4th MEB Routs Guerrillas

All Districts Of 'Mob' Under Marine Control

4th MEB Marines were not resting over the holiday weekend, they were pursuing the rebel forces of Commandante J. D. Retter who reportedly was personally leading some of his men in hit-and-run raids.

Members of the Marine Expeditionary Brigade took firm control of mythical Mob however, as the tide of the Grassroots mock war began to shift in favor of the "friendly forces".

Over the Labor Day weekend, 4th MEB forces were in hot pursuit of scattered rebel forces led by Guerrilla Commandante Retter, Marine infan-day's bullfight. Working with a detailed description of the assassin, police and MEB forces are confident that the matador's killer will be apprehended soon.

With many of its civil affairs problems being resolved, the 4th MEB is intensifying its military operations. Patrols from the 4,500 man combat force deployed in the forests are reporting numerous sightings of guerrilla movements.

Several attempts by guerrillas to ambush MEB patrols have been foiled. But guerrillas are continuing to "snipe" at the friendly forces and have succeeded in blowing up a number of additional bridges.

Realizing that road movements are highly vulnerable to guerrilla ambush, MEB forces are moving most of their men, supplies and equipment by helicopter. Jet aircraft from the 2d Marine Air Wing are providing protection for helicopter movements and are also bombing suspected guerrilla positions with napalm.

Air elements of the 4th MEB are effectively supporting ground operations against guerrilla positions. Jets, helicopters and transport aircraft are operating round-the-clock while conducting troop and supply airlifts, photo reconnaissance and close air support missions.

Following a visit to the Grassroots battleground BrigGen. Donn J. Robertson, Exercise Director, said he was impressed by the way 4th MEB Marines were locating and destroying guerrilla positions.

RIEBLY FORCE—Marines of the 4th Marine Expeditionary Brigade move along a forest trail in search of fleeing guerrillas during the mock war of Operation Grassroots-64. The full scale counterinsurgency/counterguerrilla exercise, involving over 6,500 East Coast Marines, is being fought in the mythical district of Mob located within the boundaries of Camp Pickett, Va. The "friendly forces" of the 4th MEB, commanded by BrigGen. John G. Bouker, arrived Sept. 1 for the 10-day maneuver. The overall exercise, scheduled to wind up today, is commanded by BrigGen. Donn J. Robertson, Commanding General, Force Troops.

New Base Bowling Center Grand Opening Tomorrow

After years of planning and preparation, the new, modernly equipped Camp Lejeune Bowling Center will open officially tomorrow.

The building itself takes up 29,600 square feet of sonnel and their dependents.

American Red Cross personnel assigned to duty within an activity of the United States Armed Services and bonafide guests accompanied by their sponsor will also be eligible to use the facility. This Sunday, Sept. 13, the general public is

Beach Closing

The Onslow Beach Recreation Area will close at sunset on Sunday, Sept. 13. However, one beach in the vicinity of the Enlisted Pavilion will be open for swimming on weekends only for all hands until Sunset Oct. 18. The Snack Bar in the Enlisted Pavilion will be open during the hours the beach is open.

Promotions

Headquarters Marine Corps has announced that 101 staff non-commissioned officers previously selected for promotion will be promoted this month with a September 1 date of rank.

Promotion breakdown is:

Two first sergeants to sergeant major, cutoff precedence number is 11.

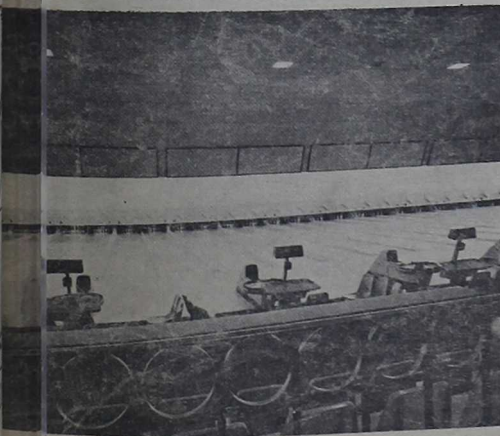

Five master sergeants to master gunnery sergeant, cutoff precedence number is 29.

Ten gunnery sergeants to first sergeant, cutoff precedence number is 111.

Sixteen gunnery sergeants to master sergeant, cutoff precedence number is 460.

Sixty-eight staff sergeants to gunnery sergeant, cutoff precedence number is 368.

The selection board for promotion from sergeant to staff sergeant is expected to report its recommendations during the latter part of October.

OUR NEW BOWLING CENTER

Message From MajGen. Bowser On Base Special Services Program

Camp Lejeune has one of the largest and most varied Special Services Programs in the Armed Forces today. The cost of the operation of this program has continued to increase with the general overall rise in the cost of living throughout the country.

Recently, small admission and participation fees have been established at various theaters and other Special Services activities on the base. Briefly, here is why these charges have become necessary.

New facilities are under construction and improvements to existing facilities are being made. One of the largest bowling facilities in the military service is commencing operation on the base. The area recreation centers are being air-conditioned and redecorated; the community centers are being air-conditioned. Other improvements are anticipated as funds become available.

It has been necessary, therefore, to establish reasonable charges for certain activities to help fund these improvements and insure the continuation of programs already in existence.

I want all hands to be assured that we will continue to strive for the improvement of our Special Services program here at Camp Lejeune insofar as regulations and funds permit.

Money And Marines

By Ssgt. L. E. WITCONIS
(Seventh in a continuing series.)

Migratory as a Marine may be, he is not completely nomadic. At some time during his career, every Marine gives thought to owning a home, whether it be due to consideration of retirement years or as an investment.

Once the decision to buy has been reached, competent advisors are needed to help in the selection of the home. While you sometimes can deal directly with the seller in buying a house or lot, unless you are an expert on property values and procedures, a real estate agent may save you time, trouble and money. A reliable real estate agent can see to it that all necessary papers are in order for purchase of the property. For your protection, select a real estate agency that holds membership in the National Association of Real Estate Boards in the United States.

Secondly you will need a lawyer to draw up the legal documents necessary and to check papers drawn up by other sources so that they contain all provisions important to your best interest.

Buying a New House

There are many advantages to buying a new house;

New houses may offer the latest modern conveniences in bath, kitchen, laundry, and in heating and cooling systems.

It costs less to operate and little to maintain during the first few years.

Regardless of how much or how little you know about judging the value of a house, you can be reasonably certain that materials and construction are of good quality if:

The builder has a reputation for constructing quality houses.

An architect was employed who is recognized for his well designed houses.

The house was constructed in compliance with local building codes, providing the codes include quality specifications and inspection of the house during construction.

The builder offers a warranty or guarantee on the house against defects and faulty construction or materials. The local or National Association for Home Builders can provide help on the above points.

It is also wise to obtain blueprints of the house and to check with the local building inspector on restrictions against future additions to the house you may plan to make.

Buying An Existing House

You may get more value in an existing house than you would in a new house if you investigate the condition of the house before you buy.

It may be more spacious and fully improved.

It may be structurally more substantial.

You have a large choice since there are more existing houses than new ones.

Any house shows wear with age. Heating unit, plumbing and wiring may be in need of repair or replacement, depending on the age of the house. In evaluating whether an existing house is a good buy, it is important to obtain a cost estimate of necessary improvements. When you have an estimate of the total cost of putting the house into adequate condition, add this to the asking price of the house. In deciding whether to buy an existing house, consider too, the cost of maintenance and upkeep. These are usually higher for older houses.

If you are in doubt about the condition of the house in which you are seriously interested, it will prove to your advantage to have the property appraised and surveyed by a professionally qualified person both as to value and condition. A qualified appraiser, not related either to the real estate agency from which you are buying or the lending institution from which you are obtaining the loan, may give you the most impartial appraisal. In the U. S., if you have a FHA-insured (Federal Housing Administration) loan or a VA-guaranteed loan, they will appraise for you but their appraisals are usually less than the current market value.

(Next week's article will discuss building a home and financing the purchase of homes).

Pet Quarantine

Dog and cat owners are advised to keep pets leashed or penned from 8 a.m. Sept. 14 to 5 p.m. Sept. 18, as a quarantine will be in effect during that time. All stray animals found on any part of the government reservation, including living quarters, will be picked up by dog pound officials.

Time In Grade Important Factor For E-7 Selection

Time in grade was the principal factor in being selected for promotion by the recent Marine Corps Selection Board which promoted 1,316 staff sergeants to gunnery sergeant, according to Navy Times.

The average TIG of those promoted was 70 months, as against an average of 56 months for the 4,613 eligibles.

The average TIG of the three new gunnery sergeants promoted in OF 32 was slightly over twelve years, this was the highest average seniority of those promoted. There were 32 eligibles in this field.

On the other hand, eight out of nine eligibles in the OF 68 were promoted with an average TIG of 39 months.

Below is the average TIG of the 4,613 eligibles, the number selected and their TIG.

LIBERTY BOUND—A landing boat speeds for fleet at Cannes, France, where many men accepted a special invitation to tour the Funel Perfume factory.

Perfume Factory Visit By BLT 2/6 Marine

WITH THE U. S. SIXTH FLEET IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, (Delayed)—MEN — What would you do if your wife came home and told you that she just bought a bottle of perfume?

LADIES—What would you say if your husband came home and told you he had just purchased 17 dollars worth of perfume for you?

Probably most of the men are scoffing at this "ridiculous" thought, and some of the ladies are thinking about how nice it would be to be surprised with such thoughtfulness.

Well, hang onto your hats ladies for many husbands now serving with Battalion Landing Team 2/6 in the Mediterranean have bought you perfume. It may be more or less than 17 dollars, but its still perfume and its still coming from your husbands.

Actually, its the result of a free tour of the Funel perfume factory at Le Cannet-Cannes, France.

Special invitations were handed to the men as they arrived at the fleet landing in Cannes during the BLT's recent liberty visit there.

A little French lady was passing out perfume scented cards to all the men arriving at the landing, inviting them to visit and tour the factory--free admittance and transportation to and from.

For the men who accepted the offer, they soon found themselves being taxed the streets of Cannes as they came to two large buildings where the cabs pulled up in the first building the men were ushered into a large room where they could purchase of perfumes, powders, and other scented accessories the lady.

After the men had seen the stock, they were signed to a female who spoke English, and led them into the second building where she explained what was used, where they could get what special ingredients required and how each item was.

Next, she directed them down a flight of steps to the basement of the building. Here the actual perfume process was explained and the men were afforded a chance to see various steps in the processes.

When the tour was over many men returned to their quarters, where they again viewed the elaborate displays, and in many cases purchased a special gift for their wives or sweethearts.

TRIPLE THREAT—These three 2d Division Marines "Triple Threat" pride of Company "I", 3d Battalion, 2d Marine Division. All three were members of the Battalion's softball team which won the 2d Division championship this year. From left, members of the Company which won the 2d Division Annual Drill Competition Award and they were of the squad which won the Regimental Squad Competition will represent their Regiment in Annual "Best Squad in the Marine Corps" contest at Quantico, Va., this month. Cpl. J. Daniels, left, holds the softball championship trophy. C. A. Hopkins, center, is dressed in the uniform used in squad competition and Cpl. R. B. Henry, Jr., holds the Marine Division Association Drill Competition Trophy.

Marine Reserves Complete Summer Training

Over 9,000 Troops Trained-Hosted By Quad-Command Organizations

On Sunday, Aug. 31st as H&S Company, 6th Engineer Battalion, USMCR, South Bend, Ind., loaded its last truck and departed Montford Point for New River Air Facility to board planes for home, Reserve Annual Training Duty 1964 came to an end.

For the last three months Montford Point's Reserve Liaison Unit, commanded by Col. R. M. Port, has been expanded to nearly nine times its normal size. Starting in May, augmentation personnel from Marine Corps Base, Force Troops, MCAS Cherry Point, Marine Barracks Norfolk, and independent duty stations as well as more than 20 reserve officers volunteering for 90 days active duty swelled RLU to 25 officers and 79 enlisted personnel. These Marines came to Camp Lejeune with but one mission "coordinate and assist in the training" of over 9,000 Marine Corps Reservists organized into 46 Reserve Units. Heading the reserve officers on active duty for 90 days was LtCol. F. J. Murray, who served as Executive Officer of Reserve Liaison. In civilian life, LtCol. Murray is a faculty member at North Carolina State College, Raleigh.

RLU's training came under the supervision of Maj. M. L. Degernes, one of RLU's three full-time officers. The Major's busy office was the focal point for the direction of the summer's far ranging training program.

The S-4 Section was headed by Maj. G. M. Van Sant, in civilian life an Associate Professor of Philosophy at Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, Va. The Section's task was not easy as it provided supply and motor transport for reserve units training in locations ranging from Courthouse

Bay to the maneuver areas of Verona Loop.

The training was highlighted this year by an all-reserve air-ground exercise, "OPERATION COPPERHEAD." For this three-day operation over 2,200 reservists came from as far west as California, as far north as Ohio and Pennsylvania, as far south as Mississippi to stage the field exercise employing the latest Marine Corps tactical concepts.

The variety of training required kept nearly every unit aboard Camp Lejeune busy hosting reservists during the two weeks they spend on active duty each year. For example, the 2nd, 6th, and 8th Marines instructed reserves in the modern tactics of guerrilla and counter-guerrilla warfare along with tactics applicable to a company, platoon, squad and fire team. 10th Marines supported the reserve artillery units in the firing of 105's, 155's and the HOWTAR as well as bringing their inactive duty counterparts up to date in the latest developments in artillery. Coordinating the hosting efforts of the 2nd Marine Division was Reserve Maj. J. E. Quigley, from Silver Springs, Md.

Marine Corps Engineer Schools, Supply Schools, Motor Transport School, 2nd FSR and 8th Communications Battalion also extensively hosted reserve training in their shops and classrooms by providing instruction and practical application not available in home training centers.

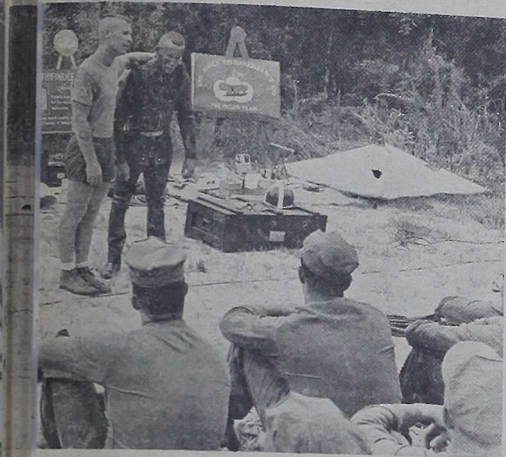

Second Force Reconnaissance Company hosted 3rd Force Reconnaissance Company, Mobile Ala., the only such unit to train at Camp Lejeune this summer. During their two week stay the reserve Para-Marines made night and daylight jumps as well as receiving instruction on pathfinder operations.

Looking back, Annual Training Duty 1964 has meant long hard days, little sleep, mosquitos, chiggers, rain and all the other discomforts of field training well known to Marines everywhere. But with ATD 1964 now a matter of record, those who participated in the Camp Lejeune's Reserve Summer Training Program can take pride in the fact they have contributed to the Marine Corps Reserve being a more effective and better trained part of our Nation's "Force in Readiness".

FIELD PROBLEMS were continually conducted throughout the summer by the visiting reserves.

WHILE AT LEJEUNE, Reservists viewed and practiced the latest techniques in counter-guerrilla warfare as demonstrated by members of Lejeune's 2d Force Recon. Co.

THE RESERVES were able to put their classroom instruction to a test while here to see how well they learned their lessons back home.

NOT MUCH CHANCE to fire their 105mm Howitzers at home, the Reserves spent numerous hours in the field taking advantage of Lejeune's ranges.

MANY OF THE Reserves, for the first time, were able to take part in amphibious operations they had heard so much about.

THE TRAINING of the Corps' most important man, the rifleman, was not neglected. Reservists from throughout the East Coast were thoroughly "grounded" in the latest infantry tactics.

ENGINEER COMPANY Reserves had the opportunity to take the Corps' newest dozer, the TD 18-A-182 series, into the field and put it through its paces.

EDITORIAL:

Leadership And Marines

Marine Corps leadership is founded on individual leadership. Every Marine, whether officer or enlisted man, is thoroughly trained in the fundamental ability to lead others.

The truth of this has been evident since 1775, when the Marine Corps first began molding men into Marines, capable of serving their country with devotion and honor.

Leadership embraces the cardinal virtues in the individual — knowledge, self-reliance, decisiveness, initiative; above all, perhaps, loyalty. These are the traits which are expected of the man who will lead other men.

Today, with military preparedness of paramount concern, the proud profession of the United States Marine Corps remains open as a challenge to the young man who can qualify.

Although its history is studded with incidents of individual as well as unit gallantry, one point remains supreme — the leadership of the officers and men, supported by the confidence and self-reliance bred by this leadership, distinguishes the Marine Corps as an elite military organization.

Leadership demands so much of the individual's mind and body that unless he is willing to lead he is unable to lead.

In the Marine Corps, as in any worth-while endeavor, leadership goes hand-in-hand with responsibility. It requires of the leader a complete knowledge of his profession, as well as a thorough understanding of the skill of guiding men. It takes form in such opposites as aggressiveness and tact; force and patience. Every Marine officer and NCO understands the mental and physical exertion that necessarily accompanies his duties as a truly military leader.

Leadership is a responsibility, but a rewarding one. The Marine leader is proud of his ability to command his men, and, at the same time, gain their confidence, respect and loyal cooperation.

Wherever a Marine serves — and that encompasses the globe — you will find a man of confidence, proud to be known as a leader of men.

Whether a young man remains in the Marine Corps as a career Leatherneck or chooses some other opportunity, the knowledge and experience gained while in the Corps will remain with him always.

It is logical to assume that a man who is trained to be a true leader — to assume responsibility — to believe in what he is doing — can succeed in any undertaking.

The United States Marine Corps has a world-wide reputation for training each Marine to be a leader. Let us do all that is in our power to maintain that reputation.

Quote of the Week

"... the real award for serving America is the knowledge that you have served her, and you never finish with that kind of service. It runs from the cradle to the grave, gives purpose and direction to our lives."

— Sen. Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.) upon receiving the VFW's First Congressional Award for distinguished services to the nation.

Jewish Services

Yom Kippur (Day of Atonement), the most solemn of the Jewish Holy Days, begins Tuesday evening, Sept. 15.

Services in the Jacksonville area will be held in the Jacksonville Synagogue, Wardola and Warlick Streets, at 6:15 p.m. Tuesday, and 8:30 a.m. Wednesday. All Jewish personnel at Camp Lejeune are invited to attend the services.

Yom Kippur is a day of fasting, which is a symbol of penitence and self-denial. It is also the day that prayers are said for the dead. These memorial prayers are the Yizkor services, said at certain other times during the year, but most important on Yom Kippur.

On the eve of Yom Kippur the Kol Nidre is sung. The hauntingly beautiful melody of the song which means literally, "all our vows," has not been changed for thousands of years. Kol Nidre is a plea to God to overlook transgressions from His holy commandments, for it is on Yom Kippur that Jews place themselves before the Lord and pray that He will judge them good people, and seal their fate with happiness.

Chaplain's Corner

Labor Day presented an occasion for a word on the honorable subject of Labor.

Christ Himself was a Laborer, a Carpenter, Joseph, honest and just man, is honored throughout the world as Jesus the Laborer. The Apostles were laborers, honest and good — were fishermen. "Lord, behold we have labored all the night and have taken nothing, but at Thy Word I shall let down the net."

And our forebears in America, Washington, Jefferson, the Patriots with them, labored so hard and with such purpose, literally with blood, sweat and tears, to build this great country we possess today.

Labor began in a sense with Creation itself, God the Creator in the role, as it were, of a Laborer. He creates the universe, as we read in the Scripture, in six days and He rests the seventh, almost like a workingman. And all things that He made were good.

On this earth, labor began with Adam, the first Man, as read in the Book of Genesis: "In the sweat of your brow you shall eat bread." And all through the centuries man has supported himself and progressed through honest and wholesome labor.

We might take occasion each year on this day dedicated to Labor to examine ourselves and attempt to discover how we have imitated the example of Labor given by these noble men of past.

We might also ask Our Lord to help us become true laborers, imitators of him and of those that live by His example and grace.

"O Lord, I ask Thee to help me in my state of life, to live Thou would me to live and to perform my duty as Thou would me to do it, I shall resolve, dear Lord, to work as You would and, that I may ever work well and as I should, I shall always be aware that Thou art by my side helping me to do this work, You, With You and For You. Amen."

PARADISE POINT OFFICERS CLUB

Looking for a bargain — bring the children out for family night, Thursday. A real old fashioned beef stew, the kind that sticks to your ribs with fries, salad and dessert for $1.10. Children under 12, 80¢. Better be on time for Happy Hour Friday. David "the party man" has a surprise for you on the free hors d'oeuvres. Why not bring your wife and stay for dinner and dance to the tantalizing music of the Stardusters.

Saturday, brunch will be served from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. — new items are being put on the menu. A special out of house roast beef with complete dinner $2.75 in the Main Dining Room. Roy Dixon's quintet will furnish the music for dancing this evening.

Sunday we are featuring for brunch a "He-Man Breakfast" — steak and eggs for $1.50 and our usual Home. Sunday night's buffet will include some Swedish specialties as well as our famous roast beef.

Monday we welcome back the OWC classes. Beginners Bridge starts at 9:30 p.m. Ballroom dancing 8 to 10 p.m. and our usual Duplicate Bridge at 7:30 p.m.

Tuesday, Game Night with exciting new offerings. OWC Bridge at 7:30 p.m. and the cafeteria special will be roast pork with dressing complete dinner $1.

Wednesday, we have pulled a lucky club number 2919. The person who has this number show your club card to the dining room hostess and get a free steak dinner on the house for two.

Don't forget Frontier Night on Saturday, Sept. 19. Club informal all evening.

MONTFORD POINT STAFF NCO CLUB

There will be some fine entertainment and delicious food in store for you this week at the club so start off tomorrow night about 4:30 with our usual happy hour. A little later in the evening you can enjoy a pounder or hot roast beef sandwich for only .75.

Saturday night the Avalons will be on hand for your dancing and listening pleasure. The music starts at 8 and will last until the wee hours.

How about a nice juicy rib eye steak with salad bar for a Sunday treat? You can have it at our club for the small sum of $1.10 starting at 4 p.m.

Tuesday night we'll be serving chicken dinners from 5 until 9 for .75. Also we'll have our usual Tuesday night happy hour starting at 4:30.

Game night starts things off Wednesday so come on out and enjoy yourself. Game time begins at 8.

HADNOT POINT STAFF NCO CLUB

This Friday we start off the big entertainment festivities with that popular group known as the Avalons. The boys kick off at 9 p.m. and stay until the wee hours. Don't forget that earlier in the afternoon it's Happy Hour from 4:30 until 6:30 p.m. Reduced prices are the big feature during this period of time. Drop in and say hello to all your friends.

On Saturday, the big band sound of the Stardusters prevail over the evening action. The Stardusters start "dusting" at 9 p.m. and they go until way, way after midnight. Tonight's the night to give the little woman a time out as this highly versatile group has gained great popularity up and down the East Coast, and we know that you will be entertained to the utmost by their musical treats.

Like a "Fun Band"? Then Sunday night is the night to hit the club. The music of the Briters will kick off the evening and the boys swing from 8:30 until 11:30 p.m. with your favorites in Rock 'n Roll and Country and Western styling.

On Tuesday night the big big game session starts at 8 p.m. It's hard to say what will happen on these nights but we will guarantee a big time for everyone in attendance. The action is always fast and you never can tell when its going to turn out to be "your night." Be seeing you at the club.

STAFF NCO BEACH CLUB

Well we did it again. We planned our final dance of the season and ole Dora is on her way to break it up. But should we get some moonlight weather, it will be dance time under the stars this Friday night at the beach from 7 to 11. In case of hurricane we will have dancing "in the eye."

The sounds of Squirrel and his Aces will blast out over Dora and all are invited to make this last affair of the season a real swinger. In addition to the terrific sounds this group puts down, we will have a live, in person, Limbo contest with a genuine real prize going to the winner.

At any rate folks, the management of the Beach Staff Club takes this opportunity to thank all who made the club part of their summer routine. The weather was broken up all summer long but we are sure that if the weather would have had the swell disposition our customers had, we would have broken all sales records. We hope we are here next year to try again at hosting you fine Staff NCO's and your dependents. Thank you once again for your patronage. Johnny, Joe, and the beach crew.

ADVANCE TO THE REAR
 hinting more in battles than in heroism. Some winning and logistics, and some, there's Company. Really soldiers ever to win a battle. Company "Q" is a misfit. In fact, they're ones who invented snafu. So, they're sent on a vital mission, well, no hassle is left behind: they "Advance to the Rear."

THE WHO THINK YOUNG
 Technicolor and Technicolor. A teen-themed, fun-filled comedy presents a starring cast of America's newest, liveliest, and musical talent. Teen stars as a millionaire's boy who chases campus queen Tina Tiffin until she leaves him. Though the accent is youth, the film was made for adult enjoyment with the entertainment of all-around entertainment.

THE HILL OF IT ALL
 A brilliant comedy stars a D.C. and James Garner. In films Doris play the average housewife, but she's about as average as the Hope Diamond. She earns $50,000 a year and is selling soap on TV. Does her housework in a $5000 house, and in the evenings goes to formal dinners in a limousine. Rolls-Royce. She children regularly — a new of work men are putting a 50-foot swimming pool in her back yard.

WONDERFUL TO BE YOUNG
 This romantic comedy introduces to American film fans Cliff Richard, top recording star abroad, and idol of millions of teenagers. In the film Cliff portrays the leader of a youth club whose members buck a real estate tycoon, Cliff's father, who is intent on acquiring the property on their clubhouse is situated.

RHINO
 The human stars are Harry Guardino and Robert Culp, two popular Hollywood actors, and Shirley Eaton, a platinum blonde British beauty. In a series of dramatic adventures, they capture two rare white rhinos, are caught in a forest fire, clash with native poachers, tame a leopard that has been threatening a Zulu village, operate on an injured lion and drug-dart wild buffalo, zebra wildebeest and other animals to determine the proper dosage to be used on the huge rhino.

3 BRAVE MEN
 A tense modern drama of human emotion enmeshed in the problems behind the headline stories of "security risks," starring Ray Milland, Ernest Borgnine, Frank Lovejoy, Nina Foch and Dean Jagger. The movie is based on a real-life case as reported in a series of Pulitzer Prize-winning articles. The potent subject matter, which the Navy Department wanted told, has been dramatized in CinemaScope by Twentieth Century-Fox with this all star cast.

THE CHALK GARDEN
 When Madrigal (Deborah Kerr), arrives at the imposing house standing on the Chalk Cliffs of Southern England to apply for the position of governess to 10-year-old Laurel (Hayley Mills), she seems strangely unmoved by the knowledge that several other applicants have died before meeting their prospective employer, imperious Mrs. St. Maugham (Edith Evans), Laurel's grandmother. Hint about the fiery nature of her prospective charge from an unservile servant, Maitland (John Mills), and a brief, nerve-wrecking meeting with Laurel, fail to prevent Madrigal from seeking the job.

WILD AND WONDERFUL
 The laughs are wild, the loving is wonderful and it's the twoome, no it's the threesome, Tony Curtis, beautiful Christine Kaufmann and a mixed up French poodle named Monsieur Cognac, in Wild and Wonderful, the kookiest triangle since love began. Here's the most delightfully different comedy of the year, all about a man who loves a girl, who loves a dog, who's convinced he's a man.

Inchon Invasion,

Marines stormed ashore in Korea fourteen years ago, Tuesday, September 15, 1950, in one of the fastest, perfectly timed amphibious operations on record--the invasion of Inchon.

This invasion was a gamble but commanders either gamble or they may lose wars.

The Inchon gamble was about to begin. The Eighth Army was holding on in southeast Korea with a bare minimum of men and guns against the Communists' most determined assaults on the beachhead. Intelligence reports said that the North Koreans had thrown every effective division into a supreme bid for a breakthrough to Pusan, leaving Seoul, its port city of Inchon, and all northern Korea lightly garrisoned. This was the moment for the United Nations to take the offensive.

General Douglas MacArthur's conception of the strategy was simple, but its execution was highly complicated. An amphibious force would land two reinforced divisions at Inchon on the west coast, where they would establish a second front one hundred and fifty miles northwest of the present battle zone, behind Communist lines. This force would drive inland the twenty miles to Seoul, cutting the main highway and rail supply lines behind the North Korean army, liberating Seoul and threatening the Communists with envelopment from the rear.

Almost simultaneously the Eighth Army would attack forcing the Communists to stay in place and fight until the Inchon landing was secure, then drive for a breakout from the southern beachhead. Caught between the two forces, already low on supplies and trained manpower, threatened with the loss of their chief supply and escape routes, the enemy commander could be expected to order a hasty retreat. Then, out on the roads where mobile American forces could run them down and air power could pound them, the Communist troops would be forced to abandon heavy equipment and flee in disorganized retreat. Motorized task forces would race ahead of these retreating bands and block their escape, while mop-up forces moved northward and destroyed them.

D-Day, September 15 the invasion of Inchon began.

The main landing force would not go ashore until 5:30 p. m. one hour before dusk, because the 28 to 32 foot tides permitted shallow-draft vessels to approach shore for only a few hours of high tide in the late afternoon.

Grey skies...big transports like massive elephants of the sea...hundreds of tiny landing craft...Marines climbing down cargo nets. In the distance, gunfire from the destroyers and cruisers softening up the beaches for the landing, smoke and flames were dimly seen. Rockets whooshed up above the smoke, making a continuous curtain of steel, the Marines in a column, LtCol. George R. Newton's 1st, on the left, seizing Cemetery Hill and the northern half of Observatory Hill, while LtCol. Harold S. Roise's 2d secured the remainder of the latter, the hill of the British Consulate, and the inner tidal basin.

Landing nearly three miles southeast of the 5th Marines, the 1st Regiment would seize BLUE beach, a north-south strip fronting a suburban industrial area. BLUE BEACH ONE, on the left, was 500 yards wide, flanked on the north by the rock revetment of a salt evaporator that jutted into the water at a sharp angle to the shoreline. A wide drainage ditch, about which little was known besides the fact that it existed, formed the south boundary. There being no revetment at the waterline, it was hoped that amphibian tractors could crawl ashore with assault troops.

BLUE BEACH TWO, connected to One by the drainage ditch, also extended 500 yards. Like RED Beach it was fronted by a rock sea wall. On the right half, the wall retained one side of a narrow ramp that jutted southward like a long index finger. Behind the ramp lay a cove, its shoreline at a right angle to the sea wall. During the assault, Marines would scale the waterfront of Blue Two from LVT's while the cove around the corner on the right, unofficially dubbed "Blue Beach Three" was investigated as a possible supplementary landing site.

Preceded by a wave of LVT (A)'s of Company A (Rein), 56th Amphibian Tractor Battalion USA, the 2d and 3d Battalion, 1st Marines would land abreast on Blue One and Two respectively. With two companies initially in the assault, each of the infantry battalions was to drive forward and secure its portion of the 0-1 line.

Eighteen Army LVT(A)'s comprising the first wave of the 1st Marines crossed the line of departure and headed for BLUE beach. Crawling at four knots, the armored vehicles had three quarters of an hour to cover 5,500 yards to the target. The LCVPs, capable of twice the speed of the amphibian tractors, left the inner transport area near the Diachenio's station for the five mile trip northward to the RED and GREEN boat lanes. Upwards of 6,000 rockets exploded in the seaport during the next twenty minutes, further numbing the defenders but at the same time increasing the density and over-

SEIZURE OF CEMETERY HILL

Eight LCVP's had crossed the line of departure at H-minus 8 and sped toward RED Beach with the first wave of the 5th Marines. Starting from the left, boats numbered one through four carried parts of two assault platoons of Company A, 1st Battalion whose mission was to seize Cemetery Hill and anchor the regimental left. In boats five through eight were troops of Company E, 2d Battalion, whose task included clearing the right flank of the beach and taking the hill of the British Consulate. From Wolmido the 3rd Battalion's machine guns, mortars and supporting M-26's cut loose with a hail of bullets and high explosives to cover the landing.

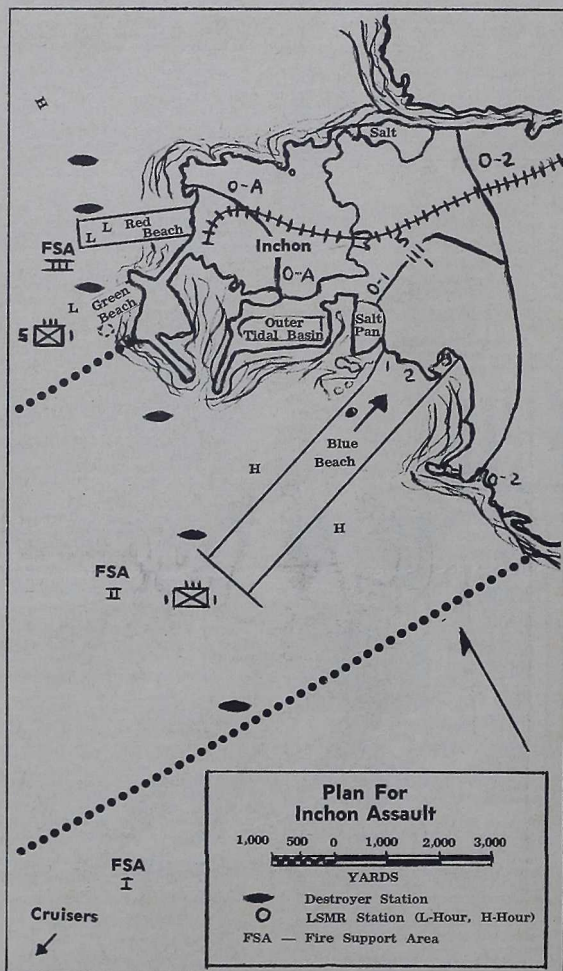

Although the tide was racing in fast, the wall still projected about four feet above the ramps.

RED BEACH SECURED

After landing in 2/5's first wave, the 1st Platoon of Company E pushed inland 100 yards to the railroad tracks without opposition. Simultaneously, another platoon cleared the built-up area across the tracks, on the lower slopes of Observatory Hill. These rapid accomplishments secured the 5th Marines' right flank, giving an added measure of protection to 22 more waves of landing craft and LST's scheduled for Red Beach.

Still in enemy hands, however, was Observatory Hill, reaching well over 200 feet above the center of the regimental zone to buttress the arc of the line. Company C of the 1st Battalion, landing in the fourth and fifth waves shortly before 1800, was to take Objective A, northern half of the critical terrain feature. To Dog Company of 2/5 was charged the southern half, designated Objective B.

Darkness had fallen when Company B drove up the slopes of Objective A in a two-pronged attack. Six Marines were wounded in brief skirmishes with North Korean die-hards along the way. Gaining the summit at 2000, three platoons were deployed on line, making contact with a force dug in on the saddle to the right. With Objective A seized and Able Company deployed on top and to the flanks of Cemetery Hill, the 1/5 segment of the line was secured. Assembling later near the base of Observatory hill, Dog Company prepared to carry out its mission of seizing Objective B, the southern half of the big ridge.

The vanguard troops cleared the first peak in the company zone without opposition and continued along the road to the second expecting to meet men of Company E. They were greeted, however, by machine-gun fire from an enemy squad entrenched to the right of the street.

The Marines tumbled into position on the left. Grenades and small-arms fire flew back and forth across the road during a brisk exchange that lasted about 15 minutes, in which one Marine was killed and three wounded. The enemy troops were driven off just as darkness closed in, leaving the Marines to grope for night defensive positions on unfamiliar ground.

With Cemetery and Observatory Hills secured, the only portion of the line not yet under control was the extreme right, anchored on the inner tidal basin. The battalion commander dispatched a two-squad patrol from Fox Company to the tidal basin, and the small force returned from the 1,000 yard prowl into the city having seen no sign of the enemy. Company F, less its platoon on Observatory Hill was committed to a defensive perimeter on the right flank. Shortly after midnight, the company was deployed next to the tidal basin and the 5th Marines' line, though not fully manned came as close to tactical reality as the tangled black depths of the seaport would allow.

FIRST MARINES ON BLUE BEACH

The overcast resulting from rain squalls and smoke had completely blotted out Blue Beach by H-hour, 1730.

In the short space of weeks, the regiment had been brought up to war strength by the rapid convergence on Camp Pendleton of Marines, in units or as individuals, both regular and reserve--from all over the United States; it had embarked at San 5,500 yards--3.2 miles--from the beach, a distance requiring 45 minute trips for the slow-moving LVT waves.

The nine LVT(A)'s leading off from the 2d Battalion crawled ashore on Blue One at 1730, on schedule. Meeting no opposition at the beach, they rumbled northward to the road skirting the knoll in order to penetrate the interior. The exit was blocked by an earth slide resulting from the naval bombardment of the high ground and the column of amphibious vehicles ground to a halt.

At H-plus 1, most of the eleven LVT's of the second wave crunched ashore with elements of two assault companies. The remainder, with troops of Fox Company embarked, had grounded in mud about 300 yards offshore. The Marines had to wade to the beach.

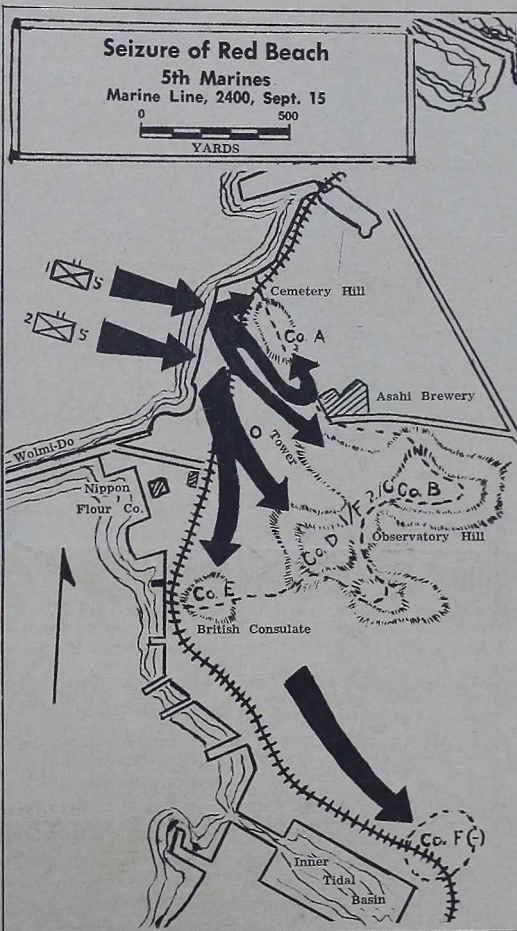

The third wave groped ashore through the smoke of H-plus 4, bringing the remainder of both assault companies and raising the total strength on Blue One to 30 tractors and over 600 men.

Despite delays at the ditch and sea wall, Companies G and I cleared the beach rapidly. Of the few casualties during the first 30 minutes ashore, most were caused by an enemy machine gun in a tower about 500 yards inland, LVT fire silenced the weapon, and the Marine infantry plunged forward through a labyrinth of blazing buildings and smoke-filled streets. On the left, George Co., groped almost straight ahead toward the lowland corridor, as Item Co. veered sharply southward to attack Objective Charlie, the seaward tip of Hill 233.

The tactical situation ashore had meanwhile begun to crystallize for the 1st Marines. In the 2d Battalion zone, Dog Company occupied Objective A, the road intersection, at 2000. Two hours later, Fox Company reported that it occupied enough of Objective D, Hill 117, so that it could cover the Inchon-Seoul highway with fire. On the right of the regimental zone, the 3rd Battalion was also making good progress against light resistance.

The operation, which might have been another Tarawa, had cost the Marine Corps a total of 17 killed, 2 missing and 165 wounded. Enemy casualties were estimated at 1,650 including 300 prisoners.

The Marines were on the way to their main objective, Seoul, the traditional capital of Korea and queen city of the free Republic.

Diego and crossed the Pacific; and it had reloaded and embarked from Japan for a combat operation designed to quench a major conflagration. There had been time for only minimum training above the company level.

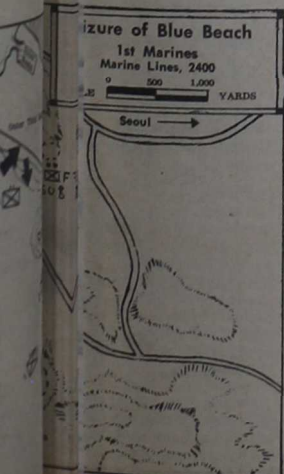

During the planning phase in Kobe, battalions had to combat-load their LST's according to an X factor, while awaiting the prescribed tactical plans that would be handed down from higher echelon at the last minute.

In connection with Blue Beach itself, officers of the 1st Marines had only a vague impression of offshore conditions and the accessibility of the landing site. The sole exit from Blue One was the dirt road already mentioned. On aerial photos the drainage ditch separating Blue One and Two appeared to be some kind of a road over which tractors could crawl ashore. No one was certain, and Blue Beach three, the cove on the right, was ruled out as a possible landing area early in the planning.

Devildogs Shaping Up For Ft. Benning Battle

In scrimmage last Friday afternoon, the '64 edition of the Camp Lejeune Devildogs football team appeared to be shaping up well for their Sept. 19 opening at Fort Benning, Ga.

On offense, the Marines seem to be well balanced. During the practice period they displayed a virile ground attack, and some pass plays that will no doubt prove their sting during the year.

STANDING UP to the attack of two defenders in last Friday's Devildogs scrimmage is Jim Ross, one of this year's linebackers.

Line play was rugged during the scrimmage. Although the line may prove a little weak in depth as the season progresses, the starting unit is fairly big, experienced, and very strong.

In Friday's scrimmage, two touchdowns were scored on running plays and two were scored through the air.

The opener against Benning will be an acid test for the Devildogs. The Fort Benning Doughboys are consistently one of the top rated service teams in the United States.

First home game for the Devildogs will be Oct. 17 against Fort Campbell, Ky.

Exam Date Established For Boxers

Physicals for prospective members of the Camp Lejeune boxing team have been set for Sept. 14, at 8 a.m. Persons trying out for the team must be at Goettge Memorial Field House by 7:30.

It is vital that competitors be examined at this time.

Calif. Cuties Draw Capacity Crowd

More than 3,200 giggling, chuckling, laugh-plagued spectators saw the California Cuties play the All-Lejeune Champion 2/10 softball team Thursday night.

The Cuties, playing their 119th game of a 145 game schedule this season, played fairly straight ball during the first three innings, then commenced to clown around over the last four frames.

The men, dressed as females, sported such names as Main Street Sally, Lotta Fanny, Dinah Sore, etc., and had the attire to match. They showed an amazing repertoire of routines, stunts, and gimmicks, such as a grapefruit pitched (and splattered) instead of a ball, hitting a ground ball and running to third base instead of first (why not, it was empty) etc.

The 2/10 Marines put on a good show also, cooperating with the horseplay, even when they were the butt of the jokes, to help make the game a tremendous success. Members of the team were Joe Zuccala, John Sims, Ken Brandy, Ron Burke, Bob Miller, Steve Zalas, Tom Husted, Jim Dodson, Charlie Coker, Harry Smutzer, Tom Kerrigan, Dave Harris, Robert Miller, and Jerry DeMorrow.

Football Outlook

On the collegiate football front, the rules have been amended again, a few coaches have changed jobs, the bowl picture is anybody's guess, but the same old faces should again show up in the national rankings and win the bowl bids.

In fact, you can substitute the pre-season ratings from 1955, 1961, 1959—or any year in the past decade—and not be far from the 1964 pre-season consensus.

Almost any pre-season rating you pick up will include these teams: Illinois, Texas, Navy, Penn St., USC, Ohio St., Auburn, Alabama, Mississippi, Duke, North Carolina, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Michigan, Washington and Syracuse. Sound familiar?

BIG TEN--Illinois has the inside track on a second straight league title. But tugging for the Rose Bowl ticket will be Ohio State, Michigan, Purdue and possibly Indiana. Its one of those "rebuilding" years for the rest.

PACIFIC COAST--Washington, UCLA, California and USC play it rough and play it close--this year is no exception. The Huskies, however, have Junior Coffey, Stanford and Oregon State are on the upswing.

SOUTHWESTERN--Texas was unbeaten last year, but it didn't have it easy. Arkansas and Rice will make it even closer this season. SMU and Baylor, both young but loaded, will help make the league very tough.

BIG EIGHT--The Sooners think not only in terms of a league crown, but also of a national championship. On Oklahoma's heels, but only as longshots, come Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri.

SOUTHEASTERN--Mississippi dreams of being unbeaten, a bowl bid and a national crown. They could achieve all three. A darkhorse is Kentucky, but this tough football circuit also has LSU, Auburn, Alabama and Florida.

ATLANTIC Coast--Hey, Duke may come in second! That's because North Carolina has what it claims to be its best bunch in years.

MID-AMERICAN--An unheralded but tough conference. It's a fight among Miami of Ohio, Ohio U. and Bowling Green.

MISSOURI VALLEY--Cincinnati, if not a sure bet, the next best thing. The other four about even.

SOUTHERN--West Virginia's long dominance could be over, in favor of VPI or new member Richmond.

WESTERN--Wyoming, possibly, but Arizona State always fields a winner.

IVY LEAGUE--Yale, Princeton or Harvard? It's academic. Columbia has Archie Roberts, however, and there's also Dartmouth.

TOP PLAYER--St. Louis Cardinal quarterback Charley Johnson holds the Eisenhower Trophy, presented to him by Wallace M. Greene, Jr., Commandant of the Marine Corps during half-time ceremonies at the 19th Annual Armed Forces Benefit Football Game, Aug. 28, at Soldier Field, Chicago. The trophy went to Johnson as the most outstanding player of the 1963 game. He also led his teammates to victory, beating the Chicago Bears 7-3. At left is Marine Sergeant Major Thomas J. McHugh, the top enlisted leader of the Marine Corps. All proceeds from the annual test are distributed equally to Armed Forces relief societies.

Cardinals Rack Bears 7 In Services Benefit Battle

The St. Louis Cardinals cracked the defense of world champion Chicago Bears to win the 19th Annual Armed Forces Benefit Game, 7-3, Friday night, Aug. 28, at Soldier Field, Chicago, for the second consecutive year.

Over 50 thousand fans, whose ticket purchases fattened Armed Forces Relief Society treasuries by thousands of dollars, were also treated to military pomp and pageantry. Nearly one thousand servicemen and women from the Chicago area and U. S. Marine precision and musical units from Arlington, D. C., and Quantico performed flawlessly at game and halftime ceremonies.

General Wallace M. Greene, Jr., Commandant of the Marine Corps, presented the Eisenhower trophy to Cardinal quarterback Charley Johnson at a half-time ceremony. Johnson received the trophy for his performance in the 1963 Armed Forces Benefit Game.

The Armed Forces Relief Society is sponsored by the Chicago Newspaper Publishers Association in cooperation with the Department of Defense. All military activities related to the games are rotated among the different branches of services. This year the Service Coordinator was Marine BrigGen. Hugh M. E. Cunningham, Commanding General of the Air Reserve Training Command, NAS, Glenview.

General Greene's appearance at the benefit game marked his first visit to the Chicago area since assuming the post of Marine Corps Commandant in January.

Shortly after his arrival in Chicago, he was honored by members of the Chicago Club when he became the person to receive the Golden Honorary Membership group. The presentation was made during a press conference held by Gen. Greene, newspaper, radio and television reporters.

During the general's stay in Chicago, he attended the national headquarters of the Marine Air Reserve Training Command at Glenview.

Boys' League Grid Season Opens Sat.

The Camp Lejeune Boys League Midget and Tiny-Tot Football Leagues open their season at the Tarawa Terrace Field Saturday, Sept. 12, at 1 p. m. The first game on tap will be a midget contest between the 1963 Champion Bears and the Eagles.

Both the Bears and Eagles have been practicing hard for the past three weeks to win this opener. Coach Burns of the Bears, and Coach Reddock of the Eagles, report that their teams are ready. Following the Midget contest the 1963 Champion Browns take on the Rams in the Tiny-Tot league. Coach Hughs of the Browns and Coach Cunningham report that their teams will give all they have for victory.

On Sunday Sept. 13, at 1:30 p. m., the Midget league will play the Colts against the Redskins followed by the Tiny-Tot Lions and Vikings. President of the league, SSGT. Bristol, reported that all games will be played at Tarawa Terrace field this season in that the Stone Street field is not ready for football.

There will be a Saturday and Sunday contest every weekend through the 8th of November. The public is invited to see these fine teams in action.

--Wallace Creek Boathouse--

For The Best In Boating

one of the more elaborate facilities on Camp Lejeune is the Wallace Creek Boathouse. Located on Wallace Creek, the Naval Hospital, the boathouse features many facilities not available at even the most elaborate boathouses. It includes 15 Rebel class boats, about 85 aluminum boats, thirty 15' aluminum outboard motors, 20 hp outboard motors at trailers, and an assortment of smaller items such as cushions, oars, etc. A working force is assigned to keep the boats in top condition. Headed by Mr. L. Johnson, NCOIC of the boathouse, they operate a repair shop, a rivet shop and handle all the jobs necessary to keep the facility running smoothly and the boats available. In addition SSgt. George Brosch, boat repairman, works full-time in the boat hobby shop maintaining the craft. The boathouse is open Tuesday through Friday from 1 p. m.

to sunset. On holidays and weekends it opens at 9 a. m. and closes at sunset. The boathouse is closed on Mondays. Before checking out a canoe, powerboat or rowboat, a Marine must attend a class held at 9:30 or 10:30 a. m. on weekends or holidays in the South Seas Island Lounge. After the lecture, which encompasses general base regulations, motors, small craft warnings and other pertinent subjects, a permit is issued, which authorizes the individual to check out a boat. There is a $2 charge for boats or equipment carried off-base. For on-base use 25 cents is charged.

Private boats may be moored at the boathouse after getting written permission from the Base Special Services Officer. Usually about 20 individually owned boats are kept there.

Another facility available at the Wallace Creek Boathouse is the hobby shop. After obtaining a reservation a Marine can repair his boat there, or build one from scratch.

Mr. Gottschalk, who runs the hobby shop, will advise a tyro boatbuilder through the tricky phases of the project. Everything needed in the way of tools is available at the hobby shop. Parts, fiberglass, fittings and small articles required to build a boat are sold there.

All members of the Quad-Command are authorized to use the facilities of the Wallace Creek Boathouse.

Marines Make 'Master' National Rifle Matches

WASHINGTON, D. C.--Four of the top service rifle teams in the Air Force Match, fired Sunday during the National Rifle Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, were filled with Marines.

Marine rifle teams took top honors through five in the rifle event, with the Marines trailing the Air Force service master by one point. Army 1st Lt. J. Plaatje took top honors in the event, turning in a score out of a possible the top ten in the service master class with a score of 100-13v's. In the Coast Guard Trophy Match, fired later the same day, three Marines captured places in the class service masters. The highest score in the service master class was 100-13v's by Air Force SSgt. Raymond N. Lewis of Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

Marines placing in the service master class were: fourth place, SSgt. Lewis T. Scoggins, Quantico, 100-13v's; fifth place, Sgt. Ronald D. Canney, Camp Lejeune, 100-12v's; and seventh place, Sgt. Richard D. Furgeson, Camp Pendleton, 100-12v's.

P. I. Hosts Weightlifting Event: Lejeune Marines Invited To Participate

An Open weightlifting Meet is being planned at Parris Island, S. C., for Dec. 5. First Lieutenant R. R. Schue, the meet director, has invited Camp Lejeune weightlifters to participate in the event.

Olympic lifting is scheduled in seven weight classes: bantamweight (123-1/2 lbs.), featherweight (132-1/2 lbs.), lightweight (148-3/4 lbs.), middleweight (165-1/4 lbs.), light heavyweight (181-3/4 lbs.), middle-heavyweight (198-1/4 lbs.), and heavyweight (unlimited).

The meet is open to all AAU athletes. There is no entry or admission fee for the event.

Dormitory arrangements have been set up to take care of visiting athletes during the meet. Meals may be purchased at a very modest cost at the Depot Restaurant, which is located near the billeting area.

In order to enter in the meet, forms must be completed and forwarded to: Athletic Officer, Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S. C., not later than Nov. 30.

The required forms may be obtained by writing to the Athletic Officer at Parris Island or from the Base Athletic Officer in the Field House.

440 Relay Record Set By Army Team

A U. S. Army team anchored by John Moon broke the record for the American AAU 440-yard relay championship as they won with a time of 40.3 seconds.

In addition to Moon, the Army team consisted of Paul Drayton, Mel Pender and Larry Dunn. The old AAU record of 40.8 had been on the books since 1954.

The new AAU mark (made in Buffalo, N. Y.) will be submitted for World Record consideration.

ARMY COMMENDATION MEDAL—Major Stephen G. Olmstead, 6th Marines, 2d Marine Division, has the Army Commendation Medal pinned on by his Regimental Commander, Col. G. W. E. Daughtry, at formal parade ceremonies. The major was awarded the medal by the Army for his "meritorious service and outstanding performance of duty" while serving as Chief of the Production Section and as Chief of the Interrogation, Prisoner of War Section of the Tactical Intelligence Committee, Department of Combat Intelligence, U. S. Army Intelligence School at Holabird, Md., from July 31, 1961 until July 15, 1964. Major Olmstead is now serving as Regimental Intelligence Officer for the 6th Marines.

WM Spends Spare Time Training For Rodeo Place

The August luncheon of the Camp Lejeune Staff NCO Wives Club was the scene of much activity last Thursday as the Club put the finishing touches to plans for events scheduled for the early fall.

Training in any form, is a basic fundamental of the Marine Corps today.

Woman Marine PFC Ruby L. Hough of Woman Marine Company, H&S Battalion, MCB uses her spare time to train herself

The 19-year-old, blue-eyed blond from Greensboro, N. C., has been riding, training, and trick riding since she was big enough to mount a horse. At the present time she spends her off-duty hours winning ribbons for her skill at gymkhana events sponsored by the Hyland Stables on highway 17 off Gum Branch Road.

"Practice makes perfect in training yourself to handle a horse for these rodeo events," she said, "and I plan on practicing until I can handle any event that I try out for."

Hough enlisted in the Marine Corps Aug. 14, 1963 at Raleigh, N. C. She was transferred to MCRD Parris Island, for basic training. Upon the completion of her basic training she joined Women Marine Company, H&SBN, as a basic Supply Administrative Clerk.

When she isn't pursuing her off-duty hobby, she performs the duties of a supply and administrative clerk at the Base Commissary.

"I joined the Marine Corps after completion of high school, she said, "because I believe since men are obligated to help their country, women should be under the same obligation."

PFC RUBY L. HOUGH

in a hobby that she hopes someday will lead to a slot in the rodeo circuit.

Her love of horses and horsemanship dates back to her early childhood in Montana.

"I guess I have always liked the wide open spaces and the freedom of movement that horsemanship gives me," she said.

Judges Wanted

Volunteer judges are being sought for exhibits at the Onslow County Fair to be held Sept. 28 through Oct. 3 in the Jacksonville area.

Ladies with degrees in Home Economics who are interested are urged to call Base Informational Services Office, ext. 7-5655 for further information.

TT NCO Wives

By MARION G. GADDI

The Tarawa Terrace NCO Wives Club will hold their next regular club meeting Sept. 14 at 8:30 p. m. in the Community Center. The program for the evening will be a White Elephant Sale. If you've never attended one, the sale consists of donated items which are auctioned off to the highest bidder. There will be a short meeting before the sale and refreshments will be served later.

A very special THANKS to all the wives who helped bake and gave their time to raise money for the John F. Kennedy Library Fund. Our goal of $50 has been reached. Of course, without the help of donations from servicemen, this would not have been possible.

On Sept. 28, the Wives Club is planning a Grocery Game night. Everyone is sure to bring a canned good of some kind. This is the price of admission for the game night. Plans for this night will be discussed September 14.

Woman Marine Lauded By Battalion Commander

Private First Class Bertha L. Dixon, a member of Woman Marine Company, Headquarters and Service Battalion, MCB was awarded a Meritorious Mast Aug. 31, by Col. John F. Mallard, H&S Battalion, Commanding Officer, for performing her duties as a Book-keeping Machine Operator in a highly commendable manner.

The Mast read in part: "From May 1, 1964 to Aug. 14, 1964 in the absence of a co-worker, PFC Dixon completed tasks normally handled by the co-worker as well as the tasks normally accrued to her, in a highly commendable manner. She unselfishly utilized many extra hours after normal working hours to stay abreast of her added work load. The Fiscal Office was thereby able to promptly meet all pertinent deadlines pertaining to allotment reports. Her remarkable accuracy and attention to duty

Plans have been completed for a visit to the Cooks' School at Montford Point, for Thursday, Sept. 24. There will be a demonstration on the proper preparation and serving of a formal dinner, including service, table decorations, and setting. The demonstration will start at 9:30 with lunch being served at 11:30. Reservations should be made as soon as possible with Mrs. Furusuth at Base Ext. 2-2779 or Mrs. Miller at Tarawa Terrace 346-8650.

At the last meeting of the MCAF wives Club two new members were welcomed, the new members were Mrs. Edwina and Mrs. Cathy Atkinson. The membership is still on and all the wives of sergeants and below are attached to the Air Facility.

At the next meeting on Sept. 14, 1964, Long of Camp Lejeune will be on hand to demonstrate cake decoration. This will be an interesting demonstration and something we will all enjoy.

In the near future the Enlisted Wives Club will start a Kindergarten Survey for the Air Facility. All dependents living off base interested in signing a petition for a Kindergarten at the Air Facility can contact Mrs. Barbara Deason Ext. 194 or Mrs. Elaine Pitts Ext. 192.

On Sept. 15, the club will sponsor a bake sale in front of the Air Facility bank.

Highlights Of "Grassroots-64"

GUERRILLA HELP—Marine guerrillas participating in Operation Grassroots, take a "watermelon break" during a hot day's work in the tobacco fields on the farm of Mr. Charles H. Powers, Sr., fourth from right, of Blackstone, Va. Commandante J. D. Retter, second from left, guerrilla chieftain for the exercise, looks over the different grades of tobacco his Marine guerrillas have cropped. The guerrillas offered their services for a "free meal," while waiting for the mock war to begin.

SWORD SALUTE—Governor Julio Rodriguez, center, salutes with his sword as a Marine drum and bugle corps plays Dominican national anthem. The governor's host at the ceremony was a luncheon which followed was Marine BrigGen. John G. Bouker, right, Commanding General, 4th Marine Expeditionary Brigade. The Marine in the foreground is the general's interpreter.

BIRDS IN HAND—Marine Cpl. Sixto Badillo, a Grassroots "villager," proudly displays two of the 20 chickens which were delivered to the village of Santa Clara by officials of the Mob government. The chickens were used by the Marines to add realism to the villages established within the District of Mob during the exercise.

REBEL RETTER—Thousands of Marines have been trying to "capture or kill" this fierce looking rebel leader during Operation Grassroots-64. Commandante J. D. Retter leads the 450-man guerrilla force.

MARINE MATADOR—"Pablo Swartz," nationally-renowned bullfighter of mythical taunts the bull he faced in the bullfight held during Exercise Grassroots-64. He was "shot" at the bullfight by a guerrilla disguised as a member of the 4th MEB.

WAR PAUSE—The Marines "fighting" the mock war declared a brief armistice Sunday for church services. "Padre Merino," (in real life Navy Cmdr. Thomas J. Mullins, a Catholic chaplain) held services for the guerrillas in their command post deep in the forests of mythical Mob.

GOVERNOR GESTURES—Mob Governor Julio Rodriguez gestures as he speaks to Marine BrigGen. John G. Bouker (wearing helmet), through the general's interpreter, right. The governor was protesting a fake proclamation stating that only the American flag could fly in the mythical district of Mob.
