22d MAU changes commander

Story by LCpl. T. A. Carr

The colors of the 22d Marine Amphibious Unit changed hands May 16, as Colonel (brigadier general select) Ross S. Plasterer relinquished his command to Colonel Robert W. Wiegand, during a parade/ceremony held at Camp Geiger.

During the change of command ceremony, Col. Plasterer was awarded the Legion of Merit for "exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service." Col. Plasterer's previous tours include commanding officer of Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron-165, head of the Marine Aircraft Group-26/Marine Aircraft Group-29 Reorganization Team, 2d Marine Aircraft Wing and prior to assuming his duties with the 22d MAU, CO of MAG-29. Col. Plasterer assumed duties with the 22d MAU June 11, 1984.

"The Marines and sailors of the 22d MAU are outstanding," he announced. "They are great to work with and all you have to do is give them a chance. They are superb."

Colonel Wiegand was designated a Naval aviator in Dec. 1960. He has served as the commanding officer of Headquarters and Maintenance Squadron-11 and assistant chief of staff, G-3 and chief of staff, Headquarters, Fleet Marine Force Europe (Designate). Prior to taking the reins of the 22d MAU, Col. Wiegand served as assistant chief of staff, G-3, 2d MAW.

Presiding over the change of command ceremony was Lieutenant General Al Gray, commander of Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic/II Marine Amphibious Force. Following the ceremony, LtGen. Gray "frocked" Col. Plasterer to the rank of brigadier general, and then offered some advice to the newest member of the general ranks.

"As you join the general officer ranks, I would remind you that the reason we get where we are is because young men and women put us there. The stars really belong to them and I trust that you will always remember this as your new career starts out. You've proved yourself as a leader, as a follower, as a warrior and as a manager, both in peacetime and in wartime operations. In short you've done it all and done it all superbly well," the lieutenant general said. LtGen. Gray then closed, wishing BGen. Plasterer the best of luck in his new assignment.

Brigadier General Plasterer will report to the commanding general, 3d Marine Aircraft Wing for duty in flying status involving operational flights as the assistant wing commander.

Marine rifle, pistol matches held at Lejeune

Marines from around the globe competed at Camp Lejeune's rifle range in the Marine Corps Rifle and Pistol Matches held here May 10-16.

Utilizing M-14 service rifles and .45 caliber pistols the competitors vied to be the best shot in the Corps.

Approximately 160 competitors occupied the range during the match which also consisted of team competition.

Awards were given on the basis of experience. A shooter who has previously been established in competition is designated a distinguished shooter and does not compete for medals.

The Western Division, consisting of commands from the western U.S., walked away with the most medals during the competition with 10 of the 20 possible individual and team awards. The Marksmanship Training Unit, Quantico, Va. presented 19 of the 33 high placing distinguished shooters.

Winner of the McDougall Trophy, which is awarded to the highest scoring shooter in the rifle competition, was Sergeant Jack Casemen from MTU, who dropped only six of 600 points and won by shooting six more Vs than the second place finisher, Corporal S. A. Ellis from the Western Division.

The Welsh Trophy, presented by three-time distinguished shooter and retired Marine Colonel Walter Welsh, was awarded to the highest scoring shooter in the pistol competition.

Distinguished shooter, Sergeant Warren Reynolds from 2d Force Service Support Group, fires one of the bullseyes that led him to a tenth place finish.

The winner of the pistol trophy was Staff Sergeant Paul Malsbury who jumped up from sixth place after the first day of firing to snag the medal from first day leader Captain P. A. Berna. Malsbury dropped only nine points during the second outing and topped Berna by two, 574-16 to 572-16.

Gold medalists for both the rifle and the pistol hailed from the Western Division. Corporal Thomas Gilbert captured the gold in the rifle, finishing third overall with a score of 592-52. Corporal Richard Sieckmann scored 556-17, placing ninth overall and winning the pistol gold medal.

The pistol team trophy was awarded to Western Division Team A with a score of 1079-16, defeating the Eastern Division's Team A score by nine points.

In the rifle team competition, Western Division Team A came out on top with a score of 1769-144, only five more points than Eastern Division Team 3 who scored 1764-142.

The Lauchheimer Trophy was awarded to shooters who displayed pinpoint marksmanship with both the rifle and the pistol. The three top finishers were Master Sergeant Ricardo Rodriguez from MTU and Corporals S. A. Ellis and Thomas Gilbert, both from the Western Division.

Not everyone in the competition had years of competitive experience under their belts. Gunnery Sergeant Charles Farmer, from the Far East Division, just recently learned of the Marine Corps Matches. "I've been in the Marines 18 years and didn't even know this match existed," he said. "Shoot, I've fired better than ever and still didn't do well enough for a medal." He added that the experience will be well used as he expects to make his mark next year.

Memorial Day: remembrance of fallen heroes

Story by GySgt. Kenn Boss

Responsibility is one of the few words people think about as they consider those who've fallen in defense of the United States each year when Memorial Day rolls around. Families grieve for deceased relatives who ran the risk of death to protect an ideal, but few who remember and honor those who died in combat take the time to think ahead.

It's time we who are in uniform do, with a sense of individual and very personal responsibility. Memorial Day—a day for remembering the past—must also be a day of rededication to the ideals, morals and values each of us has sworn to defend.

Whether rifleman or cook, pilot or jet mechanic, commanding general or commanded private, sailor, soldier and airman, those who have succumbed to the risks inherent in our military profession have bequeathed us each a legacy.

As they executed their responsibilities to God, country, service and family, the responsibility of continuing in their stead falls to us. Their maximum sacrifice leaves to us the responsibility for continuing the valiant tasks, if need be, but more than that, the menial ones as well.

Prior to commitment to combat, where each fought desperately to live and win for their country, most had also served in peacetime positions within their services, and served with equal dedication.

Keeping America free has historically called for the loss of life. Our cemeteries flutter each Memorial Day with miniature versions of Old Glory placed thoughtfully beside the grave markers of those who succumbed to the challenge of enemy firepower. Their strength collectively won the day, the battle, though individuals died. They fought willingly, and fought well.

Think ahead. Will you, or the Marine beside you today, measure up should the call come? Ask yourself if you were the best Marine you could be today, and answer yourself honestly. If the answer is no, will you better your contribution to the collective total tomorrow?

Only through the pursuit of personal excellence in the performance of our daily duties might the responsibility left us by our fallen predecessors in uniform be met with pride. Only through complete loyalty to that Marine next to you can you do your best for the Fleet Marine Force (and the nation). Only through demanding the best performance of yourself and your brothers in uniform can you best honor the blood shed on Iwo's beaches, the pine carpet of the Belleau Wood the warm and sticky mud of Vietnam's rice paddy footways, the rubble streets of Beirut.

On Memorial Day, while you enjoy extended liberty, trips to relatives, a day at the beach, make that rededication. Vow again to serve the future well to honor those who gave it to you as free Americans.

In that way, all can best remember the courage of the past and continue to cherish the things we will, if necessary, fight for.

The following is a listing of openings and closures in observance of Memorial Day, May 27. All exchange activities will be closed except the Bonnyman Bowling Center snack bar, Base Theatre snack bar, mobile snack bar, Bldg. 4 snack bar and Berkeley Manor, Tarawa Terrace and Midway Park convenience stores. Consolidated Special Services activities will all be open except the Skeet Range and hobby shops.

NRS Fund Drive reaches for its goal

Story by Sgt. C. J. Edwards

The 1985 Navy Relief Society Fund Drive has been in full swing for 23 days and as of May 17 approximately $70,000 has been contributed.

"We are doing pretty well," Lieutenant Colonel M. J. Reardon, NRS Fund Drive chairman, said. "Solid Shield 85 really slowed us down but the number of contributions has already picked up."

The goal of this year's drive is not a dollar and cents figure but a percentage. "We are aiming for 100 percent contact of each and every Camp Lejeune Marine and sailor. I, personally, am very confident that we will make this goal," Reardon emphasized.

"One thing recently occurred to me," LtCol. Reardon began, "I believe the basic Marine—deep down inside—is a caring and generous individual. All he needs is for someone to tell him how he can help and he will. And that is just what the NRS key-persons are doing."

Marines and sailors can contribute any amount to the drive—no donation is too small. Contributions may be made with cash or by allotment. The minimum allotment is $1 per month and would begin Aug. 1.

Anyone wishing to contribute to Navy Relief should contact their battalion key person.

The following figures reflect the percentage of people contacted as of May 17:

- Marine Corps Base: 14.5
- 2d Marine Division: 17.2
- 2d Force Service Support Group: 0
- 6th Marine Amphibious Brigade: 74.9
- Marine Corps Air Station, New River: 8.5
- Naval Hospital: 55.7
- Dental: 34.8

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

I cannot understand the hazardous driving practices of those Marines who travel through the Triangle Outpost Gate and use Highway 172 and Lyman Road. Those drivers often speed or recklessly pass three or four cars only to gain a few seconds' time.

I know they are not saving time because I maintain my speed and usually come up behind them at intersections. I know that I can report such incidents myself but I'd have to take valuable time off work for prosecution.

Is it possible for the military police to set up speed traps? Can the military police stop motorists past the Outpost Gate?

K. W. Schenck
MSgt., USMC (Ret.)

Dear Master Sergeant Schenck,

Thank you for your active interest in safe driving. Military police have been patrolling the area of Lyman Road and Triangle Outpost Gate using both marked and unmarked cars with radar. We realize problems do exist in this area and will continue to actively patrol, particularly during rush hour traffic periods.

The military police do not have jurisdiction for traffic enforcement on Highway 172 between Triangle Outpost Gate and Highway 24. Contact has been made with the North Carolina Highway Patrol and they have agreed to assist Base officials in this area through the use of directed enforcement.

Rest assured your concern for courtesy on the road by all is both shared and appreciated. Thank you.

B. M. Summerlin
Colonel
Provost Marshal

Dear Editor:

It is with a great deal of pride I write this letter concerning the Naval Hospital, Camp Lejeune, and the personnel who make up the staff. I am a retired Marine and have lived in this area with my wife since retirement. During the years we have had to be hospitalized several times for various ailments. During those times we have received the best care and treatment possible. The staff of the Naval Hospital from the commanding officer to the lowest rated enlisted personnel has always shown kindness, attention and care that is needed to help a patient recover from an illness and in a very efficient manner. This type of service is not normally found in a hospital understaffed and overworked. I cannot find enough words to express my thanks and appreciation for having a hospital like this one close by. For my wife and I, we know that money could not buy this kind of treatment. It is given freely from the heart of very dedicated personnel who in return ask only for a little patience and understanding. From our hearts we will always be thankful for the hospital for we owe them our very lives.

Military Spouse Day honors wives, husbands

Story by Sgt. Pamela Vajner

The month of May is a month during which military men and women find themselves honored more than one occasion. Armed Forces Day and Memorial Day salute those who serve, or who have served, their country by wearing the uniform of the armed services.

It is equally fitting, therefore, that May is also a time when the wives and husbands of those who serve their country are honored. May 23 is National Military Spouse Day. This day, dedicated to the military spouse, provides the opportunity to publicly recognize and thank spouses for the hardships they endure and the contributions they make to the readiness and well being of the military man or woman.

The commanding general of the 2d Marine Division addressed these thoughts in a letter to spouses of Division Marines and sailors:

"We often willingly endure the long hours, frequent turmoil in our personal lives which goes hand in hand with the pride of serving our Division. But it is far less often we recall that these very same hardships must be endured by our spouses as well. In fact, it is often the spouse who bears the brunt of the hardships.

"Military Spouse Day, the 23rd of May, recognizes the courage and sacrifices of the spouses of Marines and sailors . . . The maturity, dedication and, indeed, patriotism which I see among the spouses of servicemen are the qualities which see our families through countless challenges unknown to those who are uninitiated into the military way of life."

The following activities are planned aboard base in celebration of Military Spouse Day:

Consolidated Special Services is sponsoring a cookout May 23 from 5 p.m.-dusk. Husband and wife team canoe and paddleboat races, egg toss and other events are planned. All special services activities will have 20 percent discounts.

The Naval Hospital will sponsor a spouse appreciation night beginning at 5 p.m. May 23.

Husbands and wives will be treated to dinner in the hospital dining facility and shown around their sponsors' work area. A banner, signed by all hospital personnel, will be displayed and each spouse will receive a proclamation from the hospital's commanding officer.

Headquarters Battalion, Marine Corps Base Open House activities will begin at 10 a.m. May 23 at Dining Facility #9. For more information, call 451-3381.

The Staff Noncommissioned Officers Club and NCO Clubs will offer 50 percent discounts for spouses May 23. The Enlisted Clubs will offer free beverages and snacks from 5-7 p.m. May 23.

The Marine Corps exchange will offer a 20 percent discount on selected items May 23.

All commands are encouraged to conduct open houses during the week of Military Spouse Day to allow spouses the opportunity to visit their husband or wife's work sections and gain familiarity with the people and equipment with which their spouse works.

Letting auto insurance lapse can be expensive

Story by Sgt. Scot Jenkins

More than 1,100 Camp Lejeune Marines have contributed approximately $130,000 to North Carolina since Jan. 1. They weren't participating in any state lottery or paying taxes. They were paying fines for letting their automobile insurance lapse.

"When a person registers a vehicle in North Carolina, that vehicle must comply with state liability insurance laws, and that liability insurance cannot lapse for more than 24 hours," said Sergeant James H. Adams, Marine liaison for the North Carolina Division of Motor Vehicles.

Insurance companies in North Carolina are obligated by state statute to notify the DMV about individuals who let their liability coverage lapse.

Once DMV receives that notification, a letter is sent to the person accused of delinquency. "In this letter the DMV asks if a person has gotten new coverage or if he is delinquent and has let his insurance coverage lapse," Sgt. Adams said. Delinquent persons are required to turn their license plates into a DMV office.

Ignoring the DMV letter does no good. "If a licensee refuses to comply with the letter, he has committed a misdemeanor offense and is subject to arrest," Sgt. Adams said.

This intentional or unintentional payment omission creates several problems for the offender. First he has to pay money to the state. He must pay a $50 administrative fee to cover penalty costs for allowing the insurance coverage to lapse, he must pay a $50 restoration fee and a $26.50 registration fee. The total bill costs $126.50.

But that chunk of money is only part of the sting delivered to individuals with delinquent insurance coverage. "A Marine who has let his insurance lapse has no choice but to turn in his plates to the DMV for 30 days," Sgt. Adams said.

This means that even if an individual pays the $126.50 right away, he will still be unable to drive his vehicle for 30 days.

"It's kind of sad to see sometimes," Sgt. Adams said. "I had a Marine come in the other day whose wife was eight months pregnant. They only had one vehicle. I felt sorry for them but they had broken the law. I couldn't help them at all."

According to Lynn Cole, process officer for the State of North Carolina, each person with delinquent insurance is supposed to get a letter from the DMV. He said the person should fill out the letter and send it to Raleigh, N.C., or contact the local DMV office.

Although the letter is supposed to reach the person, Cole said, often it doesn't because the person has moved or been transferred to another unit on base. "The Marine must notify the DMV in Raleigh that he has a new mailing address. The DMV notification cannot be sent to another address. If it isn't deliverable at the address listed it is sent back to the DMV," Cole said.

Sergeant Adams offers a word of caution to Marines who switch from one insurance company to another. "They should try and save money if possible," he said, "but they need to make sure their new insurance policy picks up before the former one expires."

One misconception many Marines have is not needing insurance for a car when they go on a six-month float. That simply isn't the case. Liability insurance coverage is required even if the driver isn't driving the car.

Some delinquent Marines try to circumvent the registration requirement by registering their car under their wife's or children's names. "North Carolina law prohibits people under the License Plate Revocation Policy from doing this," Sgt. Adams said.

All of this can be avoided by making sure insurance coverage on cars doesn't lapse, even for one minute.

Solid Shield 85 winds down

Story by Sgt. Paul Younghaus
MARINE CORPS AIR STATION, BEAUFORT, S.C.—The finale for the Marine Corps' involvement in Solid Shield 85 took place at this South Carolina air station.

More than 300 Marines from the 26th Marine Amphibious Unit made a heliborne assault from the USS Nassau onto the airstrip here May 14.

Marines from Weapons Company, Battalion Landing Team 3/4 set up their 81mm mortar during Phase III of Solid Shield 85. (Photo by Sgt. Paul Younghaus)

This "attack" was part of the Solid Shield scenario. In that scenario, "Cornadian" forces were mounting a counterattack after the II Marine Amphibious Force Marines secured Naval Base, Jacksonville, (Camp Lejeune) May 9.

Marine forces then seized the "enemy" airfield here to support the 18th Airborne Corps as they made a raid on Fort Stewart, Ga.

For the 26th MAU Marines, this was the tail end of a month-long series of exercises held in Honduras, Camp Lejeune and here.

On "D-Day", CH-46 helicopters from Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron-365 brought in Lima Company, Battalion Landing Team, 3d Battalion, 4th Marine Regiment, 2d Marine Division. Shortly after the morning fog cleared "L" Co. hit the runway and engaged aggressor forces. Follow-on waves brought in Marines from Kilo and Weapons Companies to help vanquish the Cornadian aggressors.

Those aggressors were played by Bravo Company, 1st Battalion, 8th Marine Regiment Marines. They harassed the 26th MAU Marines throughout D-Day.

By the end of D-Day, 26th MAU Marines were firmly in place around the Beaufort runway. On the following day, "K" Co. held unit training while "L" Co. became casualties for a mass casualty drill.

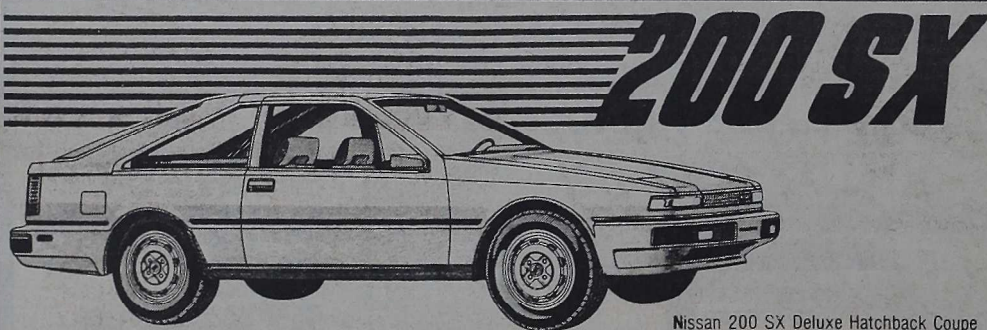

Moulages, or fake wounds, were placed on 60 of the company's Marines. Corpsmen and doctors set up a triage to categorize the wounded Marines. They were then evacuated by helicopter to the USS Nassau where they received further treatment.

Phase III of Solid Shield 85 concluded the following day as Marines from BLT 3/4 backloaded onto helicopters and flew back to the USS Nassau.

The 26th MAU Marines returned to Camp Lejeune May 17 after their month-long trek.

"It's good to be back in training."

There aren't many part-time jobs that give you a chance to get interesting training, learn new skills and jobs and even give you benefits like retirement and discount shopping. Those are good reasons in themselves to join the Marine Reserve. But perhaps the strongest reason is the opportunity to get back with fellow Marines. Men you have something in common with. People you can count on. And part of one of the world's most elite fighting forces.

If you've left active duty or are about to, consider all you can get in the Marine Reserve. It's a smart move. Call 800-423-2600, toll-free. In California, 800-252-0241.

Marines, sailor earn Navy/Marine Corps medals

by LCpl. Eve Middleton

Four Marines and one sailor first noticed the chopper by the unusual grating sound it was making. They saw the chopper go down in the trees. Immediately rushing to the scene, they discovered the rotor blades spinning close to the ground. Fire was spewing from underneath the CH-53E. The time element posed a greater risk factor when leaking fuel tanks were discovered.

Despite the danger involved and the force of the overhead blast, the men sped through the leaking fuel to release the trapped men.

The force of the crash broke the tail from the fuselage, exposing the crew between mangled wreckage. The four rendered first aid to the injured Marines. After corpsmen arrived, they continued to supervise the medical evacuation.

The mishap occurred Nov. 19, 1984 at Camp Lejeune's Tactical Landing Zone Penguin. The Super Stallion was performing an external lift of an M-114, 155mm howitzer from Tactical Landing Zone Gander.

A parade honoring the rescuers took place May 14 at Camp Geiger. Presiding at the ceremony was Major General Louis H. Buehl, Base commanding general. MGen. Buehl presented the Marines with the Navy/Marine Corps Medal, the highest medal that can be awarded in peacetime.

Those honored were Gunnery Sergeant Phillip M. Questel, Sergeant Ira T. Stevenson and Petty Officer Third Class Craig A. Conaway. All were assigned to the Infantry Training School and were on the M203 grenade range the day of the crash.

Two of the Marines not present at the ceremony were Staff Sergeant W. J. Nawn and Sergeant Wayne J. Allen. SSgt. Nawn is stationed in Yokosuka, Japan and couldn't be present. He did receive his medal in Japan. Sgt. Allen is on leave and will be awarded his medal upon his return.

Gunnery Sergeant Questel gave his account of the accident. "I noticed the choppers flying overhead all day. Suddenly, I heard a grinding, snapping sound and saw the chopper go down. I then did what I had to do. It was a natural reaction to the events going on around me. Receiving the medal hasn't changed me as a person. The fact that I helped save lives is enough thanks for me. If it happened again tomorrow I'd do the same thing," he said.

There were 11 survivors of the crash: six Marines died as a result of their injuries.

Major General Louis H. Buehl, Base commanding general, pins the Navy/Marine Corps Medal on Petty Officer Third Class Craig A. Conaway.

Lejeune MPs compete in Police Olympics

Corporal Julie Nys, Provost Marshal's Office, digs in and pulls during the women's tug-of-war competition.

Story and photos by Cpl. D. K. Holl

More than 300 North Carolina law enforcement officers, including Camp Lejeune military police, met in Charlotte, N.C., May 17-18, to compete in the Fifth Annual Police Olympics.

Competition was keen as civilian law enforcement officers from around the state challenged the military police, who captured the state title last year with 41 individual trophies along with several team trophies. Events included pistol and trap shooting, pugil stick bouts, arm wrestling, weight lifting and track and field events.

"This year's competition seems similar to what we went against last year," Major Michael J. Clarke, Provost Marshal's Office operations officer and team coach, said.

"We enjoy opportunities to compete and participate. The Police Olympics gives us the chance to demonstrate our sportsmanship, cooperation and companionship with fellow police officers," he added.

"Organized events like this give us the opportunity to share our knowledge of both civilian and military law enforcement," Sergeant James M. Wood, Camp Lejeune military policeman, said. "There is a strong camaraderie between police officers, simply because of what our job requires of us. The Police Olympics is just one way we get to show them we can work together," the 32-year-old Washington, D.C., native said.

While the 1985 Marine team had limited practice sessions and suffered several injuries, it succeeded in bringing several trophies home again this year. Among those were first place in the pugil stick competition and an unexpected second place in volleyball. Other results were not available at press time.

Army unit identifies recovered foreign weapons

Story and photos by LCpl. Jamee Osborn

During exercise Solid Shield 85, Marines at Tactical Landing Zone Goose relied on some special knowledge the U.S. Army brought with them—knowledge of foreign weapons.

The 11th Military Intelligence Company, 203rd Military Intelligence Battalion from Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., brought their technical knowledge and foreign weapons to Camp Lejeune during Solid Shield. The company formed the Captured Material Exploitation Center, with the mission of recovering, identifying and analyzing foreign weapons.

"These weapons come from many sources," said First Sergeant James E. Washington, the first sergeant of the 11th M.I. Co. "We get them through our supply channels, but they are donated from many countries as well as intelligence organizations. We don't know all the history on these weapons, but many have come from operations in Vietnam and Grenada."

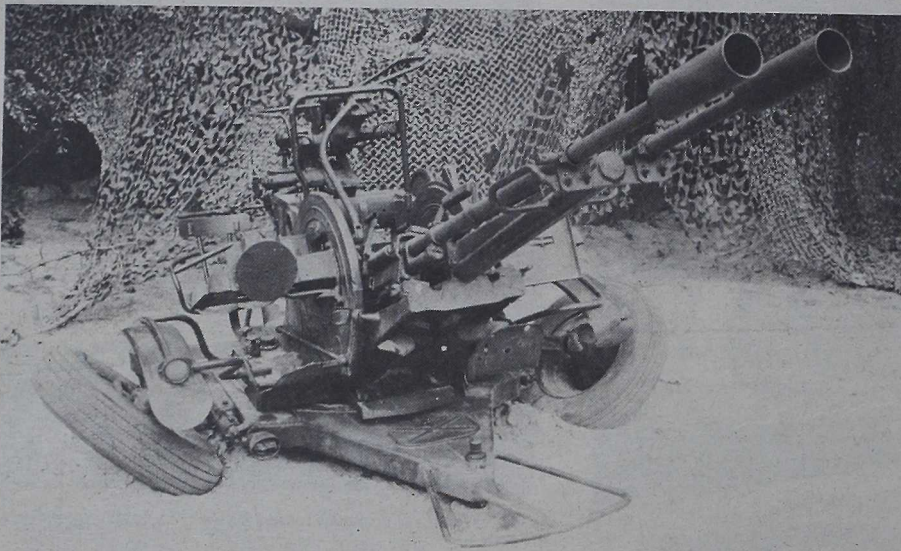

The 203rd M.I. Battalion is the only active technical intelligence battalion in the Army, according to 1st Sgt. Washington. "The soldiers in this unit are already experts on the American counterparts of these weapons," he said. "They get the foreign equipment and learn about it by hands-on practice."

The soldiers of the M.I. Bn. are familiar with foreign communications equipment, nuclear, biological and chemical weapons, ammunition, logistics and weapons.

Specialist 5 Mark Roley specializes in chemical and medical logistics for the unit. "We keep up-to-date on chemical defenses used by certain countries and research the best way to defend yourself against those agents," he said.

Specialist 5 Roley held up a Soviet gas mask. "This mask is made of a very thin material, and has no voice emitter or drinking tube," he said. "It also covers the ears, so it is difficult to hear. But it is easy to manufacture and does provide protection."

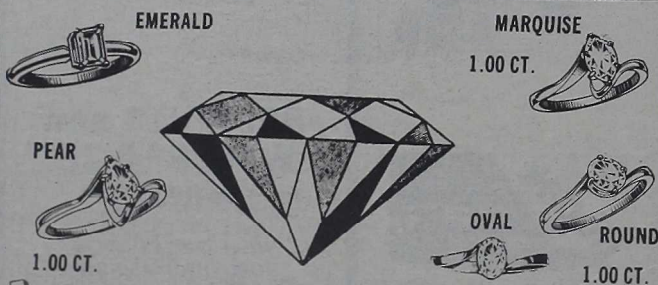

"The Soviet Union trains with live agents," Spec. 5 Roley continued. "They expect to lose at least one percent of their soldiers as casualties during training exercises."

A Soviet Union ZSU23-7 anti-aircraft gun sits in position to fire.

Oldest post of the Corps offers pageantry of Evening Parade

Story by LCpl. Jamee Osborn
MARINE BARRACKS, 8TH AND I, WASHINGTON, D.C.—Darkness falls over the “oldest post of the Corps.” The spotlights flood the grounds and brilliant red uniforms of the President’s Own as they begin their concert. So begins the Evening Parade at Marine Barracks, 8th and I.

The Evening Parades have been held at the barracks since 1934. After a concert by the President’s Own, the U.S. Marine Drum and Bugle Corps marches on the parade grounds. After the Drum and Bugle Corps takes its place, the official barracks mascot, Sergeant Chesty Puller, an English bulldog, is marched out wearing his dress blue coat. Eight buglers are spotlighted on the barracks roof and sound a fanfare.

Six platoons of Marines in dress blues march on the parade ground. The Color Guard marches out into the spotlight. In addition to the national flag, it includes the official battle color of the Marine Corps. The battle color carries 47 streamers and silver bands representing the military campaigns in which Marines have participated. The battle color represents more than 400 awards and campaigns of the Corps.

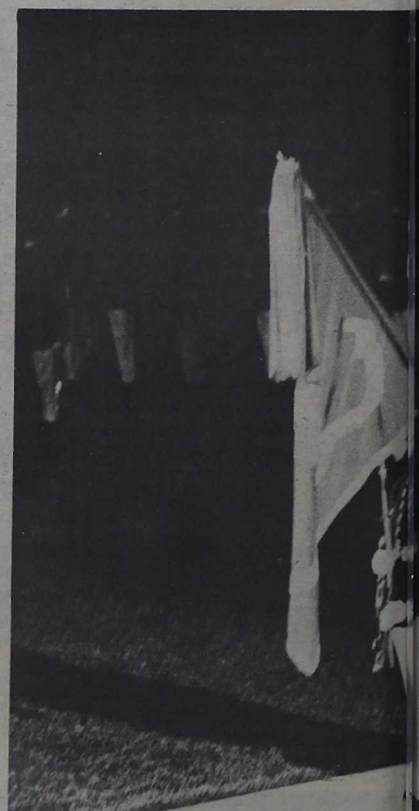

The national flag is then lowered. The barracks is the only Marine Corps installation permitted to fly the national flag at night.

The Marine Corps Silent Drill Platoon then executes a 10 minute drill without verbal commands. The drill ends as the platoon forms a single line for inspection. The drill team inspector twirls and spins the fully operational M-1 rifle and tosses it back to the Marine. For the finale, the double inspection “mirror drill” is performed to perfection by two Marines.

The platoons pass in review before the evening’s honored guest. The colors are ceremonially retired and the officers dismissed. All lights are extinguished and silence falls over the parade grounds. A spotlight illuminates a lone bugler on the barracks roof. The Evening Parade is concluded as the bugler plays “Taps.”

The Camp Lejeune Consolidated Special Services Office is offering a bus trip to Washington, D.C. with a reservation included for the Evening Parade. The trip is scheduled for July 3 through 7. Reservations may be made by calling 451-3535 or 451-5398. For those planning a trip to Washington, D.C. before then, reservations for the Evening Parade can be made by calling (202) 455-6060.

Ship's bell rings true for the 'call to colors'

Editor's Note: The following article written by then Gunnery Sergeant Jack Holsomback was first published Dec. 5, 1974. It's being run to acquaint 1985 Marines with the history and tradition associated with the bell heard every morning here.

The USS Lejeune ship's bell.

Every weekday morning at Camp Lejeune, a ramrod straight Marine marches smartly to the Marine Corps Base Headquarters flagpole and signals "eight bells" on a large ship's bell mounted there.

What is now used as a "call to colors" at this East Coast Marine base was once used as a call to arms by two countries locked in massive conflict.

An examination of the 280-pound, 22-inch wide brass casting shows two inscriptions. Facing away from the pole is "USS Lejeune 1944" while inboard is the simple inscription "Windhuk."

The SS Windhuk (pronounced Vent Hook) was completed at Hamburg, Germany in 1936.

Shortly after her commissioning, the Windhuk was pressed into war service by Germany. Reportedly, she operated in the South Atlantic as a raider and supply ship. During her service with the Axis power, the ship's crew captured and sank allied merchant ships. In addition, she acted as a supply ship for the ill-fated Graf Spee and enemy submarines.

In December 1939, when the Graf Spee fled into Montevideo, the Windhuk sailed into a Brazilian port where she and the crew were interned. As with the Graf Spee, the Germans attempted to scuttle the ship. The Germans were unsuccessful in their attempt, but did manage to fill the turbines with concrete before capture.

The ship was purchased by the United States from Brazil in May 1942 for an undisclosed sum. The U.S. Navy went to work to make it ready for sea.

By February 1943, about 200 officers and men with a diesel engine and other essential equipment put the ship in working order and a journey from Rio de Janeiro to Norfolk, Va., through enemy submarine infested waters took 30 days.

Renamed after a former Commandant of the Marine Corps, General John A. Lejeune, the ship was given a hull number of AP-74 and commissioned as a transport of the Naval Transportation Service April 15, 1944. Her war service for America began June 15, 1944, when she left New York convoy for Glasgow, Scotland, transporting 4,400 Army passengers, slightly less than her capacity of 4,630. Later, the USS Lejeune was equipped to carry 5,100 men, which included the ship's company of 450 officers and men.

In July 1944, the ship carried what might be the largest number of people ever by transport across the Atlantic. The Lejeune sailed from New York for Glasgow with 207 officers and 4,307 Navy personnel as part of a program of controlling the continental seaports as they were taken by the allies.

No longer needed in the Atlantic, the USS Lejeune sailed for the Pacific theatre where she earned the Navy Occupation Service Medal—Pacific and the China Service Medal.

In all, she was reported to have carried over 100,000 troops before she was decommissioned February 1948.

Former base-Sergeant Major John Steely was instrumental in obtaining the ship's bell in late 1974.

Poisonous snakes present real hazard to Lejeune residents

Marines out in the field at Camp Lejeune and the surrounding areas know the woods are filled with hidden dangers.

One threat is the large snake population. Not all snakes are man's natural enemies, while others should be a surgeon general's warning. Snakes, too, serve their country by keeping the insect and rodent population in check. Identifying the poisonous varieties, however, can be beneficial to all.

Sergeant John S. McKie Jr., game protector, Marine Corps Base, said, "It's all in the eyes. Poisonous snakes have slit pupils, nonpoisonous snakes have round pupils." In order to identify one variety from another, one must be in close proximity to the reptile. "Stepping closer to observe a snake's eyes is not advisable," he said.

What should you do if you see a snake? "Stay calm, turn around or take a step backward," said Sgt. McKie. "You don't want to fool around with a snake." Snakes are territorial reptiles, which means they don't like trespassers invading their space. "A snake doesn't have to be provoked in order to bite. He may just get startled. His only defenses are to either away or to strike out," Sgt. McKie added.

Anyone unfortunate enough to have been bitten should follow these guidelines: stay calm, loosen the victim's clothing and transport him to a hospital immediately. "A physician will know what to do next, depending on the type of bite," Sgt. McKie said. "From personal experience in attending to bite victims, I know there are two kinds of venom. One is hemotoxic, affecting the blood. The other is neurotoxic, which affects the central nervous system.

"No one will die from a snake bite around here," he added. If bitten Lejeune residents can contact the game protectors for emergency help by calling 451-5266/2196. The Base Game Protectors will also remove a snake that may have gotten in a garage or basement.

Don't hesitate if you think you've been bitten, Sgt. McKie urged. "A snake doesn't always leave two fang marks. Some snakes don't even have fangs," he added.

The size of the snake won't effect the outcome of a bite. Sgt. McKie said, "Even a baby poisonous snake is dangerous." The size of the victim isn't relative either. It all depends on body chemistry.

"Also keep in mind the fact that some snakes prefer to climb trees," said Sgt. McKie. The timber rattler is one example; it lives in trees. Timber rattlers also happen to be one of the few neurotoxic snakes here.

A list of snakes common to the Eastern area are:

Poisonous	Nonpoisonous
Eastern Diamond-back rattlesnake	Black racer
Pigmy rattlesnake	Garter snake
Timber rattlesnake	Garden snake
Canebrake rattlesnake	Corn snake
Cottonmouth	Hog nosed snake
Coral snake
Copperhead

Eastern Diamondback Rattlesnake is not just another snake in the grass.

Raiders nip Cougars in championship game

Story and photos by Cpl. Phil Smith

Staggering defense was the key in the Division IV Soccer League championship at Brewster Junior High School May 18.

The Raiders from Marine Corps Air Station, New River, handed Camp Lejeune's Cougars a 2-1 defeat, regardless of frequent Cougar attempts at scoring.

Raider Winger Philip Flener scored early in the first period to give the Raiders the lead. The score stood fast throughout the second period.

Throughout the first half, Raider Goalie Duane Farley played in spite of a hand injury, but was replaced in the second half by back up goal tender Mike Livingston. Livingston repelled a bombardment of Cougar goal attempts in the third period, including a wide open shot by Phillip Landin whose kick was wide.

The final quarter began much the same with the Cougars spending a lot of time trying to penetrate the Raider rear defense. A crack was finally found in the opening minutes of the period with a well-placed corner kick by Kevin Gober to tie the score.

As if realizing the gravity of the situation, the Raiders attacked the Cougar side of the field, a rarity for the final three periods. This onslaught found Raider Dennis Kehoe one-on-one with the Cougar goalie with Kehoe coming out on top and giving the Raiders the winning goal.

For the season, the Cougars, from the Division IV American Conference, finished off the season with an unscathed 8-0 mark. The league counted the conference record toward playoff possibilities. The Cougars, with their 5-0 conference record, barely topped Jaws who finished the season with a conference tally of 4-1 with a 7-1 overall record having lost to the Cougars earlier in the season.

For the Raiders, a bigger spread existed between them and the second place team, the Cosmos. The Cosmos finished the season 5-3, three games behind the 8-0 Raiders.

The nip and tuck championship ended in sorrow for the Cougars.

According to Raider Coach Gunnery Sergeant Ve Schoenle, a more competitive championship game could not have been anticipated. "We met a new team," he said. "The Cougars are a well coached team and make worthy opponents."

Local pair takes second at judo championships

A Camp Lejeune major and a New River dependent wife judo team recently shone in the national spotlight when they captured second place at the U.S. Senior National Judo Championships.

Major Gloria E. Smith and Kathy Hahn form this 2-year-old team that has competed in Ju-no-kata, one of three major karate forms, for about 10 months.

Hahn is the wife of Staff Sergeant Michael Hahn of Headquarters and Maintenance Squadron 26, Marine Aircraft Group-26, Marine Corps Air Station, New River, while Smith is the commanding officer of Marine Corps Base's Headquarters Battalion's Bravo Company.

The karate team left Camp Lejeune and competed against five other premiere U.S. teams at Oakland Community College, Farmington Hills, Mich., April 25-27. The 29-year-old Marine Corps exchange visual merchandise officer and the base company commander said the competition they faced was tough.

Ju-no-kata, (translated means "forms of gentleness"), involves a number of martial arts techniques including throwing, choking and joint dislocations.

Unlike many forms of martial arts competition, the team did not battle other teams face-to-face. Instead, five judges stood around the mat and evaluated the performance of the various teams. "We follow a pre-planned form of self-defense movements," Smith said. "We keep the same roles of aggressors and defenders throughout the entire competition." The competition lasts between seven and eight minutes.

According to the kata experts, 15 different techniques are required during the competition. "Everything is done a certain way during the competition. For example, an arm hold has to be done by the book. You can't vary to the right or left."

Although the judges are very strict about how the competitors perform, Hahn says the Ju-no-kata participants are given a bit of leeway. "Everyone has their own style, but it's still the same thing," the Jacksonville, native said.

Exactly how strict judges critiqued the performance can best be demonstrated by the scores awarded the Ju-no-kata teams. The Smith-Hahn team earned 543 points out of a possible 750. The first-place team scored about 570.

Although the local team was the last duo to participate, they didn't pay too much attention to the other competitors. "We were the last couple to compete," Hahn said. "While everyone was competing we were on the side. But we weren't studying the other competition."

"You have to have very good concentration for this sport," Smith added. "So we looked at a couple of the competitors but we mainly concentrated on what we were going to do."

Teamwork plays a key role in this sport. "You have to work continuously at this sport," Smith said. "Your next move is a reaction to what the other person does."

The major plays the role of the aggressor while Hahn plays the role of the defender in this sport requiring a lot of grace. "The judges look at how well we flow through the different moves. It's hard to be graceful when you're falling," Hahn said.

Major Gloria Smith lifts Kathy Hahn during a practice session.

Teamwork requires a lot of practice. The Smith-Hahn team averages six hours each week during non-competition periods, and more than 10 hours a week just prior to competition.

Like other competitors, they aren't satisfied to rest on their past glories. The next big dream is the U.S. Nationals in Hawaii next year. But before that they will compete in the East Coast Invitational in Washington, D.C.

Legal Assistance Note

Are you having a dispute with your landlord?
Does the plumbing not work? Does the heater not work? Have any of the appliances stopped working? Is there anything wrong that makes your rented home less than what you are paying for?
When you need something done quickly call your landlord but always make a written note of the action you took and the action of the landlord. If too much time passes write a letter to the landlord. Either hand it to the landlord personally or send it certified mail return receipt requested.

Keep copies of all communication so that you have an accurate record of all the dealings with your landlord.
If you have written records and the problems becomes severe then a lawyer will be able to help you more easily and the judge is more likely to decide in your favor at small claims court.
