Letters in mail for annual Christmas Seal campaign

Are You Gonna Hurt Me, Doc?"

course he won't. Tuberculin testing, to detect the possible presence of TB germs in the body, is practically painless. Christmas Seals encourage testing as one part of the fight against tuberculosis and other respiratory disease.

Mrs. J. B. Robinson, honor chairman of the Christmas Seal Sale in Onslow County today that Christmas letters are now in the mail. The Seal Sale starts officially on November 16.

Don't just think of your letter as another piece of junk mail," Mrs. Robinson said, "if you could see the many hours of labor given by Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Glee Clubs, firemen and just plain volunteers who are necessary to get your letter to you, you would appreciate it."

Mrs. Robinson mentioned that she has received many letters from public school teachers and some 8,700 letters of educational literature requested by teachers in the public schools were supplied. Funds to assist the health department in x-raying the medically indigent were available as well as a small sum for patient service.

"In fact, we have gained more than we have given," Mrs. Robinson said, "and I hope that everyone of you who receives a letter from the SENC Tuberculosis Association will answer it—with whatever he can give, whether it is a small amount or a nice large check."

Retired Admiral Ellis, overall chairman for the six county district said that over 25,000 letters had been mailed, and that weekly reports on the amount coming in from each county would be published.

To visit

LTGEN. Leonard F. Chapman, Jr., Chief of Staff, Headquarters Marine Corps, plans a staff visit to commands in the Camp Lejeune - New River area on Nov. 29-30.

'Mountain Dew' exercise starts in Pisgah forest

Pisgah National Forest will be ringing with the sound of cold steel splitting granite this week, as the 1st Battalion, 6th Marines, 2d Marine Division literally "jumps off" on Exercise Mountain Dew, Nov. 15-24.

The 10-day exercise is designed to give the more than 1000 Marines first-hand experience in mountain operations. Classes will be given in cold weather survival, escape and evasion, rappelling, rope bridge construction and related subjects.

The battalion, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel P. M. Edwards, proceeded by motor convoy from Camp Lejeune, through Raleigh to an overnight stop in Hickory, on through Asheville and arrived at the exercise area in the Flattop Mountain Wildlife Management Area Sunday noon.

2d Div. Marines can send message by tape-recording

Second Division Marines not planning to take leave over the Christmas Holiday will have an opportunity to send greetings to their families via tape-recorded messages.

The messages, up to 30 seconds long, will be the Marine's own special Christmas greetings to his family and friends. The tapes will be broadcast over the Marine's hometown radio station, and the National Broadcasting Company's "Monitor" program.

Recording sessions will be held daily at 8:30 a. m. and 1 p. m. until December 2 at the Division Information Services Office, Bldg. 401.

WM Director visits Lejeune

Colonel Barbara J. Bishop, Director of Women Marines, recently completed a 3-day orientation and inspection tour of Camp Lejeune's Women Marine Company.

Col. Bishop was greeted upon arrival at Simmons-Knott Airfield, New Bern, Nov. 15, by the Women Marine's Company commander, Captain C. A. Veralino and the company's first sergeant, Ethel Barker. The Women Marine director was accompanied from Washington, D. C., by First Sergeant Evelyn E. Albert, Sergeant Major of Women Marines.

The following day Col. Bishop attended briefings held by the assistant base commander Colonel T. S. Ivey, Women Marine Company commander, Capt. Veralino and Lejeune's senior Woman Marine officer, Lieutenant Colonel Doris V. Kleberger.

Col. Bishop later inspected the Women Marine barracks and work sections at Marine Corps Supply School, Montford Point and 1st Infantry Training Regiment, Camp Geiger, ending the day by addressing Lejeune's Women Marines during a briefing Tuesday evening.

After making a final check of the Woman Marines working at the base communication-electronics office, Col. Bishop departed Lejeune Nov. 17 for the Marine Corps Air Station at Cherry Point.

Nominees sought by DOD for physical fitness awards

WASHINGTON (AFPS) -- The Defense Department has sent a memorandum to each of the services requesting nominees to compete in the third annual U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce (Jaycees) Physical Fitness Leadership Recognition Program.

Twelve winners will be selected from 50 state finalists and military personnel overseas recommended by DOD.

Nominations of military personnel stationed in the United States should be made through the local Jaycee office. At overseas installations, details are available at Special Services and Information offices.

DOD participation in the program is "primarily designed to recognize and encourage outstanding achievements of military and civilian personnel of the military services who participate voluntarily as individuals in non-official programs in their off-duty time."

Winners will receive an expense-paid trip to Washington in the early spring to be honored at an official reception.

Three national winners, to be selected from the 12 finalists, will each receive a $1,000 cash award.

Generals reassigned

WASHINGTON, November 12 -- Headquarters Marine Corps announced today the pending reassignments of two general officers in early spring 1966.

Brigadier General Arthur H. Adams, present Director of Information, Headquarters Marine Corps, has been named to relieve Brigadier General Hugh M. Elwood as Commanding General, Marine Air Reserve Training Command, Glenview, Illinois. General Adams is due to report to his new post in March 1966.

Brigadier General Elwood, upon his relief, will report in April 1966 as Assistant Wing Commander, First Marine Aircraft Wing, relieving Brigadier General Marion E. Carl.

BJ proclaims Nov. 28 day of dedication, prayer

WASHINGTON (AFPS) -- President Johnson has proclaimed Sunday, Nov. 28 as a day of dedication and prayer for the men and women of the Republic of Viet-Nam, the United States and all other countries who are risking their lives for a just peace in RVN.

The President re-emphasized that the United States "remains ready without condition to the international discussions that can lead to lasting peace."

President Johnson explained the purpose of the United States Viet-Nam is to help open the way for social justice in place of unprovoked aggression.

"There can be no social justice or economic progress without security from external attack and from terror in the night," he said.

in assisting the people of the RVN to resist unprovoked aggression, "the United States and other nations are carrying on the honored tradition of defending a people's right to freedom."

Nov. 28 was set as a national day of remembrance, "dedicated to those Americans who are committing their lives, blood and energies, in the defense of the world peace."

A legacy of shame

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following editorial was written by T/Sgt. Peter G. Gainutos, editor of the ADVISOR, newspaper of the Air Force's Second Air Division at Tan Son Nhut airfield in Viet-Nam.)

Time was when a boy went to college to study law, medicine, engineering or one of the arts. And girls went to get their Mrs. degree. But for too many it is not that way any more.

Today's crop of college cut-ups are no longer content to swallow goldfish, crowd themselves into telephone booths or small foreign cars. They—and we refer to the minority that makes the majority of the voice—now insist on dictating Government policies, and are ready to parade, demonstrate and sit-in at the drop of a cause.

The latest gimmick among these intellectual midgets is a campaign to urge all members of the Armed Forces to desert their posts, rather than serve in Viet-Nam.

I have no quarrel with the right of the individual to voice his opinion. However, the hysterical babbling of these bourgeois bores borders on sedition, if not treason. I leave that to the Justice Department. It is a sad day indeed when the words honor, duty and country have come to mean so little.

As a member of the military family, I have spent the better part of my adult life in the Saigons of the world. It never occurred to me to disobey an order, or to question the right of my Government to send me anywhere to protect and preserve its interests.

Like a lot of us here in Viet-Nam, I have had occasion to be at the base theater during one of the memorial services, and I have seen the slow walking and heard somber music and soft prayers for those to whom rotation dates are no longer important. I muttered my own prayer, as well as giving silent thanks that it was not me inside that box.

As I stood there, I remembered preachings of these mentally retarded adults back home, and my compassion for a dead man turned to shame, and then anger that they dared to ask me to prostitute my profession, ask me to bring dishonor to myself, to my service and to my country.

It is difficult enough to understand when the supposed learned citizenry take the rostrum to rant and rave against our Government, and thereby feed the propaganda mills to the north, but to be subjected to the meaningless chatter of these imbecilic sloths, whose idea of bravery is to lead a panty raid on a girls' barracks, is more than human dignity can bear.

It has been suggested that they all be drafted into the service and brought to Viet-Nam. I could not agree less. To put these morons in a uniform is to insult the memory of those who never came back from Guadalcanal or Pork Chop Hill, or those who did not survive the bombing of the Brinks Hotel or the American Embassy here.

Instead clean them up, cut their hair, and take away their sweat shirts and sneakers and bring them to Viet-Nam to live among the people. Let them expound their theories about the good, the kind, the misunderstood Viet Cong among the villagers whose homes were destroyed and their meager rice stolen.

Let them talk about war mongering to the widow of a Vietnamese Army private, who earns her fish and rice as a prostitute, or the village woman who lost a hand, one finger at a time, and finally the wrist to these misunderstood Viet Cong because she dared to stand up for what she believed was right.

Draft them into the military? Never! Ours is a proud organization, made up of men and women who have ideals and principles and, what's even more important, men and women who have the courage and the will to live up to those beliefs.

They take great pride in themselves, in their uniforms, and in their nation, qualities that the campus "cuties" have yet to acquire. Until they do, they will never "belong." Their voice will be that of the semi-educated, the fool who will leave behind only a legacy of shame, dishonor and ignorance.

Four dark days

Dedicated to the memory of the late President John F. Kennedy on this, the second anniversary of the date of his assassination, 22, 1963.

What the Lord giveth, he taketh away—

It happened to us in all this array of people and in open celebration expecting our President's uniting oration. The day had grown scarcely older than noon when a rifle played death's awful tune.

God's will, enacted, as the Hand of Fate captured the leader this date.

It just goes to show that man's never so good as in his own hands the power that would destroy the deposed of one on another and keep him from being a Universal.

This day as it started, with gala reception brought to its knees by man's deception.

The day became as black as night, in shock. The world itself, "Is this right?—take stock."

Never have I seen in all my life the world exposed in such strife until today, along the way, the assassin's bullet in its play.

This began the four Dark Days of paying homage to Nation prays to the Father in Heaven, if it be His will, let the world forget this ill.

Purge itself of ugliness, erase this terrible disdain the Great Man may not have sacrificed in vain.

Four Star Quotes ★ ★ ★

"Our reason for being in that land today is simply aggression, to deter and ultimately defeat the communist into Southeast Asia. Not only must we honor our pledge to the country of South Viet-Nam, and in a sense, to all of the other countries of the free world, to sustain and insure that South Viet-Nam preserves its freedom." "Oh, Those Blind Spots"

The seaplane, piloted by a brilliant aviator, circled in the air, approached its designated place of landing, landed across the water, and came to a perfect stop. The pilot opened the door, made his exit, and stepped unthinkingly into water up to his neck! In all due respect to this wonderful country of our country, he points out in one humorous incident, characteristic of us all—our "blind spot."

For all the great aspirations and training of men for the grand achievements and recognition, we remain very vulnerable, and very needy. Every day we, too, are on the brink of human dilemmas and perplexities, "blind spots!"

If we seek to be basically honest, we will have to admit in our age we are facing monumental flaps and flails. Turn. Man, for all his greatness, is caught in the vice of difficult choices. All too often the solution to these things are hidden up in faulty premises. And, man soon discovers that his side precludes any quick solution of cure.

We would do well as a nation and as individuals to turn moral and spiritual disasters from slipping in on us on the "blind side" by returning to a few simple, down-to-earth principles. Instead of so much haughtiness, why not a little humility? Instead of indifference, why not a little concern? Instead of so much hate, why not a little more maturity in love? Instead of so much talk, why not a little honest sweat and honest gosh work? In short, why not a return to a simple God's spiritual diet of many things that really count!

When a man or nation gets too fascinated with himself or herself, at the exclusion of all else, the same thing happens—he collapses from misdirected effort. Blind spots can ruin and we can "go up to our necks."

Let us learn well from a simple truth of old, which comes from a simple Carpenter-teacher named Jesus Christ, that is better to be a doorkeeper in the Kingdom of God than to be with Kings." It is better to be an honest-to-gosh servant in the world than to frustrate ourselves by "jockeying for position" that being nothing finally but emptiness and dried out souls.

Motor Transport School takes a new turn

By: Sgt. H. L. Richardson

The capability of truck drivers joining East Coast Marine Corps units should show vast improvement from now on. The reason? Better and more complete training! The Motor Transport School at Montford Point added a four week course on motor vehicle operation, and for Marines coming Infantry Training Regiment.

For the four weeks, (10 a day and five and one days per week) of instruction a man is qualified to vehicles up to 5 tons, knows how to take care of a vehicle in order to get it out of it. Before this class began, a man was assigned as a truck driver and after ITR was put into a unit. It was up to him to teach him what he needed to know about vehicle operation and maintenance. In some cases because of limited facilities, and a heavy workload, it took several days to teach a basic driver what he needed to know.

motor vehicle operators are geared to turn out 1000 miles per month.

7 Other courses

Motor Transport School, has been at Camp Lejeune for more than 20 years, even other courses of instruction. The other basic course is on maintenance organizational maintenance. This class includes four weeks of mechanical and two weeks of driver training.

automotive mechanics is more advanced, and at Marines on their second enlistment. It is 13 weeks and deals with a high level of maintenance. Other courses are: Motor Transport Officers Course, Motor Transport Officer Orientation Course, Motor Transport Officers Refresher Course, Motor Transport Officers Course and Automotive Maintenance Officers Course.

There are three basic sections to the school's instructional staff. The automotive mechanical instructional section teaches theory and principles of mechanics. Practical application of the theory is emphasized in the maintenance section, and the operations section teaches vehicle operation.

Proper maintenance procedures are drummed into the basic students from the first day of their schooling until the time they graduate. The instructors feel that if they teach the drivers to keep their vehicles in top shape it will keep the trucks off the dead line, and save money in the higher echelons of maintenance.

Multi-fuel engines

The school is now preparing for the adoption of the new multi-fuel engine. This engine will be used in trucks. It will run on many types of fuel, and should ease both supply and budget problems in the Marine Corps. But the problem is that most of the seasoned mechanics in the Marine Corps don't know much about them, and it isn't feasible to send all the mechanics to school.

A solution is being worked out now, in the form of a mobile, self-contained classroom. This unit, a van, will seat 20 students. It has an engine mounted so that it can be easily rotated so students can see the front, back, and either end, and it is hooked up so that it will run.

Three instructors, Gunnery Sergeant Anthony Stabile, Gunnery Sergeant Lewis Groatley and Staff Sergeant Peter Panos, did most of the work in developing this unit. The purpose of it is to take into the field to teach the mechanics who would be unable to attend school.

Progressive school

Motor Transport School has been a part of Camp Lejeune for more than 20 years, but it hasn't settled into the rut of old age. The school is undergoing constant change as the needs of the Marine Corps change. It's goal, however, never changes. . . . to turn out the best men possible in the motor transport field.

Deep water fording

A group of drivers take part in a deep water fording exercise. This exercise consists of learning to install the deep water fording kit, driving the trucks in deep water, taking the kit off, and servicing the vehicle afterwards to combat the effects of the water.

SecDef exempts 17-year-old men from RVN duty

WASHINGTON (AFPS)--Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has directed that 17-year-old service personnel be exempt from duty assignment in the Republic of Viet-Nam (RVN).

This will not affect personnel on sea duty in contiguous water areas nor in overseas assignments elsewhere, a defense spokesman said.

Effective immediately, the services will cancel or modify orders for any 17-year-old men destined for the RVN and divert them to other appropriate assignments.

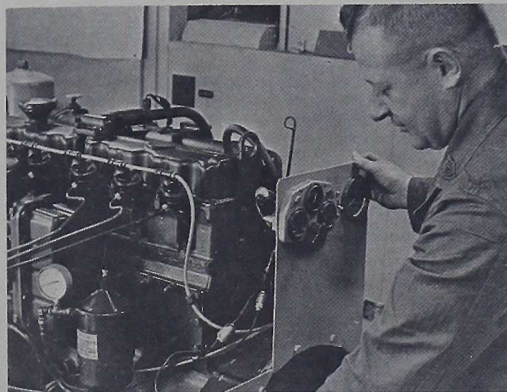

On Feb. 1, all 17-year-old in RVN will be reassigned to other places, according to service requirements.

Officials say the action was taken to make assignment policies uniform throughout the services. The initial recommendation came from the Marine Corps, which adopted a similar policy during the Korean conflict.

It was explained that 17-year-old personnel account for a small part of the service forces and it is not necessary to draw on them for current RVN requirements.

There are roughly 50,000 17-year-olds in the services, or about 1.8 percent of the total force.

Exact numbers currently in the RVN are not available, but estimates place the total at less than one percent of the 148,380 U. S. service personnel there.

Class. town proposed as 4-hour flag display site

WASHINGTON (AFPS)--The green of Lexington, Mass., will be added to three sites where the United States flag is daily flown 24 hours a day. The act to this effect has been referred to the House and Senate by the Budget Bureau.

Officially, the flag may be flown at night and day at Ft. McVay and Flag House Square, in Baltimore, and the Marine Corps Memorial, Arlington, Va., according to Army General Institute of Army records.

Traditionally, however, the flag shows 10 other recognition places where the flag is flown all the time.

Two of these honor Francis Pickens, composer of the National Anthem. One flag flies at his grave, Frederick, Md., the other at his birthplace, York, Pa. Other flags are traditionally flown at the U.S. Capitol; World War Memorial, Worcester, Mass.; Civilian Cemetery, Woodstock, S. D.; The Plaza, N. M.; Little Big Horn Battlefield, Mont.; Mt. Stover, N. C.; Pikes Peak, Colo.; and Mt. Suribachi, Iwo Jima.

Marines donate blood

In honor of Col. Bishop

A cocktail-dinner party was given for Colonel Barbara J. Bishop, Director of Woman Marines during a visit this week to Camp Lejeune.

Some of the leading figures of Marine Corps Base, their ladies and Woman Marine officers hosted the Woman Marine director at the Paradise Point Officers' Club. Civilian attire was worn.

Colonel Bishop spent two days at Camp Lejeune inspecting living and working conditions of the Woman Marines aboard the base. The Colonel gave a briefing to the WM Company at the Central Area Service Club which was followed by a Coffee Hour at the WM Barracks in honor of her visit.

Captain C. A. Vertalino, Commanding Officer, WM Company, MCB was Colonel Bishop's official escort during the Colonel's stay here.

For Safety's Sake

Base Order P5560.2B (Motor Vehicle and Traffic Regulations) states that no child under the age of seven shall be left unattended in a vehicle. A child is unattended unless in the custody of a person at least ten years old.

Violation of this, in the case of civilians, results in the case being heard by the U. S. Commissioner and the Base Traffic Board. The usual fine imposed by the U. S. Commissioner is $15.00 and a warning; the Traffic Board usually imposes 5 to 15 days suspension of driving privileges.

Children have been hurt when left alone in vehicles. Protect your children, your pocket-book and driving privilege.

Paperback book project

The Defense Department last week released information about all types of goodwill bundles for Viet-Nam being delayed and piling up in San Francisco. This will not change the present plans for the USO Paperback Book Drive in this area. That which is collected can be readied for future shipments after Christmas when it is believed that the Military Post Office bottle neck in San Francisco will be broken.

It happened in Viet - Nam

A father's birthday tale told Nov. 10 in Viet-Nam

By: Sgt. Greg Pearson

CHU LAI, Viet-Nam, Nov. 10--The light from the flares overhead shone brightly on Rudy Delgado's rain-splattered face.

It was 3 a. m. Delgado lay along a furrow in a peanut field, a poncho pulled around his body to ward off the knifing rain.

Delgado is a Marine staff sergeant, and the platoon sergeant of the 2nd Platoon, "M" Co., 3rd Bn., 7th Marines.

The rest of his platoon was also encamped in the peanut field this eerie, wet night. They had just completed the first day of Operation Black Ferret, a four-battalion search and clear operation along the Tra Bong River.

A Marine whispered to Delgado:

"How's the knee coming along, Rudy?"

"It'll be all right, I guess," he replied.

About 12 hours earlier, as his platoon was fighting its way through thorny, tangled jungle growth, Delgado had tripped and fallen onto a patch of thorns.

An hour after that, when the platoon was taking a few minutes of rest, Delgado had the first opportunity to examine his painful right knee. He removed a black, ugly, quarter-inch thorn from the swollen knee.

Infection comes easily in the jungles of Viet-Nam. And infection now coursed through Rudy Delgado's right leg.

Marine artillery whizzed overhead, slamming into far-off hills. And a plane still droned above, dropping parachute flares, which lighted the valley.

Delgado talked slowly, occasionally reaching a hand down to rub his throbbing knee. A corpsman had given him some pills, but the pain remained.

"It'll be 15 years next month that I almost froze to death at the Chosin Reservoir in Korea," he murmured. "I was just a kid then. Had just come into the Marines."

"It was my first taste of combat. And I thought--and hoped--it would be my last."

"These kids now, they're just like I was then. I guess I was hepped up about it at first. But I was scared, too."

"I guess you're always a little scared. But then you hear that first shot fired. You know there's only one thing to do. Go forward. Go get the sonofagun before he gets you or one of your buddies."

Rudy Delgado grimaced as he tried to shift the weight of his body in the narrow, crumbling furrow.

"The kids are cautious, they have to be," he continued. "They worry about the booby traps and the mines. They're all around us. One wrong step and you've had it."

"But when the fight begins, they don't hold back. They're chargers, these kids."

"But you know, our biggest problem isn't whipping the Viet Cong. We know we can do that. Our biggest problem is to convince these poor peasants that we're here to help them."

"That's the battle we've got to win. It's pretty hard for them to understand this whole thing."

"After all, we're from another world. The VC have had the run of the place a long time."

"You know what's really pathetic? To see the old people come hobbling up from some kind of medical treatment."

"They get so excited even if we just give 'em a pill, or rub a little iodine on 'em. It does something to you to see the looks on their faces when you're kind to them."

Delgado pauses. Pain is etched on his face. He switches the subject of the conversation, telling you about the five children he has back in San Antonio.

"I tried to explain to my oldest boy that my being here might help keep him from going through something like this when he's older. I wouldn't like that."

"That's why we have to be here. As long as we're fighting communism somewhere else, we're better off. I'd sure hate to see something like that at home."

"Besides -- this may sound corny--there's a pride in doing something difficult, something important. I think everybody has a feeling in them to help someone out of a bad time."

He pauses, starting to lie back on his wet, earthen bed.

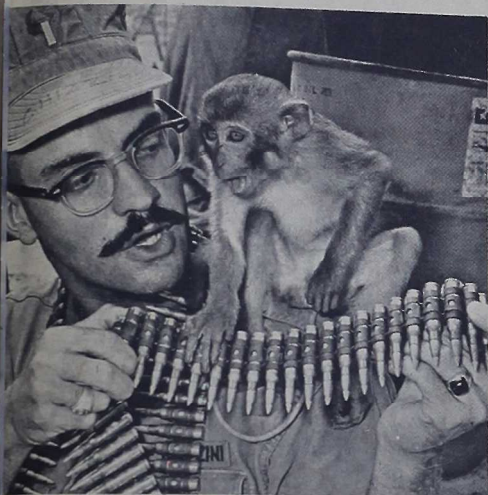

"We're doing the job. We're going places. I don't like it here. It's murder being away from the wife and kids."

"But there's a pride in doing something good, something important."

Rudy Delgado now rests his head back onto his wet poncho. He must rest, try to sleep.

For in a few hours the sun will rise. And Rudy Delgado must lead his young Marines in pursuit of the Viet Cong.

There's a pride in doing something good, no matter how tough it is. Rudy Delgado knows that.

A strange reunion

DA NANG, Viet-Nam, Nov. --MSgt. Fred E. Simmons, Taunton, Mass., was busy working in the Marine Fighter squadron (WMAF)-115 hanger when he received a phone call.

"Hello Fred," the caller said, "this is Leavitt."

"Well I'll be! When did you get in?"

"Just now," the caller replied, "and I thought I'd give you a call."

This is the way MSgt. Simmons and his brother, Air Force 1st Sgt. Leavitt C. Simmons got in touch with each other after being separated more than five years.

They celebrated by having a three-hour dinner. Leavitt then had to leave, as he was just passing through Da Nang.

When they parted, Fred invited Leavitt to, "Drop in any time."

Devildogs bow to Quantico 14-7

The Camp Lejeune Devildog eleven bowed to the Quantico Marines last Saturday at Liversedge Field, for the second time this season as their Virginia counterparts recorded their fifth straight win by a one touchdown margin. Lejeune came out onto the field to avenge an earlier 36-12 Quantico victory, but had to settle with a 14-7 loss to bring their season record to 4-3.

From the opening kick-off until the end of the half, the rugged Devildog defense held the Quantico Marines to only small gains, allowing only seven first downs. But while the defense continually stopped any Quantico drive, quarterback Jim Laurent was finding it difficult to get his offense moving.

The local eleven had to give up the ball three times before quarterback Laurent, on his own 38 yard line, hit his end Ron Bartolazzi for a dazzling 62 yard touchdown pass play. Extra point artist Ron Noy, then split the uprights to put the D'dogs on the scoreboard with a 7-0 lead.

Early in the second quarter, defensive end Bill Wilson downed a 23 yard Quantico drive by intercepting a Mike Cotton pass. On the first play from scrimmage, Laurent teamed up with Bob Johnston for a 26 yard pass play. But the Quantico defense tightened up, forcing Lejeune to attempt a field goal on Quantico's 33 yardline. Clark Blake's attempt was wide and the visiting Marines took over. Quantico controlled the ball for the remainder of the half but were unable to score.

Lejeune received the kick off to open the second half as Bob Johnston streaked back twenty yards on the kick-off return. But the big offense was unable to move the ball any further, however, and were forced into a kicking situation.

Quantico's quarterback Cotton, then went to the air completing three straight passes for 31 yards down to Lejeune's 15 yard line. Halfback Gran-nie Amos was given the call and broke through to the 2 yard line. Cotton employed Amos again as the 185 pounder barreled through for the TD. Quantico then made the point after to tie the game.

During the last quarter, Quantico again drove deep into Lejeune's territory. From the twenty yard line, Cotton connected with end Woody Gilliland for the tie breaking TD. Lejeune was unable to maintain a sustained drive for the remainder of the game as the Quantico Marines picked up their second win over the Camp Lejeune Devildogs.

This Saturday, Lejeune will play host to the Pensacola Goshawks for the last game of the season. Pensacola, the only other team to defeat Lejeune, will be out to repeat their past performance, but the D'dogs should be able to change their minds. The game, which has been designated Onslow County High School Football Day, will get underway at 2 p. m. at Liversedge field.

How does it look?

WITH three minutes remaining, backfield coach, Joe Schulte discusses the strategy with his quarterback, Jim Laurent.

Pott Shots

Now is the time for all good hunters to sit back and introspect upon the first half of the deer season to see just why their freezer remains void of venison.

Of course the first problem of deer hunting is seeing old Mr. Buck. This in itself is quite an art. During the summer while most self-respecting deer hunters are waiting for the season to open, they direct their attentions towards fishing trips or camping expeditions. And without fail, it is during these outings that the woods seem alive with deer. During the summer, deer are "in the red," as the old pros call it, and as a result their coats are a brighter tan which contrasts vividly with their green surroundings, allowing them to be seen easily.

This creates a problem when the season opens up to the fact that the majority of hunters, go into the woods expecting to see a tan deer against a green background. As long as this image persists, the hunter will be extremely handicapped because he will be attempting to see something that simply isn't there, for the deer has turned color as did their surroundings. In the fall, the deer turn from a bright tan to a soft grey which fuses with the background of their environment—naturally making them harder to see.

All hunters will swear that the deer watches the calendar for the opening of hunting season as closely as they do, for once that day rolls around, these four legged critters assume a new personality. Deer, for the most part, become far more secretive and cautious and are seen in open areas. They begin feeding only at dawn or early dawn or late dusk and in general make their presence known as little as possible.

The hunter must then adjust his image of the summer deer to that of the "hunted" deer in order to even get a glimpse of his game. Thus the sportsman must train his eyes to perceive only a small part of a deer and look for incongruous patterns in his surroundings, for example: the horizontal line of a deer's back among the vertical lines of trees and bushes.

Movement is another clue that old Mr. Buck is in. Many times a buck will be aware of the hunter's presence but will stand his ground, in hopes that he won't be seen. He will, however, flick his ears—and this will be the type of movement a good hunter will spot, otherwise, he may never see a deer all day.

Another reason for an empty freezer is commonly known as "Buck Fever." All too often, an eight pointer will slip into the woods because of one of the two forms of this dread disease. The most common occurs when a hunter becomes too eager at the sight of a buck that he squeezes off a couple of rounds before he has maneuvered into a good position or is in range. A "good head" is the key factor in spotting a deer and in most cases, you have time, if the patience is there, to move into a good position to shoot.

The second type of buck fever is completely freezing at the sight of the game. Nothing is more frustrating to a new hunter than being less than 50 yards away from a buck and not being able to move. But the prognosis of this form of the fever is short—that is, after several big ones are long-gone.

Of course one of the oldest rules of deer hunting is being quiet. The only way to make as little noise as possible is not to move. Thus one of the best ways of running onto a deer is for the deer to run onto you. Once the hunter has located what appears to be a good site, he should find a log and sit down and start bobbing. A buck can not hear your eyes roll, but he can hear your feet move.

Once a hunter has these few problems in hand, he can then start employing more sophisticated techniques but just remember—it is far easier to bag a deer with a loaded rifle.

onyman Bowlers received eat last weekend as professional bowlers Frank Clause and Sylvia Wene bowled two Exhibition Matches with winners of High Game, High Series Tournament.

The exciting weekend began Saturday as the Finals of High Game, High Series Tournament got under way. Four bowlers from each club, including both men's and women's divisions, each vying trophies and prize money the much coveted honor of competing in the Exhibition matches with the pro bowlers. In the Women's Division, Sylvia Wene won first place in the High Game Club. Marge Stinnett runner-up. In the High Series Club, La Medina was the winner. Lorraine Phillips runner-up. This was a close match with the game, causing an additional game to be rolled to break tie.

In the Men's Division, D. L. Germann won first place in the High Game Club and Jim Murphree was the runner-up. In the High Series Club, Eldon Gardner won first place and Wm. Staine took over the second spot.

On Sunday, some 600 spectators were on hand to watch the first Exhibition match by the pro bowlers and the winners of the High Game Club, Connie Zavistoski and D. L. Germann.

Frank Clause graphically explained many do's and don'ts of bowling to the interested spectators. Some of his illustrations were hilariously funny as he delivered them in true "ex-school teacherish style."

Sylvia Wene paired off with D. L. Germann in the Match and proceeded to shellack the ex-school teacher and his partner, Connie Zavistoski. Germann rolled a 523 series and Miss Wene, with one game of 222, rolled a 564. Connie, plagued with splits, rolled 438 and Clause, who used some of his frames for trick shots, still came thru with a solid series of 557, games of 182-183 and 192.

During the evening performance, Lilly Medina and Frank Clause paired up against Eldon Gardner and Sylvia Wene. Lilly rolled a tremendous 569 series while Eldon ran into a little trouble just missing the 500 mark with a 495. Frank and Sylvia rolled their consistently fine series of 583 and 527 respectively.

Lions edge Browns, 7-6 Football League ends

By: SSgt. Tom Jones

The Camp Lejeune Boy's football League came to the conclusion of a fine season of football this past weekend. There have been many moments of glory to the victors, and to the vanquished moments of despair, but to all the coaches and players it has been hard work, and 100% effort each and every week through the course of the season. The result each Saturday and Sunday was a great brand of hard hitting, exciting football. To all congratulations on a fine effort. What more fitting climax to an exciting season than to have the top two contenders for the Tiny Tot League title meet head on in the final game of the year to decide the champion. The Browns and the Lions did just this, and the result was an old fashion rock-and-sock game that was undecided until the final whistle.

The Browns drew first blood as they drove 50 yards behind the running of Mike Love, Stan Woods and Kevin Hausenfluck with Hausenfluck covering the final four yards and six points. The try for a point failed but the Browns were on the boards.

Early in the second quarter the Lions began a drive from their own 40, and behind the deft ball handling of Greg Simon, and the hard running of Robby Tackas, Tommy Jones and Tony Leftridge the Lions moved to the Browns six, where Jones took it in for the tally. On the try for the all important extra point Jones rammed it in and the Lions were in front. The Lion defense then took over, and for the rest of the game they contained the running game of the Browns. Led by Don McCush, Mitch Hill, Randy Solomon and Bob Weaver they continually broke through to break up any drives the Browns could generate, as the Lions roared to the Tiny Tot title.

Other action over the weekend saw the Champion Eagles hang on for a 14-12 win over the upset prone Bears. The Colts ended the Redskins victory string at one, as they sank the Redmen 12-0, and the Vikings ground out a 12-0 win over the ever determined Rams.

D'fish drop opener to powerful Bragg

The Fort Bragg swimming team invaded the Area Five Swimming Pool last Saturday, to dunk the Camp Lejeune Devilfish by the score of 268-210. The Bragg swimmers were out to avenge an earlier 243-203 defeat at the hands of the D'fish back in June and managed to make their bid good during the sixty event AAU sanctioned meet.

The Devilfish, handicapped by the loss of many seasoned veterans, broke into an early lead but were quickly overtaken by the powerful Bragg squad.

Eight year old Pam Ohanesian led the Lejeune drive by amassing 15 points with three first place medals. Eleven year old Jamie MacKenzie also made a strong bid for the local swimmers by capturing the 50 yard freestyle and butterfly events and a close second in the backstroke for a total of 13 points. Eight year old Larry Van Cantfort and ten year old Laurie Degerness also hit the double figures by recording 11 and 10 points respectively.

Five other Lejeune swimmers compiled eight points each to round out the closely contested meet. Eight year old Don Bieger captured the first place medal in the backstroke and came in second in the breaststroke.

In the 9-10 year old boys division, Andy MacKenzie picked up the first place honors in the butterfly and second in the free-style. Chris Degerness in the girls' division matched MacKenzie's performance with a first place in the butterfly and a second in the freestyle.

Fourteen year old Mike Van Cantfort steamed in for the first place title in the 100 yard backstroke and had to settle for a second place in the freestyle while sixteen year old Wren Terry racked up her eight points by winning the breaststroke event and placing second in the backstroke.

This Saturday, Nov. 20, the Lejeune club to gymkhana

The Camp Lejeune Sports Car Club sponsored a duplicate-time gymkhana last Sunday, in the PX parking lot as part of their regularly scheduled events. The gymkhana, a 1/10 mile course, comprised of hair-pin turns and intricate winding routes, was open to anyone wishing to pit their driving skills against the pack.

Sixteen entrants and their cars were on hand for the competition. The meet was conducted according to the standard gymkhana regulations in which each driver navigates through the course twice and an average of the two runs is then taken. The contestant then runs through the course for a third time, and the driver whose third-run clocking is the closest to his average is declared the winner.

The event was divided into two divisions: sports cars and sedans. In the sports car class, Olde Wood driving a MGB captured the first place honors with second place going to Richard Parker in a MG-TD. Land Forehand, driving a TR-4, copped third.

In the sedan division, a husband and wife team gathered in the first two places. Art and Diane Vance piloted their Volvo in for the first two places respectively. Jack Gallagher in a Mustang, captured third.

And they're off . . .

Devilfish will play host to Langley Air Force Base at the Area Five Pool. The meet is scheduled to get underway at 10 a. m. and the public is invited.

The D'fish are still recruiting new swimmers for the 65-

66 season. Any young swimmer from the age of 8-17, who is interested in trying out for the team is asked to report to the Area Five Pool at 4 p. m., Monday thru Friday. A candidate need not have any previous experience.

CAMP GEIGER
STAFF NCO CLUB
It appears that due to our little article about "to come alive, enjoy yourself at the Geiger Staff NCO Club" must have hit home, as people sure did come out this past weekend and enjoyed themselves with Sara Cargill and her wonderful Hammond Organ music. Things were really poppin' in joining in oned patrons enjoyed occasionally. We are proud to say we enjoyed your patronage and hope you will return this weekend when Sara will be here from 7 to 11 p.m. on Friday, here and Saturday.
On Sunday night you will have the pleasure of dancing to the musical selections of Del Berry and the Coachmen from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight.
We announced the re-opening of our dining room last week and the response has been gratifying to know that the club has added another facility for your convenience. The restaurant is terrific and the Lobster tails will be available this weekend. So be sure you visit the club.
COURTHOUSE BAY

How to keep track of 28,000 automobiles

By: PFC R. P. Pitner

What if you had to make sure that 28,000 cars were properly insured, safe, and had authorized admittance on base? What if you also had to know who owned each car, and the owner's rank, serial number, military unit, and other pertinent facts? And suppose you only had five men to handle the job. Sounds impossible, doesn't it?

Good system

It would be if those five men didn't have a good system. Fortunately, the men at the Registration and Identification section of the Camp Lejeune Provost Marshall's office do have a good system. Here's how it works:

Any car kept or operated frequently on base must be registered. In order to register a car, the owner must present a state driver's license, registration of ownership, insurance papers, and a certificate stating that the vehicle has been inspected for safety.

If he is a serviceman, he must also present a vehicle driver and registration record which has been signed by his commanding officer or first sergeant.

When this information is received by Registration and Identification, it is coded and sent to the base Data Processing Installation where it is compiled on an IBM card. These cards are kept on file at the Provost Marshall's office. Periodically they are processed through the IBM machine which gives three lists of all pertinent information. The information is listed alphabetically by name, by state and license plate number, and by make of car.

The vehicle driver and registration records are also kept on file. They contain a record of the driver's traffic violations which follow him from station to station as long as he is in the service.

Decals

When a person registers an automobile the owner receives a numbered decal to place on the front and rear bumpers of the car. By checking the decal number against the information on file, the owner of a car can be positively identified.

Although there has been some method of identification here since the base was founded, the present system was not incorporated until 1955. Prior to that time metal tags were used. The tags were too easily removed from the cars and the system had to be abandoned.

Staff

The non-commissioned officer in charge of registration and identification is Sergeant

Robert Dilley. He and his staff of four, register about 300 a month. They have issued 39 thousand decals to enlisted men below the rank of sergeant since 1955. They have about 28 thousand registered automobiles of all categories on base at this time.

The registration system is invaluable to police work in the event of a stolen car located in minutes.

Payment method detailed for Servicemen

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Defense Department has detailed the new Servicemen's Group Life Insurance (SGLI) coverage specifies other than the following formula of the would exist for payment in the event of death:

The insurance will be paid to your widow (or widower), none, to your child or children or their descendants, none of these, to your parent or surviving parent, if none of these, to the executor or administrator of your estate, if none of these, to your next of kin under the laws of your home state. The insurance will be paid in a lump sum or 36 equal monthly installments as the beneficiary requests.

Officials pointed out that a person having the new SGLI insurance coverage can name a person or legal entity as beneficiary, including any charity, school, estate, or other organization. Also, the insured may designate that any beneficiary named in the law prescribed be paid in 36 monthly installments.

To take advantage of either both of the options, the insured must submit a signed statement to the personnel officer named in the desired beneficiary method of payment.

Beneficiaries designated in emergency data records will apply, officials said.

Aliens must report addresses in January

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Immigration and Naturalization Service requires all aliens in the United States and its territories to report their addresses to the U. S. Attorney General's office in January.

Aliens temporarily residing from the United States in January must report their addresses within 10 days of their return.

Cards for the report are available at U. S. post offices in January and at Immigration and Naturalization Service offices on a permanent basis.

The act provides penalties for willful failure to submit the report. Compliance with this requirement is of importance to all aliens in the forces and to members of services having relatives who are not citizens but residents of this country.

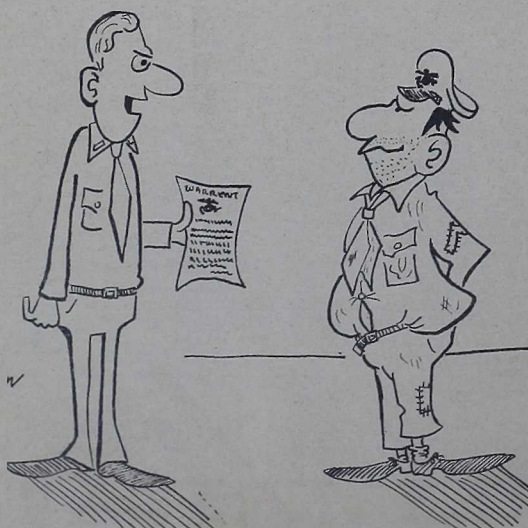

European history courses available from USFI

MADISON, WIS. (AFPS) — The U. S. Armed Forces Institute has announced two new courses in Modern European History.

Course I covers developments in Europe from about 1100 to 1815 and Course II, developments from 1815 to the present.

Servicemen urged to pay poll taxes

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Defense officials advise personnel claiming Texas and Alabama as their official residence to pay their poll tax until suits currently before federal courts are resolved. Suits are underway testing the constitutionality of poll taxes in the line with the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

Persons failing to pay this tax may be ineligible to vote in the 1966 elections, it was explained.

Some other states require a poll tax, but service personnel are exempt from payment in those states, an official said.

Service voting officials will not handle correspondence querying state and local officials concerning this matter. Individuals must initiate their own correspondence.
