New GI Bill Gives Increased Benefits

Veterans who have been accepted for college on their release from active duty should apply immediately to the Veterans Administration office for benefits available to them under the G. I. Bill.

W. R. Phillips, Manager of the North Carolina VA Regional Office, said veterans with more than 180 days of continuous military service, with any part of that time after January 31, 1955, are eligible for monthly educational allowances of $130 or more from the Veterans Administration.

Application forms may be obtained from the Base Education Office and forwarded to the VA Regional Office near your home of record with a copy of your separation document, DD Form 214.

The VA Regional Office will then issue the qualified veterans a certificate of eligibility which he should submit to the school when he enrolls.

"While the VA has to wait until the college certifies that the veteran has enrolled before it can start sending VA allowance checks," Phillips said, "the VA has simplified the form the college must use, and students should receive checks shortly after the end of each month."

"However," Phillips said, "it would be wise for students to be prepared to pay their own expenses for a short period of time to be sure they are not caught short of funds before legal requirements are met and VA can start the flow of checks. Once allowance checks start, they may be expected to continue without interruption for the enrollment period certified by the school.

"But a different procedure ap-

...that according to Joint Travel Regulations corporals over four years and higher enlisted ranks are entitled to an amount equal to their basic allowance for quarters whenever their dependents relocate their household in connection with a permanent change of station. This is in addition to other allowances. However, those electing to receive trailer allowances are not entitled to dislocation allowance.

School Zone Speed Reg Explained

Information concerning speed limits in school zones on base and in the housing areas has caused some confusion as to exactly what speed limits apply. Speed limit, in school zones, is as posted for that particular area, subject to the following consideration. Caution signs, in bright orange, with the word "SCHOOL" appearing on them have been erected on all roads leading to schools. Upon seeing these signs, drivers should SLOW DOWN and EXERCISE EXTREME CAUTION keeping ever alert for the possibility of children entering the roadway. Section 401.4f of BO P5560.2C is the applicable regulation and is quoted here-with in part: "Notwithstanding the fact that the speed of a motor vehicle is lower than the limits provided, the driver of such vehicle shall decrease his speed when special hazards exist with respect to pedestrians or other traffic."

Further, drivers operating vehicles in school zones are reminded that they are REQUIRED TO STOP AND YIELD THE RIGHT - OF - WAY to children crossing the street or road in a marked crosswalk.

3/2 Deploys To Guantanamo

The 3d Battalion, 2d Marines, 2d Marine Division departed Camp Lejeune, N. C., Sept. 6, for a four-month deployment to Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

The Battalion, under the Command of Lieutenant Colonel William M. VanZuyen, will serve as part of the ground defense force at the Guantanamo Naval Base, relieving the 3d Battalion, 6th Marines, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel William S. Fagan. The 3d Battalion, 6th Marines left Camp Lejeune, on May 4, 1967.

The 3d Battalion, 2d Marines, will depart from Morehead City, N. C., aboard the USS ROCKBRIDGE and the USS WASKI-KUM COUNTY. Relatives and friends are reminded that they will not be allowed to enter the docking area on departure day.

LTGEN. KANG KI CHUN

The general's two day tour of the Base is part of a 17-day visit to various Marine Corps installations and U.S. cities.

The official party will arrive Monday morning and is scheduled to depart in the early Tuesday afternoon.

During his stay here, General Kang will keep a busy schedule which includes visits with the Commanding Generals of Marine Corps Base, the 2d Marine Division, and Force Troops.

He will observe training at the counter-guerilla warfare center, maintenance facilities of the Engineer Battalion, visit 2d Tank Battalion facilities and attend various luncheons and receptions.

While her husband is observing, Mrs. Kang, accompanied by Mrs. Joseph O. Butcher, wife of the Base Commander, will visit various schools, exchange libraries and religious chapels on base.

EDITORIAL PAGE*Grateful Lady Says 'Thanks'

Late at night on a deserted stretch of an interstate expressway, a lady had a flat tire. She might have experienced difficulty had it not been for a group of Marines.

Mrs. Jones, as we shall call her, had reservations as she felt the tire deflate. She had neither a flashlight nor the know how to change the flat.

Her luck changed, however, as a car load of Marines rolled up behind her. These "swoopers" proceeded to change the tire and get Mrs. Jones on her way to her destination.

When the job was finished, Mrs. Jones attempted to pay the gallant knights or to notify their commanding officer of their courtesy. In her own words, "When I tried to pay them and then to discover their names. . . they said, ' . . . Courtesy of the Marine Corps, ma'am.'"

Mrs. Jones is very thankful to these Marines. She took the time to notify the commanding general of this Base.

The five Marines who came to her aid will probably never receive their reward directly but indirectly they will -- they are part of an organization that increases its good reputation each day.

Can you say that your training both as a Marine and as an American citizen stands up to this? Would you have taken the time to fix the tire and then deny any offer of recognition or remuneration?

If you are doubtful, perhaps you can draw a lesson from this story. If you truly think yes, perhaps you are a good Marine.

Think it over carefully. Do you deserve the respect for Marines that Mrs. Jones has for the five that helped her out of an uncomfortable situation?

The fun of reading is not that something is told you, but that you stretch your mind. Your own imagination works along with the author's, or even goes beyond his. Blue Ridge Revisited. . . .

When the lonesome traveller hears the crisp crackle of leaves beneath his feet, and looks up to catch the scarlet oak and may kissing over the crooked highway, he knows that autumn has come.

When he feels the brush of twigs hurrying past his ankles and sees the milkweed tufts skipping by the roadside honey stands, he knows he must stop.

And as he lifts his heavy gaze to meet an unfeeling sky, he strains his troubled eyes to pick out an old man's craggy face far to the west of him. His nostrils catch the spicy scent of ripening persimmons and apples, while his vision drinks of Dame Nature's gaudy makeup.

It is then the forlorn stranger knows, even as the melancholy breezes whisper among the swaying boughs, that someday he must return down this same road.

The road in mention is the Blue Ridge Parkway in autumn, gateway to haunting solitude amidst a prism of color. The face referred to is that of Grandfather Mountain, 5,964 feet high. Located on Hwy. 26 near Linville, the mountain's principal attraction is the mile-high swinging bridge. A campground for tents and trailers is available.

but an entrance fee is charged for all mountain visitors. In our opinion the fee is not worth it, unless the Marine and his family plan to spend the night on the mountain.

For the hiker, the Appalachian Trail is a must. The trail follows the topmost mountain ridges through the Great Smoky Mountain National Park and the Pisgah and Nantahala National Forests. Called the "footpath through the wilderness," the trail reaches its highest point at Clingman's Dome (6,642 feet) in the Smokies.

Although the trail crosses several state highways, most of it 200 miles is accessible only on foot or on horseback. The entire route is marked, with shelters and campsites at various intervals. The scenery is breath-taking, especially in autumn. Dress warmly, however, since the nights are chilly there. Color is just now beginning to splash North Carolina's highest mountains, and the region will reach its showy peak about mid-October. The Joyce Kilmer Memorial Forest within Nantahala National Forest is especially pretty that time of the year, highlighted by giant poplars and huge ferns.

The golfer has a heyday on the well-kept mountain courses. Besides these can be found at Highlands, Cashiers, Sapphire, Blowing Rock, Linville, Roaring Gap, Asheville, Waynesville, Tryon, Boone and Hendersonville.

In the oddities category, a community of Quakers lives quietly and independently under a wing of Mount Mitchell in the village of Celo. The candle shop there has some 2,300 varieties of candles, reportedly the largest and most unusual collection in the world.

A pioneer farmstead is situated near Cherokee. Dominating the farmstead is the main house, a two-story, matched log structure. Outside Hendersonville, apple capital of North Carolina, is the home of Carl Sandburg.

New BAQ Rules Mean Money For Some Ranks

The Marine Corps' bachelor three paygraders will soon be paid basic allowances for quarters (BAQ) along with all other living in sub-standard barracks and BOQs according to current directive.

The new Marine Corps Order 12.7 explains in detail what minimum living standards and provisions under which payment of BAQ is authorized. It sets up priorities in the payment of officers to BOQs considered adequate.

Staff Sergeants and below who draw BAQ may continue to live off base, according to the order, until adequate quarters are available for them. (Minimum standards were described as "72 square feet net sleeping area and any available toilet facilities.")

The order outlines the following minimum living standards for the senior enlisted men and sergeants. If these can't be met, according to the order, BAQ may be authorized for them.

The top three graders rate, either permanently assigned on a travel status, "private living-sleeping room commensurate with available toilet facilities."

For officers, O-2 and below, a "private sleeping room and private bathroom." O-3 and above rate private living room, bedroom, bathroom and use of kitchen. O-4 and above have the option of using such quarters or drawing BAQ, provided they are not required to stay on base after normal working hours.

Quarters which have been built or renovated since January 1, 1958, are considered "adequate" even if they don't meet the set standards, according to the order.

Where there are not enough adequate BOQ accommodations for all officers, priority will be given to: (1) officers not receiving BAQ, (2) officers unaccompanied by dependents and receiving BAQ and (3) officers on a TAD status.

According to the order, those drawing per diem who occupy government quarters will take a cut, regardless of the adequacy of the quarters.

The final decision has been placed on the installation commander who must determine if accommodations meet minimum standards of livability. Authority to pay the BAQ will have to come from the Commandant of the Marine Corps.

Under the new Vietnam GI Bill rates, effective October 1, 1967, fulltime veteran students are entitled to the following increased monthly payments: $130 without dependents; $155 with one dependent; $175 with two dependents and an extra $10 for each dependent in excess of two. Part-time students receive proportionately smaller amounts.

Trenton, N.J., Newsboys Tour Lejeune Facilities

A group of 49 Times News-paper carriers from Trenton, New Jersey spent two days touring the facilities of Camp Lejeune recently.

Escorted by Mr. C. T. Leiphon, circulation - promotion manager, and Mr. Harry Robinson, the boys arrived at the Base early Monday morning and were taken to the Headquarters and Service Battalion Messhall where they had breakfast.

They spent the next few hours moving into a Marine Barracks where they would be staying for the next two days. Once settled, they began a short bus tour of the Hadnot Point and Paradise Point areas (the central areas of the Base).

Major General Joseph O. Butcher, Commanding General, Marine Corps Base, joined the group for lunch as he welcomed the boys aboard the Base and wished them a pleasant visit.

The temperature rose above the 90 degree mark during the afternoon and the boys cooled off with a three-hour swim in the ocean at Onslow Beach.

Following the evening meal the boys were guests of the Marine Corps Base at the Camp Theater, where they saw the full length movie "Fate is the Hunter."

Five-thirty comes early for a group of tired 12 to 15 year olds, but the boys did not mind getting up at that hour last Tuesday. They were looking forward to the day ahead.

After a quick breakfast and a short bus ride, the group arrived at Building No. 2 (Headquarters for the 2d Marine Division), where they observed morning colors with the Division Commander, Major General Ormond R. Simpson.

An hours' bus ride later found the boys at the Marine Corps Air Facility, where they got a good look at some of the helicopters used by the Marine Corps. The static display was

FROM WORLD JAMBOREE

Lejeune Eagle Scout Returns on Crutches

A Camp Lejeune area boy scout, one of 17 representing the East Carolina Council, has returned from the 12th World Boy Scout Jamboree... a trip he made on crutches.

Eagle Scout Bruce McElheny, son of Maj. C. L. McElheny, Commanding Officer, Headquarters and Service Battalion, 2d

Force Service Regiment, Force Troops, wore out four sets of crutch ends on the eight day jamboree.

Young Bruce broke his leg shortly before leaving Camp Lejeune for the Jamboree. His train trip to Idaho's Farragut State Park was jammed with teenage antics from shaving cream fight to packing the small rest room with 45 boys.

While at Farragut, Bruce and his fellow scouts followed a time-honored ritual of trading patches, equipment and uniforms. Bruce swapped his scout suit for a complete uniform of a Canadian Scout.

Recently selected for Eagle Scout, young McElheny carries on a family tradition. His father and mother are active in area scouting organizations as leaders and his three sisters are girl scouts.

Wellington will leave Camp Lejeune shortly for duty in Southeast Asia.

Scoutmaster 'Good Egg'

A recent talent show conducted by Cub Scout Pack 190 at the Tarawa Terrace Community Center was interrupted long enough to give outgoing Scoutmaster Charles Wellington two surprises.

The Marine gunnery sergeant was presented a "Good Egg Award" by Chief Warrant Officer Lou Cabral, Base Institutional Representative to the Boy Scouts of America.

The simple award, an egg pendant and a citation, was presented to the scoutmaster in recognition of his "time, energy and talent freely donated to the young boys of Camp Lejeune."

The second surprise when Major General Jose Butcher, Base Commander and a Silver Beaver Scouter, forwarded to personally thank the scoutmaster.

General Butcher, Warrant Officer Cabral, fifty other gun and fifty cub scouts were a talent show, which featured musical and comical skits performed by the scouts.

Sgt. Wellington has been scoutmaster of the pack for the past two years and leaves soon for duty in Southeast Asia.

Chaplain Speaks

Make no mistake about it. Regardless of what you might have heard, JONAH is not dead!

A chosen vessel for a special task, he had, no doubt, in earlier days sung the equivalent of our "Take my life and let it be consecrated, Lord, to Thee."

But when God's plan was revealed, he immediately made his own plans to travel in the opposite direction.

What foolishness! There were 120 thousand people dependent on the message God wanted to speak through him, and infinite blessing to follow for himself. But—he didn't want to! He would rather die than do the thing he didn't want to do.

No, Jonah is not dead. Every time we say, "I don't want to" to God, we perpetuate Jonah's spirit, we limit God, and we cut ourselves off from the blessings with which God seeks to enrich our lives and those of others.

And then we are not slow to blame God that our life is mediocre, that our circumstances are hard and that our future lacks promise.

Before we sit in judgement on Jonah, it would be well for us to consider how the pathos of Christ's words must re-echo to our own lives, "How often would I . . . and ye would not!" The answer lies in the surrender of our wills to God. As Tennyson reminds us, "Our wills are ours, we know Not! Our wills are ours, to make them Thine."

The Protestant Women of the Chapel will meet at Marston Pavilion Sept. 11 at 9:30 a.m.

OWC GROUP I NO

Group I of the Officers' Welfare Club will open its social season with a brunch, Thursday, Sept. 14, on the patio of the club.

2d Anti-Tank Battalion Shows Off In Open House

More than 300 dependents and guests of the 2d Anti-Tank Battalion, 2d Marine Division, were on hand during a recent "Open House" held in the battalion's area.

The day's festivities began with a welcome address by Major John F. Roche, Battalion Executive Officer, who explained the purpose and mission of the Battalion.

After First Sergeant Phillip Ciofalo provided the visitors with a schedule of the day's activities, a tour of the Battalion's area was conducted. They were given an opportunity to see the barracks, messhall and headquarters facilities where many of their husbands and friends worked.

Highlighting the day was a visit to the battalion's Ontos park. Here they were given the chance to fire machine guns loaded with blank ammunition, ride atop Ontos, and inspect various static displays of weapons used by 2d AT Marines.

To answer the many questions asked by both young and older visitors, Marines were stationed at each of the static displays.

Despite a light rainfall, all of the guests, especially the children, enjoyed "seeing what daddy does at work."

THIS IS AN ONTOS — Sergeant John Schaffer explains the functions on the Ontos to the visitors. The Ontos received special attention from everyone during the "Open House."

MAKING AIM — Dependents of Marines serving with the 2d Anti-Tank Battalion, enjoyed shooting it up with machine guns loaded with blank ammunition. Members of the battalion looked on and explained the weapons as the children fired them.

FINGER LICKIN' GOOD — Hungry picnickers line up at "Brinser's Silver Dollar" for delicious barbecued spare ribs.

CAREFUL NOW — Serious minded youngster totes two "Goldie's Golden Delights" ice cream sodas.

FOLLOW THE LEADER — The visitors take special interest in the Headquarters Building as they follow their guides through the battalion area.

Dependents Take Tour Of Engineer Schools

The thrill of a carnival filled the air at the Court House Bay family Labor Day Picnic, as bicycle races, foot races, sack races, cold watermelon and delicious food made a fun filled day for more than 1,800 Marines and their dependents.

The program was the result of a joint effort by the Marine Corps Engineer School, 2d Air and Naval Gunfire Liaison Company and 2d Amphibian Tractor Battalion. The purpose of the picnic was to provide Labor Day fun close at hand and reduce the amount of Marines in the hectic Labor Day traffic.

Beginning the festivities was a father-son, mother-daughter parade led by the Force Troops Drum and Bugle Corps.

After the parade, the families were treated to food prepared by the Court House Bay mess halls. Barbecued spare ribs could be obtained at "Brinser's Silver Dollar," or if you preferred hamburgers or steak sandwiches you might have tried "George's Hamburger Joint." For the children there were milkshakes and candied apples at "Goldie's Golden Delights" or pizza-burgers at "Gray's Kiddie Korner."

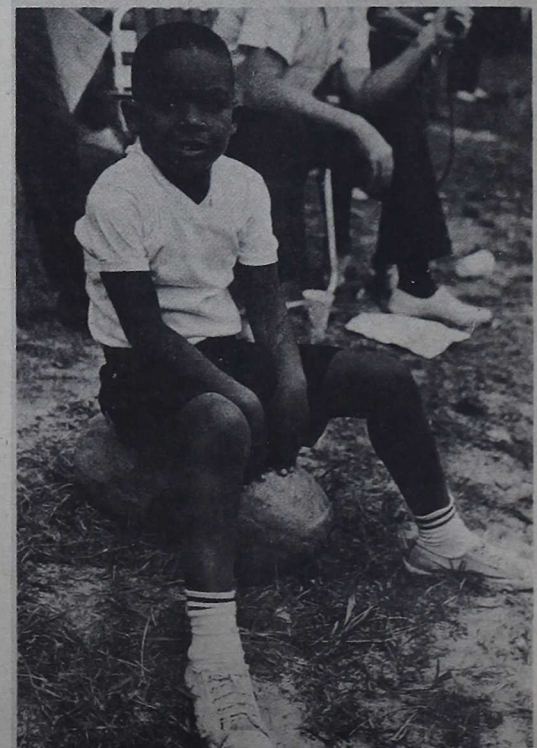

Throughout the day, the children were treated to train rides on the "Hong Kong Express," the "Santa Fe Chief" and the "Court House Bay Special" railways.

Once lunch was over, everyone hurried to get a ring side seat at the race track. The opening event was a Go-Kart spectacular. Sergeants Robert (Horney Toad) Gilley and Bruce (Midget) Ridgley put their Go-Karts, built by Headquarters Company, Service Battalion, through their paces in a five lap race.

A bicycle race followed the Go-Kart marathon for all children who wished to participate. Bikes of all sizes sped around the track in a two lap race, while the youngsters were cheered on by excited parents and friends. The concluding events were foot racing, sack racing and three legged racing. Winners of all events received watermelons as prizes.

VICTORIOUS — Proud young man rests on his first prize after winning the one through six year old foot race.

Lejeune Boxing Team Tryouts Scheduled

First Sergeant Ray Rogers, a 21 year Marine Corps veteran from Cincinnati, Ohio and Sergeant J. C. Davis, Lejeune's boxing coach, have teamed up to lead the Marine Corps' drive to the 1968 Olympic Boxing Titles.

Rogers will coach the team and Davis will be the assistant coach and trainer.

Lejeune will have the only Marine Corps boxing team this season. The call has gone out to all commands to send their boxers to Lejeune for the boxing tryouts held September 18 through October 7. In the event a man who would like to box for the Corps is unable to attend the tryouts he will be considered at a later time, according to Coach Rogers.

The tentative plans for the team are to have the team members assigned to the Lejeune Command for the entire boxing season. The team will represent the Marine Corps at all Inter-Service and international matches.

Coach Rogers says that his team will fight anyone and he is currently scheduling matches. Interested rival coaches are asked to contact Base Special Services.

This year's team will have two All-Marine returnees, Art Redden and Richard Royal. Charley Davis and Robert Lozada have departed for civilian pastures.

Lejeune's new boxing coach has also been nominated to coach the 1968 United States Olympic Team.

He started boxing in 1944 in Cincinnati and entered the Marine Corps in 1946. He fought for the Marine Corps at Pearl Harbor in 1946.

In 1951-52 he began training fighters at MCRD in San Diego. He coached the 3rd Division team from 1954 through 1955.

Coming to Lejeune in 1956 he fashioned the first Inter-Service Championship team here in 1957. Rogers left for a while and returned to Lejeune in 1964 as a coach and trainer where he worked with the late Sergeant "Pappy" Dawson, the popular Lejeune lightweight.

OLYMPIC HOPEFUL — Art Redden, Pan Am Games light heavy weight champ, will anchor this year's Marine Corps boxing team.

Eight-man Football Begins September 19

The 1967 Eight-man Tackle Football League is scheduled to begin its grid season here Sept. 19.

Sgt. Richard C. Dodson, athletic NCO, 2d Marine Division, said, "The league will be composed of 26 teams from Base, Division, MCAF, New River and Force Troops."

The Teams are: Division — Service Company, Headquarters Battalion, Anti-Tank, 8th Marine Regiment, 10th Marine Regiment, Service Battalion, Recon, and 2d Engineers.

Force Troops — Maint. Battalion, 2d Amphibious Battalion, Supply Battalion, Headquarters and Service Battalion, Headquarters

Company, 8th Engineer Battalion, 2d Bridge Company, 8th Communication Battalion, 2d TOPO Company, 2d Tank Battalion, and 2d Radio Battalion. The teams to represent Base and MCAF are undecided at present.

In eight-man football the playing field is 40 yards in width by 80 yds. in length. The games are 40 minutes long with 10 minute quarters. After a touchback, the ball is brought out to the 15 yard line instead of the 20 in 11-man football.

At the end of the season, the top two teams from each command will participate in the All-Marine Football Championship here, Dec. 1-15.

Each team is limited to 20 members including player coaches. A rotating trophy will be awarded to the winning team.

Quantico Football Team Opens Season Saturday

MARINE CORPS SCHOOLS, QUANTICO, Va., —

The opening whistle of the Quantico Marine football season will be sounded Sept. 9 and the coaches and players of the team are putting final touches on the strategy they hope will bring a winning season to Marine Corps Schools (MCS).

Some obstacles put in the path of head coach Frank Marcus did not happen to a college coach, but military coaches are used to last minute rearranging of line-ups and plans. Recently, for example, 12 of the players on both the offensive and defensive teams were transferred from Quantico, and the coach has been forced to reform starting teams.

Among those leaving Quantico are linemen Al Zima and John Miller. Zima was an offensive player at Ohio State, while Turley played end for Virginia Military Institute. Others involved in the transfers were Ron Oyer and Larry Perry who filled halfback and linebacker spots on the squad. Oyer was a backfield star at Syracuse, and Perry played linebacker at Texas Christian University.

These four players, among others, had been expected to spark the team.

It is hoped, however, that some last minute arrivals at Quantico will off-set the loss.

Kim Butts is one of the players who has recently reported to practice sessions and is expected to bolster the Quantico attack at offensive guard. Butts played college ball at Miliuk University in Illinois. Others may be coming in as the season goes along, including a linebacker who saw action in college days with Notre Dame.

An extra bonus that surprised the coaching staff was the return of Mike Jordan, a defensive back from the University of Idaho who recently underwent a knee operation but will be ready to take the field with the Marines Saturday.

Gary Harwood and Francis Mangrum will be sharing a tackle spot. Harwood on offense and Mangrum on defense. Harwood played ball at Central Washington, and although Mangrum has no collegiate experience, his coaches note that he is looking good in practice scrimmages and that he is both tough and aggressive.

The quarterbacking chores will probably fall on the shoulders of Tom Trovato and Freddie Cobb. Trovato comes to military football from the University of Oregon, while Cobb called plays at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. If Joe Hollingsworth gets more opportunity to work out with the team, he may be in the running for some of the quarterbacking during the season.

Al Richards, another Oregon

standout, will be starting at fullback for the Marines in next week's game at Williamsburg when Quantico takes on the "Indians" of William and Mary in the opener. Jon Mars, who played for Washington University of St. Louis, Mo., will be in the backfield with Richards. Mars holds down one halfback slot.

Due to the last minute loss of so many starters, Coach Marcus is having several men play both offense and defense. Among these are Clarence Harris and Mike Hunter. Harris is likely to be seen this year at both offensive center and defensive linebacker. Hunter will probably be in the backfield, coming and going.

Another standout, especially for his hard work in practice, is Richard Craddock. Craddock is a defensive tackle who played college ball at North East Missouri State.

In the running for a starting position as well is Ed Hepp from Navy, who is looked on as a strong man at defensive tackle.

Launching Sites

In a recent base bulletin, authorized launching sites were announced for motorboats at Camp Lejeune. They are: Wallace Creek Boathouse, Marston Pavilion adjacent to the ski observation tower, Tarawa Terrace near the sewage treatment plant, Intracoastal Waterway north-east of and adjacent to the Onslow Beach Bridge, Mile Hammock Bay area, Maple landing on Southwest Creek, and Marston's Landing on Southwest Creek.

MOVIE REVIEWS

"Double Trouble"

Typical Elvis Presley film with girls, music, and comedy as the basic ingredients. This one involves a European diamond-smuggling caper with Elvis in the middle of it. John Williams, Annette Day, Yvonne Romain, and the Wier Bros. round out the supporting cast for the metrocolor production.

"Snow White"

A Disney production of the immortal fairy tale, this one is in technicolor, and brings back childhood memories for the older, while it captivates the younger.

"The Projected Man"

Horror flick about a brilliant scientist whose advanced experiments with the projection of matter are climaxed when his attempts to project a human being -- himself -- are disrupted with terrifying results for all concerned. Stars Bryant Haliday as the hapless scientist, along with several other lesser Hollywood figures. In color.

"The Absent-Minded Professor"

Ned Brainard (Fred MacMurray) is a forgetful prof who, while working on a chemical experiment in his home lab, forgets his scheduled trip to the altar for the third time. The experiment results in the discovery of "flubber," a rubbery, anti-gravitational substance that Brainard puts to comical use. The action is light and swift, and entertaining for the whole family. Walt Disney product that is well done, as usual, though not in color.

PORTO SCUDDO, SARDINIA (Delayed)—The barren hillsides of this windswept cove on the southern tip of Sardinia took a beating recently as Battalion Landing Team, 1st Battalion, 6th Marines concluded its six-month stint in the Mediterranean with a live-fire exercise.

BLT 1-6, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Kenneth E. Turner will soon be relieved as the landing force for the U.S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean.

The Marines fired virtually every weapon organic to their units, including the M-14 rifle, the M-60 machine gun, the .45 caliber pistol, the 3.5 rocket launcher, the light anti-tank assault weapon (LAAW), the 81mm mortar, the M-79 grenade launcher, the 106mm recoilless rifle, the deadly anti tank "Ontos," the 105mm howitzer, the M-2A1 flame thrower, the M-48 tank, and the armored tracked personnel landing vehicle (Amtrac). In addition, demolitions were exploded and the M-26 fragmentation grenade was thrown.

The exercise also provided an opportunity for the ships and planes of the Sixth Fleet to practice and to coordinate their firing with the Marines. The USS MACDONOUGH (DLG-8) and the USS GALVESTON (CLG-3) fired, along with the USS CAMBRIA (APA-36), the flag ship of Amphibious Squadron Six, commanded by Captain A. W. Whitney. The squadron has transported the battalion during its Mediterranean tour.

Planes from the USS SARA TOGA (CVA-60) and the USS AMERICA (CVA-66) fired their machine guns and rockets and dropped a wide variety of ordnance in a concentrated day of practice that saw 150 planes attack the target area.

The first day of the exercise the battalion hosted several distinguished American military visitors. General D. A. Burchinal, USAF, the deputy United States commander - in - chief, Europe (CINCUSEUR), and Admiral J. S. McCain, commander - in - chief, United States Naval Forces, Europe, were briefed on the various weapons being used and watched a coordinated tank-infantry assault. Other members of the party included Rear Admiral J. S. Tyree Jr., and Brigadier General J. A. Feeley Jr., USMC, both members of the CINCUSEUR staff.

After five months without firing their weapons some of the Marines had gotten a bit rusty. (Only the Marines, however, were rusty. Weekly inspections throughout the cruise have insured that the weapons themselves were spotless.) Vietnam veterans had a chance to unlimber. The battalion's "boots" (usually defined as anyone who has less time in the Marine Corps than you have) had a chance to sharpen their skills. Roughly one-half of the battalion's Marines will receive orders to Vietnam when they return to the United States.

The exercise provided an excellent opportunity for various units of the battalion to work together. After dark, for example, mortars fired illumination flares over the target areas so that the 106's tanks, and the Ontoses could fire.

Observers of the night firing witnessed the eerie and incongruous beauty so familiar in combat zones. Under the pale, ghostly light of flares the guns belched flames as they released their ammunition. The tracer rounds etched a deadly, fiery trail in the night sky as they penetrated the darkness seeking their targets.

The reports from the weapons were deafening, and the dust stifling. Periodically, firing had to be interrupted as the Marines stamped out fires in the tinder-dry grass.

While the Marines were firing another type of "shooting" was taking place. Film crews from the Dino de Laurentiis Studio in Rome were on hand to shoot footage of the exercise for "The Landing at Anzio," a full-length feature movie.

For a change the Marines, who can usually sense a camera 100 yards distant, paid little attention. They were too busy to notice the film crews, which kept a safe distance.

After seven days the Marines

Of BLT 1-6 returned to their ships to clean their weapons then to "square away" their forms. After a stopover in Valencia, Spain for liberty, the Marines will be coming

WORK HORSE — A 105mm howitzer fires a mission called in by a forward observer.

ROUND AWAY — An 81mm mortar gunner grasps the tripods of his gun as his assistant gunner quickly ducks away from the tube after dropping a round down the barrel.

BACKBLAST — After firing tracer rounds to "home in" on their targets, 106mm recoilless rifles release their rounds with a blazing backblast.

ON THE BEACH — Marines of BLT 1-6 charge across the beach from armored personnel carriers (Amtracs) to take the situation well in hand during the battalion's exercise at Porto Scudo, Sardinia.
