CAX 9-85 begins in Calif.

Story by Sgt. C. J. Edwards

TWENTYNINE PALMS, CALIF.—More than 2,000 Marines from five Marine Corps commands arrived at the Marine Corps Air-Ground Combat Center here for the first of two three-week training increments Aug. 19.

Marines from 1st Battalion, 2d Marine Regiment, 2d Marine Division, along with supporting units from Camp Lejeune, Camp Pendleton, Marine Corps Air Stations, Cherry Point, New River and Beaufort, arrived at Camp Wilson to participate in the Combined Arms Exercise 9-85.

According to the regimental commander, Colonel Harry Jenkins, Twentynine Palms is the only Marine Corps installation where an infantry battalion has total freedom of movement for learning and practicing basic fire support.

"This is the only place large enough to combine an infantry battalion, tanks, mortars, forward anti-air defense, air support and artillery in a training exercise where all of these principles of fire support coordination are practiced," Col. Jenkins said.

The CAX emphasizes mechanized warfare against an opposing force which uses current Soviet tactics. The most difficult part of the exercise is effectively coordinating all supporting arms, but the only way to become proficient is to practice.

"The desert environment is a plus, but is not the main reason we are here," Col. Jenkins said. "No matter what the environment, the principles remain the same. It would take six to ten days to acclimatize to the desert, so the extreme heat shouldn't pose a large problem."

The actual CAX lasts only three days, but during that time, the men will cover more than 50 miles. "Perhaps the most valuable training out here is at the small unit level," Col. Jenkins said. "The companies get the chance to get out on their own and operate in a different environment with the room to get full play from all supporting units."

Returned checks: increasing problem

Story by Sgt. Mike Stroup

Worthless checks written by Marines and their dependents here aboard Camp Lejeune are drawing attention from the highest levels of command, raising the specter of financial irresponsibility in the face of trend-setting statistics.

A prominent example is that the dollar value of checks returned to the Marine Corps Exchange alone because of insufficient funds nearly doubled to $32,950 in July compared to one year ago.

The number of individuals denied check cashing privileges aboard this base increased from 2,624 to 3,553 for the same time period, according to the Base Inspector's Office, which compiles and maintains records generating the base-wide bad check list.

"The Commanding General believes very strongly that Marines receive a certain amount of trust and confidence from society as a result of our proud heritage," said Colonel William H. White, base inspector. "They're (American people) not going to show that trust and confidence if we can't manage our finances and essentially steal their money by bouncing checks on them."

While the vast majority of Marines are financially disciplined and responsible, the simple act of using a checkbook correctly might be too much for others, as figures clearly suggest.

Nearly 1,000 bad checks were written at the exchange last month alone.

"There are people out there right now who literally believe that as long as they have checks in their checkbooks, regardless of money in their account, they can continue to write checks," said Col. White. "And I think the problem here (on base) is just the tip of the iceberg."

No doubt both Marines and their dependents (for whom they are responsible) know that writing bad checks is just plain wrong, and in specific violation of the Uniform Code of Military Justice, Article 123a.

The road for a bad check writer here begins with a $15 redemption charge, and can lead to federal prison.

Marine Corps salutes work of reservists

Story by GySgt. Kenn Boss

Since its first call to arms in 1916, the organized Marine Corps Reserve has served our nation with the dedication of the Colonial Minutemen of 1776. Now, as then, the determined will of the free American people is strengthened by the willingness of men and women to drop their professional 'plowshares' in any walk of life on short notice to heed the clarion call of duty.

Twenty-year-old Harold Glenn Epperson was looking forward to his next birthday and the mail he hoped would arrive in July on Saipan as he manned his machinegun early on the morning of June 25, 1944. Epperson, a Marine reservist serving with the 1st Battalion, 25th Marine Regiment, 2d Marine Division, had been part of the successful Marine push into the center of the strongly fortified island in the Marianas chain.

Japanese Imperial forces, who earlier had been exhorted to stop the enemy on the beaches, had suffered relentlessly for the preceding ten days as Marines and soldiers exacted decimating punishment on them.

Their attack against Epperson's gun position in the defensive perimeter of 1/6 was fanatical: they hoped to drive the Marines back to the beaches at all costs.

Epperson, however, was not to be pushed from his position. He'd lugged his gun across thousands of watery miles with the same sense of purpose exhibited hundreds of years earlier by musket-bearing volunteers who trekked on foot from Vermont's greened hills to battle the British at Breed's Hill overlooking Boston.

The Akron, Ohio citizen-soldier fought furiously that morning as the sun rose over the Pacific. His small pocket on the 72 square mile island was vitally important to the American campaign. While elements of the 8th Marines and Army units on either flank of the 1/6 line wavered, Epperson's gun kept his battalion's line steady, and the Japanese assault ended in honorable misery.

As the enemy left the battlefield, one wounded Japanese infantryman lobbed a hand grenade into Epperson's gun position. The part-time warrior, nearly old enough to cast an absentee ballot in coming elections back home, flung himself on the deadly missile in total disregard for the certain death that followed.

The blast killed him, but he saved fellow

Marine active-duty battlers who in days to come would push the Japanese defenders from the island. Saipan's airfields became a vital link in the hopscotch island campaign toward Tokyo.

Private First Class Glenn Epperson's family later accepted the posthumous award of the congressional Medal of Honor from an appreciative, and successful, nation fatigued in victory at war. One destroyer of the reconstructed United States Navy, commissioned at the Bath Iron Works in Maine, Provided cover fire for landings and Marine operations at Wonson Harbor in Korea. The USS Epperson carried on in the spirit of the Marine reservist machinegunner who provided cover fire for infantrymen on Saipan.

Private First Class Epperson earned his chevron, and the honors of heroism, during his 560 days on active duty as a Marine reservist. In 1985, thousands of similarly-minded and determined American men and women rally to monthly musters and two-week summer training drills with the same resolve to melt in with the active duty Marines when needed. They will get the job of closing with and destroying future battlefield enemies done in defense of liberty and righteousness.

Equality Day honors women's accomplishments

Story and photos by GySgt. Kenn Boss

The enactment of the 19th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States provided women in America the right to vote. Since Aug. 26, 1920, the cause of equal opportunity for all regardless of sex has been often loud, frequently tumultuous, and always controversial.

The nation, though, has benefited from the inclusion of millions of American women in every professional pursuit. Sandra Day O'Connor's respected judgment will provide legal precedents for years to come as lawyers refer to the decisions she makes as a member of the U.S. Supreme Court. And Geraldine Ferraro's bid, beside Walter Mondale, for a four-year visa to the White House proved that discrimination is, indeed, dying in the land.

Marines at Camp Lejeune have accepted the equality of women so readily that, as Captain Patricia A. Jeffcoat of 2d Supply Battalion suggests, "I don't feel special consideration is warranted for any minority anymore and believe people should be rewarded for their own merits, not on special considerations for being part of a minority.

"I totally believe anyone," she continues, "male or female, is capable of accomplishing anything once given the opportunity if that individual has the personal drive and perseverance to do so."

The 2d Marine Division's G-3 chief, Staff Sergeant Debra Hamilton, has seen a lot of changes occur for women during her 11 years in active-duty uniform.

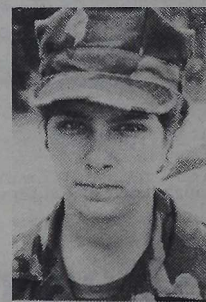

"The new training policies and opportunities begun this year for women are great," she says. "It's been too long in coming because we're all Marines. Why should I be excluded from training to protect myself and my country?"

One drawback, though, that troubles SSgt. Hamilton is that the anniversary of the women Marines is not recognized formally anymore. "Most of the young women joining the Marine Corps today won't even know when it is," she said.

Young women at Camp Lejeune seem definitely enthusiastic about their opportunities in the Marine Corps. Eighteen-year-old Private Jenifer K. Maynard has been in uniform for only five months.

"Opportunities seem the same for me as for male Marines," said the 2d Force Service Support Group motor vehicle operator. "I definitely feel my captain and gunnery sergeant expect and demand exactly the same performance from me as from my male counterparts. I also think that similar equal consideration is given me in terms of promotion opportunity and the like."

Young Marine women, as with the women in other uniformed services or in civilian positions within the Department of Defense, are today part of a combined team effort that keeps the defense of the nation secure. While controversy may yet endure, the spirit of equality championed by the Department of Defense, and the women who pursue the opportunities that spirit provides, contribute to the promise of a coming day, and another chapter in the American saga.

CHAMPUS benefit explained

The Defense Department's CHAMPUS health benefits program now shares the cost of two procedures in the treatment of kidney stones.

The treatment—either of two procedures that use sound waves to break up kidney stones within the body so that they can be passed less painfully through the urinary tract—is called "lithotripsy." One of the methods (percutaneous lithotripsy) uses a probe inserted through an incision in the skin directly over the kidney, and applied to the stone. The other method (extracorporeal shock wave lithotripsy) uses shockwaves generated outside the body to pulverize the stones.

The transurethral ureteroscopic lithotripsy procedure, which involves the insertion of an endoscope using an ascending approach through the urinary tract itself, is considered investigational, and is not covered under CHAMPUS.

The new benefit was effective March 15. CHAMPUS will help pay for treatments received on or after the effective date.

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced price meals.

Application forms are being sent to all homes with a letter to parents or guardians. To apply for free or reduced price meals, households should fill out the application and return it to the school. The information provided on the application will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Household income may be verified at any time during the school year by school or other program officials.

For the school officials to determine eligibility, the household must provide the following information listed on the applications: names of all household members, social security numbers of all adult household members or a statement that the household member does not possess one; total household income; and the signature of an adult household member certifying that the information provided is correct.

Households are required to report increases in household income of over $50 per month or $600 per year and decreases in household size. Households receiving food stamps may provide their food stamp program case number instead of income information.

Applications may be submitted at any time during the year.

Under the provisions of the free and reduced price policy, the individual school principals will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent or guardian is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. If the parent wishes to make a formal appeal, he may make a request either orally or in writing to: Dr. D. L. Linker, Associate Superintendent, Camp Lejeune Dependents' Schools, MCB, Bldg. 855, Camp Lejeune, NC 28542, for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure.

If a household member becomes unemployed or if the household size changes, the family should contact the school. Such changes may make the children of the household eligible for reduced price meals, or for additional benefits such as free meals if the family income falls at or below the levels shown above.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a household has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals for them, the household should so advise the school on the application.

In the operation of child feeding programs administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, sex, national origin, age or handicap. If any member of a household believes they have been discriminated against, they should write immediately to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Dental Corps turns 73

Globe Staff Report

The Navy Dental Corps celebrated its 73rd birthday at the Camp Lejeune Officers Club Aug. 23. The event was attended by 97 dentists, wives and guests from the Camp Lejeune area.

The guest of honor and speaker for the evening was Brigadier General J. Edward Cassity, commanding general, 2d Force Service Support Group. Also attending was Brigadier General Joseph B. Knotts, Marine Corps Base commanding general.

The dentists and guests were serenaded with patriotic tunes from the 2d Marine Division Band. There was a cake-cutting ceremony honoring the most experienced dental officer, Captain Robert B. Annis, branch head of the dental clinic at the Marine Corps Air Station (H), New River, who has served 25 years, and the youngest dental officer, lieutenant Peter V. Jahnke, 2d Dental Company, 2d Dental Battalion, who has served on active duty one month.

Notice of water quality reading

Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, operates eight separate water systems to supply the water needs of the entire Camp Lejeune-New River complex. During routine testing of the system serving the Rifle Range, one water sample showed a coliform bacteria concentration above the allowable limits for the system. Subsequent water samples for coliform within that system indicated that no bacteria were present. Coliform bacteria is not generally considered to be a disease-producing organism. Its presence merely suggests that conditions may be appropriate for the growth of other disease-carrying organisms. Since subsequent testing indicated that no coliform bacteria was present, there is no cause for concern.

The base is continuing to search for the cause of this one abnormal reading as well as to monitor all the water systems aboard the base to ensure compliance with water quality standards and reporting requirements of the Safe Drinking Water Act.

If you have any questions about this notice, please contact the Head, Occupational Preventive Medicine Department at 451-5707.

3dPlt., "K" Co., 3/4 wins Rifle Squad of Year

Story and photos by Sgt. Mike Stroup

The most outstanding rifle squad of the 2d Marine Division was recently selected here after nearly five months of training and competition. It will be formally recognized by the Commandant of the Marine Corps in Washington, D.C., Sept. 6.

The winners are 1st Squad, 3d Platoon, Kilo Company, 3d Battalion, 4th Marine Regiment.

As winners of the division's Rifle Squad of the Year competition, the Marines will join their counterparts from 1st and 3d Marine Divisions at historic Marine Barracks, 8th and I, for a Friday evening ceremony highlighting a week-long tour of Washington, D.C.

The squad won by demonstrating superior ability in basic combat skills which have enabled Leathernecks to fight and win for more than 200 years. This squad of Marines only needed the opportunity, according to company commander Captain David F. Bonwit.

Members of the winning team are: First Lieutenant Michael P. Cashman of Glen Ellyn, Ill.; Sergeant Mark A. Dibona of Putney, Vt.; Corporal Brian T. Vaughn of Rantoul, Ill.; Lance Corporal Allan R. Virbitsky of Mayfield, Pa.; Lance Corporal Scott A. Muise from Middleton, Mass.; Lance Corporal Douglas W. Lehman from Mount Gilead, Ohio; Lance Corporal Edward Larkind, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Corporal Jonathan W. Edborg, Chicago, Ill.; Lance Corporal Dana P. Fitzmaurice, Winchendon, Mass.; Lance Corporal John J. Cammarta, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Lance Corporal Carl E. Burgin, Louisville, Ky, and Lance Corporal Hasker Booker, Philadelphia, Pa.

Other participants in the winning team are: Petty Officer Third Class Lance D. Chambers, a corpsman from Benton, Ark., and alternates Lance Corporal Victor Noel from West Point, Va., and Lance Corporal Kim L. Johnson from Eau Claire, Wis.

Grenadier Lance Corporal Douglas W. Lehman clears a log en route to another position during reconnaissance patrol training.

Worthless checks create financial, legal nightmares for some Marines, sailors

Story and photos by Sgt. Mike Stroup

Being a U.S. Marine has meant meeting any challenge head on, and winning, for more than 200 years of proud history. Today, there are Marines here falling by the thousands in humiliating defeat against an enemy of their own making: worthless checks.

"These bad checks are being written one, two, or three days before payday. I see it from the dates on the checks," said Dawn L. Seals, who works in the Base Inspector's office employed full-time processing the checks. "They think it still takes three to seven days for a check to get to a bank, but it doesn't. A check written in the morning can be at the bank that very afternoon."

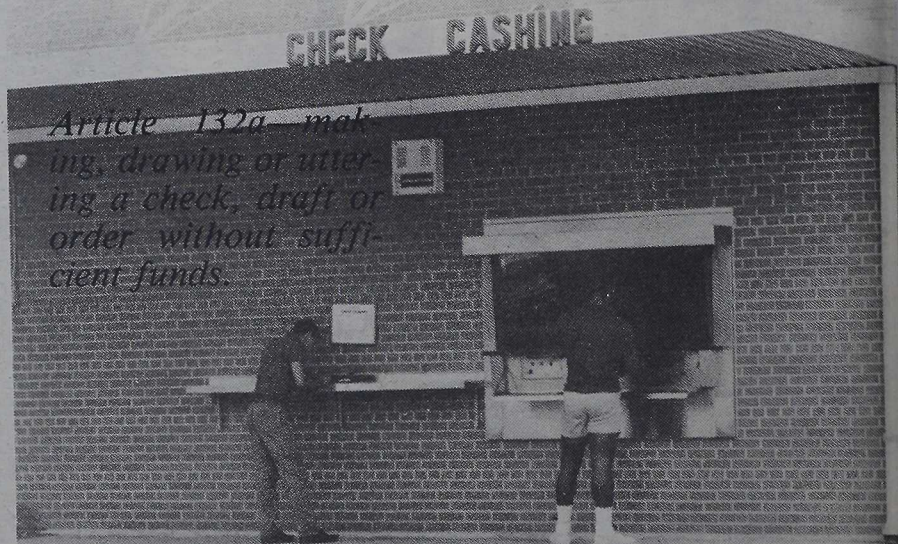

For whatever reason, when a check is returned unpaid to the Marine Corps Exchange, the individual who wrote the check begins catching the flak.

The phone call and return trip to make good on the check, and a $15 redemption fee can be just the beginning.

For example, if the account is with Marine Federal Credit Union, there is an additional $15 returned draft fee.

If the check was bounced with a vendor off-base, there will also be fees. These fees compound each time the storekeeper, who trusted a Marine, deposits that check and it is returned unpaid.

And what happens when the individual does not

An off-duty Marine exercises his check cashing privilege at the Marine Corps Exchange convenience drow, a good place to cash checks, but a costly place to bounce them:

subtract the fees, which may be automatically deducted from the dwindling account, and write more checks?

If the check was written for goods or services will the goods be repossessed or services discontinued?

Will the Marine be welcomed back as a customer?

Can the individual afford to do without money for the time it will take to straighten out his or her account?

What will happen if the individual is deployed and not able to trace the check and mend damages done?

If the Marine is deployed and has a joint checking account with his spouse and both are writing checks, who can keep track of what is in the account at any one time? Remember that even a telephone call to the bank will not provide an accurate balance because there may be checks that have not cleared the bank yet.

Will the checkbook he left with his wife feed his family?

This list of questions is endless, the true nightmares are made of—from just one bad check.

"A check is exactly the same thing as cash, no loan, not a line of credit. It is just another form of cash," emphasized Karin J. Marks, a Navy Reserve Society budget counselor who continually deals with this and related financial problems.

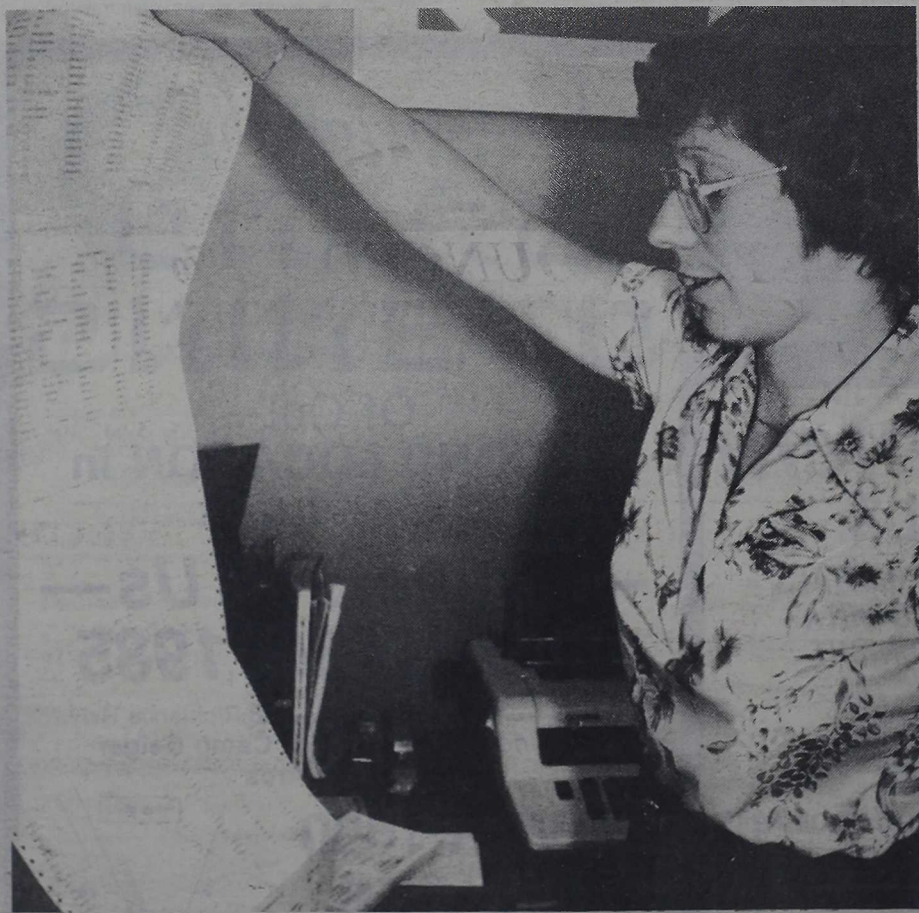

"If you walk into a store and want that $10 worth of groceries, and you were there with cash, that man wouldn't give you any groceries," Marks continued. "But you have a check. He's accepting that check because he is trusting you that the check really is cash."

Checks are cash. This is as solid a solution as a well-placed round.

Armed with and applying this simple fact alone, Marines could have the enemy on the run.

With increased participation in direct deposits, some Marines are finding a checkbook as familiar as their M-16s were at first in basic training.

"Some Marines think if the bank says that

Dawn L. Seals of the Base Inspector's Office scans the current list of individuals who have had their check cashing privileges terminated aboard Camp Lejeune. The bad check list, which contains thousands of names, has been growing month to month at a significant rate.

ive $600, they have $600, without taking into account any checks they've written that haven't hit the bank yet," said Marks.

Since checks are cash and the same $20 cannot be spent twice, writing two checks for the same $20 means one check will bounce.

People keep track of the exact amount of their money in a bank, taking into account those checks and other deductions, by keeping an accurate check register.

The check register is where all increases and decreases in an individual's pile of money at the bank are added and subtracted, keeping the total available correct.

The check register is one of the benefits a Marine with a checking account gets. It is a permanent record of receipts (pay) and payments (checks), a valuable tool in managing money.

Used properly, a check register will enable a Marine to avoid any 'nightmares'.

Checks can also be used as legal proof of payment, can be written for the exact amount due, and can be safely mailed.

In basic training Marines learned the M-16 because they must know it to fight and win.

Marines will learn to use checkbooks without bouncing checks for virtually the same reason. It is a necessity in life and in the Marine Corps.

As always, Marines who need to find out something should use their chain-of-command. Marine Corps Institute course 34.20B, Personal Finance, is an outstanding set of instructions. Individual banking institutions, credit unions, and the Navy Relief Society will also point Marines in the right direction. Both the Navy Relief Society and Family Service Center will provide classes on managing a checking account to commands upon request.

The ammunition is available.

What you do now to your credit rating can stay with you the rest of your life.

Marines owe it to themselves to drop this enemy early on, with one well-placed round.

CommCo. switches radios for rappelling ropes

Lance Corporal William Rodriguez descends out of a 90-foot "hell-hole" on a rappelling tower at Onslow Beach.

Communications Company Marines look on as a fellow Marine is checked by a 2d Reconnaissance Battalion Marine prior to making a rappel.

Story and photos by Sgt. Scot Jenkins

Under clear skies with soft sultry breezes, 55 Marines from Communications Company, Headquarters and Service Battalion, 2d Force Service Support Group recently underwent their weekly training.

But unlike scores of other training opportunities the communications Marines receive, this training didn't involve work on communications equipment or motor vehicles.

On this Friday morning, they were at Onslow Beach, receiving rappelling training from Marines of 2d Reconnaissance Battalion, 2d Marine Division.

"We've got a lot of troops who see rappelling and rubber boat training on posters and TV commercials," Staff Sergeant Rick Watson, H&SBn radio chief said. "They've seen those people doing that and they'd kind of like to do it, and they feel they've missed the boat. Usually, they're in the background with their wires and radio equipment. So this type of training is great. They get to do something out of the ordinary, break up the monotony of regular work."

The 55 Marines broke up the monotony with some thrilling training. After receiving some hands-on classroom instructions on things to do prior to, during and after rappelling, the communications Marines divided into two groups.

Recon experts provided guidance on proper rappelling techniques and checked the Marines to make sure ropes were properly secured round each waist prior to a 35-foot ascent up a 90-foot tower. At the 35-foot level, they took part in their first stage of training.

Lance Corporal Charles Benson begins climbing down the tower using rappelling ropes as tools.

Sergeant Vinnie Maida (R) offers Private First Class Terrance Harrison advice on how to properly secure the rappelling ropes.

Private First Class Ramon Rivera looks down at his belayman prior to descending from the tower.

During this stage the Marines familiarized themselves with rappelling techniques. First, they got their feet and bodies adjusted to leaping off a wooden platform and descending rapidly down a rope in small leaps towards the sand-packed ground. Marines, acting as belaymen, made sure the ropes the Marines used in the descent didn't get angled and helped smooth the descent.

After making the 35-foot trip a couple of times, the Marines moved to their next obstacle—traveling down a 90-foot rope through what the recon Marines call a hell-hole.

Although some of the Marines were a bit worried about their success prior to the rappelling, none had any doubts after completing the rappel jump. "This is great," Private First Class Perry Berkbigler said. "I think we ought to do things like this every Friday. It breaks up the monotony of training and teaches us a lot."

The PFC's sentiment was echoed throughout the entire unit. Marines kidded one another about slight flaws in rappelling techniques and praised "superman" performances.

This training is the first in what SSgt. Watson hopes will become more routine training. "We've got SPIE (special patrol insertion and extraction) rigging lined up in a couple of weeks and then we're going to try and do some rubber boat training."

If this day's performance was any indication of how the communication Marines would take on future similar training, then they would be successful.

FSSG Marine wins Servicemember of Month

Sergeant Phillip Gibbs, Jr., July Servicemember of the Month, checks under the hood of one of the 5-ton trucks he maintains.

Hard work and dedication paid off for a Camp Lejeune Marine recently with his selection as July's Servicemember of the Month. The award, presented by the Greater Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce's Military Affairs Committee, was presented to Sergeant Phillip M. Gibbs, Jr., Aug. 19.

A member of Support Company, 8th Communications Battalion, 2d Force Service Support Group, Sgt. Gibbs was selected for the honor after competing against NCO of the Quarter from major commands at Camp Lejeune and New River Air Station.

"I'm thrilled to get this award," Sgt. Gibbs said. The 8th CommBn. vehicle maintenance supervisor now has yet another prize to write home about.

His home, Myrtle Beach, S.C. is where he graduated from Socastee High School in May 1981, and where his dream of becoming a Marine began.

"I first started thinking about becoming a Marine in sixth or seventh grade," he said. "I saw a commercial on television, and the uniforms attracted me to the Marine Corps.

"At first when I came in, I wanted to get into a computer or aviation field," he said, "but I have no second thoughts about going into the field I'm in."

His quality of work and dedication as a Marine were aptly described by his battalion commander when he received his award as Servicemember of the Month.

"It gives me a great deal of pride to have you as a member of this battalion," said Lieutenant Colonel Charles H. Lyman, 8th CommBn., commanding officer. "This Marine," he said, addressing the attendees at Sgt. Gibbs' award ceremony, "has taken practically every award this unit and community have to offer in the last couple of months. It's no surprise to anyone here that you were selected as Servicemember of the Month."

The road to this award followed through NCO of the Quarter boards at his company, battalion and at 2d FSSG.

The wood plaque Sgt. Gibbs received comes after his selection as 2d FSSG's NCO of the Quarter for 1985's third quarter and his meritorious promotion to sergeant earlier this month.

He attributes his recent successes to his knowledge of essential subjects, military bearing and good record.

"When I went before my selection boards, I was confident, and I think I showed better leadership than other Marines I went up against," he said.

In speaking of his past four years in the Corps, and his future career, Sgt. Gibbs voiced only one "complaint."

"I haven't gotten to travel as much as I would have liked," he said. But, when he reenlists next month, he hopes to change that.

After spending the majority of his four years' service here, Sgt. Gibbs is ready to move on. And where ever he moves to, he's sure to add to his list of achievements.

THE NO-NONSENSE WAY TO APPLY FOR A PERSONAL LOAN.

Let's say you need a personal loan. Because some things you want cost more than you have on hand. Or because bills have started piling up. Say you need anywhere from $1,000 to $5,000. At some places, they can really hassle you with form after form to fill out, computerized credit scoring systems, and long delays. But CIT is different. Our only business is to lend money. We know how to do it efficiently, without a lot of paperwork and delays. Just one short application to fill out.

You can arrange it all by phone and mail. One phone call will get things going. Or you can drop in any weekday any time from 9 to 5. If you let us know the time in advance, we can fit in everything in exactly the time you have to spare.

Once you apply, we'll let you know quickly if your loan is approved. And then, we can usually have the check in your hand within 24 hours.

Like you, we make a career out of getting things done. We keep it efficient, direct and prompt. We make sense. Instead of nonsense. See for yourself. Call or mail the coupon for an application.

Note: CIT also offers Home Equity Loans for $10,000, $30,000, $50,000 or even more.

Call John Frank Ipock at (919) 455-4211 or just drop in at 445 E. Western Blvd. any weekday 9 to 5.

WW II vets reunite, reminisce after 40 years apart

Story by Cpl. D. Holl

"To free a man to fight" was the reason many women joined the Armed Forces more than 40 years ago. Two of those women, who served as Navy corpsmen during World War II, visited Camp Lejeune Aug. 19 to reminisce about their experiences during 1943-44 and chat about the good old days.

Wilta M. Duos and Ellen C. Stewart met at Camp Lejeune after completing boot camp at Hunter College, New York, and the U.S. Navy's Corpsmen School, Bethesda, Md.

Wilta, a Louisiana native, put her home economics teaching career aside to contribute to the war effort. Ellen also joined the Navy with a sense of patriotic duty, and with the hope of traveling to other parts of the world. As luck would have it, the Warrenton, N.C. native got orders—not to another part of the world, but at least to a different part of her home state—Camp Lejeune.

A tour of the old Naval Hospital and area grounds at Hospital Point brought back memories. "Navy life seems more lenient now," Wilta said. "During war time, we were required to be in uniform at all times and carry a pass with us when we went off base. We had to check in and out of the barracks every time we went anywhere."

There were many good times, even though the hospital was an extremely busy place to work. "In the summer, we would sun bathe and picnic behind the barracks. We had many happy times sailing on the New River. It was quiet and peaceful then because no motor boats were allowed on the river," Wilta said.

As the former sailors strolled about their old quarters, they were surprised to find that some women sailors still occupy the same barracks where they had lived in 1944.

The tour continued, offering the visitors a chance to remember the old and examine the new. After lunching at Mess Hall 9, they toured the new Naval Hospital. Ellen, who continued her dental hygienist work many years after her discharge, compared notes on the dentistry of then versus now.

Wilta explained that her specialty had been occupational therapy and rehabilitation for the blind and deaf; but she had also served as a switchboard operator and dietician during her tour in the Navy.

Throughout their visit, Ellen and Wilta continued their conversation of "remember when . . ."

"Remember when we had to stand at attention for two hours waiting for President Roosevelt drive by?" Ellen asked.

"And how exciting it was on Times Square on V-E Day . . ." Wilta added.

The former Pharmacist Mates Third Class agreed that although they have left much of the Navy lifestyles behind, they still continue to some of the same things.

"I may not give my home the white glove treatment but I still use newspapers to clean the windows," Wilta said.

Ellen agreed, ". . . and if I had to say there was one thing that the Navy taught me that I still use . . . it's of course, square corners."

Fitness Center offers lifting experience

Community News Reporter

Whether it's to lose weight, firm and tone, develop strength or retain flexibility, the Physical Fitness Center at Camp Lejeune is the place to get in shape.

"We set up programs for individuals and groups," said Joe Kozel, the center's fitness specialist. He said the fitness center is open to all active duty military, their dependents and retired service personnel.

Kozel, a former school teacher who taught physical education and coached football and track in Fayetteville, said between 3,500 to 4,000 patrons per week use the fitness facility. He said the programs are centered around the three major areas of fitness: strength, flexibility and cardiovascular.

"I just had a baby and need to lose weight," said Terry Musgrave, as she worked out on an abdominal machine. "It also gives me free time for two hours. I like it so much, I plan to continue forever," added the mother of five.

"We ride our bicycles up here . . . that's our warm up," said Diana Perez, Musgrave's friend and Berkeley Manor neighbor. "We come every other day and on Sundays." Perez, who is also a new mother, said she was exercising to get back in shape.

"It takes about a month and then you feel good and notice some results," Perez said, to which Musgrave added, "You notice the results when you put your jeans on . . . they are suddenly loose and that's a good feeling."

The center, which is located at the Area 2 Gymnasium, has 23 machines, computerized and stationary bikes, free weights and an assortment of benches. There are dressing rooms, lockers, showers and saunas for both men and women. "We also have a ladies' vanity and a lounge," Kozel said.

"I like to see what I can do," said Julie Mitchell, as she worked at the shoulder press station of the Hydra-fitness Multi-purpose Machine. The machine, which uses shock absorbers for resistance, is used by astronauts in their training. "The All Marine Boxing Team uses our machine in preparation for the interservice bouts," Kozel said.

"We're open Monday through Friday from a.m. to 11 p.m. On Saturdays and Sundays, open at 8 a.m. and close at 11 p.m.," Kozel said. "There's no charge . . . it doesn't cost anything but commitment."

Anyone wanting more information on the Physical Fitness Center can call 451-3584.

Your smartest move may be a lateral one.

If you're not content with your present job, if you're looking to broaden your experience, learn a new job or seeking a new challenge, a lateral move may be just what you're looking for. Every year thousands of Marines take advantage of the lateral move option.

The advantages are many. You keep building your retirement, keep increasing in rank and you're working within an organization you know something about. In short, you're not starting over. You're taking a new direction in your career.

If you don't think you qualify for a lateral move because your GT score is low, think again. You can take the test over any number of times and use only your most recent score.

Plus you're keeping your educational and medical benefits. Talk to your career planner about a lateral move.

You can count on the Corps.

STAY MARINE.

Lejeune educators gather in preparation for '85-'86 school year

Community News Reporter

Approximately 300 Camp Lejeune teachers, principals, assistant principals, counselors and teachers' aides gathered at the Base Theater here Aug. 23 to kick off the 1985-86 school year.

"Let me welcome you on behalf of all the mothers who have been looking forward to your return," said Brigadier General Joseph B. Knotts, base commanding general.

Describing the school system as a vital part of Camp Lejeune and another measure of stability, BGen. Knotts issued a special welcome to the new members of the school faculty. "You have become a part of a family," he said, "a family serving one of the finest families in the Department of Defense."

Brigadier General Knotts told the teachers the base command would ensure the faculty had the tools and support they needed to teach the dependents of Marines and sailors. "It's the teacher that makes the difference in the student just like it's the drill instructor that makes the difference in the Marine," he said.

The 2d Marine Division Band entertained the audience prior to the introduction of BGen. Knotts by Dr. E. Conrad Sloan, superintendent of Camp Lejeune Dependents' Schools.

Dr. Walter Barbe, an educator and author of numerous publications on how children learn, was the keynote speaker. Barbe said the goal in education should be to involve the students in the learning process so they would continue learning the rest of their lives.

"Teach a student through his strengths, not his weaknesses," Barbe said. "Look at what he has learned and find out how he learned it. If you know how he learned, you have the key." He said people learn through seeing, hearing and doing.

Barbe said kinesthetic students (those who learn by doing) are often mistakenly called hyperactive or labeled a discipline problem. "He's a doer and can be called everything under the sun except a learner," Barbe said. "He's the least adjustable, most active, most involved student in your classroom and will do well in life if he survives high school." Glancing at Dr. Sloan, he added, "They sometimes become superintendents of schools."

Barbe concluded his presentation by quoting John Garner, a well-known educator. "We want everyone to learn," he said. "We want well-educated plumbers and well-educated philosophers so both our pipes and our theories will hold water."

Doctor Walter Barbe speaks at a meeting of Camp Lejeune teachers, principals, counselors and aides at a kickoff for the 1985-86 school year.

Armed Forces Tennis finals held at Lejeune

Story and photos by Cpl. Phil Smith

Although as a whole, the Marines didn't quite stand up to the other services in the 1985 Armed Forces Tennis Championships, one Leatherneck finally hit pay dirt after years of falling short of a title.

Gunnery Sergeant Ron Powell from Camp Pendleton, Calif. has competed in this tournament 11 times since 1971, and has netted three second place finishes before capturing the Men's Jr. Veterans singles berth at Paradise Point Tennis Courts here Aug. 12.

Powell won the title by eliminating players from the various remaining branches. His first confrontation was against the Navy's Lieutenant Commander Charles Gaussiran who he beat in straight sets 6-1, 6-1 on opening day Aug. 21. He had a slightly tougher time with U.S. Army Colonel Nick Lapins, but pulled out a 6-2, 3-6, 6-2 victory. The championship match was perhaps the closest one for Powell. In this battle, the Mesa, Ariz. native Leatherneck battled Major Terry Payton of the Air Force who nearly traded Powell shot for shot although the Pendleton racketeer downed Payton, 6-2, 6-2.

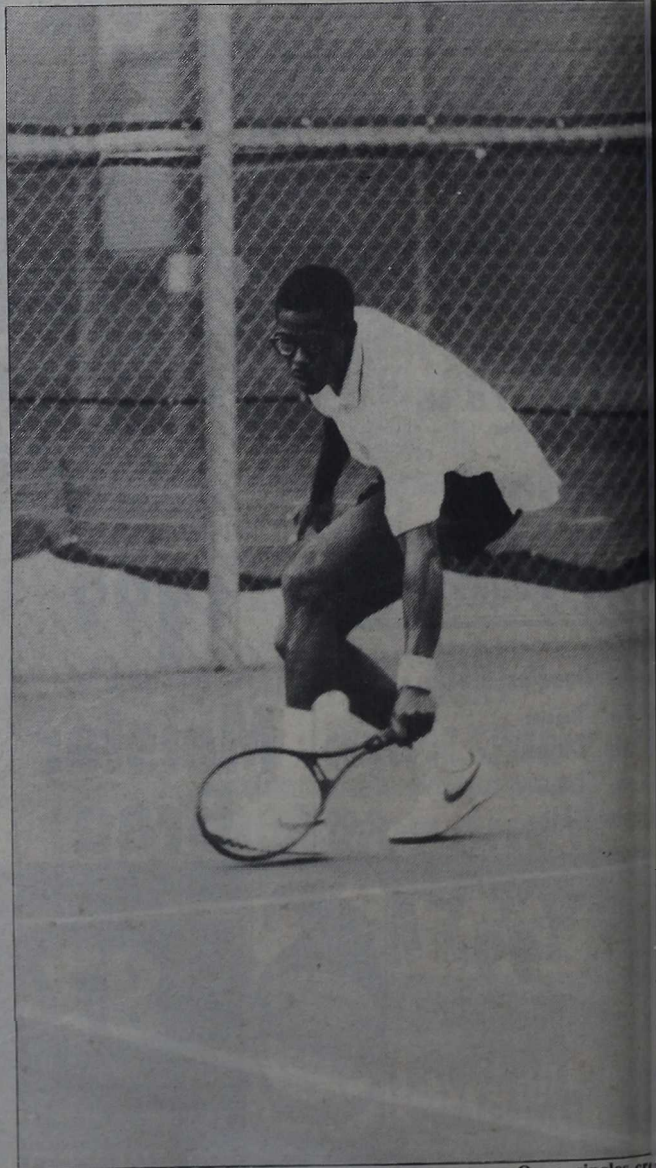

This was definitely a highlight for the 16-year Marine Corps veteran in his 27 years of playing tennis and as he puts it, he won't let the thrill of finally winning the title keep him from returning perhaps next year to repeat his 1985 performance.

Although none of the Marine Corps' entries in the Men's Open singles and doubles or the Women's singles and doubles made it past the first round of competition, Powell and Junior Veterans doubles partner Master Sergeant Albert Bennett placed second after falling to the Army team of Major Robert Brewer and Colonel Del Campbell. In Seniors action, Powell got past the first round in singles competition and the doubles team of Master Gunnery Sergeant Alfred Hanley and Lieutenant Colonel Mark Loveless was eliminated in their debut match.

Army Private First Class Warrick Jones took the gold in Men's Open singles for the Army team by defeating classing Air Force competitor Sergeant Michael Duran 6-2. Jones' height of 6 feet, 5-inches, who made lobbing very difficult, and Lieutenant Junior Grade Gina Hester from the Navy team defeated Zingrang in singles play to take the crown 6-2, 3-6, 6-1.

Marines aid Navy in capturing softball title

Story by Sgt. Dan Wright
MCLB, BARSTOW, CALIF.—The Marine Corps, although not emerging victorious, came from behind to place third and aided the Navy in sailing away the winners in the 1985 Women's Interservice Softball Championship, Aug. 16, here, posting a 5-1 record, three of those by shutout.

The Navy faced the Air Force as its final opponent and a win over Air Force meant the title. But the Navy needed the Marines to defeat the Army in the first game of the evening session because the Army had a 4-1 record and a win for the Army would've meant a playoff game later that evening. The Navy's only loss was to the Army, 9-3.

Some may look at it as Navy-Marine Corps teamwork, but in effect the Marines played its best game in the tournament, soundly defeating the Army, 8-4, thereby giving the Navy all the room it needed to take the title. The Navy shut out the Air Force, 4-0.

Overall, the final rankings have the Navy as the winners with a 5-1 record, followed by the Army with a 4-2 record. The Marines, who were 0-4 going into their last two games, ended up third with a 2-4 record, and the Air Force trailed behind with a 1-5 record.

In the final games, Lori Griggs pitched her third shutout of the tourney for the Navy, scattering five Air Force hits for the win. There was little action until the seventh inning when mystically the Navy's bats came alive. Griggs, Virginia Carver and Debbie Helmick reached base via a single, a walk, and another single, respectively, with no outs. Kris McCauley then ripped a two-run double down the right field line and Aimee Shelton followed with a two-run single for the only score in the game.

The Navy defense, again, was very strong and they turned two double plays and made several exceptional plays in the field.

In the first of the last two games to be played in the tournament, two four-run innings allowed the Marines to play the role of the spoiler and take some frustration out on the Army. With nothing to lose and everything to gain by keeping the title in the sea service family, the Marines pounded the Army, 8-4.

Lynda Tamplin and Rosalind Campbell ripped back-to-back, clutch two-run singles with two outs in the third and a 4-0 lead.

The Army got two runs back in the top half of the fourth inning. A ground ball to second by Cynthia Ruester and a sharp single to center by Chris Smith scored the runs.

The Army lost a chance to tie the game in the sixth after scoring a run. Laura Ferio reached base on an error by Marine second baseman, Cathy Burlock, and came around to score on Sheila Granger's two-out triple to deep left field. Granger was stranded at third when Ruester lined out to Marine shortstop, Mary Gerken.

Esther Hayes' two-run single was the big hit in a four-run sixth that put the game away for the Marines.

The following are scores in each of the day's games:

On Tuesday, Aug. 13, it was the Navy over the Marines, 8-1; the Army squeezed by the Air Force, 2-1, in nine innings. That evening, the Navy got one of its three shutouts, working hard to outdo the Army, 2-0; and the Air Force had little trouble defeating the Marines, 5-2.

On Wednesday, the Marines tried desperately to get on a winning streak, but lost in the opener to the Army, 3-2, in nine innings. The Navy collected its second shutout, this time over the Air Force, 2-0. That evening, the Navy widened its lead, defeating the Marines, 5-3; and the Army defeated the Air Force for the second time, 6-1, in eight innings.

On the final day, the Navy suffered its first loss, this one to the Army, 9-3; and the Marines won its first game of the tournament, 4-3, over the Air Force. In the finals that evening, it was Marines over the Army, 8-4 and the Navy over the Air Force, 4-0.

Twenty-three women who played in the Interservice Tournament were selected to tryout for the 1985 All-Interservice Team which will play in the Nationals Aug. 31 through Sept. 2 at Austin, Minn.

They are as follows:

From the Air Force: Kathy Prest, Joanna Burgan, Kathy Epperson, Heidi Phipps, Raynette Oyama, and Laurie Lundgren.

Representing the Army are: Dawn Glasgow, Claudette Murphy-Green, Staria Burdell, and Laura Ferio.

The Navy contingent included: Debbie Helmick, Aimee Shelton, Lori Griggs, Jill Jacobs, Jill Szczepanski, Isabel Caporale, Kris McCauley, and Rhonda Eveans.

Five Marines were selected for the All-Interservice Team. They are: Lynda Tamplin, Rosalind Campbell, Judy Wade, Mary Gerken, and Melody Naatz.
