Warfighting

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following column is derived from FMFM 1, WARFIGHTING. It will be presented as a weekly series to enhance the professional military education of our readers.

Uncertainty continued

By its nature, uncertainty invariably involves the estimation and acceptance of risk. Risk is inherent in war and is involved in every mission. Risk is also related to gain; normally, greater potential gain requires greater risk. Further, risk is equally common to action and inaction. The practice of concentrating combat power at the focus of effort necessitates the willingness to accept prudent risk. However, we should clearly understand that the acceptance of risk does not equate to the imprudent willingness to gamble the entire likelihood of success on a single improbable event.

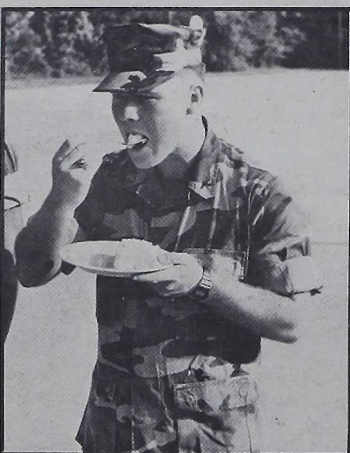

Part of risk is the ungovernable element of chance. The element of chance is a universal characteristic of war and a continuous source of friction. Chance consists of turns of events that cannot reasonably be foreseen and over which we and our enemy have no control. The uncontrollable potential for chance alone creates psychological friction. We should remember that chance favors neither belligerent exclusively. Consequently, we must view chance not only as a threat but also as an opportunity, which we must be ever ready to exploit.

Fluidity

Like friction and uncertainty, fluidity is an integral attribute of the nature of war. Each episode in war is the temporary result of a unique combination of circumstances, requiring an original solution. But no episode can be viewed in isolation. Rather, each merges with those that precede and follow it — shaped by the former and shaping the conditions of the latter — creating a continuous, fluctuating fabric of activity replete with fleeting opportunities and unforeseen events. Success depends in large part on the ability to adapt to a constantly changing situation.

It is physically impossible to sustain a high tempo of activity indefinitely, although clearly there will be times when it is advantageous to push men and equipment to the limit. Thus, the tempo of war will fluctuate — from periods of intense activity to periods in which activity is limited to information gathering, replenishment, or redeployment. Darkness and weather can influence the tempo of war but need not halt it. A competitive rhythm will develop between the opposing wills, with each belligerent trying to influence and exploit tempo and the continuous flow of events to suit his purposes.

Use credit, direct deposit carefully

By Sgt. Charlene A. Getchell

Buying merchandise on credit is the only way for some people to have a 200-watt stereo system or a 40-inch television. Careful use of credit privileges can make life a little more comfortable.

Time and again, warnings are given about how easy it is to fall into the "money pit" of credit abuse. In addition to credit abuse there is something else for military personnel to be careful of when purchasing items on credit — the 1199A.

The 1199A is a form authorized by the U.S. Treasury for the direct deposit of an individual's entire pay. The Marine Corps Finance Center uses it to send a Marine's paycheck to a particular bank or credit union account. There is a separate form for allotments. The problem occurs when these forms get mixed up.

An allotment might be required by private companies in order to purchase an item on credit. Some of the companies however, have obtained the 1199A form. They might not be aware the form is a direct deposit form and not an allotment form, according to 1st Lt. James G. Jonston, deputy disbursing officer, MCB.

"When the form gets to Kansas City the Marine's entire paycheck will go to the account number written on the 1199A," Jonston said.

A sure sign of the mix-up happening would be a "no pay due" or no deposit being noted at the financial institution where the paycheck used to go. If a Marine gets into this situation, he or she should go immediately to their administrative section and explain the problem.

"The admin section will call us and explain the situation," Jonston said. "We can usually get things resolved by the next payday — if we're told as soon as possible."

As of yet no major problems of this nature have happened. But, it is still something to be careful of when filling

Fourth of July Message from the President

This Fourth of July, Barbara and I send a special message of greetings and gratitude to our men and women in uniform around the globe.

Exactly 213 years ago this week, Gen. George Washington asked his troops to do more than merely fight for political independence; he urged them to show the whole world that "a free man, contending for liberty," is "superior to every slavish mercenary on earth." Those early American fighting men did show it, at Valley Forge, at Yorktown, and on every battlefield during the Revolutionary War. The world took notice then and it has remembered ever since.

Today, as Americans celebrate the proud heritage made possible by those patriots, we reflect with gratitude upon the continuing sacrifices of our military personnel — sacrifice that include separation from loved ones, long days of service at sea, or standing watch in a foreign land. The liberty we hail today, you defend every day. The rights we enjoy as Americans, we could not enjoy were it not for you who willingly bear the sword to assure peace.

On the 213th birthday of our country — so blessed with peace and freedom — I urge all Americans to join me in expressing our gratitude, publicly and joyfully, to you, the guardians of our Independence, the men and women of the Armed Forces of the United States.

Happy Fourth of July!

George Bush
President

A Message from the Commandant

The warrior spirit that we Marines and Sailors know so well was present when our forefathers declared "these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, Free and Independent States." Independence proved to be the only incentive needed to keep the warrior spirit alive.

Every signer of the Declaration of Independence was declared a traitor by the British. Everyone was hunted; most were offered immunity, freedom, or the lives of their loved ones to break their pledged words. But no signer changed his stand throughout the Revolution.

Today, as we celebrate our Nation's birthday, there is no challenge to our national security that cannot be met if we preserve the faith and spirit of our forefathers. Times and circumstances have changed, but the basic principles have not.

Happy Birthday, America! Semper Fidelis, Marines.

A. M. Gray
General, U.S. Marine Corps

out forms to buy on credit, according to Jonston.

"In the long run, it will actually hurt the creditor. The merchandise will be paid off faster and they'll lose out on the interest rates," Jonston explained.

Even though the 1199A might hurt the creditor, it can also hurt the Marine. Their entire paycheck will be deposited in the creditor's account, and the person will have no money to pay other bills.

"So far, almost all of the 1199As have been caught by us or the Marine's admin section," Jonston said.

Even though the mistaken forms are being caught, there is always the possibility of one getting through to Kansas City. Jonston explains how to avoid this type of mix-up. "When a Marine needs to start an allotment he or she should go to their admin section to do it."

Buying on credit is the only way for some people to have the things they want. Care and attention should always be given when getting involved in any type of contract.

Passenger Transportation

The Passenger Control Point section of TMO is responsible for all international transportation.

When requests for international travel are received, the PCP determines whether Military Airlift Command (MAC) service is available to meet mission requirements. If MAC is not available, the PCP supervisor authorizes Category Z, or commercial travel. When MAC is available and passengers are scheduled to travel via MAC, the PCP issues a Military Transportation Authorization (MTA) form 492-1 for travel, which constitutes MAC's ticket. This ticket gives the flight number, flight date, and flight time on line item 1. On the bottom left of the ticket, the flight number and a report-no-later-than time is entered and the airport terminal.

The PCP stresses to all travelers that when you purchase air transportation from your home to meet your MAC flight, assure that your CONUS travel arrives at least one hour prior to the report time on your MTA. If you do not report to the MAC Ticket Counter by reporting time on your MTA, you will not be boarded. Report times are usually about two hours prior to flight time. MAC will release seats to stand-bys, after reported passengers are processed.

Late reporting passengers will not be boarded.

Marine recognized

The Greater Jacksonville/Onslow Chamber of Commerce Military Affairs Committee recently recognized Cpl. Rodney S. Allen as the Servicemember of the Month for June. He is a native of Kansas City, Mo. Allen enlisted in the Marine Corps in Nov. 1986.

Retirement ceremony slated

Marine Corps Base will host a retirement ceremony at Liversedge Field, June 30, at 10 a.m. Uniform is SS "C."

Mammography screening

In accordance with Naval Medical Command's policy on screening mammography, instruction 6320.31, dated April 10, screening must be provided for active duty beneficiaries on a priority basis based upon the following guidelines on mammography in asymptomatic women: self examination should start by age 20; physical examination should be performed every three years between ages 20 and 35 and annually after that; baseline mammography should be performed between ages 35 and 40 or earlier if risk factors are present.

Subsequently, mammographs should be performed at one to two year intervals as determined by a physician, based on physical and mammographic findings and risk factors.

Mammographs should be performed annually for all women over age 50. It should be noted that risk factors, if present, are accepted as strong indicators for mammography at any age.

Risk factors include breast prosthesis, personal or family history of breast cancer, first pregnancy after age 30, or mammographic abnormalities in baseline examination suggestive of increased risk.

Active duty members do not need to be referred to a specialty clinic to obtain an X-ray chit for a routine mammogram.

Non-active duty beneficiaries should receive screening mammograms to the extent resources permit. Even if capability does not exist at the medical treatment facility to provide screening mammograms for all non-active duty beneficiaries, they should be counseled on the benefit of screening mammography and referred to appropriate civilian sources.

Neither CHAMPUS nor supplemental funds are available for screening mammograms of asymptomatic non-active duty women.

CoC — Tax Deductible

As the summer rotation period approaches, commanders incurring expenses for Change-of-Command ceremonies may benefit from federal tax deductibility of the expenses. The petitioner in a 1986 tax court case claimed deduction on his federal tax return for the costs of entertainment incurred as a result of his Change-of-Command Ceremony. The court determined that these expenses were required by the officer's employer and this expenditure was considered "necessary." Because the Tax Reform Act of 1986 reduced the efficacy of entertainment tax deductions, commanders may find that a Change-of-Command tax year is one of the few years that they incur enough entertainment expenses to be able to take advantage of miscellaneous itemized deductions.

For further information call the Consolidated Legal Assistance Office at 451-1903.

Return to Tawara

On July 2, from 10-11 a.m., the Discovery Channel will commemorate the 45th anniversary of one of the bloodiest battles in the U.S. Marine Corps' history with a the world television premiere of Return to Tarawa.

Census Bureau

The Census Bureau is seeking temporary employees to help with the 1990 Census. Military spouses and other family members are encouraged to apply for the positions, which pay between $5.50 and $13 per hour.

"The jobs will last from several weeks to several months," said a Census Bureau spokesman. "The military enumeration is done totally different from the regular census. So we would be hiring them to enumerate in our off-base activities."

Family members interested in applying for temporary positions should contact the local state employment office at 347-2121.

Independence celebration

The public is cordially invited to a holiday celebration in honor of our nation's birthday, Tuesday, July 4.

Bring your picnic baskets, chairs and blankets, then relax on the grounds of W.P.T. Hill Field while you enjoy the great sounds of "Central Park" a Top 40's band out of Raleigh, beginning at 5 p.m.

There will be several features within the concert that include a swinging Dixieland Band and a featured soloist. The band's finale will be Tchaikovsky's 1812 Overture which will start a 30 minute fireworks display.

Patriotism—

Three faiths kept POW from perishing in prison camp

EDITOR'S NOTE— The following articles are reprinted with permission from The Richmond News Leader. The first article Rowe wrote for The New York Times in 1975. It was published in February of that year, as Congress was moving to cut funding to the South Vietnamese anti-communists—thereby guaranteeing South Vietnam's April collapse.

By Nick Rowe

I was captured by the Vietcong in October, 1963, deep in the Mekong Delta. As Americans, we were of value to the enemy for propaganda and exploitation. Whether we ate or starved, received medication or not, lived or died, depended on their evaluation of our "political attitude."

It was a 24-hour-a-day job to stay alive. The Vietcong knew this and gave us the way out. We were told, "Your release, sooner or later, is based on your good attitude and behavior as a P.O.W. and your repentance of your past misdeeds." This meant we were to confess to crimes we had never committed, to condemn our country, our government, our leaders, our military, and our friends who were still fighting. These things we couldn't do, yet we needed some way to defeat the overwhelming advantage our captors held.

We were fighting the requirements placed on us by our captors and trying to meet the requirements of our own Code of Conduct. If understood in its entirety, the code provided a solid guide for conduct. When in doubt try to follow the code and you couldn't be wrong. I used it, but there was something more important that gave me the courage to adhere to the code.

The Vietcong, by controlling everything physical, unwittingly turned me to the source of strength that spelled survival. There were three faiths that formed the core of my endurance. The first was faith in God. I learned to pray.

The second faith was a faith in this country and our government. The Communist cadre dragged out

We were to confess to crimes we had never committed, to condemn our country, our government, our leaders, our military and our friends who were still fighting. These things we couldn't do, yet we needed some way to defeat the overwhelming advantage our captors held.

every inequality, and injustice, every example of discrimination and racism, all conceivable ills within the structure of our government. We could not accept the illogic in the indoctrinations, but the cadre would remind us that it was not for us to question the validity of the statements, but to realize our misdeeds and how we had been misguided by our government, then confess our crimes against the Vietnamese people and condemn our country—or we could sit in the camp until we rotted.

In 1967, they ceased drawing from their own poor propaganda sources and we began receiving material from our own magazines and newspapers, which were quoted verbatim to substantiate points they were driving home to us. It was no longer a matter of manufacturing propaganda; they had only to scan our publications, find a prominent American who had said what they wanted to use, and hit us with it. The most damaging material was that drawn from our Congressional Record in which our goals and efforts were condemned.

Because we refused to comply with the demands of our captors, we suffered. Three of my people died of starvation and disease, and three were executed.

It was a matter of putting something on the line to back up one's belief in the ultimate good in his country. I questioned as never before: Was this country and government worth what I was going through?

The answer was clear. This country and system of government is the finest in the world today. With all the problems and injustices which could be pointed out, we have the one element that makes us strong: The citizens of this nation have the inherent rights and freedoms which allow them full participation in the system politic.

The final faith on which I relied was faith in my fellow prisoners, my brothers in suffering. We learned to depend on one another, to sacrifice for one another, to care for one another. This was the final link that bound us together and gave us courage to do what had to be done.

I came home having learned lessons that could have been taught no other way. Our system is not guaranteed forever. It must be fought for and participated in, or it will fall.

Nick Rowe

Rowe mourned by all at final roll call

EDITOR'S NOTE: Susan Katz Keating reporting from Fort Bragg in the May 22 Insight magazine.

By Susan Katz Keating

Command Sgt. Maj. Alex Schwarch-

ber drew himself to full attention, standing at the head of the chapel. To his right was the congregation, filled with black clad women and soldiers wearing the distinctive uniform of the Army's Special Forces. Nearly 400 people filled the church to capacity, and that number again spilled out into special bleachers erected outside the chapel at Fort Bragg in Fayetteville.

Schwarchber faced the altar. It was adorned in the traditional Christian manner, but with one striking exception. The front of the chancel featured a prominent platform bearing a pair of beautifully polished combat boots. The boots in turn supported a rifle, planted barrel down.

A pair of military dog tags had been draped over the stock, and the butt was topped with a green beret. Following a full rendition by the congregation of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," the church went eerily quiet. The resonance from hundreds of baritone voices had suddenly stopped, and there was an air of expectation.

Schwarchber cleared his throat and shuffled a half step forward. He began to call the roll. One after another the mens names who were called responded from the pews; "Here Sergeant Major!" "Here Sergeant Major!"

There came a silence. It seemed at first as if the roll call were complete, but a final name remained on the list. The sergeant major's voice boomed out, as if expecting an answer: "Rowe, Colonel James N.!"

There was no reply.

He called the name again as if he hadn't been heard: "Rowe, Colonel James N.!" again nothing.

The third try contained the barest thread of hope, as if there still might be a chance that this had been a great mistake, that the missing man would somehow find his breath and answer the final call.

"Rowe, Colonel James N.!"

But Rowe did not respond. He had died April 21, nearly one week earlier, after being ambushed on a public street in broad daylight while on his way to work as a military adviser in the Philippines. The Communist New People's Army General Command claimed responsibility for the 51-year-old's death, offered sympathy to Rowe's wife and four children, and threatened further attacks. The guerillas blamed the murder on the "U.S.—Aquino regime."

22nd MEU writes final chapter on deployment

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Camp Lejeune Globe welcomes the 22nd MEU home to Camp Lejeune from its six-month deployment.

Capt. J. P. Hall

As the island of Sardinia slipped below the horizon, some Marines and Sailors began to reflect on the activities of the past five months. Commanded by Col. William E. Bartels Jr., the 22nd MEU prepared to write the final chapter on its Mediterranean deployment as Landing Force Sixth Fleet 1-89.

In July, 1988, the 22nd MEU joined its major subordinate elements and became operational as a MAGTF. The Battalion Landing Team was composed of Marines and Sailors of 3rd Bn., 8th Marines, commanded by Lt. Col. R. R. "Rusty" Blackman.

The BLT was enhanced by numerous attachments prior to deploying, such as a recon platoon, an engineer platoon, a platoon of assault amphibian vehicles, an artillery battery and an LAI platoon.

BLT 3/8's line companies were designated according to their specialized training. India Co., commanded by Capt. C. A. Tucker, served as the heliborne company, while the Marines of Capt. B. A. Gandy's Kilo Co. specialized in the use of the Rigid Raider Craft for insertion. Capt. M. E. Ratliff and the Marines of Lima Co. used the more traditional AAV means of insert. After several months in Panama, Capt. K. W. Amidon's Mike Co. joined the BLT with two months remaining in the deployment cycle.

Lt. Col. Blackman's BLT broke new ground as it became the first Mediterranean SOC BLT to enjoy the enhanced capabilities associated with a fourth rifle company. The Marines of HMM-162, commanded by Lt. Col. D. J. Lavoy, composited with aircraft and personnel. Huey, Cobra and Sea Stallion aircraft enhanced the CH-46 squadron and gave it the required assets to support a forward deployed SOC MEU.

Providing the backbone of all combat service support for the MEU, Lt. Col. J. W. Schmidt's MSSG-22 provided an enormous and diversified capability ranging from maintenance to supply and from landing support to dental. Within 24 hours, the MEU went from less than 60 personnel to nearly 2000.

The 22nd MEU then began an aggressive and all-encompassing 180-day predeployment phase which culminated in SOC evaluation and the accompanying designation. To some, particularly the riflemen, the aircrewmembers and the combat service support Marines, this phase is as busy, if not busier, than the deployment itself. From individual training requirements to unit evaluations, the volume of events before a Marine embarks is immense.

The most critical task of this phase is the meshing of group and personnel and equipment into a single, functioning unit. About eight weeks prior to the actual departure for the Mediterranean, the interoperability of the Marine air-ground team is tested, and also the functioning of the MEU from an amphibious platform. Embarking on ship for the blue/green water workups, Marines of the 22nd MEU got their first taste of shipboard life. Operating from the North Carolina coastal waters to the Puerto Rican shores, the landing plan, flight operations procedures, staff functioning and other elements of combat readiness were tested and re-tested.

The intense five-day SOCEX commenced with the MEU evaluation. Under the gun from receipt of the warning order until each SOC mission was accomplished, the MEU was successful in earning the SOC designator. Afterwards, the 22nd MEU returned to Camp Lejeune for five weeks of final preparation.

Few, if any, Marines of the 22nd MEU (SOC) were elated as 1989 was ushered in. Just hours prior, they had watched Morehead City vanish from view, as their 180-day deployment began.

After an 11-day Atlantic crossing, which tested many a sea leg with the ocean's typical winter weather, the 22nd MEU (SOC) arrived in Rota, Spain. Realizing tactical proficiency is a perishable skill, the "grunts" of the BLT hit the road with extensive physical training and weapons qualifications, while the helos of the squadron cranked up and re-qualified pilots and crewmen. MSSG-22 Marines provided the many facets of support and commenced the endless task of maintenance and preventive measures.

22nd MEU—

From Rota, the 22nd MEU (SOC) sailed for its first exercise in the Mediterranean — one of four major multinational amphibious exercises it would take part in. Each exercise brought a multitude of unique requirements. From Sardinia to Corsica and Spain to France, the 22nd MEU (SOC) Marines exercised their trade side by side with Italians, British and Dutch Commandos, Spaniards, and French Foreign Legionnaires.

Phinia '89, conducted on Corsica, was a complex operation with French naval forces and the Foreign Legion. It focused on special operation missions, particularly a noncombatant evacuation operation with nearly 600 "evacuees" comprised of U. S. and French role players.

To meet this task, MSSG-22 simultaneously operated multiple Evacuation Control Centers for the processing of evacuee role players and directed their movement to shipping. MSSG-22 used a Marine Corps expeditionary shelter to enhance the personnel lift capability of the Landing Craft Air Cushion (LCAC), which was seeing service in the Mediterranean for the first time.

The cross-training following the tactical portion of this exercise was quite involved and saw U. S. Marines and Sailors going through Foreign Legion obstacle and fire and movement courses, while MEU pilots and aircrews cross-trained on French helicopters.

Dragon Hammer '89 on Sardinia was the largest exercise the 22nd MEU (SOC) participated in. A NATO exercise also involving Italian, French, Spanish, British and Dutch forces, it proved to be a test of the MEU's mettle. The level of cooperation, unity and effort toward a common goal among the allies was exceptional.

In addition to the amphibious exercises, the MEU went ashore for two extensive training packages. At Camp De Canjuers, 1,500 Marines trained on some of France's finest live fire ranges. From 9mm pistols to .50 caliber machine guns, howitzers to LAVs, all organic weapons were exercised. Behind the gun smoke was HMM-162's ability to meet demanding flight tasks and MSSG-22's capability to establish effective logistic support.

In addition to the sweat, long hours and long humps with mule-sized packs, the Mediterranean offered some exceptional liberty ports. A stop in Haifa, Israel, allowed MEU Marines and Sailors to visit the mysterious Holy Land. Time in Naples, Italy, saw many heading for Rome and its historic landmarks. However, nothing could match the relaxing beauty of the beaches of Palma, Spain and Toulon, France. Many Marines and Sailors took advantage of the shopping in Izmir, Turkey.

The Marines and Sailors always seemed to enjoy the hospitality of the host nations, who provided several social functions for those interested in meeting the local people. Nettuno, Italy found the MEU supporting a visit by President George Bush and his wife, Barbara, to the Anzio Beach invasion site for a Memorial Day ceremony. The occasion was highlighted when the President visited the USS Guadalcanal.

Thoughts now turn to home and family, and six months seem to have rapidly slipped by. Whether serving as a rifleman, cook, mechanic or clerk, Marines and Sailors of the 22nd MEU (SOC) played a vital role in the success of the deployment.

Having served in a forward-deployed MAGTF, each has a greater appreciation of how each specialty, regardless of its visibility, is significant. The long weeks of preparation paid great dividends.

Some are already planning for the next deployment cycle, while others look toward the end of their service in the Corps. Regardless, Marines and Sailors of the 22nd MEU (SOC) can be proud and enjoy the satisfaction of a job well done.

85 Naval Academy slots slated for active-duty

By Cpl. Dave Mundy

More than one-third of the openings for the U. S. Naval Academy available to enlisted Marines and Sailors each year go unfilled because of the lack of qualified applicants, Capt. Mike R. Melillo of the Academy's Candidate Guidance Office told Camp Lejeune education officers, career planners and counselors June 20.

Each year, 85 slots for active-duty personnel are available through Secretary of the Navy nominations, Melillo said.

"Only about 55 of those seats are filled each year because we do not receive enough qualified applicants," Melillo said. "My purpose here is to encourage career planners and education officers to find the young Marines and Sailors and encourage them to apply."

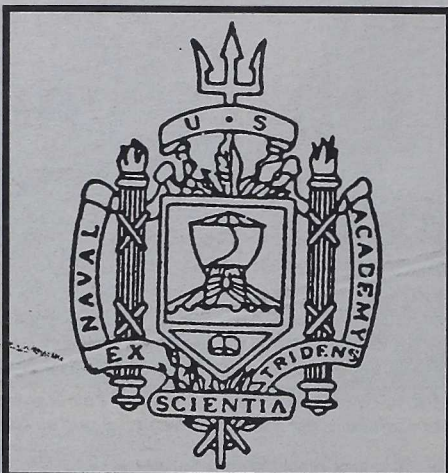

Melillo said the biggest hurdle most enlisted applicants face is age.

"They must be between the ages of 17 and 21," he said. "That's the main obstacle with a lot of the applications. They can't be over 21 on July 1 of the year they plan to enter the Academy."

Other requirements include U. S. citizenship, good moral character and unmarried status with no dependents. Enlisted Marines and Sailors must have at least one year active service.

"We're looking for the all-around man or woman," Melillo said. "Some people seem to think you have to have had a 4.0 grade average in high school, but that's not always the case. We're looking for people who are active in clubs, civic organizations and sports."

A strong educational background in math and sciences is recommended, Melillo said, as well as four years of high school English, two years of foreign language study and two years of history. Those identified as qualified but who may need help in some areas may be sent to the Naval Academy Preparatory School in Rhode Island.

The procedure for enlisted personnel applying for a Secretary of the Navy nomination begins with the servicemember contacting his education officer or career planner.

"The procedure is outlined in Marine Corps Order 1530.11E," Melillo said. "The applicant will fill out a pre-candidate questionnaire and we encourage each applicant to write his or her congressman and senators for congressional nomination. We recommend starting the application process early."

The deadline for applying for a nomination is Feb.

15 of the year the applicant wishes to enter the Academy. Applicants must also have taken either the SAT or ACT college entrance exam.

"Once we get the application in, we get the ball rolling," Melillo said. "Once the applicant has a CO's endorsement for a Secretary of the Navy nomination, we take it from there."

Academy graduates are commissioned as either Navy ensigns or Marine Corps second lieutenants. One-sixth of each class may enter the Marines.

"A lot of young Marines and Sailors might not realize they have this opportunity available," Melillo said. "If we can get the word out, we can fill a lot of those seats that wind up vacant every year."

Steps to follow in applying

Those Marines and Sailors between the ages of 17 and 21 interested in applying for a Secretary of the Navy nomination for appointment to the Naval Academy should follow these steps:

- 1. Contact your education officer or career planner and make an application using MCO 1530.11E;
- 2. Obtain a pre-candidate questionnaire from the Academy by writing the Candidate Guidance Office, U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., 21402, or by calling (Autovon) 281-4361;
- 3. Take the SAT or ACT college entrance exam;
- 4. Write your congressman and senators, asking for their nomination to the Academy.

The Academy requires that applicants be U. S. citizens, unmarried and without dependents, and no older than age 21 by July 1 of the year they enter. Enlisted personnel must have one year active service before they may apply.

RODMAN NAVAL STATION, Panama— Marines from Alpha Co., 2nd LAI Bn., 2nd MarDiv., used their light armored vehicles to cross a mile-long width of the Panama Canal May 30 and make an amphibious landing on Fort Amador, a joint U.S./Panamanian Defense Force base, and headquarters of the U.S. Naval Southern Command.

The mission was to assert the U.S. military's freedom of movement in authorized areas as provided in the 1977 Carter-Torrijos Treaty, according to Capt. Stephen J. Linder, Alpha Co. commander. Panamanian Defense Forces had been illegally halting and hindering the movement of U.S. forces in such areas.

"Operation Big Show proved that we can and will swim the Canal and shows the willingness of the military to operate in that area," Linder said.

The Marines and their LAVs splashed into the Canal at about 10 a.m. after receiving the go-ahead from the Marines command element in a circling Army Blackhawk helicopter. Three LAVs began the crossing, followed 10 minutes later by three more vehicles. Navy Special Boat Unit 26 provided escorts during the swim up and "were in position to provide wide fire support from a designated fire support area," Linder said.

This was the first time an American LAV has attempted to make an amphibious crossing of the Panama Canal.

"It was a good swim," said Cpl. Joseph L. Zirfas, commander of the lead vehicle. "A 500-foot freighter caused a good swell as we were crossing. We went into it at a 45-degree angle and the vehicle had no problem with it. There was also a small boat which the Navy PBR (Patrol Boat Riverine) vessel guided around us.

"We went over in a column and landed directly under the Bridge of the Americas," Zirfas continued. "We landed at about 30 seconds to one minute intervals. We then maneuvered through the streets to Fort Amador."

Zirfas said that PDF patrol cars met them at the gate of Fort Amador, and, although they didn't try to block their entrance, the drivers "did have a look of surprise on their faces."

The LAI Marines then met at the assembly point, General's Row, the billeting area for flag grade officers and VIPs and awaited further orders.

"When the order came to retrograde, we returned the way we came in except this time we drove back over the Bridge of Americas to Rodman," Zirfas said. The operation was completed in less than three hours.

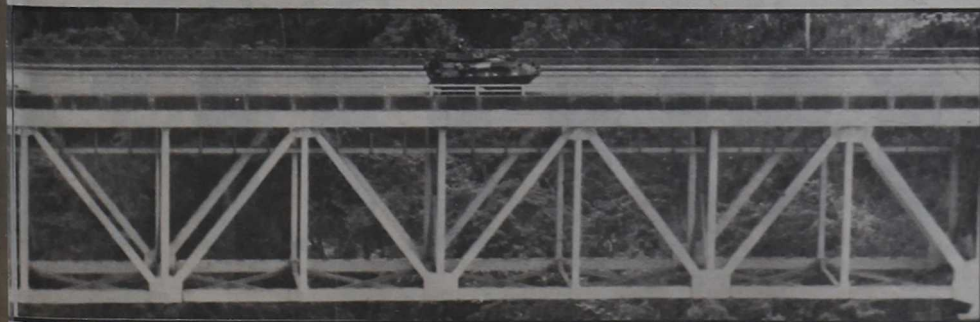

Linder stressed the operation was planned and carried out for training purposes as a raid. This included limited communication, pinpointing of significant areas, and having contingency plans constructed to deal with possible PDF responses.

"All rules of engagement were detailed and briefed down to the lowest ranking Marines, along with this role in the mission. Every man gathered tactical information during the operation.

"We noted the presence of weapons we wouldn't be surprised to see in the future," Linder said. These included Soviet-bloc small arms.

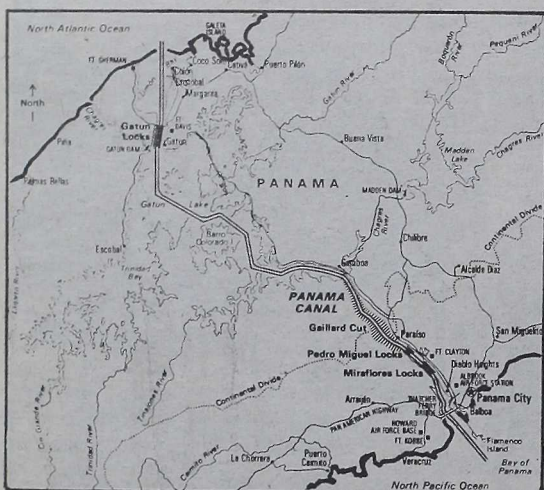

Operation Big Show was conducted quickly, efficiently and, although the LAI Marines "meant business," it went without mishap.

"The military has the right of freedom of movement in Panama and the absolute right to self-defense," Linder emphasized. "Operations like this demonstrate our self control and discipline and shows our absolute insistence to carry out the provisions of the (Carter-Torrijos) treaty."

FORT SHERMAN, Panama— Marines from 2nd LAI Bn., 2nd MarDiv., recently attacked the 16-obstacle course killer the Army calls the "Green Hell Monster" at the Jungle Operations Training Center here.

The Marines took time out from joint USMC/Army operations to run the mile-long course which included two 50-foot dry nets with rope assists and a litter carry around a small island through two feet of water.

The LAI Marines ran the course in teams of five or six men and the best recorded time was 15 minutes, 30 seconds among the 22 participants.

"The course was as close to real life as you can get because everything takes place in the jungles," said Lance Cpl. Rocco J. Petitti, LAV gunner.

"You didn't know what was coming up next and when you got to an obstacle, you didn't have time to think about it, you just did it. Even though it was a short course, it took a lot of energy to finish."

About 400 amtractors gather for reunion

Sgt. Charlene A. Getchell

"I saw the flag raising on Mount Suribachi as I looked up over the edge of my foxhole," said Bob Ford, a World War II veteran who was with 10th Amphibious Bn., 4th Marines. "We were the second wave of Marines that landed at Iwo Jima."

This was just one of the many memories brought to life during an amphibious tractor reunion held at Courthouse Bay recently. The reunion was sponsored by the staff NCOs and officers of 2nd AA Bn.

"We wanted to build camaraderie within the unit," said Staff Sgt. James M. Gaidowski, organizer of the event. "Plus it's a great opportunity to catch up with old buddies."

About 400 amtrackers, past and present, were in attendance for the festivities. A good ole southern style pig pickin' filled the bellies of the trackers and their families. Four variants of AAV7As, Assault Amphibian Vehicles, were on display. The vehicle's crewmen were there to answer any of the visitor's questions.

"I spent about 20 minutes trying to convince this guy we drive these tractors onto ships," said Sgt. Joe Payne, Charlie Co., 2nd AA Bn. "He wouldn't believe me. He said they had to be towed onto ships. I guess that's how they did it years ago."

Some of the veterans had never seen the newer AAVs. The differences between generations were evident as far as technology goes. One World War II veteran claimed he wouldn't know how to drive the oldest AAV displayed at Courthouse Bay. The people had a lot in common, however.

"I think the saying 'once a Marine, always a Marine' is true. Having been in the Marine Corps is a special thing," said Gene Alvarez, Korean War veteran. "Courthouse Bay is the same, but different. The gym used to be a movie theater, but overall most of the buildings are the same. I used to have to take out trash over there," he said pointing to the back of the officers quarters.

The older veterans reminisced about pranks they used to pull while they were in the Corps. The younger Marines opened their ears to the stories which sounded similar to the pranks they pull today.

Although quite a few years separated the generations of Marines, the reunion proved the saying to be true — once a Marine, always a Marine.

REMINISCING— Bob Ford, a World War II veteran, enjoys the sunshine and conversations the afternoon of the reunion.

Everyday, work-related noises can cause hearing loss

By Lt. Kathy Kopay, USN

Have you heard...

Noise is everywhere in the environment, not only at work! It can be caused by hair dryers, lawn mowers, power tools, and especially rock concerts.

Unfortunately, both work-related and everyday sounds may be slowly and painlessly damaging your hearing. Permanent hearing loss can be caused by one extremely loud sound, such as a fire cracker exploding close to your head, or from constant loud sounds, such as regularly listening to loud music on stereo headsets.

Listening to sounds above 84 decibels for long periods of time puts your hearing in the danger zone. Some common decibel levels are: Whisper—30 dB, normal conversation—50 dB, traffic—70 dB, lawn mower—90 dB, rock music—110 dB, jet takeoff—120 dB.

It is impossible to avoid noise, but there are things you can do to protect your hearing:

1) Limit your exposure to noise. If you are at a concert, give your ears a break. Do not sit in front of the speakers. Sit in the middle of the audience, not up front.

2) Turn down the volume on stereos and stereo headsets. If a friend can hear the music from your headset when standing three feet away, the volume is too high.

3) Wear hearing protectors, either muffs or earplugs, whenever you are exposed to loud sounds. If you need hearing protection, contact hearing conservation, Bldg. 65 or your medical unit.

Hear today... hear tomorrow!

'Turn on to electrical safety'

By Bob Bastob
Occupational Health/
Preventative Medicine Dept.

National Safety Week is being held through Saturday, with the theme "Turn on to Electrical Safety."

Annually, about 1,200 Americans are killed due to electrical shock and thousands more are burned or maimed. In the home alone, more than 600 persons die each year because they do not take proper precautions when tackling home projects involving electricity, or when using everyday electrical devices.

The following suggestions are provided for electrical safety in and around the house:

Inside the house:

- ☐ Carefully read the instruction manual before operating any electrical product.

- ☐ Keep electrical appliances and tools away from water, and don't operate these devices if hands or feet are wet.

- ☐ Unplug small appliances when not in use.

- ☐ Replace worn or frayed cords.

- ☐ Avoid overloading outlets.

- ☐ Do not place extension cords under carpets. Continued stepping on cords causes insulation to wear, eventually causing wires to rub together. This in turn can generate an electrical fire.

Outside the house:

- ☐ Keep metal ladders away from antennas and power lines; contact can cause electrocution.

- ☐ Locate underground lines before digging.

- ☐ Never trim or climb trees near power lines.

Hospital briefs

Health records

All dependent health records are maintained at Naval Hospital, Camp Lejeune. If a record has not been checked out within a two-year period, the record is "retired" and sent to the record archives in St. Louis, Mo. To prevent a record from being "retired" and creating an inconvenience, the Naval Hospital is asking that those who think their record might have been retired should come to the Outpatient Record Department during normal working hours (7:30 a.m.-4 p.m.) Monday-Friday to validate that they are still in the area. Upon validation, the record will stay an active record for an additional two years.

Acne Clinic

The monthly acne clinic for dependents of active duty personnel will be held on July 15 from 8 a.m. to noon.

This clinic is for acne conditions only. There are a limited number of appointments available and will be made on a first-come first-serve basis by calling the Dermatology Department at 451-4555 beginning July 7.

Patient education

Every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday on Base Cable channel 12, patient education videos will be shown. Please check The Camp Lejeune Globe for what is playing and when. Comments or suggestions about this new service can be made HMC Games by calling 451-4020.

WITH HONOR—On the recent 91st birthday of the Hospital Corps, a Hospital Corps Medal of Honor Wall was dedicated at the Naval Hospital by Capt. H. P. Scott, commanding officer, Naval Hospital, and Master Chief R.R. Huemme, command master chief. Wherever you find the Navy, wherever you find the Marine Corps, there you will find the Navy hospital corpsman. In times of peace, he or she toils unceasingly, day and night, providing quality health care to numerous beneficiaries. In times of war, he is on the beaches with the Marines, is employed in amphibious operations, in transportation of wounded by air, on the battlefield, on all types of ships, submarines, aircraft carriers and landing craft. In short, wherever medical service may be required, the hospital corpsman is there, not only willing but prepared to serve his country and his fellow man.

Dental plan calls for enrollment in DEERS

File Report

Most people know by now they must be listed in the DEERS computer data banks in order to have their CHAMPUS claims processed.

But many active-duty family members still don't realize they must also be enrolled in DEERS to get claims paid under the uniformed services' Active Duty Dependents Dental Plan.

The dental plan is not part of CHAMPUS, and is available only to the eligible family members of active-duty servicemembers. To enroll in the dental plan, the active-duty sponsor must complete the appropriate forms at his or her military personnel office. After enrolling, a monthly premium will be withheld from the sponsor's pay.

DEERS is the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System, a computerized listing of active-duty, deceased and retired service members and their CHAMPUS-eligible family members, and certain former military spouses.

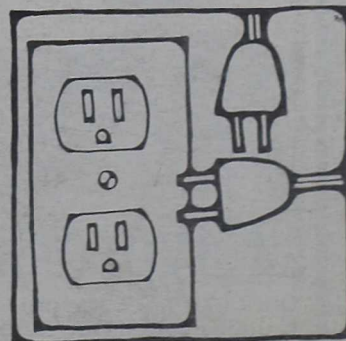

Information on all persons eligible for the dental plan who are listed in DEERS is provided to DDP*Delta, the contractor that administers the Active Duty Dependents Dental Plan. Delta uses this information to determine eligibility for claims payment.

If the dependents of an active-duty servicemember are not listed in DEERS, their claims will be denied. Denied claims will be returned with instructions for the servicemember to contact his or her military personnel office, finance office, or DEERS, to correct any enrollment errors.

Sponsors must contact their nearest military personnel office to get information about enrolling their eligible family members in DEERS and the dental plan. Until they're signed up with DEERS, those family members can't get claims under the Active Duty Dependents Dental Plan paid.

For information about DEERS enrollment, you may also contact the DEERS Telephone Center, from 6 a.m.—3:30 p.m. Pacific Time, Monday through Friday, at 1-800-538-9552.

Lyme Disease: potentially serious tick-borne disease

By Cpl. Dave Mundy

Ticks have a reputation that belies their pinhead size. They have long been known to carry diseases dangerous to man, such as Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever.

One relatively new tick-borne disease has many health officials across the country concerned.

The number of cases of Lyme Disease, a potentially serious and disabling tick-borne disease which can affect the skin, joints, nervous system and heart, is on the rise.

Nationally, more than 5,000 cases of Lyme Disease were reported in 1988. Although most were confined to the Northeast, upper Midwest and Pacific coast states, North Carolina and Camp Lejeune are not exempt.

"Generally, we believe there are more cases of Lyme Disease than are reported," said Chief Petty Officer B. A. Pope of the Naval Hospital's Preventive Medicine Unit. "This year, we've had nine reported cases aboard Camp Lejeune — two in 2nd Class Douglas Sprague, preventive medicine technician and investigator for the Preventive Medicine Unit.

Sprague said his office is usually informed of possible cases of Lyme Disease either by a physician or by a laboratory report.

"The next step for me is to interview the patient and find out all I can about the tick and the types of symptoms the patient is experiencing," he said. "It can be a disabling disease if it's not checked, but it is treatable, especially in the early stages."

Oral antibiotics are effective in treatment, with penicillin or tetracycline derivatives most common. In later stages of the disease, however, intravenous antibiotics may be necessary.

"The best way to avoid any tick-borne disease is to avoid being bitten," Pope said. "In addition to skin repellent, a new repellent for clothing is out and should be in the supply system soon."

Lyme Disease could be a serious health problem if not promptly detected and treated. The principal defense is protection. With early detection, chances for recovery are very favorable. The oval skin rash is the earliest warning.

Prevention still best medicine

By Cpl. Dave Mundy

Avoiding tick-borne diseases starts with prevention. Several steps are recommended by Lt. David R. Lavender of the Naval Hospital's Preventive Medicine Unit for avoiding tick bites:

□—Wear tightly woven, man-made fabrics. Blouse trouser legs or tuck them inside socks and boots. Tuck shirt into pants and wear light-colored clothing when possible to make ticks easier to spot.

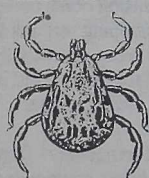

□—Use insect repellents, especially on exposed skin and openings at the tops of the boots and waist.

□—Inspect clothing often for ticks. Avoid moving through vegetation when possible.

□—Shower after exposure to tick-infested areas, and check the body for ticks. Look closely at the scalp, armpits, crotch and ankles.

□—Parents should to check their children after outdoor play periods. Pet owners should check their pets for ticks which could travel from an animal to a family member.

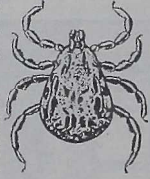

When a tick is found, Lavender said the only recommended method of removal is to grasp the tick as close to the skin as possible with tweezers or forceps and pull upward with even, steady pressure.

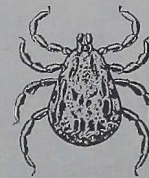

"Do not squeeze the tick or handle it with your hands," Lavender said. "When you squeeze it, you risk forcing fluids out of the tick into the wound. There are also several tick-borne diseases which can be transmitted without a bite. You could be infected by getting the tick's body fluids on your fingers and rubbing your eyes or nose."

Lavender said other methods of removal — such as touching the tick with a warm match or covering it with nail polish or alcohol — are not recommended.

"It is difficult for a tick to detach," Lavender said. "Spines on the tick's mouth are shaped backward like barbs to hold it in place. When you traumatize the tick, like touching it with a hot match, its first response is to regurgitate."

It takes several hours of being attached to the skin for a tick to transmit disease organisms. The tick doesn't usually become firmly attached until it has fed for several days, Lavender added. Finding and removing ticks is the key to avoiding tick-borne diseases. Those involved in outdoors activities around the Camp Lejeune area can protect themselves by following these simple precautionary measures and taking prompt action when a tick is found.

odescrinus tick. These ticks are usually found in tall grass and brush and usually found themselves to mammals to feed on blood.

The first stage of Lyme Disease occurs 3-14 days after the tick bite, and shows up as an expanding oval-shaped rash. This rash, reported by up to 85 percent of those contracting the disease, is the most important clue to early diagnosis.

Several weeks or even months later, infected persons may develop joint pains, headaches, meningitis, paralysis of facial muscles and problems such as an irregular heartbeat, dizziness or fainting.

If not treated, the disease can lead to progressive arthritis, intellectual deterioration or even psychiatric diseases.

"We keep careful watch on reports of Lyme Disease because it is both relatively new and it is reportable to state and federal authorities," said Petty Officer

Lejeune's best athlete

Wicks provides role model for younger Marines

Story and photos by
Cpl. Dave Mundy

Sgt. Steven W. Wicks might not fit the typical "Athlete of the Year" mold. He isn't a strapping 6-footer and doesn't eat Volkswagen engines for breakfast. He doesn't even like to run.

But considered in the context of Camp Lejeune, Wicks is the perfect choice for base Male Athlete of the Year. Not only is he a standout in three sports, he is also 6th Marine Expeditionary Brigade's Marine of the Year, NCO of the Year, and has been recognized by the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce for his achievements.

"I was surprised by the award, but I'm glad the judges took into consideration my military accomplishments as well as my athletic accomplishments," says Wicks, who received his award from Maj. Gen. Bobby G. Butcher June 9 in a ceremony at 6th MEB Headquarters. "I'm very proud of my military record and it makes me really proud to be a representative, both militarily and athletically."

Wicks, who stands only 5-foot-4 and weighs 140 pounds, hangs his cammies beside softball, basketball and volleyball jerseys. He says he doesn't consider his size a disadvantage.

"I've never had any problems playing against larger people," he says. "Basketball is the only sport where being tall is an advantage, but I have pretty good jumping ability."

Wicks says staying active in several sports keeps him in peak physical shape.

"I have short legs, so I am not an avid runner," he says, although his PFT score of 280 might indicate otherwise. "But mixing sports, with the running and jumping involved, keeps me in good shape. I think you have to go out and compete as much as you can, because if you just sit around, it's too easy to get lazy."

Softball, however, is his first love.

"I've been playing for about 11 years now," the 25-year-old says. "I usually get into about six or seven games a week. Sometimes I have to think real hard about which team I'm playing for on a particular night."

In addition to intramural competition, Wicks goes

looking for teams to play for in weekend tournaments.

"A lot of the teams I play for are people I just meet out at the mall," he says. "Sometimes you end up riding the bench until you can earn a spot in the lineup. Either way, though, you make a lot of friends."

Athletics aside, however, Wicks is proud of the uniform he wears.

"I don't think I had real confidence in myself as a Marine until the Persian Gulf deployment," he says.

"Being in a combat zone put a lot of things together for me. I volunteered to go because I didn't think it was something we should run from."

During his six months of duty in the Persian Gulf, Wicks says he still managed to find time to keep his softball skills sharp.

"There was always room to throw the ball around," he says, "and every time we went ashore, we rounded up some people for a game."

Wicks says he makes an effort to provide a role model for younger Marines.

"I'm a pretty active person, and I'm doing what I like to do," he says. "What I try to show others is how to succeed with a 'no-lose' attitude."

Marines fall to WaHoos in final minutes

Story and photos by
Sgt. Robert C. Jenks

RALEIGH, N.C.—With 4:44 remaining in the final period at the Ice House here, John Murray, center for the Raleigh WaHoos, blistered a shot that dashed Marine hockey team hopes 4-3 in the North Carolina State Games bronze medal bid June 22.

The favored WaHoos, a brawny hodgepodge of transplanted New Englanders, almost let the game go to the young Marine team. But the experience of the WaHoos, a team that obviously played together for years, was too much a match for the first-year Camp Lejeune, Cherry Point and New River all-star skaters.

Three minutes after the first period faceoff, Glen MacFaden, WaHoo right winger, screamed a powerplay shot past Sgt. James R. Davis, 28, 6th Marine Regiment goalie, to mark the double ought board with the first score.

WaHoos up by an early one, the Marine put together a three-on-two break from the red line to match the score.

With less than four minutes left in the first period, Cpl. Bill Spence, 2nd ToPo Plt., 2nd SRIG, was waiting while Tony Veraldi passed a hot shot to Lance Cpl. Jeff Hay, Marine Wing Support Squadron 271 (stationed at MCALF, Bogue Field). The puck stopped on the stick blade and in the same motion flipped it over to Spence who had silently snuck past WaHoo defenders. Crossing to center ice, Spence cut loose with a righthanded slapshot to tie the score 1-1.

Ping-ponging, Brian Anderson, WaHoo left-winger, answered Spence's marker with a slapshot from the blue line to put the Raleigh skaters up once again.

Hay opened the second period with another assist, teaming up with Pfc. Doug Lamendola, 20, from PMO at Cherry Point, when he eased a roller to Lance Cpl. Rich Vernillo, H&HS Supply, New River, to see-saw the score into a 2-2 challenge.

Final period action resembled a Saturday night brawl; each team scrapping and pounding the boards for control of the rubber puck.

Lance Cpl. Powell Meister, H&S Co., 2nd Recon Bn., took advantage of out-of-position WaHoo defenders when he scored from an assist by Cpl. Joe Rosario, 22, H&HS, New River.

The 3-2 Marine advantage sparked a viscous WaHoo attack when MacFaden blew past a sprawl of checked and tackled players for his second and tying shot.

Hockey was never rougher during the game when both teams slammed at each other at center ice in a violent volley of flying sticks, an occasional punch and other typically awesome hockey gameplay.

Murray's late period tie-breaker, game-clincher was not what the Marines had in mind for their final game of their first season. But the attitude in the parking lot next to the red, white and blue special services bus was, "we're good, next year we'll win."
