The first stop on her tour was U. S. Naval Hospital, where chatted with 33 wounded vet-ins of the Vietnam conflict.

Following her hospital visit and a brief conference with Ma-jor General Joseph O. Butcher, Base Commander, she accompanied the General to the Base Theatre for the rally.

Principal speaker at the rally was Mr. R. H. O'Malley, South-eastern Regional Director, U. S. Savings Bonds Division, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C., who enumerated the many benefits of Savings Bonds and the new Freedom Shares, Mrs. Da-muth then spoke to the assembled campaign chairmen and guests, expressing her confidence that the drive would realize its goals.

Mrs. Damuth visited Camp Gei-ger, where she had lunch "in ger, where she had lunch "in the field" and visited the troops at their outdoor classes.

Summing up her visit here, Mrs. Damuth stated, "Everyone here has been just wonderful to me, I've enjoyed every second of my visit and I regret that Camp Lejeune is not on my schedule for the remainder of the year.

While there, she witnessed a weapons demonstration and was given an opportunity to fire an M-1 rifle. She hit the target— 300 yards away—twice in eight tries and also proved devastatingly accurate with the M-79 grenade launcher. "They'd never believe it back home",

If the Bond drive meets with great success, I'm sure my su-periors in Washington will authorize me to change my itine-rary so that I may return to thank you, I sincerely hope that this is what the future holds,"

A Commission Could Be Yours

By LCpl D. A. Switzer Did you know that enlisted men who have applied for and have been accepted for Officer Candidate School OCS) at Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., have taken the majority of "honors" at graduation?

According to a report by the Marine Corps, active duty Marines not only take the honors at OCS but comprise a good portion of the upper - third of classes graduating from Basic School.

In the last fiscal year, more than 2,000 new second lieutenants were graduated and commissioned. Of these, 20 percent were active duty Marines who had entered the 10week pre - commissioning program through their career advisory office.

Marine Corps Bulletin 1133 of June 19, 1967 reports that during Fiscal Year 1968, there will be eight officer candidate classes.

Although smaller in numbers, the report said, the more frequent convening of officer candidate classes should more readily accommodate applicants from active duty

This commissioning program, although "hard" by typical Marine Corps standards, annually produces some of the best military leaders in the world. (The tradition of service given by Marine Corps officers speaks for itself.)

If you qualify under the various directives outlining these officer programs and are interested in the program, your Career Advisory NCO can help you get started toward a commission through the Enlisted Commissioning Program. See him today.

Sandy was a thrifty Scot who objected to needless laundry expense. After he wore a dress shirt to a banquet, he put it away for future use. On one occasion when dressing for such an event, he took a used shirt out of the drawer and examined it with care, hoping to be able to wear it that evening. Not being quite sure of its strict cleanliness, he took it to a window, and there he was looking it over under a better light than the room afforded. His wife, Jean, noticed him shaking his head as though fearful that it would not pass careful scrutiny. "Remember, Sandy," she called out to him, "if it's doubtful, it's dirty." That settled it, the shirt went into the discard and another - a fresh one - took its place.

Jean's words may well speak to every believer concerning things about which conscience raises any question whatsoever. We ought to give the more earnest heed lest at any time we should let slip the doctrine of St. Paul who said, "...the aim of our charge is love that issues from a pure heart and a good (clear) conscience ...'' (I Timothy 1:5).

The believer who desires to obey God and do those things which are pleasing in His sight will seek to know if his thoughts and actions are right and good or whether they are wicked and sinful disobedience to God. A good guideline would be: IF EVER IN DOUBT, DON'T!

The Marines on Guadalcanal experienced several almost unbearable conditions as they struggled to maintain their foothold there twenty-five years ago. Have their memories of these conditions faded over the years?

or these condutions raded over the years?
Several of the veterans who are now serving at Camp
Lejeune were asked their recollections of the campaign.
The following is a partial summary of the answers given by these Quad-Command Marines:

—Master Gunnery Sergeant George Correira, a cook who worked to feed the beleaguered troops, recalls that good food was hard to come by. Warrant Officer William Jones agreed and admitted, "I couldn't eat rice for 15 years after the campaign."

The antics of Captain Joe Foss, Medal of Honor winner, were recalled by Major Everett Bedwell and Sergeant Major were recalled by Major Everett Bedwell and Sergeant Major Lloyd Casey. Bothe men were members of Marine Fighter Squadron (VMF) 121.

"'Many times we could look up and see only Japanese planes and offshore there were only Japanese ships." recalled Master Sergeant Donald McCumber.

—Staff Sergeant Vincent Lucente, a rifleman with the 1st Battalion, 7th Marines on the Canal, remembers a bright spot during one of the fiercest battles fought by his battalion, Lieutenant Colonel Lewis (Chesty) B. Puller, now retired as Lieutenant General, walked the defense perimeter remarking, "Everything will be just fine."

—Major Ernest De Fazio, a squad leader with the 1st Parachute Battalion during the campaign and a winner of the Purple Heart, recalls that "all personal effects were lost in the landing and we ended up wearing captured Japanese clothing."

The memory of Guadalcanal is still clear to these men on all the many details that confronted them. At that time, they didn't know the exact meaning for, nor the implications of their battle. Morale was a problem and could be coped with only through humor and heroism.

Nevertheless, these men lived to return and tell of their adventures. Many did not. To all those who participated in this first offensive action of World War II, we dedicate this anniversary page. Their sacrifices for the freedom of America will never be forgotten.

When Liza Jane struts onto a softball diamond, it isn't the field that sparkles but the owner of the CALIFORNIA CUTIES who is playing his (pardon us, her)

The California Cuties, darlings of the softball world, will play at Harry Agganis Field Wednesday night at 7:30. The Cuties will be opposed by the Geiger All-Stars. Admission is free.

Liza Jane had an idea during a tour of duty with the Air Force during World War II and since at this time.

Liza Jane has moved from the pitching mound to first base most of the time these days although she will still take a turn on the hill when the occasion demands.

The midget Beulah is one of the phenoms of the club, doing little to aid the cause in the outfield, but getting on base virtually every she appears at the plate. Last season, for instance, Beulah drew 250 walks or free passes to first base and any umpire that crosses her had best look to his laurels and a fast pair of feet for a quick exit.

Reserves 'Invade' Onslow Beach

By LCPL Joseph O. Parmley, Jr.
It is the morning of July 25—

It is the morning of July 25— Onslow Beach is deserted, but offshore several large ships are maneuvering menacingly, Periodically a landing craft is seen to emerge from the LST. At least three such craft are visible in the distance,

Thus began the sequence of

Thus began the sequence of events which was destined to change the quiet beach into a bee hive of activity within a few short hours:

7:30 a.m. — Landing craft can be seen maneuvering for an assault. There are nearly two dozen visible and the lead craft are nearing the beach in formation.

8:00 a,m. — The assault has begun with the first wave of amtracs making their run on the beach. At the same time, the ten helicopters which had been forming above one of the ships circle about, cross the beach area, and prepare to set down some distance behind the beach.

8:10 a,m. — The first wave, composed of eight amtracs, has hit the beach and dislodged its cargo — combat troops. The troops, as they disembark, are forming a thin perimeter along the sand dunes 100 meters inland. So far they have met no resistance.

8:20 — The second assault wave lands and the perimeter is increased by another 200 meters, Still no resistance is encountered. The ten helicopters return and four more pass over, presumably with more men and supplies for the heliborne invaders.

9:00 a.m. — All craft have landed and the assault column has reached the banks of the intercoastal waterway without meeting resistance. The amtracs form for the assault across the waterway.

9:30 a,m. — Approximately two miles away, the heliborne assault team is engaged in a fierce firefight with aggressor forces. Progress from the landing area is slow, but the front column has finally reached the timber line 400 meters away. Other helicopters are landing with men and equipment,

Such were the first hours of RESMEBLEX, a training exercise conducted for reserve units on two weeks active duty training here. The combined amphibious-heliborne assault was designed to provide training in tactical employment of units, fire support techniques, intelligence collecting and security, as well as enhancing mobilization readiness and improving individual proficiency and staff functioning,

Other problems encountered by the exercise provided training in local security, scouting and patroling, ambush and counterambush techniques, land navigation, squad tactics, and land mines and booby traps.

An operation of this scale also provides problems in logistics, communications and personnel that would not be encountered to any degree in small unit operations.

The tactical problem involved the creation of "countries" in order to simulate actual combat situations. The country in which the operations were to take place was called "Essonia," and the aggressor forces were from "Crusher." The purpose of the amphibious and heliborne operations was to destroy the Crusher invaders, restore the former "border" between the two countries, and assist the Essonians in restoring local government, in restoring local government,

As in actual operations, Essomia had an airfield, ports, capital cities, etc. The capital of Essonia, Sunoco, was Camp Lejeune's "Combat Town,"
The three day expertion invol-

The three-day operation involved more than 3,000 reserves. Reserve ground units were composed of elements of the 25th Marines, Worchester, Mass.; 3rd Bn., 25th Marines, Cleveland, Ohio; 3rd Bn. 25th Marines, Columbus, Ohio; 6th 105 Howitzer Battery, Canton, Ohio; 4th Engineer Bn., Roanoke, Va.; 4th Amtrack Bn., Tampa, Jacksonville and West Palm Beach, Fla.; H&S Bn., Force Service Regiment, Charlotte, N. C.; and 1st Interrogation - Translator Team, Force Troops, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Reserve air units involute operation were from seconville, Fla. South Wey at Mass.; Atlanta, Ga.; Gro III. Mew York; Memphis, Tenn ulow Grove, Pa. Philad air Pa. Chicago, Ill.; and Alacada California.
