Senate Passes New Pay Bill

Quick Action Predicted For 2.5 Percent Increase

The full Senate approved the military pay raise bill July 20, its first day in session after adjourning for the Republican National Convention.

The Senate version of the pay bill gave an across-the-board increase of 2.5 percent to officers and enlisted with over two years of service. Officers with under two years service were given an increase of 8.5 percent while the pay of enlisted men with under two years in service was not raised.

Passage of the pay bill came after a short debate by the Senate and it went to the House where it is expected to be approved without major changes.

If House action on the pay bill is as quick as the Senate's, the bill could be sent to the President for his signature this month. The bill becomes effective the first of the month following enactment. This means paychecks may be larger next month.

Chairman of the House Services Committee, Representative Carl Vinson, is reportedly in strong favor of the bill.

The pay bill is expected to cost $207 million a year; $16 million more than the raise proposed by DOD. Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield criticized the raise as "not large enough."

Before the bill could go to the floor of the Senate for approval it had to be voted on by the Senate Armed Services Committee. This was done just prior to the committee adjourning for the Convention.

The Senate's Armed Services Committee Chairman, Richard Russell, said, "I could not have got this bill out of committee with a block and tackle if the Senate had not agreed to the pay increases for the (civilian) government workers last week."

The estimated annual cost of the Civil Service pay raise is $564 million.

Senator Russell went on to say, "I decided that the military should not have to wait a year or more to catch up with the increases to the civilian workers."

The bill, as approved by the Senate, includes reservists but does not affect retired personnel.

Pay increases for retired people is dependent on cost of living increases. If the cost of living index goes up 3 percent or more, a raise for retired personnel is proposed. The cost of living index is reviewed each January.

FORMER COMMANDANTS—Flanked by the 2d Marine Division Association, Gen. Wal-Greene, Jr., and MajGen. Richard G. all five living former Marine Corps commandants review a special evening parade Marine Barracks, 8th and I Streets, Washington, D. C. The former com-comb, Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, Gen. Clifton B. Cates, Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., and Gen. David M. Shoup. Major General Weede, Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, Headquarters Marine Corps, received the Distinguished Service Medal during the parade for service in Viet Nam.

2d Marine Division Association Holds Gala Atlantic City Reunion

By SSgt. JACK CHILDS

They came from California and Florida, North Dakota and Massachusetts, and many points in between. Hair lines were thinner, and waist lines larger. They came by plane, train, and bus; some came alone, others brought their families. No two looked alike, but they all shared a common bond — they were members of the 2d Marine Division Association.

For two days and nights they crowded into the Claridge, Atlantic City, N. J., to attend the annual reunion of the 2d Marine Division July 16-19. In the last family had registered, over 300 former members of the 2d Marine Division, mostly veterans of the campaigns during World War II, and their families had arrived at the Atlantic Coast comers to Atlantic City are often amazed at their first sight of this early morning favorite—literally hundreds of vacationers pedaling merrily up and down the boardwalk. Then there were deep sea fishing trips, and for those so inclined, just plain sunning and swimming on the beach. One of the highlights was a ladies' luncheon and fashion show. And, of course, at the same time there was a mens' stag luncheon.

The first two evenings of the reunion were devoted to "hospitality get-togethers" with a piano song fest. On these two nights many a sea story was retold, and campaign refought.

The big night of the reunion was Saturday night with a banquet and dance. The guest speaker of the evening was the man responsible for the founding of the 2d Marine Division Association—Lieutenant General Julian C. Smith, USMC, (Ret'd).

The association was formed in 1949 in Washington, D. C., after Gen. Smith had received numerous requests from former members of the 2d Marine Division. The general and a few assistants sent out 40,000 post cards, and, according to Gen. Smith, the response was so overwhelming "it was impossible to answer all the cards and letters."

Force Troops Combat Engineer Awarded Air Medal For Vietnam

Corporal Manuel Vega, a combat engineer attached to the 8th Engineer Bn., Force Troops, received the Air Medal from Maj. F. P. Kunkle, acting battalion commander on July 17.

Vega, a demolition specialist, was awarded the Air Medal for his volunteer service in South Vietnam. The Citation read: "For meritorious achievement in aerial flight as a designated Search and Rescue Crew Member during combat support missions in support of the Republic of Vietnam against the insurgent communist guerrilla forces (Viet Cong) from Dec. 14, 1963 to Jan. 24, 1964. Often exposed to hostile fire at close range, he contributed materially to the success of his unit. His courage and devotion to duty in the face of hazardous flying conditions were in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

Princeton Seminary Choir To Perform Here July 29 Medal Winner

The Princeton Seminary Choir is scheduled to present a service of sacred music in the Base Protestant Chapel, Camp Lejeune, Wednesday evening, July 29, at 7:30.

Four continents (Asia, Africa, Europe and North America) and five countries (Egypt, North Ireland, Germany, the Republic of China, and the United States) are represented by this group of theological students. All are college graduates who are now enrolled at Princeton Theological Seminary for at least three years of graduate study in preparation for the Christian ministry. The entire group forms a fair cross section of the Seminary's student body of five hundred thirteen who represent all parts of the United States and thirty foreign countries and fifty-five church denominations.

Besides singing, the choir members participate in the various speaking parts of the service. The musical portion of the program, which constitutes an integral part of the service, represents the finest in choral repertoire, ranging from ancient plainsong through Palestrina, Lotti, Bach, Handel, Haydn, and Mendelssohn to contemporary composers. Also included in the repertoire are a number of spiritual folk songs from different nations. The choir's two longplaying records, produced by RCA Victor, contain thirty-nine selections from this repertoire.

David Hugh Jones, Mus.Doc., F.A.G.O., A.S.C.A.P., a charter member of the faculty of the Westminster Choir college, which was founded in 1926, was head of the organ and composition departments of that school for a number of years. Also, he has been Director of Music at Princeton Seminary since 1934. In 1951 he relinquished his post at the Choir College in order to devote his entire time to Princeton Seminary as Professor of Music. He has published a number of original choral compositions and was editor of The HYMNBOOK, published by five Presbyterian and Reformed denominations in 1955, and musical editor of the ARMED FORCES HYMNAL, published in 1959.

Since 1934, under the leadership of David Hugh Jones, the Princeton Seminary Choir has sung in three or four churches within 300 miles of Princeton nearly every Sunday during the academic season. In the past eighteen summers it has toured extensively in all fifty states and in every province in Canada from Newfoundland to the Yukon Territory. Also, it has toured Mexico three times, Cuba and Guatemala twice and once in El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Panama, Haiti, Puerto Rico, and Santo Domingo.

Marines Landed On Tinian And Wrote Corps History

By Sgt. N. M. RADEL

Twenty years ago tomorrow marks the anniversary of one of the shortest shore-to-shore invasions in Marine Corps history — the invasion of Tinian.

Only 2½ miles of sea separated Saipan from Tinian. Yet its almost level, coral flat surface, 13 miles long, six wide, with a total of 38 square miles, made it a natural airdrome for our bombers to strike into the heart of Japan.

The final phase of the Marianas' campaign began with the invasion of Tinian. Saipan's conquerors were assigned to take this island.

Picked scouts of the 5th Amphibious Reconnaissance Battalion landed on enemy held Tinian to study Japanese defenses. Creeping within sight of Japanese working parties, the reconnoiters observed a very hot welcome being prepared for the invaders at the broad beaches of Tinian Town on the southwestern shore of the island.

Two smaller beaches on the far northwestern end, less than half the size of any that ever have been employed in atoll warfare, were neglected by the defenders, except for a few land mines obviously laid to booby-trap snoopers.

Just to keep the Japanese happy in their delusion that the invasion was to be at Tinian Town, a brisk bombardment of that area was maintained from Saipan. Meanwhile, the officers who were to lead the attack were flown over the terrain to study its geography at close hand.

It was something new to the men of the 4th Marine Division — departing from dry land in their amphibious craft and landing boats — as they made their first assault on Tinian. They were followed by the 2d Marine Division with the 27th Infantry Division in reserve.

An amphibious, ship-supported feint against Tinian Town was devised to preserve, until the last minute, the Japanese' guess that the Marines would choose the obvious and easiest beach to land on.

The Marines swarmed ashore, needing to reduce only two block-houses manned by fifty Japanese, and by dusk were well inland with tanks and artillery.

They set up a defense line and got set for the inevitable banzai counter-offensive. The anticipated enemy charge came at three in the morning and was repeated continuously until dawn. When the well entrenched Marines put down their rifles they buried 1,241 Japanese troops.

Within two days, they had captured Ushi Point Airfield and on July 31 smashed through the last Japanese defenses and pushed the remaining Japanese troops onto the southern tip of the island.

Each night the Japanese turned against the Marines in fanatical charges. One of these charges broke the Marine lines only to be blasted by the point blank fire of the howitzers.

The last organized enemy attack was made on the night of July 31 and the morning of August 1.

The Marines lost 290 men killed in action, 24 missing and adjudged dead and 1,515 wounded. The Japanese casualties were 6,050 killed and 255 prisoners were taken.

On the first day of August 1945 an air group at Tinian was under orders to drop an atomic bomb on Japan, weather permitting, utilizing visual bombing.

The "Enola Gay" swung into its run-in and at 8:11 p.m., the bomb was released.

There was a terrible explosion over the central section of the city, a blinding flash and then a heavy cloud of smoke and dust spread, cloaking the city in darkness. Soon hundreds of fires broke out everywhere transforming the city into a blazing inferno.

This one act, above all others, shortened the war, thereby saving the lives of countless people, both Japanese and American.

They Were There

GYSgt. CLYDE HICKS, Food Service School, Marine Corps Supply Schools was a private first class with the 2d Marine Division serving in Service Battalion. "There was no great problem in logistically supplying the men on Tinian, since it was only 2-1/2 miles from Saipan and most of the supplies could be brought over in Amphibious Tractors", he commented. "The first days of fighting were light but when we got near their airfield they started with their banzai attacks but the attacks were short-lived because the Marines were well dug in and were on Tinian to stay", he said.

GYSgt. WILLIAM J. HECKMAN a member of Motor Transport Schools Company during the Tinian invasion was a private with the 18th Defense Battalion attached to the Fourth Marine Division. He was a member of the searchlight anti-aircraft section. "After Saipan, he remarked, "the invasion of Tinian was more like a training exercise."

MSGT. JOHN O. ENRIGHT, Jr., an instructor at the Supply School Company was a sergeant with the 5th Amphibious Tractor Battalion attached to the Fourth Marine Division during the Tinian campaign. "The artillery on Saipan sent a bombardment into Tinian Town since the Japs thought that was where the main landing would be", he said, "but we pulled out to the north for our main landing." "I remember the beaches were very short", he added. "There was little opposition and after that operation we moved back to Saipan to prepare for the Iwo-Jima operation", he said.

Who Would Dare Say 1 Vote Won't Count?

Ever hear of James G. Blaine?

He was an American whose name today would be known to virtually every citizen, had it not been for 575 New Yorkers living in his time. In 1884, less than one additional vote per precinct in New York State would have elected Blaine President of the United States. But New York favored Grover Cleveland by 1,149 votes. If Blaine could have garnered half that total — 575 votes — he would have won New York's electoral votes — and the election.

In 1948, President Truman won Ohio by 7,107 votes and California by 17,865. If one voter in only half the precincts in those states had changed his mind, Thomas E. Dewey would have captured 50 more electoral votes, President Truman would have lost 50, and the election would have been thrown into the House of Representatives.

In 1960, the late President Kennedy's national majority was less than one vote per precinct. He defeated Vice-President Richard Nixon by less than 120,000 votes out of the nearly 69 million votes cast.

In 1962, the governor of Massachusetts was elected by 5,341 votes; the governor of North Dakota by 2,007, the governor of Maine by 483 and the governor of Minnesota, after three months of recounting, was elected by 91 votes.

In recent local elections, a mayor in Ohio, a councilman in Arizona, a state legislator in Pennsylvania — all won office by one vote. On Nov. 5, 1963, a candidate for city council in Cincinnati, Ohio, was hospitalized on election day and was unable to go to the polls. He lost by one vote.

Now then, what voting-eligible citizen would dare make this statement: "Aw, the heck with it! My vote won't make any difference anyway?"

Whether it's a lever pulled in a booth on election day or a serviceman's absentee vote mailed in beforehand, every ballot counts! Remember that when you cast yours this year.

Chaplain's Corner

Most people believe that the Commandments of God are little too severe and because of this we are in a position to bargain with God about these matters. After all, they say we all make mistakes and God will make allowances for this human error. This is true, but it is only part of the truth. God will forgive as long as we seek forgiveness with sincere desire to be forgiven, as this notion that forgiveness is offered so that we can get an easy start on the old road doing the same old business is foolish.

Some folks like to approach God as if God were not aware of their thoughts and could not understand what they were thinking about even if He were aware of their thoughts. Most of them seem to think that there are bargains we can make with God and only after some kind of a bargain is struck will we do business with God. This is frequently expressed by telling God that we are very busy and we will take time for religion later on in life. Or better still, a young man will say, "I have some fun get under my belt and I am going to enjoy life, and after that I drop by God and He can talk to me about religion." What pretensions human beings have. No one, regardless of position in life, can guarantee that he will be here tomorrow. Therefore, have no right to ask God to wait.

Sometimes we meet religious people who are quite certain that they have been saved, and equally certain that you are not. They are very certain that you are not saved when you fail to conform to what they mean by being saved. They cannot see a mote in their own eye because the one that shines in their brother's eye is so much brighter and it is much more fun to see the mistakes of others. However, it might be more religious to say I do not doubt the salvation of others, but Lord please help me with my own because I am not certain. Help me Lord from making the mistakes of thinking I have some sure place with Thee and that my brother will never make the grade because he does not agree with me and does not show proper respect for Thee.

Chaplain C. E. HAILSTONE

'Fringe Benefit' Decried Taxable Income By IRS

The Internal Revenue Service has finally cut into the allowances of servicemen which until now have been non-taxable.

In a recent decision, the IRS has ruled that dislocation allowances must be included in gross income reported for Federal Income Tax purposes.

This is the first incursion of the IRS into the allowances paid to a serviceman. Per diem, travel pay, BA clothing allowance, commuted rations, and many other "Fringe Benefits" have been free from the bite of the IRS people, as was dislocation allowance until now.

The IRS decision will affect thousands of servicemen and will virtually wipe out the 18 per cent increase in the allowance which was effective in January 1963. The 1963 raise in dislocation allowance was a by-product of the BAQ increase which was passed by Congress in 1962.

Dislocation allowance is equal to one month's quarters allowance.

Federal Income Taxes claim from 16 per cent up from an individual's income, and in the case of a person in a higher tax bracket, his dislocation allowance will be even less after taxes than it was in 1962 prior to the increase.

The IRS based its ruling on the premise that dislocation allowance is not paid for moving expenses, but for expenses "related" to moving.

In the same ruling, the IRS said that allowances paid in excess of the cost of moving a mobile home must be declared as income. This will affect only a few individuals in most instances the allowance is not enough to cover the cost of the move, and in many cases a trailer has cost the mobile home owner hundreds of dollars depending on the distance his trailer was moved.

The House has recently passed an amendment to the present trailer bill whereby the government would pay a mobile home owner an allowance equal to the cost of moving a man of the same rank, with a full well allowance of household effects, plus dislocation allowance. At present there is no indication when any further action will be taken on the amendment or when it will become effective.

As yet nothing has been heard from the states to collect a personal income tax from servicemen. If it follows the IRS's lead, further cuts will be made into the dislocation allowance and it will fit in nicely along with other "benefits" that cost a serviceman money.

THE MOST DARING ADVENTURE THAT EVER SWEEP ACROSS THE SEVEN SEAS!

Lejeune Marked

NORTHEAST CREEK BRIDGE — This was the scene of battle during the War Between the States when a Union raiding party from captured New-Bern and Fort Macon were met at the bridge by Company "F", of the 41st Regiment of Dragoons in mid-1862. During the battle which followed, the Union force suffered one captain and five privates as casualties before they were routed.

HADNOT POINT — There is a remarkable legend behind the naming of this area. When the town of Johnston was destroyed by a hurricane in 1752, a cabin with a small boy inside was carried two miles to the opposite shore of New River. When the boy was found and asked his name, all he could reply was, "Hadnot."

WILLIAM CRAY — A great man in the history of Onslow County, Cray held a plantation at the junction of Duck Creek and New River until his death in 1770. He is credited with aiding in the setting up of the state of North Carolina, fighting the British in the Revolution and was Onslow County's first Senatorial representative at the adoption of the Constitution in 1776.

PARADISE POINT — A man by the name of Woody Simpson once ran the popular hotel located at this spot, presumably named because of its ideal location at the joining of three large streams.

FRENCHMAN'S CREEK — A Frenchman by the name of Alexander Nicola settled in this area early in the life on Onslow County and the creek running nearby was at first called "The Frenchman's Creek," later being shortened to its present name.

ONSLOW HALL — New York financier and builder of the Jacksonville-Wilmington Railroad, Thomas A. McIntyre, built a 27-room mansion on Town Point in 1892. The plantation grounds covered 2,600 acres, which included trotting stables and a model stock farm. It later became known as Goddington and was the county's showplace for three decades before it became part of Camp Lejeune.

FIRST SETTLEMENT — In 1705-6, the first settlement in Onslow County was established in an area known as Olde Towne Point. It gained this name by its establishment near an ancient Indian town site. Three men, William Brown, Henry Warren and Thomas Worley were granted this land and are known as the county's first settlers. In 1741, by act of assembly, it was renamed Johnston in honor of the governor at that time. This town, its courthouse and some of its records were destroyed by a hurricane in 1752. It was then abandoned for its present site and was named Wantland's Ferry, for James Wantland, who donated land for the new courthouse. This was later changed in 1842 to its present name of Jacksonville in honor of Andrew Jackson.

STONE BAY AND STONE CREEK — The county's first surveyor, Captain William Stone owned land in this area prior to 1772, giving the name of Stone to the bay and creek nearby.

SNEADS FERRY — Carteret County first established a ferry system of floats here in 1725. Its present name was given for Robert Snead, who took over its operation in 1757. At that time the Old Post Road was extended from Suffolk, Va. to Charleston, S. C. and included the ferry. The bridge presently spanning New River at this point was constructed in 1939.

DUCK CREEK — Between the years 1713 and 1731-35 new families settled in Onslow County, some of whom chose land along Duck Creek.

ONSLow BEACH — In the days prior to the building of Camp Lejeune, this area was known as Hurst beach, named after the family that initiated its development. At the time the Marine Corps took control, there were approximately 60 beach homes along the shore. Travel across the Intracoastal Waterway, before the present bridge was constructed, was conducted on an out-board-motor driven ferry, which often broke down leaving people stranded on either side of the waterway.

FIRST COUNTY COURT-HOUSE — The first court session held in the county was conducted in a sheltered indentation along the New River in an area still known as Courthouse Bay. The first courthouse, a log structure, was built near the same spot, instituted by the Royal Governor and Council in 1731.

CEDAR POINT — Here resided Captain Edward W. Ward, Company "B", 41st State Troops, Confederate Troops, Confederate States Army. To him is given the credit of organizing the company, which, after the capture of New Bern, was given the duty of patrolling the roads and streams as far north as New Bern and Washington, N. C.

MARINES — A coastal community with its own post office and which existed until 1940 when the Marines did take over.

PEST HOUSE — Although no official records have been located, local tradition has established the belief that during the great epidemics of the 18th and 19th centuries, a crude crematorium had been erected approximately 300 yards north of the Sneads Ferry Gate. It was here that the remains of plague and pestilence victims were burned in an effort to reduce contagion.

BATTLE OF NEW RIVER — During the War Between the States Jacksonville was not by-passed. On November 23, 1862, the U. S. Steamer ELLIS entered New River Inlet on a mission to destroy vessels found on the river, capture the town of Jacksonville, take the Wilmington mail and destroy any salt-works found. The ELLIS was successful in reaching Jacksonville under the command of Lt. W. B. Cushing, but it was fired upon and sunk by a confederate artillery battery located near the area of Sneads Ferry Gate.

Careless Angling Can Be Dangerous

With rod and reel in hand, 32 million fishermen annually in this country partake in one of America's most popular sports.

People fish in streams, through the ice, from boats, piers, and beaches. Each type of fishing involves certain hazards which should be recognized and avoided.

It is not known exactly just how many fishing accidents occur annually, but many persons are injured every year while engaging in this popular sport.

The most dangerous component of fishing tackle, and most common cause of injuries, is the barbed hook. Whenever you or any member of your family is fishing, the following precautions should be taken:

Since most natural baits, such as minnows and worms are active and slippery, hold the hook and bait firmly when baiting the hook. A slip may cause an injury.

Make certain of clearance before casting, in order to avoid hooking yourself or others.

When a lure is caught on a tree, bush, or anything else nearby, never attempt to retrieve it by jerking the line. The lure may loosen suddenly, snap back, and strike you or others.

Use caution in removing your hook from the fish. In the case of large game fish, stun the fish after you have reeled it in; hold it securely and use pliers to remove the hook. Be careful of sharp fins and teeth; these can cause dangerous puncture wounds.

2d Division Swimmers Win FMFLant Tourney

By Sgt. DON BROOKMAN

The 2d Marine Division Swimming Team won the second annual FMFLant Swimming Meet held at the Area No. 5 pool on July 20-21.

The team, coached by Harry A. Hattenbach, brought home the bacon for the 2d Division with a total of 75 points. The 2d Marine Air Wing team finished with a total of 59 points to secure second place and 2d Force Service Regiment, host for the meet, finished with 22 points.

The Division team took a quick, short lead and gradually increased it to "ice" the meet Tuesday morning during the 12th event.

Air Wing applied pressure throughout the affair and came on strong during the relay matches, winning two out of four, but it wasn't quite enough to "drown out" the infantry team.

The 200-yd. freestyle relay match was the most hotly contested event during the two-day meet. Only seconds separated the first place Division team with a 1:46.7 and the third place, 2d FSR relay team finished with 1:51.

Jack Hayes of Headquarters Bn., 10th Marines, turned in an outstanding performance with four first place wins, plus being on the winning team in two relay matches. Hayes took home six trophies, giving him top honors in the meet.

This is the second year the Division team has won this meet. The first time out they finished first in 14 of the 16 events, posting an overwhelming total score of 142.5 points. Team members were unanimous in giving much of the credit for their success to the leadership of coach, Harry Hattenbach. Hattenbach coached in both meets.

Baseball Remains Tops On Sports Editors Poll

Major league baseball remains king of sports, sports editors say. But practically all participating in a poll remarked on the current surge of enthusiasm for professional football, which finished in second place.

The survey, conducted by the sports committee of the Associated Press Managing Editors, involved almost 100 sports editors of newspapers with a combined circulation of 13 million.

Participating editors were asked to rate the five major sports in order—with five points for a first place vote, four for a second-place, three for a third, etc.

Major league baseball received 40 first place votes and a total of 375 points. Professional football got 20 first place votes and a total of 329 points. College football drew more first place votes than the pros—a total of 25—but wound up third with 313 points.

The remaining sports involved finished in the following order: golf 95, boxing 45, horse racing 17, track 15, professional basketball 13, ice hockey 10, and bowling 3.

The sports writers were also asked to predict what might lie ahead in sports coverage.

A summation of what lies ahead indicated that tomorrow's sports pages will contain more behind-the-scenes reporting and that news of minor interests will be squeezed completely off the pages.

Four Unbeaten Teams In Tourney

At the end of the first week's action in the Marine Corps Base Championship Softball Tournament, four teams remained undefeated—H&S Bn., ITR, Base Mat., and ASD Bn.

In the losers bracket, but still in the running, are H&S Bn., 2d FSR; and Engineer Schools. The tournament is double-elimination. A team can lose one game and still go on to take the championship.

Eliminated at the end of the first week were MS&M Bn., and the Rifle Range Team, and Marine Corps Supply Schools.

In games played last week H&S Bn., MCB downed H&S Bn., 2d FSR 8-1; Marine Corps Supply Schools annihilated Rifle Range 30-6; ASD Bn., defeated MS&M Bn., 6-5; Engineer Schools squeaked by Supply Schools 10-9, and H&S, 2d FSR closed the tournament doors to MS&M Bn., winning 5-2.

The tourney will be completed this week. Action begins at 6 p. m. every night at the intramural field.

In his short stint on the mound, Cook pitched to only 17 batters in five innings, fanning nine and issuing two walks to Charlie Thompson.

Headquarters nipped losing pitcher, Rex Springfield, for eight hits, including a home run by "Heavy" Miller with one on in the first and doubles by Bill DeSantis, Roy Clark, and John Murray.

In other league action 2d ANGLICO moved into third place by downing 2d Bridge Co., 7-4.

Visitors' View-Way In Historic Winston-Salem

The city of Winston-Salem has joined the ranks of those that are providing tourists with pre-planned tours of points of interest.

But unlike many "scenic trails" that are keyed to specific attractions, the Winston-Salem route is designed to offer visitors a complete view of a complete city.

It offers evidence of the city's claim to being a balanced city of history, industry and culture.

Planned and promoted by the Chamber of Commerce, the route will be marked with directional signs by the city. And a new twist is the beautification of the route by the Chamber and garden clubs.

Winston-Salem's tour route is called "VISITORS' VIEW-WAY." Visitors can travel the route in one hour easily, adding, however, as much time as they wish to spend touring the various attractions along the way. Even without stops, the Chamber claims, visitors will enjoy a capsule view of a complete, progressive, attractive city.

But along the way are some major points of interest that will entice most visitors to stop for a while.

The trip should begin at Old Salem, the restored Colonial Village that offers educational tours of several restored buildings dating from the 18th Century. Salem College and arts gallery are here also.

The VIEW-WAY then takes visitors through downtown Winston-Salem, past the tallest buildings in North Carolina. Next comes the arts center, the coliseum, fairgrounds and ball park.

At this point tourists will want to take time for a tour of Whitaker Park, where the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company makes cigarettes in the world's largest and finest cigarette factory. They may also take an optional trip 4.3 miles to the Hanes Hosiery Mills plant.

The VIEW-WAY next takes the visitor through the modern campus of Wake Forest College and then to Reynolda Gardens. From here, the trail follows a street lined with the finest of homes which leads to peaceful, colorful Runnymede Gardens.

Another optional trip of 10 miles would take visitors to Tanglewood Park, and 1100-acre facility offering every desired recreational opportunity, including summer theater, swimming, golfing, and camping.

Wives' Club News

The NCO Wives' Club wishes to extend their appreciation to the employees of the exchange who were most cooperative and a very big help to them.

For those interested, the next Wives' Club meeting will be on Monday, July 27, when a field trip is planned to the Jacksonville U. S. O. All members and interested parties are asked to meet at the T. T. Community Bldg. at 7:30 p. m.

MCAF Wives

Mrs. Winnie Shortleaves was guest speaker when the Exercise and Diet Club met July 15 at the Marine Corps Air Facility gym. Seventeen members were present to hear her talk on diet and related figure problems. The most interesting part of her talk was her demonstration of isometric exercises.

The Exercise and Diet Club meets every Wednesday at 9 a. m. at the gym and is open to all wives at the Air Facility.

Year Project Base Scouts

Thamegan as a Boy Scout project to help a local unit for a few hours, turned into a year-round project at Camp Lejeune's Boy Scout Troop 590.

Staff of the U. S. Naval Air Station called upon the Camp Lejeune Scouts to collect used magazines and pocketbooks for the needy and in personnel waiting rooms. Since Scout groups are required to be a hours a year devoted to projects which is a community service, 1stSgt. Roy D. Smith, Scout Master, accepted the project gladly.

The task turned out to be such a big project, requiring so many that the troop agreed to make the rounds every two

Household Hints

KEEP THAT BREAD FRESH!
 If you store bread at room-temperature, such as in a breadbox, it will stay soft but may not keep too long, especially in warm weather. If you store it in the refrigerator, it will be safe from mold but will not remain soft. COMPROMISE. Store your bread in the refrigerator but first wrap it in waxed paper and then put it into a pillow bag. Double wrapping keeps moisture in, refrigerator keeps mold out.

For an excellent and different flavoring for popcorn you melt equal parts of butter and peanut butter together, then pour over hot popcorn.

When repainting baby's crib, the paint should have a vegetable base, not oil or lead, to prevent illness. Because many babies chew on the wood when they are teething.

To sew on snap fasteners quickly, and correctly, sew all the snaps on one side, then rub chalk on them and press them against the opposite piece of material. The marks made from the chalk will show you the exact places on the second piece to be finished. By doing this the finished product will fit perfectly.

A Turkish towel placed in the bottom of the tub when a small child is bathing will prevent him from slipping.

Are you going on leave soon? If so here is a tip for you to think about when you take your wrinkled suits from the suitcase and hang them in the closet. Wring out a wet bath towel and hang it in the rear of your closet and shut the door. The wrinkles in your suit will disappear as if by magic.

Sandpaper the soles on your baby's shoes, or put adhesive tape on the sole of each shoe and this will save him from having numerous falls.

To make your tile floors sparkle like new, just add a small amount of starch to the water while washing them.

When grating the rind of a lemon or an orange, be sure not to grate too deep, because the colored part of the rind gives the flavor, while the white part causes food to taste bitter.

Reminder

Money And Marines

By SSGT. L. E. WITCONIS

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a continuing series on the Marine and his personal finances.)

There was a modern day writer who said "Let us all be happy and live within our means, even if we have to borrow the money to do it with." Although this statement seems to contradict itself, there is a grain of wisdom hidden in its meaning.

The Marine who borrows money can still live within his means—if he knows where to borrow and from whom. Shop for money as you would for a home.

Where To Borrow

Excluding emergencies, when Marines can turn to organizations such as the Navy Relief, Red Cross or Salvation Army for assistance, money can be borrowed from consumer-finance companies, banks, credit unions, insurance companies and pawn brokers. This article will discuss the methods of operation for consumer-finance companies, commonly known as small loan companies.

Finance Companies are governed by a federal law known as the Model Consumer Act which sets up rules for the protection of borrowers:

Loan Companies are required to limit interest charges to rates set up by state laws, if such laws exist.

Carrying charges (this means other than interest) can only be applied to the unpaid balance of the loan.

You must be told what the carrying charges are and the full terms of the loan. In addition the loan company must provide an exact copy of the loan contract to you for your retention.

If you pay your loan off before the time stated in the contract, an appropriate reduction in interest must be returned to you.

North Carolina Laws

The State of North Carolina has a law called the Small Loans Act, passed in August, 1961 which limits interest charges as follows:

$20 per year for first $100 borrowed . . . plus
$18 per year for second $100 borrowed . . . plus
$15 per year for third $100 borrowed . . . plus

$6 per year for any amount above $300

The maximum amount of the loan is limited to $600 and any-one under 21 years of age must have a co-signer who is financially responsible and over the age of 21. The loan period may not exceed 24 months unless the loan is renewed. Since interest rates are added to the amount of loan, rather than deducted as in most states, when a borrower renews his loan an additional interest rate is slapped on to the original loan value. In North Carolina, no further carrying charges are added except late payment charges.

Generally, all finance companies in North Carolina charge the maximum amount and bargain hunting is limited to shipping for the finance company which charges the smallest amount for loan insurance policies. You are not required to buy this insurance.

One word of caution should be interjected at this point. Certain finance companies in North Carolina are not bound by State laws because the loan is not physically negotiated in the State. These companies act as agents for loan companies which operate from another state and merely make out the application for you. Normally, interest rates in these cases, are charged on the unpaid balance and the carrying charges (which do not exist in North Carolina) are then added. The borrower must use caution and transpose the interest rates and carrying charges to true cash interest rates before deciding.

It is best to borrow only from licensed lending agents. Ask your lender if you may see his state certificate. After all, you are paying for his service. Since he is in the business of making money by lending money to you, you have the right to be inquisitive and particular.

2d Division Marines Cited For Life-Saving Action

Two non-commissioned officers of the 6th Marine Regiment, through their unhesitating and alert action to arrest an incident which could have become a tragedy, were awarded a Meritorious Mast by their Regimental Commander July 10.

Sergeant Lawrence L. Farrand and Corporal Robert C. Argabright, both members of Company A, 1st Battalion, 6th Marines were performing shore patrol duty in St. Thomas, Virgin Islands on the evening of June 23. After supervising the loading of a liberty boat at Fleet Landing, the two NCO's watched the craft pull away from the pier and make for the USS MOUNTRAIL. When the boat was approximately 75-100 yards off shore, they heard the cry "Man overboard!"

With total disregard for their own personal safety, the two Marines dove into the dark and unfamiliar waters to swim to the victim's aid. Towing the semi-conscious man, later identified as a Marine, back to shore, the rescuers were intercepted by a civilian in a small skiff who had heard the shouting. The victim was loaded into the skiff and rowed ashore.

The Meritorious Mast, presented to the two NCO's by Colonel Glenn R. Long, Regimental Commander, 6th Marines, read in part: "Through the unhesitating, alert action of Sgt. Farrand and Cpl. Argabright, an incident which could have become a tragedy had a safe ending. Their actions, with disregard to the dangers to their own lives, were in the highest traditions of the Marine non-commissioned officer and certainly merits official recognition."

Sgt. Farrand is from Roslindale, Mass., and Cpl. Argabright makes his home in Hinton, W. Va.

2d Division Association Reunion . . .

The first reunion was held in Washington, D. C., and the general was selected as the first president of the association. The first three reunions held were so successful that hotels around the country began bidding for the annual affair.

Gen. Smith attributed the success of the reunions to the fact that the association "is a family affair." The general, retired now and living with his wife "Happy" in Alexandria, Va., commanded the 2d Marine Division during the battle of Tarawa.

Another speaker of the evening was Brigadier General Wood B. Kyle, USMC, Deputy Chief of Staff (Research and Development), Headquarters Marine Corps. The general represented the Commandant of the Marine Corps who was unable to attend.

Before the banquet ended, and the dancing began, the new association officers for 1964-65 were announced. Taking office as Association President is Mr. John J. Hruska, formerly the 1st Vice President. LtCol. R. J. Voegindewey, Adjutant and Inspector, 2d Marine Division was also voted in as one of the association officers for the forthcoming year.

It was also announced that the site of next year's reunion will be Chicago, Ill.

Saturday night's revelry didn't keep any of the members from attending memorial services Sunday morning in front of the hotel, just off the boardwalk. As a Marine bugler sounded Attention, a hushed silence fell over that section of the boardwalk, as curious on-lookers crowded the rails to watch the services.

As the bugler played taps, and all present stood with bowed heads, even the clouds overhead seemed to dip as in a silent salute to fallen comrades. As the last notes faded across the boardwalk a Marine firing squad, made up of local recruiters, fired their three volleys.

The memorial services were concluded with benediction by Chaplain Lumpkin.

Then it was time to make those plane, train, and bus connections for the return trip home. Among the hurried "goodbye's" and last minute handshakes in front of the hotel, the most commonly heard farewell was, "See you in Chicago next year."

Inquiring Photograph

Do you believe NCO quarters are quite?

SSGT. WILLIAM ARTI Co., HqBn., 2d Marine Division—No, I do not believe present Staff NCO quarters are adequate. I think Staff NCO's should be barracks with individual or partitions. An exchange ideas among the Staff in a relaxed atmosphere as a centralized barracks solved more problems 1 Marine Corps after 4 hours than the tension pressure they are under the day.

SSGT. LAWRENCE A. ER, 8th Engineer Bn. Troops—I do not believe the Staff NCO quarters are adequate. Some of the in Building No. 205 is small. Also if a Staff wanted to put a person conditioner in his room could not because it overload the electrical

SGT. RAYMOND W. H&S Battalion Legal—I do not think Staff quarters are adequate. I think a centrally building to house by junior Staff NCO's would off-duty living more d and would be an extension to the morale of all the NCO's concerned. The Corps saves $105.00 per BAQ on their single NCO's. I think this should be used for more able quarters and furnish career Staff NCO's
