Letter To The Editor:

Sloppy Marines Deplored

The recent policy of apprehending Marines in Jacksonville for being out of uniform and subsequently requiring action by their CO's to obtain their release is definitely a step in the right direction, even if long overdue. The privilege of wearing utilities and WS "C" to and from work and residence has been badly abused in this area. Maybe now some units will start "policing up" their own Marines. However, this policy should be put to use not only in Jacksonville, but on bace as well. I have wat to visit the WY and act observe but on base as well. I have yet to use not only in JackSonVille, but on base as well. I have yet to visit the PX and not observe numerous Marines violating uniform regulations, i.e. cover on back of head, ragged utilities, hands in pocket, buttons missing, field jackets open, cuffs unbuttoned, and a noticeable absence of neat Jackets open, cuffs unbattoned, and a noticeable absence of neat haircuts. In short, they are a complete disgrace to the Corps. Evidently their leaders are not doing their job or these Marines would not be appearing like "Pete the Tramp," so to speak. I cannot believe that these Marines are squared away in their unit area and then "Fall apart" as soon as they depart the unit area. In any case, it is a clear indication of poor discipline and esprit-de-corps. On every occasion that lencounter these Marines, I take corrective action on the spot, but I cannot do it all myself. I could per sonally escort them to their own lstSgt, but this would be a full time job, not leaving any time for my regular diffes. My primary concern is keeping the Ma ines in my own unit squared away. If every leader

Not leaving any time for my regular times, my primary concern is keeping the Ma inces in my own unit squared away. If every leader would "police up" his troops, this condition would not exist. But since this is not being done, the only solution left seems to be that of having M.P.'s apprehend these individuals and require their CO's action to procure their release, or issue uniform violation tickets that would require disciplinary action.

EDITORIAL Do You Qualify?

Recruitment of qualified per-sonnel to fill the ever-increasing number of vacancies in poranks has become a major problem for city, county, state and federal law enforcement agencies.

The Department of Defense, at the request of the President, has announced a program in which the services will assist civilian po-lice agencies in bringing their forces up to strength.

Under Department of the Army direction, the new program has developed into a two-prong effort by the Department of Defense and civilian officials to interest those military personnel with less than six months to serve in law en-forcement careers. Begun less than a month ago, the program allows both direct person-to-person on-base and indirect off-base recruitment of military per-sonnel within the 50 states by legally constituted law enforcement agencies.

The program excludes from these recruiting efforts any representatives of private or cor-porate police organizations, and positions filled by public election or political appointment.

On-base recruitment includes direct contact during duty hours by appropriate police officials, while off-base recruitment (gene-rally instituted by the ser-viceman himself) may include the required physical examina-tions, tests administered by military education personnel, and the reasonable availability of the ser-viceman for off-base interviews.

Should a serviceman accept a firm written contract for employment with a legally constituted law enforcement agency, the program calls for an early release for those with less than 90 days to serve on their military enlistment contract and release from the military at least 10 days prior to the effective date of employment with a public police department. #### New Name

The title and designation of the Commandant, Marine Corps Schools, has been changed to Commanding General, Marine Corps Development and Educa-Command according to Base Bulletin 5450.

Have you noticed the various styles affected in the wearing of the utility cover? You must have, because daily it becomes more and more unlikely that you will meet two other Marines wearing their covers in a manner identical to the way you are wearing yours. As a means of keeping my own awareness of this problem alive, I have devised a table or chart of Descriptive Names of Covers, Types of Marines Wearing Each, and Recommend-ed Corrective Procedures. I offer my list herewith for your consideration.

-Civil War Cap: Front of crown pulled down sharp-to meet with visor. These are usually worn by "young-h" self-imagined veterans of many conflicts, self-pro-ssed "Old Corps" Marnies, yearners for adventures ish" isn' sen-imagned veterans of many connects, sen-pro-fessed "Old Corps" Marnies, yearners for adventures which they believe they have missed through someone else's fault. Corrective Action: Complete immersion in the nearest washing machine, lavatory, or scuttle-butt ... preferably while still on the wearer's head, to insure proper shaping.

—Pork-Pie Hat: Entire crown of cap flattened to level of the sweatband, enabling coverage of only the upper two inches of the wearer's head. Worn by those who have extremely long, curly, wavy hair, too-tight shirt and trousers, and a rolling, swaggering gait. Usually referred to as "cool cats" by their contemporaries, the "pork-pie" wearers speak a language all their own, punctuated by such words as Crary, Daddy-O, Cool, Gear, Tuff, etc. Corrective Action: Mandatory shearing of the fair locks from the sweatband of the cover clear to the collar of the shirt. This will tend to lower the sweatband dramati-cally, with proportionate heightening of the crown. —Frankenstein Fedora: Heavy starch and blocking which leaves the wearer with the appearance of pos-sessing an eight-inch-high skull. Several types fit into this usage category — those who picture themselves as designers, those who prefer the headgear of the Army or the French Foreign Legion, and (s'artlingly) those who are immaculately dressed in starched, pressed utilities, who have their brass shined perfectly, and whose boots gleam with mirror shines. Corrective Action: Require all Ma-rines to fold and insert cover into their hip pockets each time they enter a building. —Mechanics.Cloth Cover. Defines identification as to -Pork-Pie Hat: Entire crown of cap flattened to level time they enter a building. —Mechanics-Cloth Cover: Defies identification as to color, shape, age, origin, or fabric. The wearer of this style might best be described as "The man who has everything ... except soap." No change of appearance from the basic structural design. Wearers are Marines. Well-adjusted, squared-away, top-notch, honest-to-goodness Ma-rines. They may, just may, prefer some other design, but until such a change comes along, they'll wear it in the manner intended. And they'll do it with pride.

During Operation Union I Sergeant Campbell led his men to within five yards of an enemy patrol and captured seven of its number without calling attention to his position. The capture resulted in the acquisition of vital intelligence information. Sergeant Campbell participated in more than 47 long-range reconnaissance patrols,

"On one occasion, as patrol leader of a six man patrol op-erating in a Viet Cong control-led area near Chu Lai, he ob-served a large, well camouflaged enemy force moving towards his unit. Skillfully positioning his men, he withheld their fire as the enemy passed within fifteen yards of his unit and then directed and adjusted a heavy volume of arti-llery fire on the Viet Cong, inflicting heavy losses on the enemy."

Every year about this time, carbon monoxide begins to take its toll, in automobiles and in garages, cabins, motels and homes

Many doctors and safety ex-perts are convinced that some of the unexplained one-car ac-cidents have their origins in the drowsiness which is one of the first symptoms of monoxide poisoning

Carbon monoxide is an odorless, tasteless gas which is un-detectable by the human senses. It results from the incomplete combustion of any fuel. The burning of gasoline in automobiles is a prime offender. Gas space heaters, cookers and refrigera-tors also are common origins of the gas. A fau faulty muffler or tail pipe A faulty muffler or tail pipe greatly increases the hazard of monoxide seeping up into the car. Because it is lighter than the surrounding air, it rises and is trapped under the car and makes its way upward through any opening any opening. To avoid this, never drive a car tightly closed unless there is a forced air-condition system operating perfectly. It only takes a small amount of carbon monoxide to render a person unconscious.

Many persons pull trailers or boats behind their cars. The trailing vehicles cause exhaust fumes to feed back and under the car. Keep a window open at all times.

Station wagon owners should not drive with the back window open unless there is good ventila-tion in the front of the car. Exhaust tends to enter the car through the open rear window. Make it a habit to drive with

Combat Engineers Get Unique Experiences

Force Troops combat enginers are getting some unique construction experience during a building project in the remote swamps of Pamlico Sound about 50 miles north of Camp Lejeune.

The area of construction is the Marine Corps Aerial Target range on Piney Island. The en-gineers from the 8th Engineer Battalion are moving an observation tower and constructing a series of helicopter landing pads.

Movement of the observation tower was decided upon after heavy seas in the area endangered small boats taking bombing observers to the tower. The helicopters are being used to lift the observation building inland after a new tower is built by the engineers.

The helicopter landing pads are being constructed of used jet engine containers which are flown into the swampy area from Cherry Point.

These containers will be placed near the three towers at the bombing range to enable the landing of the observation crews on the range in rough weather.

GLOBE, FRIDAY, JANUARY 12, 1968 Works Prove Faith, Demonstrate Character

Our works do not save us but they reveal our character. They demonstrate our faith. If we are genuine followers of Christ, our lives will be filled with good If we are professors in works. name only, we shall find it im-possible to produce good works at least not for long.

This is well illustrated by a story involving a scorpion and a turtle. The scorpion, wanting to cross a river, and being sing-ularly inept at swimming, said to the turtle, "Let me hitch a ride on your back as you swim across.

"Are you mad?" protested the turtle, "You'll sting me while I'm swimming, and I'll drown, "My dear turtle," replied the scorpion, "If I were to sting you, you would drown and I would go down with you. Now where is the logic in that?"

After a moment's thought, the turtle, apparently convinced by the scorpion's argument, agreed to give him a ride. "Hop on," he said. The scorpion climbed aboard and the turtle slid into the water. He was nearly half-way across the river when the scorpion gave him a merciless sting. Rendered helpless by the attack, the turtle sank to the bottom, carrying his passenger with him. With an air of re-signation, he turned to the scorpion and said, "Do you mind if I ask you something? You said there'd be no logic in your stinging me. Why did you do it?" "It has nothing to do with logic," the drowning scorpion re-plied. "It's just your character." our works reveal our Yes, character; they show what is in the heart. If our faith has laid hold on the righteousness of Christ, our lives will demonstrate the fact. But without good works, how hollow are our claims of piety; how empty our insistance that we belong to works, Christ. May our lives today bear powerful witness to the fact that our faith is genuine, that our love for Christ is real. Chaplain A.G. Seniavsky, USN

Teen-agers seem to be more susceptible to tooth decay than any other age group, reports the American Dental Association, currently celebrating the 20th National Children's Dental Health Week, February 4-10.

According to the ADA, recent studies have shown that 80 per cent of all dental patients under the age of 20 have teeth needing filling and that the average number of decayed teeth increases with age. Presently, the ADA estimates, the average 15-yearold in this country has 11 de-cayed, missing or filled teeth - more than one-third of his teeth damaged before he's even reached adulthood.

Dental neglect during childhood as well as a diet rich in sweets and poor oral hygiene habits ac-count for most of the dental problems of our teen-agers, charges the ADA.

Noting that clean, healthy teeth are one of the greatest assets a young boy or girl can have-in terms of health and in one's career and social life-the ADA advises parents of teens that proper toothbrushing and restriction of sweets are absolutely essential for adolescents.

The ADA points out that what is sometimes termed the high cost of dental care is, in reality, the high cost of dental neglect and offers a four-point program for good dental health.

1. Regular And Careful Toothbrushing Immediately After Eat-Tooth decay is cause by ing. mouth acids which are formed by the action of bacteria in the mouth on food. Brushing the teeth immediately after eating removes food particles before the bacteria can get to workand helps to prevent decay. Regular toothbrushing should be an integral part of every person's good grooming regimen,

2. A Well-Balanced Diet With Minimum Of Sweet, Sticky oods, Especially Between Foods, Especially Between Meals. Sweet, sticky foods provide a direct invitation to cavi-ties. Cutting down on sweets and substituting "cleaning" and substituting "cleaning" foods, such as apples and raw carrots, can help prevent cavities.

REGULAR DENTAL EXAM-INATIONS. Periodic checkups en-able the dentist to detect -- and correct -- dental problems at an early stage. During a regular ex-amination, the dentist can also give the teeth a thorough cleaning, one of the most effective measures for preventing peridon-tal, or gum, disease.

4. Fluoridation. The ADA strongly urges fluoridation of community water supplies as the most effective means of reducing tooth decay. There is also con-siderable evidence that topical applications of fluoride help prevent decay.

Control Dates Govern Housing List

In an effort to inform those personnel waiting for housing on Base, the Base Housing Department has prepared the below chart on the different units at Camp Lejeune.

The dates which appear opposite each unit by rank indicate the control date of the first man on the waiting list. The date is that which indicates the time an individual left his last duty station on orders here or applied for housing if on original tour.

Judging by the control date, each individual on the list will have some idea of when his turn comes up for assignment to quarters.

The chart will be printed quarterly in the GLOBE with the up-to-date control dates listed. The present chart is correct as of January 12.

3/6 Outclasses Anti-tanks, 95-71

By PFC Andrew Lynch Third Battalion, Sixth Marines outclassed Anti-Tank Battalion 95-71 Wednesday afternoon to gain a crack at the championship in the Division Holiday Tournament. Game results will be published next week.

The Three/Six Panthers combined the fast break and deadly outside shooting with aggressive defensive play. They continually stole the ball and broke upplays, harassing AT Bn. with a full court press.

Instrumental in the Panther's success was Chris Shazier. Shazier was deadly accurate with his jump shot around the key. He began the afternoon by clicking on his first eight shots, finishing the half with a sizzling 70% from the field and 17 points. Shazier poured in another 16 points in the final frame, amassing 33 for the afternoon on 14 field goals and five free throws.

Complimenting Shazier's 33 point outburst was a 23 point performance by Eddie Thomas and 22 points by Mike Thompson. Thomas tossed in 11 buckets and one free throw while Thompson was good for 10 from the field and two charity tosses. Three/ Six's big trio combined to score 78 of the Panther's 91 points.

AT was not without it's heroes. Big Al Marks led the AT offense with 23 points. His strength and maneuverability under the boards gave him 11 field goals. He also pumped in one free throw. Mark's biggest asset was his re-bounding, which enabled Anti-Tanks to control the boards, es-pecially during the second half. Rounding out the AT's balanced attack were double figure efforts by John Eddings, John Campbell and Marvin Watson, Eddings tallied 14 points and Campbell and Watson scored 13 and 12 respectively.

The game began with the Panthers thers jumping off with a quick 8-1 lead which they stretched to 12-3 with 15:34 remaining in the half. They boosted their lead to 27-13 as their smooth offensive machine continually stymied AT. Although AT dominated the boards, they were unable to mount a sustained scoring streak. The half ended with Three/Six commanding a substantial 50-34 margin. Second half action saw a revitalized Anti-Tank team roar out on the floor. The men from AT outscored the cold Panthers, 16-7 in the first seven minutes of play. With the score 57-50, John Eddings clicked on a jump shot from the right side, and Al

Marks bulled under the basket for a two point lay-up, Sudden-ly the 16 point Three/Six half time lead had been cut 12 points to 58-54.

However, as quickly as it had begun Anti-Tank's momentum was stopped, and Three/Six re-gained the sharpness they had shown in the first haif, Combin-ing the foot break with Threeze ing the fast break with Thomas's tap-ins of any stray outside shot, the Panthers pushed ahead 67-59. Three minutes later they led by 13 points, 77-64. Three/ Six coasted the final minutes of play unchallenged.

BIG SCORER – Chris Shaziek scores again enroute to a 33 point performance for Three/Six. Unable to stop him is AT guard, John Eddings. (Globe Staff photo)

SANDRA DURAN

The Southern Belles, a barnstorming women's basketball team, will play the Camp Le-jeune Allstars January 16 at the Goettge Field House. The fes-tivities will begin at 7 p.m. and admission is frac admission is free.

The Belles, billed as Am-rica's greatest professional erica's girls basketball team, play between 180-200 games annually, all against men's teams. They select women from areas where girl's basketball is played in high school and college, and field one of the best teams in the country. Half time entertainment will feature a show by these "Dar-lings of the Hardwood", con-sisting of trick shots, dribbling atics, and a ball balancing routine. The team's captain and leading scorer is Pat Overman(Miss Basketball), Pat is a veteran of seven years of professional bas-ketball, having played 1200 games in 49 of the 50 states.

Glenda Ledbetter, in her thira season of professional bas-ketball, is the team's most entertaining performer. She combines good basic basketball with uncanny trick shots.

Mickey Gay is the Belles outside shooting ace, and Connie Sanders is the team's big pivot. Six feet two inch Connie is noted for her ability around the boards. Rounding out this squad is five foot six inch Sandy Duran. Although relatively short, Sandy's quick moves and great strength make her the most exciting ball handler on the team.

Boxing-Family Entertainment

GLOBE, FRIDAY, JANUARY 12, 1968

3 January 1968

Editorial

Dear "Coach" Rogers, Having attended your boxing team's past two home matches, I think it's time to write the first "fan letter", as such, of my career. As part of our program for activities which the whole family can enjoy, my wife and I and our two sons, ages 6 and 7, set out for the Fieldhouse one Friday night (admittedly with some reservation as to how entertaining a boxing match could be since none of us had ever seen a live match). We returnedhome with sore palms, hoarse throats, and eager anticipation of the next match. In becoming avid boxing fans, we have benefitted not only from the obvious entertainment aspects of the sport, but also we have discov-ered yet another source of pride in our fellow Marines. We count ourselves fortunate to be associated, albeit impersonally, with men of such caliber as your boxers. Regardless of the "win and loss" columns — which, of course, have thus far been in our favor - the team consistently scores high in a third column- that of "demeanor," in which they appear flawless. They have heart, spirit, and drive.

in which they appear flawless. They have heart, spirit, and drive. In short, they're Marines. And we're proud of them! Please extend to every man on the team our congratulations for their exciting victory of the Navy team from Norfolk (especially to "Chief" Phillips), and best wishes for continued success throughout the hoving season the boxing season.

minute baskets, opened up in the third frame to push their lead to ten, 38-28. This seemed to take the fight out of White Oak who allowed the Pups, via Gute-kunst and Argetsinger, to again outscore them by ten points in the fourth period, 23-13. Scoring honors for both teams were taken by Rick Gutekunst who tallied 18 points, connecting with eight field goals and two of five charity tosses.

Complimenting Gutekunst's 18 points were double figure efforts by Ron Caves and Argetsinger. Caves poured in 17 and Argetsinger 15. Davis was the only Red Devil to score in double figures. He tallied 13 points.

In the Pup's second encoun-ter with White Oak on Tuesday, the hapless Red Devils again fell victim to second half pres-sure, succumbing 70-49.

White Oak played Lejeune ev-enly during most of the first half. The lead see-sawed back and forth, and at the buzzer the scoreboard saw the Pups with only a three point advantage. Second frame activity was a different story. Led by their big three, Rick Gutekunst, Ron Caves and Lane Argetsinger, Le-jeune dominated the boards and poured in 23 points while hold-ing the energy to 11 ing the enemy to 11.

Sparkplug for the Devil Pups was Rick Gutekunst, who tallied 25 points. Gutekunst tossed in 12 field goals and went one for four from the free throw line. Rounding out the big three's offensive punch was a 16 point total by Argetsinger and a 14 point effort by Caves.

The Pups now have a five and three record. They seek win number six tonight at Pamlico.

And Get It-Base Food Facilities 6 ome

How long has it really been, Mr. and Mrs. Marine, since you had a sizzling Top Sirloin Steak, charcoal broiled to your order in the most modern of dining rooms?

Maybe your tastes run to the short order treat or you may be the one who wants a special food order delivered to your quarters aboard the Base.

Whatever your desires in the way of food, the Marine Corps Exchange Food Facilities here stand ready and willing to fill them.

For a really delicious steak, y the Steak House located in Building No. 1006 in the Industrial Area. It is gaily decorated in modern dining room decor and is ready to tempt your taste buds royally. With an ultra-modern kitchen and efficient staff, the Steak House is open to serve you from Sunday, for an evening out with the family. Friday and Saturday hours are extended until 10 p.m. for the late diner.

Reservations

With advance telephone request (7-5672) the Steak House can accommodate large parties. During Monday when these Exchange facilities are closed, it is avail-able to authorized Exchange patrons for parties, receptions, and other private functions. These facilities are under the direction of the Marine Corps Exchange Food Director, Mr. David L. Reynolds, and are man-aged by Mrs. Loretta DePratter.

For that fast meal during the noon hour or if you didn't get a chance for breakfast before going to work, the Exchange offers the facilities of the cafeteria in Building No. 1006 from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. daily except Saturday and Sunday. Breakfast menus are served from 7 to 10 a.m. and a luncheon menu from 11:30 until 13:30 p.m. Also included is a snack bar for fast sandwiches and fountain refreshments operated from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Visitors to the Hostess House are acquainted with the dining room and snack bar within that facility as are those persons who work in the area of the Hostess

House. This facility, open 7 days a week, offers a wide menu range for breakfast, lunch, and dinner as well as snack items.

Other Exchange food facilities are located in the Bonneman Bowling Center, the Main Ex-change, Building No. 84, the Golf Course Club House and at various branch Exchanges scattered throughout the Base.

The services of these Marine Corps Exchange Food Services facilities are available to all persons stationed, working aboard or visiting aboard the Base during normal working hours.

However, after working hours and on weekends and holidays, patronage is restricted to authorized Marine Corps Exchange patrons and their bona fide guests.

Since pastries seem to be in high demand throughout all the food activities operated by the Exchange, a bakery to take care of all pastry needs of these facilities is in operation in the Indus-trial Area Cafeteria.

You may also special order your individual needs for birth-days or other occasions from this facility.

Former VC Now Kit Carson Alumni

QUANG TRI - Hoang Phieu is a wizened little man, arms and face brown as betel nuts, who has eked out a living from the land for most of his 56 years in the Gio Linh area im-mediately south of the demilitarized zone.

He raised a family of four children, and for the most part, remained oblivious to the political and military currents swirling over the country.

However, in 1966 the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese moved into the area in force. Hoang, who had become a hamlet chief, was a prime target for the commu-nist political machine and in March of that year became a Viet Cong.

He served for six months but then fled south with his family and surrendered to government forces as a Chieu Hoi.

Last month, 56 - year old, Hoang underwent a rigid threeyear old, week physical, weapons and military training program and was-then graduated as a Kit Carson Hoang is the oldest graduate of the program. He has again been sent north to serve with the Ninth Marine Regiment in and around Gio Linh.

Hoang was one of 32 former VC graduating in the third Kit Carson training program.

Hoang was classed as a "good" student by his Marine and Vietnamese instructors, and showed no signs of weakness during the twice daily physical education classes. The youngest member of the class was 17-year-old versus Hoang's 56.

The latest class scored an-other "first" graduating two two Montagnard mountain people to with the Twenty-sixth serve Marine Regiment at Khe Sanh. The difficulty of training the Montagnards is compounded be-cause of language. They often need an interpreter to speak to lowland people.

Civil Affairs Like Peace Corps

DA NANG - "I took the job because at one time I wanted to be in the Peace Corps and civil affairs is the nearest thing to it the Marine Corps has," according to Cpl Gerald Schef-fler, (Mazeppa, Minn.). Scheffler is attached to the civil affairs office of the 1st Bn., Se-venth Marine Regiment, 1st Marine Division.

When he arrived in Vietnam during October, 1966, "Schef" was a rifleman with "B" Co. After being wounded twice, he was given the opportunity to join civil affairs.

"We go right into the villages and meet with the elders to dis-cuss their problems and needs," he said, "We talk about the Ma-rines and their relationship with rines and their relationship with the Vietnamese. "Working with the people out in the rice paddy is the only way this war is going to be won," Scheffler feels. According to Scheffler, the most rewarding aspect of his work is in the field of medical aid offered to the people. "It's surprising how many of the people come to us for medi-

The biggest problem faced by Leathernecks in the 1st Bn., Seventh Marines' area, south-west of Da Nang, is Viet Cong booby traps.

"Each dog has a handler. Together these two form what is known as a 'scout team,' " Be-rryhill said. "This team is responsible for providing ground units in the area with the means of 'smelling out' the enemy." At present, Berryhill's teams are working on recon patrols but have worked on combat patrols and on large-scale operations, On a mission, whether recon or combat, the scout dog and his handler are seldom far from the action.

"This depends a great deal on wind direction and velocity," Berryhill said. "If the wind is favorable, the team will always be at the point of a patrol for maximum detection,"

Once a scout dog detects an alien presence, his reaction re-sembles that of his counterpart, the hunting dog.

"Although every dog will re-act somewhat differently, the majority will assume the stance of the bird dog," Berryhill said. "He'll tense, stand perfectly still and then point toward the find with his entire body."

Unlike the sentry dog, the scout dog is trained only to detect and not to attack.

"Their training is entirely dif-ferent," Berryhill noted. "The sentry dog is kept in a state of aggressiveness.

The scout dog, along with his handler, receives a l2-week in-tensive training course by Army instructors at Fort Benning, Ga.

"Cuss Fund" Ends Swearing

By Cpl. David Martinez

DA NANG - A Marine who DA NANG — A Marine who had the problem of getting rid of his "rough" language before meeting his wife on R&R in Hawaii has solved it with a "cuss fund."

LCpl. David A, De Santis (Han-over, Mass.) assigned to the S-3 section, 1st Bn., Fifth Marine Re-giment, 1st Marine Division thought of the idea when he be-gan to worry abouthis occasional "cuss" words. One of his bud-dies suggested a fund into which a dime would be derosited after a dime would be deposited after each cuss.

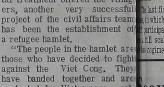

The idea caught on, and now a said of it with B, and the S-3 personnel contribute adding Santis plans to donate the pro-santis plans to donate the pro-ceeds to the Vietnamese orphan-age at Hoi An, near the battalion command post.

Before joining the Marine liars, Corps, De Santis was a pro-fessional illustrator for the Law rence Associates and Gillette of Boston, In his present assign ment he works at drafting, map making and occasional training aid illustrations. Before joining the Marine
