Commandant sends birthday greetings

During the past year, the American people have commemorated pivotal events in the history of our nation that have spotlighted why we make Marines and how we win battles. We honored nations and alliances that dared to act. We honored units and remembered the battles they won. However, the most powerful remembrances honored people — their devotion, and their many selfless acts of valor. People — individual Marines — have, and always will be, the strength of our Corps. This year we stood in awe of their valor and determination. We saluted their courage and commitment. We remembered with reverence their sacrifice and accomplishment. Virtues that mold our Corps today. This was truly a year to reflect on the accomplishments and contributions of generations of Marines — true American heroes — who, through their actions, emblazoned forever the name "Unites States Marine" across the campaigns of the Pacific and Korea.

woven into the very fabric of our battle color. However, while we reflect on our past, let us also rededicate ourselves to a future of improvement. For, as good as we are now, we must be better tomorrow. The challenges of today are the opportunities of the 21st Century. Both will demand much of us all.

As we close on the 220th year of this faithful Corps of Marines, I have complete confidence that each of you — the Marines, Sailors and civilians, and the families who support us and make up our Corps — is up to the challenges that lie ahead. Today, as we celebrate our proud history, enjoy our rich traditions, and honor those who have gone before us, let us also look ahead — to a Corps the nation will turn to when she needs a force first on the scene, first to quell disturbances, first to fight, first to help — to a Corps that we build for our nation's future — to a 21st Century Corps that stands ready when the nation, as she always has, says "Send in the Marines."

Our warfighting legacy is one of duty, strength, sacrifice, discipline and determination. These themes are cornerstones of the individual Marine and of our Corps. Indeed, they are

Blowin' in the wind

Strong winds hit the base during thunderstorms Friday evening and Saturday morning causing extensive damage to trees, vehicles and buildings. A government vehicle, above, belonging to 2nd FSSG was damaged when tree limbs broke and fell on it. Right, a section of the reviewing stand from W. P. T. Hill field lies twisted and broken in the driveway of the Base Staff Judge Advocate's Office after being tossed across Holcomb Boulevard by the high winds. Winds reached tornado strength at times as storms swept through the area.

New Primary Care Clinics help simplify health care delivery

Globe staff

On October 1, a new health care contract became effective for the more than 110,000 patients in this area. It replaced two contracts which covered the former Navy Care Clinic (NavCare) and Acute Care Clinic (ACC) at Naval Hospital Camp Lejeune, according to Navy Capt. Michael L. Cowan, hospital commander.

The doors are open to the Navy Primary Care Clinic and the Hospital Primary Care Clinic on an appointment basis, according to Cowan. "The old system was two contracts," Cowan said. NavCare was seeing patients by appointment and Acute Care was working on a walk-in basis. "Walk-ins have always been a problem," Cowan said. "It's very difficult to keep (germs) down in the community when you have a large room where everybody comes and waits for hours to be seen.

"For a long time we have had that kind of sick-call atmosphere where there were no constraints — sit down and wait and sooner or later a doctor will get to you," he said. That era in medicine is now changing and will be much smoother, Cowan said. That era is managed care.

When the contracts came up for renewal, Cowan said it presented a golden opportunity to improve the health care system here. There are more phone lines which brings about more access and more services than were available.

"We've put (all the clinics) on appointments that are triaged by nurses who can get sick patients in the same day, not so sick patients can be seen the next day or within 48 hours and routine things

Toys campaign begins

EDITOR'S NOTE: Consult next week's Globe for the drop-off stations closest to you.

For 48 holiday seasons, Marines have put down their guns and picked up items such as teddy bears, trucks and other toys to give the children of needy families a chance to enjoy a Merry Christmas like everyone else.

The Toys for Tots program has been conducted by the Marine Corps Reserve for the past 47 years, bringing Christmas cheer to communities nationwide. The first campaign kicked-off in Los Angeles, and the annual collection and distribution of toys now runs from October through December in over 200 communities across the United States.

The campaign has managed to collect an average of 7,000,000 new toys annually that reach an average of 3,500,000 underprivileged children. Helping the Marine Corps Reserve's cause, the Toys for Tots Foundation, a private, non-profit organization that is not part of the Marine Corps, started assisting with the toy drive in 1991.

Last year, the Toys for Tots Foundation gave approximately 825,000 toys to Marine Corps Reserve units to distribute throughout the United States, District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. According to retired Lt. Gen. M.T. Cooper, president of the Toys for Tots Foundation, the program covers the nation, but it hits

6th Marines' enlisted leadership changes hands at post and relief

Cpl. Jason C. Huffine
Globe staff

In a post, relief and retirement ceremony on Friday, Sergeant Major Henry C. Wallace accepted the senior enlisted leadership role of the 6th Marine Regiment from SgtMaj. John L. Phinisey.

Phinisey assumed the role of sergeant major of the 6th Marines in August 1993, after a previous assignment to the Wing Inspector's Office, 2nd Mar. Div.

Graduating from recruit training at Parris Island, S.C., and infantry training at Camp Geiger, Phinisey first reported to 2nd Mar. Div. in 1966. Then he reported to 1st Bn., 26th Marines in the Republic of Vietnam.

Upon his return to the states in 1967, he again returned to 2nd Mar. Div., before receiving orders to Marine Barracks, Sasebo, Japan. In February 1971, Phinisey reported to 1st Mar. Div., Camp Pendleton, Calif., where he served as a weapons platoon sergeant.

For the 3rd time, Phinisey returned to 2nd Mar. Div. in 1973 where he served until August 1976. After this, he attended Recruiter School San Diego, Calif. Upon graduation, he was assigned to Recruiting Station Pittsburgh, Pa., for three years. In 1980, Phinisey was ordered to Marine Barracks, Norfolk, Va.

He reported as a first sergeant to 3rd Mar. Div., Okinawa, Japan. In 1985, he returned to the states and served under Marine Corps Administrative Detachment, U.S. Army Quartermaster Center, Fort Lee, Va.

In 1991, SgtMaj. Phinisey served in Southwest Asia as the Squadron Sergeant Major, Marine Wing Communication Squadron 38. After SWA, he returned to 2nd Mar. Div. for the fourth time.

Phinisey has three children, David, Theodore, and Theresa.

Wallace hails from Chestertown, Md., and graduated from recruit training Parris Island in May 1971 and attended the Sea School Indoctrination Course in Naval Station, Portsmouth, Va.

Cpl. Jason C. Huffine

SgtMaj. John L. Phinisey salutes one last time on active duty as the Marines Hymn is played. Phinisey relinquished the senior enlisted position for 6th Marines to SgtMaj. Henry C. Wallace and retired in a ceremony Friday afternoon.

After graduation, Wallace was transferred to Marine Barracks, Naval Weapons Station, Concord, Calif. in October 1971. From there he was ordered to MCRD, San Diego, for drill instructor duty. There he was assigned to Company G, 2nd Recruit Training Regiment.

Wallace then transferred to 3rd Mar. Div. for duty with 2nd Bn., 9th Marines. He served as Company G, Rifleman Platoon Sergeant. Returning stateside in February 1978, Wallace attended the Marine Security Guard School, Henderson Hall, Headquarters Marine Corps. He served on MSG duty and was transferred to 1st Bn., 8th Marines.

There he served as platoon sergeant, Company C, Weapons Plt. Promoted in August 1981, GySgt. Wallace assumed the billet of company gunnery sergeant.

Following two Mediterranean deployments, he was transferred to the NROTC unit, Villanova University, as the assistant officer instructor. In August 1990, Wallace was transferred to Camp Lejeune, and was assigned to Engineer School, Courthouse Bay. He then transferred to 2nd Tank Bn.

Wallace is married to the former Denise Cotton of Stillpond, MD. They have three children, William, Evette, and Ebony.

Editor's note: We are finally starting to receive your letters, keep sending them! Remember, the letters should address concerns pertaining to the military, Marine Corps and Camp Lejeune as a whole, not individual gripes.

Letters must include name, rank and work extension. Mail letters to Commanding General, (Attn: Public Affairs/Letters to the Editor), Marine Corps Base, PSC

Box 20004, Camp Lejeune, NC, them off at Building 67, CPAO. Also the e-mail address Woolsley@JPAO@MCB Lejeune.

Take pride, do your job when on duty

I would like to address an issue concerning Marine Duty and Assistant Duty Non-Commissioned Officers. Being a Marine means the world to me. It hurts my pride when I see Marines on duty not doing their jobs.

After working hours, I have seen Marines walking around the barracks in cammie trousers with no shirt or blouse on carrying a cigarette in one hand and a beer in the other. People are spitting and throwing beer off of the 2nd and 3rd decks and doors are left open with music blaring inside. It is the duty Marines' job to police the barracks and stop these actions.

Another job of the duty is to answer the phone. The barracks phone is for business, not personal phone use. If the Marine is available for his or her phone call, the duty should limit the time to five minutes, no more. There are pay phones in the barracks, so use them. Tell the caller that you will call them back. Keep the duty phone open. Also, remember that when you wear the duty belt a cover goes on your head. You represent your Company C. O., your Battalion C. O. and the Officer Of the Day.

When you are on duty, you fall under the 11 General Orders and any special Battalion Orders. Read them, know them, enforce them. If you can't handle an individual, call the OOD. That's his job. Duty NCOs are Non-Commissioned Officers of the Marine Corps, it's time they started acting like it.

Finally, anyone who is told something by the Duty NCO had better do it. It's our job to take care of each other, in the end it makes barracks life hard on every Marine.

If you want to drink, do it in your room. If you want to drink outside, be in appropriate attire, not half of a Marine Corps uniform. Have respect for other Marines and take pride in who you are and what we do.

People are on their way home

I live in Tarawa Terrace II and I have to come through the gate anywhere from three to six times on any given day. Even though it is sometimes a nuisance to stop and get permission before going on to my home, I realize the gate is necessary for security purposes, among other things. Lately, I have become more and more irritated when I have to stop at the gate because it seems as if the sentries are too busy chatting with other military police to wave me through. If the Provost Marshall's Office feels it necessary to have a gate at the entrance of housing subdivisions, they should make sure their Marines take the duties seriously and take into consideration that most of the cars that go through that gate are people on their way home.

Allow 'cammies' on liberty

The argument of whether or not Marines should be allowed to wear their cammies off base is a silly one. Of course we should!

I have read countless articles on the subject and have yet to hear one rational argument in favor of its prohibition. It is a silly rule for the following reasons:

1. As a Marine, I was taught that if you were ashamed or afraid to wear something in public, you should NEVER put that article of clothing on your back.

2. Civilians know what our cammies look like. The camouflage uniform is our working uniform, the same as our Charlies or Deltas. Why can't we wear cammies but the others are OK? Cammies aren't dirty or unrepresentable, especially with all the care we give to them.

3. Is tradition an excuse to keep cammies out of the general populace? The present camouflage uniform was adopted in 1978; hardly enough time has passed since to establish so stringent a tradition. Would these same people prefer we don dungarees, bandanas, large hoop earrings and grow a beard while strolling the mall with a blade between our teeth? This is where our tradition and ancestry lies.

My plea is this: Allow Marines to wear our cammies off base unrestricted. No one will be found eating a fine dinner at the Panache in their cammies. Everyone I know jumps out of their cammies at the first opportunity. But when I need to stop on my lunch, a large portion of my time is wasted having to change over and back again. The last time I checked, Marines do not waste precious time.

Be kind to fellow Marines who are in need of a ride

When was the last time you were driving down Highway 17 with all the time in the world, and saw a lone soul trudging along the side of the road? Would you stop to give them a ride? I would.

Too many times I have been driving down the road and way ahead in the distance I saw dozens of cars pass a lone figure walking down the road. When I pulled over and asked the man or woman if they wanted a ride, they immediately accepted.

Usually I take my passengers to their final destination, but not always. I'm not saying that every time you stop to pick someone up you have to take them to Swansboro or Catherine Lake, but you can give them a lift as far as you are going, or maybe just a little farther.

I'm not talking about picking up disreputable looking hitch-hikers trying to get to the next state. I'm talking about Marines and their families.

For example, I've picked up a Devil Dog in uniform walking toward the gate at 4:45 p.m. while 20 or 30 other people ignored him.

Sure, it took me an extra two or three minutes to pick him up and continue on my way, and then find out where he was going, but it was worth the time to help out someone else.

People call me a trusting fool for picking up strangers on the highway. I don't think there's anything foolish about helping out your fellow man.

Don't get me wrong, I've driven right on by many pedestrians who just didn't look like someone I'd want in my car, and I don't pick up anybody with my wife or kids in the car (actually its because I don't have room).

Sometimes I just don't have those extra few minutes necessary to give someone a ride because I've got somewhere to be.

The bottom line in my opinion is the golden rule. You know, do unto others as you would have them do to you?

If I was walking down the road, for whatever reason, I would like someone to offer to give me a ride.

Sgt. Steven G. Steele
HqSptBn., MCB

MARINE MAIL:

'Why can families not travel space A?'

The following Marine Mail was received from Sgt. Adam M. Caetta, assigned to Marine Forces Europe:

"Has any thought been given to lifting the restrictions for dependents to fly Space A without the active duty member? Being stationed here in Germany on an Army/Air Force base, there are planes leaving for the States on a daily basis, and a lot of the seats are empty because dependents can't travel without the active duty member. I think that this should be re-thought. I understand that they would not have head of the line privileges, but at least they could go if they desired.

"I commend CMC for the opening of this mail box. It's a good highway to voice concerns about Corps issues.

South Korean security agents, working on a tip, tried to arrest two men Oct. 24. In a shootout two hours later, one was shot in the leg and captured and the other fled, reportedly armed with a pistol. One police officer was killed and two were wounded.

The earlier captured agent was identified as Kim Do-shik, 33.

Police acting on his confession found a radio transmitter and several code sheets Oct. 25.

Mr. Kim identified his fugitive compatriot as Park Kwang-nam, 31. He said they were sent to take back to the North a spy who was planted 10 years ago.

Police did not say whether they obtained the spy's name or location. (Washington Times)

3. U.S., Japan conduct exercise

TOKYO — U.S. Air Force, Navy and Marine units will participate with Japanese air units in Cope North '96, an annual exercise to be held from Monday through Nov. 17.

Staging areas are Chitose Air Base and Misawa Air Base, both in northern Japan.

U.S. Japan-based units taking part are the 18th Wing, Kadena Air Base; 35th Fighter Wing, Misawa Air Base; 374th Airlift Wing, Yokota Air Base; VFMA 122, Iwakuni Marine Corps Air Station; and Carrier Air Wing Five of the USS Independence. Other U.S. units in the exercise will be the 354th Fighter Wing, Eilson AFB, Alaska, and the 190th Air Refueling Group, Forbes Field, Kan. (Pacific Stars & Stripes)

4. Evidence of Bosnian atrocities presented

WASHINGTON — The United States government has supplied international war crimes investigators with reconnaissance photos and other intelligence evidence of "approximately half a dozen" mass grave sites — in addition to those it has previously disclosed — where Bosnian Serb forces buried thousands of Muslims massacred last July.

U.S. officials said Oct. 28 this new evidence supports the accounts of Bosnian Muslims and human rights groups who have described large-scale atrocities by the Serbs after they captured the United Nations "safe area" of Srebrenica in eastern Bosnia on July 11.

The United States was first alerted to the possibility of mass killings in the area only a day or two after Srebrenica fell, in a phone call from Bosnian Foreign Minister Mohamed Sacirbey to U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Madeleine K. Albright, according to a Washington Post reconstruction of the U.S. government's response to one of the worst atrocities committed in Europe since World War II.

Although the Clinton administration was quick to denounce reports of "brutal" and "inhumane" behavior of the Bosnian Serbs, it did not go public with detailed evidence of the atrocities until nearly four weeks later.

Albright went before the U.N. Security Council in a private session Aug. 10 to present spy photographs of suspected mass graves and to accuse the Bosnian Serbs of executing many Muslim refugees.

Officials blamed the delay in presenting intelligence evidence on the difficulties of sifting through a vast pile of reconnaissance photos to find corroborating evidence of atrocities.

Since then, the administration has been hesitant to release data about the additional mass graves because of fears that the Bosnian Serb authorities might attempt to tamper with the sites to conceal the evidence, officials said. But they said the United States has supplied all relevant information to the International War Crimes Tribunal in The Hague. (Washington Post)

5. U.S. Navy vessel aids search for MIAs

PHNOM PENH, Vietnam — The U.S. military started searching Oct. 30 for the remains of Marines killed in the botched 1975 Mayaguez rescue mission, U.S. servicemen said.

They said the search will be backed by the first navy vessel welcomed in Cambodian waters for more than 20 years.

A U.S. Air Force C-130 transport aircraft was seen at Phnom Penh's Pochetong Airport on Oct. 27 and an American diplomat said it had ferried in servicemen and equipment for the MIA operation on Tang Island.

The men will search for the remains of 15 of the 38 Marines killed by Khmer Rouge gunfire or in helicopter crashes on the island in the Gulf of Thailand during a May 15, 1975 mission to rescue the crew of the USS Mayaguez. (Journal of Commerce)

6. German Army's 40th anniversary protested

About 500 pacifists protested a torchlight parade celebrating the 40th anniversary of Germany's post-World War II army. Chancellor Helmut Kohl, seeking to counter criticism that such military pomp glorifies war, praised the "citizens in uniform." "Soldiers who swear to loyally serve Germany need the support of all sectors of society," Kohl said. Critics said the parade was a throwback. The march "has connections to old Prussian military traditions and was enthusiastically fostered in the Nazi years," says Manfred Stenner, a protest organizer. (USA Today)

Cooling-off period allows consumers to correct impulse buying mistakes

Consolidated Legal Assistance Office

After listening to a high pressure sales pitch, you signed a contract for the purchase of overpriced and/or unwanted goods or services, such as encyclopedias, a vacuum cleaner or film developing services. Head in hands, you look at that contract and say, "Boy, that was stupid." Can you get out of it? The Federal Trade Commission's Door-To-Door home solicitation regulation (16 CFR 429) and North Carolina state law (GS 25A-39) may help.

These laws recognize that people may make bad decisions in the heat of the moment, confronted by a slick salesman, especially when the sale is in the buyer's home or some place other than the seller's store. The law therefore gives the buyer the right to change his mind. But these laws do not help you if, for example, you bought a car at the dealer's regular business premises.

The buyer has three days to cancel a sale or lease of consumer goods or services if the seller personally solicited the buyer (phone and mail solicitations aren't covered), and if the sale occurred in your house or anywhere other than the seller's usual place of business. Visits you arrange after talking to the seller at his business may not be covered.

The seller is required to give the buyer a copy of the completed contract, with all the blanks filled in. The seller must provide oral notice of the right to cancel. Additionally, the seller must provide written notice of the right to cancel in bold print and in close proximity to the buyer's signature block. The seller must provide an easily detachable notice of cancellation that the buyer can use to effect cancellation. The notice must include the seller's name and the address to which the notice of cancellation should be sent.

The buyer gets until midnight of the third business day after the sale was made to make a written demand for cancellation. The date of the sale doesn't count as one of the three days. By midnight of the third day, the seller can cancel by mailing or by delivering the seller-provided form or by mailing or delivering any other written notice of cancellation. The notice need only be mailed, not received, in the required time. Registered mail will assist in proving that the date the parcel was sent. The law provides the period of cancellation and nothing in the contract can shorten it.

Unless there is an emergency, the seller can not begin work, for example, putting aluminum siding on your house, within the cooling off period. If he does, and lawful cancellation is made, the buyer does not have to pay for any work already completed.

Once the timely cancellation demand has been made, the seller must return any trade-in within 10 days of receipt of the cancellation. The buyer must allow the seller to pick up goods already delivered or follow seller's instructions to have them sent back, at seller's expense.

If the buyer makes the goods available for the seller to pick up, as requested, but the seller fails to pick up the goods in 20 days, the buyer can keep the merchandise for free. If, on the other hand, the buyer fails to make the goods available to the seller, or says he will return them and does not, the buyer may have bound himself to the original contract.

The legal assistance office can answer questions concerning the application of the cooling off period to your contract. Unit representatives also may arrange for preventative/consumer law briefs.

For more information, or to schedule an appointment, call 451-1903 during normal work hours.

Dishwashers recalled

In cooperation with the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, Maytag Corporation, of Newton, Iowa is inspecting and repairing dishwashers with a component that can fail during use. This small electrical component, located in the base of the unit, can malfunction, overheat and in rare circumstances, cause a fire.

Maytag has received 142 reports of component failures, including one confirmed fire involving minor property damage. Maytag reports that most of the failures have occurred within the first eight months of the dishwasher's installation. The company will focus its inspection efforts on those dishwashers that it believes to be most at risk for component failure. There have been no reports of injuries resulting from the electrical component failures.

Maytag Corporation is inspecting and repairing at no charge to consumers certain Maytag brand dishwashers that carry serial numbers ending in one of the following pairs of letters: KF, KH, KK, KM, KQ, KS, KU, KY, KZ or MB. Maytag will mail notices to consumers whose dishwashers are to be inspected.

Maytag manufactured a total of 553,000 dishwashers with the component from March 1994 - January 1995. Maytag dealers and other retailers sold these dishwashers nationwide from April 1994 - October 1995.

Consumers should check their dishwasher's serial number to determine if it may be part of the inspection and repair program. The serial number is located in the upper left corner of the dishwasher tub, just below the countertop. Consumers who have one of these dishwashers can call Maytag Customer Service toll-free at (800) 462-9267 to arrange for their dishwasher to be inspected, or they can write the company at Maytag Customer Service, P.O. Box 8021, Cleveland, TN. 37320-8021. Maytag recommends that, if the consumers choose to continue to use their dishwashers prior to the inspection, they should do so only while at home, attending the appliance.

In other CPSC recall news, Matsushita Electric Corporation of America of Secaucus, N.J. is announcing a program to inspect approximately 3,000 Panasonic brand laser printers that may have been incorrectly assembled and, if not properly grounded, may pose an electrical shock hazard.

Model KX-P6100 and KX-6500 laser printers were sold nationwide from April - October 1995 for between $400 and $500. Model numbers appear on the front of the printer to the left of the on/off indicator lights.

Owners of the Panasonic KX-P6100 or KX-6500 model printers should call (800) 328-6394 to schedule a free inspection by trained service personnel. Panasonic will arrange to have defective printers replaced, at no charge to the consumer, with printers that have been fully examined to meet specifications. Panasonic will also give consumers who have their printers inspected a free toner cartridge.

Printers that have passed inspection and do not have this defect have a colored dot on the underside of the printer and on the box in which they are packed.

Panasonic has not received any reports of complaints or incidents related to this potential defect in the printer. No other Panasonic products are involved in this recall.

Chaplain's corner: Prayer: Sensing God's presence

Navy Lt. Andrew D. Nelko
Base Chaplain's Office

How many of us while in the midst of our prayers find ourselves only reciting the words while our thoughts go astray. This may also have happened to us while we were standing in worship listening to prayers or hymns being read or sung. At that point our wandering thoughts did not interfere with the course of the service, but it is a different matter when we are praying alone.

It is important for us to keep in mind that prayer is only meaningful when our thoughts stay with it. If our concentration is broken during prayer we may tend to ask, what should we do? To regain the proper spirit we should actually go back to the point in the prayer where our thoughts went astray. If they scatter again after a moment, we must go back, time and time again. Also we should slow down our reading and try to focus and pay attention to every word.

However, we may have another kind of experience. We may feel our hearts being warmed by the words of the prayer, thereby allowing our thoughts to stay with it more easily. Perhaps we have experienced this in worship, with the result being that the service seemed to flow and spiritually enliven us.

The early Christian fathers explain that as a result of our human nature our thoughts and feelings, as well as our bodies, are easily distracted. But in prayer, through God's grace, our nature becomes whole again.

The Apostle Paul refers to this when he says: "Likewise the Spirit also helps in our weaknesses. For we do not know what we should pray for as we ought, but the Spirit himself makes intercession for us with groaning which cannot be uttered." (Romans 8:26) This experience, if it comes to us, is a special gift from God. Very few people are granted to keep this gift very long. It is taken away, but through it we are permitted to gain a foretaste so that we may know what we should strive towards in our prayer life.

This raises the question of the role of feelings in prayer. Should we try to pray in such a way that our feelings accompany it? To answer this question we can turn to the psalmist who states that the only suitable feeling is that of contrition and of unworthiness: "The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit, a broken and contrite heart, these, O God, You will not despise." (Psalm 51). It is in the spirit of this psalm that we should prepare ourselves for prayer, thinking of our unworthiness, but also remembering God's love toward us. When we stand at prayer in this spirit, we begin to sense God's presence in our hearts. And it is this sense which should remain with us as our constant companion.

Home Health Hints: Calling an ambulance

Immediately call 911 (on or off base) when an ambulance is needed for a victim who is either injured or in extreme medical distress and medical assistance is urgent. If the patient is not breathing, loudly shout for someone to call 911 and immediately start mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Be ready to give the following information to the dispatcher when calling for an ambulance:

1. Your name.
2. The telephone number from which you are calling.
3. The address with special directions/instructions mentioning something like the nearest intersection, cross road or landmark that would help the ambulance locate the patient.
4. Describe the patient's injury as best as possible (broken leg, bleeding from ears, unconscious, etc.).
5. Most importantly — Do not hang up. Stay on the phone until the emergency dispatcher has ended the conversation. The dispatcher may need to ask for more information about the patient and can give you instructions with which to help the patient until the ambulance arrives.

6. If you are by yourself with the patient, unlock the door and tell the dispatcher to pass to the ambulance crew that it is open. Turn on all of the outside lights if it is night.

7. After the call for the ambulance has been made, it is very important to have someone stand immediately in the front of the building or site to watch for and quickly direct the emergency medical technicians to the location of the patient.

They are m for short, and that cruised the esert in World deadly combat ealing destruc- tor and infantry nducted by the editionary Unit is Capable) saw er CAAT Teams leathernecks their vehicles aft Air-Cushion vided a security anded waves of t. many targets we destroy on the s said. "You have to have good 'comm,'" Gaines said. "Everything moves so posals, that's easy to believe. The core of the CAAT team is the hard back High Mobility Multi-Wheeled Vehicle (HMMWV). It makes an excellent, highly-mobile platform for the array of bullet launchers the Heavy Weapons Platoon brings ashore. The weapons are as small as the M-60E3 .30 caliber machine gun and as dominating as the Tube-launched, Optically-tracked, Wire-guided (TOW) Missile system that can defeat the best armor any potential adversary can field. In the tension-packed first moments of the landing, training time spent going through combat SOPs and immediate-action drills was apparent. As Gaines went through comm-checks with his vehicles, the men demonstrated an automatic response to the terrain and situation. Fanned out in a semi-spere, their weapons were trained to the surrounding area; any threat could bring an unbelievable torrent of fire. As estimates were made of the tactical situation, the decision to move the CAAT teams into blocking positions was made. "This is 'Charlie One,' move out," came the crisp metallic sound of Gaines' voice over the radio. On a fast moving battlefield, the radio is one key to survival. "You have to have good 'comm,'" Gaines said. "Everything moves so fast that if you are a few minutes behind you're going to be out of the fight entirely. "Another important element is the map," he continued. "You have to know where you are, where the rest of the BLT is and how to get to the enemy." Gaines and his men bounced their way down an unimproved road, on their way to a row of sand dunes overlooking the main coastal highway that runs from Egypt on the northwest and Libya on the southeastern border of Tunisia. As they left the "highway" and plowed their way from dune to dune and through chest-high scrub brush, Gaines commented on the HMMWV. "Without it, CAAT Teams couldn't really exist," he said. "And, the creation of CAAT Teams really expanded the capability of a Heavy Weapons Platoon. "Take the MK-19, for instance," he said. "The weight of the gun is 72 pounds, and the ammunition to feed it is heavy as hell. Without the HMMWV this gun just wouldn't be on the front lines." The MK-19 is a shooter's dream. While it is considered a machine gun, it can more accurately be described as an automatic grenade launcher that shoots a 40mm high-explosive grenade well over a mile at a rate of one round per second. The venerable M-2 .50 caliber machine gun can also be mounted on the HMMWV as well as the M-60E3. On the front lines, the CAAT Marines can be used in a variety of roles. From a highly mobile reconnaissance asset, capable of finding the enemy and destroying them to providing security for mechanized movement to infantrymen, they are trained to adapt to situations. "The best thing about being in CAAT is knowing we can be a determining factor in battle," Gaines said. "Doesn't matter what the mission is...we just like to be out front with our guns. Heavy weapons to bring heavy firepower."

Combat air-defense: The Avenger system

GySgt. Tim Shearer
26th MEU(SOC) correspondent

CAPE SERATE, Tunisia — As Marines played out a force-on-force exercise in the hills overlooking the Mediterranean Sea here, a strange-looking piece of gear caught their attention as it rolled by. With a 'Robo Cop' looking turret and eight deadly missile pods, the Avenger anti-aircraft weapons system made its forward-deployed debut. The Avenger has only been in the Corps' arsenal for a year. "It is a pretty awesome system to work with," said LCpl. Michael Scott, one of 14 2nd Low Altitude Air Defense Bn. Marines detached to the 26th Marine Expeditionary Unit (Special Operations Capable). "We can provide a blanket of air cover for a three-mile radius up to 11,000 feet, and knock out any kind of aircraft the enemy can send at us." The Avenger weapons system is built around the time-tested Stinger missile system. While the man-pack version is still in the table of equipment, the new HMMWV variant gives a greater deal of mobility and range to the air-defense system. In the sand-dunes and dense scrub brush of Tunisia, the Avenger was right at home. The two-man crew piloted the vehicle through the forward edge of the battle area, bringing futuristic computer technology to the front lines. "Being in a LAAD battalion is kind of like being the grunt of the air wing," Scott said. "Our mission is to go forward with the infantry and knock down enemy planes. With the mobility this system gives us, we can launch eight stinger missiles in 40 seconds with a high probability of knocking down an aircraft with each one." To the infantrymen of the MEU's battalion landing team, the two young Marines in the strange-looking vehicle represent two flights of four enemy aircraft sent blazing to the deck. Combined with aviation assets that include eight AH-1W Super Cobras and six AV-8B Harriers, control of the sky is likely to stay in friendly units hands. "Every Marine we go by wants us to stop so they can get a look at the vehicle," Scott said. "We oblige them as best we can, because they are the ones we are here to support. "It's a pretty good system, and we're trying to gain more knowledge of how to employ the Avenger to the best of its capability," he continued. "Being with the first unit to deploy the Avenger means we are going to be looked at to see what the future holds."

The Avenger anti-aircraft weapon system made its expeditionary debut in Tunisia, as the 26th MEU(SOC) conducted exercise Atlas Hinge as part of the MEU's six-month deployment.

Plain works for the Multiple Sclerosis Association of America, and she suffers from the disease herself. However, she hasn't let that stop her from charging ahead and helping others which was the reason the committee awarded her the honor. The other big award presented that evening was the 1995 Bobby Simpson Award which is given in honor of the contributions of Bobby Simpson of Jacksonville. Simpson was involved in an automobile accident while in high school which left him paralyzed from the waist down. Overcoming his handicap, Simpson opened a sports store on Western Boulevard and has become a major contributor the youth programs of Jacksonville. Winning this year's award was Chick Mikeal for his service as a volunteer. Mikeal, who is blind, works at the Naval Hospital aboard Camp Lejeune and gives a big piece of his time to helping people. "I am truly honored to win this award, however, I feel there are volunteers in this community who deserve the award more than I do," Mikeal said. Even with the outstanding volunteers the committee has, The Mayor's Committee for the Handicapped could still use more. The main goal of the Mayor's Committee for the Handicapped is to improve and enhance the quality of disabled residents of the Jacksonville/ Onslow County area by offering aid and assistance in overcoming and resolving personal, social and vocational problems and conflicts, and to create citizen awareness and understanding relative to the plight of disabled individuals (The Mayor's Committee for the Handicapped Creed). ## Base changes to new phone system

Sgt. Steven G. Steele
Globe staff

The Base Telephone Office has begun transition to a new telephone switch that will eventually affect all telephone communications aboard the base. The turn-over will not be completed until fiscal 1997, but the beginning and most significant phase of the plan has already begun, according to the CWO4 William D. Bowen, Base Telephone Officer. "The building for the new switch is already under construction," Bowen said. "And the new system should come on-line the weekend of April 12, 1996." Right now the base uses a system of eight stand-alone switches called Private Branch Exchanges (PBX) that have been in place since 1983. These PBX's do not interface with each other and that is one of the many reasons for the new system. "We're going to a Class 5 end-office switch just like they have out in town," said Bowen. "This is the first step in actually having a telephone system vice several individual switches. The way things are now we can't expand any more, and there is not enough support for the requirements of the Fleet Marine Force." The initial part of the plan replaces two switches that service the Hadnot Point area and Building H-1. It also sets into place all the electronics, and main control functions of the new switch. The other six switches will be installed in fiscal '97, according to Bowen. They will cover Camps Johnson and Geiger as well as Stone Bay, Courthouse Bay and Marine Corps Air Station New River. The total cost of this system is $17.6 million with $8.4 million of it coming this year. "The six switches that are to be installed next year are much smaller than the main one at Hadnot Point," Bowen said. "Hadnot Point includes all of main-side Camp Lejeune, French Creek and the industrial area. All official military phones in those areas will be involved, but not the family housing areas, they will still be serviced by Carolina Telephone." The main benefits are increased capabilities and services vice cost savings according to Bowen. "The only real monetary benefit of the new system will come from long distance," said Bowen. "The FTS 2000 Federal Communication Service works much like a Watts line, the more you use it the cheaper it is to use. By combining all eight switches into a single main-trunk, we combine all that long distance usage and will probably save a couple of cents a minute. "That doesn't sound like much, but consider Camp Lejeune uses about 160,000 minutes of long distance each month, but the cost of local calls will remain the same. "However, making those local calls will be easier," he continued. "We're going to have increased trunk-line capabilities and an increase of 11,000 lines. That will make it a lot easier to get a line off base. The access codes will also be easier to use. Instead of dialing '*9' for local and '*8' for long distance and '*2' for toll-free and all the other access codes, with the new system, callers only have to dial '88' for the Defense Switching Network, and '9' to get off base. The new switch will route the call through the appropriate carrier." The new design has many more features besides increased calling potential. "Most military phones do not allow the 'ring-again' or 'call-back' feature; that will all change.

Also, we're going to have call-transfer and call-forwarding," he said. "A couple of other enhancements that are not available in Jacksonville are the Integrated Services Digital Network that will allow desktop video and the use of a modem and telephone at the same time over the same two wires. The other is the ability to switch phone classifications. You can take a full-blown class A telephone during normal working hours, and switch it to on-base only after hours. This will save a lot of fraud, waste and abuse of the phone system." According to Bowen, not all of these benefits will be in effect until the entire system comes on-line in fiscal '97. "There are a couple of changes that will come into play before the actual change-over," he said. "Right after Christmas, we'll have to go to five digit dialing to allow the two new switches to interface with the remaining six old ones. Also that will allow us to do about 90 days of testing on the system. Heat, load and routing tests all need to be done just to ensure that once it comes up, anybody can communicate with anybody else." The new telephone switch was designed to be practical for the next 25 years, according to Bowen. It also compliments an entire infra-structure upgrade that is scheduled to replace all the lead cable on base with fiber-optics.

8th ESB competes for Ney/Hill award

Cpl. Preston Bass
Globe staff

For 200 Marines of the 8th Engineer Support Battalion, Thursday's noon chow took on a different atmosphere as the battalion's field mess team participated in the Group-level of the Marine Corps-wide Edward F. Ney field mess competition.

The field mess, located in the field near the corner of Gonzalez Blvd. and Connor St. here, was the first of the sites in the Group-level competition to be set up and evaluated.

The competition itself is held on three levels. Chow halls in the group, division and air wing all compete within their respective units. The winner within each group, division and wing then competes for the title of the best field mess in Marine Forces Atlantic. Once the winner of the MarForLant competition is decided, that winner competes against its counterparts on the west coast and overseas in a secret ballot that is decided in Washington, D.C., for the coveted Ney title of best field mess in the Marine Corps.

The 8th ESB Marines claimed the title after the 1993-94 competition, and would like win it again this year.

"Every time we do this, we try to add more to it," said Sgt. Patrick Modriski, 8th ESB's mess sergeant for the competition. "We just get better as time goes on. This year we have had good organization."

Part of that organization for the 8th ESB included setting up the field mess site in 96 hours, which is not a requirement at the Group level but will be one of the things inspectors look for at the MarForLant level.

At all levels of competition the inspectors look at security, sanitation, how the site is set up, how the cooks prepare the food, if personnel know how to light the burners of the field stoves and ensure there are vehicles available to dispose of trash, according to Modriski. The elaborate mess sites used in the competitions are the same set ups used when their respective units go to the field for two weeks or more. These sites require tremendous logistical support.

"Mobile Electric Power Platoon does all the electrical work. The battalion's communications platoon provides communications support. Water supply does all the plumbing. Bulk fuel provides for burner and generator fuel. Bridge company provides security. We've gotten great support from a

Vision Van educates local commanders

GySgt. Alfred R. Biggs Jr.
Globe Staff

The Tri-Service Mobile Optical Unit Facility (or Vision Van) visited here last week in an effort to educate local commanders on the concept of on-site single-vision eyewear support for a unit, squadron or battalion for readiness support.

The Vision Van can provide screening and fabrication of all single-vision standard, flight goggle and gas mask inserts, according to HMC Glenn Shultz, leading petty officer for the prototype project.

"This is the first time the Navy has done anything like this," Shultz said. The van is on loan from the Army and all of the equipment and the four-man team of opticians belongs to NOSTRA (Naval Ophthalmic Support and Training Activity, Yorktown, Va.), said Shultz.

"NOSTRA has been conducting this trial since April 19. We have the ability to provide single-vision eyewear at a rate of about 175 pairs per day," said Shultz. "The only thing we don't have at this point is tinting capabilities, but that isn't an unrealistic goal. It would only take a small piece of equipment and one additional staff member."

In fact, future plans call for the unit to have the ability to provide tinting as well as an optometrist.

"We can turn out a lot of glasses," Shultz said, "but we're here for customer service. We take pride in our fitting and dispensing abilities."

Shultz said the van is pre-stocked with about 1,000 of the most frequently prescribed lenses. "There is a team of four opticians manning the van and we have the ability to turn out a pair of glasses in as little as 10 minutes. If there is a need for multi-vision lenses, or a prescription we don't have in stock, we can fax the request to NOSTRA and have it back within two days via overnight mail," he said.

According to Shultz, that is similar to the service that could be provided in a "real world situation" if the Vision Van were deployed with a unit. "We would electronically send in the prescriptions we couldn't fill to NOSTRA," he said. When completed, the glasses would be forwarded through normal resupply channels.

Normal procedures for getting prescription lenses here involves the respective battalion aid stations sending prescriptions to NOSTRA to have them made, according to HN Michael Edwards, Building 15 Optometry Clinic.

This means a four-to-six-week wait, he said. During the three-day visit by the mobile facility, Edwards said the Optometry Clinic provided them with more than 800 prescriptions. "We usually do an average of 20 pairs a week," he said. "The Mobile Unit made more than 500 pairs in three days." The prescriptions that couldn't be filled were taken back to NOSTRA and will be returned via mail.

"We hope that ultimately we will be invited to join deploying forces for on-site fabrication. We could do it either at (Camp) Lejeune or in the middle of the desert. We could take a mount-out box, load our equipment, and go anywhere as fast as a plane could get us there," Shultz said.

Like any Navy-Marine Corps team, the Mobile Unit is capable of task-organizing to meet specific mission needs, Shultz added.

Ultimately, Shultz said that NOSTRA would like to establish a circuit for this service. The team would make scheduled visits to bases and stations where they could provide "service at the deckplate level."

The Vision Van has completed visits to Naval Base Norfolk, Va.; Sewells Point Medical Clinic, Norfolk; and Langley Air Force Base, Va.

"I would like to have seen more battalion commanders come by to see what our capabilities are," Shultz said. "If they would've seen our capabilities they could see how viable this concept is for mobilization."

PRIMARY from 1A

can be handled within a reasonable period of time," Cowan said.

The transition from the old system to the new has not been as smooth as was hoped. As with many new systems, some problems can be predicted and some cannot. On the day the new system, which is dependent on being able to make appointments, went into effect the first thing that happened was the phone system was inoperable for five hours, Cowan said. "We got the phones up and working that afternoon and bright and early the next day they went down for another four hours."

The other problem is a lack of personnel. "Under the new contract we will have a bigger staff, but we haven't gotten that staff yet," Cowan said. "So when you could finally get through on the phone, we didn't have the number of appointments available that we needed to schedule."

"We are now pulling staff from other areas of the hospital to help alleviate this problem until the contractors can fill the staff positions that need to be filled," he added.

There has also been about 20,000 copies of a Healthwise Handbook purchased for distribution. The handbook is "kind of like a grandmother in soft cover," Cowan said. It gives good advice on when an appointment should be made and when someone may be able to help themselves and not make an unnecessary appointment.

The intent, according to Cowan, is to put these books in the hands of as many families as possible here starting with the families in the lower enlisted ranks first and working up from there. "We hope to get the books out to about half the families here before the end of the year," said Cowan.

"We are changing from one complex system to another and should be running smoothly within a few weeks," he said.

One thing people should do if they become frustrated with the system is to talk to the Patient Advocate, recommends Cowan. "The entire full-time job of the Patient Advocate is to solve the problem the patient is having."

Statistics are kept on problems brought to the advocates and, according to Cowan, about 90 percent of these problems are solved.

"I know things are rough right now and are changing and some people don't like change, but things will get better in time," Cowan said.

Following are answers to some commonly asked questions about the Navy Primary Care and Hospital Primary Care clinics and the services available through them.

QUESTION: There are people who are begging to have the walk-in method reinstated. For example children who have an ear infection cannot get an appointment for three or four days, but they also can't go to the emergency room because they don't belong there for that situation, what do they do?

ANSWER: Under the new system it is the severity of the illness that determines when that person is seen. The example of the child with a fever who cries when laying down is a classic sign of an ear ache and should be seen that same day. If you feel like you are not getting the right results, again, talk to the Patient Advocate, they are there to prevent that kind of thing from happening.

Once the new system is running more smoothly the only difference between the walk-in method is you come in at 10 a.m. if that is when your appointment is and are seen promptly instead of sitting and waiting for four hours before a doctor can see you.

QUESTION: Have they changed the criteria for the emergency room and what are the criteria to take a patient there?

ANSWER: Whenever anyone feels that their case is an emergency, come to the Emergency Room. If there is a question, call the advice nurse; they can be very helpful in making the decision.

QUESTION: Is there a Patient Advocate at every clinic?

ANSWER: Each clinic in the hospital, as well as most patient care areas (lab, pharmacy, etc.), has a designated patient advocate.

QUESTION: With the new larger staff how many people will Primary Care be able to see a day and what are some of the new services that are being offered with this new program?

ANSWER: The staffing will change to meet the demand. During flu season the demand is sometimes double the normal requirement. New services include preventive services, immunizations and telephone medical advice.

NAS Cecil Field hosts MEU's urban exercise

Sgt. Darren W. Milton
22nd MEU correspondent

NAS CECIL FIELD, Jacksonville, Fla. — For the sixth time in the last 10 years, Marines from Camp Lejeune deployed to Naval Air Station Cecil Field to conduct a Training in an Urban Environment exercise (TRUEX).

About 330 members of the approximately 2,000-man 22nd Marine Expeditionary Unit arrived here October 14 to conduct operations in the Jacksonville area through October 23.

This is the 26th exercise of its kind which has been conducted in cities around the U.S., such as Key West, Fla., Savannah, Ga., New York and New Orleans. The TRUEX is part of the second phase of a three-phase training workup in preparation for the MEU's routine six-month deployment to the Mediterranean Sea scheduled for late January.

According to the MEU's Operations Officer, LtCol. Mike Dick, Phase II is when all the elements of the MEU come together and begin working as a team operationally. "The training in Phase I focuses on individual and small-unit operations within each major subordinate element," Dick said. "During Phase II, we bring all those assets together in support of each other."

During their deployment, Marines of the 22d MEU could be called upon to evacuate Americans and other non-combatants, such as the recent rescue of downed Air Force pilot, Capt Scott O'Grady, from urban areas, provide humanitarian assistance, and/or conduct civic action, show-of-force and other operations.

The exercise was designed not only to enhance the MEU's capability to execute maritime special operations, but to increase its combat readiness by conducting the training in real-world urban environments not available on military reservations.

"Camp Lejeune does not have the major city type urban terrain needed for this type of training," Dick said. "Conducting the exercise in cities, such as Jacksonville, Fla., enhances the realism of the training by presenting us new and different challenges, and replicates to some degree possible future operational areas."

During the exercise, the MEU conducted three Situational Training Exercises (STXs), which are scenarios similar to both possible future real-world missions, and past operations such as the evacuation of U.S. embassies in Somalia and Liberia. The STXs are supplied by Special Operations Training Group, II Marine Expeditionary Force, a training group out of Camp Lejeune, which acts as both advisors and evaluators on the capability of the unit to conduct special operations.

The "problem" is first brought to the attention of the 22nd MEU when it receives a "warning order" from SOTG, acting as higher headquarters. Once the message is received, the MEU Commander, Col M. W. Forbush, calls together key staff officers for a Crisis Action Team (CAT) brief. During this brief, by use of the Rapid Response Planning Process (R2P2), the CAT team conducts a rapid mission analysis to evaluate what needs to be done, and the requirements to make it happen.

"The R2P2 is designed to enable a MEU to execute a mission within six hours of receipt of a warning order," Dick said.

Once the specific mission commander has been established, he creates proposed courses of action to be presented at a confirmation brief which includes representatives from each element of the MEU. "Once the courses of action are briefed, the staff members make recommendations as to which course is most easily supported from their perspective," Dick said. "Taking these recommendations into consideration, the commanding officer then makes the decision as to which course of action to take."

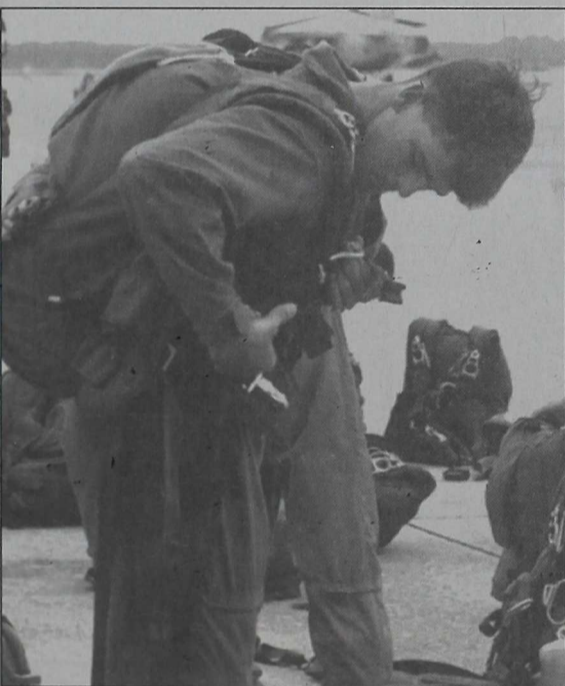

The Maritime Special Purpose Forces (MSPF) then carry out the mission using the chosen course of action, and any intelligence passed from the MEU or further guidance from higher headquarters. The 22nd MEU's MSPF consists of the Force Reconnaissance detachment and assets provided by the Ground Combat Element, Battalion Landing Team 2/2; the Air Combat Element, Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron 162; and the MEU Combat Service Support Element, MEU Service Support Group 22.

During the exercise, the units conducted some weapons, parachute and fast-rope training evolutions aboard the air station, but the majority of flight operations and MSPF portions of the exercise were conducted at various sites throughout the city.

The 22nd MEU's next deployment is Nov. 1-8, when it will conduct its MEUEX from aboard ship. This exercise will also consist of a series of STXs designed to enhance the MEU's ability to conduct missions it may be called upon to do during its six-month deployment.

Second Intelligence Co. comes together

Interoperability exercise lets Marines, Sailors work as one

Sgt. Steven G. Steele
Globe Staff

Recently the Marines and Sailors of Intelligence Company, 2nd Surveillance, Reconnaissance and Intelligence Group, went to the field for an Interoperability Exercise.

According to LtCol. Terence J. Meyer, commanding officer, Intel. Co. is made up of several separate groups.

"We have five different sections that usually work by themselves," Meyer said. "Each of these elements is really good at what it does, but we're working to get smarter by using each other capabilities to the fullest to further assist the II Marine Expeditionary Force (MEF) accomplish its mission."

The company is made up of Topographic Plt. (Topo), Sensor Control and Management Plt. (SCAMP), Force Imaging and Interpretation Unit (FIU), Counter Intelligence Unit (CIU), and Interrogator Translator Plt. (ITP), according to Meyer.

"As far as I know, this is the first time this company has gone to the field as a cohesive unit," Meyer said. "We usually deploy in small detachments or are attached to Marine Expeditionary Units. While out here, we're going to mirror both what we do in the field and what we do in garrison. What I mean is, we're still doing our daily mission."

"To make things a little more realistic, and possibly even a little more interesting, I set forth the commander's intent to make a complete survey of the Greater Sandy Run Area," he continued. "Since this is a new training area, the maps we have may not be accurate, and there are no helicopter landing zones or anything else annotated. I made up a scenario in which American forces are going to land two battalions inland in the 'Republic of Sandy Run,' and the area in the south is a beach where Marines will land with amphibious assault vehicles."

Several days before the company went to the field, they requested F-14's fly over and take aerial photographs using tactical aerial reconnaissance pods (TARPs). By doing this before hand, it saved time during the exercise, according to Meyer.

"Of course, the ultimate goal is to provide a detailed study of the area for the MEF and its major subordinate commands," Meyer said. "But I also wanted to give these Marines a time constraint of seven days, just to see how well they would do. When we get back to the rear, we'll put all the polishing touches on the study and then distribute it so that units coming here to train can take full advantage of this area."

The Topo Plt. plays a major part in this exercise since they are the ones who do hydrologic, geodetic and topographic surveys, but they are not operating alone in this exercise.

"We have definitely been able to see how the company's other sections can help us," said 2ndLt. William J. Schouville, asst. platoon commander, Topo Plt. "SCAMP helps us find 'ground true,' FIU can give us up-to-date imagery, and the counter intelligence guys get information on things like new buildings or roads and other terrain information that may require someone to actually go there and take a picture of it."

The company's base camp was set up with FIU and Topo within 20 feet of each other, but communication between them was not as simple as walking across the field, according to Meyer. To enhance realism, they sent all information through a satellite.

"The Marines at FIU sent us the aerial photos that they had taken," said Schouville. "We use photos like those and physical surveys to update the maps. Most people think of us and think of maps only, but we do a lot more. We manipulate digitized data gathered from area, theater, national, and international sources. For example we could provide enlargements of building compounds or built-up areas that could be useful in raids, or a non-combatant evacuation operation."

Manipulating digital information is not the sole province of Topo Plt., FIU does it as well.

"We take the film from the aircraft and digitize it," said Sgt. Brian E. Wensel, photographic interpreter (PI), FIU. "We often have to piece the seams of photos together so we can give the user a clear picture of what they are looking at. Sometimes that may mean we have to lighten or darken the photos, but we do whatever it takes.

And sometimes it takes a lot more than just analyzing photos all day, according to Sgt. Thomas F. Eberhard, PI, FIU.

"We normally have no problems getting high-altitude photos," Eberhard said. "And low-and mid-altitudes aren't usually a problem either, but sometimes like today, we have to grab a camera and go take our own photos."

The SCAMP Marines, in addition to assisting Topo with the surveying mission put several Phase Five seismic sensors in place to aid future units with navigation as they train in the area.

This field exercise not only better prepared the entire company for their current mission, it was a test run of a change that is expected to take place within the company.

"The ITP and CIU are going to combine into one unit known as Human Intelligence (Humint) Company," said Meyer. "The other three sections will remain Intel. Co., and when that takes place, we will probably become a battalion with those two companies and possibly 2nd Force Reconnaissance Co. as well."

The main reason ITP and CIU would combine is they have very similar missions, according to CWO3 David A. Jones, officer-in-charge, ITP.

"The CI and ITP both involve human intelligence, that is information gained from human beings as opposed to photographs or remote sensors or some other source," said Jones. "That can be anything from questioning enemy prisoners of war, to getting information from the local populace in a combat zone, or debriefing a reconnaissance patrol to investigate equipment or information taken from individuals."

The two individual sections worked closely during this exercise for a number of reasons according to CWO2 James J. Greenwood, technical officer, CIU.

"The mapping of the Sandy Run Area and updating the databases requires different intelligence disciplines to be accomplished," Greenwood said. "We're working with ITP doing cross training because we're going to be combined into one unit. We need to learn about them and they need to learn about us, and this is a ripe environment to accomplish that."

The company was in the field for a week, and according to MGySgt. Charles W. Jackson, staff non-commissioned officer in charge, FIU, the operation seemed to be successful.

"For the first time shot at having all the intelligence assets working together, it's coming along pretty well," he said. "It will probably be difficult to do again because of the way we deploy in detachments, but if we go to the field twice a year, it should be pretty good."

Beach cabanas get new

The Carolina coastline is one of North Carolina's biggest attractions, so it's no surprise that the eight enlisted cabanas at Onslow Beach are constantly in use. In an effort to improve the look and feel of these weekend retreats, Morale, Welfare and Recreation is having the units renovated.

"Because the units are on the beach, they are constantly exposed to the weather and salt air," said William E. Hildreth, MWR marketing director. "So they need a lot of up keep and it is time to redo these units."

The renovations will start soon and should only take a couple of weeks to finish, said Hildreth.

With the renovations the units will be furnished with new furniture, carpet, wallpaper, light fixtures and paint as well as new kitchen appliances and bathroom fixtures.

"It will be more than a 100 percent look of the old cabanas," said Hildreth.

The cabanas are located next to Onslow Beach and are available the summer and $7 a night in the off-season.

Reservations for the cabanas are on a first-come, first-served basis. Applications for reservations must be submitted 40 days prior to the 30th working day prior to the occupancy date. Reservations are publicly held at the Onslow Beach Building BA-209.

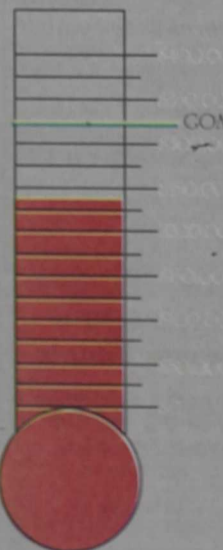

The Primary selectees and the first alternate are notified on the drawing of names. The second alternate is notified if the first alternate declines the selection.

For more information on the beach cabanas or officer, call the caretaker's office at 7502.

The interior of the Beach Cabanas will receive a new more modern look during renovation.

Education opportunities available at base center

Cpl. Jason C. Huffine
Globe staff

The Camp Lejeune Education Center has a variety of information for those looking for educational opportunities.

Many families in the area are currently planning ahead for the transition of their high school student to college. These students will have to decide which college and university to apply to and research how to finance a college education. The Base Education Center can help with these decisions, according to Lynette Kennedy, assistant director.

"The center has book after book listing various colleges and scholarship information," Kennedy said. The information is organized and can be found easily according to Kennedy.

The center is only authorized to provide tuition assistance to active duty personnel but scholarship information is available, she explained. "There are many scholarships available just for military family members," she said. "Year after year these dollars go unclaimed. It's sad considering the money is there and people don't know about it."

The center helps active duty personnel with tuition assistance, but is also always there with support and guidance for those who look for outside resources, according to Kennedy.

One comprehensive source of financial aid information that the education center has, is the American Legion's college financial aid handbook, Need a Lift. It lists scholarship funds and interest-free loan programs that have been generously established by service-affiliated organizations.

The publication's Department of the Navy section gives specific criteria, addresses for military sponsors and application deadlines.

An example of the book's many assistance programs is The Retired Officer Association (TROA) educational program. Dependents of active, retired or reserve service personnel of all ranks may apply for interest-free loans in the pursuit of an undergraduate education.

Another is the Noncommissioned Officers Association (NCOA) Scholarship Grant. A grant to NCOA member's spouses and children, designed to take care of the financial problems dealing with room and board, tuition, library fees and textbooks.

A book available through the education center called, The 1996 Top 1,000 Scholarships, Fellowships and Loans, is an in depth guide to education related financial aid programs for students. It lists other scholarship opportunities besides military affiliated ones.

TOYS from 1A

close to home. "The Toys for Tots program distributes toys nationwide, but it is a very local and community-oriented program," Cooper said. "The toys are collected by regional Marine Corps Reserve stations, and they are distributed to needy children throughout their region. There are nearly 14 million needy children throughout the United States, and we have managed to reach about 3.5 million of them which is close to 20 percent. Of course, we would love to be able to reach even more."

Individuals can help the Toys for Tots program in a number of ways, Cooper said. "The most common way of helping the drive is to buy a brand new toy and drop it off at a Marine Corps Reserve station,"

Cooper said. "However, not everyone lives close enough to a reserve station to make the drop-off, so there are many fund-raisers such as runs, golf tournaments and dinners that raise money for the campaign. People can also send tax deductible donations to the Toys for Tots Foundation. All the money we receive through donations and fund-raisers is used for the toy drive."

According to Cooper, the most important aspect of the campaign is helping the children, but Toys for Tots helps the Marine Corps as well. "Our main goal is to help the children," Cooper said. "However, the people around the nation also see the Marine Corps on the streets in their dress blues helping the children. This

Rams lock horns with Vikings, goring them in decisive 19-0 victory

Saturday's tornado was not the only storm to hit Camp Lejeune this past weekend. The Rams stormed to a 19-0 rout over the Vikings in Division II football action at Little Man's Field Saturday. The game closed out the season for both teams, upping the Rams to a 3-3 record, while the Vikings fell to 1-5 on the season. With a touchdown from Joey Cipko, the Rams took an early lead. The Vikings attempted to move the ball downfield but were thwarted by a strong Ram defense.

The Rams increased their lead in the first half with a second touchdown from Cipko. Robert Corwin made a successful conversion attempt to bring the score to 13-0.

Going into the second half, the Rams' coach, Stacy Ryans, spiced up the game by allowing Cipko to call his own plays. The strategy worked and led to a touchdown by LePaul Williams. The Rams defense continued to hamper the Viking offense's comeback attempts and the Rams clinched victory, 19-0.

"We played excellent defense and offense," said Ryans. "This was one of the few games that we were able to get both to click and it showed."

The Lejeune High School Devilpups finished regular season play on a high note with two explosive victories in the Coastal Plains 1-A/2-A Soccer Conference last week. Routing the East Carteret Mariners 2-0, Oct. 24, and shutting out the Topsail Pirates 5-0, Oct. 25, the Devilpups finished the season 10-7 overall and 8-6 in the CPC.

The victories firmly sealed Lejeune's bid for the playoffs.

Lejeune's victory over East Carteret was unexpected. In a previous meeting between the two teams, the Mariners walked away with a sound, 6-1, win.

"We really didn't know whether or not we could win this one," Lejeune coach Francisco Blanco said. "After our first meeting we knew they were a very capable team but our guys really wanted to win this one. It was out of the heart of our players that we won this game."

Victory did not come easily for the Devilpups. Demonstrating why they had won in their last meeting, the Mariners dominated the midfield in the first half of play. However, the defensive efforts of Armstead Galber, Tony Sayama and goalkeeper Tim Fenstermacher, thwarted the Mariners' attempts to score, leaving the game scoreless at the half.

The second half proved to be much better for the Devilpups. After making significant gains into Mariner territory, the 'Pups began to take control of the game. Aaron Swingler booted in a rebound at the nine minute mark to break the stalemate.

"We knew it would be a matter of defense," Blanco said of the first half. "Going into the second half I told the team that if we could begin to flood the midfield, we could take it. And we did."

Swingler's goal changed the pace of the matchup and Lejeune's offense dominated the remainder of the game. With an assist from Collis Niro, Adam Hertel scored at the 34:30 mark and sealed the victory. The Devilpups outshot the Mariners 16-13.

FROM THE SIDELINES

With one swing of the bat in the sixth inning of the sixth game of the 91st World Series, David Justice sent the Indians reeling back to Cleveland and gave the Braves their first championship since moving to Atlanta in 1966.

What can I say? Thank you, David. Not for giving Atlanta its first ever championship within the professional ranks, but instead for ending a baseball season that seemed to drag on forever.

I, for one, enjoy the game of baseball as much as the next fan, but you have to agree that the baseball season has grown much too long to savor. Particularly with the implementation of the new playoff format.

Even before the playoff system change, 162 games was difficult to swallow. But now its even tougher to swallow.

It's bad enough that each individual game drags on for more than three hours, but to rationalize a 162 game schedule with six teams making postseason play in both the National and American Leagues is ridiculous.

Imagine if the first round series and the finals had gone the distance in this year's playoffs. The World Series would just be coming to a close this weekend.

The last month or so of the season is definitely the most enthusiastic and exiting part of major league play.

In fact this year's World Series ranked up there with the best of them. Five out of the six games played were decided by one run, including the sixth and final game between two teams that haven't won a World Series in decades.

For the Braves, it was the perfect ending to a perfect season in which they rallied time and time again to foil their opponents and get rid of the Buffalo Bills image that has tainted their franchise through the 90's.

The playoff system certainly isn't what needs to be changed.

Devilpups earn playoff berth by overcoming season's adversity

Cpl. S.L. Kille III

The notion of an inexperienced, rag tag collection of misfits coming together to play a sport has been immortalized in many films. In those films, the team flounders, constantly trying to get their act together. Ultimately, those "misfits" become contenders in the big game.

The Lejeune High School Devilpups soccer team faced a similar, yet not quite as exaggerated, scenario in their "Cinderella" quest for a winning season and a bid in the playoffs.

The road to success was long and bumpy at times. Due to the high ratio of transfers at the school, Lejeune constantly struggles each year to build a team that can compete with the area's established athletic programs.

"We have so many new and inexperienced players," said Lejeune coach Francisco Blanco at the beginning of the season. "It always takes a few games for us to begin to pull together."

Though the team must tackle the same obstacle each year, it was hit particularly hard with the loss of several key players, including midfielder Dennis Burnt due to transfer, and the graduation of all-area goalkeeper Mike Werrell and all-area player Chad Thomas.

The loss of many veteran athletes combined with a fresh batch of inexperienced players made for an interesting combination.

"The team was so new to each other," Blanco said. "We weren't sure if we could follow in the footsteps of last year's team. This team kept their sense of humor throughout the season though. They actually joked that they were a bunch of misfits."

The team was not completely without experience. The 1995 season saw the return of seniors Erik Dickerson and Armstead Galiber whose defensive skills proved valuable for the 1994 'Pups. The two, along with seniors Sean Mellon, Aaron Swingler and Justin Scott gave the team a dose of leadership that would become necessary as the Devilpups made their way through the season.

Probably one of the biggest question marks haunting the team was how to find someone to fill the shoes of and protect the box as well as Werrell had in '94. Tim Fenstermacher, a totally inexperienced goalkeeper was the answer. After a slow start, Fenstermacher soared by season's end—racking up seven shutouts to his name.

The true test to determine whether the "misfits" could reach the playoffs came on the field. The Devilpups started surprisingly strong by winning three-of-four games at the Greenfield Academy Tournament and then defeating Richlands in a Coastal Plains 1-A/2-A Conference match.

The Devilpups first speed bump came just as early. Facing perennial conference powerhouse, Swansboro, the 'Pups suffered a blistering 10-0 defeat.

Lejeune rallied back from the loss by soundly winning against North Brunswick and Topsail, only to fall again at the hands of Dixon and East Carteret. Hopes to keep from slumping into a losing record were shattered once again with another heartbreaker at the hands of Swansboro.

Though they lost 6-0, the game was in many ways a turning point for the Devilpups. The defensive efforts of Fenstermacher, Galiber and Swingler, held Swansboro to two goals in the first half.

"They are one of the best teams in the state," Blanco said of the game. "Considering how decisively they beat us earlier in the year, I'm really proud of how well we played this time."

The Devilpups rebounded in their next game by routing North Brunswick 13-1. They suffered another loss to Dixon but with wins over Southwest Onslow, East Carteret and Topsail, the team sailed into the playoffs. Most significant was the victory over East Carteret. By defeating East Carteret, 2-0, the 'Pups redeemed themselves of their previous 6-1 loss.

The win, coupled with the Topsail win and East Carteret's loss to Swansboro, threw the Coastal Plains Conference for a loop. Lejeune, East Carteret, and Richlands finished the regular season tied for third in the conference with 8-6 records.

"The win against East Carteret was unexpected," Blanco said. "It just goes to show the heart of these players. We know we're not the best team in the league, but we are definitely now a team."

Blanco added, "We are sitting really well for the playoffs and have a chance we didn't think we would have had, but these guys still call themselves a bunch of misfits!"

To break the tie and determine playoff seeding, the athletic directors of the three schools met in Morehead City. With the luck of the draw, Lejeune was given third seed. The Devilpups travelled to Western Almanance yesterday for the first round of the playoffs. The results were unavailable at press time.

Devilpups can't hold victory under Stallion's stamp

Lejeune falls, 39-0, to red-hot Stallions who possess the only 1-A undefeated record

The Southwest Onslow Stallions marched one step closer to a perfect season Friday night after burying the Lejeune Devilpups 39-0 in a lopsided Coastal Plains 1-A Conference matchup.

Southwest, now 9-0 overall and 6-0 in the conference, rolled off 22 points in the opening quarter to steamroll the Devilpups and cruise to victory.

Santonio Monk got the Stallions rolling early when he picked his way through the defense for a 12-yard touchdown scamper -- the first of four touchdown runs by the area's leading rusher.

Monk scored again in the first quarter on a 1-yard plunge and added to the Stallions lead with touchdowns runs of 68 and 40 yards in the second half.

Monk finished the game with 191 yards on 18 carries.

Lejeune's offense was stymied the entire game by an aggressive Southwest defense. The Devilpups managed just 100 total yards offensively in the game.

The Devilpups' Bailey, was held to zero. It was the first time a defense has been able to shut out the Devilpups.

Lejeune's offense was stymied the entire game by an aggressive Southwest defense. The Devilpups managed just 100 total yards offensively in the game.

Lathan Sullivan's rush for 27 yards for the Stallions.

Bobby Sacy connected for 27 yards for the Stallions. Lejeune, now 3-6 in the conference, hosts the Stallions next week in the coming contest. Southwestern, undefeated state, travels to Jonesboro to face the Trojans.

DEVILPUPS from 1B

Riding high on the unexpected win, the Devilpups stormed the field the next night to face Topsail. Dominating the game, the Devilpup offense pounded away at the Pirates' goal. The 'Pups outshot the Pirates 42-2.

Though they were able to drive the ball to the box several times it wasn't until Mike Regner, with an assist by Elton Click at the 4:50 mark, scored from the right wing to give the 'Pups an early lead. Using excellent defense, Lejeune held strong to close the half, 1-0.

Lejeune continued its onslaught in the second half. Mike Sabin tallied the 'Pups second goal at the 8:24 mark with an assist from Charlie Nash. Minutes later, Aaron Hefner increased the lead with a header. Niro and Justin Scott racked up two more goals to shut the Pirates out, 5-0.

The victory marked the end of the Devilpups' regular season play. It also gave the 'Pups their seventh shutout win on the year.

"We have done something good here," Blanco said of the team's Cinderella season. "Though we started with a lack of experience, we pulled together and have claimed another winning season. It feels great!"

Adam Hertel, Lejeune Devilpups, makes his way past East Carteret defenders. The Devilpups handed the Mariners a 2-0 upset, Oct. 24. Cpl. S.L. Kille III

FLAGS from 1B

Maint. Bn.'s defense complemented the offensive unit's effort by holding HqSptBn. to six points.

Sumrell played a big part in the defensive unit's success by intercepting two Russell passes. The defense also recorded four sacks on the night -- three of which were caused by Reginald Jones. "It kind of makes me feel like I did last year," said Anthony Taylor, Maint.Bn. head coach. "We pulled together and played together."

"We caught the ball well offensively, and we only gave up six points defensively," he said.

Maint. Bn., last year's champion, proved their record to 2-6 victory, and are looking to make their championship season. "We're going to practice, and try to pull this together."

"Now that we have this victory, and that's what we pulled for the rest of the year," he emphasized.

With the loss, HqSptBn. is on the season.

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Sam I Am"
17-19

Penn State at Northwestern ... The Wildcats have amazed the college world with their surprise wins, and by leaping into the number six ranking they have become a force to reckon with. Darnell Autry has done a superb job rushing each week and has spurred a few glances from Heisman voters. Whether he'll be able to rush against the Nittany Lions will be another story, somehow I think he just might be able to.
Wildcats 37, Nittany Lions 21

Buffalo at Indianapolis ... The Bills are once again beginning to slump and until their injury-depleted offense regains strength, they will find themselves slumping deeper. The Colts have been a surprise this year, but after looking at the stats of their win last week one has to wonder how they pulled it off. Both teams are beginning to look meek, for this I'm tossing a coin. It's heads...
Colts 20, Bills 17

Carolina at San Francisco ... The 49'ers are beginning to feel the effect of a Young-less offense while the Panthers are somehow actually winning games. Of course, can a win over the struggling Patriots, by a mere field goal, truly count? The Panthers will open strong and one can expect some terrific playing on the part of the Carolina defense, yet Elvis Grbac started to come into form last week, and will pull through in the end for San Francisco.
49'ers 27, Panthers 21

Miami at San Diego ... I really hate when I have to admit that the Dolphins are doing well, but after last week's performance against the Buffalo Bills I think they have a couple more wins in them. Marino's return to the field has seemed to do the trick. The Chargers will put up a fight though, making for an excellent game.
Dolphins 34, Chargers 27

DANO
20-16

Penn State at Northwestern ... The Nittany Lions have rebounded from a rocky start and have found an offensive identity which was lost in the off-season. Joe Paterno is grooming Wally Richardson to become next year's premier passer in the collegiate ranks, helped by a backfield that is one of the best in the country. The Wildcats are trying to make a legitimate run for the roses for the first time since 1938, and will give Penn State all they can handle Saturday. But the Lions will show that the Wildcats' bark is much worse than their bite.
Nittany Lions 29, Wildcats 20

Buffalo at Indianapolis ... After cruising out to a 5-1 start, the Bills have dropped their last two and have to venture into Colt territory this week. The Bills are missing two of their offensive weapons, while their quarterback took a beating last week in Miami. The Colts are minus Captain Comeback, but look for Marshal Faulk to step up and pick up the slack. Colts win and grab sole possession of first place in the AFC East.
Colts 20, Bills 14

Carolina at San Francisco ... The Carolina Panthers are hot. Three straight wins and they're already selling Super Bowl tickets in the Carolinas. Give me a break. All three of those wins came over teams that are going in the wrong direction. This week it's an entirely different story. The 49ers are hurting and prone to being upset, but not by the Panthers. Not this year anyway.
49ers 33, Panthers 18

Miami at San Diego ... The Dolphins have to have last year's loss in "The Murph" in the back of their minds. Dan Marino definitely does. He lost another chance to get to the "Big Game" he's been crying about for years now. Miami will be looking for some revenge Sunday night, but the big-play Chargers will zap the Dolphins again.
Chargers 23, Dolphins 31

C.T. Armchair
19-17

Penn State at Northwestern ... Simple and sweet. Northwestern has to be the surprise team of the year. Penn State on the other hand has sorta been a let down. If Penn loses though, it places them in a bad position when it comes to bowl contention. I like Northwestern at home by a field goal.
Wildcats 24, Nittany Lions 21

Buffalo at Indianapolis ... Buffalo struggled last week against Miami without Thurman Thomas. Without Thomas the Bills have to rely on Holmes whom only rushed for 24 yards last week. Andre Reed is also out taking away from the passing attack. Indianapolis struggled against a weak Jets team. I want to pick the Colts at home, but maybe the Bills. It's a tough one to call. But what the heck, Colts by a touchdown.
Colts 28, Bills 21

Carolina at San Francisco ... Three in a role, but no more. Elvis will there and singing loud. The Panthers are 1-4 versus NFC teams and sure they're doing O.K. for an expansion team, but will never beat the 49ers. Quote me on that. The 49ers lost at home to a struggling Saints team, but reality will set in and if they lose again, home field advantage for the playoffs will be lost, no doubt. Sing loud Elvis and rise from the grave. (Throw a couple of touchdowns while your at it).
49ers 28, Panthers 14

Miami at San Diego ... San Diego will be playing with a weeks rest and they're going to need it. At 4-4 the Chargers are will struggle against a Miami team that has there main man back. Dan "The Man" Marino initiated a Dolphin revival that set back a good, but injured Bills team. The passing attack is all over the place, with eight different receivers catching passes in their victory against the Bills. Playing at San Diego is the only negative, I can see for the Dolphins. Miami will win by 10.
Dolphins 24, Chargers 14

The Phatman
23-13

Penn State at Northwestern ... Surprise! Surprise! The Wildcats appear to have the inside lane to the Rose Bowl, and with a win over the Lions, they might secure the berth. Who would've thought the Wildcats would be looking at possibly taking the Big 10? I think Penn State will give Northwestern a game, but in the end, the Wildcats will overcome Paterno and the Nittany Lions.
Wildcats 24, Nittany Lions 17

Buffalo at Indianapolis ... I told the world last week that this road trip might destroy the Bills, and it doesn't get any easier this week. The Bills still lack Reed and Thomas, and they looked simply pathetic against the Dolphins last week. I'm looking for the Colts to rebound at home, and Harbaugh will be on fire. It will also benefit Marshall Faulk to return to the astroturf.
Colts 17, Bills 14

Carolina at San Francisco ... What is with the 49ers? They've managed to fall to third place in the NFC West, and they could fall even further. Now some of the losers out there would like to say that it goes back to the Deion Sanders trade, but look for the 49ers to bounce back this week at Candlestick. I realize Young is out, but Grbac is no slouch. This team simply needs some old-fashioned motivation.
49ers 27, Panthers 14

Miami at San Diego ... Isn't it amazing how much better the Dolphins play with Marino, and he didn't even have a great game last week. The Dolphin defense will shut the Chargers down, and Marino will look like the star of old when he takes to Jack Murphy Stadium. Beware AFC East, the Dolphins are getting ready to tear the season open.
Dolphins 31, Chargers 21

SIDELINES from 1B

Instead, the regular season needs to be shortened about 50 games.

Of course Bud Selig, baseball's interim commissioner, won't be as brazen as to make a change to baseball's chemistry. Especially since he's caught up in a political state trying to seal his position as baseball's permanent commissioner. But as soon as he's elected, he needs to make an effort to make a change.

What would it hurt? Baseball's chemistry and tradition has already been broken up with the new playoff format that has been in place for the past two seasons. And with every action, there is a reaction. Now the season is too long, and another action must be taken.

Now that the season has come to a close, and we have received a full dose of what the new playoff system has to offer, I can't help but smack my lips at what will be in future years.

The Braves showed the world that they are true champions by beating the second best team in the majors, and have given us something to revel at during baseball's off-season. It has definitely been a long time coming for the tomahawk choppers from Atlanta.

Tom Glavine has been with the Braves the longest, and it was fitting he received the Most Valuable Player honors. He has been there through the 100-loss seasons, and he's been there through the '91, '92, and '93 disappointments. Finally he has tasted victory on a team that has many years as a part of his of Fame in Atlanta. A hearty cheer to Tom Glavine and the Atlanta Braves.

Tips For Keeping Children Warm

What do children like in outerwear? Staying warm with a minimum of fuss is important. They also like accessible pockets and practical hoods. Children like packable garments designed to stuff back into their own pockets, becoming either a handy pouch or fanny pack.

inner layers and protect your child from wind, rain and snow.

Outer layers come in many variations, such as simple wind-resistant nylon shells, which are ideal for dry, windy conditions, and water-resistant nylon shells, ideal for low-intensity activities in wet conditions.

• Insulating Layer: The insulating layer provides warmth by trapping body heat in and around the garment's fibers. It used to be that thickness equaled warmth, but with today's technologically advanced insulations, your child can stay warm with less bulk.

Fleece, extremely popular either as a lining or on its own, is quick-drying, lightweight and warm. This durable, insulating fabric is made of 100 percent polyester.

Other state-of-the-art insulations include 3M's Thinsulate® and Dupont's Thermoloft®, which also provide warmth without weight.

Fahrenheit™, made of 100 percent polyester fibers, is Columbia Sportswear's insulation designed especially for children. Two weights are used in children's attached-insulation parkas. The 200 gram (7 oz.) weight is used in the body, where extra warmth is needed at the body core. The 142 gram (5 oz.) version is used in the sleeves to increase mobility and reduce bulk.

When choosing children's outerwear, look for accessible pockets and practical hoods. Columbia Sportswear puts a lot of thought into pocket and hood design, offering well-placed hand warmers, internal security pockets, and convenient stowable hoods.

When children are outdoors, convenience is key. Columbia's packable garments are designed to stuff back into their own pockets, becoming either a handy pouch or fanny pack.

HIDDEN TALENTS DELIVERS COUNTRY CHARM TO CAMP LEJEUNE SHOPPERS

Roberta Hastings

ready for your holiday decorating with hand-painted angels. Christmas is just around the corner.

Roberta Hastings
Accent Editor

Do you ever find yourself at a loss to purchase that perfect gift for that special someone? Are you tired of going to the mall finding the same old tired merchandise that you saw last year? If you answered yes to either of these questions the help you seek is here on Camp Lejeune.

The Officers' Wives' Club has taken its Hidden Talents craft consignment shop to a new facility and with more space there are more decorative and interesting pieces.

Hand-crafted decorations for New Year's, Christmas and everything in between are readily available to satisfy even the most discriminating tastes. Beautifully decorated baskets, wreaths for all seasons, clothing, afghans, stained glass, jewelry and homebaked breads and cookies are just a few things that can found at Hidden Talents.

In addition to having lots of crafts for sale, visitors can take part in any of the numerous craft classes that the consignment shop has to offer. Basket and napkin holder decorating, applique, plaques and tole painting are all offered throughout the year for a nominal fee. Class schedules are available at the shop.

Interested in taking a class but have the children? Not a problem. Hidden Talents has sectioned off an area of the classroom for a children's play area.

Have a hidden talent of your own? Those interested in teaching a craft

Roberta Hastings

Co-managers Linda Burke, left, and Patty Houston will welcome you to the craft consignment shop where there are lots of goodies for the young and the young at heart.

need only an ID to participate.

The staff at Hidden Talents is especially excited this time of year as they gear up for the 18th Annual Fall Craft Fair being held at Marston Pavilion Nov. 18 from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. and Nov. 19 from noon-5 p.m. It is one of the largest craft fairs in the area with approximately 125 crafters expected to participate. Admission is free and the public is welcome.

Although Hidden Talents may seem like just another craft consignment shop, its real agenda is charitable. Eighty percent of proceeds go to the crafter but 20 percent goes directly to a scholarship fund available to children of military members.

Roberta Hastings

The time-tested art of quilting is alive and well at Hidden Talents. Lots of hand-sewn crafts are always available.

OWC '96 scholarships available

Roberta Hastings
Accent Editor

The Officers' Wives' Club will award scholarships to qualified seniors graduating in June, 1996. Scholarships will be awarded for academic excellence and merit. To qualify, a senior's sponsor must meet one of the following criteria:

1. Active duty military personnel serving in the Camp Lejeune area.
2. Active duty personnel currently fulfilling an unaccompanied PCS tour whose last duty station was in the Camp Lejeune area.
3. Retired or deceased military personnel whose last duty station was in the Camp Lejeune area.

The student must be currently attending either Lejeune High School or one of the six Onslow County high schools. All qualified applicants will be considered provided they have properly completed the application procedures and have their application post-marked by the date on the application. Selection of recipients will be made by the Scholarship Committee of the OWC and all judgements are final.

Scholarships may be used for tuition, academic fees, and books only. Students who receive other scholarships and/or grants, equal to or greater than their first year's tuition, academic fees and books, will forfeit their OWC scholarship. An alternate recipient will then be awarded the scholarship. Scholarship checks will be made payable to the university or college in the students name. The exact amounts of the awards are not known at this time.

Applications will be available in the seven area high schools sometime in January. Please have your senior check with the guidance counselors during that time.

This year, OWC raised $7,000 from sales at Hidden Talents consignment shop and craft fairs.

Roberta Hastings

Scholarships can be like presents under the Christmas tree, well deserved and fun to receive.

by Bette Midler.
The best action in the movie is scene stealer Farina with his portrayal as Ray "Bones" Barboni, a mob sleazo and Travolta's punching bag.
Hackman wears a good disguise with wig and buck teeth. Travolta is outstanding as Chili Palmer who never loses his cool.
Directed by Barry Sonnenfeld ("The Addams Family"), Get Shorty is full of surprises and spicy dialogue and pokes fun at the Hollywood establishment.

JADE (R)

In this erotic and raunchy thriller, three people find themselves caught in a web of power, passion and deceit when a prominent San Francisco socialite is murdered.

David Caruso ("Kiss of Death" and TV's "NYPD Blue") plays the San Francisco assistant district attorney, David Corelli, who is investigating the murder of an art-dealing socialite.

Linda Fiorentino ("The Last Seduction") is a psychologist and sometime hooker who becomes a suspect when Corelli finds out that she leads a double life as a sex slave.

Chazz Palminteri ("Get Shorty" and "Bullets Over Broadway") plays Fiorentino's lawyer husband, who also happens to be a close buddy of Caruso who was the one time lover of Fiorentino.

Richard Crenna portrays the powerful governor of California who is involved in exotic sex games. Angie Everhart and Donna Murphy are also co-starring.

Directed by William Friedkin ("The French Connection") from a script by Joe Eszterhas ("Basic Instinct" and "Showgirls"), Jade plays to the background of beautiful San Francisco but the plot is sleazy and the supposedly thrilling car chases are unreal and unbelievable.
Caruso is overrated but fair in familiar NYPD setting. Jade is jaded and meaningless.

NEVER TALK TO STRANGERS (R)

Never Talk to Strangers is another tense thriller about a criminal psychiatrist who is snared in a web of deceit with a handsome stranger and a serial rapist.

Rebecca DeMornay is Dr. Sarah Taylor who meets Tony Ramirez, played by Antonio Banderas, in the neighborhood grocery store.

She begins a passionate love affair with this stranger and is placed in danger when she realizes she is the target of a stalker.

Harry Dean Stanton is Max, the serial rapist she is evaluating; Dennis Miller is her longtime friend who lives in the same building.

Directed by Peter Hall, the film has a good but familiar plot with a surprise ending.

Banderas and DeMornay are a very sensual couple and have a lot of chemistry together; they sizzle in the steamy shower scene.

Never Talk to Strangers is amusing and entertaining fare for a rainy afternoon at the movies.

Peter Frampton Comes Alive...AGAIN!

MSgt. Gary Lauziere
Globe Contributor

I was walking through a music store looking for something to report, something different, something that would be interesting for people to read about in the paper. It's actually very difficult to identify the tastes of so many men and women, so I decided to break it down and attempt a musical hand at listening to anything and everything out there that I could find. The method of my madness is simple: education, no matter what form, is always going to be just that - education. This is my attempt to educate myself as well as those with whom I associate.

I was going to focus this week on country, featuring Mark Chesnutt and his latest release "Wings." In my search for the right material I discovered another new release from an artist I hadn't heard from in 20 years. So, while Mark Chesnutt has outdone the standard beer drinkin', truck drivin', girl chasin', don't talk about my hat music with more of the same, the only difference in any of this music is the fact that HE's singing it.

The music is country, the tunes are country and everything about the release is country. If you enjoy country music, this CD promises more of the same stuff by a different vocalist.

Although I do believe Mark Chesnutt will eventually climb very high on the billboards for country's top hits in the near future as this recording is already on the billing.

Now the interesting piece I discovered is sitting in front of me and I have to admit that I'm taking a huge leap down memory lane. I was ??? years old when his first album came out.

If I'm not mistaken, somewhere in my TMO box is an 8-track recording!

Peter Frampton has just produced and released (October 10, 1995) his very own "Peter Frampton Comes Alive II." Now, although I really enjoyed his performances when I first got my license to drive across state lines, I found no difference in his music on this recording at all. Every song from "Day in the Sun" to "Off the Hook" reminds me of Frampton's 1975 hit "Do You Feel Like I Do."

I can't recommend this new release to anyone who knows of Peter Frampton because if you've heard the 1975 hit, you've already heard this whole album.

The chords are the same, the key changes reflect no genuine musical attributes to the star and the vocals haven't done much over the past 20 years.

Still, the biggest turn-on for this musician (me), is the fact that I got a chance to look back and hear one of the very first artists who made an impact on my life. Not necessarily on my musical career, rather my growth and maturity as a young adult. If I told you I enjoyed watching Lawrence Welk on Sunday evening followed by the Ed Sullivan Show (both in black and white), you'd probably expect to see me running around looking for the nearest polka band. So what if I do?

My off-beat point is this: If just for a moment, look around you and grab a record or cassette or CD of someone you remember from way back when. Look at the picture on the cover and try to recall who was beside you when you first listened to it. Attempt to recollect a happy memory from one of the songs within. When you remember the feeling you had way back when then, considered yourself educated.

Getting Around in North Carolina

Oriental Luncheon scheduled by the USO

The USO Service Wives Support Group invites spouses to join them every Friday morning from 10-11:30 a.m. for a fun and informative morning out. Children are welcome under their mother's supervision.

On Nov. 3, from 11 a.m.-2 p.m., there will be a luncheon sponsored by the Wives Club of the Orient. Egg rolls, fried rice and Japanese pickles will be served for only $4 a plate. Tickets will be sold in advance and are available at the USO, 9 Tallman St., or by calling 455-3411.

Cape Fear Museum makes waves

Cape Fear Museum will host a Fossil Fair Nov. 4 from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Visitors are encouraged to bring fossils from their own collection for identification.

To celebrate the publication of "Time, Talent, Tradition: Five Essays on the Cultural History of the Lower Cape Fear Region, North Carolina," the essayists summarize their area of expertise. Speaker Edward F. Turberg will discuss architecture; Sherrill V. Martin will discuss music and dance; Tony Rivenbark, theater; John W. Myers, visual arts; and Alan Watson who will give a historical overview. A book signing will follow.

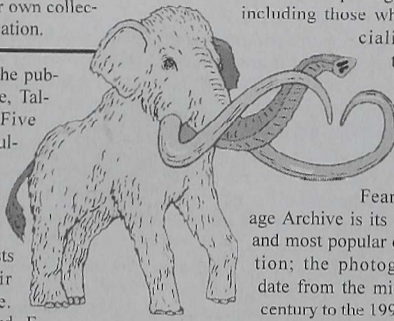

On Nov. 10, the Cape Fear Museum will open an exhibit titled, Before Freedom Came: African American Life in the Antebellum South. This highly acclaimed exhibition, coordinated by the Museum of the Confederacy in Richmond, Va. and the Smithsonian Museum in Washington, D.C., examines individual, family and community life of 19th century African Americans.

The project is one of the most comprehensive treatments of African American life prior to the Civil War. The evidence suggests the story of enslavement in the United States is more than the sum of abject hardship and brutality. It is a story of survival and the emergence of a new and unique culture. The exhibit will run through Jan. 7.

North Carolina Photographers will be featured Nov. 10 at 11 a.m. Steve Massengill, photographic historian with the North Carolina Division of Archives and History, will discuss research documenting

North Carolina photographers including those who specialize in the Lower Cape Fear area. Cape Fear's Image Archive is its largest and most popular collection; the photographs date from the mid-19th century to the 1990s. Of the thousands of photographs owned by the museum, curator Barbara Rowe selected images by visual appeal or intriguing subject matter. The exhibition includes the earliest known outdoor photograph in North Carolina (c. 1847) which is of Market Street in Wilmington.

The Cape Fear Museum is located at 814 Market St. in Wilmington. For additional information or admission costs, please call (910)341-4350.

Sweet Treats For The Holidays

Healthy, Flavorful Cookies

(NAPS)—By now most people know that the sensible way to stay healthy is to control the amount of fat in your diet and keep physically fit with regular exercise.

A healthy diet does not have to "take a holiday" during the holidays. With some ingenuity, it's possible to prepare flavorful low fat holiday meals. It's also easy to modify recipes so that your favorite holiday treats are reduced in fat but taste just as mouthwateringly delicious.

In a recent taste test at Tufts University's Frances Stern Nutrition Center, two chef/dietitians prepared five variations on fat and sugar reductions in five classic cookie recipes. Two more variations substituted either honey or fructose for sugar.

Taste panels drawn from the student body and faculty of the Center chose the winners.

Consistent winners were the cookies with either a 25 percent or 50 percent reduction in the shortening—butter, margarine or oil—used for the cookies.

Cookies in which the sugar was reduced fared poorly, with tasters describing them as "less moist" and "not as flavorful."

For a healthier, flavor-rich cookie, keep the sugar the same and you can reduce the fat by 25 percent or more, advised Center Director Johanna Dwyer.

Here's the lower-fat chocolate chip recipe that the test panel couldn't get enough of:

Chocolate Chip Cookies

Sightamins: Nutrition Breakthroughs For 1

(NAPS)—Medical journalist Bill Sardi has uncovered hundreds of reports of nutritional remedies for eye-disorders and has compiled them in his new book Nutrition And The Eyes.

"There is overwhelming evidence that cataracts can be prevented or even reversed in their early stages by combining vitamins C and E with an amino acid found in eggs, that diabetic eye disease can be eradicated with pigments found in huckleberries, that glaucoma can be remedied through diet, exercise and nutritional supplements without the use of drugs, and that dry eyes can be soothed with a combination of cod liver oil and vitamin A eyedrops," says Sardi.

Digging through the shelves of medical libraries, Sardi says his most startling finding was a cure for macular degeneration, the fastest growing cause of legal blindness among U.S. adults. "Animals deprived of a yellow antioxidant pigment found in spinach leaves rapidly developed retinal disease. Recent human studies confirm this may be a breakthrough in retinal disease prevention. That same yellow pigment (called lutein) ed in the petals of ers and is just n available as a nuta ment," says Sardi.
