the MK19 40mm automatic grenade launcher, and the 0352's are qualified as TOW gunners.

They may be assigned to a weapons company to provide supporting fire for the rifle companies of a Fleet Marine Force infantry battalion or be selected to serve with a Security Force Company at various Naval installations located worldwide.

"These Marines meet individual training standards by qualifying with the 240G and M2 .50-cal machineguns and the MK19 grenade launcher," said 0331 Section Chief SSgt Mark Morelli of Ridgefield, Conn. "They employ the weapons at targets, firing up to 850 rounds during daylight and with night-vision sights."

The TOW students however, are slightly disadvantaged when training. Due to cost, only two missiles are fired each class for demonstration.

Their training emphasizes the TOW's mechanical functions, electrical system testing, missile inspection/loading and target engagement procedures.

TOW gunners hone marksmanship skills on a simulator that provides both day and night firing conditions.

According to the instructors at SOI, the students will benefit from their revised method of producing warfighters.

Miles earns Legion of Merit

Sgt Bobbie J. Bryant
Marine Combat Correspondent

The director of instruction for Marine Corps Combat Service Support Schools was awarded the Legion of Merit recently in a ceremony aboard Camp Johnson.

LtCol John R. Miles of Staten Island, N.Y., was presented the award by Col J.C. Hardee, the assistant chief of staff for Training, Education and Operations, Marine Corps Base.

Miles reported to G-5, II Marine Expeditionary Force in 1994 to serve as a regional plans officer after graduating from the School of Advanced Warfighting at Quantico, Va. During the next six years, he served as a planner, deputy assistant chief of staff and the assistant chief of staff, G-5.

"He was initially the regional plans officer for the Southern Command," said Hardee, the former chief of staff for II MEF from Clayton, N.C. "He spent six months on Joint Task Force 160 as the plans officer in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, supporting migrant operations."

The JTF was responsible for security, feeding, health and a destructive weather plan for 40,000 migrants, according to Miles. All of these functions required long-term planning.

"Planners coordinate the activities during the development of a plan. Everything a planner does is a team effort," he said.

"The most exciting part of working in the G-5 as a planner was that on a regular basis I was involved in plans that would have elements of II MEF going off to combat or some other crisis," Miles said.

Miles later served as the regional planner for the European Theater.

"He served in this billet during a time when there was a tremendous amount of activity in the U.S. European Command and within NATO," said Hardee.

"He is very well known to both U.S. and allied planners. He attained instant credibility through his diligence and professional performance of duty. He has a great work ethic. He's very intelligent and has been blessed with a great deal of common sense. He worked very hard to take care of the Marines in his section."

Miles traveled extensively in an official capacity throughout Northern Europe, specifically Norway, and to the southern flank of Europe. While there, he developed deliberate war plans in support of NATO and contingency planning in support of Bosnia and Kosovo.

"He spent a lot of time in the Balkans forming plans that might potentially involve U.S. Marines," Hardee said.

"I think that what Lieutenant Colonel Miles brought back to II MEF was important. I think that what's much more important is what he took to Europe as a direct representative of II MEF," he said. "In the eyes of many U.S. and allied officers that he met and worked with in Europe, he represented not just II MEF but also the United States Marine Corps."

Miles took 27 trips to Europe between 1995 and 2000. Ten of those trips were to Bosnia in support of II MEF's role there as part of the strategic reserve.

"We have sent him TAD innumerable times to that theater," Hardee said. Often times these trips were known and planned, but on others he had no notice. Some were for a short period of time; others kept him away from his family for weeks on end.

"For a Marine to serve for six years in the same general type of billet and to maintain such a high level of performance is a significant accomplishment. On an easy day his duties were hard," he said.

"It has been a difficult my family," Miles said. "I have been very difficult focus without my family was absolutely critical the world to me."

Toys for Tots enters 53rd year

GySgt Yolanda Mayo
GLOBE Contributor

This year marks the 53rd anniversary of the Marine Corps reserve Toys for Tots program. The actual campaign kicked off in November, and will run through Dec. 24, when Santa must begin his ride!

The 1999 campaign surpassed all previous records for collecting toys and helping needy children experience the joy of Christmas. Marines and volunteers in 342 communities in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and American Samoa collected and distributed over 13.7 million toys to 5.9 million needy children. This was the most extensive nationwide coverage in the history of Toys for Tots.

Locally, II MACE (MEF Augmentation Command Element), the reserve unit responsible for Toys for Tots, collected nearly 20,000 toys, surpassing their goal by more than 5,000. These toys were distributed to the children of Onslow, Jones, and Lenior counties. Many of the children had been victims of flooding last year. The outpouring of support received from the community in a time of need was nothing short of remarkable.

So, here we are once again asking for your help! If you reflect on your own feelings and recall what it meant to receive a toy at Christmas, you cannot help but realize the positive impact that shiny new toy had on you.

Now, can you imagine how devastating it would have been to receive nothing while all your friends received a new toy? In the wide scope, a toy seems like a very small thing, but it really can make all the difference in the world.

This year, as you begin your holiday shopping, pick up a new unwrapped toy and drop it in one of the Toys for Tots barrels. Help the Marines take care of our most precious natural resource, our children.

Toys for Tots events will be going on all over Camp Lejeune, Jacksonville and the surrounding area. If you would like more information on Toys for Tots, call GySgt Mayo at 451-5173.

New cycle zooms into Corps

A new mechanics course is scheduled to begin in April at the Logistics Operations School on Camp Johnson.

The Military Motorcycle (MILMO) Maintenance Course will feature the Kawasaki KLR650, a dual-purpose military motorcycle designed for street and off-road terrain.

The 13-day course is an advanced-mechanics course for motor transport Marines, according to GySgt Gary W. Nicosia, the section head for power transmissions, advanced mechanics at LOS.

Some of the skills students are taught deal with using common hand tools and supplies, removing and replacing the fuel tank, learning and troubleshooting the electrical system, adjusting the valves, inspecting the steering and removing the motor and transmission.

"We also teach the students how to use the service, base and training manuals," said Nicosia, of Beckley, W. Va.

Mechanics do not work on the motor or transmission because they are under contract and the parts are sent in for repairs, he said.

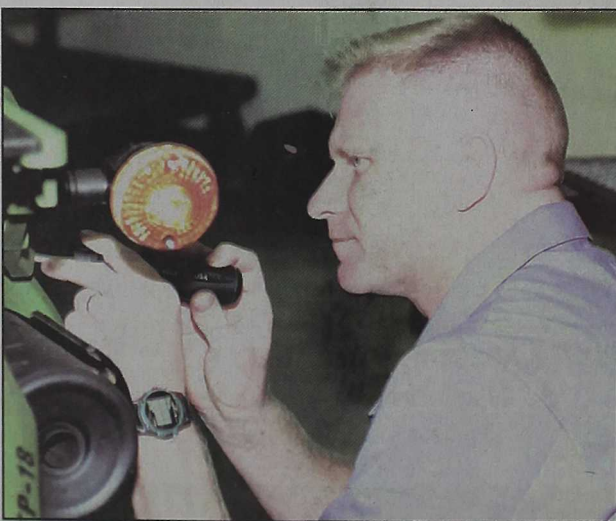

Students in the three test classes were extremely excited at the opportunity to ride the motorcycles, although the instructors stress that these military motorcycles are not toys, according to SSgt Gregory K. Nichols, an advanced mechanics instructor at LOS.

Logistics Operations School has a new act in town. The KLR650 dual-purpose military motorcycle was designed for on- and off-road riding.

The machine weighs 338 pounds without fuel. It is top heavy, so if the rider is off-roading he probably won't be able to control it if he is of a small stature, according to SSgt Edward L. Chambers, staff non-commissioned officer-in-charge of 2d Marine Division Licensing, 2d Marine Division Motor Transportation, G-4.

This $6,518 bike's sole purpose is to be a messenger, according to Chambers of Dahlgren, Ga. The operator would carry documents and light cargo.

"The motorcycle could also be used to transport and support forward observers, military police operations, convoy control and light reconnaissance missions," Chambers said.

The Marine Corps bought this particular model because it is planning to convert it from using gasoline to diesel fuel in 2002. Shipping the bike with gasoline is a bigger fire hazard than shipping it with diesel.

The KLR650 will also be heavier and have more torque with diesel, Nicosia said.

The Corps has already modified the bike by installing blackout drive markers, sidesaddle bags and a gas tank that houses the cooling system, according to Chambers.

A two-week operators course is open to all military occupational specialties for those Marines who are not involved in motor transportation and would like to get a first-hand glance at the motorcycle.

For more information on the operator's course, call 451-9538.

Dental technician wins award

The Jacksonville-Onslow Chamber of Commerce recognized Petty Officer 3rd Class Mitchell W. Blunt as the October Service Member of the Month during a ceremony at the Chamber Nov. 20.

"I'm thankful to my command for putting me up (for the award)," said Cabellon. "It's nice to be recognized."

The Largo, Fla. native is a dental technician at 2d Dental Battalion, 2d Force Support Group in the facilities of the Naval School of Dental Medicine. Blunt entered the Navy in 1988, graduated from the Naval School of Dental Medicine in 1990, then took his next duty at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C., where he graduated from the Field Medical School here in October 1999 and at his present duty station since.

"An exceptionally hard worker, streamlining delivery schedules with fifty percent increase in efficiency," said Tepora D. Beckman, Blunt's supervisor. He is "a self-starter who brings enormous personal energy to the command mission and his community."

"I've been telling him all along, 'He's a great guy,'" said Ruby Valentin, control worker at his unit. "He's a great guy."

"I've always known him to be a hard worker," said his wife, Katrina. "He has so many plaques and awards we can't fit them on the wall. When he goes home, he's going to reach it."

"He's a great husband, too," she said. The Blunts have five children: Jr., Kayla, Brionna, Danielle and Blunt's parents are Bernice and Terry L. Blunt of Largo, Fla., and Terry L. Blunt of Charlotte, Tenn.

By winning the award, Blunt received the following gifts from area businesses and individuals:

What is the Difference between Human Resources Development and Human Resources Management?

Both areas require individuals with the ability to manage people and make decisions that make a difference. Faced with the pressure of global competition, social change and accelerating technological advances managers of today are urged to stay abreast not only of their own success but that of their employees. Both areas demand the manager to achieve and sustain competitive advantages in the company's workforce while monitoring and upholding fair and equal treatment. The Human Resource Developer's position demands they keep the workforce current, trained, challenged, promotable and successful to meet the needs of the organization. Their focus is on recruitment, training, development, interpersonal communications and organizational development. The Human Resource Manager finds a way to keep the organization and the people out of trouble by focusing on thorough hiring practices, labor relations, ethical values and legal issues.

St. Barbara's Day

Arty honors

Cpl Jorge Reyes, Golf Battery, BLT 2/6, 24th MEU(SOC), elevates the gun during an artillery fire mission while participating in NATO's Exercise Dynamic Mix 2000 in Capo Teulada, Sardinia.

LCpl Jorge DeLaRosa and PFC Steven Drexler of Charlie Company, 1st Battalion, 10th Marine Regiment, work on a bolt on a M198 Howitzer. The artillery mechanics said the bolt was loosened, the howitzer would have been unable to fire. It took the pair about 15-minutes and some axle grease to finally loosen the bolt.

CO helps define legacy of St. Barbara

Cpl Valerie A. Martinez
Marine Combat Correspondent

Each year, artillerymen around the world honor the patron saint of artillery, Saint Barbara. The 10th Marine Regiment, 2d Marine Division gives special recognition by coming together for an annual celebration to give thanks for her protection.

In an interview with Col Henry Gobar, commanding officer of 10th Marines, he explained the reasons his unit honors the saint.

1. Can you give me some background on what St. Barbara's Day is?

Barbara was a beautiful maiden who was imprisoned by her father because she embraced Christianity. When she refused to obey him and renounce her new faith, he had her beheaded. Legend has it that upon his returning from the beheading, he was struck by lightning, or according to some sources, fire from heaven. As a logical consequence, Barbara came to be regarded as the sainted patroness of those in danger from thunderstorms, fire, explosion and the like. Because early artillerymen were often exposed to misfires, muzzle bursts and exploding weapons, they adopted St. Barbara as their protector against such occupational dangers.

2. How did you come to find out about St. Barbara?

The legend of St. Barbara was passed down to us from our predecessors. We are merely continuing to pay homage and regard her as our protector against occupational dangers associated with artillery weapons and ammunition.

3. What is the importance of St. Barbara's Day to the 10th Marines?

I think it's our second most important celebration next to the Marine Corps Birthday. It's a good time to feel good about ourselves as artillerymen. It gives us a chance to pay homage to her for giving us protection over the last year.

4. What do your Marines do to celebrate and honor St. Barbara?

We will have a regimental run down Julian C. Smith Blvd. We will also have a field meet. It is a competitive event where we give the St. Barbara's trophy away to the battalion who wins the most points.

5. How long has the statue been in existence at 10th Marines?

The statue you refer to is the Trophy of Saint Barbara. The former regimental executive officer, LtCol Carlos Camarena, specially crafted it last summer, and 1st Battalion, 10th Marines was the first to claim right to it.

6. Which 10th Marines unit do you foresee winning the Trophy of Saint Barbara this year?

I think we have four very competitive artillery battalions and an equally competitive regimental headquarters battery. You can bet that all five units will be doing their best to get the trophy. I expect a close finish.

7. Can you tell me a little more about the Order of Saint Barbara?

The artillerymen have two awards in honor of St. Barbara. The first and most common is the Honorable Order of St. Barbara, normally awarded to artillerymen and those who have served with the artillery and whose performance has stood out far above their peers. The second is the Ancient Order of St. Barbara awarded to a very select few, whose performance and contributions to the artillery community singularly stands out above all others.

8. Will 10th Marines continue to honor the saint?

As long as our business involves working with guns and ammunition, we will continue to honor and look to St. Barbara to protect us from unexpected dangers.

9. Do other services and units observe the saint?

The U.S. Army celebrates St. Barbara in a very similar fashion. Artillerymen in most western countries also regard St. Barbara as their patron saint and often do appropriate ceremonies.

10. Have you been in a situation as an artillery officer where you thought the saint protected your Marines?

I know that St. Barbara is looking out for young Marines on the gunlines. How else do you explain the performance of such superb artillery batteries and battalions in this regiment?

Col Henry Gobar, commanding officer of 10th Marine Regiment, 2d Marine Division, tells about the patron saint of artillery, Saint Barbara, and what his regiment does to honor her.

10th Marines reflects on 86 years of thunder

Cpl Allan J. Grdovich
Marine Combat Correspondent

The "Arm of Decision," also known as 10th Marine Regiment, originated with the activation of Artillery Battalion, 1st Advanced Base Brigade April 25, 1914.

The unit, which first saw action at Veracruz, Mexico, came about when a plan for a Marine artillery regiment to man naval guns was needed in support of a Marine Division.

After hostilities increased during World War I, the battalion was redesignated 10th Regiment.

Following World War I, the Regiment was reorganized several times and July 10, 1930, 10th Regiment was renamed 10th Marines.

Prior to World War II, 10th Marines took part in training exercises in the Caribbean and Pacific only to be led into some of the heaviest fighting of the second World War to include battles at Guadalcanal, Saipan and Okinawa.

At end of the war, 10th Marines relocated to Nagasaki during the occupation of Japan. In 1946, they made Camp Lejeune home.

Some more recent major conflicts the Regiment has encountered include involvement in the Cuban Missile crisis in 1962.

During the 1970s and 1980s 10th Marines participated in peacekeeping duties of the Multi-national Peacekeeping Force in Beirut, Lebanon and also helped the Battalion Landing Team in Grenada during Operation Urgent Fury in 1983.

The 1990s presented a fast-paced operational tempo for 10th Marines beginning with the Persian Gulf conflict, also known as Operation Desert Storm, followed by relief efforts in Florida after Hurricane Andrew left thousands homeless.

During 1997, 10th Marines served in Operation Joint Endeavor providing peacekeeping help in the former Yugoslavia.

In keeping with tradition of artillery units worldwide, 10th

Marines recognizes the patron saint of artillery, St. Barbara.

The patron saint was first recognized by the French in 1417 and is said to provide them protection from the backfire or explosions of their artillery weapons.

The Commanding Officer of 10th Marine Regiment is Col Henry T. Gobar.

Legend gave birth to saint, protector of all cannoneers

Compiled by
GLOBE Staff

According to legend, Saint Barbara was the extremely beautiful daughter of a wealthy heathen named Dioscorus, who lived near Nicomedia in Asia Minor. Because of her singular beauty and fearful that she be demanded in marriage and taken away from him, he jealously shut her up in a tower to protect her from the outside world.

Shortly before embarking on a journey, he commissioned a sumptuous bathhouse to be built for her, approving the design before he departed. Barbara had heard of the teachings of Christ, and while her father was gone spent much time in contemplation. From the windows of her tower she looked out upon the surrounding countryside and marveled at the growing things; the trees, the animals and the people. She decided that all these must be part of a master plan, and that the idols of wood and stone worshiped by her parents must be condemned as false. Gradually she came to accept the Christian faith.

As her belief became firm, she directed that the builders redesign the bathhouse her father had planned, adding another window so that the three windows might symbolize the Holy Trinity.

When her father returned, he was enraged at the changes and infuriated when Barbara acknowledged that she was a Christian. He dragged her before the prefect of the province, who decreed that she be tortured and put to death by beheading. Dioscorus himself carried out the death sentence. On his way home he was struck by lightning and his body consumed.

Saint Barbara lived and died about the year 300 A.D. She was venerated as early as the seventh century. The legend of the lightning bolt which struck down her persecutor caused her to be regarded as the patron saint in time of danger from thunderstorms, fires and sudden death.

When gunpowder made its appearance in the Western world, Saint Barbara was invoked for aid against accidents resulting from explosions — since some of the earlier artillery pieces often blew up instead of firing their projectile, Saint Barbara became the patroness of the artillerymen.

Saint Barbara is usually represented standing by a tower with three windows, carrying the palm of a martyr in her hand.

The patron saint of artillery, Saint Barbara, is honored every year by artillerymen around the world for her protection. Artillerymen with 10th Marines, 2d Marine Division, compete in a field meet to take possession of the statue of Saint Barbara.

Often, too, she holds a chalice and a sacramental wafer and sometimes cannon are displayed near her. In the present calendars, the feast of Saint Barbara falls on December 4th and is traditionally recognized by a formal Dining-In or military dinner, often involving presentation of the Order of Saint Barbara.

The Order of Saint Barbara is an honorary military society of the United States Field Artillery. Both U.S. Marine and Army field artillery along with their military and civilian supporters are eligible for membership. The order is managed by the U.S. Field Artillery Association and two levels of recognition exist.

The most distinguished level is the Ancient Order of Saint Barbara and those who are selected for this honor have achieved long-term, exceptional service to the field artillery surpassing even their brethren in the Honorable Order of Saint Barbara.

The order links field artillerymen of the past and present in a brotherhood of professionalism, selfless service and sacrifice symbolized by Saint Barbara.

The 2d Marine Division Band performed recently during Jumpin' Jobs Day at Brewster Middle School here.

"It is a special day where students talk about different jobs they might want to do as adults," said Jane McHale, the school's band teacher.

"One student wants to be president and handed out business cards."

Students dressed up as doctors, veterinarians, football players and even as Marines to showcase what career interests them.

Some students in the school's band thought a career playing with the 2d MarDiv Band would be cool, and they got a chance to see what that would be like during a performance in the school's gymnasium.

"It was cool," said 8-year-old Taryn N. Wenzel, who played the flute during the performance. "I was nervous, but it was exciting. Students watched and their classmates showed years of hard work alongside the Division Band. Wenzel, who has been playing flute for three years, said she can someday be as good as the professionals.

"It's really fun but it's hard work," said the eighth grader. "I have to have discipline."

The performance was a history lesson when Gys J. Serfass, a sousaphone player, came out dressed as Sousa, the 17th director of the Marine Band. Sousa, a director in 1880, composed the marches Semper Paratus and Stars and Stripes.

"They get inspired, I think," said McHale. "I wonder if they will go home and practice tonight."

Doctors care brings health, happiness

Sgt Sharon G. Angell

It was a regular June workday for Phyllis Fabian. She was stocking shelves with fake leaves used to make crafts when her next step changed everything.

She didn't see the basket that another stock person left sitting in the aisle.

Fabian took another step and tripped over the basket. As she fell, she cut her leg severely. She was then rushed to the Naval Hospital here, where she met a doctor who she says changed her forever. That doctor is LCDR Joseph Benedetto, general surgeon at the Surgery Clinic, Naval Hospital.

"He is the best, gentlest, kindest man and surgeon there is," said the wife of MSgt Carey L. Fabian, staff non commissioned officer in charge of Weapons Training Battalion, Training and Education Command, Quantico, Va. "He took the time to listen to me and take care of me."

Fabian had cut a hole as large as a fist in her leg. She requested to be taken to the Naval Hospital for treatment, where she met Benedetto in the emergency room.

Fabian said Benedetto, who was the surgeon on call that night, was the best person who could have taken care of her.

"I think God was watching over me that night when he sent Dr. B. to me," she said.

Benedetto cleaned Fabian's wound and stitched her leg that night. She explained that Benedetto made her feel very secure about the treatment.

"He has always taken the time to explain things to me and to my daughter," said Fabian. "Dr. B has a great bedside manner and he always makes sure my daughter understands what is going on. He was made to be a doctor."

Following her accident, she had appointments often to have her leg checked. She had surgery in September to have her leg re-checked and her wound cleaned.

"I had to go back every week because I developed an infection in my bone and leg, and I had to be treated with antibiotics constantly to keep it from getting worse," said Fabian.

"Dr. B has taken such great care of me. He has always made sure that I am not in pain and he takes the time to listen," she said. "He makes sure that I am well taken care of and my needs are being met."

Fabian said that Benedetto's crew works great with him.

Petty Officer 2nd Class Phil Misciagno, lead petty officer for the General Surgery Clinic, helps many of the doctors in the clinic, including Benedetto.

"Phil has been so kind to me. He has taken time to make me laugh and talk," said Fabian. "He is a real sweetheart."

Fabian said Misciagno has also gone out of his way to make her feel comfortable.

She explained an incident where she received her medicine and supplies following an appointment and realized when she arrived at home, she did not have the right supplies.

She called the clinic and talked to Misciagno and told him about the mix-up. He took the time to get her proper supplies together and take them to her since she could not drive.

"I like to make sure the patients are taken care of. I want them to be happy, and since she couldn't drive, I knew she needed the stuff and she couldn't get it herself," Misciagno said.

Fabian said she wants to express her deepest thanks to the members of the clinic for their dedication and supportive attitude following the mishap.

"They all have been wonderful to me. They are a wonderful crew up there (Surgery Clinic)," she said.

Students key on mine warfare

Sgt Arthur Stone
Marine Combat Correspondent

No one knows the "ins and outs" of mine warfare training like the instructors of the Landmine Warfare section at the Basic Combat Engineer Course, Combat Engineer Instruction Company, Marine Corps Engineer School.

The instructors keep pretty busy with about 29 classes a year and an average class size of 25 - 30 students, according to SSgt David W. Dickens, an instructor from Danville, Va.

Dickens discussed with his students the various types of mines and how they work and are deployed by various nations. He then instructed the students on the use of the AN/PSS 12 mine detecting set, which can detect a mine up to 12 inches below the surface of the ground and up to one meter below the surface of water.

After the course of instruction, he gave the Marines time to get some "hands-on" time with the equipment.

"Each country and unit has a different standard operating procedure," said Dickens.

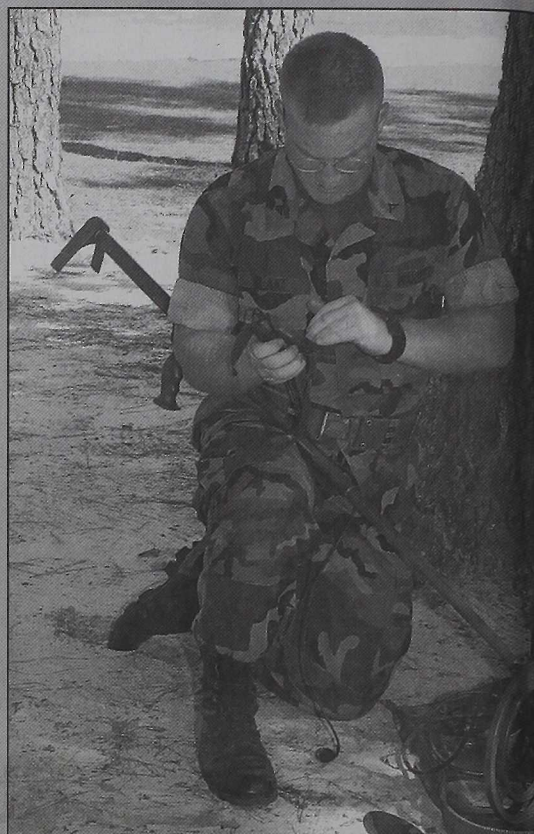

"They accomplish the same mission, even though they don't do it the same way. Our hands-on time depends on the class. These students get approximately six hours of practical application. Here, we give them the basics so they know how to operate them when they get to the fleet, where they'll get more experience."

Dickens admits that training the students isn't always easy. "The most challenging thing about being an instructor is keeping up with change," he said.

"That's real tough to do. You find out new stuff all along. You don't want to pass on outdated information, and you have to keep the students updated about the new stuff out there."

The students listened attentively to Dickens during the class, learning the proper way to sweep for mines with their gear and mark them.

Afterward, Dickens took them to lanes they had set up to simulate the lanes they will sweep in actual minefields. There they were able to train with the gear.

Lcpl Ben L. Black of Salem, Ore., and a student at Combat Engineer Instruction Company, MCES, puts away the headset on an AN/PSS 12 mine detecting kit after a practical application period at Courthouse Bay Demo Range.

"I was an electrician about five years before I came in the Marine Corps and wanted to go more in depth in the engineering field," said PFC Jayson M. Lee, a student from Macon, Ga.

"There was more of a variety of jobs in this field, which made it more interesting, but working with the explosives was my main interest."

"I've enjoyed the training a lot because the instructors here are outstanding," Lee added.

"When they teach a class, they teach it so that everybody understands it. They don't hesitate to answer any question we might have, and I believe the instructors are very knowledgeable about the subjects they cover."

Although the mine warfare training is a small part of what they will learn in the six-week school, it is the most critical when faced with the possibility of operating a minefield somewhere in the world on a future deployment.

"We train them on the course of mine warfare, the foreign mines, U.S. mine detection and minefield setting," said Dickens.

"The most enjoyable part of being an instructor is seeing kids graduate and knowing we're putting a good product out the fleet."

TARGETS from 1B

Montgomery and his son, Allen Montgomery Jr., manned the system's computer controls as Phoenix native, SSgt Wally Johnston, Marksmanship Training Unit, fired several shots at targets down range to demonstrate the system's ability to plot and record shots.

The system detected the passage of all fired projectiles past the monitor system at the target, then plotted and scored each shot.

LtCol Carl Shelton Jr., commanding officer, WTBN, came up with the initiative for phasing in the LOMAH system, which he says will improve Marines' marksmanship abilities in the near future and save money for the Marine Corps over the long term. The LOMAH system will be phased in over the next few years if everything goes as planned.

Plans are underway to have the system compatible with "smart card" technology or to use a live database feed that will automatically enter a shooter's score into the unit diary system for promotions and training purposes.

Shelton cited several contributing factors in pushing the LOMAH system into use in the Marine Corps.

"This electronic scoring and marking system takes about half the time to shoot the KD course," said Shelton.

"This is one of our research and development things we're working on. It may be a few years until you see it, but we have to go this way. We can't keep doing business the way we've been doing it."

"My intent is to reduce the amount of time Marines are spending on work details to make the KD course of fire work," Shelton added. "An inordinate amount of time is being spent on making targets, pulling targets in the butts, care and maintenance of target carriages, etcetera."

"We are not spending enough time on marksmanship."

"Plus, we are hemorrhaging from the cost of doing business on the rifle range the same way we did it during the 1950s and 60s."

"We have got to leverage available technology that makes marksmanship qualification fast, efficient and wastes less time for Marines, but retains the same amount of rigor Marine marksmanship is renowned for."

Shelton said they are aggressively looking for better ways of doing the business of marksmanship in the Marine Corps.

Shelton's goal is to sharpen Marine marksmanship skills across the board to the degree that no one goes unqualified on the annual KD Course.

They have even begun initiatives and award incentives to raise the "bar" by making a sharpshooter score the lowest possible qualification.

However, to better serve the Marines, Shelton said he feels they need a system that will relieve them from all the mundane tasking outside of actually firing the KD Course.

According to Shelton, the LOMAH system that has been utilized by the Army for the past 10 years would be extremely valuable if procured for the following reasons:

Eliminates Butts Service

- No more target pullers
- No more pit NCO
- No more SNCO/Officer verifiers
- No butt/pit facilities
- With no personnel down range near the impact area, bullet trap can be installed in order to reduce and eliminate the amount of lead deposited in the soil and water

Increases Speed

- Tower control method can be used to control the entire firing line
- Individual control method can be used to let a Marine fire each stage of fire without commands from the tower

- A Marine would have the ability to simply advance to each stage of fire and finish the KD course
- Scoring occurs the second a round is fired, instead of waiting for butts to spot, plot and run targets up and down
- Instant tally allows individual total scores to be known the moment after the last shot is fired from the 500-yard slow fire stage
- Rapid diary entry occurs because all scores are fed into Weapons Training Battalion central computer instead of being tallied and posted manually by stats section of WTBN
- Smart card configuration means that once a Marine completes the KD course, a swipe of his smart card will automatically post his score to his training file stored on the card

Other Enhancements realized with LOMAH

- KD firing evolutions are reduced because the Marine remains stationary and engages targets at the 200, 300, and 500-yard lines
- Time is saved by reducing movement
- No movement down range increases safety for Marines and reduces the amount of Marines needed to supervise and run the range
- Stationary firing position allows the Marine to focus on marksmanship data and target engagement, reducing the idle waiting time for moving elements
- Stationary control tower allows less time, money and effort to each and every relay
- A fixed communication tower would be more reliable, affording simple to fix in a stationary tower
- Inclement weather means the KD Course can be held without much interference
- Individual Marines or degraded targets because the Marine is under a covered over-hang and targets are waterproofed
- Scoring accuracy is increased because there is no guessing where a round landed because round is digitally tracked and located
- Manpower reductions are realized across the entire battalion organization
  - Fleet Assistance Personnel
  - Temporary Addition
  - Permanent personnel
  - Line safety personnel

Museum Fest recognizes Cor

Richlands Museum Director Albert Potts points out old female Marine PT uniforms along with other Marine Corps memorabilia that can be seen at the museum. The exhibit features the significance and changing face of the military in the Onslow County area.

Cpl Allan J. Grdovich
Marine Combat Correspondent

The "Remembering Camp Davis and Camp Lejeune" display located at the Richlands Museum Changing Gallery officially opened Nov. 5 at the Museum Fest held for the 24th consecutive year here.

Col Mark T. Goodman, the assistant chief of staff for Installation, Safety and Security, Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, did the honors at a ribbon-cutting ceremony marking the official opening of the exhibit. The ceremony commemorates the history of the military, particularly the Marine Corps, in the Onslow County area.

Food stands selling hot dogs, pizza and Southern delicacies lined nearby Wilmington Street, while local bands played live on a nearby stage.

About 15,000 people were in attendance, according to Museum Director Albert Potts of Jacksonville.

At the first-floor exhibit, visitors to the museum had a pictorial glimpse of military, along with the building and Camp Davis and Camp Lejeune days of construction.

According to Potts, the bases significant role in the population growth of Onslow and surrounding "The city of Jacksonville had about 870 before Camp Lejeune 1940s. Now, more than 41,000 work on the base alone. They're the local economy," said Potts, with the museum since it opened 25 years.

Camp Davis, located on U.S. 1, Camp Lejeune, was the home base 60,000 soldiers during World War II until after the end of the war.

"My favorite part of this event is the community together, and at the same time remembering the important role here," said Tarawa Terrace 15 worker Dan Scott.

The county-funded exhibit will remain open until April.

President thanks military families

Andree Swanson
GLOBE Contributor

Sending his best wishes, President William J. Clinton thanked military families and the men and women of the Armed Forces for their support in a letter to those who observed Military Family Week, Nov. 19 - 26.

In honor of Military Family Week, the president joined its sponsor, the Armed Services YMCA, in recognizing families for their sacrifices. The text of the letter, signed by President Clinton, follows.

"Warm greetings to all those observing Military Family Week, 2000, sponsored by the Armed Services YMCA of the USA.

"During this week we recognize in a special way the unique demands placed on the families of our men and women in uniform. Whether moving from base to base, creating new homes in unfamiliar places, or enduring separation from their loved ones, these brave Americans play a vital role in the strength and readiness of our Armed Forces, and all Americans owe them a debt of gratitude.

"Hillary and I have been privileged to meet many military families over the past eight years. The selflessness with which these men, women, and children face the challenges of separation, and the courage with which they send their loved ones off to all corners of the world, provide an inspiring example of patriotism for their fellow Americans. I am proud to salute each of you for the many sacrifices you willingly make every day for the sake of your loved ones and for the well-being of our great nation.

"Hillary joins me in wishing all of our military families and the men and women of our Armed Forces a blessed and safe Thanksgiving and every happiness in the years to come."

Marines, Sailors lend helping h

Taking time out from their normal duties, Marines from Military Police Company, Headquarters Bn, 2d Marine Division, help relocate the Finders Keepers thrift shop, which needed more space for their expanding business.

Cpl Valerie A. Martinez
Marine Combat Correspondent

Marines and Sailors from various units at Camp Lejeune spent time relocating the Finders Keepers thrift store recently.

The old store, owned and operated by the County Women's Center, could not accommodate the donations of clothing and other items.

"We are so fortunate to have received so many donations that we had to expand our space," said Betsy A. Williams of Jackson, Miss., the Finders Keepers thrift store.

According to LCDR David A. Casselberry, Fla., and chaplain with the 2d Marine Division, the series of ongoing projects he organizes for the community.

"We realized without our help it would not be able to get this done," said Sgt Zachary, military policeman with Headquarters Bn, 2d Marine Division from Virginia Beach, who always willing to help out the community.

The work got done quickly with the help of the servicemembers.

"I thought it would take all day," said Williams. "So many people showed up to help out."

The Marines' and Sailors' help was greatly appreciated by the owners of the store.

"I would like to give a big thank you to who has helped," Williams remarked. "We have successfully done this without any problems."

The new store is located at 708 N. 1st St. Hours of operation are Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

'Marine' makes mischief

Once a Marine, always a Marine ... That's my motto. All four years of my life, I've lived the military life.

There was a time that I played with toys, watched Sesame Street, dressed up, sang songs "oh baby, bring it all to me" and even took sweet little ole pictures. Nope, no more! I'm a mean, green, "biting" machine! Please note, my mommy won't let me bite any human beings, just my stuffed animals. Not to worry, I'm still a Marine in the making ... I've gotta be tough, and I've gotta be ready for ... anything.

Stand by! Shhhhhh! Keep quiet.

Here they come, it's the enemy. Two of them. Gotta hide ... Gotta camouflage with the couch ... I can't be seen. One shot, one pill (for their headache after I'm finished). The enemy is talking. I can just make out what they're saying. A-ha! They are looking for me. Well, they won't find me until I'm ready to be found. This is good. The enemy is confused! Wonderful. Now for the attack.

... Five, four, three, two, one ... GET DOWN! NOW! GIVE ME FIVE! NOW! DO IT! JUST DO IT MARINES! Oh, it's my mom and my godmother - both Marines. Good - they shouldn't have a problem following orders. What did you say, mom? What do I think I'm doing?

Knee High 2 a Duck
GYSGT BESS
GAMBLE-WILLIAMS

is sooo funny? I am a Marine in the making ... Look at me Marines ... I am not laughing, so get serious!

A Change Will Come

Amazing grace how sweet it sounds,
But what difference does it make, if we're still hell bound.

We're stepping out on faith, and we're dressed to kill,
Remembering for God I'll die, for God I'll live.

That slogan of truth, that slogan of faith,
The undying destiny of those pearly gates.

It's the armor of God that is displayed on my back,
It's my shield of faith that absorbs Satan's attack.

My mission's well known and purpose well stated,
To each is his own, but through Christ I made it.

Looking back at the world of poverty that I came from,
I'm convinced, I believe, "a change will come."

LCTV-10

CPL JEREMY RUBENSTEIN

The Hunley, the fateful encounter of the Monitor and the Merrimack, history's first ever battle of ironclad ships, was not the U.S. Civil War's lone naval milestone. Desperate to break the stranglehold of the North's coastal blockade, the South built and sent into war the hand-powered submarine CSS Hunley.

Armand Assante (as LT Dixon, the sub's skipper) and Donald Sutherland (as Gen Beauregard, the Confederate commander at Charleston) star in this fact-based tale of the Hunley and its crew.

The ship is iron, engineered from a large steam boiler. The crew consists of nine volunteers, men destined to change the world forever in a submersible ship that was the first combat vessel of its kind, and the last hope of the Confederacy.

Catch this amazing story of courage, ingenuity and the first submarine every day at 8 p.m.

For those of you looking to explore the "Windy City," be sure to catch LCTV-10's ongoing Liberty Call! series.

Chicago is a city of unsurpassed beauty with natural and man-made wonders, miles of sparkling lakefront and a stunning skyline. "Destination Chicago" will take you into the heart of the city, exploring the diversity and distinct character of Chicago's neighborhoods. This video gives a unique perspective in City's stunning architecture and shops and restaurants.

Make sure to watch Liberty Call! 11:30 a.m. and then again at 4:30 p.m.

America's Drug Problem Is Not As Big As You Think.

It can start as a dare. Or youthful curiosity. Or it may be a way to escape problems at home. Whatever the reasons, studies show that an alarming number of young children are trying drugs. Unfortunately, too many parents still do not believe that their kids are at risk.

The truth is, it's never too early to start teaching your kids about the dangers of drugs. If you're not sure how to talk to them, call 1-800-624-0100 and ask for a free booklet called Growing Up Drug-Free – A Parent's Guide To Prevention. Call today, because if you don't take care of little problems, they can easily grow into big ones.

I Bet You Didn't Know Brought To You

by Ryan Lanier

Surprisingly, of all the 65 Heisman Trophy winners in college football history, ONLY 6 are now in the pro football Hall of Fame. You'd think there would have been more, but there haven't. The only Heisman winners in the pro football Hall of Fame are Earl Campbell, Tony Dorsett, Paul Hornung, O.J. Simpson, Roger Staubach and Doak Walker.

One of the strangest cases in sports concerns big league baseball manager Davey Johnson. He's finished FIRST OR SECOND in 11 of his 12 full seasons as a manager -- and yet he's been fired by 4 teams, the Mets, Reds, Orioles and Dodgers.

A 57-year old retired policeman, Freddie Crockett of Roanoke, Va., has been playing golf for years. He never made a hole-in-one in his life -- but on July 17, 2000, he made TWO in 30 minutes. He made a hole-in-one on the second hole, and then made another one on the fourth hole, 30 minutes later.

I bet you didn't know that Tire Country has

'Jarhead' life remembered

Compiled by GLOBE Staff

"A terrific blast to my rear slammed me flat on my face. Debris fell all over and around me. A very large something slammed down beside me. I realized it was, until a minute before, a human being. Now it was almost beyond recognition, burned black and bloated, its arms and legs still jerking like a puppet."

That's how Ralph Walker-Willis described his first moments after landing on the beach at Iwo Jima on February 19, 1945. Seconds later, he was knocked unconscious by an exploding Japanese shell. These events and many others are described in My Life as a Jarhead. The new book has been issued by The Patrice Press, a Tucson publisher.

Willis enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps 10 days after the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor, beginning a four-year journey that ended in the same place it started - the USMC base at San Diego. He describes the rigorous boot camp training, the three days he spent absent without leave in Hawaii (a time he spent in the company of a young woman), for which he had no regrets even though he was court-martialed for it.

Shortly after the landing on Iwo, he raised his eyes to see the American flag being raised atop Mount Suribachi in one of the most dramatic moments of World War II.

At war's end, Willis became part of the U.S.

Army of Occupation, stationed in Japan.

His clear, easily read style alternates both humor and poignancy in describing the ubiquitous K rations or the killing of his comrades. And like so many combat veterans of that war, he remembers the experience with pride, fondness, and sometimes anger, when he is exposed to the revisionist doctrines of some modern-day historians.

His contempt for such analysis is echoed by the military experts who introduce his text - Col Gil Ferguson, who wrote the Foreword, and William J. Hopwood, author of the introduction. A haunting postscript, "Iwo Now," was provided by Maj J. A. Woggon.

Bank Repossessed Cars to Sold Directly to the Public

Morehead City Dealership Disposing of 75 Bank Repos and Used Vehicles for Only $59 Then Start Making Payments*

MOREHEAD CITY, NC - Bank Repossessed cars and trucks are among the most hunted-for bargains in the automotive industry. Unfortunately for John Q. Public, they're also the hardest to come by.

Banks often unload repossessed vehicles to car dealers at rock-bottom prices - allowing dealers to re-sell them for retail value. But bargain-seekers can take heart: This week, Rick Gladwell Chrysler Dodge Jeep is going to change that.

This Wednesday, November 29th through Saturday, December 2nd, Rick Gladwell Chrysler Dodge Jeep will offer 75 bank repossessed, lease return and other used vehicles for thousands below normal values, and pass the savings on to their customers.

"These vehicles have been acquired at incredible savings from banks (repos), auctions, and other sources," John Martin of Rick Gladwell Chrysler Dodge Jeep said. "We have been asked to sacrifice this inventory immediately - regardless of loss of profit. And if that means selling these vehicles for near or below wholesale, then that's what we'll do."

Every bank repossessed and other pre-owned vehicle will be available for just a $59 acquisition fee* then start making payments. "It's that simple," said Martin. "To

In a season plagued by scheduling conflicts and rain delays, the sun came out to shine during the intramural 8-man tackle football championship game played Tuesday at Liversedge field.

For the 7-1 team from 8th Marines, the only thing better than the weather was their victory over undefeated 8th ESB, 40-28.

ESB held the lead for the first half of the championship game largely due to the valiant efforts of their tailback Sgt Derrick Lancaster.

He scored the first touchdown of the game on a 52 yard run in the first quarter.

Quarterback LCpl Shane Burke passed the ball off to wide receiver PFC Avias Jones who scored for ESB's second touchdown, and a successful two point conversion brought the score to 15-0.

8th Marines got in the game with a touchdown by LCpl Ahmard Hall, but the two-point conversion attempt was unsuccessful, bringing the score to 15-6 at the end of the first quarter.

Lancaster stormed down the field again during the second quarter giving ESB their third touchdown by sprinting the length of the field.

8th Marines replied with a touchdown pass by Pvt Jay Torres, bringing the first half to a close with 8th Marines trailing ESB by 10 points, 22-12.

8th Marines head coach 1stSgt Pedro Malu must have squeezed some oranges during half time because his team came out with the juice.

A fumble recovered by 8th Marines on ESB's five-yard line was just enough to give the team an edge.

Hall took the dropped ball to the end zone for a touchdown.

Another successful two point conversion put 8th Marines down by only 2 points, 22-20.

A fumble by Lancaster was alright with Cpl Curtis Miller, whose quick recovery of the ball gave 8th Marines their next touchdown.

The two-point conversion was no good, but 8th Marines were on top at the end of the third quarter, 26-22.

The juice kept flowing for the 8th Marines during the fourth quarter.

Hall recovered another fumble and scored another touchdown, followed by another successful two-point conversion.

For good measure 8th Marines took the ball in for one more touchdown.

With three minutes remaining in the game, Jones scored again for ESB, bringing the final game to a close with a score of 40-28.

It was one heck of a game, played by two closely matched teams. ESB should find no shame in their defeat, said their head coach, MSgt Lewis Hampton.

New River rolls but gives up first touchdown of year

The New River 49ers conquered the Lejeune Packers 47-6 in Division II football championship action recently held at Liversedge Field.

Although the Packers lost to the 49ers, they are the only team to score on the undefeated team in the 8 to 11 year-old league all year.

The 49ers have six returning players from last year's team. "Our six return players came back this year with a goal," said Gary Clark, 49ers assistant coach, "to finish up what they didn't last year on this field." Last year the team also made it to the Super Bowl, but didn't succeed in winning the game.

Clark said the 49ers have averaged about 30 points a game, partially due to their passing-game. Some team mothers had their reasons why the team has done so well.

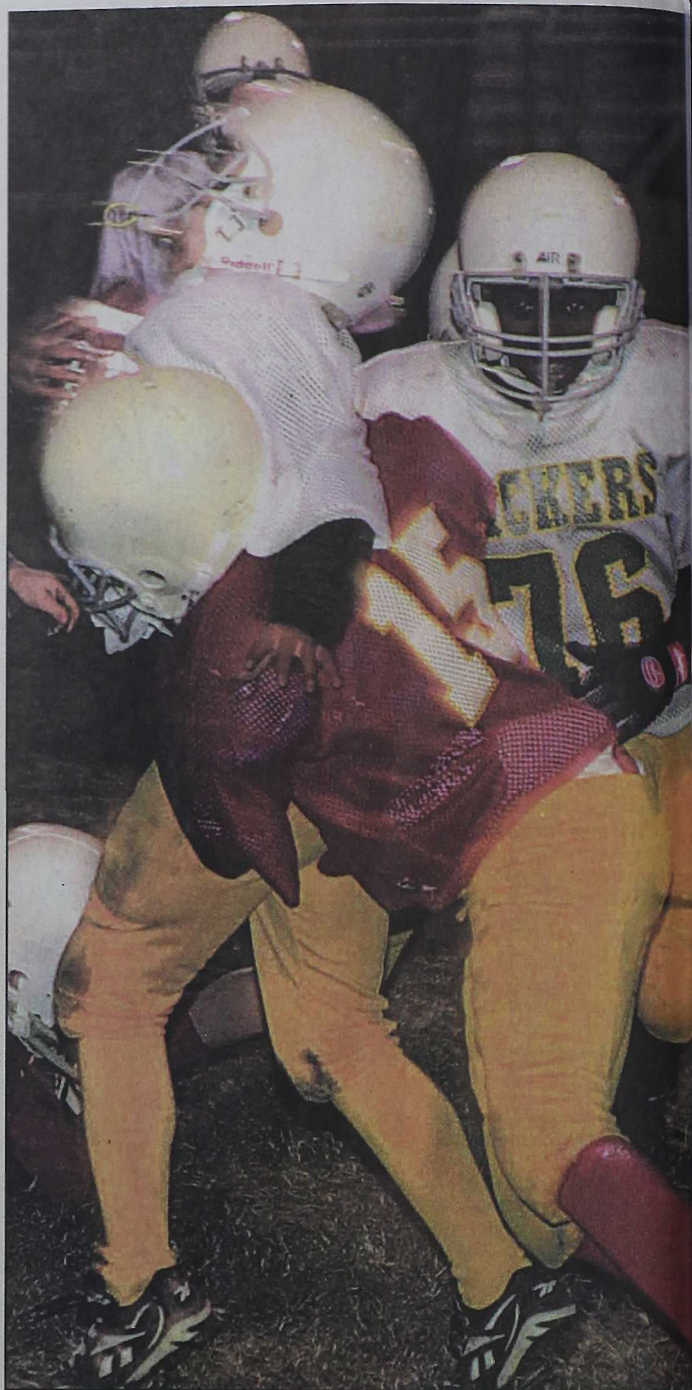

Michelle Butler, mother of 49er Zachary Butler, said the team has learned a lot about teamwork this season from practicing twice a week and holding team meetings every Friday.

She said support from the parents was wonderful this year.

"Of course we owe everything to the coaches," said Butler. "They [coaches] taught them [players] how to play football and enjoy it."

The Camp Lejeune Rams stomped the New River Falcons 27-13 at Liversedge Field recently in the Division I title game.

With five minutes left in the fourth quarter, the New River Falcons had possession of the ball.

A pass was fumbled and recovered by Camp Lejeune Rams' runningback Jelton Vanderpool.

Vanderpool delivered the ball into the end zone for his fourth touchdown, securing Lejeune's victory as the 11 to 17-year-old Division I football champions.

The Falcons scored early in the first quarter when runningback Lamark Williams broke through the Rams defensive line for a touchdown.

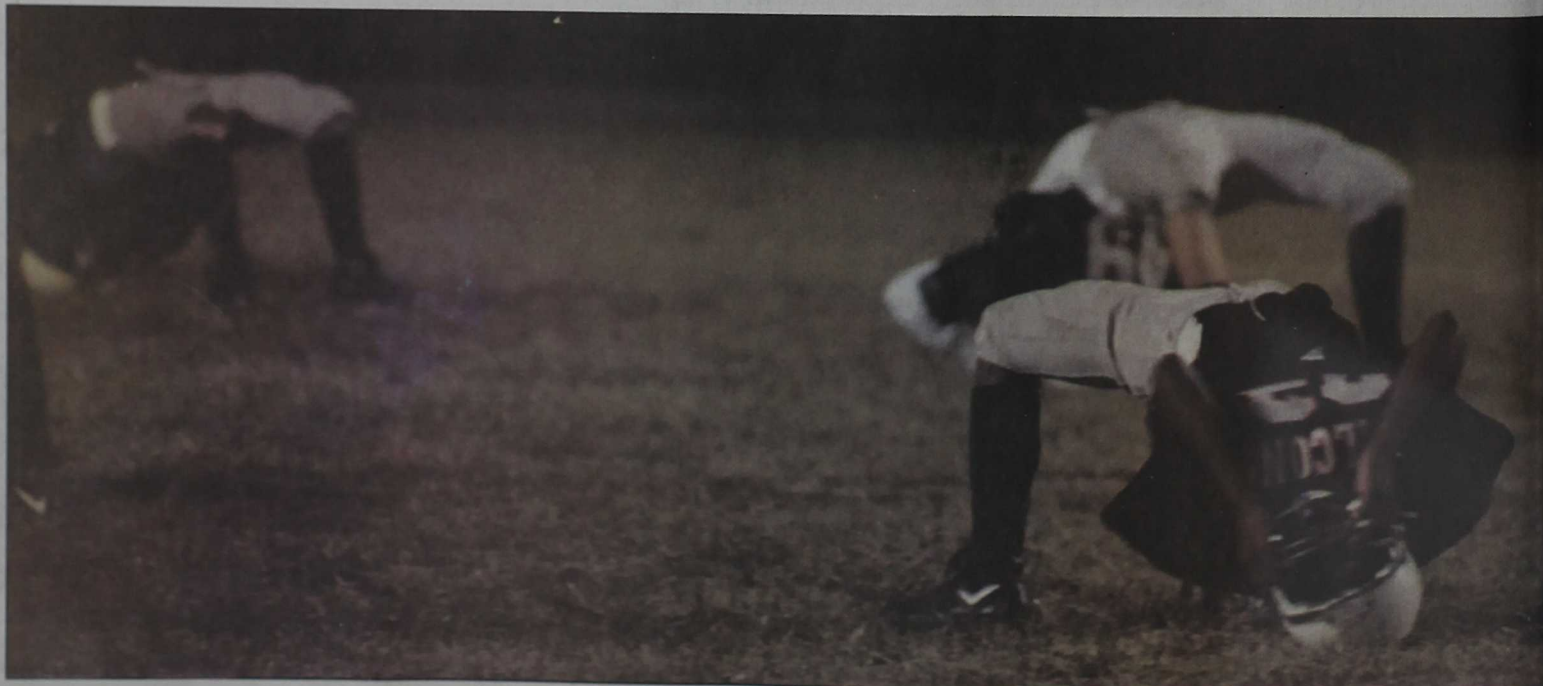

"They usually get into earlier in the game," said Meadows, with Marine Corps Service Support Schools coach for the Rams. "Once they're in their groove they're unstoppable."

The Rams made their point shortly after the Falcons' tying the game.

In the second quarter, the Rams made two touchdowns for one-point conversion William Tosick.

In the fourth quarter, Antwan Mullins caused and recovered a fumble, positioning the team closer to allowing Falcons' runningback Hudson to score.

The final points came from a point conversion by Rams' Maurice C. Knight Jr.

8th Game from 1D

"Our team made improvements through the season both offensively and defensively and the team really came together," said Hampton. "We played the whole year and did not lose a game until today. My team gave their heart and took one game at a time and played hard."

And Coach Malu is satisfied with the 8th Marines victory. "It's a great feeling, we had a slow start, but we collectively got together and played basic football and we overcame."

and caught a pass for 5 yards to account for more than half his team's total offense against a Rose Bowl-bound team? It happened as his Washington State Cougars (4-7, 2-6) were swamped by the Washington Huskies (10-1, 5-1), 51-3, in the 93rd game of their series. The Cougars picked up only 210 yards in total offense in their cold Martin Stadium, with temperatures in the 20s. Three of Washington State's losses were in overtime.

Former Marine wide receiver Isaac Brown (1st Supply Bn, Camp Pendleton) caught six passes for 33 yards as Florida A&M (9-2, 7-1) defeated Bethune-Cookman (9-2, 6-2), 31-28, before 70,719 at Orlando to capture the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference title. Like the Broncos' Mike Anderson and Minnich, Brown played at Mt. San Jacinto (Calif.) JC. But the Rattlers lost Saturday to Western Kentucky (11-1, 27-0, in the first round of the Div. I-AA playoffs. Brown again caught five passes, for 37 yards.

Miami, needing points for the BCS standings, ran over Boston College (6-5), coached by former Marine Tom O'Brien, 52-6. Former Marine Keith Jackson called the Notre Dame-USC game for ABC TV.

A strong Wofford defensive effort led to a 24-6 season-closing victory at Div. I-AA Louisiana-Monroe. With the victory, the Terriers — coached by former Marine Mike Ayers — concluded with a 7-4 overall record and 5-3 in the Southern Conference. The seven victories are the most since Wofford began Div. I-AA play in 1995 and the highest total since a 7-3-1 mark as a Div. II member in 1993. It's also the Terriers' first win over a Div. I-A opponent since the NCAA reclassified into I-A and I-AA football in 1982. The win gave Ayers his 77th victory at Wofford, tying him with Conley Snidow (1953-66) as the school's all-time winningest coach. He also was named the Southern Conference Coach of the Year.

In its weekly This Week in College Football, the National Football Foundation and the College Hall of Fame recalled that on Nov. 12, 1894, former Marine Arthur Poe, of Princeton, stole the ball from a Yale player and ran 95 yards for a touchdown and a 6-0 victory.

PRO FOOTBALL

With superstar Terrell Davis out again with an injury, former Marine Mike Anderson stepped in to gain 97 yards on 19 carries and catch six passes for 41 yards as the Broncos edged the Chargers, 38-37.

But Sunday was even better, more spectacular, as the 27-year-old, 230-pound "tough guy" rushed for a career-high 195 yards, highlighted by an 80-yard rumble just 28 seconds after the Seahawks had tied the score.

Thanks to a block that knocked out two defensive backs, Anderson escaped Shawn Springs at the 15-yard line for the game-winner as the Broncos (8-4) defeated Seattle, 38-31.

"I was just thinking at the moment: 'Get in the end zone,' I saw the DB (Springs) coming across, but I was not going to be stopped," Anderson said.

He also ran 15 yards for a TD and caught two passes for 14 yards. He was the No. 10 rusher in the AFC with 776 yards entering the game and now is only 29 short of 1,000. Sunday, the Broncos travel to Atlanta.

Former Marines: Steve Szabo is an assistant with the Jaguars, who beat the Titans, 16-13; Jay Robertson is an assistant with the Giants, who downed the Cardinals, 31-7; Jim Erkenbeck and Mike Wauflle are assistants with the Raiders, who beat the Falcons, 41-14; Mike Sweatman is an assistant with the Jets, who beat the Bears, 17-10; Phil Pettey is an assistant with the Saints, who beat the Rams, 31-24; and Les Steckel is offensive coordinator with the Bucs, who beat the Bills, 31-17.

Rookie defensive end John Miley (Lenoir-Rhyne, Lejeune) had a solo tackle, his fourth of the season, when the 49ers downed the Falcons, 16-6.

Monday Night Football's Oakland-Denver game at Mile High Stadium mentioned the two teams' AFL birth in 1960.

The Oct. 27 edition of THE GLOBE mentioned Oakland's former Marine players. Denver's included Hardy Brown (see below), back Al Carmichael (USC) 1960-61, back Jay Dale Evans (Kansas State) 1961, guard-linebacker Bob Griffin (Arkansas) 1961, guard Johnny Ray Hatley (Sul Ross State) 1960, tackle Don King (Kentucky) 1960, tackle Jack Mattox (Fresno State) 1961-62, guard-tackle Mike Montler (Colorado, 1977 and the Super Bowl), and end Joe Young (Marquette, St. Benedict's) 1960-61. Col Henry Gotard USMC, a guard from Villanova, had a 1962 try-out. Head coaches included former Marines Jack Faulkner (1962-64) and John Ralston (1972-76).

Assistants included former Marines Mike Giddings (1976), Griffin (1966), Jim Martin (1962), Nick Nicolau (1981-87), Sam Rutigliano (1967-70), Ernie Stautner (1991-93) and Les Steckel (1993-94).

ESPN's Nov. 13 broadcast of NFL's Greatest Moments carried a segment on former Marine linebacker Hardy "Thumper" Brown (SMU, Tulsa), considered by some observers the roughest, toughest defender in NFL history.

He also is the only player to appear in the four leagues of that era: All-American Football Conference: Brooklyn 1948, Chicago Hornets 1949; NFL: Baltimore 1950, Washington 1950, San Francisco 1951-56, Chicago Cardinals 1956; CFL: Hamilton 1956; and AFL: Denver 1960. He made 13 interceptions and scored 43 points, including 25 PATs. "It's a sissy game today," he said.

HBO's Inside the NFL (Len Dawson & Co.) Nov. 16 took a look back at Hall of Fame fullback Joe "The Jet" Perry, who played for the 49ers from 1948-60 and Colts in 1961-62. With them, he carried 1,929 times for 9,723 yards and 71 TDs plus caught 260 passes for 2,021 yards and 12 TDs. He also returned 33 kickoffs for 758 yards and a TD.

He even kicked a field goal and six PATs as part of his 513 points. From Compton (Calif.) JC, he led Alameda (Cal.) NAS to a 12-2 record that included a 17-6 win over MCAS El Toro and West Coast Aviation Conference and Navy titles. But the Quants beat Alameda for the All-American 26-0. XFL Desert Storm Errick Herrin, a 6-2, 235-pounder and '95 co-captain, was a territorial pick by the XFL in the draft. He was with the Cowboys (1996) and Broncos (1998) before signing with the Southern Timberwolves (Midwest Football League).

GOLF

Former Marine Jack Burke was one of eight formally inducted into the World Hall of Fame. He was Master's after being eight times and the 1956 PGA Champion.

He turned pro in 1942. In tournaments, his first the Grande Valley Open, and a Cup team member in 1950, 1955, the captain in '57.

Burke first made a name on the PGA Tour in 1950, won three events and finished with 16 top 10s, his most.

But Burke is better known when he won four tournaments and five overall, and, of course, he was a go-fer for the El Paso Marines football team in 1950.

John Gunn is an independent journalist and former Marine officer. He has written two books on Marines and football.

Traders

TRADERS is a free service provided by the Public Affairs Office and submitted by active duty and retired military personnel and their dependents, and civilian personnel aboard Camp Lejeune and MCAS New River. Ads must be submitted each week and reach the Public Affairs Office by noon Friday for the following week's publication. Ads should be submitted on a trader form, available here or at the Public Affairs Office. Ads are reserved for the exchange or sale of personal goods only. Ads for personal services or businesses may not be printed. The Public Affairs Office reserves the right to withhold ads that may be deemed inappropriate for any reason. Official phone numbers cannot be listed. Limit is three ads per week. If the Public Affairs Office receives more ads than space permits certain ads may not be published until the following week.

- Individual forms must be filled out for each "category" of items (automobiles, pets, etc.) and written legibly.
- No more than 25 words per form.
- Trader ad submissions cannot be accepted by phone, guard mail, or fax, as these means are reserved for official business only.

Changing with the times...

There is a new and improved method of submitting trader ads from your home, through the Camp Lejeune website. Follow these easy steps to submit your trader ad in THE GLOBE.

- Go to the Camp Lejeune website at www.lejeune.usmc.mil
- Click on "The Globe" on the right side of the page.
- Click on "Trader Ads" on the right side, read the rules and follow the steps to submit your ad.
- Make sure and include your phone number IN THE AD along with your personal information and do not type in ALL CAPS. LIMIT THREE ADS PER WEEK PER PERSON.

You can also submit your ad through mail by dropping it off at the Public Affairs Office.
