DEERS

Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System

Camp Lejeune Update

New policy affects Lejeune Marines, Sailors

Story by Sgt. Pamela Vajner

As of Oct. 1, retired military, their dependents and dependents of active duty Marines and Sailors not enrolled in the Defense Eligibility Enrollment Reporting System can potentially be denied non-emergency care at the Naval Hospital here.

THERE ARE SOME exceptions. Newborn claims will not be denied until one year after the date of birth. Sponsors are, however, encouraged to enroll newborns as soon as possible.

"To insure a dependent is entered into the system," said Lieutenant Kathy Whitaker, head of Patient Administration at the Naval Hospital, "a military sponsor should fill out a DD Form 1172 at his or her battalion personnel office." This form is the one used to obtain an ID card.

The responsibility for enrolling dependents into DEERS rests with the sponsor. All dependent children, regardless of age, must be registered into the system.

ANY TIME ELIGIBILITY for benefits cannot be verified, the individual must obtain a copy of the most recent DD Form 1172 from the sponsor's battalion personnel office. Lt. Whitaker also suggests that a copy be obtained when the sponsor is expected to leave the Continental United States soon or if the most recent DD Form 1172 was filed within the last 120 days.

The following are other exceptions to the denial policy:

Dependents who have become eligible within the previous 120 days. For instance, patients who recently married their sponsors, step-children, parents or parents-in-law who have recently been determined to be eligible.

New Identification Cards. Examples would be retired guardsmen and reservists, age 60, and their dependents.

Sponsors entering active duty status for more than 30 days. In this case, a copy of the active duty orders may be accepted for up to 120 days after the beginning of the active duty period.

Ineligibility due to an expired ID card. Care can be rendered in this situation if the patient has a ID card issued within the previous 120 days.

Emergency care. Care of this nature is a medical decision and will be determined by the criteria of the Naval Hospital.

Sponsor's duty stations outside the Continental United States. As long as the sponsor is on DEERS, dependents whose sponsor is assigned outside Continental United States will not be denied care.

Secretary of the Navy designees. The criteria by which these individuals will be treated will be indicated on the letter of designation.

Foreign military personnel. Foreign military personnel assigned via the Personnel Exchange Program or other means who are eligible through public law or other current directives will be treated after their eligibility in accordance with other directives is verified.

For more information on DEERS or the denial policy, call Lt. Whitaker or Senior Counselor Bennett at 451-4105/4159.

Assistance given to prospective voters

Story by Lt. j.g. Michael Anderson

"This company is taking steps to insure that our Marines are familiar with the issues and candidates of their various states," said Major Joseph Rogish, the executive officer of 2d Air, Naval Gunfire Liason Company.

LIEUTENANT JUNIOR GRADE Michael Anderson, 2d ANGLICO voting assistance officer, is compiling a file of information on the candidates and the various initiatives and referendums being voted on in each state. "Almost all state governments publish information pamphlets to assist the voters. These can be had by simply writing for them," he said.

The political parties are always anxious to publicize their candidates and are a ready source of information. The information, according to Lt. Anderson, will be filed by state and available to all members of the command.

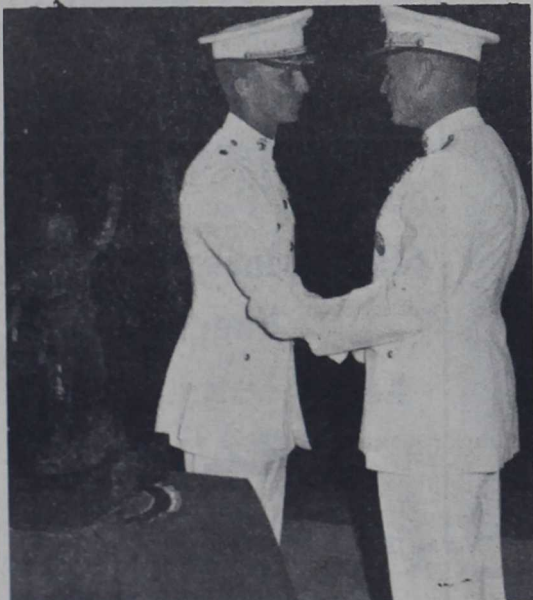

"It would be to great a burden for us to stock information on local candidates," said Lt. Anderson. "But the S-5 office will assist any member of the command to get such information."

THE TOTAL OF ANGLICO personnel requesting ballots is nearing 100 percent. The key to this progress has been command support. The ANGLICO company commander, Lieutenant Colonel James Lucey, has repeatedly stressed the importance of voting to his officers. "His emphasis has not been lost on the troops," said Lt. Anderson.

Utilizing the Federal Post Card Application form makes registration and voting a simple process, but one that must be accomplished quickly to insure enough time for request processing.

The enemies of America have long feared the power of the American military. With a turnout of military voters the politicians will be forced to pay attention.

Holiday advice

Some people believe the Golden Rule states, "Do unto others — before they have a chance to do unto you." You can see this attitude reflected on our highways every day with careless and reckless driving, driving while impaired, speeding and so on — and on — and on.

But the real Golden Rule simply states, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." To apply this to traffic laws:

- You want people to respect your right-of-way, so respect theirs.
 - You don't appreciate someone endangering your family by speeding or driving recklessly, so don't drive that way yourself.
 - You want other drivers to be sober and alert, not weaving all over the highway, so don't you drink and drive.
- And, make it click. Buckle up for safety this Columbus Day!

Savings

Clothing costs go down

by Sgt. Scot Jenkins

As Newton's theory, "What goes up, must go down," has held true for enlisted Marine's clothing costs in 1984.

EARLY EVERY ITEM of military clothing by Marines costs less since Oct. 1. This is the first year in a row that prices have been slashed, and Marines save money. The only items to increase Oct. 1 were men's khaki shirts, women's gloves, skirts and slacks.

The all-weather coat heads the men's list of items decreasing on cost. The coat costs $6.80 less. Other items decreased by more than $6 are the polyester coat which dropped $6.60, and the serge green coat which dropped to $62.43, down from $70.66.

Men's footwear also dropped in price. The combat boot costs $15.23, a cut in price of $2.71. Leather gloves plummeted more than 25 percent from last year's cost, to $10.02.

GREEN T-SHIRTS, REQUIRED to be owned by Marines in Fiscal Year 1985, cost $2.55 each. Marines will be required to have three green t-shirts and three white t-shirts. White t-shirts dropped two cents, costing $1.55 a piece. Women Marines will no longer be required to have white t-shirts, but will be required to have the green t-shirts. They will pay the same price as their male counterparts.

Another item where Marines will be able to save money is the camouflaged utilities. A set of new camouflaged utilities costs $27.81, down from $31.05.

WOMEN MARINES HAVE saved money on most items purchased after Sept. 30. Leading the reduced women's clothing items is the garrison cap which decreased in price by 50 percent. The cap costs $3.53, down from $7.07.

Although the majority of items will be less expensive for men and women, the price given to defray the cost of replacing items, known as monthly clothing allowances, will go up. Men and women will receive $9.30 a month for the basic rate (less than three years of service), and $13.20 for the standard rate. Men will receive the biggest boost in CMA — 60 cents. Women will get 30 cents extra a month.

Program provides support to crime victims

Staff Report

In a move designed to bring his command in line with federal legislation, Brigadier General Louis H. Buu, commanding general, Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N.C., has established a victim/witness assistance program, which is designed to assist victims and witnesses of offenses committed by service members at Marine Corps Base commands.

THE NEW BASE order, is in response to a presidential task force and subsequent federal legislation which acknowledged a need for increased awareness of the problems and concerns of crime victims.

According to Major Kent Smith, military justice at the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, Marine Corps Base, the objective of the new order is "to minimize, to the extent possible, the physical, psychological and financial hardships suffered by victims and witnesses of serious offenses."

The order defines a serious offense as one involving personal violence, or attempted or threatened personal violence for which the maximum sentence to confinement exceeds one year under the Uniform Code of Military Justice. Also considered a serious offense under the new order is one involving the damage, destruction or permanent loss of property valued in excess of $100.

MAJOR SMITH EMPHASIZED that, "It is the policy of this command that utmost care will be taken to ensure that victims and witnesses of serious offenses receive due consideration and are treated with dignity, courtesy and with minimum interference with their personal property rights." To ensure compliance with this policy, a mainstay of the new order is the appointment of a victim/witness liaison officer for each victim/witness identified under the order. This officer, who will be a judge advocate, will act as a point of contact through which victims and witnesses will obtain information and assistance in obtaining necessary services.

Victim/witness services include medical care, family/social services, legal assistance, victim/witness protection, financial assistance, the expeditious return of non-contraband property to owners, notification of creditors and employers to explain any financial hardship being experienced by a victim or witness and other administrative and logistical assistance for victims and witnesses.

The arrival of the new Light Armored Vehicle (LAV-25) brings the advent of the Marine Corps' quickest infantry strike capabilities in history.

HOME FOR THE LAV, the 2d Light Armored Vehicle Battalion, is the first of four Marine battalions which will eventually be manned by more than 4,000 Marines and Sailors and include almost 800 LAVs. Camp Lejeune's 2dLAVBn. will have more than 1,000 Marines and Sailors and more than 150 LAVs with eight different weapon variants.

What will the LAV do for the Marine Corps?

"It will do everything an infantry battalion can do — but at a higher rate of speed," said Sergeant Major David L. Hellums, battalion sergeant major, about the LAV and its crew.

THAT SEEMINGLY FANTASTIC claim is easier to understand with a closer inspection of the vehicle and its crew.

The minimum number of crew members which would man an LAV is three — a vehicle commander, driver and a gunner. Additionally, six more of the battalion's infantrymen can occupy the rear cargo of each LAV.

Crewmen on the LAV will be aided by a number of advanced weapons systems. Each of the three LAV operators will have at least one night vision aid, and in most cases, two different ones.

"IT (THE LAV Bn.) is the first motorized, self-contained, combined arms infantry force the Corps has fielded in modern times," said Lieutenant Colonel James G. Magee, battalion commander.

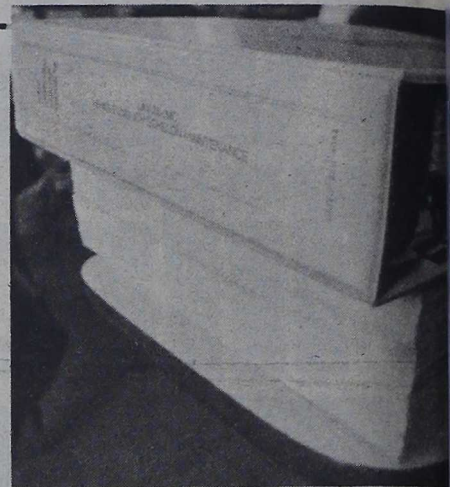

Vehicle mobility and speed gives the LAVBn. a powerful punch. A turbo charged diesel engine propels the vehicle in excess of 70 miles per hour. As a matter of fact, the vehicle is completely street legal, but you're unlikely to see it cruising down Lejeune Blvd.

"It is exceptionally mobile and very difficult to hit," LtCol. Magee said. "It can fire on the move up to 200 rounds per minute.

"IT CAN KILL, with impunity, armored vehicles out to 3,000 meters and is significantly effective outside the range of any Soviet infantry fighting vehicle," he continued.

An LAV also has limited amphibious capabilities, according to LtCol. Magee.

"The LAV can enter the water at 30 miles per hour and can fire while afloat. It can move in the water at 6.5 knots," he said. "While the LAV has an amphibious capability, it is not fully amphibious and is not likely to be employed in a ship-to-shore mode in rough surf conditions."

Volumes of information are being taught to Armored Vehicle crewmen before the crew the LAVs out to the field.

WHILE IN THE water, two propellers with crewmembers maneuver the vehicle through the water.

On land it moves on eight rubber tires. The use of rubber tires on a combat vehicle may seem like a mistake, but it's not. The tires are "bullet-proof." An LAV can operate with all its tires shot out. It is capable of moving more than 100 miles with its tires shot out and has tire capability in each vehicle.

There are a number of LAV "variants" which the Marine Corps will eventually own. First variant is the LAV-25, which the Corps already has. It has a .25mm chain gun and will have 7.62mm guns as well.

OTHER VARIANTS INCLUDE a command and control vehicle, a mortar carrier, a defense vehicle and an assault gun vehicle.

The vehicles will be mounted with either 75-105mm main cannons, Stinger missiles, TOW missiles, smoke grenade launchers and supplementary weapons as well.

One of the most critical and finest assets of the LAV is its crew.

ON ONE VEHICLE, belonging to 2d Platoon, Bravo Company, are three crewmembers who exemplify the type of Marines in the battalion.

Sergeant Greg M. Kunkel is the vehicle commander, Corporal Edward S. Lemos is the driver and Private Todd M. Smith is the vehicle gunner.

"I am responsible for deploying my two teams and maneuvering the vehicle," Sgt. Kunkel said. Sgt. Kunkel is one of the battalion's owners, entering the battalion in March after with the 2d Battalion, 6th Marine Regiment.

CORPORAL LEMOS WHO came from Marine Barracks, Naval Air Station Moffett Field, California, is excited about his role as a gunner.

"The firepower of the LAV is devastating," said. "The gun's trigger moves like a joystick 'Tron' game. Wherever I turn the trigger the wheel will move. I'm anxious to get to test it."

The youngest Marine on the crew, Pvt. Smith, recently graduated from Infantry Training School.

"THE MOST I'VE done so far is to start testing the LAV up," he said. "I'm really looking forward to road testing it after new equipment training instruction."

Currently, the battalion is under maintenance training. Technical representatives from General Motors, manufacturer of the vehicle, are teaching battalion Marines all of the intricacies of the vehicle.

Later this month battalion Marines will be road testing the vehicles during operator training.

AS NEW AS the LAV is, tactics for the vehicle and crew are still being written. But with the help of the battalion's technical representatives, the Marines of the 2d Light Armored Vehicle Battalion that book will soon be written.

Education office introduces new college program

Story by Sgt. Scot Jenkins

Lance Corporal Sam Jones is an infantryman and his platoon has been training pretty hard. Often he has been deployed in the field for a few weeks at a time. One of the reasons Jones joined the Marine Corps was because he wanted to get some college, while holding onto a pretty good-paying job.

JONES HAS A pretty good-paying job, but his educational dream has fizzled.

This is a fictitious scenario, but for many 2d Marine Division Leathernecks desiring a college career it has been a reality. The 2d Marine Division Education Office staff has shared the concerns of Division Marines desiring to continue their education and has devised a program to help Marines receive an education, while continuing their training commitments.

A new education program geared specifically for deployable Marines has been unveiled by the 2d Marine Division Education Office. According to Major Tony Ciotti, division education officer, two general studies courses will be offered during the pilot program period which begins Oct. 19.

THE DIVISION EDUCATION Office contacted the Coastal Carolina Community College in Jacksonville to see if it was possible to work out some program agreeable to the needs of both organizations.

Major Ciotti gave a lot of credit to getting the program off the ground to Dr. Francis Gaines, Dean of College Transfer Education for CCCC. "He's the one that got the program off the floor for us," Maj. Ciotti said. "I told him basically what we were looking for. These courses are designed to get college credits in the shortest time possible."

According to Maj. Ciotti, colleges require students get a minimum number of hours per course. For example, 55 hours of course instruction are required for a five-quarter hour credit. Thirty hours of course instruction are required for three-quarter hours of credit.

THIS PROGRAM CUTS down what normally takes students three months to complete. Now students can complete the course in four weeks. But there are restrictions on the course. The courses are offered only on Friday and Saturday, and students can only take one of these courses at a time.

The courses will require students to attend classes on Friday from 6-9 p.m., and on Saturday from 9 to noon, and from 1 to 4 p.m.

Major Ciotti believes Marines can complete eight to 10 courses in a year under this pilot program. "There is no reason why a Marine who is serious about his education can't get some sort of degree from here, even if he is deployed to the Mediterranean two times during his three years here," Maj. Ciotti said.

THE COURSES OFFERED will be general studies courses. According to Maj. Ciotti, the education office is trying to build up a foundation of courses that can be used to earn a degree or be used to transfer over to another school. "We are looking to get the Marines, that is the non-rated Marines, NCOs (Noncommissioned Officers) and Staff NCOs," Maj. Ciotti said.

People interested in taking the English course must take a placement test prior to beginning the course. According to Maj Ciotti, the test lasts only about 40 minutes at most, and can be completed during pre-registration. No placement test is required to take the history course. Also, CCCC permits new students under this pilot program to take the first 12 credit hours in special courses. In other words, according to Maj. Ciotti, CCCC doesn't require a high school diploma for these courses. Once the 12 hours are met, then a high school diploma must be presented as a prerequisite for future courses.

Besides being able to complete college courses at a minimum amount of time, Marines can take these courses at a very small cost. Marines and their families can pay in-state North Carolina rates. A three-hour course will cost $12.75. Out of that the government pays 75 percent of the amount for corporals and below, and for people with more than 14 years of active duty service. Sergeants and above with less than 14 years service pay only 10 percent of the total cost.

WHAT THIS TRANSLATES to in real cost a lance corporal taking a three-hour course will pay $3.21. The government picks up the other $9.21 under the tuition assistance program. A sergeant would pay $1.29. "The cost is unbelievable," Maj. Ciotti said. "It's fantastic. That's only pocket change. It's a great deal."

Major Ciotti advises individuals planning to register for courses to bring approximately $10 with them, because course books must be purchased at the time of pre-registering.

Pre-registration will be held in Bldg. 63, C-9-11, according to the major.

Major Ciotti is unsure what the limit on students will be. "We'll handle as many as we can," he said. "I think it's going to be a dynamite course, particularly for Division Marines. If we get as many students as I think we are going to, the sky's the limit for future course offerings. Had it been available when I got out of the Corps in 1964 as a sergeant, I would have jumped on the bandwagon. I don't know how far I would have gone. I would have gotten out."

For more information, call the Division Education Office at 451-1051 or 1382.

Hurricane

Marines claim control over Diana's fury

Story and photos by Cpl. Paul Younghaus

The havoc Hurricane Diana wreaked on North Carolina left a path of destruction which threatened to cripple many county governments for good. But, with the assistance of 34 Marines one Currituck County will be back to normal long before anticipated.

THE WORD "BOLIVIA" may evoke images of a South American coffee plantation, but it is the county seat of Brunswick County — hard-hit county on the Carolina coastline. Marines from the Alpha Company, 2d Combat Engineer Battalion and 8th Engineer Support Battalion and a civilian employee from Marine Corps Base converged on Brunswick County last week to help the county get back to normal.

"The initial request for assistance came from U.S. Congressman Charlie Rose on behalf of Brunswick County," said John B. Harvy, assistant county manager for Brunswick County. "The Marines are being used with the county's solid waste collection effort to clean up around 260 temporary dumpsites in the county."

Mountains of tree limbs and other debris piled so high around these trash collection points that county workers were unable to dump the trash into the bins.

"THE WORK THE Marines are doing is of tremendous value," Harvy said. "I would say already in this short time it has saved many days and perhaps man-weeks of use of labor and equipment."

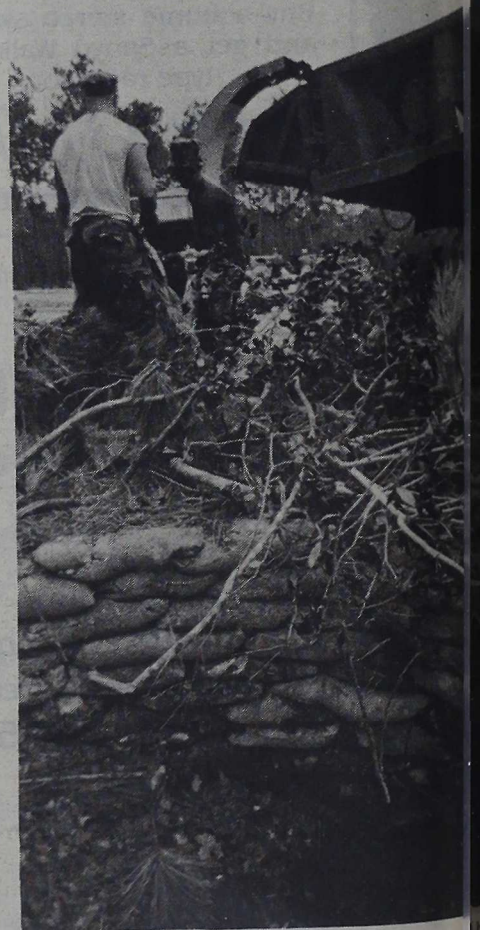

"These guys have done one hell of a job," said Major White, Brunswick County landfill director. "It would have taken us six months to do all Spreading shredded debris in the back of a pickup was an important job for Lance Corporal Rondal D. Fitzwater.

Dump truck drivers remained busy moving all of the debris piled up by Hurricane Diana.

Piles of limbs and fallen trees were cleaned up by Lejeune Marines in Diana-plagued North Carolina.

Ming molehills out of mountains was one task Staff Sergeant Brian Borton (L) and Lance Corporal Alan T. Light did with ease as they shred fallen limbs near the Brunswick County buildings.

Corporal Duan L. Kuykendall, 8th Engineer Support Battalion, stacks fallen pine trees to ease their removal.

...p, but with the help of the Marines, we'll be
...o normal operations in eight to ten days."
...ve really appreciate this," said R. C. Dixon,
...Brunswick County's supervisor of buildings and
...grcs. "These Marines will do more in a day
...than we would do in a week."

WE'VE CLEANED UP a lot of limbs, debris
...parts of houses," said First Lieutenant Michael
...D. Woodward, executive officer, Co. A, 2d Com-
...battalion. "The county couldn't get to the ...debris, they're just too overloaded."
...according to 1st Lt. Woodward, county managers
...originally expected the Marines to take ten days to complete assigned tasks, but it took less than five.

Damage to Brunswick County, according to Harvy, was extensive. In the 14 hours the storm's eye wobbled through Brunswick county, very few functions of county government were untouched.

"WE ARE STILL receiving damage reports," Harvy said. "I found out just yesterday that the top of one of our water tanks had been blown off — we hadn't even received that report."

The Marines finished work and returned to Camp Lejeune Oct. 3, after only five days of cleanup.

Headquarters and Service Battalion Marines provide back-up for Fort Bragg exercise

Headquarters and Service Battalion, 2d Force Service Support Group, Leathernecks kick up dust in route to the defensive position.

Story and photos by Cpl. Phil Smith

The need was two-fold.

THE SCENARIO FOR Combat Service Support Detachment-23 involved the Warsaw Pact infantry's imminent attack which had already broken through the lines of 2d Marine Division units operating in the area. Such an attack would greatly hinder the CSSD's mission of supporting the artillerymen of the 10th Marine Regiment forcements were needed to beef up the com port unit's thinly manned defenses.

For Headquarters and Service Battalion Force Service Support Group, a break was from the Leathernecks' usual duties, of removed from the battlefield.

The compromise was a weekend in the Fort Bragg, N.C. for the group battalion struction and practical application in com tics, while the unit served as a reaction force force the CSSD perimeter.

CAPTAIN CARL KUSCH, H&S Bn's tions officer of the 130 Marines who spe days at the Army base, said that the value ing received would be advantageous.

The combat scenario was a success, acco the captain. "We were able to reinfo perimeter in time and send the enemy away," he said.

"We're getting back to the principle h every Marine is a rifleman," he added. "M these Marines get very little field time, if a we're designing this training to give them a understanding of defensive tactics."

ASIDE FROM INSTRUCTION in fighting holes and providing perimeter secu Marines, whose usual jobs range from ce specialists to legal clerks, got "hands on" in throwing grenades, firing both the M-16 M-60 machinegun and live fire and movem

"I loved it," said Private First Clas Miller from Headquarters and Service Co "I almost didn't make the hump after wa there (Fort Bragg) but when I did, it really f accomplished something." PFC Miller's favorite part of the training, which was ec many other members of the battalion, was f machinegun.

Repairing, maintaining engineer optical equipment, fire control instruments

Editor's Note: This is the second article in a four-part series on the Ordnance Maintenance Company, 2d Force Service Support Group.

Story and photos by LCpl. D. K. Holl

Ready . . . Aim . . . Fire . . . three basic steps in weaponry that we've all heard since childhood. But like anything else, there's a great deal more to it.

OF THE 26 military occupational specialties that make up the Ordnance Maintenance Company, Maintenance Battalion, 2d Force Service Support Group, it's the optical instrument repairer and electro-optical equipment technician that works to keep the sights "on target."

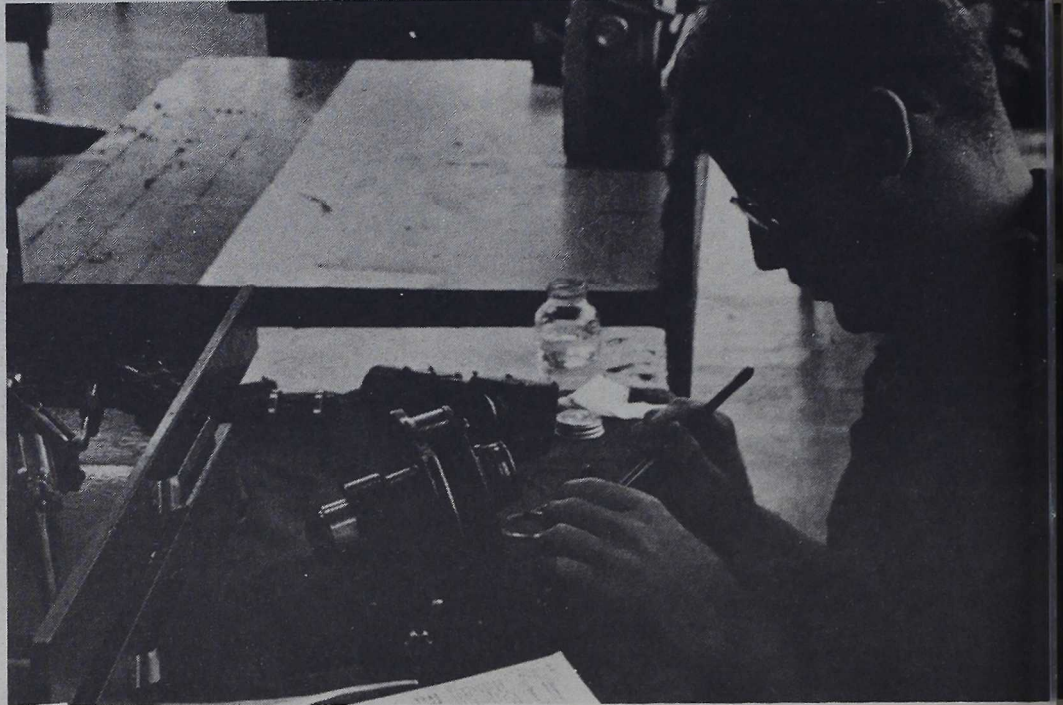

2d FSSG

Inspecting, maintaining and repairing fire control instruments, and making minor repairs and adjustments to engineer optical equipment requires refined, intricate work.

While many times the equipment can be repaired by the contact teams in the field, preventive maintenance in garrison plays a major role in keeping the laser range-finders, night observation devices, infrared periscopes and panoramic telescopes in proper working order, according to Master Sergeant Patrick F. Derengowski, superintendent, Ordnance Maintenance Co.

"DISASSEMBLING, CLEANING, replacing the lens, calibrating the sights, testing the equipment is all part of the job," the master sergeant. "The Marines always their time to do the job right." When their mission is accomplished, and the equipment is in proper working order, "there should be a perfect every time," he added.

Corporal Dean R. Cummins, Optics Section, Ordnance Maintenance Company, cleans and adjusts an optical telescope.

Commandant testfires new weapons

Story by WO Bill Henderson

Photos by Sgt. T. K. Burch

MCDEC, QUANTICO, VA.—Commandant of the Marine Corps General P. X. Kelley, test fired a variety of new battalion and company level weapons here Aug. 2, and he liked what he saw.

"Without a doubt," the commandant said, "these weapons are the finest in the world." And speaking specifically of the new M-16A2, he said, "There is none finer. I am confident that we now have a rifle that can do the job."

General Kelley fired the M-16A2 and several variations of the M-16A2 carbine. He also fired the M-40A1 "sniper rifle," shooting — and hitting — a five-gallon bucket at more than 800 yards. Other weapons he fired include the Squad Automatic Weapon, the M-60E machinegun, the MK-19 40mm heavy machinegun and the Shoulder-Launched Multipurpose Assault Weapon — "bunker buster" — with which the commandant leveled a timber-reinforced, sandbag bunker with one round.

THE COMMANDANT COMMENTED that this new weaponry, in the hands of the streamlined infantry battalion, represents a 25 percent firepower increase over the old battalion with its standard issue of weapons.

Although he spread his time equally among the various weapons, for the commandant, the real highlight of the afternoon came when he tested the M-16A2 rifle. General Kelley came away impressed and satisfied with both the quickness of the rifle in a close combat situation and the long-range accuracy that it possesses.

Commandant of the Marine Corps General P.X. Kelley, takes aim with the M16A2 rifle at Quantico,

With its stiffer barrel and more tightly twisting riflings — now one full twist per seven inches of barrel as opposed to the M-16A1 with one full twist per 12 inches — and with the new M855 ammo and its 62 grain bullets, replacing the M193 ammo with its 55 grain bullets, the M-16A2 now boasts a maximum effective range of 875 yards. Even with the M193 ammo it remains effective out to 503 yards—nearly 200 yards ahead of the M-16A1.

THE COMMANDANT WAS able to shoot quickly and accurately at close-range targets as well as cleanly strike targets that were 500 and 600 yards away.

The commandant agreed that Marines traditionally have been reluctant to give up their combat proven rifles for newer ones. From the days that the 1903 Springfield moved aside for the M-1, when the M-1 stepped aside for the M-14, Marines have accepted each new design with caution.

The M-14 is such a proven and well-respected weapon today that military marksmen still use it the "match" rifle in the Competition-in-Arms program among the U.S. armed forces.

THE MOVE FROM the M-14 to the M-16 was traumatic one for many Marines. They liked the M-14's solid feel and long-range accuracy. It was easy to adjust for elevation and wind, both controlled at the rear sight.

The M-16 was only good for 300 yards and to a nail or a bullet to adjust its elevation, and a Marine had to take the weapon out of his shoulder to add elevation or take it off because of its location.

front sightpost. Marines who knew the M-14 had to have it back. Today, many of those Marines are excited about the M-16A2 because it offers many of the features they lost with the M-14, plus it keeps many of the positive features of the M-16, such as its compactness and light weight.

GENERAL KELLEY SAID that the changes in the rifle and the heavier bullet "very definitely will make a great difference for the Marine marksman." He said Marines will not be disappointed in their expectations of this new rifle. The commandant said, "This is a rifle designed for Marines. It is a Marine Corps rifle. Nobody knows better about what Marines need than Marines."

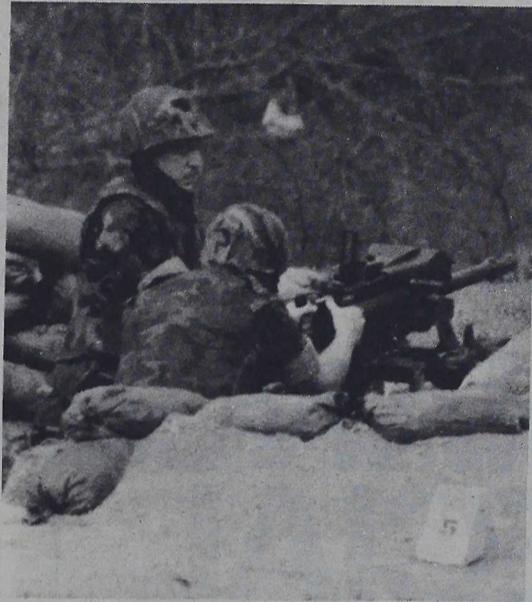

"We now have a rifle to replace the M-16A1. Appreciation goes to those Marines who designed this rifle (the M-16A2). We all owe them a great deal of gratitude," he added.

THOSE MARINES WHO received the commandant's praise are mostly located at Weapons Training Battalion, here. It was their engineering input that created the improved rifle.

Those improvements, along with the improved barrel and tighter riflings, include: a longer stock, sight adjustments for both wind and elevation, a magazine deflector for left-hand shooters, a suppressor which reduces muzzle climb and eliminates dust dispersion in the prone position. The rifle features a more comfortable pistol grip and a round handguard that has an improved deflector, plus it has greater grip control and it is interchangeable on either side of the barrel. Also, the buttstock, pistol grip and handguard are made of a new and significantly more impact-resistant material.

After firing the new rifle, the commandant said he felt "absolutely sure" the feeling of confidence that Marines had with the M-14 can return with the M-16A2.

General P. X. Kelley fires the MK-19 40mm heavy machinegun at a Quantico, Va., range.

FOR MARINES, THE M-16A2 is one step closer to the ideal weapon.

The ideal weapon, as a Marine might see it, is a rifle possessing a high-speed nature to make it effective in a run-and-shoot raid, while at the same time possessing long-range accuracy for "nailing" targets at respectable distance. For General Kelley, the M-16A2 represents a substantial step in that direction.

He said, "This rifle combines all the best features of a light-weight, portable weapon, yet with the capability of reaching targets at 800 meters, normally found in much heavier rifles. This weapon has all the best, and in my mind, with the range and accuracy, it is the best rifle on any battlefield in the world."

ALTHOUGH, IN THE beginning phases of development of the M-16A2, the commandant admitted that he had some concern about limiting Marines to three-round bursts. He said, "I am now confident that it (three-round bursts) is the right thing to do. Besides, if it doesn't work well, it is a very easy change to make these rifles fully automatic."

He explained that tests have shown that after the second round is fired on fully automatic weapons, such as the M-16A1, the bullet strike is usually off the target completely.

The bottom line for General Kelley, though, was that this rifle will make the greatest difference for those who count most — the Marines in the trenches who will use it to fight and win.

Celebrating the discovery of America

Story by Sgt. Pamela Vajner

Although the nation will observe Columbus Day on Oct. 8, Oct. 12, 1942 was the much celebrated day of discovery for the new lands.

THE STORY OF Christopher Columbus and his explorations is a favorite story of children. It has a bit of everything; action, adventure, heroism, the sea, fueding and finally, a happy ending.

The United States is not the only country that observes the holiday. A variety of celebrations are held in Central and South America and in parts of Canada. In Spain and Italy, the day is marked with processions and church services.

According to scholars, Christopher Columbus was born in 1451 in Genoa, Italy. His father, Domenico Colombo, was a wool weaver and a one-time tavern keeper. As a youth, Columbus worked at wool weaving with his father, but his love for the sea and longing for its adventures became an obsession.

YOUNG COLUMBUS' FAVORITE stories were those that Marco Polo brought back from his adventures in the Far East. Each story made him more determined that some day he would take the same course.

Because of the stories he heard about Marco Polo and other explorers and navigators, he became convinced that the world was round — a disputed idea in those days.

Columbus presented his plan of traveling to India to King John II of Portugal, Henry VII of England and to the city of Genoa. All refused him assistance.

ALTHOUGH KING FERDINAND and Queen Isabella of Spain agreed to help Columbus, it took from the spring of 1486 until April 1492 before the terms of the voyage were agreed upon.

One of the settlements was that Columbus would be called the "Admiral of All the Ocean Seas."

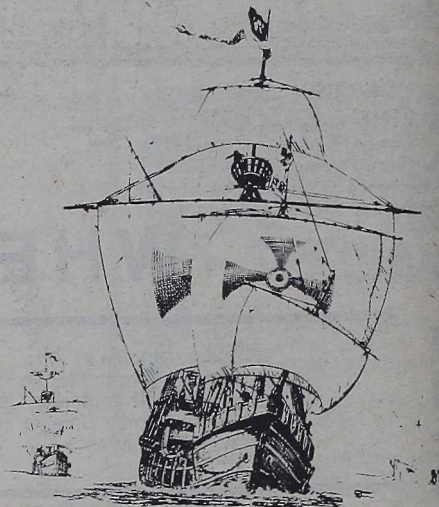

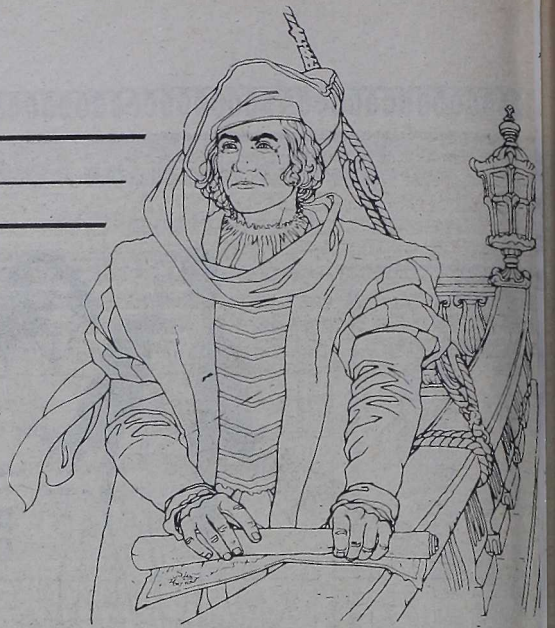

The names of the three ships Columbus was given for the expedition are engraved in the hearts of the young and old alike. The Nina, the Pinta, the flagship Santa Maria and the 129-member party set sail" Aug. 3, 1492.

DAYS PASSED SLOWLY, with weeks of stormy weather and no land in sight, the crew became restless and mutinous. The discovery of America happened just before dawn, Oct. 12, 1492, when the lookout cried, "Tierra, Tierra."

Because of a short geography book by Martin Waldensemuller, Columbus missed the deserved honor of having the new lands named after him. The discovery, instead, was attributed to an Italian explorer by the name of Amerigo Vespucci.

The first ship to circumnavigate the world, streets, towns, magazines and organizations bear his name. And justly, the capital of our nation was named Washington, District of Columbia.

FOR IT WAS because of Columbus that many people of different nations, cultures and heritages have joined together through the years. Indeed this proves to all that we are the United States!

Marine Corps Base personnel will follow normal holiday routine. 2d Marine Division and 2d Force Service Support Group will be off from noon, Oct. 5 to noon Oct. 9.

Fire!

Lejeune firefighters train at new facility

Story by Sgt. C. J. Edwards

Last year, $174,000 went up in smoke. AFTER EIGHT YEARS and $140,000, Camp Lejeune's firefighters have a new training facility; one which will help firefighters better prepare for the angry flames of an uncontrolled fire.

"The new facility was built because we had literally burned up the old equipment," Base Fire Chief Elmer Padgett explained. "Besides, the old drill tower was only three stories high and outdated, while the new one is a modern, five-story structure.

"We are the only Marine Corps activity that has this type of training facility," the chief said proudly. "We've already used some portions of the facility, but since it has only been completed for two weeks, we haven't had the chance to use it all."

THE NEW FIRE Training Area is located off Sneads Ferry Road and contains facilities for four separate training evolutions.

"The flammable liquids pit is used for live-fire training," began Padgett. "We use this station in conjunction with Bulk Fuel Company, 2d Force Service Support Group, and to simulate the type of fires we would see with flammable liquids such as helicopter crashes.

"The second station has a two-fold mission," he said. "The drafting facility not only tests our drivers, but the pumpers as well.

"THE SMOKEHOUSE TRAINS firefighters in search and rescue techniques and firefighting methods," he added.

"The five-story drill tower provides sprinkler training and high-rise rescue and firefighting tactics," the chief concluded.

Camp Lejeune's 109 firefighters must log a minimum of 26,350 hours of training a year.

THEY RESPOND TO 2,300-2,500 alarms a year. Approximately 288 of those are false alarms.

"False alarms hurt in more ways than one. The fact that each false alarm costs $450 is nothing compared with the fact that the people in the building stop responding quickly to the alarms after they have heard them too many times," the chief stressed.

Nine years have passed without the loss of life. Padgett attributes this to the improved training and smoke detectors.

"FORTY PERCENT OF the fires on Camp Lejeune occur in quarters. All base housing areas now have smoke detectors and I feel that detectors greatly reduce the loss of life," Padgett emphasized. "It is important to remember, though, that smoke detectors do not put out fires — they just save lives."

At least two of Camp Lejeune's fire companies respond to every alarm around the clock. Their quick response, expertise and fire safety education program have helped to reduce the money lost to fire. According to Padgett, at the end of the third quarter of Fiscal Year 1984 the amount of money consumed by fire damage is less than half of the total for all of FY '83.

As Camp Lejeune celebrates Fire Prevention Week with a growing awareness of fire hazards, increased fire safety will reduce the senseless waste of lives and property.

Fire Prevention Week

Seven days to 'learn not to burn';
follow these tips all year round

by LCpl. R. Germain

When smoke billowing out of the kitchen window, firefighters rush to control the raging flames that threaten to engulf the entire house. Storming in through the back door, the firefighters release powerful streams of water from their hoses until the fire is finally extinguished. The source of this is the kitchen stove.

THOUGH THE SCENARIO is fictitious, it is a true-to-life concern of the Camp Lejeune Base Fire Department.

During "Fire Prevention Week" Oct. 7-13, the Protection Division firefighters will be speaking and giving demonstrations emphasizing this theme, "Join The Fire Prevention Team. Don't Burn." "This year in particular," said Base Fire Chief Elmer Padgett, "Camp Lejeune is stressing 'Put a lid on grease fires'."

"Last year we had more than 100 damage fires, of those, 40 percent were in government quarters. Half that amount were unattended cooking fires," said Padgett, "so we're trying hard to reduce the amount of cooking fires on base."

BECAUSE THESE FIRES occur so often in government quarters, Padgett has listed some main distractions to people while cooking:

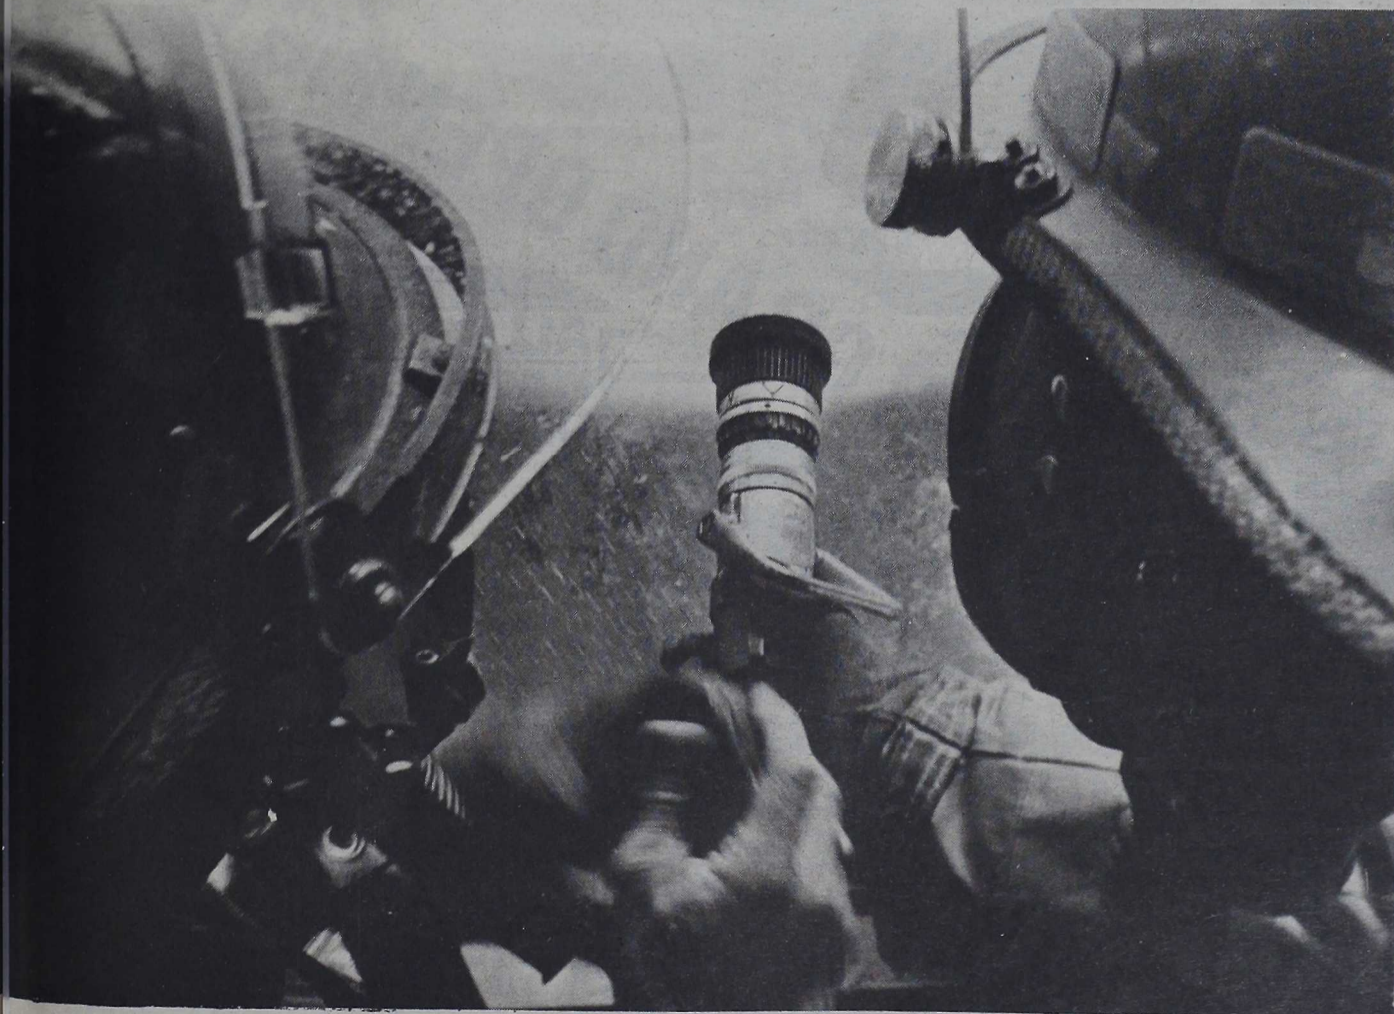

- 1 - answering the telephone,
- 2 - watching the children - the baby crying,
- 3 - going out to talk to neighbors, and
- 4 - trying to do too many things

"There are many things that can distract your attention while cooking," said Padgett, "but remember, unattended cooking fires are always your fault, and you are responsible."

The Base Fire Department has a list of tips that will help in fire prevention throughout the year:

- 1 - Don't leave fires unattended.
- 2 - Don't leave matches where children can get to them.
- 3 - Don't put pennies behind fuses.
- 4 - Don't put oily rags or paint in closets or closed places.
- 5 - Don't forget to call the fire department for fires and rescue equipment.
- 6 - Don't smoke in bed.
- 7 - Don't clean with gas or flammable liquids.
- 8 - Replace worn or frayed electric cords.
- 9 - Good housekeeping is your best fire prevention.
- 10 - Never leave cooking stoves unattended while in use.

According to Padgett, "Each year we recognize Fire Prevention Week, but fire prevention is a year-round thing."

THEY CAME IN PEACE

BEIRUT MEMORIAL Jacksonville—Camp Lejeune North Carolina

A Memorial to remind all free men everywhere of those who are always ready to protect the freedoms that we all enjoy.

On Sunday morning, the 23rd of October 1983, we awakened to the shock and horror of the bomb blast in Beirut and realized that we had been forgetful for too long. However, in Jacksonville, North Carolina we would not forget again. We immediately started to work on what has become known as the Beirut Memorial Project and hopefully on 21 October 1984 we will dedicate this memorial and by so doing we will not only honor the 262 men who have given their lives in Lebanon but also all servicemen who have given their lives for their country at all times and in particular this time.

This project actually is a two phase project and on 18 March 1984 we completed phase one which was the planting of a Bradford pear tree in the median of Lejeune Blvd. for each marine, sailor and soldier who gave his life in Lebanon and for the three marine pilots who were killed in Grenada.

Phase two is now underway and we are constructing a memorial park in a beautiful piece of forest donated by the Marine Corps beside Lejeune Blvd. at the Camp Johnson entrance in Jacksonville. This memorial has been planned in a dogwood and oak forest with the assistance of the School of Design of North Carolina State University. It is a design of our epoch and is representative of the needs and desires of the later fourth of the twentieth century. It is a quiet memorial of tall trees, brown North Carolina brick, white Carolina granite, winding ten foot wide paths covering the hill contours of the site, indigenous planting in a natural setting where families, friends and future generations can go and visit, be at peace with themselves and with their memories. It is a place of great symbolism, containing a granite wall with the names etched for eternity for those who have died and another wall stating why this area has been constructed, a large patio for gathering, two flag poles that are lighted at night, and a lifesize bronze statue of a Marine on a platform between the two jagged ends of the walls visiting his friends and remembering.

It is to be constructed of native North Carolina material because all of the men who were killed were stationed in North Carolina and were in fact a part of the old North State. It is a place of granite benches surrounding a large brick paved gathering area for ceremonies. It is a part of our history and something of which we can all be proud.

We would like to ask you to help us with this project, either as an individual, group, office, organization, or company. Since much of the Memorial is constructed out of brown (the color of fallen leaves) brick we would like to ask you to purchase some of these bricks at $1.00 each.

Come one, come all, the call is sounded for area officer's wives to lend a helping hand

Story by Phyl O'Neal
Community News Reporter

The enthusiasm and hospitality of Camp Lejeune's Officer's Wives all but erased the memory of Diana's near visit as they kicked off their OWC Sign-Up Coffee at Marston Pavilion Sept. 30.

IT WAS AN opportunity to meet new friends, renew friendships and find out about OWC's interesting and entertaining programs.

Officer's Wives who were newly arrived or had not signed up earlier were given a warm welcome and a wealth of information to help them feel confident in their new surroundings.

A festive air prevailed as OWC's newest members were greeted by a multitude of hostesses who had set up tables for the occasion.

BALLOONS DRIFTED AIMLESSLY, tugging lightly at their strings, as each wife sought out her own favorite project and pastime among the many displays.

Nearby, OWC's Honorary President Georgia Buehl, the wife of Brigadier General Louis H. Buehl, was being interviewed beneath the spreading branches of a tree.

The Camp Lejeune Officer's Wives' Club is governed by an executive board under which there are five smaller groups composed of wives whose husbands are in the same company.

EACH GROUP IS headed by its own board and consists of several coffee groups which are the backbone of the OWC organization.

The five major groups of the OWC include: Group I - Base/Naval Hospital; Group II - Division Staff/10th Marine Regiment; Group III - 2d, 6th, and 8th Marine Regiments; Group IV - 2d Force Service Support Group; and Group V - 6th Marine Amphibious Brigade.

The OWC promotes and sponsors community, charitable, welfare and cultural activities and publishes a monthly newsletter.

NEW MEMBERS ARE interested in opportunities for educational advancement and social functions.

They are encouraged to become involved in civic and charitable work — a pursuit that brings intrinsic reward to the volunteer who serves the needs of the community.

Officer's Wives Club members volunteer their time, individually or collectively, to Navy Relief Society, American Red Cross and community projects.

THE OWC GARDEN Club sponsors plant sales in the fall and spring. The proceeds are used for horticultural scholarships.

Hidden Talents, which is a profit handcraft consignment store, also contributes to the OWC ship fund.

The Camp Lejeune Officer's Wives' Club sponsors a child care facility known as the Paradise Sitting Service for members, a members and other specified projects.

AT THIS YEAR'S Sign-Up, the Camp Lejeune Wives were asked to announce that during the past year, over 80 OWC members had donated 360 dozen (or 4,320) cookies to the Red Cross.

"Cookie Call" is a weekly event that brings a boost to the morale of hospital patients and calls for the mailing and distribution of 24 cookies.

The OWC's welfare projects include Cookie Call, USO Canteen, Red Cross Ditty Bags, Navy Relief Society, fruit baskets for hospital patients and a luncheon at Coast Guard Hospital.

IT WAS OVER as quickly as it began. Busy wives cleared tables and left the pavilion as they had for so many years.

The buzz of conversation cleared parking lots emptied and dispersed to a variety of destinations. After all — these are busy

Maint Bn. to 6th Marines 28-26 contest

Story and photos by Sgt. Scot Jenkins

Second Maintenance Battalion pulled a come-from-behind, 28-26, victory over the 6th Marine Regiment team, Sept. 26, at Harrington Field. The game included everything from touchdown passes and runs, interception recoveries and an on-side kick.

THE DIVISION LEATHERNECKS dominated the first half, taking an 18-0 lead. However, an undaunted 2d Marine Regiment force, now boasting a 2-1 record in League play, stormed the second half for Although 6th Marines appeared jolted in the second half, their defense at first was capable of stopping Maintenance touchdowns. Twice, the group of Marines came within the goal line only to be stopped just inches short of the score.

Despite these setbacks, 2d Marine Regiment powered ahead and scored. Earlier, 6th Marine Regiment Corporal John F. Robinson crossed the goal line late in the first quarter to give the 6th Marines a 6-0 lead.

IN THE SECOND period, quarterback Corporal George McCallister threw to Corporal Gilham a hard 17-yard pass to give the 6th Marines a 12-0 lead. Near the end of the first half, Callister stirred some excitement when he threw a 60-yard bomb to Corporal Michael Hartman, two yards from the goal line. Gilham scored the second touchdown of the game, boosting the 6th Marines halftime lead to 18-0.

one event marred an otherwise good half. Maintenance's Bryan and 6th Marine's Lance Corral F. Charette were ejected from the game during the first half.

In the second half unfolded, Maintenance's defense looked different. Coach, Sergeant Mark Ser-shin brought in his first-string defense. During the first half, Maintenance had used its second-string defense.

At first, it appeared this strategic move would be a disaster for the FSSG team. Earlier in the game, Maintenance's Martin began catching passes to move the ball down field. Staff Sergeant John Ser-shin carried the ball up the middle on a quarterback pass for Maintenance's first score. Lance Corral Kelley booted the extra point and the game trailed, 18-7.

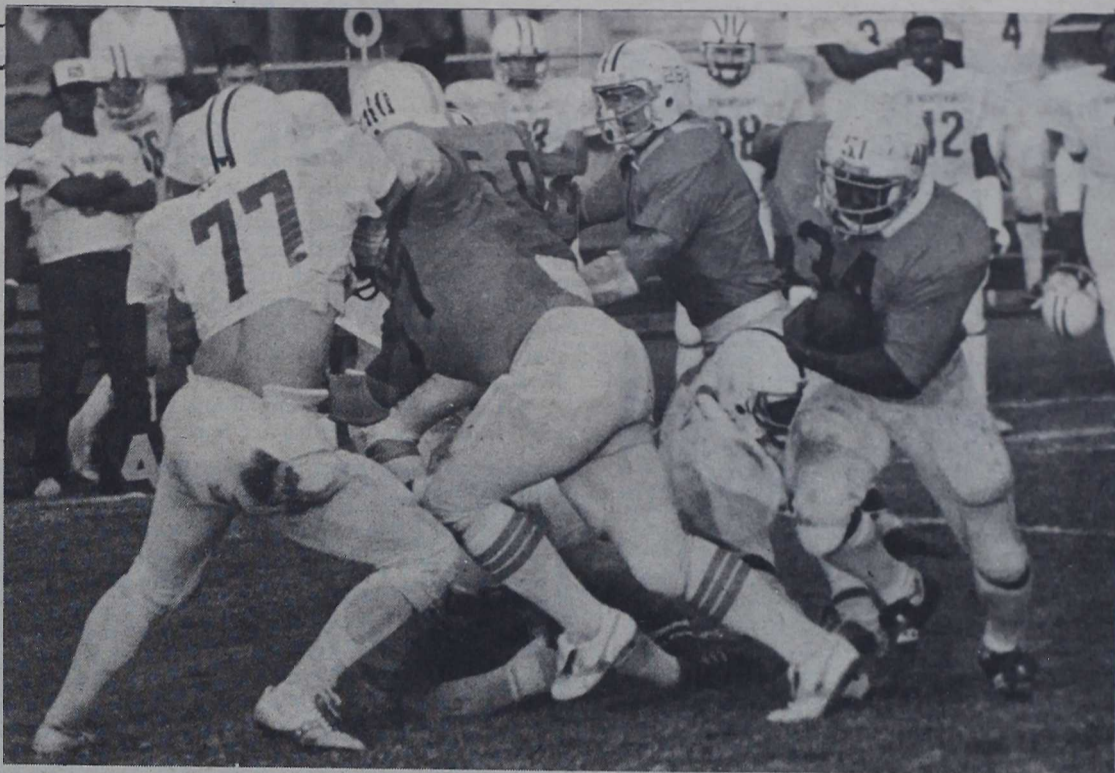

The 6th Marines came roaring back and 15 days later Quarterback McCallister ran the 50-yard touchdown carry. Next for the 6th Marines, 6th Marines converted the extra point try, as Gilham caught a pass in the end zone.

Following a 26-7 lead in the third quarter's waning minutes, the Infantry Marines seemed assured of a victory. However, 2d Maintenance had different plans for the outcome of the game.

Corporal Ser-shin caught a 30-yard throw to bring Maintenance down to the 20-yard line. Following a 10-yard quarterback sack loss, Corporal Ryan caught the ball and moved it to the 10-yard line. Maintenance, on the eight-yard line, headed for a touchdown, but Sixth Infantry defenders stopped this drive.

Following over on the eight-yard line, 6th Marines were self unable to move the ball. A blocked kick allowed Maintenance's Sergeant Roderick to score a touchdown, but he mishandled the ball and settled for a two-point safety.

The 6th Marines kicked the ball to Maintenance, who made this possession count. Ser-shin heaved the ball to Martin for a 40-yard touchdown. Kelley booted the extra point attempt, bringing Maintenance to 26-16.

Next, the Maintenance squad kicked a successful on-sides kick, and took over on the 6th Marines 32-yard line. A 6th Marines pass interference call placed the ball on the 15-yard line and later Ryan caught a five-yard touchdown pass. The extra point attempt failed and the 6th Marines' lead dwindled to 26-22.

A charged-up Maintenance defense harrassed the 6th Marines offense. They dominated play action and forced 6th Marines to turn over the ball as they sacked McCallister far behind the scrimmage line. Maintenance took possession on 6th Marines' 22-yard line.

SERSHIN HANDED THE ball to Martin who completed a flea-flicker touchdown throw to Ryan, giving Maintenance the lead at 28-26, with less than two minutes remaining in the game. The two-point extra point try failed.

Shooters excel at fall matches

Story and photos by Sgt. Scot Jenkins

Scores of rifle shooters converged on Camp Lejeune's Range A, the week of Sept. 24-28, to compete in the 1984 Fall Intramural matches. All three major commands held their own matches, but shared the same range instead of tying up three individual rifle ranges.

THE 6TH MARINE Amphibious Brigade competed with the 2d Force Service Support Group instead of holding separate rifle matches for the commands. The best rifle shooters from the Marine Division, 2d Force Service Support Group, 6th Marine Amphibious Brigade, plus the Marine Aircraft Wing and Headquarters Battalion Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic teams are currently competing for FMFlant matches at the Lejeune range, and will finish up Oct. 5.

Devilpups' last-minute fumble spoils chance to get first win

Story by Sgt. Scot Jenkins

The Camp Lejeune Devilpups, playing in a drizzling rain, nearly pulled off an upset when they fumbled inside the East Carteret 15-yard line with time running out on an attempted march to the goal line. The Lejeune team lost to visiting conference rival, East Carteret, 7-6, Sept. 29, in a Coastal Plains 2-A opener.

THE LOSS DROPPED the winless Devilpups to 0-4, while the East Carteret Mariners upped their record to 2-2. Lejeune kept its record, of shutting out the opposition during the first quarter of the game, intact. The Devilpups have successfully done this in all four of their outings this year. In fact, during the game with East Carteret, the Devilpups shut out their opponents in the first full three quarters of play.

Lejeune took the lead with about 2:30 left in the third quarter when Billy Hollister scored on a 13-yard pass from Billy Parker. The Devilpups might have been able to control their lead if Derrick Clark's pass to Hollister for a two-point conversion attempt had been successful, but the East Carteret defenders stopped the passing attempt.

THE DEVILPUPS CONTINUED their defensive superiority over East Carteret throughout most of the fourth quarter. With about four minutes remaining in the game, the Mariners' Gordon Mason broke loose on a 53-yard touchdown run to tie the game at six points each. Lejeune defenders, poised to ruin the Beaufort, N.C. squad's go-ahead point, tried to block the extra-point kick. East Carteret succeeded with the kick and took a 7-6 lead.

The Devilpups, chilled by the steady rains and strong winds of Tropical Storm Isidore as it made its trek northward, tried to come back and capture the game in the waning minutes of the contest.

Billy Parker moved his team closer and closer to the goal line, but a costly and untimely fumble with :30 seconds left in the contest, stopped any fleeting hopes the Devilpups had of playing spoilers and capturing their first win of the season.

ALTHOUGH THE DEVILPUPS are still winless, they managed to prove they could move the pigskin. Lejeune players managed to gain eight first downs and 169 yards offense during the contest. Lejeune rushed the ball 145 yards on 36 carries. Most of Lejeune's offensive gain came from the ground, and Lejeune's Parker added 24 yards passing.

While Lejeune managed to get the ball moving, the Devilpups defense was fairly successful in stopping the East Carteret offense. The Beaufort squad managed only four first downs and 144 yards rushing on 43 carries. East Carteret did not attempt to unveil its aerial attack during the inclement weather.

Probably, the most costly thing for Lejeune players were the three fumbles they turned over to East Carteret. The Mariners fumbled the ball five times but only lost possession of the ball twice.

LEJEUNE TRAVELS TO Rich School, Oct. 5, for its second Coastal Conference contest. The Wildcats Swansboro High School Pirates, 2 churning out more than 310 yards on East Carteret plays Jones Senior High 5.
