The battle-seasoned 6th Marine Regiment marks its 50th Anniversary today. For half a century, this crack Marine Regiment has traveled the circumference of the globe in time of war and peace, acting as a vanguard in their nation's interest.

From Iceland to Cuba, France to China, the 6th Marines has been sent to crush both the hot and cold war trouble spots of the world.

This combat unit came into existence in July 1917, at Quantico, Va. Shortly thereafter the Regiment joined the allied forces on the front lines in France, where they participated in some of the heaviest fighting of World War I.

The regiment first entered the front lines in March 1918, within three months it was driving the Germans from Belleau Woods. Following this bloody battle, the regiment fought at Soissons and St. Mihiel, and in October 1918, joined the Meuse-Argonne drive. For its exceptional combat record, the 6th Marines received four decorations from the French government, one of which — the Fourragere — members of the 6th Marines still wear. Following the armistice, the regiment marched across the Rhine to serve a short tour as garrison troops in the occupation.

In 1919, shortly after its return from Europe, the 6th Marines was disbanded, only to be reactivated the following year. Detailed to reenact various Civil War battles, some elements of the regiment were sent to the Dominican Republic and Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, to protect American interests. However, for the most part, the 6th Marines was engaged in maneuvers and training. Temporarily deactivated in 1925, the Regiment was hurriedly reassembled in 1927, and rushed to Shanghai, China, to defend the International Settlement.

Security patrols and guard assignments kept the 6th Marines occupied for two years in China, then the regiment returned to San Diego to be disbanded again.

When the Fleet Marine Force was formed in 1933, the Regiment was reactivated at Quantico. Maneuvers took this unit to the Pacific, after which, it was stationed at San Diego. In 1937, the 6th Marines was once again rushed to China to protect Americans during the Sino-Japanese War. In April 1938, the unit returned to San Diego where it assumed an inactive status.

Parking Regs Change Told

Change 1 to BO P5560.2C (Motor Vehicle and Traffic Regulations), soon to be distributed, prohibits parking on the grass in front or on the side of family quarters in Berkeley Manor and Paradise Point. However, parking will be permitted as follows:

— Vehicles, trailers, and boats may be parked on the grass in the rear of the quarters in these areas provided entrance thereto is made via the service roads.

— Guests making calls or attending social events, and not remaining overnight, may temporarily park their vehicles on the grassed shoulders of the roads if there is insufficient space on the driveway leading to the quarters.

— Piney Green Road is now open for incoming traffic commencing at 6:30 rather than the previous time of 7. This road remains open until 8 and reopens for the evening rush hour 4-5:30.

Navy Relief Drive Result

The net result of the Navy Relief Drive which ended here June 30, after expenses, totaled $74,364.19 for the Quad-Command. Workers for this year's drive were praised by the Base Commander, MajGen. J. O. Butcher this week. All commands were over the 100 percent mark in the drive.

6th Marines Mark 50th Anniversary

The battle-seasoned 6th Marine Regiment marks its 50th Anniversary today. For half a century, this crack Marine Regiment has traveled the circumference of the globe in time of war and peace, acting as a vanguard in their nation's interest.

Base Housing Is Mandatory If Lt, WO1-2

Are you one of the personnel subject to involuntary assignment to family housing?

Base Bulletin 11101 of March 27, 1967 requires that family housing be utilized to its fullest capacity with a minimum of 98 per cent occupancy prevailing at all times.

At the present time, there are many one and two bedroom officer units not being used in Tarawa Terrace.

Because of the lack of demand, these units will be assigned to eligible officers on a mandatory basis.

First lieutenants, who have not been selected for promotion to captain; second lieutenants; commissioned warrant officer-2, who have not been selected for commissioned warrant officer-3; warrant officer-1; and Naval personnel of equivalent ranks, whose family size requires a one or two bedroom unit are subject to involuntary assignment to government family housing.

All persons who fall into the above categories are urged to contact the Director of Quarters and Housing, Building TT-43, Tarawa Terrace.

Areas Closed For Sea Shooting Test

A Riverine Shooting Test, being conducted by the Landing Force Training Command, Quantico will necessitate the evacuation of certain Base areas and closing of some roads on July 19-20.

During those two days, Lyman Road, Route 172 and the Main Supply Route bordering G-10 Impact area will be closed for the test.

The Base Magazine Area will be evacuated for range safety purposes. The firing is being conducted from a floating craft at sea.

Seaward firing tests will be conducted on July 14, 17 and 18 prior to the land tests scheduled for July 19-20 which will necessitate closure of the inland waterway from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day.

Helicopters will patrol the seaward range during the test to insure it is clear for fishing.

That Movin' Around

"If it weren't for the moving around," I've heard people say, "I think I'd like a military career."

They acknowledge such attractions as educational opportunities, a steady job with steady pay, medical benefits, a 30-day paid vacation each year, and the others. But, lacking experience, they keep coming back to the same old objection: "But, they move you around too much."

Now, you and I, being career Marines who've lived everywhere from Argentina to Zipangu -- figuratively speaking, of course -- know this objection is only a point-of-view held by salesmen, teachers, clerks, farmers, and a whole host of other non-Marines. We know, from past experience, that a transfer as a Marine does not contain the element that others dread -- the element of CHANGE. We know that a new man can get settled in at his new post with as little time and trouble as saying "Sergeant Jones...reporting for duty, Sir."

My first day here at Lejeune, I met five or six people I had served with before. Within ten days I ran onto at least as many more, discovered four or five who were acquainted with folks I know, and my wife met several wives she knew, at various places around the Base.

At your new post, the same friendly people run the commissary store, the laundry and cleaners, and the rental offices. If you didn't know better, you'd think the service clubs, the swimming pool, and the movie theater had been transferred with you from your former duty station.

Actually, transfers ENHANCE a man's effectiveness, rather than detracting from it. Transfers give a man a fresh approach to his job, an opportunity to learn new methods, and a wider acquaintance with key personnel within his occupational field. No doubt about it, moving about is just another one of the many fringe benefits of a Marine Corps career!

For your reading pleasure, the following new books have been received at the Central Library located in Bldg. 63, Marine Corps Base:

RUN, RAINEY, RUN
BY Mel Ellis

The true story of a unique hunting dog and its owner, From Rainey, the author learned that life was not a thing of years or days. He learned that it was complete and entire at this instant. Despite the times that Rainey's highmindedness got him in trouble -- when he was a pup and buried the duck because he was tired of rehearsing how to retrieve when he already knew how; when he battled his enemy the barbed-wire fence and had to have stitches; when he inevitably chose the best hunting ground for the author -- there was always the knowledge that he would come through all right.

THE FIGHTING MAN
BY Jack Coggins

A full-scale examination of war as it has been fought through the ages by the soldier. The author has devoted separate chapters to the Bowmen of England and the Swiss Pikemen; to Gustavus Adolphus and the seventeenth century Swedes; to Cromwell, to Napoleon, to Prussia; and to each nation with its distinctive style of belligerence.

Stay Loose

By 1stLt. Ralph Deaver

"Answer that," someone said, "it might be the phone."

It was.

"To who am I speaking?" I asked.

"Whom", he said. "What I was calling about. . ."

"Just a minute there," I said, "If I may be so bold, is it Corporal Whom, Sergeant Whom, Field Marshal Whom, or who?"

"Oh, no. . . no. . . let's start over."

"Maybe we'd better, I said. "Now what's your rank, Whom: For who do you work? What was the purpose of your call intended for? . . ."

Then we started over again, and he explained that he and some of his associates -- I didn't ask their names -- wondered if I'd handle one of their pet peeves in my column.

"Civilian clothes," he said, "that's our peeve, and we thought if you'd make something out of it in print, maybe somebody would read it, and it might do some good."

"Wait a minute," I said, "you're getting into something pretty controversial. Over half of the world's population is civilians. You do away with civilian clothes, where's that leave them?"

"No, you don't understand. What I meant. . ."

"I'll tell you where it leaves them. It leaves them out in the cold, that's where it leaves them. Furthermore, my wife and kids are civilians. If I put in my column, 'Do away with civilian clothes,' where's that leave me? I'll tell you where -- it leaves me single, two households to maintain, alimony payments, child support. . ."

"What I meant," he said, getting a little edgy, "was the way Marines wear civilian clothes."

"Boy, you shook me for a minute. I thought. . ."

"I know what you thought," he said. Then he explained that his concern was not only Marines' taste in civilian attire, but the haste with which they don it at every slightest opportunity.

"A man goes home to take his wife or one of his kids to the doctor," he said, "and he puts on civvies. He goes out to a football game, thinks he shouldn't wear his uniform, wears civvies. He checks out on leave. . . in civvies. The liberty uniform for him: civvies. He wears civvies to work in the morning, changes into uniform at the office; then, at the stroke of four-thirty, you can find him busily engaged at getting into civvies for the trip to his quarters. Sometimes, you'd think he's ashamed of his uniform."

"Oh, I don't think its that. It's just that civilian clothing is authorized for wear during off-duty time, as you know. Nothing wrong with them for leave and liberty, sports events, etc."

"Oh, I know that. How well I know it! Every time I broach the subject, such authorization of civvies is reviewed well for me. But the point I'm trying to make. . ."

"I wear civilian clothes when I'm off duty," I said. "Don't you?"

"Sure, I do," he said, "but I don't spend half my time changing just to make sure I don't wear my uniform a minute more than is required."

"Well, neither do I, but. . ."

"You might be surprised at how many do."

"Well, I don't know what to do about it," I told him, "not really. A Marine in appropriate civilian attire, in accordance with regulations, is strictly within his rights too."

Say, he's right.

"You might even go a little beyond that," he continued. "Marines are authorized to wear civilian clothing, but civilians are not authorized to wear the Marine Corps uniform. Just Marines. How do you like that?"

I liked it.

"To whom shall I give credit for this idea?" I asked him.

"Hey, you got it right that time -- whom. May I offer my congratulations?"

"Thanks," I said.

It was only after he'd hung up that I realized I'd goofed. I still didn't get his rank and organization.

'Tunnel Rat' Wins Bronze Star Medal

The Bronze Star Medal with Combat "V" was presented to Sergeant George D. Davino for his actions while serving with the 3d Marine Division in Vietnam.

Davino, now a member of the 2d Engineer Battalion, 2d Marine Division, was presented the medal by his Battalion Commander, Lieutenant Colonel John F. Mader.

While serving as the NCOIC of an engineer tunnel team with the 3d Engineer Battalion, he exhibited courage and professional skill in performing his extremely hazardous duty of entering, searching and destroying underground caves and tunnels constructed by the enemy.

During Operation Allegheny in August 1966, he led his team in the search of a large complex of tunnels, caves and storage areas that were located in a Viet Cong training area.

Under constant enemy small arms fire and the constant threat of enemy mines and booby traps, Davino thoroughly searched more than 25 major tunnel networks, many of which were more than 300 meters in length.

Davino's outstanding resourcefulness and initiative resulted in the discovery of large quantities of Viet Cong explosives, weapons, ammunition, medical supplies and various other enemy equipment. In addition, six enemy bodies were searched, resulting in the confiscation of several maps, documents, and intelligence information.

With his technical knowledge of explosives he then destroyed the complexes, denying the enemy any future use of the tunnels.

In February, 1967, Davino thoroughly briefed the Commanding General, 3d Marine Division on the mission and capabilities of engineer tunnel teams. He also assisted in developing an efficient training program designed to train new tunnel team units. "Sergeant Davino's inspiring leadership, tireless ingenuity and unwavering dedication to duty at great personal risk contributed significantly to the accomplishment of his unit's mission," the accompanying citation read in part.

3/8 Marines Decorated For Service in Vietnam

Two Marines from 3d Battalion, 8th Marine Regt. were decorated by their commanding officer, Lieutenant Colonel Robert L. Nichols, during ceremonies held here June 28.

Sergeant Elex L. Withers received the Bronze Star Medal with Combat "V" for his heroic actions while serving as a machine gun squad leader with "P" Company, 3d Battalion, 5th Marines, 1st Marine Division, in Vietnam.

Staff Sergeant Larry L. Wine, presently battalion logistics chief, received the Navy Commendation Medal with Combat "V".

The accompanying Bronze Star citation read in part, "... on July 24, 1966, during Operation Hastings, Sgt. Withers' company came under heavy mortar and automatic weapons fire from an estimated North Vietnamese Army Battalion.

"Because of the approaching darkness, the Marines quickly established a night defensive perimeter. While under heavy enemy fire, Sgt. Withers skillfully placed his machine gun in a position with good fields of fire.

"In addition, he constructed a position and reinforced it with logs. Subsequently, Sgt. Withers' vision was obscured by the darkness and he had to listen for the approach of the enemy. Only when he distinguished their movement in the undergrowth did he open fire with his machine gun.

"When the attackers rushed his position, Sgt. Withers, at the risk of his life, boldly stood up and fired at them from point blank range.

"In the ensuing fire fight, the machine gun was shot from his hands, but he valiantly halted and dispersed the attackers by throwing hand grenades.

"The following morning, five enemy were found dead within 15 feet of his position.

"His steadfast determination and heroic actions at great personal risk undoubtedly prevented the enemy from overrunning his position and contributed significantly to the accomplishment of his unit's mission," the citation concluded.

Staff Sergeant Wine was cited for providing effective logistical support during seven major operations while serving with the 1st Battalion, 5th Marines.

COMMAND CHANGE -- Lieutenant Colonel Michael E. Spiro accepts the colors of the 3d Battalion, 8th Marines from Lieutenant Colonel Robert L. Nichols during change of command ceremonies held here last week.

Battalion Commands Change in 8th Marines

During two change of command ceremonies held here last week both the 2d Battalion and 3d Battalion of the 8th Marine Regt. received new Commanding Officers.

Major Joseph F. Cody Jr., formerly 2d Battalion Executive Officer, assumed command on June 29, succeeding Major Harvey W. Harper Jr., who is slated for duty with Fleet Marine Force, Pacific.

Later the same day Lieutenant Colonel Michael E. Spiro assumed command of the 3d Battalion, replacing Lieutenant Colonel Robert L. Nichols.

Major Cody was born January 3, 1932 in Omaha, Nebraska. In 1947 he enlisted in the Marine Corps. During the Korean War he served as section leader, platoon sergeant and company gunnery sergeant, with the 1st Marine Division.

Returning to the United States in 1953, Maj. Cody reported to Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif. and later to Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, Calif., where he was a senior drill instructor.

Following his tour on the drill field Maj. Cody, then a technical sergeant, was commissioned a second lieutenant and completed Officers' Candidate School and Basic School, Quantico, Va.

He reported to the 8th Marines on October 1, 1966 as the S-3 officer and later the executive officer.

Among his medals are: the Joint Service Commendation Medal, Navy Unit Commendation, Good Conduct Medal, Navy Occupation Service Medal, China Service Medal, National Defense Service Medal and the Korean Presidential Unit Citation.

From 1952 to 1953 he was assistant G-2 and an aerial observer with the 1st Marine Division.

Col. Spiro completed 12 months of language school (Japanese) in 1954. In August, 1954 he reported to Yokosuka, Japan and served there until July 1955 as foreign area specialist.

Prior to assuming his present post, LtCol. Spiro was with Air Tokyo, Japan.

Retirement Counseling

Joseph N. Price, Veterans' Employment Representative, will be available for job counseling by appointment at the Base Education Office, Building 63, on the second and fourth Thursday of each month from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Military personnel scheduled for retirement within the Camp Lejeune area are urged to take advantage of this service. Appointments can be made by calling 7-5572 or 7-5512.

Option Gets Foreign Duty For Sergeant

Everybody dreams of a trip to Europe but for Sergeant Meridith P. Fordyce, a naval gunfire specialist currently assigned to the 2d Battalion, 10th Marine Regiment, 2d Marine Division, this dream will be a reality.

Sergeant Fordyce will soon receive orders for a two-year tour of duty in sunny Naples, Italy. There, he will serve with one of the Marine Corp's "spit and polish" foreign guard detachments.

The big chance came for Sergeant Fordyce through one of the many re-enlistment option plans currently in effect for Marine Corps personnel through the Career Advisory Program. Naples was the first option choice of Sgt. Fordyce, according to the Career Advisory non-commissioned officer of the 2d Battalion.

A native of Lambert, Pennsylvania and a veteran of Vietnam, Sgt. Fordyce entered the Marine Corps in January, 1964.

Outmanned Marines Hold Hill 905 Despite Odds

By Sgt. Bob Pitner

KHE SANH, Vietnam, June 23-- During the rainy pre-dawn hours of June 6, an 18-man Marine radio relay station on Hill 950, three miles from the Laotian border, was attacked by nearly 100 North Vietnamese regulars.

Eight hours later, only five Marines remained in fighting shape. Yet the fog-covered hill was still theirs and the enemy had retreated leaving 10 of their dead and wounded behind.

Sgt. Richard W. Baskin was in charge of the relay station located above the Marine outpost of Khe Sanh. His men included eight from Headquarters Co. and six from the 1st Bn., Twenty-sixth Marine Regiment. Three others were members of the 3rd Reconnaissance Bn.

At 1:20 a.m. Baskin was awakened by one of the recon men who received word on the radio that Khe Sanh was under rocket attack. Baskin ordered him to alert the rest of the men. Seconds later, grenades, trip flares, and automatic weapons fire erupted around the station.

The forward side of the perimeter fell within minutes. One radio operator, although severely wounded, maintained communication with Khe Sanh for half an hour, sending three transmissions.

At 2 a.m. he reported that the outpost was under attack.

Twenty minutes later he radioed to request artillery on their position.

His last transmission, received at 2:50 a.m., said "The arty is doing good. Keep it up."

The Marines in Khe Sanh thought the battle was over for those on the hill, but they were wrong.

At the first shot Baskin rallied his men and set up a secondary perimeter. Fighting for their lives without outside communications, they fought back with grenades, rifles, and a machinegun. They held off a continuous attack which lasted until 4 a.m.

At times the enemy advanced to within 10 feet of the beleaguered Marines before being driven back.

When a dozen North Vietnamese attempted to outflank the Marines on the right, Baskin, Richard Castillo and Lance Cpl. Richard C. Green crept out and opened fire.

They knocked down three of the enemy, stopped the envelopment, then took turns covering each other as they crawled back to their fighting holes.

After 4 a.m. the fighting became sporadic although the Marines were still pinned down by sniper fire. Castillo, a former sniper himself, was being fired at by a sniper in a tree. At about 6:30 he asked Baskin to, "Let me go around and get him."

As he crawled forward Castillo called over his shoulder, "Sarge, if he sticks his head up, I'll get him right between the eyes."

The sniper did stick his head up and Castillo shot him through the forehead with a Chinese-made rifle he had captured.

By 9 a.m., only one bunker was still held by the enemy, but it was defended by a machinegun. Baskin decided it was time to attack. Each of the five Marines was down to his last grenade and Castillo carried his captured rifle. The rest had their M-16 rifles.

Before they attacked, Castillo shouted in French, "Lay down your arms and surrender. You haven't got a chance."

He was answered by a hail of automatic weapons fire.

Hurling their remaining grenades, the Marines charged and captured the position, killing three North Vietnamese and wounding one who died later.

They could hear voices and the moaning of enemy wounded retreating down the hill. Baskin set up a defense and ordered one of the men to call Khe Sanh on a radio left unharmed in one of the positions formerly occupied by the enemy.

Marine and Army artillery had been pounding the hill all night and throughout the morning. Miraculously, none of the defenders had been hit by their own fire, but jets were on the way to blow the outpost off the map, thinking the outpost had fallen. They were diverted.

Choppers were dispatched to evacuate the seriously wounded and bring in reinforcements. When the fog lifted, the remaining men were flown back to Khe Sanh that afternoon, most of the base personnel were on hand to greet them. They had battled against five to one odds and they had won.

Absenteeism Seen As Critical Problem

Absenteeism is a critical problem that is often faced by business and industry. Very often employees decide to report in to the factory or firm that they work for that sickness has overtaken them, when in reality nothing is the matter with them except a desire to play hooky. We know that the absence of any employee whether for a worthy cause or not is of deep concern for management in as much as work projects can be slowed down considerably.

We are bothered by absenteeism in the church of the Living God whether it is prolonged absenteeism or absence of a short duration. Some folks have been staying away from any religious services over a period of years while others miss church for weeks or months at a time. But whether it is of long term or short term the truth of the matter is that the church needs the active and continuous support of all who believe in its mission if it is to accomplish the tasks it has resolved to tackle.

The world certainly needs the program and the influence of the church. The secular forces have failed to make this the sort of world we want. Strife veers its ugly head wherever we look. There are troubled areas in Vietnam, the Holy Land, Korea, Nigeria, Hong Kong, Yemen, and most recently, the Congo. Before 1967 ends there will be more. Murder, rape, robbery, assault, and many other forms of criminal activity are still problems that our leaders do not seem to be able to cope with. We could go on and on citing the troubles that beset our generation.

Our God is concerned with this world for it is His world. It is His design, it is His creation, it is the object of His omnipotence. And it is His church that He has established to make known to men everywhere His designs for living, and the truths that He has given men so they may enjoy the allotted years of their lives.

The church is striving today to make known to people everywhere the way of brotherhood, the way of forbearance, the way of peace, the way of happiness. To accomplish its program the church must depend on the rank and file who will not absent themselves from its doors but will wholeheartedly cooperate to fulfill its world wide vision.

Chaplain's Retreat Entices Volunteers

A leathernecks of the 2d Bn., 8th Marines were re-tasked to volunteer for a assignment -- an unpredictable happening took place-- than needed stepped for the assignment. Mission in question was days of sand, surf and the 2d Marine Aircraft Chaplain's Conference Center, Bogie Island, N.C.

Goal, as established by the Chaplain Wrex K. 2d Battalion Chaplain, was a physical and spiritual "retreat."

More than 50 Marines were re-tasked to the area by bus 26 and rooms were provided.

Food and beverages were supplied by the battalion messhall, the vacationers an opportunity to raid the icebox for milk or sandwiches any day or night. Physical aspects of the program included table tennis, chess, fishing, surfing and swimming.

Religious aspects of the program included morning devotion, religious films and panel discussions. Discussion topics included such subjects as "The Marine and his family," and "The Marine and his friends." Chaplain Hauth also provided private counseling for individuals.

The three day "retreat" climaxed June 28 with a battery of guest speakers explaining the role the church plays in their lives and work. Among the speakers were; Lieutenant Colonel R. M. Lucy, Division Legal Officer; Chaplain Francis Morgan from Camp Geiger; Chaplain B. H. Struthers from Cherry Point; Mr. Robert Lewis, a former Marine pilot and Corporal Arthur M. Close, 2d Battalion Legal Clerk.

According to Chaplain Hauth, the retreat was "spiritually rewarding."

The 12 Naval dental officers and the 18 enlisted men use the most modern techniques of dentistry possible. 4th Dental Company has more than 10,300 men located not only at Camp Lejeune, Camp Garcia, Vieques, Puerto Rico and Headquarters, 1st Marine Force, Atlantic, Norfolk, Virginia.

In 1966 more than 90,000 dental procedures were performed ranging from the restoration of teeth (fitting of cavities) to replacement of prosthetic appliances (replacement of missing

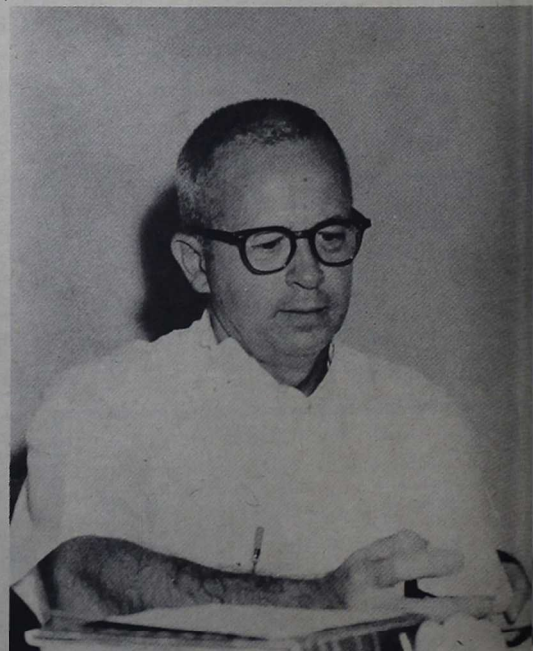

The Company is staffed by "well-trained and experienced personnel" throughout its entire chain of command. T. R. Hunley, Commanding Officer since May 1, was formerly the staff of the U. S. Naval Dental School, Bethesda, Maryland, for six years.

While at Bethesda the Captain had additional duty at the House for five years. He has lectured extensively throughout the United States and Canada on the subject of operative dentistry.

Naval Dental Officers are graduates of dental schools in various parts of the country including the Universities of Tennessee, Maryland, and Texas.

In order to maintain a high degree of professionalism the Company has instigated a "Weekly Officer Professional Program" which brings in outstanding dentists, civilian and military, to discuss new technological advances and current operating procedures in their special fields.

Research has proven this treatment will reduce the incidence of dental decay by 80 per cent for the average individual. The objective of the preventive program is to detect and treat dental disease (disease of the gums and bone that supports the teeth).

Training is another facet of any Force Troops unit. 4th Dental Company familiarizes itself with its mount - out field equipment in an annual exercise in the field.

As an all Navy unit, the Company recently added three new Marines to its roster. The Marines maintain the support section plus working in conjunction with the Naval Medical Training Program.

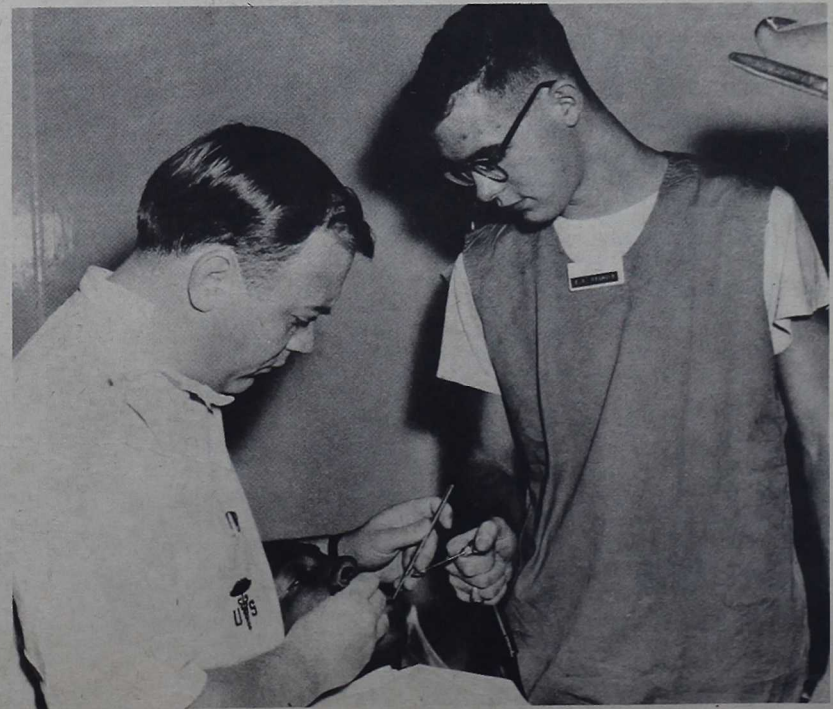

Biological and Chemical Warfare procedures and Aid are topics stressed for both Marine and Naval personnel.

Readiness of the Marine is a most important factor in readying the force. Marines must be ready to move at a moments notice. Keeping them fit is essential to speed and timing. Schooled, experienced, the officers and men of the 4th Dental Force Troops are well aware of their role in the Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic.

The Bronze Star Medal with Combat "V" was presented to Captain Burrows T. Younkin, Jr. for his heroic actions while serving as a helicopter support team leader with "C" Company, 1st Shore Party Battalion, in Vietnam.

The medal presentation was made by Lieutenant Colonel Edward J. Megarr, Commanding Officer, 2d Shore Party Battalion, 2d Marine Division, during a formal ceremony held here June 27. In the accompanying citation, Capt. Younkin was cited for "... his remarkable skill and presence of mind during critical situations which resulted in the expeditious evacuation of many wounded Marines and in effective combat re-supply support.

"On another occasion, the command post element came under intense enemy fire. Quickly assessing the situation, he skillfully moved his men to defensive positions and directed effective return fire at the Viet Cong forces.

Hart Presented Bronze Star

The Bronze Star Medal with Combat "V" was presented to Corporal Albert Hart for heroic action while serving in Vietnam.

Making the presentation was Lieutenant Colonel Floyd H. Waldrop, Commanding Officer, 1st Battalion, 8th Marines during formal ceremonies held here June 27.

On July 10, 1966, in a Viet Cong controlled area south of Da Nang, Cpl. Hart's squad was advancing across a road when his unit came under heavy enemy fire. In an attempt to distract the enemy fire from his comrades, Hart moved along the flank, exposing himself while enabling the point men to move from their precarious position.

Moving immediately to a position from which he could deliver machine gun fire on the Viet Cong, he allowed the remaining squad members to assault the enemy ambush force.

"Cpl. Hart's aggressive actions and steadfast courage during the encounter contributed highly toward the defeat of the enemy," according to the citation.

Cpl. Hart is presently serving with Headquarters and Service Company, 1st Battalion, 8th Marines, 2d Marine Division as a clerk typist in the Planning Training Section (S-3).

Lejeune Youth Programs Give Summer Employment

"Yes, I like my job very much. I wish that all my friends were as lucky as I am. We all get treated well here and the pay is better than on any of the other jobs I have held."

"I'm one of five children at home and I have to buy my own clothes and books for school. I tried to make a go of it without completing high school, but after two unsuccessful years, I've decided that YOC, (Youth Opportunity Campaign) is the shortest route to my diploma."

These words, spoken by 19 year - old James Ward, typify the reactions of the young men employed at Camp Lejeune through the Youth Opportunity Campaign. The program, originated in 1965, supplies summer positions for young men in the Camp Lejeune area whose parents are not connected with the military.

In addition, YOC is aiding the "Keep America Beautiful" campaign inaugurated by the nation's First Lady, and is providing ambitious adolescents with the opportunity of earning money to help complete their education.

At the present time there are 25 men working out of Base Maintenance, eight working out of Special Services and three working at the Base Hospital.

The men work a 40-hour week, from 8 a.m. through 4:30 p.m., at the rate of $1.40 per hour. At Base Maintenance they are divided into two sections according to height, with the taller men assigned the task of trimming the low - hanging branches from certain trees, and the smaller men assigned to clearing weeds and other debris from the hundreds of azalea plots throughout the base. Miscellaneous jobs include the excavation of tree stumps and the general police of all grassy areas.

Personnel seeking work through YOC first report to the Industrial Relations Office for screening and interview. Those desiring positions are asked to meet three basic requirements: they must be between the ages of 16 and 21, willing to work, and in need of a job.

Following their acceptance and assignment to sections, the men are trained in work habits and safety. The safety lectures cover ten different subjects, each of which is discussed for a period of about five minutes.

In addition, employees are given a course on the philosophy of work, which examines the purpose and benefits of work, how to find a job, and the advantages of a mutually satisfactory employer / employee relationship.

K. Newton Hawkins, the immediate supervisor of YOC at Base Maintenance, has been affiliated with the program since its inception in 1965. A landscape architect during the winter months, "Newt" doubles in the summer as a counselor, foreman, teacher, and personnel manager for his men.

His devotion to his work and to his employees, along with the tireless efforts of his assistants, Lewis Ward and Charles Williams, has resulted in visible beneficial changes in Camp Lejeune's landscape.

In the words of Leroy White, a 17 year - old student at Richlands High School who hopes to continue his studies in September with the aid of the money he is earning through his summer job, "The Youth Opportunity Campaign is more than a lucky break. It's a credit to Camp Lejeune and to the Nation."

SUMMER JOB - John McLean (l) and Perry Moore can trimmed branches to a disposal area. The high school students have found summer employment at Camp Lejeune thanks to the Youth Opportunity Campaign (YOC).

Col. Drumright Assumes Command 2d Recon Bn

A holder of the Silver Star and the Navy Commendation Medal with Combat "V" took command of the 2d Reconnaissance Battalion, 2d Marine Division, here recently.

Lieutenant Colonel William C. Drumright assumed command during informal ceremonies held at the battalion headquarters. Major John E. Kussmann, former Commanding Officer, has assumed duty as the Battalion Executive Officer.

A native of Nashville, Tenn., Colonel Drumright came to Camp Lejeune from Vanderbilt University where he served as Senior Marine instructor in the Navy Reserve Officer Training Program (NROTC) for three years.

After leaving Officers Candidate School in 1952, LtCol. Drumright, then a second lieutenant, spent one year as a platoon commander in Korea. Following assignments in Yorktown and Oklahoma City, Okla., he was transferred to the 1st Marine Brigade, Hawaii, where he served as a rifle company commander for one year and as S-3 officer.

In 1959 he attended the Career Course at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga.

The period from 1960 through 1963 was spent in a team status as a tactics instructor at Marine Corps Schools, Parris Island, Va. In 1964 he was assigned as the American tutor to the Commanding General of the Republic of Korea 1st Marine Division.

LtCol. Drumright and his wife Jean have two children; 11 and Kim, 3.

Anniversary

In March 1940, the 6th Marines became the principle Infantry unit of the 2d Marine Brigade, which became the 2d Marine Division a year later.

Six months before Pearl Harbor, the 6th Regiment was shipped to Iceland to help England defend its sea approaches against the Germans. Needed in the Pacific, the 6th Marines rejoined the 2d Marine Division in time for the assault on Guadalcanal. Subsequently, Tarawa, Saipan, Tinian and Okinawa, became bloody stepping stones northward. The trail ended with Japan's surrender and the regiment's occupation of the Japanese homeland.

After nine months of occupation duty, the 6th Marines returned to Camp Lejeune, N. C., and in July 1947, was sent to Camp Pendleton, Calif., where the regiment became part of the 1st Marine Division. About two years later the regiment became part of the 2d Marine Division, Camp Lejeune, N. C.

During the Lebanon Crisis in 1958, the 3rd Battalion, 6th Marines, landed on July 16. A 6th Marine Regimental Landing Team Headquarters stayed on in the Mediterranean after American Forces were withdrawn from Lebanon. The team returned to Camp Lejeune in early 1959.

Later that year, the 2d Battalion, 6th Marines demonstrated the amphibious landing technique during Operation Inland Seas as part of the formal dedication ceremonies of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Since then, they took an active part in the Cuban Blockade during the Cuban Crisis in 1962, and Operation STEEL PIKE I - a joint Spanish-American Navy-Marine Corps amphibious exercise - in southern Spain in 1964.

The 3rd Battalion, 6th Marines (3-6), were the first U. S. Armed Forces ashore at Santo Domingo during the 1965 Dominican Crisis. The 1st Battalion, 6th Marines later joined 3-6 as part of the 4th Marine Expeditionary Brigade.

The regiment has since continued its "force-in-readiness" training and supplied various battalions for operations in the Mediterranean and Caribbean areas.

RETIREES -- Master Sergeant Edward J. Thompson, G-2 section, 2d Marine Division, receives his certificate of release from active duty after 20 years at an informal ceremony held in the office of Colonel Franklin J. Harte, Commanding Officer, Headquarters Battalion.
