The men carefully exited their tour buses and filed slowly up a flight of stone stairs. Frayed with age, the badges and medals the men proudly wore hung from their dusty jackets. As they neared the landing, a small clearing revealed itself. Flags displaying the colors blue, white, and red, fluttered in the wind. Cheers and applause erupted and trumpets blared. Some of the men naturally fell into step and started marching to the beat of a bass drum.

Even after more than 60 years, the habit is hard to break. With silent regard the men followed a small path that led to their seats. With the arrival of the veterans, the ceremony began.

The Republic of Korea's 20th Mechanized Infantry Division hosted a memorial ceremony for Korean War veterans from the U.S., France, and the ROK, May 27 to commemorate the Battle of Chipyeong-ni in the small village of present day Jipyeong-ri.

The Battle of Chipyeong-ni was a pivotal moment in the history of the Korean War. It took place Feb. 13-15, 1951, in a village approximately 35 miles east of Seoul. Some historians have come to call it the “Gettysburg” of the Korean War as it marked the turning point that provided United Nations troops with much needed hope and optimism.

During the battle, 5,600 Soldiers from the U.S. Army's 23rd Infantry Regimental Combat Team, the French Army Infantry Battalion, and elements of the 6th ROK Division found themselves on low-ground, surrounded by 25,000 soldiers from the Chinese People's Volunteer Army.

Over the course of two nights, the Chinese bombarded U.N. forces with waves of attacks.

Through sheer determination and resolve, U.N. forces held their position and depleted communist forces long enough for reinforcements to arrive and force the Chinese to retreat.

The victory was a major impetus for the start of peace negotiations in July 1951.

“Chipyeong-ri was a significant moment in our collective histories,” said Brig. Gen. Kelly J. Thomas, the assistant division commander for support of the 2nd Infantry Division. “We will not forget the lessons of the past as long as we can continue to honor the memory of those who came before us and learn from their example.”

During the ceremony local Korean school children watched attentively as, representatives from each country laid wreaths to the slow-paced, somber music of the ROK 20th Mech. ID band. Some veterans gave a tearful salute to the monuments commemorating those that died.

“Some call the Korean War the ‘Forgotten War,’” said Korean War veteran and Gilbert, Pa., native, John F. Howard Jr. “It's nice to see recognition for a period in history many folks don't know about.”

After the ceremony, veterans answered questions from active duty Soldiers assigned to the 2nd Combat Aviation Brigade, based out of Camp Humphreys. For one Soldier, the memorial was a lesson in history and a chance to pay respects to the Soldiers that came before her.

“It was an emotional and eye-opening experience,” said Pfc. Andrea L. Staley, a Joint Base Lewis-McChord, Wash., native and a quartermaster and chemical equipment repairer assigned to E Co., 3rd Battalion, 2nd Aviation Regiment, 2nd CAB. “There's a lot of history here that young Soldiers don't know about.”

“We can really learn from these veterans,” she said.

COMMANDER'S CORNER

The Army's Birthday

By Maj. Gen. Michael S. Tucker

2nd ID Commander

On June 14, we will celebrate the Army's 236th birthday. America's Army was born of the need to defend a young nation and you, along with our ROK allies, continue that important mission today.

"From the first battles at Lexington and Concord to the streets of Mosul and Kandahar, Soldiers have always defended freedom and epitomized what is best about America." We will remain the nation's decisive force, the clearest symbol of America's commitment to freedom," said our new Chief of Staff of the Army Gen. Martin Dempsey. "We will remain America's Army, the strength of the nation."

I feel proud, and hope you do as well, to be part of such an honored and respected organization. Each year the military ranks at the very top of the nation's most respected professions. And make no mistake about it, you are all professionals.

You are all a vital part of something greater than yourself. You take pride in your work; you have sworn an oath and live by a strict code of conduct that holds you to a higher standard. You train constantly and strive to improve to ensure you are the best fighting force in the world. These are all marks of a profession rather than a job.

Along with those who came before us, we are part of a rich and storied tradition. Weather you plan to remain in the Army until the end of your obligation, or until retirement, you are all an important part of that tradition now. I thank each of you for your service to this Division, our Army and our nation.

We stand today on the shoulders of our veterans, those who served before us and left their legacy for us to follow and continue to build and improve upon. So on this 236th Army birthday, let us not forget the 120,000 Soldiers we have deployed to Iraq and Afghanistan, as well our brothers and sisters-in-arms who did not return.

President Barack Obama said in his inaugural address, "as we consider the road that unfolds before us, we remember with humble gratitude those brave Americans who, at this very hour, patrol far-off deserts and distant mountains.

"They have something to tell us, just as the fallen heroes who lie in Arlington whisper through the ages. We honor them not only because they are guardians of our liberty, but because they embody the spirit of service: a willingness to find meaning in something greater than themselves."

Along with 2nd ID's Army Birthday Run and the Army Ball, we will celebrate our tradition with Army Birthday cake cutting ceremonies at each of our installations. Take some time to reflect and be proud of who you are as a Soldier and a member of the most respected profession in the United States of America.

As we celebrate another historic Army birthday, I could not be more proud than to be called a Soldier, and to stand shoulder-to-shoulder with you and our ROK allies.

Together, we are and always will be, America's Army; the strength of the nation, Second to None.

2nd ID Soldiers achieve academic excellence

Pfc. Chang, Han-him

2nd ID Public Affairs

It is the responsibility of each 2nd Infantry Division Soldier to stay motivated, physically fit and always be ready to "fight tonight." During their time in Korea, more than 200 Soldiers pushed themselves to not only be physically fit, but intellectually fit as well.

These Soldiers were recognized May 26 at the 2011 Warrior University Recognition Ceremony held at Camp Casey's Carey Fitness Center. Each of them completed five or more classes with at least a 3.0 grade point average and were nominated by their command team.

Maj. Gen. Michael S. Tucker, 2nd ID commander, and Dr. Susan C. Aldridge, University of Maryland University College president, participated in the event to recognize students for their academic excellence and dedication to lifelong learning. The selections were based on the Total Warrior concept that included grades, physical training test scores and weapons qualifications, among other factors.

"I know the kind of dedication, self-discipline, and motivation it takes to open those books up every night after a long day of work, and I can say that because I've worn the rank on your uniform and walked in your shoes," Tucker said to the students.

"You all are an example for your Families and everyone who knows you. Be proud of your accomplishment, because you have achieved something that no one will ever be able to take away from you," he added.

Warrior University opened January 2010 for all 2nd ID personnel. Since the program started, more than 5,500 Soldiers have taken advantage of the program, and those numbers continue to rise. Commanders at every level supported their Soldiers by allowing them time off from work to attend the program's classes every Tuesday and Thursday.

"Warrior University is one of the most successful academic programs," said Aldridge. "It provides a great opportunity and environment for Soldiers to receive education while they are serving. I am so proud to be part of the partnership, and I'm also very honored to be invited here to recognize all of the students who worked so hard. The collaboration between the Army and the universities here brought more faculties and staff here, along with expanded computer labs and testing centers. We are looking forward to offering more classes for Soldiers."

While all the Soldiers at the event were recognized for their efforts, one helicopter mechanic from D Company, 3rd Battalion, 2nd Aviation Regiment was named as the top Warrior scholar.

"It seemed like no one was tracking my effort, studying all weekend while most of the Soldiers were enjoying their time off post, but now I feel like all my hard work is paying off," said Spc. Emmanuel Adu-Gyamfi. "I always wanted to have a Master of Business Administration and the Army gave me the opportunity. Warrior University is a really good program since it not only improves one as an individual, but the Army as an organization. Students will apply the knowledge they earned from class in their work."

The Bronx, N.Y., native added that the basic leadership and management skills he learned while earning his MBA have helped him be a better squad leader.

"I recommended the program to all of the newcomers in my company and seven Soldiers have actually enrolled as students," he said. "I hope many Soldiers can utilize the great opportunity they are given."

Wounded Soldier to receive Medal of Honor

Army News Service

An Army Ranger who lost his right hand and suffered shrapnel wounds after throwing an armed grenade away from his fellow Soldiers will be the second living Medal of Honor Recipient from the conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan.

On July 12, 2011, President Barack Obama will award Sgt. 1st Class Leroy Arthur Petry, with the Medal of Honor for conspicuous gallantry. Petry will receive the Medal of Honor for his courageous actions during combat operations against an armed enemy in Paktya, Afghanistan, May 26, 2008. Petry now serves as part of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 75th Ranger Regiment at Fort Benning, Ga.

"It's very humbling to know that the guys thought that much of me and my actions that day, to nominate me for that," said Petry, on learning he had been nominated for the medal.

At the time of his actions in Afghanistan, Petry was assigned to Delta Company, 2nd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment at Joint Base Lewis-McChord, Wash. Petry's actions came as part of a rare daylight raid to capture a high-value target. On the day of the actions that would earn Petry the Medal of Honor, he was to locate himself with the platoon headquarters in the target building once it was secured. Once there, he was to serve as the senior noncommissioned officer at the site for the remainder of the operation.

Recognizing one of the assault squads needed assistance clearing their assigned building, Petry relayed to the platoon leader that he was moving to that squad to provide additional supervision and guidance during the clearance of the building. Once the residential portion of the building had been cleared, Petry took a fellow member of the assault squad, Pfc. Lucas Robinson, to clear the outer courtyard. Petry knew that area had not been cleared during the initial clearance.

Petry and Robinson, both Rangers, moved into an area of the compound that contained at least three enemy fighters who were prepared to engage friendly forces from opposite ends of the outer courtyard. The two Soldiers entered the courtyard. To their front was an opening followed by a chicken coop. As the two crossed the open area, an enemy insurgent fired on them. Petry was wounded by one round, which went through both of his legs. Robinson was also hit in his side plate by a separate round.

While wounded and under enemy fire, Petry led Robinson to the cover of the chicken coop. The enemy continued to deliver fire at the two Soldiers. As the senior Soldier, Petry assessed the situation and reported that contact was made and that there were two wounded Rangers in the courtyard of the primary target building.

Upon hearing the report of two wounded Rangers, Sgt. Daniel Higgins, a team leader, moved to the outer courtyard. As Higgins was moving to Petry and Robinson's position, Petry threw a thermobaric grenade in the vicinity of the enemy position. Shortly after that grenade exploded – which created a lull in the enemy fire – Higgins arrived at the chicken coop and assessed the wounds of the two Soldiers.

While Higgins evaluated their wounds, an insurgent threw a grenade over the chicken coop at the three Rangers.

The grenade landed about 10 meters from the three Rangers, knocked them to the ground, and wounded Higgins and Robinson. Shortly after the grenade exploded, Staff Sgt. James Roberts and Spc. Christopher Gathercole entered the courtyard, and moved toward the chicken coop.

With three Soldiers taking cover in the chicken coop, an enemy fighter threw another grenade at them. This time, the grenade landed just a few feet from Higgins and Robinson.

Recognizing the threat that the enemy grenade posed to his fellow Rangers, Petry – despite his own wounds and with complete disregard for his personal safety – consciously and deliberately risked his life to move to and secure the live enemy grenade and consciously throw the grenade away from his fellow Rangers, according to battlefield reports.

As Petry released the grenade in the direction of the enemy, preventing the serious injury or death of Higgins and Robinson, it detonated and catastrophically amputated his right hand. With a clear mind, Petry assessed his wound and placed a tourniquet on his right arm. Once this was complete, he reported that he was still in contact with the enemy and that he had been wounded again.

After the blast that amputated Petry's hand, Roberts began to engage the enemy behind the chicken coop with small arms fire and a grenade. His actions suppressed the insurgents behind the chicken coop. Shortly after, another enemy on the east end of the courtyard began firing, fatally wounding Gathercole.

Higgins and Robinson returned fire and killed the enemy.

Moments later, Sgt. 1st Class Jerod Staidle, the platoon sergeant, and Spc. Gary Depriest, the platoon medic, arrived in the outer courtyard. After directing Depriest to treat Gathercole, Staidle moved to Petry's position. Staidle and Higgins then assisted Petry as he moved to the casualty collection point.

Higgins later wrote in a statement, "if not for Staff Sergeant Petry's actions, we would have been seriously wounded or killed."

U.S.-ROK alliance too strong for Mother Nature

Story by Cpl. Tim Oberle

2nd CAB Public Affairs

Soldiers from the 2nd Assault Battalion, 2nd Aviation Regiment, 2nd Combat Aviation Brigade, and Republic of Korea Soldiers from the 601st Aviation Battalion and the 703rd Special Attack Regiment conducted a combined air assault May 13 near K-16 Airbase despite the event being cancelled just two days earlier due to torrential rains.

“The air assault was originally scheduled to be conducted at Tactical Assembly Area Tom, but heavy rains and nearly four feet of flooding from the Chung Ju River prompted the change in plans,” said Maj. Aaron McPeake, the officer in charge of Operations for 2-2nd Avn.

“Instead of conducting the air assault on May 11, we extracted around 255 Soldiers from TAA Tom,” McPeake said. “Ironically the training from the air assault really paid off during the extraction, because all of our Soldiers were already well prepared to fly into a tight space and extract a large number of personnel,” added McPeake.

As soon as the emergency extraction of U.S. personnel from TAA Tom was complete, we immediately turned the page and begin making adjustments to the original air assault with the ROK Army,” said McPeake.

“The lessons learned from a combined operation are far too important to miss a chance to train with our ROK counterparts,” said McPeake, “so we made the necessary adjustments and two days later both sides were ready to go.”

“The main thing that we had to adjust was the staging area,” said McPeake. “We had to move it from TAA Tom to the flight-line here, so we cooperated with the ROK 15th Composite Wing, also stationed here, to free up the flight line while the operation was taking place. We didn’t have much time to give them notice, but somehow within 48 hours they were able to make it happen.”

During the air assault, 27 U.S. and ROK UH-60 Blackhawks dropped about 270 ROK commandos from the 703rd Special Attack Regiment into a scenario driven training environment and then came back to extract the commandos two hours later. During the drop, six ROK AH-1 Cobras provided route reconnaissance and protective cover. In total, 36 U.S. and ROK helicopters were used.

“With that many birds in the air, the success of the operation really hinges on timing to make sure that everybody is in rhythm,” said McPeake. “Despite all of the last minute adjustments we were able to sync with the ROK 601st Aviation Battalion without any problems,” he said.

Lt. Col. Erik Gilbert, the commander of 2-2nd Avn. echoed the same sentiment.

“The air assault was the culmination of more than five-months of detailed planning and training with our ROK counterparts, said Gilbert. “Being able to conduct an emergency extraction then recover and meet the objective within 10 seconds of the designated time is the direct result of hard, realistic training at the company level.”

The hard, realistic training and detailed planning of 2-2nd Avn. has not gone unnoticed.

The battalion was named “Outstanding Aviation Battalion of the Year for the Korean peninsula” by the Army Aviation Association of America on May 6, about a week before the air assault took place.

Dive into MAY FEST

Story by Pfc. Choi Jung-hwan
2nd ID Public Affairs

Camp Casey's annual May Fest was held May 27 and marked the grand re-opening of Hanson Pool.

After seven months of construction, Hanson Swimming Pool was re-opened to the Area I Soldiers and Families.

"May Fest is an annual event but this year, it's certainly more special because of the brand new pool we have," said Lt. Col. Richard A. Fromm, commander of United States Army Garrison Casey.

"The pool we used to have was not suitable for children because it was too deep for them to swim in," said Fromm. "We started planning the new pool two years ago, and the construction began last year November."

The additions of a shallow pool and water slides for children will provide a great opportunity for Families to hang out, said Marenzo Domingo, entertainment and special events coordinator of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation.

"USAG Humphreys was the only place with a pool suitable for all families. With the fully renovated Hanson pool finally open, Area 1 has its own pool that is more accommodating for Families," said Domingo.

The May Fest was full of events and contests for everyone: a Family bazaar, carnival games, a go-kart timed-lap contest, a car model photo shoot, and an Asian-Pacific dinner show.

"May Fest is a perfect opportunity for Families to come out and enjoy something specific to the season," said Domingo.

Many Soldiers used May Fest as an opportunity to spend quality time with their spouses and children.

Spc. Jonathan Riddle, a Soldier assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 1st Battalion, 15th Field Artillery, brought his wife, who sold things at the bazaar, and two his children to the festival.

"It's awesome. My kids are thoroughly enjoying this festival," said Riddle, an Arlington, Texas native. "They are too young to swim so we needed to find a children's swimming pool. The new Hanson pool makes it easier for us to go swimming together."

"I will probably come here with my family at least twice a month this summer," he added.
