Large month set

Frank B. Kelso- May is the 15th annual observance of Asian-Pacific American month. Over seven millions trace their ancestry to the Pacific islands. This month, "Harmony in diversity" highlights the courage and tenacity with which they have pursued the American Dream of equality for all. It is a time to recognize the many sacrifices of our fellow countrymen, both military and civilian-Pacific Americans have distinguished themselves in the defense of the United States since the American war. Eight Pacific Americans were killed when USS Telesforo Trinidad was sunk in Havana harbor. PO2 Telesforo Trinidad received the Medal of Honor for his heroic actions. An explosion aboard USS Telesforo during the second world war, the 100th Infantry Battalion and the 442nd Central Postal Directory, composed of Japanese Americans, earned 18,000 medals, making it the most decorated unit for service in the history of the United States. Nine Asian-Pacific Americans have received the Medal of Honor in the military, five of them for actions during the Korean and Vietnam wars.

More than 25,000 men and women and more than 800 officers of Asian-Pacific descent proudly serve in the Army and Marine Corps. Past leaders of the Navy include Vincente T. Blaz, USMC, and RADM Ming E. Chang, Ret.). Distinguished Naval aviators today include VADM Robert U. Kihune, director, Naval Air and doctrine and RADM Sareeram, director, supply and policy division.

Large all Navy and Marine activities to support professional and exhibits, publish items of interest in command bulletins, periodicals, and allow maximum participation by personnel in appropriate observances of Asian-Pacific American heritage month. Present with resources available and mission commitments. Participation by our personnel in community programs is also encouraged.

Relief Society kicks off fund drive

Sgt Darren W. Milton

The Navy-Marine Corps Relief Society fund drive at Camp Lejeune begins May 10. This is an opportunity for Marines and sailors to donate money which will aid their fellow servicemembers.

The NMCRS began in 1904. Then President Theodore Roosevelt authorized that a portion of the proceeds from the Army-Navy football game be given to the Navy to take care of Naval widows and orphans.

In 1910, eligibility was expanded to include all servicemember's mothers who were listed as a beneficiary.

By 1911, the society had also adopted the policy of accepting voluntary contributions from within the Naval service for relief expenditures, while contributions from outside the service were used to build up a reserve fund.

Today, the society still uses the Annual Fund Drive to finance 100% of its relief operations, aids all servicemembers active and retired and their dependents.

There are various ways in which a servicemember can be aided by the NMCRS. There is the Visiting Nurses Program, Education Programs, and interest-free loans and grants.

The Visiting Nurses Program makes home, hospital or clinic visits to indigent people. They also provide health education and instruction and offer emotional support during times of stress. They assist in understanding medications, special diets prescribed by doctors, and provide overall continuity between patient, doctor, and community resources.

Special services by the nurses include; care and feeding of newborns, child developing, parenting skills, and aid in chronic medical conditions such as Diabetes and high-blood pressure.

The NMCRS operates a comprehensive education program to help Navy and Marine Corps families further their education. The individual applying for the loan must be a dependent of a Navy or Marine Corps servicemember in one of the following categories: active duty, reserve personnel on extended active duty, retired due to length of service or disability, or deceased while in one of the above categories.

There is also the VADME.P. Travers scholarship which offers $2,000 dollars per academic year. There is also the Interest-free Parent Loan of up to $3,000 per academic year, the PLUS loan offering up to 4,000 per year, and Federal Loan Programs based on financial need.

There are also many other loans and scholarships offered for specific groups such as those enrolled in commissioning programs and dependents of deceased crewmembers of spe-

Combat roles for women expand

Editor's note: The following is a statement from Secretary of Defense Les Aspin concerning the new policy on the assignment of women to combat roles in the armed forces.

As we downsize the military to meet the conditions of the post cold-war world, we must ensure that we have the most ready and effective force possible. In order to maintain readiness and effectiveness, we need to draw from the largest available talent pool and select the most qualified individual for each military job.

Throughout our nation's history, women have made important contributions to the readiness and effectiveness of our armed forces. Their contributions to the nation's defense have been restricted, however, by laws and regulations that have excluded them from a large number of important positions.

The military services, with the support of Congress, have made significant progress in recent years in assigning qualified women to an increasingly wide range of specialties and units. Two years ago, Congress repealed the law that prohibited women from being assigned to combat aircraft. It is now time to implement that mandate and address the remaining restrictions on the assignment of women.

Accordingly, I am directing the following actions, effective immediately:

The new commissary will hold its grand opening May 12.

New commissary opens soon

Cpl Donald E. Preston

Wheeeew! After two years of construction the new commissary will hold its grand-opening May 12.

The grand opening ceremony will begin at 0900 and the guest speaker will be BGen Claude W. Reinke, assistant deputy chief of staff for installations and logistics, Headquarters Marine Corps.

Following the opening ceremony distributors and companies will be giving away products and hold drawings for prizes.

Giveaways and prizes include soft drinks, ice cream, microwaves, cookware, a four-day cruise, a wave runner and a 18-foot boat with motor. "There will be fantastic sampling all week," said Reed Leader, commissary officer, Defense Commissary Agency.

The 75,000-square foot building will feature services never available on base before. "We will have 22 check-out registers, a fresh seafood department, delicatessen and a bakery which we have never had but, well deserve," Leader said.

The $9.1 million commissary will replace the Hadnot Point store, closing May 10, and Tarawa Terrace store, closing May 9.

The new commissary is almost twice the size of either of the current stores. "The old stores were built in the 1940s and have outlived their days," Leader said.

Besides the new commissary there is still some construction continuing in the area. "Next door there will be small restaurants and a new post exchange. We expect them to open at the end of September," Leader said.

The new commissary hours will be Monday, closed, Saturday, Sunday, Tuesday and Wednesday, 0900-1800, Thursday and Friday, 0900-2000. "Late shopping on Thursdays and Fridays will give two income families and late workers a chance to shop," Leader said.

A linear charge rocket soars over Onslow Beach during 2d Combat Engineer Battalion's Type Commanders Amphibious Training.

Engineers test skills

Cpl D.T. Thornton

While hundreds of "beach bums" were sunning on Onslow Beach last weekend, 2d Combat Engineer Battalion Marines were being evaluated on their amphibious employment skills.

The primary objective of Type Commanders Amphibious Training 3-93 was to familiarize junior Marines with ship-board life and ship-to-shore movement. It also prepared small-unit leaders to react in emergency situations.

"This exercise was a learning experience for most of the junior Marines," said Sgt Derrick C. Martin, 3d platoon sergeant, Company A.

The combat engineers, using the USS Ashland as an operational base, moved to the shore via Landing Crafts, Air-Cushioned and helicopters.

Some of the personnel rode CH-46 helicopters to Landing Zone 22, where linear charge tubes were staged and pre-fire checks were conducted.

After receiving the OK to go "hot" from range control, four linear charges were fired concluding the TCAT exercise.

"These charges have 100 meters of explosives and are used to blast vehicle paths through mountains," Martin said. "After the blast, a tank with a mine plow is used to clear the remains."

"We took hands-on experience and used it to our advantage. The rocket live-fire provided the opportunity to build confidence in some of the junior Marines," said Martin.

Sgt Arnold L. Jordan is presented an Army Commendation Medal by BGen George H. Walls, commanding general, 2d Force Service Support Group, April 23.

Marines

Heroes in disguise

Cpl D.T. Thornton

Eight Marines received Army medals and certificates April 23 for responding to a fatal and tragic accident while in support of Operation Express Sword 2-93 at Fort Bragg, N.C.

They were assigned to Combat Service Support Detachment-25, 2d Force Service Support Group and 10th Marines, 2d Marine Division. The awards were presented by BGen George H. Walls, 2d FSSG Commanding General, at building 2.

On March 18 an Army 5-ton truck carrying supplies and three soldiers, went out of control, turned over several times, and caught fire before stopping across from CSSD-25's field ammunition supply point.

The Marines there assessed a graphic situation. Without a moments hesitation or regard for their own safety, they battled the fire to look for and administer first aid to survivors.

"First aid was the most important thing, but keeping them from going into shock was also important," said Sgt Oyango A. Burney, 2d Landing Support Battalion, 2d FSSG. "Whatever popped into my mind at that particular time was the subject I used to keep their thoughts off the situation at hand."

Without proper equipment, the Marines treated the traumatic injuries and kept the victims alert. They also provided personal items such as blankets and poncho liners to the victims until they could be evacuated.

After the arrival of military police and paramedics, these Marines continued to assist at the accident scene. They kept all bystanders clear, which reduced chaos and prevented possible harm to the victims.

The Marines also cleared a roadway of all debris, persuaded traffic and secured a landing zone for helicopter evacuation. These actions kept the safe and timely evacuation of the victims.

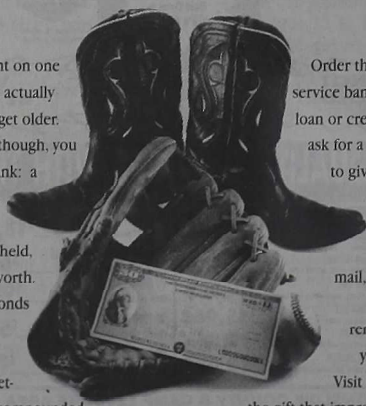

After the victims were removed from the scene, the Marines stayed behind to provide vital accident information including the revelation of an eye which departed the scene without offering any information or identification to Fort Bragg Criminal Investigation Division.

"I have been asked how about knowing I helped save lives," said Sgt Arnold L. Jordan, 8th Engineer Support Battalion, FSSG. "My reply has and will be that it was just another day in the Marine Corps." Sem one of them.

You can count on one hand the gifts that actually get better as they get older. There's only one, though, you can buy at your bank: a U.S. Savings Bond.

The longer Savings Bonds are held, the more they're worth. You buy Savings Bonds for half their face value. They earn competitive, market-based interest — compounded semiannually, when held for five years or more — with a guaranteed return. And they're absolutely safe. Savings Bonds are easy to buy, too.

Order them at any full-service bank, savings and loan or credit union, and ask for a gift certificate to give now. When the person receives the Bond in the mail, you and your gift will be remembered for years to come.

Visit your bank for the gift that improves with age: a U.S. Savings Bond. For more information, write: Office of Public Affairs, U.S. Savings Bonds Division, Washington, DC 20226.

All-Navy sport teams, not easy to join

The Bureau of Personnel Navy Sports and Fitness Office manages the All-Navy sports program. The qualifications to be considered for the team are tri-fold. First, the bureau states, the sailor must have extraordinary talent and skill in the sport. The second and third requirements are continuous active-duty for at least 90 days before application, and a letter of endorsement from the sailors commanding officer. Of the thousands of athletes that apply, only a handful will go on to compete in international events.

Babies need tooth care

NAVAL HOSPITAL, San Diego -- Many first-time parents may be surprised to learn babies can develop cavities. Decay can occur as soon as teeth appear.

One serious form of decay among young children is baby bottle tooth decay. Baby bottle tooth decay occurs when an infant is allowed to nurse from a bottle of milk, formula, sugar water or fruit juice during naps or bedtime. These liquids pool around the child's teeth during sleep.

They all contain sugar, which is converted during the process of digestion into acids that attack the infant's teeth. Infant tooth decay can also result from prolonged breast-feeding.

Parents can avoid baby bottle tooth decay by giving the baby water or a pacifier before a nap or bedtime, instead of juice or milk.

Cleaning the infant's mouth is also important. Begin cleaning the baby's mouth during the first few days after birth. After every feeding, wipe the baby's gums with a clean, damp cloth or gauze to remove plaque. Plaque is a shiny film of bacteria which forms constantly in the mouth. Begin brushing the child's teeth as soon as they erupt through the gums. By age 4 or 5, the child may be able to brush under your watchful eye. Many references suggest a child's first visit to a dentist be between ages 2 and 3. This is a good time to ensure enrollment in the Delta Dental Plan, since this treatment will be covered.

By age 3, most children have a full set of 20 teeth. Primary teeth help with chewing, speaking and appearance. They also hold space in the jaw for permanent teeth. Keeping healthy baby teeth is extremely important to permit development and growth of healthy permanent teeth.

During preschool years, children should establish good eating habits. Eating snacks that supply nutrients and energy is very important. Parents should help children choose sensible snacks like popcorn, raw vegetables, yogurt and sugarless gum. They should also have their children brush after eating.

Chaplain's corner

'God and the authority of man'

LT Peter Gregory

Growing up in Pennsylvania I had the chance to observe the life and activity of local Amish community. They were people who rejected comforts we take for granted because of their belief that they were called by God to live a life separate and distinct from the surrounding community.

By the time this is read the events of the Branch Davidians in Waco and the tragedy of the events may be a fading memory, but consider why was this community different from other religious communities like the Amish and how did this contribute to their tragic end. First they were primarily a cult of personality built on the teachings of one man. It was to this man that all Scripture, religious life, and personal control were subjugated. Any community founded on this principle is destined sooner or later for confrontation.

Second is that the Waco Branch Davidians believed themselves to be the only true believers. Being such they assumed God was always on their side and against those who they considered their enemies. Third and most important is that their leader claimed to be divine or God in human form. When mixed with the mind control practiced by many extremist cults this produced a very powerful tool to control what his followers did.

The overriding principle of Holy Scripture from Genesis to Revelations is that we are to submit to the will of God and we are to love our neighbor as we love ourselves. Devotion to God goes hand-in-hand with qualities of compassion, love humbleness, wisdom and grace.

When that is forgotten or pushed aside by any religious community history shows tragedy will result. Why, because people are not gods. We make errors of judgement and we can be consumed by our own ego and vanity. Without God's controlling wisdom we make houses built on sand, it can just as easily be knocked down by wind and rain as leveled by fire.

Children safe in hospital

Hospital personnel ask that parents bring well children to hospital and if they feel it necessary, they should be accompanied by the following rules: Parents are responsible for the control and conduct of the children at all times. There are some areas of the hospital where children are not permitted: OB/GYN clinic.

- Leaving children unattended at any time in the facility or parking area is prohibited.

- Children must not be allowed to run or play in hallways, waiting areas, on stairs or in elevators.

- Children should not sit on counter or table tops.

The hospital asks for cooperation to help reduce the potential for injuries to children.

With an eye for detail, a "black hat" instructor watches a student shuffle in a mock-up apparatus.

A "Black Hat" critiques a student's parachute landing fall at the swing landing trainer.

Black hats keep airborne tradition

Story and photos by
Cpl Mark D. Oliva

FORT BENNING, Ga. — There are quite a few different titles for those who teach. Educator, mentor, guru and swami are but a few of their names. But at the Basic Airborne Course here, they're simply called "Black Hats."

The instructors are easily identified by their black baseball-like covers that give them their name. Walking around the training area, however, they're never referred to as anything other than "Sgt Airborne."

"Our biggest expectations from students are military courtesy and discipline," said Army 1stSgt Willie C. Peoples, Company A First sergeant, 1st Battalion, 507th Infantry. "If the students have that, they'll have no problem with black hats or airborne school."

While students may have no problem with the black hats, black hats might have a problem with students. Instructors maintain a quiet camp atmosphere, regardless of rank. They expect nothing less than complete cooperation.

"We're in charge of their welfare," said Army Sgt Tracy Lewis, Company B, 507th Infantry. "That means if they're due to our negligence, we have to answer. It means we've got to expect constant detail and mental alertness. In this course, there's no room for second chances."

For the three weeks, black hats train airborne students, they take on the role of instructor. "Some people think it's 'Easy Street' through the school. Wrong answer. That's the wrong frame of mind. Airborne has always maintained high standards. It's those standards that make it what it is."

It's simple to pass the course, Lewis said. "All the student has to do is keep a proper frame of mind, maintain military bearing, listen to whatever their 'black hat' says, and not out to mess anyone up. Our mission is to make everyone airborne qualified. If it happens, we need their undivided attention and cooperation."

The discipline and effort the "black hats" demand is to be taken seriously, said Vincent Montgomery, Headquarters, Marine Division. "I thought it was just a joke. I came down thinking that it was just an Army school. Even though I was constantly on your case, it was all worth it. The black hats perform their mission with honor, Peoples said.

"Airborne assault is one of the swiftest and one of the deadliest forms of attack. It's our responsibility to keep that tradition alive. It's up to the black hats for the maintain standards that the airborne school has set for."

"I have all the respect for the black hats," Montgomery added. "They expect a lot of motivation, and see you all the way up the course up to the door, 1,250 feet Fryar Drop Zone. For me, the 'Sgt Airborne' are up there with the drill instructors, and they give back to their students."

Leathernecks lead the way

Story and photos by
Cpl Mark D. Oliva

Some say there are born leaders. Leading, as the Marine Corps knows it, however, is an acquired skill. There is no easy formula to employing the troops. All the manuals and textbooks don't really give a straight answer on how to take the reigns successfully. It is a skill the Marine Corps knows can be learned through trial and error — one place to learn is on the 2d Force Service Support Group Leadership Reactionary Course.

"The course is designed to build up the non-commissioned officers," said MGySgt Billy Harrison, director, Battle Skills Training. "It's purpose is to help them with problem solving and teamwork."

The course is actually a series of obstacles. They all have the same goal; to move an ammunition box or barrel through an obstacle using all members of a team in less than 10 minutes. It sounds easy until Marines find out portions of the course can knock out players and no portion of their body or gear can touch the ground. The team leaders are given a scenario for each separate obstacle and have to confer with their team on the best way to negotiate their way. Harrison said. "Marines aren't graded on they complete the obstacle," he added. "The team leader for the given obstacle is graded well he uses all his Marines and gear."

The course is hardly a walk in the park. The leaders ability to make decisions on the ability to listen to advice from the rest of the team. "Every obstacle was challenging" said L. Forman, Military Police Company, Headquarters and Service Battalion, 2d FSSG. "There was that I would consider the easiest."

The Marines got every opportunity to their teamwork and leadership skills, which out to be more challenging than the obstacle. Forman said. "You had to go back and ask questions which they thought was the best way. Every input. The toughest part of leading was to make decisions while we were going through. Leaders had to control all the movement."

Skills they learn on the course will be used in the field. Harrison said. "The course really shows leaders that it takes a team to come. There is no room for individuals."

Cpl Francisco Yruegas takes it one step at a time as he places a plank across an obstacle.

LCpl John Morales takes a breather while figuring out how to negotiate through the obstacle.

A helping hand and cooperation were the keys to success for the more difficult obstacles.

LCpl Michael Ahlstrom holds tight as he struggles to pull onto a beam.

SSgt Keven Appleyard lifts an ammunition box from the bottom of a water trench after "cooling off" from the course.

Marines quickly learned that the only way to complete the course is through teamwork.

Crash crewman learns the ropes

Cpl Lance M. Bacon

The firefighters of engine company five, fire protection division have an added member in PFC Craig J. Alley during April. Alley is a crash crewman, headquarters and headquarters squadron, Marine Corps Air Station New River.

Members of the air station crash crew come to the fire companies at Camp Lejeune to expand their knowledge of fighting fire, Alley explained. While here they perform all the training the regular fire fighters do as well as respond to calls with the unit.

Though a member of a crash crew team at the air station primarily, Alley admits that there is a side to fire fighting that he never knew.

"On the air station the fires we encounter are much more controlled," Alley said. "It is an aircraft that is usually in an open area and we often know the precise details such as the number of people involved, the amount of fuel and the amount and type of ordnance. Here the fire fighting is much broader.

The fire fighters really don't have full details until they arrive on the scene, and once there the fire isn't as easily controlled. Once they enter a building, they are completely surrounded by danger."

"The fire fighters here are extremely helpful," Alley said, "I think they are as eager to teach me as I am to learn. I appreciate the concern they have shown to me and the other crash crewmen that have been here for this training.

Many of us intend on pursuing a job in the civilian community as fire fighters, and this is the best introduction anyone can get."

Story and photos by Cpl Lance M. Bacon

"The government doesn't have fire insurance for the buildings on this base," said Ken Creech, fire captain, engine company five, fire protection division. "Through fire prevention and fire fighting, we are their fire insurance."

The fire companies aboard Camp Lejeune are staffed by teams of four civilian fire fighters at any given time, and these teams find themselves in an unusual environment for fighting fires. "We have the same responsibilities as fire fighters in a civilian community," said fire Lt David Jenkins, engine company five, "but there are many aspects that are unique to the base.

The ordnance is an obvious one, but there are also different chemicals used by maintenance shops that must be contained until they can be disposed of. There are many hazards here that won't be found in a civilian community and especially in these quantities."

To prepare for this environment the fire fighters must master 18 areas during a 13 month on-the-job training period. Some of the areas are the use of the self-contained breathing apparatus, emergency medical technician qualification, forceable entries, fire fighting strategies and care and usage of all fire fighting equipment explained Dave Schneider, a fire fighter in his sixth month of training. "I have to respond to all of the calls with the unit, and that experience is the best teacher for me."

The fire fighter must pass a test on each given by the company captain, the battalion chief or training chief and the deputy chief of the fire protection division, Schneider explained. "But the learning doesn't stop there," Jenkins quickly added. "I've been here 14 years and I'm still learning. The first thing I learned was how to go from sheer boredom to sheer terror in a split second. There aren't as many fires aboard the base as there are in civilian communities. Base orders allow unannounced fire inspections and are quick to enforce fire codes, and that keeps people from allowing hazards to go unattended. Still, there are fires and with fire comes danger."

Along with fires, members of the fire protection division respond to all 911 calls involving injury or hazards, Creech said. "The fire fighters will respond to an average of 10 calls a day ranging from auto accidents to medical emergencies."

In all situations they encounter, Jenkins stressed the need for teamwork, especially in fighting fires. "When the call comes, the nozzleman and hoseman will start thinking about what they will be facing, the driver will be deciding the best fire hydrant and approach to use and the captain will be looking at the floor plans of the area to decide the best strategy. Once we enter the building, we will be on our knees to try and get under the smoke. In complete darkness we will follow the walls so that we know the way out, and we're stacles blindly trying to glow. That is where things."

"We spend more time with our families," he concluded, "we are a family fire fighting is teamwork. An event of a fire the initial team will make a fight."

When the companies respond to calls they time checking equipment maintenance and functioning fire inspections and physically fit. For two and six hours every Saturday firefighters train for different fires and rescues. "Every time we've helped someone, Jenkins, "whether they not."

"The hardest part of a firefighter is the trauma of incidents," said Greg Humpal, chief, fire protection division. "With the fires and everything else it's not your emotions. It's something you never get used to, you learn how to deal with it. For the sake of the other out there that are relying Class 3-93 jumped into the training early in March. The had a refresher in land navigation and communication, then started to refamiliarize themselves with all the weapons organic to a Marine rifle company.

The leathernecks live-fired the M-60E3 machine gun, Anti-tank 4, 60mm mortar, Shoulder-Launched, Multi-Purpose Assault Weapon as well as several other weapons. While most of the Marines learned about these weapons during their School of Infantry training, VanMatre said the class is important because not all Marines work with the same weapons.

"There are many Marines out there who have never fired a live AT-4, but in this course, some do get the chance," he said.

The course rolled onward with patrolling in the Verona area and the first field exercise (FEX-1) which consisted of day/night attacks and offensive/defensive Military Operation in Urban Terrain training.

During the final week of training, the students participate in FEX-2 which is a competition between squads that spans from main side to Verona Loop.

Highlighting the competition were helicopter extractions, Nuclear, Biological and Chemical threats, ambush patrols, a five-mile speed march and tactical recovery of aircrew personnel. The squads were graded on how they handled the situation and if they were able to meet their objective.

"Sometimes it comes down to whether you were able to meet your bird and extract out or whether you were forced to hump," VanMatre said.

At the conclusion of the course, the students voted on one Marine who they felt exhibited the best leadership skills. Shannon was a two-time winner as he was also the recipient of the Leadership Award.

"(Sgt) Shannon is strong-minded and is consistent in the way he leads his troops," VanMatre said. "I guess that's got to do with him being a former drill instructor."

Shannon was presented a noncommissioned officer's sword by retired Col Carl L. Sitter, who was awarded the Medal of Honor while serving with Company G, 3d

Bn, 1st Marines during the Korean War. During Sitters opening remarks, he left the graduates with some words of wisdom. "To be an outstanding leader requires the hardest kind of work for which very little material credit will be forthcoming. But you will be able to look at the guy in the glass and say I have done my best."

Brig welcomes fellowship

LCpl Nikoletta Klimak

Since 1976 Charles Colson has dedicated his life to teaching the transforming power of Jesus Christ to the men and women living behind bars.

Colson is the founder of Prison Fellowship, a program he started while he was serving a seven-month prison term for a Watergate-related offense. PF is a fellowship of men and women who, motivated by their religious conviction have joined together to exhort and assist in the prisons and in the community. They minister to prisoners, ex-prisoners, victims, and families, and promote biblical standards of justice in the criminal justice system.

PF has some 40,000 volunteers who are helping to rebuild the lives of those whom society wants to forget.

In prisons, PF sponsors In-Prison Seminars that introduce inmates to the Gospel and Christian principles.

Seeing there was a need for this fellowship aboard Camp Lejeune, Navy Lt David Schwabauer, brig chaplain, worked hard to incorporate the program into the brig early this year. "As a chaplain, I can't meet the spiritual needs of every faith group," Schwabauer said. "I rely heavily on volunteers to help meet the need of the inmates." During March the Base Brig held a "You are Somebody" seminar in house.

"The big problem among prisoners is low self-esteem," he said. "They feel they have failed themselves and their families. The seminar lets the inmates know that God can forgive and use them even under the circumstances."

The seminar uses short lectures with skits, games, object lessons, visual aids and other creative teaching tools to pique the inmates' interest.

The instruction is followed up by a bi-weekly bible study that focused on the same topic of discussion as the seminar. While only 14 inmates voluntarily attended the seminar, Schwabauer said it was well received. During a training workshop at the Staff Noncommissioned Officers Club April 24 local volunteers were introduced to Prison Fellowship.

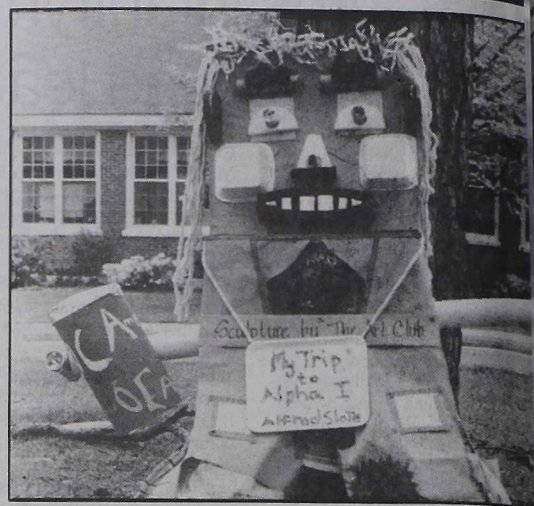

"In prison ministry, a volunteers loving spirit, good intentions and prayer support are very important to the inmates," Schwabauer said.

The volunteers completed the first two parts of a four part training workshop that teaches them how to make a difference in a prisoner's life.

One volunteer summed it up: "Although we depend on the power of the Holy Spirit, training is necessary so that we may have the knowledge and skills to minister effectively."

Russell Elementary School combined Earth Day and National Library Week into one big event April 22. The teachers and students dressed up as their favorite story-book character and paraded in front of the school. They also made characters out of only reused or recyclable trash. Left, Amber Kernaghn, 5, portrays Robin Hood in support of National Library Week. An alien robot was put together by students of Russell Elementary School promoting the importance of Earth Day.

4th Marines 'gunner' teaches Malaysian man-tracking

LCpl Kent Laborde

NORTHERN TRAINING AREA, OKINAWA, JAPAN — A bent twig, a foot print, and crushed ferns, lead the squad to their quarry. The "rabbits" left the "foxes" all the clues necessary.

The point of this training exercise was for the tracking team, the "foxes," to find the leading party, the "rabbits," using only the traces they left behind while walking.

Both the rabbit and fox teams were Marines from Surveillance and Target Acquisition Platoon, 3d Battalion, 2nd Marine Regiment. The teams alternated tracking each other during a recent field exercise in the Northern Training Area.

The skills necessary to do this were learned during the Malaysian Man-Tracking Course taught by CW05 Terry Walker, training officer for 4th Marine Regiment.

Walker learned the skills while attending a Malaysian Army Course at the Pulada Training Center in Malaysia. He has since been honing his skills as a tracker and teaching other Marines the techniques necessary to stalk one man or an entire regiment.

"Tracking is a skill we in the Marine Corps have all but lost. At one time it was common for everyone to know how. In Vietnam, the point men on patrols were said to be able to 'smell' the enemy. They couldn't actually smell them, they just knew how to read the signs around them," Walker said.

As we begin fighting larger wars where the enemy is obvious, we start losing the skills necessary to fight in other battlefields such as jungles and mountains, according to Walker.

"Today, unless we actually see the enemy or someone tells us where they are, we won't know where to look," Walker said.

According to Walker, tracking is important because everyone is susceptible to ambush or attack in combat. Constantly looking for signs makes a Marine more adept in his usual surveillance techniques.

"Marines now are taught to patrol until the enemy is found and then strike. This is hit and miss. You don't know where the enemy is until you see them. The problem is when you see them, they also see you," Walker said.

Tracking is a systematic approach to actively pursuing the enemy while collecting intelligence about the unit, Walker said.

During the five-day course, Marines kept two logs to help them understand the aging of signs.

"One is for the weather, to determine its effect on the tracks they see. The other is a navigational log to keep track of where they've been at what time of day," Walker said.

The class prepared a footprint, a small hole, a covered fire, an open fire, a path through tall grass and broken branches in order to observe how they change over the course of a few days.

The Marines observed the effects of weather and age on these signs and recorded them in their logbooks. They later discussed their observations with Walker.

Indications of age, according to Walker, are based on comprehensive understanding of the way nature effects individual signs.

"You've got to know nature. If you don't know nature then you won't understand," Walker said.

"For instance look at the way the dirt on the sides of this hole is caking up," he said while gesturing to a hole he dug two days prior. "If this was a fresh hole the dirt would still be loose and have a grainy texture."

"Smell the dirt," he directed, still smells fresh, this doesn't anything."

However, estimating age is part of the information that can be read from reading signs while tracking. Indicators of a unit's size, types and degree of outside support are determined through observation of signs left behind.

"A unit seldom thinks of being tracked. They carelessly bury their garbage behind valuable information. So simple as a brand of cigarette but you important intelligence about they're getting their supplies and they're kept supplied," Walker said.

Just as tracker must know nature also know the habits of the enemy, to Walker.

"Asians usually eat rice in the can't eat rice without cooking it, so to leave fire ash. Asians also don't ground because of leaches, so you ing for a camp site, you'll look for trees for where hammocks were Walker said.

Students of Walker's class learn while it may sound pretty simple, practice is more difficult.

"The first day we tracked, the some pretty obvious signs for the to follow. Each day they get harder to notice," said SSgt William Walker for one of the platoon's trackers.

"Now that we had a chance to train and to see what kind of signs we learn when we're the rabbits, the signs obvious," Weidow said.

While tracking is not new to the Corps, it is a skill that has been neglected at least one man is attempting to bring CW05 Terry Walker, training officer for 4th Marine Regiment, teaches Marines to observe small clues, such as bent grass or broken twigs, to tracking the enemy.

Beach Bash '93

Hot fun in the summertime

Wynn Hildreth

Morale Welfare and Recreation

Morale Welfare and Recreation's annual salute to summer, the famous Beach Bash, will be held for the eighth year in a row on Saturday, June 5, at Onslow Beach.

This event has evolved from a modest gathering of troops to a major event that draws around 14,000 people annually. Katina Greeves, MWR's deputy marketing director, remembers how the first Beach Bash came about back in 1985.

"MWR wanted to do something that could involve all active-duty personnel, so I said, 'Why not have a beach party to end all beach parties?' The rest is history," she said. The first Beach Bash was such a success, it was decided to make it an annual event.

"Beach Bash has gone through many changes over the years, and with each year it gets better," according to George Wigglesworth, MWR recreation director. "Beach Bash is a large community event that is designed to appeal to as many people as possible."

Paul Nilsen, MWR leisure activities director, summed up the reasons for the success of the events: Young, active duty servicemembers are always looking for a challenge.

"It's ingrained in their nature as trained military personnel. Events like the ocean raft race and tug of war get these folks to work together for a common purpose...and that is to have fun" he said.

This year's Beach Bash is going to be outstanding, according to Patsy Schneider, MWR's community services director. The entertainment lineup is great!

There's a mix of calypso, rock, top 40, and beach music," Schneider said. Beach Bash '93 will begin at 0800 at Onslow Beach and last until 1800.

The event is open to authorized military and civilian personnel and their guests.

Tickets are currently on sale for $6 and are available at Information Tickets and Tours outlets in the Main Exchange, Field House, and Camp Johnson Exchange.

Children 9 and under will be admitted free; however, to receive a Beach Bash '93 T-shirt (free with each ticket purchased), they will need to purchase a ticket. Hot dogs, hamburgers, and sodas are free at the event.

Additional events include volleyball, sand sculpting, fishing and surfing contests, and a Mr/Ms Beach Bash competition. Sand sculptor Marc Altamar will return with his creative flair.

The entertainment lineup includes the Panama Steel band, Mike Edwards & the Banned, and North Tower Band. Transportation will be provided to and from the event from various points throughout the base.

Ocean Venture '93 begins

Compiled by
Sgt Darren W. Milton

Ocean Venture '93, an annual joint training exercise has begun. The overall exercise began April 20 and continues through May 25.

Elements of the 2d Marine Expeditionary Force and 28th Marine Expeditionary Unit, both headquartered here are scheduled to depart soon for Puerto Rico with helicopters from Marine Corps Air Station, New River and airplanes from the Marine Corps Air Station Beaufort, S.C.

There will be not only all branches of U.S. troops; 3,600 Marines, 9,300 sailors, 400 airmen, 7,000 soldiers, and 200

Coast guard personnel, and troops from Great Britain, France and the Netherlands. The total number of troops participating in the exercise is 20,500.

OV-93 will take place primarily in Puerto Rico and its adjacent waters and air space. Other portions of the exercise will take place at Camp Lejeune, N.C., Avon Park, Fla. and at the islands of St. Croix, Grenada, Antigua and Jamaica.

OV-93 is a joint-field training exercise using crisis-action procedures. The purpose is to train in the field some of America's most likely contingency forces in joint operations using a realistic contingency scenario.

The exercise demonstrates the Department of Defense's ability to adapt to post-Cold War realities by testing capabilities rather than rehearsing a plan against a particular potential enemy. The exercise will include a realistic multi-threat scenario, with joint airborne, amphibious and helo-borne forcible entry and follow-on operations ashore. Joint firepower, including air and naval interdiction and battlefield support from aircraft, ships and artillery, will support joint task force objectives. Special operations forces will be employed in a variety of ways.

The maritime prepositioning force will support follow-on forces, and a wide range of joint capabilities, including surveillance, mine countermeasures, port security, evacuation of civilians from a threatening environment. Combat search and rescue will be exercised.

COMBAT from 1A

- The military services shall open up more specialties and assignments to women.
- The services shall permit women to compete for assignments in aircraft, including aircraft engaged in combat missions.
- The Navy shall open as many additional ships to women as is practicable within current law. The Navy also shall develop a legislative proposal, which I will forward to Congress, to repeal the existing combat exclusion law and permit the assignment of women to ships engaged in combat missions.
- The Army and Marine Corps shall study opportunities for women to serve in additional assignments, including, but not limited to, field artillery and air defense artillery.
- Exceptions to the general policy of opening assignments to women shall include units engaged in direct combat on the ground, assignments where physical requirements are prohibitive and assignments where the costs of appropriate berthing and privacy arrangements are prohibitive. The services may propose additional exceptions, together with the justification for such exceptions, as they deem appropriate.

An implementation committee shall be established to ensure that the policy on the assignment of women is applied consistently across the services, including the reserve components.

The committee shall be chaired by the deputy assistant secretary for military manpower and personnel policy, and should include the deputy chiefs of staff for personnel of the services and the director of manpower and personnel of the joint staff.

Consistent with my emphasis on readiness and effectiveness, the committee shall review and make recommendations to me about the services parental and family policies, pregnancy, and deployability policies, and the appropriateness of the risk rule.

The service secretaries and the chair of the implementation committee shall report their progress and plans to me in 30 days, and keep me apprised thereafter.

RELIEF from 1A

Specific Naval vessels. Loans and grants offered by the NMCRS are also given to individuals with emergency needs such as emergency transportation and essential vehicle repairs, funerals, food, rent, utilities, personal needs when pay is delayed, and aid following disaster.

Along with all the programs the NMCRS offers they can also give budget counseling and act as a liaison with civilian agencies such as Red Cross, Veterans Administration, military disbursing and legal offices.

For families on a tight budget a Thrift shop is available on base to help stretch that dollar. If child care is a problem when trying to keep a doctor's appointment, the Children's Waiting Room is available at no charge.

This base's NMCRS operates with a payed staff of only 12 individuals. The greatest asset of the office is about 30 full-time volunteers. "I enjoy helping others help themselves, but even more rewarding is working with the volunteers," said Don Larsen, executive director, NMCRS Camp Lejeune who has worked with the society over 13 years.

"The society gives you the responsibility and ability to do whatever is necessary to help the servicemember," said Heather P. Albert. She encourages anyone with any extra time to consider giving the NMCRS a try. She has been a volunteer on and off since 1983, and said she feels it is a good opportunity to meet people when arriving at a new base: "We can never have enough volunteers," she added.

The annual fund drive provides all the money for these programs.

Last year the goal for Camp Lejeune was $325,000. That drive, after expenses, netted $343,246.

Donations can be made two different ways. The person contributing can give cash or set up an allotment for as little as $1 per month for the next 12 months.

As in years past, there will be a raffle in conjunction with the drive. One ticket given for every $2 contribution, with the purchaser receiving a portion of the ticket, other portion being entered into a drawing for prizes.

The second, third and fourth week of the a $500 award will be given. The fifth and sixth week a $2,000 prize will be awarded. The prizes, $5,000 and a red, fully-loaded, Sentra will be drawn at the Fourth of July celebration here on base.

"This year the committee has designed a prize system to allow for opportunity for individuals to win," said Neal A. Baker, deputy director of Human Resources and NMCRS campaign coordinator. "We once had a young Marine who had been sent to Cuba, we took him down and made arrangements for him to receive his prize."

"The key to a successful fund drive is to start," Baker said.

He added that the earlier you purchase the more chances of winning a prize. "Even if an individual wins a $500 prize second week of the drive, his ticket is reentered into the barrel making him eligible to win prize thereafter."

A crisp $100 bill will also be given to the seller of the ticket which is drawn for each prize. "This should motivate the seller to a little harder," Baker said.

"Our main goal this year is to reach 100 percent of the servicemembers of this base to allow everyone the opportunity to participate in the campaign," Baker added.

Any Marine or sailor interested in taking part in the fund drive should contact their unit representatives.

'Pups golfers No. 6 in regionals

Sgt Dave Higgins

The Lejeune High School Golf team ended its season with a sixth-place finish at the State 1A/2A Regionals, held at Rock Creek Golf and Country Club Monday. The Coastal Plains 1-A Conference champions were led by Ryan Judkins and Rob Jerebek, who both scored 81.

The regional competition was a qualifier for the state finals slated for Monday and Tuesday in Chapel Hill. The top three teams gained berths, while the top four individuals from non-qualifying teams will also enter into the state competition.

"We missed qualifying for the State by 12 shots; that's only three strokes per golfer," said Lejeune coach Bob Green. "I'm proud of their (Devilpup golfers) performance this year though. We beat a lot of good golf teams in the regionals; and we did win the conference."

The Devilpups claimed the CPC April 26 on the Paradise Point Scarlet Course. Four of the team's golfers carded in the 70s.

In his last match as a Devilpup, senior Ryan Judkins totalled 40 on the Rock Creek back-nine. The Lejeune No. 3 golfer was holding at par after the first six front holes, but bogeyed on the seventh.

Bed-ridden with the flu last weekend, Judkins said the rest may have contributed to his low score. The sickness may have meant a lack of strength coming down the final holes, however. Judkins sliced into the tree line on the par-3 eighth hole. He followed a triple-bogey, there with a bogey on the final hole.

Steve Phippen had a near-opposite regional performance. After a high score in the first two-thirds of the course, Lejeune's No. 1 golfer came on strong to finish a respectable 84. A.J. Gray carded an 88, while senior Andy Stenner never overcame problems with his irons shooting and tallied 99.

With Jerebek's 81, the Devilpups had a team total of 334.

Of the 15 competing teams, Farmville Central was tops with a 309. South Brunswick and East Duplin earned State entries with 322 and 323 respectively.

Paul Dickens of Roanoke Rapids High School took medalist honors with a one-over par 73 card. Dixon's Bryan Patrick was the runner-up with a 75.

The Devilpups said they felt confident they would make it to Chapel Hill, after proving they could go shot-for-shot with two area 4-A golf teams during the season ender. The Devilpups won a three-way match with Jacksonville and Laney High Schools April 29 on the Scarlet Course.

Led by 74s from Phippen and Gray, Lejeune totalled a 300 to Laney's 304 and a 309 by Jacksonville.

Jason Napier, Laney's No. 3 golfer, won medalist honors with a one-over 71.

Coach Green again saw his top four golfers shoot in the 70s. Only one of the first 12 golfers shot higher. Laney's No. 5 and 6 also carded below 80. Tee Talman, Jacksonville's fifth golfer, was aided by a day-low eagle on the par-5 seventh hole.

Judkins was three over par after four holes, but managed a 77 finish. In comparison to Napier's card the No. 3 senior was dissatisfied with the day's performance. "I guess I should be happy," Judkins said. "It's not often I card in the 70s and am disappointed with my play."

The triangular match continued a 'Pups hot-streak, highlighted by a hole-in-one by Judkins (his first ever) on Scarlet's 12th hole during a practice session the previous day.

That feat was nearly matched on the fourth hole by Jerebek, Lejeune's No. 2 golfer. He smashed the hole pin from the tee box, but the ball ricocheted 9 inches away to set up a birdie.

Jerebek continued playing well throughout, until a pair of troublesome shots on the 18th finished him at 75.

Meanwhile, Phippen was on course for a par-70 finish through the first nine. Jacksonville's Ryan Sawyer was one over and Ryan Wenzle of Laney had a 38 as the trio headed into the back half.

The Lejeune No. 1 said he usually bogies the first two holes and his par performance had him enjoying the afternoon. Phippen remained par through 14, when the pressure finally overcame him.

"I hadn't really thought about finishing par for the day, until the 15th," Phippen said. "I started believing it was possible, and ended up talking myself right out of it."

Phippen double-bogied the 15th and bogied the 16th. Following a par on 17, he chipped a good out on the final hole to outshoot Sawyer by two and Wenzle by four.

Laney held a one-stroke lead over the Devilpups as the first three groups left the course. The Cardinals trailed Lejeune by four.

Gray seemed to have the trimatch in the bag for Lejeune with his 74 carding. Jacksonville's No. 4 finished with a 79, while the Laney golfer finished with an 85. Laney ended up using the 79 card of its No. 5 golfer, Mike Madej, in tabulating its four-lowest total.

No. 1 defeats No. 2 in 'Group' league

LCpl Timothy C. Hodge

The undefeated 2d Maintenance Battalion and the 6-1 Headquarters and Service Bn clashed in 2d Force Service Support Group intramural softball action April 29.

No. 1 Maint pushed their record to 9-0 with a sound 7-4 victory over No. 2 HQSVC.

Sound and consistent play was the order of the night for the Maint players.

They stopped what could have been a huge first inning for the HQSVC team and continued to damper any hopes they might harbor for a victory the rest of the night.

HQSVC did the bulk of their damage early on in the first inning, coming up with two runs to open up a 2-0 lead after the first half inning of play.

They got it done on the strength of five base hits but the steam seemed to get knocked out of them when third baseman Richard Wolfe was tagged out at the plate while attempting to score the third run of the inning.

Maint Bn responded in the bottom of the first with some offense of their own. The Maint Bn batter roughed up the HQSVC team for five base hits in their first six at bats leaving HQSVC behind 3-2 to play catch up for the rest of the night.

HQSVC went in order in the top of the second with an outstanding catch and throw by Mike Gribben to get the first batter of the inning and keep the bases empty.

Maintenance went away in the bottom half without much trouble after a double play by the HQSVC infield.

The HQSVC team lead off the third with a base hit but was turned away again as the Maint defense retired the next three batters in a row.

In the bottom of the third the Maint bats were busy again leading off the inning with a double and a single. They brought home two runners on the strength of two sacrifice flies to push further ahead to 5-2.

The HQSVC hitters remained quiet through the fourth as they were sat down in order for the second time of the night on three fly balls.

The Maint team was on the offensive again in the bottom of the fourth and tacked on an insurance run to make the score 6-2.

The HQSVC team again found it hard to reach the bases in the top of the second as the Maint infield came up with another great defensive play to end the inning.

In the top of the sixth the HQSVC bats found new life and came up with a couple of hits to bring in a run and make the score 6-3.

The Maint defense quickly put a stop to any thoughts of tying the game with a double play to get out of the inning.

The Maint players responded the bottom of the sixth with another run to give them a comfortable four-run lead at 7-3 heading into seventh.

The HQSVC squad opened the seventh with a home run but was not enough as the Maint sat down the next three batters to end the game with a final score 7-4.

"We knew that they were a good team and we would have to be pumped in order to win," said Maint coach Charlie Grider.

Devilpups pound Topsail in conference competition

Story and photos by LCpl Timothy C. Hodge

The Camp Lejeune Devilpups hammered the Topsail Pirates 11-4 Thursday in Coastal Plains 1-A Conference baseball action.

The Devilpups defeated the Pirates at home to give them their second win of the season over Topsail and improve their overall record to 5-7.

The game led off with the first two Devilpups batters striking out. With two outs, the Lejeune High bats came to life chalking up three base hits including a two-run shot over the left center field fence by sophomore pitcher Jason Biggs. Before the inning was over, the Devilpups had banged out a four-run lead.

In the bottom of the first the Pirates answered the Devilpups big at-bat with one of their own. The Pirates exploded for three runs before they received their first out. The Devilpups got out of the inning when a Pirate runner attempting to tie the game on a double steal was tagged out at the plate.

For the second straight inning the Topsail pitcher retired the first batter on strikes. The next two hitters got base hits and set up the next Lejeune run to cross the plate. Sophomore second baseman Chad Thomas stole third and, on a bad throw from the Topsail catcher, took home plate as well. This gave the Devilpups a 5-3 edge heading into the middle of the second.

The Devilpups held the 5-3 lead until the top of the fourth inning when the Lejeune hitters were at it again. Sophomore Kevin Rutherford led off the big inning with a single and came home on a double by Thomas. The Next Lejeune run of the day would come when another Devilpups sophomore, Marcelino Angulano, singled to get aboard and stole his way around the bases coming home on a wild pitch. This bumped the Devilpup lead up to 7-3 going into the bottom of the fourth.

Topsail threatened to get back on the score board in the bottom of the fourth but the runner was tagged out at the plate on a great throw by Biggs, who was moved to the outfield earlier in the game.

The fifth saw both teams come up with base hits to put up another run apiece and make the score 8-4 heading into the sixth. Lejeune put the game out of reach in the last two innings by bringing three more runners home. Topsail loaded up the bases in the bottom of the seventh but stranded three runners to end the game and fall to Devilpups 11-4.

"We have a real young team but we're getting better in every game," said Lejeune High coach Pete Anderton. "Our kids are starting to gel together with a team batting average over .300. If we can get our ears tuned a little and make a few less mistakes, then we will be in good shape."

Lejeune slugger Jason Whitson nails a big hit in the seventh inning.

Cardinals thump Cubs 19-6

Story and photos by LCpl Timothy C. Hodge

The Cardinals subdued the Cubs 19-6 in Mustang League youth baseball action Saturday at Stone Street Park. After falling behind early, the Cardinals came back to soundly defeat the Cubs.

The Cubs escaped the top half of the inning only after the Cardinals had loaded the bases courtesy of three walks issued by the Cubs pitcher. All three base runners were left stranded as the Cubs snuck out of the inning without allowing a run.

The Cubs jumped out front to open up the game with a 3-0 lead. The inning ended after the Cardinal pitcher struck out his third on the inning. But, the damage was already done.

The top of the inning was a big one as the Cards grabbed the lead and went out front 5-3 on five more walks given up by the Cubs.

The Cubs cracked the score board again in the top of the second but only came up with one run to pull to within a run of the Cardinals at 5-4.

The only run of the third inning came when Brian Morse crossed the plate in the top of the inning for the Cardinals making the score 6-4 after 3 1/2 innings.

The Cubs suffered through their only scoreless inning of the day in the bottom of the third when pitcher Eric Holms struck out three to keep the lead going into the fourth.

In the top of the fourth the Cardinals pulled away and put the game on ice as they came up with six runs off two in-the-park homers. After four, the Cardinals stood on a 12-4 lead.

The bottom of the fourth saw the Cubs put up another run to get their offense back on track, but that was all they could muster.

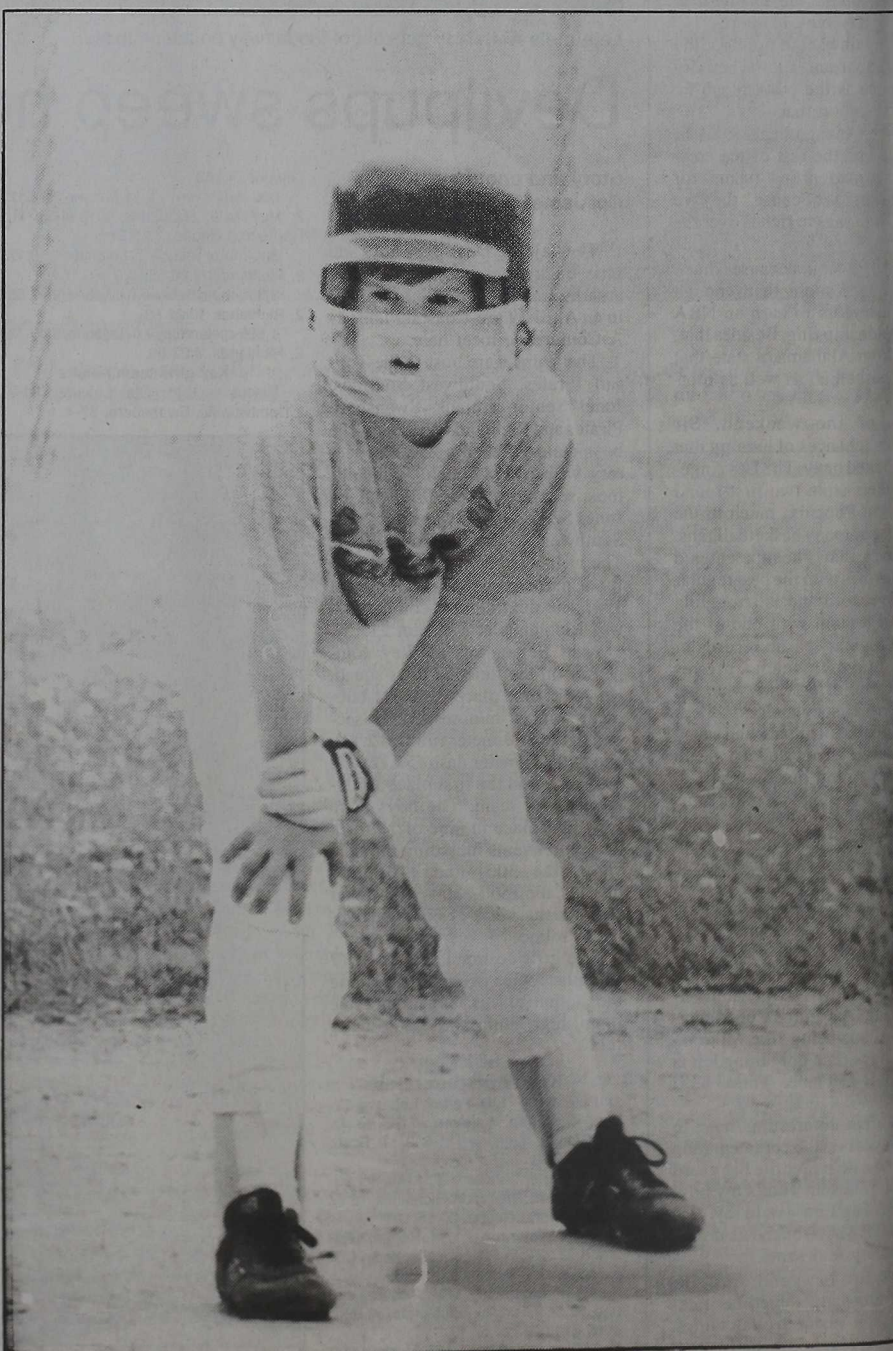

The top of the fifth was another missed opportunity for the Cubs as they failed to stop the Cardinal scoring machine and give themselves a chance to get back into the contest. The Cards banged out another seven runs to put the finishing touches on a convincing victory.

The Cubs last at-bat had them behind by a monstrous 14 runs but the Cubs didn't give up. They played as hard in the last inning as they did when they led the game 3-0. But, they came away with only one more run to show for the inning to bring the final score to 19-6.

The Cubs and Cardinals will be in action Saturday at TT-1.

Handicapped athletes: Their day to shine

LCpl Nikoletta Klimak

Each year, Onslow County dedicates one special day to area handicapped athletes. It's their day to shine, to gain a sense of accomplishment and self-worth. At the same time, it gives local volunteers an opportunity to give something back to the community, to help those less fortunate.

Judging by the smiles and the laughter in the air, no one walked away disappointed at this year's Special Olympics hosted by Lejeune High School April 23.

"This is a chance for us to give these athletes the love and patience they truly deserve," said event coordinator Liz Pleier. "No one goes home empty-handed. There is something here for everyone."

Helping to make the event a success were hundreds of Marine Corps Service Support Schools students enrolled in Personnel Administration and Motor Transport School, as well as Lejeune High School students. Two volunteers were paired up with one special athlete for a morning of fun and competition.

Distinguished guests were on hand for the opening ceremony which was marked by a 1,000 strong band of participants parading around the track and the ceremonial lighting of the torch by Lejeune High School's Amanda Turner and Rachelle Gadson.

The spectators cheered as the athletes participated in track and crawling races, long and standing jumps, and softball and baseball throws. After each event all participants received a ribbon for their efforts.

In between competitions, the athletes and volunteers got to spend some quality time getting to know each other.

PA School's SSgt Michael Claudio had his hands full with four-year old Troy Winchester, but said he was surprised at the good time he was having.

"Troy is an awesome kid," Claudio said. "We have been having fun all day. He really enjoyed the softball toss, but not as much as he enjoyed eating my chips during lunch."

First-time volunteer Lasi Nunu took Bobby O'Neal under her wing. The Lejeune High School student said she volunteered because she loves working with children and hoped she could make a difference.

"I wanted to be a part of this event with hopes of helping some young athlete accomplish something he normally wouldn't or couldn't do," Nunu said. "It's about making a difference in somebody's life, even if it is only for a day."

While it was fun and games for most, some used this day as a learning experience. "There are a lot of people out there who are ignorant about mentally handicapped individuals," said Pvt Leon Robles, PA School student. "This is a chance for me to learn for myself and it has made me feel good by being here and doing my part."

Rodeo riders, fans find knee-slapping fun at base stables

A cowboy dismounts and runs down his rope during the rodeo Saturday at the base stables.

Story and photos by
LCpl Timothy C. Hodge

"Let's rodeo," the announcer cried and the show was on as Camp Lejeune hosted its annual rodeo Friday and Saturday at the base stables.

Hundreds of Marines donned their cowboy hats and boots and ambled out to the arena to witness cowboys and cowgirls from all over the Southeast do what they love most, rodeo!

The event, which drew over 2,500 rodeo fans and spectators from the Camp Lejeune area, was the fifth stop on the Ernie Treadway Rodeo Company's 1993 tour of the United States.

There were no tumbleweeds in the arena and no doggies to get along but the cowboys were there and ready to show off the skills they had mastered on the farms and ranges from which they hailed.

Rodeo, Spanish for "roundup," is unique. It is the only professional sport that has its origins in an actual workday occupation -- cattle ranching.

Even though rodeo has existed as a professional sport for more than one hundred years, the professional rodeo cowboy is only now slowly being recognized as a serious athlete.

Relying on resourcefulness and preserving the heritage as a cowhand, the professional rodeo cowboys came to the small outdoor arena here at Camp Lejeune where they roped, rode and wrestled their way through another rodeo.

Rodeos are flashy and dangerous by nature and this one wasn't any different. Both of the two-night performances led off with the traditional opening ceremony festivities.

Rodeo cowboys and cowgirls performed the serpentine grand-entry march carrying the brightly colored banners representing the participants' home state.

The opening ceremony was highlighted by the singing of

A cowboy and his steer rough ride out of a chute.

Melanie Howard, who also had the honor of displaying the Stars and Stripes during the opening ceremony and the national anthem. Once the opening ceremony had ended it was time to get down to the business at hand.

But before the action began the crowd had already been entertained for several minutes by the rodeo announcer Craig Copeland.

For three hours Copeland maintained a steady stream of banter to keep the crowd informed of the identity of the contestants, to describe the events, and to fill time between the events with colorful commentary.

The announcer patiently endured the jokes of rodeo clown Bryan Hope as he inevitably became the butt of most of his pranks.

Many spectators will remember the announcer more than all the sights and sounds of the rodeo.

"I just try to make the rodeo as fun as possible for the people who came out to see us. I can't think of a place where we are more appreciated or where we would rather perform than here at Camp Lejeune," Copeland said.

The first to show off their skills would be the bareback riders. Bareback riders mount their horse from the top of chute. They ride without a saddle, reins or stirrups. They must stay atop the horse for seconds by gripping a small leather rigging placed around horse behind the shoulders. The event was won by Bobby B. Columbia, S.C.

Next up was one of the events in rodeo -- calf roping.

The calf breaks from the first in order to get a head start. The cowboy must then catch calf, rope him, then dismount run down the rope which is held taut by the horse. He then throws the calf to the ground crosses and ties three of it's Henry Bagwell of Garner, N.C. took first in the calf roping competition with a time of 11 seconds.

Then came steer wrestling, of the most dangerous event in rodeo.

Steer wrestling, or "bulldozing," features the "lineback of rodeo." This nickname came about due to the large build and strength of some of the steer wrestlers.

The wrestler must leap off a speeding horse at speeds of

Orioles dump Dodgers 10-3

Story and photos by
LCpl Timothy C. Hodge

The Orioles beat up on the Dodgers 10-3 in Mustang League action Saturday at Stone Street Park.

The Orioles jumped out front in the top of the first with all but one of their batters in the starting lineup taking their cuts at the plate. They came up with four stolen bases to put them out front by two but failed to capitalize on their biggest opportunity of the inning when the bases were left loaded.

The Dodgers didn't have much luck at the plate as Oriole's pitcher Jonathan Jones struck out three batters to help his team hold a 2-0 lead into the second.

When the Orioles came up to bat in the second, Dodgers pitcher Michael Gearhart sent them down in order after an error allowed a runner to reach base.

In the bottom of the second Jones struck out two more and got some defensive help when a runner was caught stealing second.

The top of the third was another big inning for the Orioles as they added another three runs two their lead. The damage was done on the strength of two base hits and three bases on balls.

With a seemingly huge five-run lead Orioles pitcher Jones finished out his day on the mound by striking out two more in the third to bring his total to eight for the game.

The top of the fourth saw a new pitcher for the Dodgers start the second half of the game by striking out two and throwing out another to give them momentum heading into the bottom of the fourth.

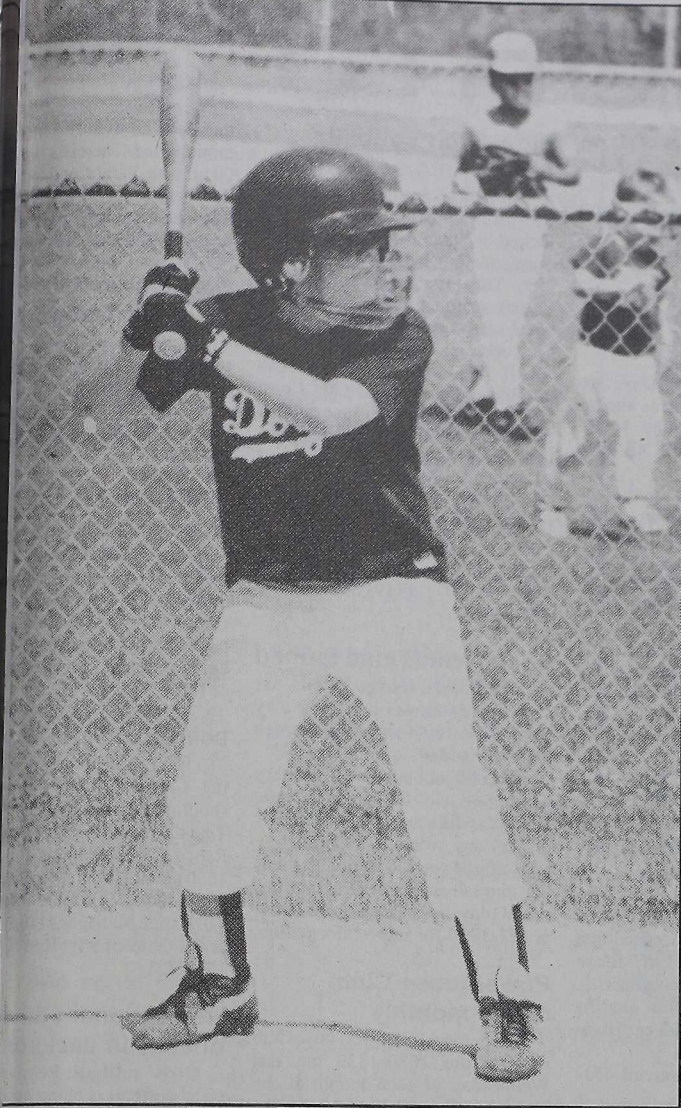

The new pitcher for the Orioles, Avery Graves, quickly stopped any momentum that the Dodgers might have had coming in to the inning. He fanned three batters to send the Dodgers down in order for the second time in four innings of play.

The fifth inning saw the Orioles put up another run on the strength of a base hit by Graves. Graves stole second and third but was left stranded going into the bottom of the inning.

The fifth inning would be the inning that the Dodgers would get on the board. They would post a couple of runs when subs Timothy Koppenhaver, right fielder, and Ammon Magnusson, catcher, both reached base on a walk and stole their way around the diamond.

In the top half of the sixth the Orioles added four more to put the game out of reach. The Dodgers did come up with one more in the last half of the sixth to make the final score 10-3.

Dodgers hitter Michael Gearhart prepares to get a hit on the Orioles.

Orioles pitcher Avery Graves fires a fast ball across the plate Saturday during his team's 10-2 trouncing of the Dodgers.

IT'S A FACT
Don't drink and dive.

Safety experts say more than half of all serious diving accidents occur when the diver has been drinking. Diving-related injuries account for one out of every ten serious spinal cord injuries in the United States each year—injuries that can lead to paralysis or brain damage.

Diving requires clear thinking before and during the dive—so you've been drinking, stay away from the pool, say the experts—the National Swimming Pool Safety Committee (NSPSC). In 1992, Operation Water Watch education campaign offers free brochures that can tell you more about diving safely. For copies call 1-800-323-3996.

Little Known But True: U.S. Workers Lead World

Measured by the Gross Domestic Product per employed person, Japanese workers produce, on average, only 77 percent as much as their American counterparts, despite their working 15 percent more hours per year, says Lane Kirkland, president of the AFL-CIO.

Some Japanese politicians say American workers are to blame for our economic and trade problems. They say American workers are lazy, want high pay without working and lack a work ethic. In fact, studies show, the American worker is the world's most productive—considerably more productive than Japanese workers!

Despite Japanese complaints about American wages, unit labor costs in U.S. manufacturing actually decreased slightly in the second half of the past decade, while that of Japan rose 63 percent.

Cataracts: New Treatments Available

Four out of five people over the age of 60 develop cataracts, a clouding of the eye's normally transparent lens. Fortunately, scientific advances in cataract surgery offer many benefits to today's patient, the Better Vision Institute (BVI) says.

Many cataract surgery patients resume normal activities immediately.

"Cataracts need not interfere with a person's lifestyle," says Stanley Teplick, M.D., a Long Island ophthalmologist and member of the BVI. "Advances in cataract surgical procedures, known as phacoemulsification and intraocular lens implantation, help to speed healing time and offer more than 90 percent of patients the benefits of improved vision."

Cataract surgery involves removing the clouded lens with an ultrasonic vibrating probe and replacing it with a permanent, plastic lens. It can be performed on an out-patient basis. With this brief, 10-20-minute technique, patients can expect to resume normal activities immediately, or certainly within the week.

"You should talk to your eye doctor about cataracts if you experience fogged or double vision," Dr. Teplick says. "Regular eye examinations can help detect the presence of cataracts in the early stages, enabling your eyecare professional to monitor progress and recommend appropriate treatment options."
