MARINE CORPS BASE, CAMP LEJEUNE, N. C.

JANUARY 21, 1965

BGen. O. R. Simpson

Change Slated In April

New CG Named For 2d Marine Division

Major General William J. Van Ryzin, commanding general of the 2d Division, is scheduled to report to Marine Corps Headquarters for further duty assignment. Brigadier General Ormond R. Simpson has been named as the next commander of the 2d Marine Division. He is scheduled to take over by April 15.

General Simpson, presently Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, Headquarters Marine Corps, was a company commander in the 2d Division when it first formed in 1941, and sailed with the Eighth Marines, 2d Marine Brigade, for the Pacific area.

Stationed on Samoa, Gen. Simpson (then a captain), served as Regimental Adjutant of the Eighth Marines until Aug. 1942, when he was promoted to major and named Assistant Operations Officer of the Samoan Group Defense Force. In 1944 he joined the 3d Marine Division. The General later served in the Philippines, and Occupied Japan during the WW II time period.

The Army Legion of Merit was awarded Gen. Simpson for exceptionally meritorious conduct from Dec. 1944 to Jan. 1946 during the planning for the invasion of Japan and its subsequent occupation.

General Simpson's second tour with the 2d Marine Division came in 1952, when as a colonel he served as regimental commander of the 6th Marines, and later as Division Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4.

In Sept. 1953, he joined the 1st Marine Division, in Korea, where he earned the Bronze Star Medal.

General Van Ryzin assumed command of the 2d Marine Division Oct. 1, 1963, relieving Maj. Gen. R. C. McC Tompkins.

General Simpson is scheduled to address the Camp Lejeune-Cherry Point Bar Assn. at the Paradise Point Officers Club, Jan. 25, at 7 p. m.

Help Ronnie Fund Drive

Last week the GLOBE ran an article on Ronnie Elkins, a boy who was burned badly when his father's car was struck by lightning.

The article stated that Ronnie, five-year-old son of SSgt. and Mrs. Chalmer Elkins, was well on his way to recovery from the burns which covered 60 percent of his body, but that he needed a wig to cover grafted skin on his head.

Jerry Brooks, local representative of the Crippled Children's Society, was named as clearing agent for any contributions that members of the quad-command cared to make.

As a result of such contributions, Ronnie is well on his way to getting the needed hair piece. As of Monday morning Mr. Brooks had received $149. Fifty-seven dollars of the total was the result of a collection from "I" Battery, 3d Battalion, 10th Marines. Fifty dollars came from the Thrift Shop, and the rest came from individuals.

Marines Stay 'Cool' Though Under Fire In Five Missions

By WO "ROB" ROBINSON

MARINE TASK UNIT, DA NANG, VIETNAM, JAN. 12, 1965 — Five heliborne combat assaults by Vietnamese forces transported by U. S. Marine helicopters during the past three days have been carried out along the northern coastal section.

The first strike mission began on Sunday when elements of the 39th Rangers landed 25 miles southwest of Da Nang. The site was near the small village of Ha Vi.

The Vietnamese Rangers closed with an estimated Viet Cong platoon, reinforced with a 60mm mortar, and small caliber automatic weapons.

Marine helicopter pilots returned to the landing zone an hour after the initial disembarkment to retrieve 26 captured insurgents taken by the Rangers. Three rebels had been killed and another wounded.

The second major assault of the day began shortly after 1 p. m. A company of the 11th Ranger Bn. was transported ten miles west of the Da Nang airfield to the hamlet of Ngoc Son. By dusk 62 captives had been returned by the Marine pilots to their flight line where they were turned over to Vietnamese soldiers. Viet Cong identification cards and communist booklets were found on the captives when searched. The Rangers suffered only one casualty during both operations.

On Monday, Marines flew north to the city of Hue. Units of the 1st Vietnamese Division were loaded there for two more chopper mounted assaults along the ill-famed "Street Without Joy". The first landing zone was located in Binh An, along the beach, 35 miles north of Hue. A second element of soldiers was lifted from the staging area at Dong Ha and landed at Thanh Hoi, seven miles north of the first site. The two units converged on an estimated enemy force of 200 occupying the area. Six Viet Congs were killed and 13 captured along with the detention of 53 suspects.

While flying their fifth strike mission the following day, the Leathernecks encountered heavy enemy automatic weapons fire near Da Nang. Tracers streaked past the transport helicopters as they descended to land the 11th Rangers. The landing zone was a tree studded LEGION OF MERIT—Mrs. Gahan J. Haskins, accepts the Legion of Merit Award for her late husband, LtCol. Gahan J. Haskins. Maj. Gen. A. L. Bowser, Base Commander, presented the award Jan. 14. The General stated "I take pride in delivering to you, in behalf of the Secretary of the Navy, the Legion of Merit posthumously awarded to your late husband by the President of the United States." Lt. Col. Haskins served as Staff Legal Officer here at Marine Corps Base.

Force Troops Medics Show How It's Done For Inspection Team

By: SSgt. D. P. Brookman

The familiar cry of "Corpsman" was echoed on Jan. 12, when members of 2d Hospital Co., Force Troops, demonstrated their professional skill under simulated battle conditions for the Inspector General's team.

Headed by Capt. George Donabedian, MC, USN, Medical Officer from Headquarters

Marine Corps, the team inspected 2d Hospital Company's combat readiness when they viewed a 29-tent hospital which included an admission tent, minor surgery tent, two operating rooms, surgical wards, two recovery wards, complete galley and messhall, a shower

The "Navy Doc's" medical skills were exhibited during the field inspection when they administered first aid to the simulated casualties. The wounded Marines were first taken to an admission tent, where they were examined and records made on each casualty. The wounded were then moved to a minor unit and an X-ray tent capable of using polaroid or conventional film. The field unit operated with the company's own water and power supply. Demonstrations ranging from the simplest form of first aid to major surgery were performed throughout the field hospital.

Force Troops personnel from 8th Motor Transport Bn., 8th Communication Bn., 8th Engineer Bn., and Headquarters Co., led by SSgt. Manuel Hernandez, enacted the role as simulated battle casualties for the two doctors, 20 corpsmen, and 26 Marines of Hospital Company.

After inspecting the field hospital unit, members of the IG team were guided through the Hospital Company's administration section by Lt. (j. g.) R. M. Coan, MSC, USNR.

Although each corpsman is a specialist in his own field, such as a pharmacist or X-ray technician, he also has to be familiar with each of the other jobs in the company.

The Corpsmen receive their initial training at Basic Hospital Corps School at Great Lakes, Ill., or San Diego, Calif. They also attend Field Medical Service School at Camp Lejeune, followed by some hospital experience and a specialist school of eight-months to a year.

Base Auto Registration

Persons who are changing vehicle auto registration are advised that the new license plate number must be furnished to the Base Provost Marshal. This may be done by calling 7-5240. It would be helpful if you have your base registration tag number handy as cards are filed in this manner.

surgery tent where they were given further first aid and returned to duty or, if the wounds were more serious sent to one of the two operating rooms.

With the help of the Marines who act as ambulance and truck drivers, cooks, electricians, plumbers, laundry unit men and mechanics, 2d Hospital Company's Corpsmen, under the command of Capt. James K. Cunningham, MC, USN, went all out for their part in this year's Inspector - General's inspection.

Seabees Here For Training Session

With clouds hanging lazily over the Atlantic, icy waters below and clear blue skies above, the Seabees of U. S. Naval Mobile Construction Battalion ONE winged their way south to North Carolina.

With this scene, MCB ONE set out from its homeport, Davisville, R. I., for Camp Lejeune, N. C., and six weeks of military training at the Marine base on Friday morning, Jan. 15.

The first three flights took off by air from Quonset Naval Air Station in zero degree weather starting at 10:30 a. m. aboard Navy C-131's and headed south for an approximate three hour flight.

Two additional flights came down later in the day with 78 members of the Battalion making the trip by auto.

On Jan. 8, the advance party, made up of 27 Seabees, made the trip to Lejeune by convoy. MCB ONE, under the command of Commander Richard T. Hardy, CEC, USN, is scheduled to return to Rhode Island around the last of February.

Major Durning Corps' Winner In Freedoms Contest

Marine Major Robert H. Durning has been proclaimed the Corps' top winner in the Freedoms Foundation--1964 Letter Awards Program.

The 41-year old Veteran of two wars, is now assigned as Inspector-Instructor for the 2b Battalion, 24th Marines, Chicago, Ill. He won the letter-writing contest on the subject "My Vote: Freedoms Privilege." With the honor, Maj. Durning has also earned a $100.00 cash award, and a George Washington Honor Medal.

Drill Instructors Board Screens Lejeune Marines

A Drill Instructors Screening Board from Parris Island arrived here last Monday, to screen potential drill instructors, and will leave Friday, after interviewing interested members of this area.

The board is scheduled to return sometime during the first two weeks in April.

Initial screening of applicants is usually conducted within the smaller units. Marines who pass the unit boards are then referred to the Parris Island Board.

IF YOU ASK ME ?

QUESTION—What effect do you think a substantial pay increase would have on first-term reenlistments in the Marine Corps?

GYSGT. PAUL D. SPARKS, Marine Corps Base Career Advisory Officer—We come in constant contact with all first-termers who are accepting their release from the units here at Marine Corps Base. Many of these men feel that our so-called fringe benefits will not last for too many years. There is no guarantee that these benefits can be depended on in the future. They want to talk in terms of cash, not fringe benefits that could be erased tomorrow. A substantial pay raise would definitely give the first-termers something to think about and plan on.

GYSGT. C. L. SPURLOCK, Force Troops Career Advisory NCO—A pay raise would keep more technically trained and skilled Marines in, instead of having them being grabbed up by private industry. Also, many first term Marines are married, and this speaks for itself.

LCPL. JERRY MOORE, Flames Sect., H&S Co., 2/6—I don't think a pay raise would have a great effect due to the fact that it's the type of person that you are that makes a career Marine not how much you can get out of it.

CPL. RONALD B. STEINMETZ, Hq Btry., 2d FAG—A first term pay increase would benefit any Marine on his first enlistment. His extra income could be spent on off-duty education, investments, or savings to better prepare himself for reenlistment or discharge. Low income is a major problem of a first term Marine. I think more pay would influence more Marines to reenlist.

Servicemen Aid Stricken West Coast Communities

Many members of the armed forces celebrated the New Year while conducting rescue and relief operations after floods brought disaster to several communities in California, Oregon and Washington.

At the Sixth Army Emergency Operations Center

Presidio of San Francisco, members of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard worked around-the-clock to direct the deployment of military personnel, equipment and supplies committed to assist the stricken communities.

Marine Corps CH-34 helicopters operating from Murray Field, Calif., flew 38 hours, carried 81 passengers, evacuated 48 persons and hauled 73 tons of cargo.

Army helicopters operating out of Rhonerville, Calif., kept a busy schedule, recording over 57 hours of flying time, carrying 81 passengers and more than 14 tons of cargo.

A large number of military aircraft, vehicles, bedding, sandbags and other military equipment were committed to the rescue and relief operations. A major base of operations for the aircraft, mostly helicopters, was the USS Bennington, an anti-submarine warfare carrier. It sailed from Long Beach, Calif., with 32 helicopters from the Marine Corps Air Station, El Toro, Calif. Approximately 10 UH-1 Army helicopters from the Combat Development Command Experimentation Center were flown aboard the carrier as passed Ft. Ord, Calif.

Members of the 13th Coast Guard District, Seattle, Wash. rescued over 300 people from flooded areas in Oregon. Coast Guard helicopters rescued 1 persons. The remainder were rescued by boats and crew from Coast Guard Stations along the coast and on the Columbia and Willamette Rivers. One evacuation forced a helicopter to hover three feet under high tension wires while a crew member waded in deep water to a flooded home and removed a woman and four children.

Nine Air Force C-119 and C-97 aircraft brought in clothing, medical supplies, radio equipment, vehicles and cat food. One C-124 Globemaster flew in a 5,000 gallon fuel truck.

A Five Paragraph Order On Preparation For The IG

This is the story of how one Marine, Cpl. David L. Hipp, Base Materiel Battalion, MCB, Camp Lejeune, solved his problem of how to face the big Inspector-General, when he lacked funds to prepare properly for his inspection:

Situation: You're a Lance Corporal in the United States Marine Corps. You have not been paid for five pay days because you drew a "dead horse" to move your house trailer when you returned from Okinawa. Your wife's at home in Florida because you can't afford to bring her to Jacksonville. And the Inspector General's annual visit is scheduled in less than a week.

Mission: To be prepared for a clothing and equipment display during the inspection.

Execution: Borrow a dollar from your Platoon Sergeant. Use that dollar to put gas in your old jalopy and then patrol the highways around Camp Lejeune. It takes me because a lot of the work must be done on foot, but over a weekend you should be able to collect enough empty soda bottles to pay back your Platoon Sergeant, get a haircut, and get your clothes to the cleaners. You now that by the time the Inspector arrives you have to be ready.

Administration and Logistics: The entire operation is budgeted for six dollars. Each bottle is worth only two cents. That means that you have to collect over three hundred bottles. If nothing else the bending and stooping involved in picking up that many bottles will fit in well with the physical readiness program.

Command and Communications: The Inspecting Officer is Lieutenant Colonel BURGE. His inspection will take place at 0800 on Thursday, 14 January 1965.

Results: Mission Accomplished. Your display is given an outstanding rating by the Inspecting Officer. The next day the Battalion Promotion Board meets and as you are unqualified and as the Board has heard about your display, you are selected for Corporal. In fact, if you were Corporal David L. SHIPP, Headquarters and Service Company, Base Materiel Battalion, 2d Force Service Regiment, Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, life would be looking pretty good right now. Your mission had been accomplished, and you had been promoted. Now, maybe with the increased pay of your new rank and enough bottles, you can get your wife to Camp Lejeune.

More money will be donated to the project. Service Company, H&S Battalion, MCB, is now taking contributions from members of its command, and other units are doing the same.

It is impossible to say just how much money is needed to get Ronnie's hair piece. A plastic surgeon's estimate was between $500-$700. The wig must have a medicated base because of the extra sensitivity of the grafted skin to disease, and the wig must be blended and fitted to the hair remaining on Ronnie's head.

It will take a trip to a New York specialist to have the wig made.

Medicare can't help out. Ronnie's parents planned to get him a wig eventually — they didn't come around asking for charity. But due to their present financial condition, brought about by this tragedy, they can't afford it now.

Meanwhile, the time is coming when Ronnie should be in school.

Already Ronnie has been called "Monster" and other names by children with whom he has had contact. The situation isn't apt to improve when he begins school.

So far, Ronnie's mother has been able to soothe his feelings by pointing out that he is very fortunate to live through his experience. She calls him "a little hero," but he's starting to notice the name-calling more.

Anyone interested in helping Ronnie out can send checks or money orders made out to Ronnie Elkins, Onslow Crippled Children's Society, PO Box 1157, Jacksonville, N. C. attention: Jerry Brooks.

It isn't necessary to donate a vast amount in order to help get Ronnie a wig. Fifty contributions of one dollar are as helpful as one contribution of $50.

Alongside 10 miles west of the Marine camp. Machinegunners and the choppers returned the enemy fire. Enemy losses for the last action are not available yet.

Major Warren H. Gustafson, executive officer of the Marine Squadron, led the Marine pilots on all five missions. Insurgent small arms fire during the three days of flying failed to inflict casualties to the Marines or cause damage to their aircraft. The veteran Gustafson, who began flying in 1935, said, "I'm extremely proud of our pilots and crewmen. They displayed fine armanship and coolness under fire throughout the missions."

Major Gustafson enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1942 and began his military flying in 1944 in the South Pacific. He participated in the Korean conflict in 1951.

Speech Therapist Needed

The services of a trained speech therapist are urgently needed by the Jacksonville Crippled Children's Society.

A class of about 40 children, which meets twice each week, was left without a therapist due to a transfer, and a qualified instructor is needed to fill the vacancy.

Anyone interested may get more details by contacting Mr. Jerry Brooks. His phone number is 347-1241.

FIFTH MARINES GATHER—Members of the Fifth Marines who were in the Chosin Reservoir breakthrough in Korea, gather for a reunion with their former regimental commander, Maj. Gen. R. I. Murray, front row, center. Gen. Murray, Inspector General, is now concluding his IG inspection of the quad-command.

First 'Johansen Award' Goes To Cpl. McDonald

By SGT. DAVE DeBOLT

Cpl. John B. McDonald, 2d Force Reconnaissance Co., Force Troops, has been named recipient of the first Capt. Peter J. Johansen award.

The award, given in the memory of Capt. Jeter J. Johansen, who was killed while participating in parachute operations with 2d Force Recon in January, 1963, is given to the outstanding Marine within Force Reconnaissance Co. during the previous calendar year.

In selecting Cpl. McDonald for the initial award, the board of three officers and two enlisted men considered his contributions to the company, his outstanding performance of duty as a reconnaissance team leader, his leadership ability, his devotion and dedication to duty, his "esprit de corps" and his ever continuing drive for self-improvement.

Corporal McDonald received an award certificate and will have his name engraved on the Capt. Peter J. Johansen trophy. He will also receive a meritorious mast from the Company Commander and a recommendation for meritorious promotion to sergeant.

Since joining 2d Force Reconnaissance Co. more than three years ago, Cpl. McDonald has completed Army Airborne School, Ft. Benning, Ga.; Underwater Swimmers School, Key West, Fla.; Ranger School, Ft. Benning, Ga.; Amphibious Reconnaissance School, Little Creek, Va.; and the Non-Commissioned Officers Leadership School, Camp Lejeune.

As a reconnaissance team leader, Cpl. McDonald is responsible for clandestine pre-assault and distant post-assault reconnaissance in support of a landing force. Cpl. McDonald and his three man team can be airlifted into enemy territory or go ashore from the escape hatch of a submerged submarine. Contact with the enemy is avoided at all times if possible.

Brigadier General Donn J. Robertson, Commanding General, Force Troops, presented the award to Cpl. McDonald during formal ceremonies at the company's para-loft Jan. 18.

General Robertson said the Capt. Johansen award was symbolic of the company's "esprit de corps" in that it revived the memory of one of the company's finest officers and leaders.

The general went on to say that the selection of Cpl. McDonald for the award was in keeping with the high standards Capt. Johansen expected from Marines.

Major J. H. Carothers, Jr., CO, 2d Force Recon, characterized Capt. Johansen as an "outstanding officer and Marine" and a "man among men".

Captain Johansen enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1951 and served with the 1st, 2d and 8th Tank Battalions before he was commissioned in 1957. During his service with the tank battalions he was awarded the silver star medal with one star for action in Korea.

The captain was fatally injured January 16, 1963, while participating in parachute operations at Fountain Drop Zone, Chinquapin, N. C.

AWARD WINNER—BGen. Donn J. Robertson, right, CG, Force Troops, presents Cpl. John B. McDonald with the Capt. Peter J. Johansen award as the outstanding Marine within 2d Force Reconnaissance Co., Force Troops.

Officers Elected To Head Lejeune Little Theater Set

Anxious to get into the production stage of amateur theater work, members of the Lejeune Little Theater Group Tuesday night finished up the administrative details and are now ready to roll up their sleeves and "get to work".

Administrative work completed at the theater group's second general membership meeting included election of officers and adoption of constitution and by laws.

Seven officers were selected to head the group. They are: Chaplain William C. Glaser, President; Lt. Joe Koepfer, First Vice President; Mrs. Georgeanna Burdette, Second Vice President; Chief Sydney J. Marks, Treasurer; SSgt. Leon E. Witconls, Assistant Treasurer; Major Thomas Hodges, Secretary and Sue Guilles, Assistant Secretary. Joe Faulhaber was appointed parliamentarian.

A Constitution and By Laws was adopted as the next order of business which will be presented to MajGen. A. L. Bowser for approval.

A proposal was also approved to admit civilians living aboard the Base as members. Membership heretofore was restricted to military personnel, their dependents, and retired personnel.

With an executive branch formed, the President appointed a Play-Reading Committee to select the first play to be produced by the Lejeune Little Theater Group. Suggested plays were: "Mr. Roberts", "Arsenic and Old Lace", "Blythe Spirit", "The Importance of Being Earnest", "Where's Charlie?", "Harvey", "Mary, Mary", "The Man Who Came to Dinner" and "Three Men on a Horse". Committee members are Mrs. E. Marks and Ben Vandegrift.

As proof of the group's determination to get a play off the ground without delay, another meeting of the general membership is scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 26, 1965 at 7:30 p.m. All persons interested in joining are once more extended a cordial invitation to attend the next meeting.

A target date of April 1 is still being considered by the group.

Isn't The Word 'Marine' Synonymous With 'Proud'?

What is pride?

According to Webster, it is the quality or state of being proud; commendatory in indicating a justified self-esteem, proper self-respect, or dislike of falling below one's standards that spurs one on, buoys one up, or checks one from base decisions.

How does this wordy definition apply to you in the Marine Corps?

First of all, why did you join? Was it because the pay or benefits were better? Or was it because you heard the Corps was tougher, more exacting? Wasn't your pride coming through?

Pride is a very distinct part of our lives as Marines. More than likely, one of the first things you heard in boot camp was that you didn't have what it takes to be a Marine. Maybe not in these exact words, but you got the point. It was an insult to your personal pride.

Consequently, you tried harder; strove for perfection. You accomplished feats you never dreamed of doing before you met the gentleman under the campaign hat. It wasn't easy then and still isn't. Certainly you didn't sweat and strain just to earn the money you received. You accepted the DI's challenge as a personal affront. You showed him you did have what it takes.

As each man was dropped, the remainder became more close-knit. It was the beginning of esprit de corps — selfless and often enthusiastic and jealous devotion of the members of a group to the group or its purpose.

It was pride and esprit de corps that kept Marines going forward during the island campaigns of World War II. Can you pay a man enough to have him walk into machinegun fire or into a mortar barrage? Can you "make" him do it?

Let's look at Korea. The Air Force offered to fly out the Marines encircled by the enemy at the Chosin Reservoir. Why did they choose to fight their way out, bringing with them their dead, wounded and equipment?

Not only did they arrive at Hungnam as a fighting unit, they brought with them equipment that had been abandoned by other Americans. This feat was accomplished against overwhelming odds.

How many turncoats did the Marine Corps have in Korea when the clamor arose stateside that American troops weren't adequately trained for combat and were throwing down their arms in the face of superior enemy forces?

Not one.

Do you think this pride is falling down in these Cold War years we are experiencing now? Can this pride live in these uncertain times?

Take a look at yourself for the answer. Your shoes are required by regulation to be shined. Yours are spit-shined. Your uniform is required to be clean and pressed. It's immaculate. Someone needs a blood transfusion. You roll up your sleeves. The list is immeasurable.

Aren't "Pride" and "Marine" synonymous?

Commandant Asks Hike In Basic Pay

(Reprinted From Navy Times)

WASHINGTON -- Gen. Wallace M. Greene, Commandant of the Marine Corps, will tell Congress when he testifies on Capitol Hill this year that:

Pay for servicemen has not kept pace with the rapid rise in the standard of living of other Americans. He will urge a "substantial across-the-board increase in basic pay rates."

Pro-pay has not done the job it set out to do. The Corps is still losing too many highly-skilled, expensively-trained specialists to private industry. He favors the Navy's version of a variable re-enlistment bonus--the technical skills re-enlistment incentive--as a better cure for the services' retention problems.

Housing is a major factor influencing morale and available housing now does not fill the bill. He plans a strong plea for "sufficient, adequate housing for married Marines."

The country has a "moral responsibility to provide hospital beds for retired military," Greene says medical benefits have "traditionally been a part of military compensation and should be continued in all facets."

Greene expressed these views during a Navy Times interview during which he also made these points:

The Corps will probably expand its use of Women Marines as a result of recommendations made by the recently-concluded Pepper Board.

The Corps supports the Defense-sponsored bill to pay cash awards to servicemen for beneficial suggestions. If Congress passes the bill this year, the Corps will "closely monitor the results."

He has given "the highest priority" among proposed construction items for fiscal 1966 to the first phase of moving the communication-electronics battalion from San Diego to Twentynine Palms, Calif. Other top items for the next fiscal year will be additional living and recreational facilities at Camps Lejeune and Pendleton and family housing at Quantico and Barstow.

THE COMMANDANT also indicated he was asking for an increase in Corps strength of between three to four thousand men. Some of the additional men are needed as radar operators in new two-seated F4B aircraft the Corps is getting in place of single manned planes. Others will go into beefed-up ground crews in squadrons out-fitted with the new planes.

Greene said he would like to increase the size of the Corps from its present 190,000-man level to about 206,000, but that he would settle for the smaller 3000-4000-man increase as a starter in view of budgetary limitations.

Commenting on the military pay situation, Greene said too many Marines were finding it necessary to "moonlight" in order to meet their financial obligations. "Military service is a full-time job and cannot be done only from 8 to 4," the General said.

Greene, now entering his second year in the top Corps post, lauded LtGen. Robert H. Pepper for his work with the just-concluded Woman Marine program study group, calling the group's report "the best study ever made" on distaff Marines.

He said the group had come up with 83 recommendations, aimed toward improving the efficiency of Women Marines. His staff is now going through the recommendations, deciding how best to put them into effect, Greene said, adding that at least a major portion of the board's suggestions would be made public when the staff work had been completed.

Among the more important recommendations made by the study group, Greene said, were ones urging greater use of Women Marines in overseas billets (such as State Department posts); a greater variety of specialties to which they would be assigned, including an increase in the number of those automatic data processing specialties; improved living conditions for the women, and some changes in training for both recruits and specialists.

Commenting on the construction program the Corps has proposed to Congress, Greene said relocation of the San Diego Electronics Activity was necessary because of electromagnetic interference caused by operations at Lindbergh Field, and municipal airport near the Recruit Depot. He said the construction plugged for this year would provide classrooms and laboratories for the relocation of all radar courses to the Twentynine Palms base.

Among the housing and recreational items recommended for construction during FY '66, Greene said, were a dispensary, men's and women's barracks, messhalls, battalion recreation buildings, BOQs, theater, a combat training tent, a branch post exchange, a community building and a hobby shop. While he did not identify the location of any particular item, he said the bulk of the construction would be for Camp Pendleton and Camp Lejeune.

Chaplain's Corner

"WHATS YOUR DEFINITION?"

The shortest essay ever written on the theme: "The Meaning of the Church" was only four words long. For that writer the church was the place to "hatch, match, patch and dispatch."

The place to hatch. That is, the church is called on to baptize the new born babies. Very often a big cocktail party follows the holy sacrament of baptism. Perhaps that is the reason baptismal services are so well attended.

The place to match. In our community who would (for the most part) ever think of getting married any place but in the church. When asked why the wedding is wanted in the church, the answer seldom comes that the couple desires the prayers of the people and the blessing of God in their union.

The place to patch. Like a good tree to run to for shelter, the church and the chaplain or pastor are sought out when problems crop up in the family. It's strange why so many people seek the help of God only when they are flat on their backs; have attempted everything else.

The place to dispatch. Absolutely no one in this community would think of being buried without some sort of church service or the presence of a clergyman. This is part of the responsibility of the church, to dispatch what it hatched.

Today you often are not considered an American unless you are a Catholic, Protestant or Jew. Almost everybody will claim a church connection even though he is not active.

If you had to write a theme on the church would you be able to sum it up in four words? Or would you want to say something about the worship of Almighty God and the fullness of life?

Nurses Lecture

Nurses at the U. S. Naval Hospital, located at Camp Lejeune, North Carolina, will be given a lecture this Thursday, Jan. 21 at 2:30 p. m. in the hospital's main auditorium by Miss Mary Frey, professor and chairman of nurses at Old Dominion College, Norfolk, Va. Her topic is Philosophy-Objectives of In Service Education.

A good way to begin the New Year is with a recipe guaranteed to give you a well-balanced, nourishing literary diet. Many excellent recipes can be prepared easily and quickly and the one given here is just one of many.

Take a dash of light, pleasant humor like Comrade Don Camillo, another delightful addition to the series about the lovable parish priest written by Giovanni Guareschi.

Mix this freely with Geography and Politics in a World Divided, by Saul Bernard Cohen—a book which, to quote the book jacket, is "a valuable new tool for the analysis of international relations and national strategies" and which will give you a leavening of factual information.

Add a plentiful supply of spiritual inspiration which can be found in such a book as "God Here and Now," by Karl Barth. This is a volume in the excellent Religious Perspective Series which was written by a leading theologian of today.

This sample recipe contains the valuable ingredients of humor, information, and inspiration and it will provide the kind of varied literary diet which is as necessary for reading as for eating. You can enjoy thinking up other recipes which will provide similar material or you can call on "chefs" at the Library who will be glad to help you select a special literary diet suited to your own personal needs and interests. Any library is a great storehouse of valuable ingredients and it has all of its ingredients ready to prepare a feast for you.

EDDIE ALLEN AND HIS ORCHESTRA will be appearing with others of the Roaring 20's Revue on Feb. 19 at the Hadnot Point Staff Club. The show will start at 9 p.m. There will be a floor show and dancing 'til 1 a.m. Come early to insure your chance of getting a good seat.

USO TO CELEBRATE TWENTY-THIRD

The Jacksonville USO will be celebrating its 23rd anniversary Feb. 7, with a birthday cake cutting and an informal reception. Ceremonies begin at 4 p.m., and are open to the public.

Since the J'ville USO opened in 1942, an estimated 4 million servicemen have visited there for entertainment, relaxation, or for the multitude of reasons that men visit the USO's.

The land on which the USO building is located was originally purchased by the government from Mr. G. E. Jackson, and the building was erected at a cost of $80,000. Construction began Nov. 20, 1941, and was completed March 15, 1942. The project was turned over to the USO, under lease, at an informal opening Feb. 6, 1942.

The property is still part of Camp Lejeune, and is still leased by the USO.

The USO is not financially supported by the government, but by individual donations, by the United Fund Agency, and the Community Chest.

Unless you are familiar with the Jacksonville USO's work, the activities, and services available are amazing, and it's obvious that a lot of thought and planning has gone into the facility to get the most out of what is available.

The library is a good example of the thought behind the action. A stock of about 500 books is kept in VOLUNTEER AID is given by three local Marines. The USO features a complex hi-fi system that allows music to be piped to every section of the building. In addition, three different types of music can be listened to at the same time, without conflict. Volunteer Marines installed the system.

the library. These books are primarily of the pictorial type, such as LIFE yearbooks, etc. The idea behind this is that a man doesn't have time to come in, sit down and read a complete book. However, he can get a lot of entertainment out of a top quality book featuring short stories and plenty of pictures.

When it comes to television viewing, they have the ideal set-up—three separate TV rooms. The sets are tuned to each of the three major TV networks available in this area. So you just go to the room featuring the program you want to watch. Each set has a separate antenna, so the antenna can be directed to pick up maximum broadcasting quality.

This USO features the stock-in-trade of all large activities of this type—games, pool tables, ping-pong tables, shuffleboards, typewriters, etc. It's in the smaller details, brought about by active, ambitious personnel, where our USO differs.

For instance, this USO has 10 pay phones, mostly used for long distance calls. Most USO's have this feature, BUT, our USO has scrounged up telephone directories from the telephone company for most of the major cities so that a Marine can look up the number he needs without going through information.

order to discuss and devise ways of lending their weight to the task of making the USO a "Home Away From Home."

Another area of USO activity is in the assistance and guidance of the four Enlisted Wives Clubs in the Jacksonville - Camp Lejeune area.

This is a task that leads to mutual benefit. The USO works with the "E" Wives Clubs, and at the same time the clubs do a lot of work within the USO.

Six agencies form the United Service Organizations—the Young Men's Christian Assn., National Catholic Community Service, National Jewish Welfare Board, Young Women's Christian Assn., The Salvation Army, and the National Travelers Aid Assn.

The National Catholic Community Service is the USO member agency responsible for the operation of the Jacksonville Club.

Four people are on the local USO staff. The director is Mr. William Sheehan. Mrs. Emmett Orr is the secretary, and Mrs. Wanda Tesh and Mrs. Kitty Jerkins are staff aides. They are all kept busy.

The Wilmington Club, a branch of the Jacksonville USO, is also having a cake cutting at 4 p.m., Feb. 7.

If you haven't visited your USO, you ought to drop in sometime, and see just what is available. If you have visited the club before, you don't need an invitation. You'll go back on your own. The club is located on Tallman St., just a couple of blocks from the bus station.

Another personal feature of the Jacksonville USO is a housing list maintained there. If a Marine brings his family to Lejeune he can use the USO housing list either to find temporary housing until he can find a more suitable place to live, or he can use the listing to find a more permanent home.

A man being transferred overseas can find a lot of information about where he is going simply by asking at the USO desk. A vast assortment of short, factual pamphlets covering just about every country where there is a duty station are kept there.

Other facilities at the USO are almost too numerous to mention. They have continual movies showing on weekends, showers, lockers, a snack bar, irons, shaving gear, "hospitality hours," a complete music system with about 800 records running the gamut from Shakespearean plays to country and western, with all stops in between, and many other features.

A large part of the Jacksonville USO's success is based on excellent cooperation from the civic and military leaders from this area.

Possibly unique in the USO network is a council which is set up locally. This council is made up of 135 members, all community and military leaders. These members meet once a month at a luncheon in

HqCo Holds Down Top Slot In Base Hoop Play

Headquarters Company Basketball Team ushered in their New Year in fine fashion last Thursday evening as they tightened their hold on first place with a 65-53 win over MP & Guard Company, kicking off the second half of the Base Intramural league play.

Elmer "Stoney" Stone and Rick Thalman led Coach Bill Maro's team to their fourth straight victory, with 24 and 20 pts. respectively, as they stopped a game MP & Guard Company with accurate shooting and good all around team play.

For the first half the score changed hands frequently, with Headquarters Company leading the court for the halftime break with a count 25-23 lead.

As the second half got underway, Stone hit two quick jump shots and Thalman tossed in a pair of free throws, widening the gap to eight. MP & Guard came storming back as Felix Wilson and Leroy Atkins began bombing the nets with outside shots. The third stanza came to an end with the league-leaders ahead 43-41.

Running against a fast-break the entire evening, the wear and tear began to show on the Spring Guard Company squad. Headquarters started pulling away as an all out effort by the entire squad widened the tally to 10 points. Walt Weaver and Jimmy Clark controlled the defensive boards the entire game as they pulled down key rebounds time after time. Dennis "Chief" Chestham contributed eight markers to the winning effort.

Headquarters Company, which has allowed only 213 points in their four games, for a 13 pt. average, has ripped the cords for 278 points, averaging 70 pts. per game. The high riding Headquarters team boasts three men scoring in double figures, as Stoney leads

The Navy rank Motor Transport Company in their second half opener 40-38 as the HqCo. team spent its league's co-leaders.

Motor "T" led at halftime 27-20, but saw their lead slowly begin to fade as the third quarter began. With time running out on the spirited Navy squad a key basket by Larry Mobley brought them to within one. After a missed shot by Motor Transport, HqCo. #15 brought the ball downcourt with only 13 seconds remaining on the clock. Bill McAlexander pulled the game out of the fire as he hit for two with only seconds remaining.

Division's Holiday Play Captured By HqBtry 2/10

The sharpshooting basketball squad of the 2d Battalion, 10th Marines, proved, as they had throughout the season, that they are the tops in the 10th by defeating the hoegmen from Headquarters Battery, 10th Marines, 76-48 to win the Regimental Basketball Championship.

The 2/10 squad, coached by 1st Lt. Thomas L. Adair, went out to front early in the game and didn't relinquish the lead throughout the contest.

Sharpshooting members of the squad thumped in point after point to set the pace against the Headquarters' counterpart's defenses.

When the whistle ending the game sounded, the tally on the scoreboard showed 76-48. This night, was in keeping with the precedent set by the 2/10 squad of beating their opponents by at least a 20 point margin in every outing.

A presentation of trophies to members of the winning team was made at the conclusion of the contest by Col. John S. Chatham, Regimental Commander.

Captain Jerry Gascara was voted the most valuable player of the 2/10 squad by his team members and coaches.

D'dogs Hit By Eagles

A group of battle-tested Army fighters from Fort Campbell, Ky., turned back a strong Camp Lejeune team Tuesday evening, capturing seven of the 10 scheduled bouts.

Brilliant performances by Marshall Fortune, Jr.,

Art Hedden and Ken Norton kept the Campbell "Screaming Eagles" from white-washing the Leatherneck boxers.

Bill Mercedes, Charlie Davis and Bob Lonzada, fighting at 119, 125, and 132 pounds respectively, dropped decisions to the tough doughboy sluggers.

Harrison Payne, a promising Light Welterweight, was stretched out in the 2nd round by Charles Ellis of Campbell.

Next to enter the ring was Fortune. The quick, stinging Marine Welterweight put on a boxing show for the partisan Army fans, as he constantly scored with sharp combinations against Fred Jones in their three round contest.

Fighting two men at Light Middleweight proved to be a double tragedy for Lejeune, as Francis Hutchinson and Charles Perry lost their bouts by a first round knockout and a unanimous decision respectively.

Floyd Stevens, a newcomer to the Devil Dogs squad, had Ray Owens of the Army in trouble throughout the first round and most of the second, before running into the doughboy's haymaker in 21st of round two.

Art Hedden, Lejeune Light Heavyweight champion, won by a decision from Irlah Davis of Campbell after a fine three rounds of boxing. Ken Norton, Marine Heavyweight out-battled the old man of the ring, James Johnson in their ring contest. A veteran of many campaigns, the hard-hitting Johnson was stopped by Norton, who now has a total of four fights under his belt (he has won all four).

The locals will now begin training for their upcoming fight on Jan. 28, 29 and 30 at High Point, N. C., when they enter the ring in the 1965 North Carolina AAU Championships.

N. C. Track Harriers Cop 6 Mile Run

Two members of the North Carolina Track Club traveled from Raleigh to Camp Lejeune last Saturday to capture the two men, six mile relay races held at the Goettge Memorial Field House track.

Paul Rogers and John Jones braved the freezing rain and slick track as they crossed the finish line two and one half minutes ahead of the second place Harriers. Their time for the grueling six mile run was 36 minutes and 30 seconds.

Despite the dismal weather, seven teams showed up to try their luck at the six mile distance. First Lieutenant Bill Dunn and 1st Lt. Don Duster were second to cross the finish line in 38:02. Finishing third in the event was 1st Lt. Ed Loughton of MCAF and 1st Lt. John Bagrocky of the Naval Hospital.

Running out the top four finishers were Pfc. Ken Vane and 1st Lt. D. Duster. The boys' four teams to cross the tape were awarded handsome trophies for their fine effort.

Baseball Tryouts

There still is plenty of time for you to register for this year's Camp Lejeune Baseball Team. Pitchers and catchers are urged to sign up as soon as possible. The battery is due to report for indoor practice on Jan. 25. Infielders and outfielders are also asked to sign up soon. They will commence training on Feb. 5. All registrations are to be made at the Athletics Office in the Goettge Memorial Field House, Monday thru Friday, 9 a.m. - 5:30 p.m.

Basketball: The Sport Of Giants Keeps Drawing The Big Crowds

By SGT. DAVE DeBOLT

The place was the small, dimly lit gymnasium of the YMCA Training School at Springfield, Mass. The year was 1891. Membership in the gymnasium was lagging since calisthenics and non-competitive sports had long lost their appeal to the members. There was a need for a game that could be played indoors, under artificial light, with a minimum of difficulty and high interest to the competitors.

Dr. James A. Naismith, an instructor at the school, set out to create such a game.

In his efforts Dr. Naismith devised the only truly American sport with no roots in the sports of other nations when he nailed two peach baskets to the gymnasium balcony and brought basketball into being.

Little did Dr. Naismith know that from that meek beginning in a crackerbox gymnasium in Massachusetts would grow the largest spectator sport in the United States which now outdraws baseball and football combined.

The peach baskets were soon replaced with metal ones and in 1906 the present open hoops with cord netting attached were put into use.

Twelve of the basic 13 rules laid down by Dr. Naismith are still used although the game has changed vastly.

Basketball was originally played by teams of seven men, then nine, then eight and finally five.

Yale University really pioneered the five man game. The first five man game was played in 1897 as Yale beat the University of Pennsylvania, 32-10.

After the turn of the century basketball began to move west with formation of the Western Conference, or what is now known as the Big Ten.

During its early stages basketball was a slow deliberate type game with emphasis on tight man-for-man defense. The two-hand set shot was the main offense weapon along with the free throw.

The stall was used frequently by winning teams to keep possession of the ball. Scores seldom surpassed 30 points and players averaged less than six feet in height.

To eliminate the stall and speed up the game, the "ten second" rule was brought into effect. This rule prohibited the offense team from holding the ball across the center line for more than ten seconds. Violation of this rule meant forfeiture of the ball to the other team.

Tall men were also dealt a blow with the enforcement of the "three second" rule which prohibits offensive players from standing in the free throw lane for more than three seconds.

By big men we refer to men who reached six foot two inches or bigger. These were considered the "giants" of play during the early 1900's.

Changes brought the sport into its national prominence in the mid-thirties. By 1934 all teams were playing under standard rules.

First big promotion of the sport was accomplished by Ned Irish who booked double-headers into the Madison Square Garden. During the 1933-1934 seasons top collegiate teams played before full houses at the Garden.

The fast break, zone defense and the "big, big men" were all part of the game. Centers were approaching the seven foot mark, guards were towering to six foot five inches and above.

The 1950 era was a dark time for collegiate basketball as a New York grand jury revealed that key collegiate players were accepting bribes from gamblers to "shave points" and "dump games".

After several arrests and some lean years at the box of-

Snap 19-Game Losing Streak

Devilpup Cagers Garner 1st 60-50

The Camp Lejeune Devilpups snapped a 19-game losing streak, which reached back to the beginning of the 1964 campaign, last week as they toppled the highly rated White Oak "Red Devils" 60-50 on their home court.

The win, which brought their seasons mark to 1-4 was spearheaded by the unbelievable accuracy of the entire Lejeune squad throughout the first half.

Led by Harry Land, Pups leading scorer, and by six foot, three-inch Jim Kelly, the sharpshooting Lejeune cagers jumped to a 35-19 lead at the end of the first half.

As the second half began, big Mike Norris, a six foot, four-inch center, picked up the tempo by scoring three straight buckets, putting the game seemingly out of reach. Jimmy Pierce, the "Red Devils" ace, who sat out most of the first half because of penalty trouble, started this teams' offensive clicking as he drove and passed his team back into the game.

The early lead built up by the Devilpups was more than the opposition could cope with. Still they fought back. The tightly packed gymnasium of the Camp Lejeune Jr.-Sr. High School was brought to life as Pierce and Bob Goodman continued to overcome the insurmountable 18 point lead stacked against them. As the spirited Red Devils came within eight points of the fading Lejeune squad, Jim Kelly scored from underneath, widening the lead to 10.

White Oak's quintet outscored the D'pups 31-25 in the second half, but the red hot shooting by the Pups in the first half enabled them to walk off with the well-deserved victory.

Harry Land led the Lejeune scorers with 16, while Jim Kelly and Mike Norris each hit for 12, followed by Bill Stinnett with 10. Bob Goodman and Jimmy Pierce led the Red Devil scorers with 14 and 13 points respectively.

Lejeune Shooters Brave The Snow At Skeet Matches

Three Camp Lejeune Marines teamed up with two civilians at the Pinehurst Gun Club, Pinehurst, N. C., last week and finished second in the Mid-Winter All Gauge 5 Man Team Championship from South Carolina.

Chief Warrant Officers' J. W. Bishop, J. M. Smith, and Master Gunnery Sergeant V. R. Mull led the team as they fired 94X100, 94X100 and 98X100 respectively despite the freezing temperature and snow.

Master Gunnery Sergeant Mull also received the runner up trophy for highest individual score as he registered a near perfect 98X100.

Chief Warrant Officer's Bishop and Smith finished second and third in the individual rankings of the Class C division with identical scores of 94X100.

Later in the competition CWO Bishop, a member of Base Materiel Battalion, 2d Force Service Regiment, and MGYSgt. Mull of H&S Bn., 2d FSR walked off with the two man, Class B title with a 192X200.

All America Bowls

Releasing the ball properly is not difficult, but it is important.

Once you let go of the ball, things are out of your hands. Nothing you can do after that—not even the most violent body English—has any effect.

The ball should be released smoothly, not dropped or thrown, but rolled. It should slide on to the lane with the grace and smoothness of an airplane making a perfect landing.

Phyllis Notaro, BPAA All-Star champion and the highest average woman bowler in the country, says the final slide should end as close to the foul line as possible, without crossing it, of course. The action arm should continue out as thought reaching toward the target and continue upward in a natural, flowing motion.

The thumb should come out of the ball first. The left foot should be at a right angle to the foul line. Be balanced during the release. Phyllis advises trying to stand in your foul line position until the ball reaches the pins.

If you can do this, you have been well balanced during the release and follow through.

ices, collegiate basketball got back on its feet and tried to make up for the ground they had lost to the professional teams.

The 50's saw little defense, lots of shooting and high scoring games as players continued to grow in height. Best known of the "hardwood giants" during this decade was a seven foot two inch giant named Wilt "The Stilt" Chamberlain.

With the coming of the 60's attention again turned back to defense with the full court press being used extensively. Razzle-dazzle offense thrilled throngs.

Sports writers scratched their head for more synonyms to describe players and All-American teams became more and more difficult to select.

In addition to professional collegiate and service ball, prep schools, high schools and grammar schools have picked up the sport in a big way.

From as early as 1891 the only really American sport has taken a hold on the United States, which is not likely to be lessened for many decades.

ALLIED OFFICERS—Foreign Officers from the Communication Officers School and Basic School, Marine Corps Educational Center, Marine Corps Base, Quantico, Va., look over the 106 mm Recoilless Rifle during their tour of 1st Infantry Training Regiment, Jan. 13. The 32 officers visited facilities of the Marine Corps Base and the 2d Marine Division.

High Goals Claimed By BLT 3/2

Battalion Landing Team 3/2, under the controlled input program started its current cycle April 20, 1964, and since that time have accomplished many firsts, not only in the field of military proficiency but in anything they have undertaken.

The BLT left Camp Lejeune, the middle of September for an extended operational and good-will tour of the Caribbean area. However, this in no way meant the members of the Betio Battalion should sit back on their laurels. They have a motto of "One Above" and no matter where they went they were not only striving to continue as "One Above" but to better the records that had already been set.

They have completed a total of 223 High School level tests and 48 college level for a grand total of 275 for the battalion. This may not seem like much but with an organization the size of the BLT which only has four rifle companies and a headquarters and service company, and then deploys one rifle company to Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, it leaves quite an impressive figure.

Not only does it give the men involved a greater incentive for higher learning, it also gives the battalion a record of almost 100% of its personnel with at least a High School Diploma and many with college credits.

The Betio Battalion, has been serving as part of the Nation's Amphibious Force-in-Readiness for the past four months and is due to return to Camp Lejeune, the latter part of January.

REENLISTMENTS, THREE—Three corporals of 2d Battalion, 6th Marines, 2d Marine Division, (left to right) Robert C. Pace, Company "F", Silas Kidd, Jr., Company "E", and Roy E. Webb, H&S Company, are administered the oath of enlistment by Maj. H. F. DeAtley, Bn. Executive Officer. All three men reenlisted for six years.

DINGER—Staff Sergeant P. J. Candiano, Headquarters Co., Force Troops, holds the Leatherneck Rifle Award which he received from the Commanding Officer of Headquarters Co., Capt. D. E. Suduth for firing a score of 237 out of a possible 250 points at the Camp Lejeune Rifle Range. He also received a Leatherneck Marksmanship Certificate.

Arseneault Cited For Scouting Work

LtCmdr. Arthur J. Arseneault, Jr., a Naval officer assigned as operations officer at 2d Air and Naval Gunfire Liaison Company, Force Troops, was presented an award and citation for outstanding service to Scouting in the Onslow County District for 1964.

The award was presented at the annual Scouters Recognition Banquet at the Jacksonville City Hall before some 500 scouters.

LtCmdr. Arseneault served on the District Committee as a member of the Organization and Extension Committee in 1964.

Credit Union Meet

The annual meeting of Marine Federal Credit Union will be held at 1 p.m. on Jan. 27 at Marston Pavilion. All members are encouraged to attend.

Col. Clark Takes Reins As Skipper Of HMM-263

During formal change of command ceremonies held on the flight line of Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron-263, recently, Lieutenant Colonel Truman Clark assumed command of HMM-263, after serving as Commanding Officer of Marine Heavy Helicopter Squadron-461 since August 1963.

A parade and review by Marines of HMM-263 highlighted the command change. Witnessing the ceremony were: Col. D. C. Wolfe, Second Marine Aircraft Wing Inspector; Col. Stanley V. Titterud, Marine Aircraft Group-26 Commander and Col. B. C. Fusan, Commanding Officer of the New River Air Facility.

Also present for the proceedings was the MAG-26 Executive Officer, LtCol. Frank C. Lang and many of the commanding officers of other squadrons in the air group.

LtCol. Clark began his Marine Corps career, by enlisting as a Naval Aviation Cadet in Oct. 1942 and reported to the Air Training Station at Pensacola, Fla., to begin his flight training. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in April 1944 and designated a Naval Aviator in the Marine Corps Reserve.

COMMAND CHANGE—Lieutenant Colonel Truman Clark (right) accepts the squadron colors from LtCol. Warren L. MacQuarrie during change of command ceremonies.

During World War II he served in the Pacific Theater of Operations with Marine Torpedo Bomber Squadron-132. During the Korean Conflict, Col. Clark flew with Marine Night Fighter Squadron-513.

His personal decorations include the Silver Star, 5 Air Medals, the Presidential Unit Citation and the Army Distinguished Unit Citation.

Lieutenant Colonel Warren L. MacQuarrie, holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross, and a veteran of nearly 22 years of commissioned Marine Corps service is stepping out of the Squadron Commander's role to assume duties as Executive Officer of the MCAF, New River.

He was designated a Naval Aviator in 1943 and was commissioned a second lieutenant on the same date.

During his career, he saw combat service in the Pacific during World War II and also during the Korean Conflict. It was during these two periods that he was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with four Gold Stars.

After several tours of duty in Jet aircraft of numerous types, and also duty with various staff billets, he reported to MAG-26 in 1963 for helicopter transition training.

MOVIE REVIEWS

CAVALRY COMMAND

A forbidden love affair with a native girl, complicates life for a U. S. Cavalryman assigned to wipe out bandit armies in the Philippines. Technicolor epic "Cavalry Command," is a dramatic achievement for John Agar and an excellent cast. Romance and lots of action is the order of the day in Cavalry Command.

MGM's BIG PARADE OF COMEDY Laughter has always been a key note of entertainment and MGM offers you laughs in abundance in "MGM's Big Parade of Comedy," a feature picture highlighting the screen's most hilarious comedy moments, dating back to the early silent movie days.

Utilizing features and short subjects made prior to 1947, director Bob Youngson selected comedy scenes involving more than 50 stars of past and present, including Clark Gable, Jean Harlow, Cary Grant, Spencer Tracy, Robert Taylor, Jimmy Durante, The Three Stooges and many more.

LILI

Leslie Caron, as a homeless French waif, finds security and romance with Mel Ferrer, a carnival puppeteer, in "Lili," one of MGM's most memorable color productions, which is again captivating movie audiences. The puppets share stellar honors in a cast which also includes Jean Pierre Aumont, Zsa Zsa Gabor and Kurt Kazan.

YOUR CHEATIN' HEART

The story of Hank Williams, America's famous country singer-composer, is unfolded in "Your Cheatin' Heart," a motion picture which touches the heart. It is a compelling drama, alternating between joy and tragedy, and highlighted by many of the ballads, religious songs and popular country music which Williams sung across the country and which made him one of the most beloved entertainers of his day.

TAMAHINE

When you spring a lovely, uninhibited, seventeen-year-old Polynesian girl named Tamahine on the impressionable students of a boys' public school in England, you can expect some astonishing, explosive and hilarious repercussions. That is exactly what you get when Nancy Kwan is sent from a tropical Pacific island to join her uncle, Poole (Dennis Price), at Hallow, the venerable and staid school of which he is headmaster, in the new MGM and Seven Arts comedy-drama "Tamahine."

WHERE LOVE HAS GONE

"Where Love Has Gone," the best-selling novel by Harold Robbins is now a tension-packed motion picture filled with explosive excitement and drama. Heading the cast is Susan Hayward, and Bette Davis, followed by Michael Connors and newcomer Joey Heatherton.

"Where Love Has Gone" is the shattering story of indiscretion, human frailty, murder, by a teenage girl, and regeneration. It is set in the glittering high society world of San Francisco.

THE YOUNG LOVERS

"The Young Lovers" is the frank and touching story of two college students whose love affair almost ends up a tragedy. What happens when two young people fall passionately in love but can't afford the added expense of marriage? What happens when a guy sees the girl he loves in trouble because he couldn't wait? These are some of the questions answered in "The Young Lovers." Portraying the young couple are Peter Fonda and Sharon Huguely.

GET YOURSELF A COLLEGE GIRL

"Get Yourself a College Girl" is a fast moving musical comedy with a dazzling array of musical stars including the Dave Clark Five, The Animals, Stan Getz and Astrud Gilberto.

berto. It's the wildest danceathon, loveathon and swingathon of the century when coeds Mary Ann Mobley, Nancy Sinatra and Joan O'Brien bring the Watusi to college.

THE DREAM MAKER

"The Dream Maker" is a happy musical that tugs at your heart strings. It is the story of a young man who adopts not one orphan but a whole orphanage. The story of how he saves the home, his sweetheart, and his job is a wonderfully warm and human one. This film stars Tommy Steele, the young British singing sensation.

THE BLACK DUKE

"The Black Duke" is a sweeping story of violence and tenderness in the true flavor of the 16th century. Battles on the field and in the bedroom are waged complete with poisoned wine and many intricate plots to take the Duke's life. Cameron Mitchell plays the part of the Black Duke.

ROUSTABOUT

"Roustabout" starring Elvis Presley, tells the tale of a two-fisted carnival handyman who laughs, loves, sings and fights through one adventuresome scene after another. The story begins at a midwestern campus express den, and it moves quickly and excitingly to the colorful world of the carnival.

A Report On

New Developments In Weapons & Equipment

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is Part I of a two part series on the latest developments in the weaponry and equipment field of the Marine Corps. Information taken from USMC Informational Services Notes, published by Division of Information.) "All Photographs Official USMC"

Although small as compared to the Army, Navy or Air Force, the Marine Corps' Research and Development Program is broad in scope, covering 75 - 100 distinct development projects. The R&D Program has made a solid contribution to Marine Corps readiness during the past year, and the following items are among the most significant:

New Howitzer

The Marine Corps is procuring more than 84 new M-109 155mm self-propelled howitzers to re-equip its three general support artillery battalions. These weapons will become the Corps' first division-level self-propelled artillery and replace the towed 155mm howitzers.

The vehicle is lightly armored, full tracked, and mounts a 155mm howitzer as primary armament. The howitzer is mounted in a turret which is capable of traversing 360 degrees. Designed primarily for high angle fire in support of front line troops, the elevating and traversing of the weapon can be accomplished either by power or manual controls. Direct fire and panoramic telescopes with their accompanying sighting and leveling devices enable the howitzer to be sighted and fired on a canted or pitched position of the vehicle up to 10 degrees.

Capable of rapid emplacement and displacement, the diesel-powered M-109 weighs 26 tons, travels at speeds of 35-40 miles per hour, carried 26 rounds of ammo and is manned by a crew of six Marines.

Red-Eye Missile

The world's smallest guided missile will be in the hands of Marines in the near future. It is the Redeye, an infra-red heat-seeking device which

A simple squeeze of the trigger fires the missile.

The missile, ready for issue in the combat area, comes encased in a fiberglass launcher equipped with strap and sight that also serves as a carrying case. Once the missile has been fired, the launcher may be discarded.

Stoner 63

The Marine Corps is also looking into a new weapon system that has been described as a major advance in tactical small arms. It is called the STONER 63, named for its inventor, Eugene Stoner, a former Marine. The system comprises six separate arms. All built from one basic component group. These include an assault rifle, carbine, magazine-fed light machine gun, belt-fed light machine gun, medium machine gun, or a fixed machine gun for use on vehicles.

"homes" on the heat from aircraft engines. It was developed jointly by the Army and Marine Corps to meet a requirement for a man-portable, surface to air missile for use against low-flying aircraft.

Redeye is similar in appearance to the bazooka anti-tank rocket of World War II and Korea but, unlike the bazooka which fired an unguided rocket, the Redeye is a true guided missile which can maneuver in flight. The infra-red sensor is mounted in the nose of the four-foot solid propellant missile containing a high explosive warhead. Four stabilizing fins on the tail of the missile snap erect as it leaves the launcher, while four nose fins steer the missile in flight.

Target detection and tracking are accomplished visually by the gunner. When the aircraft is in range of the missile and the infra-red seeker has "locked on" the target, the gunner hears an audible signal and sees a red light in his sight.

The system has been chambered for the 5.56mm (.223 caliber) round, and all six configurations are built from one basic component with interchangeable parts. Any of the six weapons can be repaired or converted to another weapon in the field within a matter of minutes using only a cartridge as a tool; no special equipment or accessories are required.

This interchangeability feature, coupled with the single type of ammo, may prove to be a partial solution to a big problem of logistic supply. The decreased weight of the rifle would enable a STONER-equipped Marine to carry 540 rounds of ammo as compared with 240 rounds as presently armed.

Testing of the STONER 63 system is being conducted here at Camp Lejeune at Parris Island and Quantico.

At Home Or Away-- Christmas Still Exists For Marines Of BLT

Stories with a Christmas theme always bring a note of tenderness to the heart of man — even when they are told past the Christmas season. Such is the case of two stories received this week by the GLOBE from Battalion Landing Team 3/2, whose members spent the Christmas holidays in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and Puerto Rico.

His Eminence, Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York, and Military Vicar to the Armed Forces of the United States has been spending his Christmas at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

During his visit, he toured Marine positions on the fence line and with a cheerful word and a hearty smile, made the day a bit brighter for Marines manning the positions. He also held five Masses during this three day stay there.

Company M, an integral part of BLT 3/2, under the command of LtCol. J. A. Weizenegger, has served at Guantanamo for the past 5-1/2 months while the rest of the battalion was on an operational and good will tour of the Caribbean area.

BLT Chorus in Puerto Rico

Meanwhile, the main portion of the BLT was in Puerto Rico over the holiday period. Though they were far from home, it didn't stop them from trying to bring a brighter holiday spirit to those less fortunate.

First Lieutenant J. J. Clark, Platoon Leader, Company I, a lover of music, with the help of Col. Weizenegger, formed a chorus of 60 members from the battalion.

The chorus, after many hours of hard rehearsal while still at Camp Garcia, Vieques, Puerto Rico, were at last ready for the two week stay at San Juan.

They gave 15 performances during their stay at San Juan. Performances were given at all Armed Forces Chapels in the area and at other places such as: La Casa de Hinos, a boys' orphanage; Sanrurce Hospital; Rhode Piedras Hospital; Plaza de Arwas; and Plaza de Piedras. The crowning touch to the chorus' tour in the area came when they were asked to participate with the Puerto Rican Philharmonic Orchestra in an hour long radio show to be broadcast from the lobby of the Geronimo Hilton Hotel.

During the course of their tour they sang to some 5000 persons and unknown thousands heard them over the airways.

Base Special Services is considering the possibility of forming a Photo Hobby Shop. Interested personnel are requested to register by calling Informational Services Office at 7-5655 or 7-5522. Success or failure of this project will depend on interest shown.
