Corpswide

HQMC, WASHINGTON, D.C., (MCNEWS)--The commandant of the Marine Corps has asked Congress to approve a Fiscal Year 1985 end strength of 199,500 Marines, 2,900 more the FY '84.

With congressional hearings on the defense budget underway, General Paul X. Kelley made the request during his initial appearance before the Senate Armed Services Committee, last month, to present his first posture statement as commandant.

The commandant devoted a section of his report to the subject of international terrorism, stating, "The scars of the Beirut bombings are fresh and sore." Terrorism, he continued, is not a new form of warfare; it has just taken on a new dimension. The cornerstone of the Marine Corps' response to this threat is "an ongoing, thorough, and comprehensive review of our posture and capability as it relates to defensive measures, warning, and state of training."

bear the hardships of military service and frequent family separations. He proposed a stable, predictable system to keep military pay comparable with the private sector. "Comparability with the private sector must be achieved and maintained," he said, "if we are to resolve once and for all the issue of military pay adequacy."

With considerable publicity focused on the military retirement system, the commandant urged Congress to "consider the issue in its totality and not just as an area in which deficit reductions may be possible."

The retirement system, he said, is first and foremost a force management tool. "Any changes to it should be undertaken with a full understanding of their impact on our ability to retain good Marines for a full career."

THE COMMANDANT ALSO emphasized leadership, referring to it as "the foundation on which the Corps stands. Marines are unique people who deserve the best leadership available,"

ANOTHER CRISIS-RESPONSE enhancement, the Maritime Pre-positioning Ships (MPS) concept, is rapidly becoming a reality. The first of three MPS brigades will become operational this year at Camp Lejeune. The second and third MPS brigades will become operational during FY '85 and FY '86. Construction has also begun on 10 of the 13 cargo ships to support the MPS program.

The first six Landing Craft Air Cushioned (LCAC) will become operational in 1986.

THE LIFE OF the Assault Amphibian Vehicle (AAV) is being extended into the 1990s by the Service Life Extension Program. The first AAV unit will be completely equipped with the new LVT7A1 during 1984. To support MPS forces, delivery of 327 new LVT7A1s will begin this year. Under development as a follow-on for the LVT7 is the Landing Vehicle Tracked Experimental (LVT(X)).

The CH-53E Super Stallion heavy-

WHILE FIREPOWER VIDEOS "the muscle" for any force, command and control systems provide "the nerve center and brain." Among the command and control systems currently in production are the final stages of development of Tactical Air Operations Control System (TACO-85); the Position Location Reporting System (PLRS); and Marine Intergrated Fire and Air Support System (MIFASS).

Perhaps the most unique aspect of "soldiering from the sea," the commandant stated, are the associated with logistically supporting and sustaining the landing force. The Corps' Combat Service Support units accomplish these myriad difficult tasks. With modernization programs introduced in 1981, the enhancement efforts are on a course. In addition, with modernization of the motor transport fleet including implementation of the Logistics System, combat service support is being further improved.

MARINE CORPS RESERVE

During the past three years, growth, quality and reserve readiness have all improved. The strength of the selected Marine Reserve is 42,690 reservists, organized into the 4th Marine Division and Marine Aircraft Wing. The goal for FY '85 is 46,447.

PARTICIPATION IN AC exercises increased, with about 14,000 reservists participating in 14 major exercises here and abroad.

Last year, 90 percent of the reserve units tested in the Marine Corps Readiness Evaluation System earned a combat-ready classification. For the first time, reserve squadrons have been assigned special contingency missions and have received new aircraft. The 4th Marine Wing delivered four new KC-130Ts.

The coming year is a pivotal one for the reserve. It will see the reorganization of the reserve infantry battalions along the same lines as its counterparts in the active force, the addition of units and further improvement of reserve artillery and anti-air capabilities.

CONCLUSION

In his closing remarks, the commandant noted, geopolitical realities evidence that this nation must reestablish clear maritime superiority. Seapower, in concert with our foreign defense policy and global alliances, represents "the linchpin of deterrence and power projection, should either fail."

"IN THE FINAL analysis, however, the establishment and effective exercise of seapower is the responsibility of Marines and Sailors--qualified personnel with the determination and spirit to influence the destiny of our nation from their outpost on land and in the air... With the continued support of the Congress and the American people, they will continue to positively influence this nation's destiny and, in doing so, the destiny of the free world."

State of the Corps

THE REVIEW TO be completed in March, includes efforts to enhance the intelligence apparatus Corps-wide to provide timely, accurate intelligence in support of anti-terrorist measures and an active preventive policy.

Among the interim measures already implemented are improved security for Marine personnel, facilities and bases, and upgraded anti-terrorism training for deploying forces. "We expect to do a great deal more," he continued.

In presenting the overall FY '85 budget request, Gen. Kelley noted that the Marine Corps' contribution to the national defense continues to be significant while its consumption of resources remains relatively small.

THE MAJOR PORTION of the commandant's statement addressed the various enhancements vital to the Marine Corps' ability to respond as this nation's force in readiness; Navy programs which bear on Marine Corps capabilities; the role of the Navy/Marine Corps team in implementing American's maritime strategy; and "most, importantly, Marines themselves."

MANPOWER

Fiscal Year 1983 was a banner year for Marine recruiting. Recruiters surpassed all previous numerical and quality goals for new Marines. Ninety-two percent were high school graduates with 63 percent ranking in the upper half of the nationally normed range of test scores.

To retain Marines with the skills and experience needed to overcome critical shortages, the Marine Corps relied heavily on the selective reenlistment bonus program. This program is working and is cost effective with 14,075 reenlistees in FY '83.

THE COMMANDANT ASKED Congress' support for fair and comparable pay and compensation systems including medical care, commissaries and exchanges. These, he said, are vital to enable Marines and their families to he stated, "and we remain dedicated to providing that leadership at all levels."

He credited the Marine Corps' success in drastically reducing substance abuse among Marines to sound leadership and a strong commitment. During the past year, the documented detection rate of drug users was 400 percent lower than the previous year. "The Marine Corps," he said, "remains committed to the belief that all Marines are entitled to a drug-free environment, with professional assistance available for drug and alcohol abusers who sincerely desire to adopt a more productive professional and personal lifestyle."

ENHANCEMENT PROGRAMS

THE MARINE CORPS' ability to respond decisively and credibly in crises is "a direct function of our ability to get to where we are needed and to get there on time," the commandant stated. He reaffirmed the Marine Corps' strong continuing commitment to Department of the Navy efforts in "regaining clear maritime superiority," and applauded the Navy's balanced, coordinated approach in building amphibious ships.

The commandant stressed the importance of having sufficient merchant and sealift ships available to support amphibious operations, since virtually 75 percent of the total landing force equipment and supplies must be loaded in merchant hulls. In the meantime, he said, "we continue to pursue innovative initiatives to ensure our global responsiveness."

One such initiative is the pre-positioning of selected equipment and supplies in Norway. With U.S. Congressional support and Norway's huge investment in political capital and national resources, this pre-positioning program is in full swing. Operational planning is underway with the first exercise of the concept scheduled for March.

lift helicopter adds significant depth to the Marines' tactical mobility. Two 16-plane squadrons are now operating and regularly support Marine ground units. A third tactical squadron (HMH-466) will stand up in FY '85.

The JVX tilt rotor program will enable the Marine Corps to avert a critical shortfall in medium-lift assault transport.

FIREPOWER, A VITAL factor in the tactical equation, is receiving intensive attention. Major restructuring of Marine ground units is providing the Marine Air Ground Task Force with "more punch per pound." The smaller, newly reorganized, more firepower-intensive infantry battalion will be equipped with a range of new weapons.

Light Armored Vehicle battalions will soon be organic to each Marine division. The first LAV company was activated in July 1983; a battalion of 55 LAV-25s will be activated at Camp Lejeune in FY '84.

The AH-1T Sea Cobra, a versatile, multi-mission aircraft, remains the Marine Corps' most heavily committed aviation asset. FY '85 and FY '86 procurement is considered vital to alleviate critical inventory shortfalls.

THE CORPS' MOST potent anti-air weapon is the F/A-18, described by the commandant as "a superb fighting machine." The fighter/attack modernization program will be completed with 12 F/A-18 squadrons replacing the F-4 Phantom II.

The AV-8B Harrier continues to be the key element in the modernization of the Marine Corps' light-attack force. An eight-squadron, all V/STOL, light-attack force will complete the modernization effort by the early 1990s.

To meet the continuing critical shortage in Naval gunfire support, the Marine Corps remains strongly committed to the reactivation of all four IOWA Class battleships. "Events of the last year," the commandant noted, "have shown the value of a battleship

Camp Lejeune Update

Driving on-base: A privilege

Vehicle registration procedures at Camp Lejeune have undergone some changes, according to Staff Sergeant Kenneth Johnson, assistant COIC, vehicle registration section, Provost Marshal's Office.

ORDER TO obtain a temporary or permanent decal, specific documents and identification must be presented to the clerks at the registration office.

Both motorcycles and automobiles require proper documentation," said GySgt. Johnson. Present Armed Forces or civilian ID card, a license and vehicle registration certificate current state inspection sticker must be presented at the time of registration."

And most important of all, proof of minimum liability insurance coverage based on North Carolina law must also be shown," he added.

MINIMUM LIABILITY COVERAGE for North Carolina is $25,000 per person, $50 for each accident/occurrence and $10,000 for property damage. The original policy, not a photo copy, must be presented.

If the driver's insurance doesn't meet minimum standards, he is given a temporary pass, or if he already has a Department of Defense decal, 30 days to have a corrected insurance policy presented to the clerk," GySgt. Johnson said.

Penalties are stiff for drivers who decide to drive with insufficient insurance or let their policy lapse after obtaining their decal.

A DRIVER is stopped and his insurance is lapsed, even for two days, his decal is scraped off his car, his driving privileges are temporarily suspended, and a citation to appear in traffic court issued," said Master Gunnery Sergeant Robert Haley, staff NCOIC, vehicle registration section, traffic court. "As soon as he can show proof of insurance, his decal is replaced after his case is settled in traffic court."

"The easiest thing to do is to never let your insurance stop," added GySgt. Johnson. "North Carolina has a number of insurance companies, and many other companies, will notify us when a policy is lapsed or lapses."

The driver's ordeal does not end when their insurance policy is renewed, however, for traffic court awaits.

"IF THE DRIVER can show proof of insurance at the time of the citation, no problem," said Staff Sergeant Ronald Service, staff NCOIC, traffic court. "But if he can't, he gets a 30-day suspension of his driving privileges."

"Even if he runs out and gets insurance right after he gets ticketed, he still did not have insurance at the time he was stopped, so he gets the 30 days," SSgt. Service explained.

Another motor vehicle offense that carries a stiff penalty is failure to remove the decal upon transfer of ownership.

"IF THE CAR owner sells his car, either to a dealer or a private owner, he must scrape the decal off his car and notify vehicle registration," said MSgt. Haley. "Failure to do this can result in a traffic citation and a trip to traffic court."

For the first offender, the usual penalty, based on his past record, is a four-point fine. For the second or third offender, driving privileges can be taken away for 30-days.

"If a driver gets 12 points a year, or 18 points in two years, he can have his driving privileges taken away for six months or more," SSgt. Service said. "And if he is a constant offender, he can be recommended for disciplinary action."

FOR DRIVERS WHO decide not to attend traffic court, their penalties are even stiffer. Both points and suspension of driving privileges can be awarded.

"If something comes up and they can't make their court date, they can reschedule," SSgt. Service said. "But not to make an effort to appear is no excuse."

In addition to the paper work needed for a decal, classes are offered, and must be taken for certain drivers.

"Driver Improvement Classes, for drivers less than 26 years old, and Motorcycle Safety Instruction are offered here," said GySgt. Johnson. "Courses from other bases, or even Driver Education classes, cannot be substituted for these courses."

TEMPORARY PASSES WILL be issued for those drivers needing to take either class.

Lance Corporal Richard Lewandowski, vehicle registration clerk, places an on-base decal

"These requirements, the insurance and driver classes are here to protect every Marine," said GySgt. Johnson. "After all, no one wants to have to pay if they have an accident and the other guy doesn't have insurance."

"And, at the same time, if an accident can be avoided by taking a driver improvement class, the few days needed for the classes are worth it," he added.

FOR MORE INFORMATION on vehicle registration, check Base Order P5560.2J or go by the vehicle registration office in Midway Park.

Recall

During 1983, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission and Bassett Furniture Industries, Inc. learned of two infant strangulation deaths involving Bassett "Candelite" (8 & 5127) and "Mandalay" (5126, 5225 & ) model cribs. The company has been trying to find and modify these cribs for some time, but there are still 2,500 cribs unaccounted for. Navy and Marine Corps personnel with in-children are requested to double check the crib for the make and model. Any inquiries should be directed to Bassett Furniture Industries, Inc., Box 626, Bassett, Va., 24055 toll-free 1-800-368-3324.

CoC

Sergeant Major Terry D. Sutton relinquished his job as the regimental sergeant major to Sergeant Major Terry F. Wade.

Sergeant Major Sutton will be going to the MATSG-91, Naval Air Station, Lemoore, Calif.

Sergeant Major Wade came from the 3d Reconnaissance battalion in Okinawa.

Taxes

The Base General Library has received a shipment of Federal Income Tax Forms and Booklets from the Internal Revenue Service. Some of the forms available include:

- Form 3903 Moving Expense Adjustment
- Form 2441 Credit for Child and Dependent Care Expenses
- Form 2119 Sale or Exchange of Principal Residence
- Form 4868 Application for Automatic Extension of Time to File.

For more information, call the Base General Library at 451-3178.

Prevention

The fire prevention section of the Base Fire Department is responsible for maintaining and inventorying the more than 6,500 fire extinguishers at Camp Lejeune. During 1983 the fire prevention section serviced 3,912 fire extinguishers for general repair, replacement or vandalism at an estimated total cost of $15,648. Marines and Sailors can help save Uncle Sam some money by ensuring that extinguishers are used only on fires, not on your buddy during field day. An extinguisher is charged with 100 lbs. PSI of air which could easily cause injury to the unwary. Use fire-fighting equipment if you need it. Don't use it if you don't need it. For further information call the Fire Prevention Section at 451-5037.

Tacwar: Not just another game - this is war!

Story by K. M. Zabawczuk

Players can't buy Park Place or get $200 for passing go, but Camp Lejeune's newest and first board game will give Marines here a chance to employ combat troops with a life-like miniature scenario.

IT'S CALLED TACWAR and although its designers call it a war game, Bill Kalm, a field representative for the University of Central Florida says, "it's really not a game at all. It is training for war."

Kalm, a retired Marine lieutenant colonel, is the director of Camp Lejeune's new Wargame Center operating out of an abandon section of the old Naval Hospital.

Although Tacwar is new to Camp Lejeune, the idea dates back quite some time, according to Kalm. "The Germans have been involved in war gaming for a long time," he said.

PROBABLY THE CLOSEST the Marine Corps has ever come to playing out an actual war game has been on sand tables, according to Kalm. While that practice has also been around for a while, it never gave the friendly force a chance to measure themselves against solid tactics.

Tacwar on the other hand, does just that.

The game is designed primarily for company level training. However, it can be played at higher or lower levels, according to Kalm. "The game can be broken right down to a squad level," he explained.

BUT, NO MATTER what level the game is played at, the opposition is based on Warsaw P tactics, according to Kalm.

"It not only teaches a Marine to use good tactics," explained Kalm, "but it also gives him insight into Soviet tactics, their structure and their capabilities."

However, life is no bed of roses around T war tables. "The game is designed to reward good tactics and punish the poor ones," Kalm said.

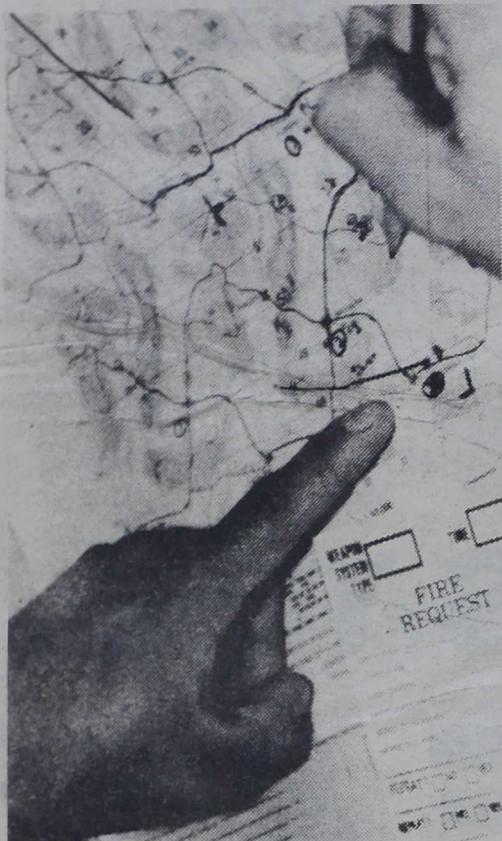

ANYWHERE FROM FOUR to 14 people can play the game which consists of five basic scenarios which can be modified to create objectives.

It is played on a three dimensional gameboard which can be configured to create terrain features such as mountains, forests, rivers and towns.

Game pieces are exact miniatures on a 1/2 scale and include helicopters, jeeps, amtracs, a tanks which are replicas of U.S. and Soviet equipment.

"PLAYERS ACTUALLY MOVE their pieces around the board," Kalm said. "They have to do all the things that they would have to do in combat."

The game includes colored disks representing impact areas for mortar and artillery fire as well as disks to represent air strikes.

and enforce the rules."

The instructors are the ones who help the players through the game. "Both the instructors and controllers will keep notes for critiques after the game," said Kalm.

What does it take for someone with no experience to begin playing? According to Kalm, just one day of training can prepare a Marine to begin playing. "But, it's not meant to replace field training," Kalm warned, "it is designed to supplement field training."

RESPONSE TO THE game so far has been nothing less than super, according to Kalm, and it looks like Tacwar is here to stay.

2d Maintenance Battalion

Repairing everything 'except a broken heart or the crack of dawn'

The following article is the tenth in a series featuring units within the 2d Marine Division and 2d Force Service Support Group.

Story and photos by Sgt. K.M. Zabawczuk

At least once in a lifetime, most people hear the comment, "You broke it, you fix it."

BUT HERE AT Camp Lejeune, that statement would more appropriately read, "You break it, they fix it."

They, in this case, are the Marines of the 2d Force Service Support Group's 2d Maintenance Battalion. Probably no other battalion-sized unit in the Marine Corps contains such a large cross section of job skills or provides such varied services as does a maintenance battalion.

And although the word "repair" is the basis of their being, a list of what they repair would number in the thousands.

AS ONE MARINE said, "We can fix anything but a broken heart or the crack of dawn." And after a walk through the battalion's facilities, one might not question the validity of that statement.

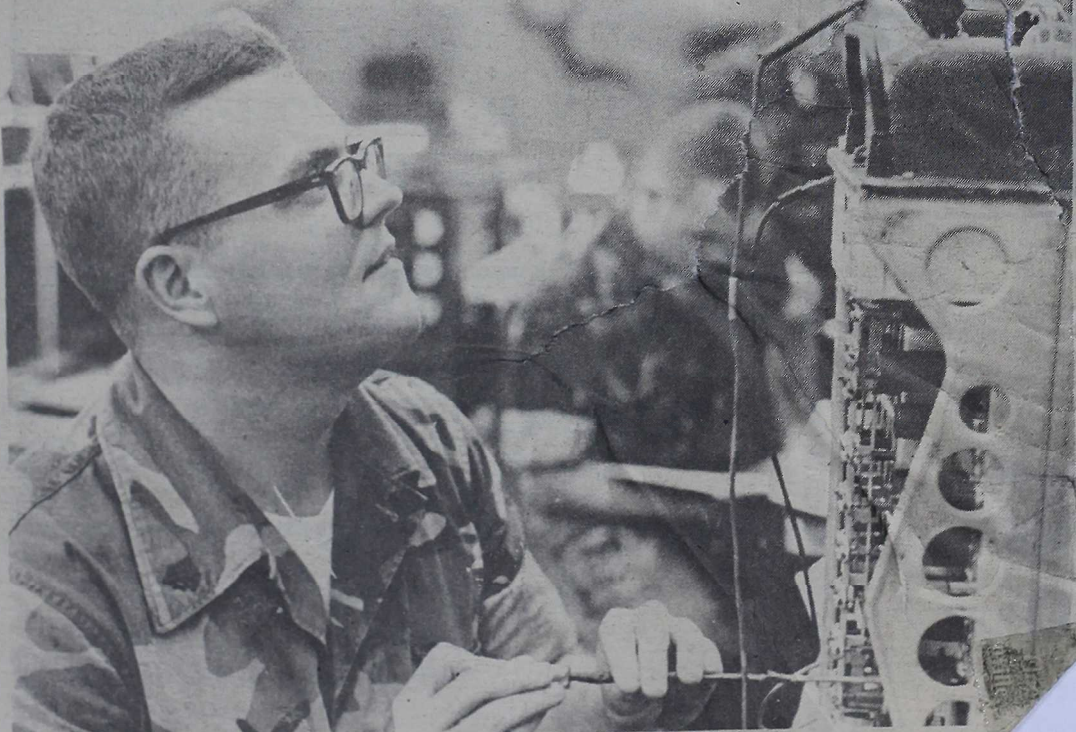

The battalion's mission, according to Major Willie R. Phillips, battalion executive officer, is to provide intermediate level maintenance support for Marine Corps tactical equipment. That includes ordnance, engineering, motor transport, communications/electronic and general supply equipment.

But what is termed intermediate by Marine Corps standards is far more intricate and exacting than the average person might think.

WHILE SOME OF the battalion's maintenance work can be fairly simple, such as mending a rip in a shelterhalf, other work can stretch out over longer periods, such as rebuilding a tank engine.

Sewing is an integral part of repairing gear. Much of Marine Corps' equipment is made of cloth

Sergeant Mark Wade, Electronic Maintenance Company, repairs a R761 receiver

The battalion contains some 1,300 Marines and is divided into five companies which are responsible for repairing anything from sleep bags to giant Drott cranes. Included is an intricate parts section along with welding and machine shops where some parts can actually be made needed.

Like any other battalion organized to provide support to the division, Maintenance Battalion must have the capability to operate from the field as well as in garrison.

COORDINATING SUCH ACTIVITY is the job of the maintenance operations section (MOS). "The MOS is the nerve center of the battalion," explained Master Sergeant James Banks, who handles deployment coordination for the battalion. "It coordinates the interrelated maintenance activities of all five companies."

Currently the battalion has six maintenance detachments deployed according to MSgt. Banks. These detachments range in size from 22 to 50 Marines.

AND ALTHOUGH THE battalion's mission remains the same while in the field, the workload sometimes varies, according to MSgt. Banks. Work orders can be anywhere from zero to 50 a day, he said.

Maintenance Battalion also maintains contact teams for units in the field and in garrison. The purpose of the contact team is to enable broken gear to be fixed on site when possible instead of bringing it back to the maintenance facility for repair.

These contact teams may even travel from the field to ship to work on equipment during a deployment, according to MSgt. Banks.

"TIME IS SOME times a limiting factor (when working in the field)," said MSgt. Banks. He added that it is sometimes faster to send a piece of equipment back to the maintenance facility for repair rather than tie up assets in the field for extended periods.

When it does become necessary for a piece of equipment to be taken out of service for an extended period of time and a unit must have that particular piece to function, it is replaced from the battalion's Operational Readiness Float (ORF).

"There are a total of 373 different pieces of combat essential equipment maintained at the ORF," said Major Len Long, commanding officer of the battalion's General Support Maintenance Company which maintains the ORF equipment.

THAT DOES NOT mean that equipment can be stored unused for long periods of time, according to Maj. Long.

If unused, the gear is required to be rotated periodically, however, it is usually needed before it is due for rotation.

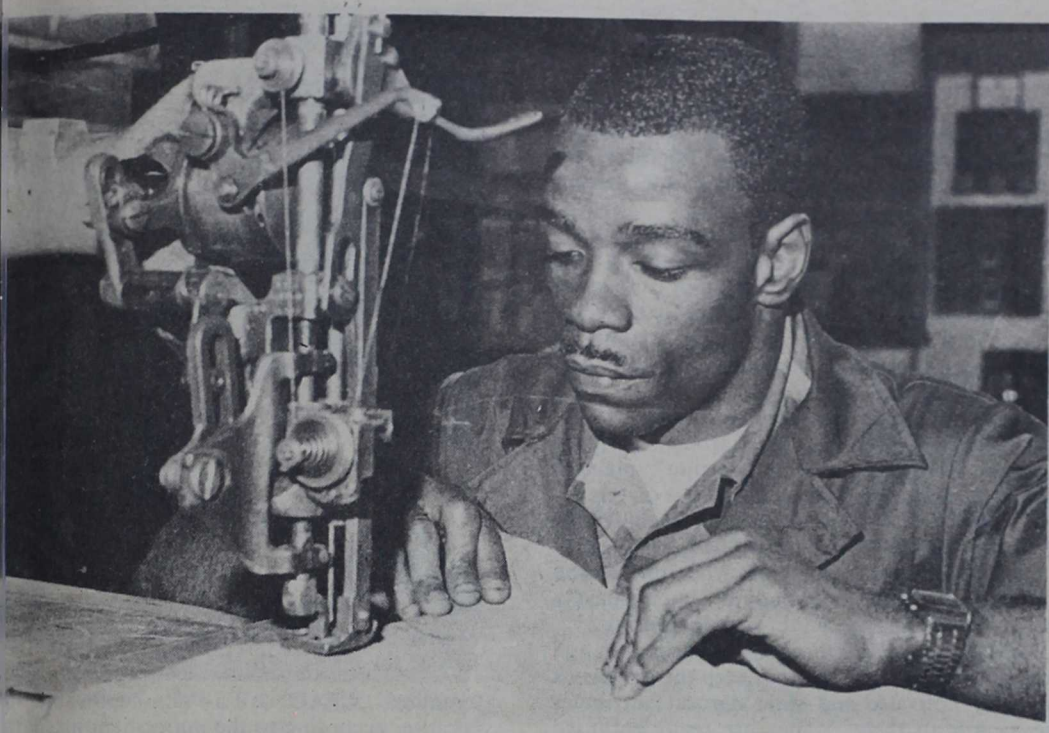

When Maintenance Battalion is called upon to deploy, their maintenance functions and capabilities go right along with them, according to MSgt. Banks.

"WE HAVE OUR own tents, electrical power field maintenance facilities and equipment," said Maj. Long.

In fact, Maintenance Battalion recently hosted a Tenth Marines field exercise at Ft. Bragg, N.C. in which the battalion, in addition to establishing a maintenance facility in the field, also handled things such as resupplying the artillery units from mobile resupply points. In addition, Marines from the battalion got a chance to brush up on their individual infantry skills as well as Nuclear, Biological and Chemical defense tactics.

Brigadier General Robert Winglass, commanding general of the 2d FSSG, visited the battalion's detachment at Ft. Bragg briefly March 14. The general viewed different aspects of the training and praised the battalion's efforts in the field.

BUT, WHAT ARE the overall objectives for the battalion with such a diverse mission? According to Maj. Phillips, there are three goals within the battalion.

First Class Harold VanDevelde sews canvas together for use in making ALICE packs

The battalion's first objective, he said, is to reduce the number of combat essential equipment awaiting repair. Another objective is to maintain the operational readiness of the battalion according to the commanding officer. That is both the professional competence within the battalion as well as the individual readiness such as rifle requalification and physical fitness, he said.

The battalion's final objective, said Maj. Phillip Phillips, is to improve the quality of life for Marines within the battalion.

"WE WANT TO be able to show them that they are a first rate outfit," he said.

Fiscal accounting

Keeping the books balanced

Story and photos by LCpl. Jeff Bisbee

Camp Lejeune's Consolidated Fiscal Accounting Office (CFAO) recently received two certificate's of commendation, one from the fiscal director of the Marine Corps and the other from the commanding general, the Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic.

Corporal Roxanne Norby uses a computer to keep the books up-to-date

THE CFAO, WHICH undertakes the task of performing official accounting for all the FMFLant forces and providing technical assistance in accounting matters, received the awards because of its staggering efficiency rate which resulted in the efficient use of 99.99 percent of the total funds authorized.

According to Major J.R. Marcucci, CFAO commanding officer, providing FMFLant with the most up-to-date financial information is no small task. The CFAO handles more than 24,000 weekly transactions while giving up-to-date support to eight major commands and more than 250 cost centers within those commands.

With this many commitments CFAO is kept busy, real busy, according to the troops. Corporal Roxanne Norby, Input-Output section explained, "A lot of work comes in and goes out of this office." While arranging and organizing hundreds of microfiche information cards Cpl. Norby said, "Speed is a major factor here, when one person falls behind it slows everybody down. We have a busy office which keeps the work interesting."

AMID STACKS OF computer printouts and terminals, the CFAO Marines keep the teamwork high and motivated and Maj. Marcucci attributes the awards to them. "They are really enthused about their jobs. The CFAO Marines realize that the office is service oriented and everyone strives to provide the best possible service to our customers. It's not unusual for them to come in after-hours to keep-up with their work and they take pride in that." Everyone in the section knows the jobs they do are necessary to complete the mission and to "keep the books up-to-date."

The CFAO is operationally part of FMFLant, but is administratively attached to 2d Force Service Support Group, Headquarters and Service

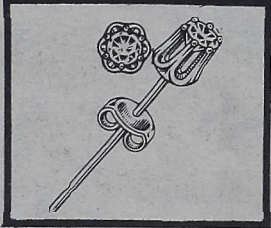

Master Sergeant W. Adams, Fiscal Chief, is hub of the CFAO wheel

Battalion. CFAO is a non-deployable unit because, according to the major, it is inseparable from an automated service center and it is imperative that commanders have a current updated record of allocated money and what it's being used for, whether for operation and maintenance training.

The Marines of CFAO have the incentive to meet all their deadlines and keep the Marine Corps 'checkbook' accurate. They're keeping with the Marine tradition of showing attention to detail while helping others. As Maj. Marcucci says "They're Marines first, then accountants."

'Average' isn't bad

formations around Camp Lejeune.

BUT FOR THE "quietly good" Marine, rewards are few and far between.

"A Marine who I consider "quietly good" is one that is never late, keeps busy at work and stays out of trouble at work and after hours," said Lieutenant Colonel W.C. Shaver, commanding officer, Headquarters and Service Battalion, 2d Force Service Support Group. "I usually only see Marines if they've done something wrong or have been put up for an award. This means that I spend 90 percent of my time with 10 percent of the Marines in this organization."

"The other 90 percent, the 'average' Marine I never see and never get a chance to reward for a job well done," he added.

To rectify this situation, the colonel decided to reward one Marine who would represent all the "quietly good" Marines at his command. The company commanders at H&SBn. were asked to recommend someone and the stage was set.

"I know how important recognition is to all those Marines quietly contributing to organizational, as well as, Marine Corps excellence," said LtCol. Shaver.

LANCE CORPORAL DIRK Booze was surprised when his name was called at the battalion formation. LCpl. Booze, a truck mechanic from Headquarters and Service Company, was the final choice for the unrecognized Marines.

"I was nervous," said LCpl. Booze, a 20-year-old, Lothian, Md., native. "I didn't know what was going on and didn't know what to expect."

Lieutenant Colonel Shaver explained LCpl. Booze's selection to the assembled troops like this, "LCpl. Booze does his job without question, has good, not excellent, pro and con marks and is not a trouble maker."

Presented with a coffee cup engraved with the battalion symbol, LCpl. Booze went back to his company to resume his quiet work habits. But the impact of the award will remain with him.

"I FEEL I have to set an example for the rest of the people here now," said LCpl. Booze. "Before I was pretty much in the background, but not anymore."

Hopefully, LCpl. Booze was not the only one who learned something from the ceremony. "I want my company commanders to become aware that the Marines they consider excellent are not the only ones who should be put up for meritorious promotions and awards," said LtCol. Shaver. "The Marines working carefully and consistently in the background are good Marines too."

"The average Marine is not a 'super star' but just a hard working individual," he said. "These types of Marines are what make the Corps great."

Tommy Rebel and the Rockerfellas

"TOMMY REBEL" and the Rockerfellas are back entertaining for 10 straight nights. Hear them tonight and tomorrow night at the Central Area Club, and be ready for a big weekend at the French Creek Club.

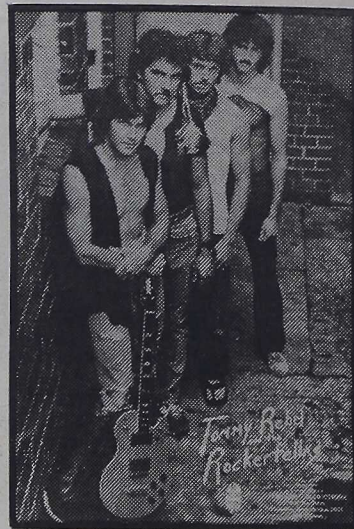

Tommy Rebel, a Florence native may be on the verge of making it big after 14 years rock and rolling in South Carolina night spots. Born Tommy Lee 31 years ago, he is known professionally as Tommy Rebel, leader and guitarist of the Columbia - based Tommy Rebel and the Rockerfellas.

His possible break came with his group's release six months ago of a 45 rpm single on its own Cheap Rock label. The 45 was mailed by producer-engineer Ron Hollins to Billboard, the music industry magazine, where it got a favorite review and drew the attention of Atlantic Records, one of the country's top record companies.

"They called us back," said a delighted Rebel. "It shocked me." That label has offered no contract or advance money - its talent department wants to hear more tunes from the band - but its interest has brought Rebel closer to the top than at any time in his career, which began at age 17 when he performed at Florence area high school dances.

Some other tunes written by Rebel and vocalist Alan Walker are in "pre-production." They will be recorded by Rebel, Walker, bassist Kyle Coward and drummer Steve Anderson in a Columbia studio next month and sent to Atlantic Records, Rebel said.

Meanwhile, the group continues to push its single, round up performance dates and build a following. It draws full houses at such clubs as Strider's in Columbia, where patrons like the group's original material and its covers of hard-rockers Van Halen, Bryan Adams and Eddie Money.

A chapter closes

Marines, Sailors with the 22d MAU leave Lebanon

Major Bill Sublette (L), 22d MAU air officer, folds the American flag from the Lebanese Liaison Office at the Beirut International Airport while Lieutenant Colonel Ernie Van Huss, operation officer assists

Story by Capt. Keith Oliver

BEIRUT, LEBANON, (delayed) -- Red ment operations the weekend of Feb. 25 another chapter in Marine Corps involvement as most of the 22d Marine Amphibious Unit ed into the seagoing mode aboard U.S. Navy of the Sixth Fleet.

Left ashore were about 300 U.S. military personnel including Fox Company's 1st Platoon tasked with external security at the American embassy. Others, representing all four branches of the armed forces, are charged with various aspects of the Lebanese Armed Forces (LAF) or are augmenting the newly-established Task Force headed by Marine Brigadier General Jim R. Joy.

A brief, informal ceremony Sunday morning marked the official turning-over-of-the-key to LAF personnel at Beirut International Airport. MAU Commander, Colonel James P. Faulkner of Charlotte, N.C. was the senior American official present as Marines left the sandbagged bunkers they'd called home since November.

ABOARD THE USS Manitowoc, ship's command, Commander John D. Kolata of Washington, D.C. was openly jubilant as Golf Company's amphibious tractors roared away from Beirut's Corniche Beach and into the bell of the Norfolk-based ship tank.

"We saved some ice cream for you," he said. Company Commander Captain Bob Dobson of Torrance, Calif. A huge welcome home banner was displayed over the stern gate as Capt. Dobson's men and machines were welcomed by their dungaree-clad brethren of the "Gator Navy."

Elsewhere, the tempo was similar as the 22d Marine team again shared living quarters aboard the Guam, Fort-Snellings, Barnstable County

"AND THEN," SAID the native New ker, "I'm getting some hot chow and some -time between clean sheets."

As delightful as such home comforts might seemed, the redeployment operation itself apparently the biggest motivator of the kend. Loud, spontaneous cheers echoed from well decks of Navy ships as Sailors and ines snapped pictures of re-embarking tanks, ks and artillery pieces.

The scene was punctuated by the booming of USS New Jersey's guns into Syrian-controlled
s as Marine Cobra attack helicopters darted Command Task Force warships.

BY MONDAY MORNING, the once-dusty hernecks were easing into shipboard life.
t company commanders were giving their war-some time off following a virtually liberty-cruise that had included crisp execution of eration Urgent Fury" in Grenada. The Guam's flight deck opened at noon for the first jogging some Marines had done in nearly four months, clearing their heads for weapons cleaning, administrative paperwork and letters home.

Author/commentator Andy Rooney 60 Minutes toiled through the Guam's passageways to show America how her Sailors and Marines were getting along aboard ship. Two days later, the fleet received another visitor as Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger awarded the men the Navy Unit Commendation.

Weinberger also visited the Fox Company position at the embassy, making it a point to speak with as many of the urban grunts as possible.

AT THIS WRITING, the situation in Beirut is relatively stable. What one Marine called a "blue-water turnover" is expected to take place this spring with the arrival of the 24th Marine Amphibious Unit. Then, according to schedule, these veterans of conflicts in two climes will sail west toward Morehead City, N.C. That is, if all goes as planned.

Your smartest move may be a lateral one.

If you're not content with your present job, if you're looking to broaden your experience, learn a new job or seeking a new challenge, a lateral move may be just what you're looking for. Every year thousands of Marines take advantage of the lateral move option.

The advantages are many. You keep building your retirement, keep increasing in rank and you're working within an organization you know something about. In short, you're not starting over. You're taking a new direction in your career.

If you don't think you qualify for a lateral move because your GT score is low, think again. You can take the test over any number of times and use only your most recent score.

Plus you're keeping your educational and medical benefits. Talk to your career planner about a lateral move.

You can count on the Corps.

Tax Tips

Amounts paid for interest during 1983 are deductible on tax ret A portion of any casualty loss or theft may be deductible too, accor to financial expert Julius Westheimer.

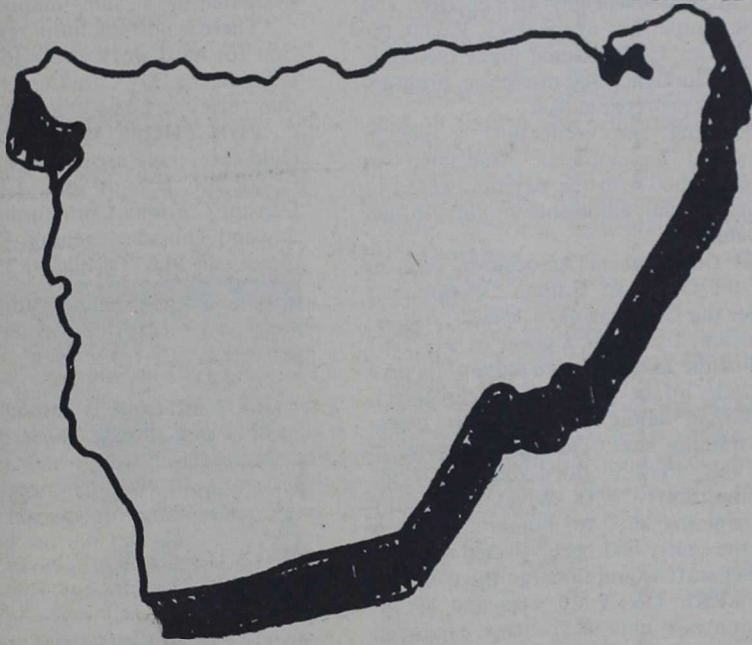

Interest paid last year can be deducted if a taxpayer files the form 1040 and itemizes. Included in those items of interest are: int on a home mortgage, interest on credit card charges, interest on m borrowed from a bank, credit union or another person. Also include the interest installment on a car, television and similar purchases.

As for casualty and theft losses...beginning with 1983, only the u sured part of casualty and theft losses that exceed 10 percent of you come may be deducted. Each separate loss must be reduced by $10.

Money and possessions that are misplaced or lost may no deducted. Neither can objects that are broken or damaged by dise termites, moths or other insects.

Gateway

Little River: The gateway to South Carolina's Grand Strand

Story by Cpl. Pamela Vajner

Stately, moss-draped oaks line the quaint old fishing village of Little River, S.C., as it lies snuggled against the Intracoastal Waterway, 25 miles north of Myrtle Beach.

KNOWN AS THE northern gateway to South Carolina's Grand Strand, Little River retains an old fashioned, quiet ambience of days gone by. Even today a trace of the "Queen's English" can be detected in the language of the fishermen unloading the day's catch from the various fishing vessels harbored in the Little River.

In addition to commercial and charter boat fishing, Little River offers distinct and pleasant surprises in the varied types of restaurants and shops operated by local merchants and craftsmen.

ACCOMODATIONS RANGE FROM modern motels, to camping facilities with trailer hook-ups. Nine excellent restaurants offer a wide variety of foods and cater to both families and sportsmen.

One annual event in Little River is the Arthur Smith King Mackerel Tournament - considered to be the largest fishing tournament in the world.

Another yearly event is the Blue Crab Arts and Crafts Festival. Each spring, artists, craftsmen and entertainers set up along the picturesque waterfront for this three-day celebration. Local seafoods are sold in individual portions for folks to sample. Crabbing contests and crab races are activities that delight both young and old alike.

THE LOCAL RESIDENTS are friendly and hospitable, the pace of life slow and easy. If sand, waves and arcades aren't enough, discover the South Carolina low country in scenic Little River.

Community

A 'home away from home'

Story and photo by Cliff Hill
Community News Reporter

Today, with more parents employed outside of the home, there is a greater need for more than just a "baby sitter."

CHILDREN NEED A place where they will receive more than just basic care. Day care centers fill this void by offering a safe and healthy learning environment which can advance a child's physical and intellectual growth.

One such center is the Staff NCO Wives' Day Care Center, at Tarrawa Terrace, where about 140 children are cared for hourly. The center has five large rooms and a kitchen. The children are separated by age group and depending on the number of children in a room there are from one to three attendants at all times.

"Children's play is their work and that is how they learn. We set up age appropriate activities in each age group," said Barbara Perkins, director of the day care center.

EVEN THE INFANTS have their activity time where they listen and participate in music, conversation and physical activities, according to Perkins.

Last may, Perkins and pre-school teacher Sue Yow received their Child Development Association Credentials. The credentials were presented by Bank Street College of Education of Washington D.C.

The award recognizes professional achievement and is given only to those individuals who have demonstrated their abilities in working with children by successfully completing the requirements of the Child Development Association assessment system.

BEFORE RECEIVING THE award, a candidate must be evaluated by a four-member team, three of whom are from the local area. The team consists of a parent representative of a child who has been in the program, an advisor in the field of education, the candidate and a representative from Banks Street College. Team members observe the candidates working with children and evaluate their competency in six areas. Within the six areas there are 13 functional areas including communication, guidance and discipline, program management and professionalism.

Upon receiving the credential, a person becomes a Child Development Associate. An associate is one who, with the parents, works to aid the physical, social, emotional and intellectual growth of a child.

The Child Development Association receives grants from the Office of Human Development which is under the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Last year a grant of $177,887 was awarded to the association to expand its program to include infant and toddler caregivers. With the grant in hand, the association began looking for training sites. During a meeting in Atlanta last fall, Perkins filled out the forms nominating the Staff NCO Wives Day Care Center as a training site. In January, she was notified that the center had been selected and two members of her staff would undergo the training.

THERE WERE ONLY 20 sites and 40 individuals nationwide chosen for this expanded program.

"It makes me feel quite honored, as there were only 40 people chosen nationwide," said Jewel Etherington, a three-year employee at the center.

Etherington will train for the infant program. The other selectee, Diana Alicia, plans her own day care center when her husband returns from the Marine Corps. Alicia will train for the toddler program.

"I THINK IT is great. It is something needed in this country and I think it is set up something for infants and toddlers. Alicia.

The two ladies must complete the program Perkins and Yow completed and be evaluated in the same manner.

There is nothing more rewarding than recognition for hard work and a job well done. The ladies at the Day Care Center are justified that their work has been recognized.

FOR THOSE WHO would like to enter the field of child care, there are classes now in progress. It is not too late to join. Classes are held at Coastal Carolina Community College every Monday and Thursday evening. For more information please call Mrs. Perkins at 353-5576.

vatively estimated at 400 swelled the ls of Jacksonville's Lutheran Church of avior at 2 p.m., March 18 to witness an and dedication.

CUMSTANCES FIVE MONTHS earlier half a world away, had conspired to make y's local Arbor Day observance solemn but ng occasion dedicted to brave men who gave ull measure in Lebanon and Grenada.

cupping the place of honor in front row rked seats were the fathers and mothers, and brothers, wives and the little ones of who had fallen.

e city of Jacksonville was presented an for being named a "Tree City USA" for urth consecutive year by the National Arbor oundation in Nebraska, but the day belong-he families who had traveled to Jacksonville e formal dedication of the "living memorial es" which line the median of Lejeune vard.

"BLESS THIS LIVING memorial of love given in the cause of peace..." said Lieutenant Danny G. Wheeler, Chaplain, during the invocation. Lt. Wheeler was on the fourth floor of the ill-fated building, Oct. 23, and there are those who feel, as does he, that being there Sunday was, itself a small miracle.

The tragedy in Beirut was spoken of worldwide, was felt nationwide and unified two "cities" into a single community in the words of some speakers.

Explaining the long range plans of the local Tree Board, Chairman Jim Tyndall said, "On Oct. 23, our priorities were altered. We realized we had forgotten our servicemen too long - but, no more."

TYNDALL REMARKED THAT with the planting of the final seven Bradford pear trees, by the visiting relative a few minutes hence, the living memorial of trees - 265, would be complete. There are 262 for Lebanon and three for Marine pilots who fell in Grenada.

The first six trees were planted Dec. 15, in the median of Lejeune Boulevard at the entrance to Camp Johnson, by some of the returned wounded and local relatives.

Brigadier General Fulham told the assemblage,
"That event (Oct. 23) has made an air of oneness between us (base) and the community which we have sought for years. There have been years in the past," he continued, "when we were not one community. That oneness," said BGen.

Fulham, "was the spontaneous reaction of everyone including the youngsters and the senior citizens."

IT WAS A sincere commitment for a better world, said Colonel Timothy Geraghty, commander of the 24th MAU Oct. 23, on the part of the men in Beirut that brought about the tragedy.

"Standing here, in the shadow of the House of God," commented Col. Geraghty, "I say they are the best America has."

Silently, the relatives left their seats and proceeded in groups to the last seven trees in the median of Lejeune Boulevard directly in front of the church.

A YOUNG BOY, perhaps six or seven, had difficulty with the shovel - Col. Geraghty half filled it and handed it to the youth. For the little ones, widow and child held the shovel together.

Two bouquets were placed at the base of this particular tree and then, it was done. As silently as they had come, the relatives seemed to fade and reappear once again on the sunlit church grounds leaving behind only the sound of a camera recording the final image of a man remembered by a "living memorial."

Following the benediction by the host church pastor, Reverend Richard Boger, a reception was held on the church grounds.

SOON THE RELATIVES would depart the area of Jacksonville, but each would leave a part of themselves behind with those who live here and together, we will watch the "living memorial of trees" grow tall and strong and - we will remember.

Basketball

Story by Cpl. Ray Braud
photos by Sgt. Joseph Steele

Although the league is called the "Over the Hill League," the roundballers of Marine Aircraft Group-26 proved to be much less than "over the hill" as they manhandled Marine Corps Engineer School 75-45 in league action March 17.

THE AIRWINGERS IMPROVED their record to 12-0, remaining the only undefeated team in the league. MAG-26 was led in scoring by Staff Sergeant Ronald Crouse who saw limited action and still burned the nets for 17 points. Crouse dominated play on the inside as his presence was made known right off the bat, with a lay-up for the opening basket.

Major Butch Kearney complemented the scoring attack by pumping in 16 points on eight field goals. Gunnery Sergeant Clarence Wesley also hit double figures for the Airwingers with 11 points, five of them coming on free throws.

The Engineer School attack remained practically null and void throughout most of the game, but toward the end of the game, Gunnery Sergeant Andrew Peters got a hot hand, as he led the Engineer School attack with 15 points, all in the second half.

THE AIRWINGERS BUILT up as much as a 35-point lead before clearing the bench and holding on for a 30 point winning margin. The MAG-26 squad held MCES scoreless for the first three minutes of the second half, while they hit for 12 points to build on their 36-14 halftime lead.

The 30-point victory for MAG-26 was the eighth victory for the Airwingers by a margin of 30 points or better. The loss dropped the MCES club to 5-3 for the season.

IN OTHER ACTION last week, MCSSS kept their grip on second place by downing Radio Bn. 82-70 and Naval Hospital 70-57, extending their record to 8-2. The loss by Naval Hospital put them in third place at 8-3. Southern Auto Parts, the only nonmilitary team in the league, improved their record to 5-6 with a victory over Headquarters Battalion, Marine Corps Base, 89-54. The victory was their fifth in the last six games, while Headquarters Bn., dropped to 1-10.

MCSSS sweeps top honors in rifle competition

Story by Cpl. Ray Braud

The Marine Corps Service Support School fared well last week in the Marine Corps Base Intramural Rifle Matches, placing their two entries in first and second place. The MCSSS Red team took first, edging out their Gold team by two points to take the title.

THE MCSSS RED team, took the four man team event with Staff Sergeant Ronald Mills shooting 274 out of a possible 300, First Sergeant Tom Barnett, team coach, shooting a 281, Captain Michael Taylor, team captain, with a 273 and Lance Corporal Richard Steffe with a team high 282. The team total of 1,110 was enough off their counterparts on the MCSSS Gold who shot a team total of 1108.

Headquarters Battalion, Marine Corp finished third in the team competition with total of 1083. The team high shooter for was Captain R. Woodall, who shot a 275 300 to pace the Headquarters team.

MARINE CORPS ENGINEER School fourth with a team total of 1065; Rifle Detachment finished fifth with 1,062 while port Bn. came in sixth with 1059. Infantry School brought up the rear with a 99 total.

In the individual events Staff Sergeant Mills took top honors. The MCSSS Leath shot a blazing 560 out of 600 to take the title. Sergeant Herman Schroeder of Marine Engineer School took third place with a 517.

From here, the Marine Corps Base staff will form a team to participate in the Eastern Regional matches to be held here starting March 30. The team will soon be selected.
