Lejeune Officers Hear Col. R. P. Heintz (Ret.)

Col. Robert D. Heintz (Ret.), probably the most controversial Marine of recent times, found very little disagreement among more than 200 Camp Lejeune officers who heard him last week that the red stripe on the dress blue trousers, the swagger stick and the annual celebration of the Marine Corps Birthday have a direct bearing on battle proficiency.

Speaking to the Marine Corps Reserve company grade officers' leadership class, Col. Heintz stated that tradition "is a flame that lights the spiritual and emotional side of being a soldier. It inspires a spirit of emulation, a sense of pride, of prestige and shame; provides a force of enforceable standards that creates a sense of belonging."

"The celebration of the Marine Corps Birthday," said Col. Heintz, "is something that re-creates, if not our physical bodies, at least our spiritual bodies."

Col. Heintz retired after 27 years of Marine Corps service at the end of 1963. He is the author of the book, "Soldiers of the Sea", and was the center in an international controversy when, as the head of the Marine Corps mission to Haiti, was deemed persona non grata by the Haitian president in 1962.

Col. Heintz stated that the military leader has an obligation to maintain the traditions of the corps, although he emphasized that this does not mean that he should enforce traditions. "Enforced traditions, enforced discipline," he said, "are the least desirable."

In response to a question, Col. Heintz stated that a tradition should be retained as long as it does not interfere with a necessary function of the service. He stated that the wearing of the sword while standing duty that requires the driving of a vehicle would be an instance in which the interference would justify a change in the tradition. He insisted, however, that the solution would not be the abandonment of the tradition of wearing the sword, but instead the sword should be reserved for use at formations and ceremonies where it would add to the military appearance and atmosphere of the occasion.

The nearly 200 year old traditions that a Marine doesn't run away, that the Marine Corps must prevail, are among the most powerful available levers for influencing human behavior in battle, the speaker told his audience. These traditions have been credited with enabling the

Marines to establish an enviable record both in battle and in the prisoner of war camps in Korea. Heintz stated that psychiatrists and psychologists have agreed that the reason the Marines were able to withstand the pressures of the POW camps so well

Lejeune Based Marines Claim N. Y. Bus Trip A Smashing Success

By PFC T. C. STALLONE

How many times have you waited to catch a ride to New York, Washington, D. C. or Florida, attempting to squeeze a few hours of liberty from a weekend or a 72 or a 96-hour pass?

The inconvenience of waiting, plus the many other discomforts that go along with traveling long distances for liberty were eliminated by the 2d Marine Division Special Services sponsored bus tour to New York April 17-20.

Marines of the Division were able to leave the driving to someone else by purchasing an $18.75 round trip bus ticket. Special Services had arranged the trip, a 72-hour pass and accommodations.

It was a far cry from the familiar Friday scene when hundreds of Marines can be found standing for hours, eagerly seeking a ride at "the circle", a parking lot opposite the 8th Marines gymnasium that serves as a "riders' rendezvous".

As the hours drag by, the riders increase and the cars diminish in number. When a car pulls into the lot, hordes of Leathernecks "charge" to the driver's window, yelling their destination, and eventually, with a little bit of luck, and a lot of elbowing, they get a ride.

The lucky Marine who has obtained a ride climbs into the back seat, squeezing between two or three other riders and prepares for the trip. Knees tucked beneath his chin, one is wrapped around the dirty laundry someone is taking home to mother, the other bent backwards, nudging the neck of some Marine, he is on his way. He may either sleep or worry the next couple of hundred miles... depending upon his nervous system, and the self-styled "Barney Oldfield" behind the wheel. Besides the driver, he can conjure up blowouts, accidents, mechanical breakdowns and all other possibilities that may cancel his few hours of liberty.

If you are one of these "coastal commuters" Division Special Services has solved your problem.

While hundreds of Marines futilely stood by at the "ride rendezvous," the 2d Division Band performed as seven bus loads of Division Marines departed Camp Lejeune destined to arrive in New York, Friday evening, April 17. Accommodations reserved at the Sloan House, New York City's YMCA, had been arranged by Special Services.

The trip was vastly different than the customary weekend race to the big city. Primarily, there was confidence in the driver's ability. Secondly, there was time. The trip commenced at 8 a.m. Friday and the buses arrived in New York at 8 p.m. that evening. This allowed an extra night of liberty. Instead of being on the road until 2 a.m., the Marines were either on the town, at home, or enjoying a sponsored dance at Sloan House.

The accommodations were inexpensive, $6.25 for two nights and two days. There was a dance Friday and Saturday nights, complete with a large dance band, plenty of refreshments and last, but very important, hostesses.

Tickets to various television programs being aired during the weekend were distributed free of charge.

For the 2d Division Marine that wanted to visit the city with a friend or a date, New York's sights proved too numerous to see in a weekend. Division Marines visited Rockefeller Center, the Empire State Building and three even managed to get passes to the World's Fair.

The liberty run finally came to an end at 8 p.m. Sunday night. Within minutes after the buses got under way, the majority of Marines, assured of the safe ride ahead, were sleeping soundly.

Although the return ride was quiet, the trip to New York was not without humor and colorful events. After all, when you take three hundred Marines out of the boondocks and put them on the same buses, there are bound to be (Marine) interest stories!

To many people, a bus trip is a boring ride, and conse-

MajGen. Maas

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 15 — The passing of MajGen. Melvin J. Maas, U. S. Marine Corps Reserve (Retired) is a great loss to the Corps and to the Nation which he has served so faithfully for the past 45 years. The General, a Congressman for 16 years and a Marine private in World War I, rose to the rank of major general before his retirement in August 1952. Known affectionately as "Mr. Marine Corps Reserve," General Maas was credited with many improvements in the Navy and Marine Corps Reserve programs. Despite progressive blindness which overtook him in 1952, the General never wavered in his duty to his country, and in April 1954, he was appointed Chairman of the President's Committee on Employment of the Physically Handicapped. General Maas' spirit will forever be a shining example to all Marines present and future. /s/ Wallace M. Greene, Jr. General, U. S. Marine Corps Comdt. of the Marine Corps

RIFLE INSPECTION—Cmdr. M. C. Wakefield, Jr., CO, MCB 26, conducts one of the regular weekly weapons and personnel inspections. MCB 26 personnel, many of whom fought side by side with Marines in the Pacific, will wind up two weeks of intensive training April 25.

Precise Skills Identifiable In New MOS Structure

Headquarters Marine Corps has announced the necessity to identify precise skills in many enlisted Military Occupational Specialties. This will give some Marines new MOS's.

Only Marines with specialized skills in highly technical occupational fields will, at first, be affected by the change. The introduction of new equipment and weapons' systems makes it necessary that these highly skilled Marines be readily identifiable.

Under the new concept, the first two digits will identify the occupational field and the third digit will identify the skill. The fourth digit will identify an adjunctive skill.

An example of how the new system will work is: A Marine in OF26 (Telephone-Teletype Maintenance) with MOS 2631 is a Telephone-Teletype Technician with no related skills in his field. If the Marine is sent to Cryptographic Equipment Technician's School, he acquires the MOS 2632. Still, he is basically qualified as a Telephone-Teletype Technician, but now possesses the adjunctive skill of Cryptographic Equipment Technician.

This new skill is identified in his MOS by the terminal digit, "2".

If the Marine had been trained in another OF 26 specialty, Cable System Technician for instance, he would acquire the MOS 2633. Basically, he would still possess the skill of MOS 2631 (Telephone-Teletype Technician) but would also have the ability to perform as a Cable System Technician. Again, the terminal digit, "3", in the MOS 2633 identifies his adjunctive skill.

While a Marine may have a 2634 MOS (Central Office Installer Repairman) he does not necessarily have the skills of MOS 2632 (Cryptographic Equipment Technician) or MOS 2633 (Cable System Technician). But he still is basically a Telephone-Teletype Technician, MOS 2631.

The last digit of the MOS identifies an adjunctive skill possessed by a Marine which otherwise could require an additional MOS or Category "B" MOS to identify.

The new skill designator concept has already been incorporated into Occupational Field 26 and 27. It will be applied in other fields when the need makes it desirable.

New York Trip—

quently they do little but sleep or read while enroute to their destination. A bus full of Marines is slightly different. In one bus, during one five-minute period, a group in the rear could be heard singing the latest Beatle classic, with sound effects provided by a less talented, but just as enthusiastic group sitting near by.

And despite the activity, there is that small number sleeping. "Call the Marines". How many instances has this been the case in American History? An interesting and novel approach took place in a Delaware bus stop. One of the buses had difficulty starting, and the driver, without hesitating, asked several Marines to give him a push. Marines got out, and pushed the bus (fully loaded), and within seconds it started.

Several interesting points must be added as post script. The buses scheduled to arrive back at Camp Lejeune at 5:30 a.m. were three hours late!!! Over 300 Marines were UA and not one received office hours!

Special Services had made arrangements to have liberty expire when the Marines boarded the buses, so breakdowns, late arrivals, inclement weather, and all problems that are associated with a return to Camp Lejeune were dispensed with; a worry-free trip back was the result.

Another point deserving of mention is the distance and time allotted for the tour. The distance and time (72-hour pass) were automatically granted to every ticket buyer. No one had to submit a special request, and travel was assured, which is not the case when a Marine has a 72 or a 96. He must hope that he can find a ride with the same liberty pass he possesses.

Your problem is no longer the sun, rain, dirty laundry or the long hours searching for a ride...but, when is the next bus trip???

Navy Relief Aids Marines And Dependents

The man who thinks no one cares about him or the man who feels he has no place to go in time of need is ill-informed about the facilities at Camp Lejeune.

In building 41, people who are interested in you can be found with no trouble. The majority of them work without pay and are dedicated to your welfare. They are the volunteers of the Camp Lejeune Auxiliary of the Navy Relief Society.

Most of them are the wives of servicemen and they understand the problems of a service family and the single man's problems too.

The main function of the society is to assist members of the Naval service and their dependents during financial difficulties. This is accomplished through loans, and sometimes through outright gifts if the society feels that the financial independence of the borrower would be jeopardized if he had to repay the money.

However, the society is not a loan agency that you can turn to any time you feel you need a little extra money. To be assisted by the society there has to be a definite and bonafide need.

At present there are two branches of the Camp Lejeune Auxiliary; Building 41, at Hadnot Point and in Building 204 at MCAF. The Air Facility branch opened April 6 of this year and is headed by Mrs. R. L. Hawley. Mrs. L. Robson is in charge of the Hadnot Point branch.

GOLD OAK LEAF CLUSTERS are pinned on Maj. John H. Austin by his wife, Mary, and by Col. T. S. Ivey, Acting Commanding General of Marine Corps Base. The newly promoted major is the Officer in Charge, Instructor Training Unit, Marine Corps Supply Schools, Camp Lejeune.

Blue Ridge Pkwy. Ready For Tourists

The 1964 travel season on the Blue Ridge Parkway, most visited of all areas administered by the National Park Service, has opened with the removal of wintertime barriers from higher sections of the 469-mile "highway in the sky" between Shenandoah National Park in Virginia and the Great Smoky Mountains National Park entrance near Cherokee, N. C.

Highest of the sections just reopened is between Beech Gap and Balsam Gap west of Asheville. Parkway campgrounds, picnic areas and other visitor facilities are scheduled to open May 1, announces Superintendent Sam P. Weems.

In North Carolina, they include the Parkway's largest camping and picnic area, Doughton Park, plus camping and recreational areas at Price Park, Crabtree Meadows, and a new picnic area at Milepost 316.5 near Linville Falls.

The Linville Falls spur road, 1.5 miles long, will be opened in June to provide an attractive access to the Falls, where there is a trail system and a large parking area. Price Park campground, near Linville and Blowing Rock, N. C., is being expanded and a picnic area is under construction by the lake.

No new mainline Parkway mileage will be opened this year. The 13-mile section from Soco Gap (U. S. 19) to the Great Smoky Mountains National Park (U. S. 441) is being improved and will be opened May 1. In the meantime, motorists continue to the Great Smokies from Soco Gap via U. S. 19 to Cherokee, where this highway intersects with U. S. 441--the trans-mountain highway through the Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

Opening May 15 at Crabtree Meadows (Milepost 340) is a new restaurant constructed by National Park Concessions, Inc., to replace the temporary sandwich and drink stand adjoining the picnic and camping area. All other visitor centers will also open between the first of May and mid-June, with the naturalist program of nature walks and evening lectures beginning around June 15.

Spring blossom time is just beginning along the Parkway as dogwood, shadblow and redbud wood, shadblow and redbud appear on lower mountain slopes. At elevations up to 3,500 feet, pink azaleas normally bloom around May 7-10, flame azalea about mid-May, purple rhododendron and mountain laurel the first week in June, and white rhododendron in late June and early July. At higher elevations the bloom is usually two or three weeks later. In Craggy Gardens, where the Parkway soars through mountain peaks covered with purple rhododendron at altitudes of 5,000 feet and higher, the blooming season customarily begins in mid-June. Rhododendron and flame azalea along the high mountain sections west of Asheville are at peak beauty a few days later.

Several new hiking trails were opened last year, including the Jumpinoff Rocks trail at Milepost 260, and the Beacon Heights Trail at Milepost 305.2. There are new self-guiding trails at Cone Park and Mount Pisgah.

was because of their traditions. Illustrating the power of Corps traditions the colonel quoted World War II Commandant General A. A. Vandegrift, who told a congressional committee, "Those Marines didn't take Mount Suribachi just for the sake of $50,000 a month."

Col. Heinl was critical of those who advocate the abolition of traditions strictly for the sake of uniformity. "Uniformity just for the sake of uniformity without any demonstrable economic or concrete advantages is beyond my comprehension," he said. Justifying the retention of traditions even if some expense is involved, the colonel acknowledged a remark from the audience that it had been estimated that the entire Marine Corps could be outfitted in dress blues for the cost of one F4H fighter plane. "When you outfit the Marines in dress blues," said Heinl, "it should be recognized that you are establishing something that can't be busted up when a guy forgets to put his wheels down."

"We can keep our traditions if we do all that we can to be as good as our business as we can, to be as effective as unit as we can. In addition, the Marine Corps and the Navy must exercise some highway redesigning of our own within the defense department," he said. "When we can show that these re-designs will produce demonstrable savings and be constructive, we should not hesitate to propose changes," Heinl further stated.

"In a hard fight, in the ultimate moment of testing, is more important that Lt. John Doe be a polished tritacian or that he be imbued with the tradition that the Marine Corps must prevail?" asked the Colonel.

Col. Heinl summed up his address by saying that the survival of the Marine Corps and the survival of our nation depends upon the survival of the worthwhile traditions on which we have founded our corps and our nation. "And it is an all hands job," he stated.

Department Of Defense Releases Statement On US Military Strength

The Secretary of Defense and others have stated on several occasions that our strategic nuclear forces are so large and powerful as to be capable of absorbing a full first strike directed against them and surviving with sufficient power to completely destroy the aggressor.

Questions have been raised, however, regarding the magnitude of our superiority and whether it is continuing to grow. The fact is it has been increasing and we intend that it shall continue to increase. So that there may be no misunderstanding on this point, the following information is being supplied: Today the United States Air Force has 540 strategic bombers maintained constantly on alert which could take off and to their targets in the face of surprise missile attack. In contrast, it is estimated the Soviets could place over this country, on two-way missions, more than approximately 120 heavy bombers plus perhaps an additional 150 medium bombers, targets for which would be directed to Alaska and the northern areas of the United States. The Air Force has today on alert approximately 750 intercontinental ballistic missiles; the Soviets have less than one-fourth of that number in operation. We have 192 Polaris missiles deployed; the Soviets have substantially fewer submarine-launched ballistic missiles in operation. Each of our Polaris missiles is carried in a nuclear powered submarine—only a small percentage of the Soviet missile carrying submarines are nuclear powered. Each of our Polaris missiles can be launched from below the surface—none of the Soviet missiles have that capability. Each of our missiles has a range of 1500 miles or more—the range of the Soviet missiles is less than one-third as much.

In January 1961 the number of our strategic bombers on alert, and hence certain of surviving a surprise attack, was less than 500. In contrast, the Soviet bomber force approximated the level of today. In 1961, neither we nor the Soviets had more than a handful of intercontinental ballistic missiles or submarine-launched missiles deployed.

The increasing military superiority of the United States has been a result of the $4 billion increase in the Defense Department expenditures in FY 1962 and the further increases in fiscal years 1963 and 1964. A total of $17 billion was added in the three years. With these expenditures, the number of nuclear warheads in the strategic alert forces has been increased 100 per cent; the number of tactical nuclear warheads in Western Europe has been increased 70 per cent; the number of combat-ready divisions has been increased 45 per cent; the number of tactical air wings has been increased 35 per cent; the airlift capability has been increased 75 per cent; and general ship construction has been increased 100 per cent.

Letter To The Editor

Editor
Camp Lejeune Globe

Dear Sir:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all those who participated in the warm reception given to my Girl Scout Troop 98, their co-leader and myself on April third, at the Camp Lejeune Marine Corps Base.

We had traveled long and hard with quite a few delays on our trip to visit the Juliette Low Birthplace in Savannah, Ga. After being on the road for five days, we were really overwhelmed at the warm reception we received upon our arrival, later than planned due to traffic trouble, at the Knox Scout Hut. You can't imagine how we felt, tired and hungry as we were, to receive such a warm and spontaneous welcome.

I would like to thank all of you publicly from General Bowser who gave us permission to visit, to the littlest Brownie who washed the windows in the Hut. The meal served by Troop 307 was the most delicious we ate during the whole trip. The entertainment by Troop 297 was the funniest we have ever seen. The friendship sticks made and presented to us by Troop 157 are the nicest gifts we have ever received. To each and every leader who worked so hard to make our visit a success, my heartfelt thanks. You all made us feel so welcome.

To Mrs. E. S. Lambert, district chairman of Onslow, thank you so much. To Mrs. J. P. Abbott, district secretary, who did so much to make our visit a pleasant one, thank you so much.

May I also thank the president and secretary of the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce for all the interesting and informative literature with which they presented us.

The welcome sign you made for us will hang in our Scout House. It will always remind us of the most wonderful reception we have every received. We were truly "Girl Scouts Together".

Sincerely,
Mrs. Theodore Friend
Leader, Troop 98
President

Korean Marines Observe Their Fifteenth Birthday

"Today, marks the fifteenth anniversary of the Korean Marine Corps. As fellow Marines we want to take this opportunity to acknowledge the honor and respect to a young fighting corps. Your history is brief, but your exploits have been illustrious. In every sense it is fitting that you be recognized as capable, dedicated, professional fighting men."

This is part of a message read April 13th, to the students of Marine Corps Engineer Schools by the commanding officer, LtCol. N. J. Dennis, in honoring two members of the Republic of Korea Marine Corps.

These are the only two Korean Marines at Camp Lejeune.

A birthday cake was baked by the school's mess hall. After reading the birthday message, LtCol. Dennis cut the cake and following Marine Corps tradition, presented the first piece to Technical Sergeant Suh Won Kim, the youngest Marine present. Next, a piece of cake was presented to Sergeant Jae Kun Kwun, the oldest Korean Marine.

After the cake cutting ceremonies, all hands joined in wishing the two Korean Marines and their Corps a Happy Fifteenth Birthday.

KOREAN MARINE CORPS ANNIVERSARY—TSgt. Suh Won Kim, center, and Sgt. Jae Kun Kwun, await the first slices of a birthday cake prepared for them by the Marine Corps Engineer Schools mess hall. The Korean Marines are the only members of their Corps at Camp Lejeune. Doing the honors is LtCol. N. J. Dennis, CO, Marine Corps Engineer Schools.

Quantico To Host Aviation Party

The Quantico Spring Aviation Party, the year's largest social event for active and retired Marine aviators, will be held May 8, at Harry Lee Hall.

Semi-formal civilian attire, rather than helmets and flight suits, will be the uniform of the day for the "throttle jockeys" this year. The affair is expected to be the largest in recent years.

Because of the anticipated large attendance, Marine aviators desiring reservations are urged to contact the Adjutant, Station Operations and Engineering Squadron, Marine Corps Air Station, Quantico, Va., by May 1.

Social Security Card Not To Be Used For Identification

Your social security account number card—000-00-0000—is not for identification. It is intended for social security purposes and your card shows individual account number, your name, according to an Act of Congress, Manager of the Social Security Administration in New York.

People in business sometimes ask us for an individual's address or place of employment because of an unpaid bill or about an improper check drawn on an insufficient bank balance, said Mr. Hatfield.

A cardinal principle in the administration of Social Security is the confidentiality of records. The records are maintained for the purpose of establishing entitlement to Federal old age, survivors and disability insurance benefits, and are prohibited from revealing them for unlawful purposes. Therefore, it is easy for people to understand that a social security card is for social security and Internal Revenue purposes and for other purposes.

We recommend that you guard your card because it is the key to your social security protection with Uncle Sam. You will need to show it to your employer on your next job in industry or business—and on any future job.

You will need it when you or your family apply for social security benefits.

Where to keep it? Not in your purse or wallet. (It will wear out from handling. Also you might lose it.)

Put it in the safest place available—as you would an insurance policy and other important document.

What if you lose it? Never ask for a new card. Ask for a duplicate card with the same number on it, at the social security district office near your home. Remember—one social security number like your Marine Corps serial number, lasts a lifetime.

If you have any questions you may contact Stuart Hollowell, Field Representative from the New Bern Social Security Office, who is in Jacksonville every Thursday, from 10 a. m. to 12 a. m., in Room 103 of the Courthouse.

Free Election, Secret Ballot Underlie Our Political System

(Sixth in a series of ten award-winning editorials from the San Diego Calif., Evening Tribune. Reprinted with permission.)

If we were to choose a single scene and symbol to illustrate political freedom in America it would be this:

The time: Election Day.

The place: A neighborhood polling place. It could be a private garage in your block; maybe the nearby school; maybe the fire station.

There would be an American flag in sight somewhere to give the place a special distinction on this day. There would be perhaps four or six of your friends, neighbors, or acquaintances sitting at a table.

The key furnishings of the room would be some sort of private enclosures — some as simple as a curtained shelf; others as elaborate as a voting machine.

Enter John Q. and Jane Public.

They each receive a ballot and retire separately to the curtained voting booths. There, alone with their consciences, they mark their ballots; fold them; turn them in or drop them into the ballot box — their private judgement, if they so choose, known but to them alone.

To tens of millions of Americans, this scene is so familiar as to seem commonplace.

But to 10 times 10 millions, and more, elsewhere in the world, this little drama of the free election and the secret ballot is unknown.

Many of them have never known an authority other than one imposed on them. The idea of a voice in choosing their leaders is inconceivable. In many places, we must concede, it may be presently impractical due to political immaturity.

But there are other places where advanced and intelligent people are denied this right Americans hold dear.

They may be permitted by their leaders to go through the motions of popular elections. But their freedom of choice is usually between a single hand-picked slate of candidates, or the often dangerous alternative of simply not voting at all.

The clue to our little drama of the free election and secret ballot rings out like the clear notes of a prelude in the opening words of the Constitution:

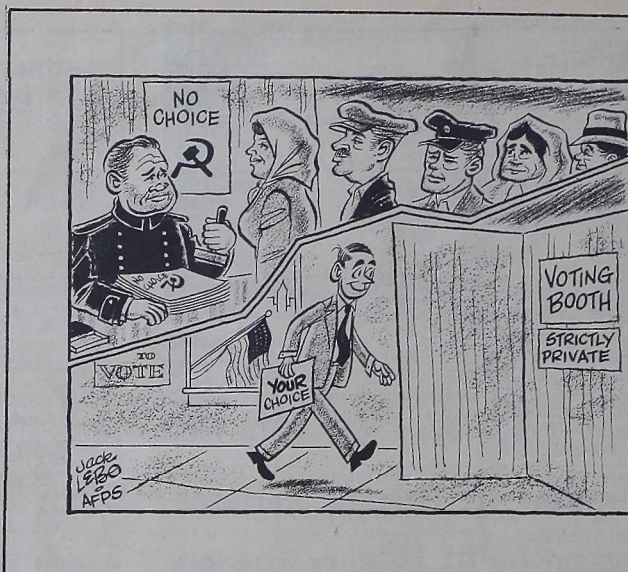

"We, the people of the United States . . ."

Ours is a nation of laws, and the determination of those governing rules rests primarily in the hands of the people.

We vest this power in the hands of an elected Congress and a Chief Executive.

In this enormous grant of power over our lives and fortunes, Americans have deemed it important that the process be conducted in freedom and in secrecy.

We burnish it and keep it intact for succeeding generations by going to the polls on election days and voting, and by resisting encroachments on this basic freedom.

Wearing Of The Uniform A Symbol To Be Guarded

Marine Corps recruiters follow a simple axiom: Look Sharp. They are out to sell the Corps and they know that a "gift of gab" alone won't make a sale if the prospect doesn't like what he sees. Result — you'll look far and wide before you find a recruiter, who in dress and deportment, isn't a model of what a Marine should be.

Does this make recruiters a sort of elite corps? Well, it shouldn't — not if we constantly keep in mind that every one of us in uniform is on display before the public.

True, it is not our job to buttonhole young men and women and enlighten them on the benefits of a hitch in the Marine Corps. But, without opening our mouths, we are daily influencing the attitude toward the Corps we represent.

A uniform calls for a special quality of dignity and courteous behavior. If the man or woman wearing it doesn't measure up, the effect can be disastrous. Have you ever seen a policeman shambling along the street, elbowing pedestrians, swaggering with the authority of his pistol and nightstick? It isn't likely that you have.

A man who would so abuse the responsibility of his badge wouldn't last long on the police force of any American city.

Why? Because his job is not a bully but to control. He is a symbol of law and order who commands respect without demanding it. This is every bit as true of a man wearing a Marine uniform. If he is squared away and courteous in manner, he will find the eyes of civilians lingering on him in a sort of salute. Through him just one individual, a great many people who love their country will be grateful for the Marine Corps that helps keep their country free and strong.

Never underestimate your own importance in maintaining the prestige of the Marine Corps. It must be maintained by good example; force can't do it, not in this country. If the people like what they see in you as a representative of the Corps, if the very sight of you reaffirms their confidence in the national ability to remain strong and upright, they feel a determination to back you to the limit. When you sense this feeling, you will know a satisfaction that will equal theirs.

Your Thoughts Make the Difference

The Daily Mail of London ran a piece one day about a woman by the name of Gem Gilbert, a British tennis star. She had died and this was the obituary article. It told of a very curious death. Gem Gilbert died as a dentist touched her. Years before, when she was a little girl, she had been at the dentist's with her mother, who was to have a tooth pulled, and a very unusual thing had happened: Her mother died suddenly from the shock of extraction. The little girl saw her mother die in the dentist's chair.

So, what happened? Her little mind painted a picture of herself dying in the same way. The picture became a mental reality. Gem Gilbert carried it around in her mind for thirty years. She would never go to a dentist no matter how badly she needed dental treatment. But finally there came a time when she was suffering such acute pain that she agreed to let a dentist come to her house at a seacoast place in Sussex to extract a tooth. She had her medical doctor with her, her friends around her, and her pastor present — but before she could get into the chair, she died.

The writer in the Daily Mail remarked that Gem Gilbert had been killed by "thirty years of thought."

Movie Reviews

KINGS OF THE SUN
 Stars Yul Brynner and J. Lee Thompson. Directed by Yul Brynner and J. Lee Thompson.

This time, since the heroes are not Cossacks, but Mayans, there are no horses. There are, however, a good many foot soldiers and a final battle scene, conducted over a barrier of flames, that provides some excitement.

Lovers of spectacle will not be disappointed, and as for the acting, only Brynner, manages to give you the appropriate atmosphere.

FOUR DAYS OF NAPLES
 Not since such "greats" of post-war Italian film-making as "La Dolce Vita," "Open City" and "Bicycle Thief" has a motion picture received the accolades given to "The Four Days of Naples," depicting the final days of the Italian Resistance against the Nazis during World War II.

Such famous figures of the motion picture industry as William Wyler, Sam Goldwyn, Fred Zinnemann and Billy Wilder have conceived this powerful film, directed by Nanni Loy, to be one of the finest ever made.

ANY NUMBER CAN WIN
 It will be difficult to recall any mystery-thriller ever brought to the screen with the completely unexpected, hair-raising shock climax of "Any Number Can Win," starring Jean Gabin and Alain Delon.

The most astute observer or amateur detective could never guess the outcome of this brilliantly conceived and brilliantly acted drama of a reckless scheme to rob the vault of the Casino in Cannes of a billion francs. Although motion pictures have featured numerous crime pictures and suspense stories, there has never been one like "Any Number Can Win."

RIFIFI IN TOKYO

"Rififi in Tokyo," filmed on locations in Japan with an international cast headed by Karl Boehm, Barbara Lass, Charles Vanel and Keiko Kishi. The girls, about 50 in number, were models selected to play hostesses in night club sequences of the suspenseful film. Miss Kishi, one of Japan's most popular actresses, also enacts a hostess who plays a pivotal role in the story.

SWORD IN THE STONE

The (Animated Cartoon Feature). Producer: Walt Disney. Director: Wolfgang Reitherman. Original: T. H. White. Screenplay: Bill Peet.

Finding themselves without a king, the knights of England ascertain that the next monarch will be the one who can pull a great sword from its bed of stone. Candidates include Kay, the knothood son of blustering Sir Ector, in whose castle Arthur, a flunky, is striving with all his might to become Kay's squire. With the guidance of Merlin the magician and a sidekick owl, the Wart, as he is disdainfully called, proves destined for the monarchy. In color.

PERIOD OF ADJUSTMENT

This story of the trials and tribulations of a pair of newlyweds, whose disillusionment with married life begins even before the honeymoon is over has all the raciness of Tennessee Williams' popular works, but this time the famous playwright has mixed his tongue-in-cheek barbs with touches of tenderness and sympathy, all of which add up to a delightful whole.

The pert and attractive Miss Fonda plays Isabel, the nurse in a V.A. hospital who cures patient George Havestick (Jim Hutton) just in time to marry him.

To start off the weekend we have some new talent available for your listening and dancing pleasure. Immediately following Happy Hours on Friday we are extremely proud to present in our Mirror Room, the music of the Rhythm Kings. These boys managed to get us be the recipient of their sounds of more time before the tobacco season opens as they all have to get back to the fields. Immediately following the tobacco season they follow the sun out to the west coast where it's avocado picking time. In between these agricultural assignments they put out some pretty good music.

Saturday night another new group will be back — it's the Corvairs. I don't know what kind of music they play but they all have nice cars. On the info slip we got from their agent it says "they are the move to say the least," and "have been thrown out of some of the fanciest clubs on the east coast as far east as Cape Hatteras." Kickoff time is 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. Get up a gang and drop in we can always get another table or two.

Sunday as usual we present that well known, and your popular combo known as Paul Peek and the Peek-A-Boos. This highly versatile group is wanted by everyone. The Onslow Sheriff's Office want them. The Rocky Mount Chief of Police wants them, and so does the music director of the University of North Carolina. He thinks that maybe they still can't be saved. Paul and the boys have received another big award from a local music appreciation society, known as the New Bridge Street Listeners Association. The award, highly cherished by all musicians is the Camp Geiger Parking Lot Award. Congratulations to Paul and his gang. See you all here Sunday night from 8:45 until 12:07 a.m.

Kinston Eagles Opening Pennant Fight With Vets

Manager Pete Peterson and his squad of 22 Kinston Eagles arrived in Kinston from Daytona Beach, Fla., where the Pittsburgh Pirate farm clubs have been in training for the past month.

Manager Peterson, back in Kinston for the third consecutive year, is optimistic about his team's chances this year.

He says, "I don't know anything about the rest of the teams in the league, but I do know that we have good hitting, speed, and defensive ability. If our young pitchers come through we expect to be right in the middle of the pennant fight."

Local area fans will be pleased to note that five players from last year's Eagles are returning to Kinston, along with one who was here in 1962 when Kinston returned to Professional baseball. He is pitcher Bary Waslewski, who won 13 games while losing only 5 last year in Reno, Nevada.

Back from last year's squad are out fielder-catcher Rudy Welch who hit .316 for the 1963 Eagles; infielder Bobby Sanchez who hit .298 last year; pitchers Jim Tyer (5-1), Ron Honeycutt (1-1), and lefthander Jerry Staffey (11-7).

Among the players tagged for future stardom on this year's Eagles roster is catcher Carl Taylor, who got a big bonus to sign in the Pittsburgh organization. Taylor, a big, strong catcher hit .294 with 11 home runs in Batavia, New York, last year.

Kinston has drawn over 260-thousand fans the past two years, with another big year at the gates expected.

Other members of the 10-team Carolina League are Raleigh, Peninsula, Winston-Salem, Burlington, Portsmouth, Wilson, Durham, Greensboro, and Rocky Mount.

Softball Tryouts

Softball tryouts will begin on April 25 at the Tarawa Terrace Little League Field. Time for tryouts is 2 p.m. Both officer and enlisted are invited to come out and get in the swing of the summer season. The only requirement for the tryouts is that you be a resident of the Terrace.

Varsity Wins Five; To Play ECC Here

The varsity baseball team extended their winning streak to ten games last week when they took five games from three local colleges.

Two of the five wins came from Atlantic Christian College of Wilson, N. C. Friday night's action saw Lejeune win-second on a wild pitch and flew home on a passed ball.

A four run barrage in the third inning increased the Marines lead. Buddy Simpson led off with a single, went to second on Dick Garcia's sacrifice bunt, and crossed home plate on Hal Norton's single.

In Saturday nights game Dick Hall handcuffed the Atlantic Christian batters with four hits and fanned 12 going nine innings for the win.

Lejeune opened up the scoring in the first inning with one run, seven runs in the fourth inning, two runs in the fifth, two more in the sixth, four in the seventh for a total of sixteen runs in nine innings.

Atlantic Christian College pushed one run across home plate in the second inning.

Coach Holt cleaned the Lejeune bench with substitutions when he saw the fine job of pitching that Dick Hall was doing. In the eighth inning Coach Hall played and hit a single to right field. He played first base for two innings.

The local nine scored in every way possible, singles, doubles, stealing home they were too much for the Atlantic Christian College pitching staff.

The varsity picked up two more games from Edwards Military Institute Wednesday and Thursday with scores of 9-3 and 10-1.

Dick Garcia started off with a triple, Hal Norton hit a line single then Jim Hall backed him up with a double and went home when the shortstop spilled a chaser by Tom O'Leary.

Garcia started the third inning with an infield single, Norton doubled and O'Leary was given life on an infield error.

Ron Burke lashed a looping sacrifice fly and Joe Schratz singled to bring in another RBI.

Mike Hamilton hurled his second win against no losses as Lejeune racked up their second victory over Pembroke College 8-6.

The climax of the 8-6 victory came in the bottom half of the eighth inning when John Lepito hammered a 345 foot homer over the left field wall for a pair of scores.

Darlington, S.C. Speedw Holds Rebel '300' May

If you are a stock car racing fan and are planning leave or taking a "96" the weekend of May 9 the Rebel "300" beckons at Darlington, S. C. The spring Rebel 300 stock car classic is held annually on the Saturday closest to Confederate Memorial Day, May 10 and has been a hectic but popular seven-year event in the south.

Originally the premier convertible stock car classic, the format was changed to a "Monza-type" split race when convertibles were dropped from racing. Fans voting by the hundreds requested the Rebel 300 be returned to a straight 300-mile race and that will be the format for this race.

Three days of time trials precede the Rebel 300 that are classics of competition themselves. Annually the trials produce the fastest field of the year with new records established in every category. The race itself, is fast and close and always produces history to be remembered.

The race, and the day dedicated to the Johnny of all wars and the mill pre-race shows. The color pre-race activity features Major General R. H. T. U. S. A., Ret'd., Command of Cadets at The Citadel. Careful Skipper Can Cut Down Boating Accidents

Can boating accidents be prevented?

This question is answered for you in the April 1964 issue of Wildlife in North Carolina by an article entitled "Boating Accidents 1963", by Duane Raver.

Mr. Raver has made a comprehensive review of the individual incident reports showing statistics and causes for the boating accidents during 1963 how they can be prevented in 1964.

He starts his statistical study of boating accidents from reports received in 1960. During that period reports showed 79 boating accidents with 37 fatalities. In 1961 the total reached 87, resulting in 35 deaths and in 1962 there were 70 boating accidents with 39 fatalities.

A few of the boaters involved in these accidents owned up to their carelessness, but a surprising number shifted the blame to another boater, the boat itself, lack of a certain law or some other pretty far fetched thing.

Perhaps it is simply human nature to pass the buck or try to wiggle out of responsibility, but in these cases, such maneuvers try to eliminate the "learning" process of the mistakes which are genuinely ours.

June, July and August are the big months for boating accidents because this is the period of heaviest boat usage. These months contributed 10, 18, and 17 accidents, February, October and November had no reported accidents while in January there

The 19th Hole

By BOB SPENCER

The golfer who learns all he can about the course is more able to plan his game around any likely situation. He is the one who will consistently score well. More and more amateurs are following the touring professionals who pace off each hole so there isn't any guess work of any distance questions on the length, width and type of greens.

Like our course sometime it is better to go down #5 fairly way when playing #7 hole. You don't have to fight to trap on the right and the green opens up better from that direction.

The pin placement should be checked before you play any hole. This shows you how to play the hole.

Check over trouble spots on the fairways and trap locations, make sure you know where they are.

This is the pre-game strategy that makes it unnecessary to ponder over club selection and eliminates the hesitancy that can affect the execution of the shot.

Last year with almost 45,000 registered boats (those having more than 10 horsepower motors) and perhaps twice this many of lesser powered or powerless craft using North Carolina waters, 68 accidents were reported and the fatalities dropped to 26. The sharp decline in the number of boating accident deaths certainly must be classified as significant. The reason or reasons behind this drop is something else to figure out.

was one accident and March added three. April and May had six each reported, September five and December two.

The moral here, as everywhere afloat—BE CAREFUL.

Conclusion number one, after reading the reports, thoughtless carelessness still looms large as a prime factor in many boating accidents. Failure to do "something" at the right time, or the unlucky choice of doing something at the wrong time; these are the culprits.

The Camp Lejeune Sailing Club will send "Get Well" cards to everyone that wanted to race last Saturday but just didn't quite make it. We know how they will feel when they hear what a beautiful day it was and how fast and exciting the race was held.

Although there was a good breeze, the sun came out strong, as did Wayne Barnett and crewman, Dick Dell'acqua, at the starting gun. There was a slight squirming for the lead with Jon Vining and Stacy Robertson but Barnett was soon out from to stay. George Thomas, with crew of wife and children, pulled up from fourth to second on a windward beat to the first buoy. However, Vining and his crew, Paula Carlson, remained a weakening third until the final line.

Since the series is decided on the best three out of four races, the trophies are still available to anyone who begins racing this Saturday, April 25.

ETY TIP: When buying life jackets or preservers check to be sure they are Coast Guard approved. Buy jackets, particularly for children, with a car that will turn the wearer face up in the water. NEVER use preservers as seats or cushions.

Marine Exhibit

Home Of Record, Legal Domicile Not Always The Same Says HQMC

Headquarters Marine Corps reports a great increase in the volume of mail requesting verification of "home of record". It appears that enlisted and officer personnel have the impression that "home of record" and "legal domicile" are synonymous and are attempting to conform the two addresses for the purpose of establishing a basis for the payment of taxes and other exemptions and exclusions to which they may be entitled under the provisions of the Soldiers and Sailors' Civil Relief Act by reason of their military service.

Headquarters Marine Corps says, the addresses used for "home of record" and for "legal domicile" are not necessarily the same. The entry on service records of an address as "home of record" is for Marine Corps purposes only and is utilized to establish eligibility for travel upon separation. While it may also be the address of the "legal domicile" it need not be. Paragraph 15054.4 of the Marine Corps Personnel Manual defined "home of record" as follows: "Home of Record or local address....may serve as evidence, but does not in any way establish legal domicile, legal residence, or official residence, which can be determined only under civil laws for specific situations."

The Joint Travel Regulations specifically forbid any change in records of a home of record address, unless a bonafide error was made.

"Domicile" on the other hand, is considered to be the place where a person has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which place he has, whenever he is absent, the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving. It is a fundamental rule that every person, at all times, under and in all circumstances and conditions, is deemed to have only one domicile, where his rights and obligations are determined. He does not lose that domicile until he has acquired another. (There is no federal law which prohibits or prevents a serviceman from acquiring a new domicile if he so chooses and acts accordingly.)

So, if there is still a doubt as to what or where his legal domicile might be at this time, a Marine should check it out with the Legal Assistance Officer.

Camp High School Will Present Spring Musical

The combined chorus of Camp Lejeune High School under the direction of Mrs. Wayne Babb will present its Spring musical show tomorrow evening at 8 p. m. in the school auditorium.

First on the program is a contemporary opera entitled SPEAK UP! The piece is written about the adolescent and his family. Soloist is Mark McLaughlin and features the mixed chorus with Susan Nelson, accompanist.

Excerpts from "Oklahoma" will be sung by the girl chorus complete with western dress and scenery. Ann Moorman, accompanist.

The final portion of the show will feature Kristine Hoover, Tom Ivey, Mike Patrow, Fran Bruner, Kim Kaenzig and Marty Strait in leading roles from Gilbert and Sullivan's H.M.S. Pinafore.

N. Y. World's Fair Opens; 'Corps' Well Represented

Marines will be well represented at the New York World's Fair from opening day April 22, 1964 until it closes in October 1965, the Commandant of the Marine Corps announced.

Participating in the opening day ceremonies on April 22, was the famed Marine Band from Washington, D. C. This ceremony, which triggered into action the greatest and most unusual exposition of the 20th Century, also signaled the beginning of special World's Fair duty for 10 Marines attached to the First Marine District.

The Marine Unit, led by Maj. Lee C. Reece, is composed of two officers and eight enlisted personnel. These Marines will man the Marine Corps exhibit in the Travel and Transportation Pavilion for the duration of the Fair.

Featured in the Marine Corps exhibit is one 6 x 11 foot vertical and 9 x 4 foot horizontal transparencies of an amphibious landing, a five foot model of a modern amphibious assault transport, models of Marine aircraft and equipment, combat boots, and dioramas are also included in the display.

In addition, a "Cine-Globe Cruiser" is in the Navy-Marine Corps exhibit area. This device projects a short 35mm color movie through a special 142-degree lens into the curved surface of a large hemispheric screen. The audience stands within a few feet of the screen, which nearly surrounds them. With almost the entire field of vision occupied by the picture, they are given the feeling of actually being involved in the action. Through this technique, viewers actually participate in flight operations with Marine pilots, use Marine Corps equipment, and go ashore with the infantryman.

The Marine Corps exhibit also contains a continuous action 16mm motion picture projector showing a five minute, special presentation, on Marine Corps operations.

The Second Marine Division Band will visit the Fair on Armed Forces Day, May 17, to perform for the public.

Each branch of the Armed Services will be honored by a "salute" from the Fair during the Summer. During the "Salute to the Marine Corps" June 20-22, the Marine Corps Drum and Bugle Corps and Drill Team from Washington, D. C., will present ceremonies and concerts. The Battle Color ceremony and Flag Pageant performed by Marines from Marine Barracks, Washington, will also be staged during this period.

All Marines, their families, and friends are cordially invited to visit the Marine exhibit area during the Fair.

What World's Fair visitors will see

MAG-26 Pilots Training For New Marine 'Copter

In the unending process of Marine Corps training and education to keep pace with the continuous advancements of technology, Marine Aircraft Group-26 is no exception.

At the present time seven pilots are undergoing eight weeks of factory and field schooling at Boeing Aircraft's Vertol Division in Morton (Philadelphia), Pa.

Six of the flyers are Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron-265 pilots who, after completing their schooling, will help deliver the first four twin-rotor, jet transport helicopters to the New River Air Facility.

Only recently MAG-26 acquired their first single rotor jet chopper to be used primarily for observation, reconnaissance and casualty removal from forward combat areas.

The new Boeing Vertol—capable of carrying 25 combat troops or 4000 combat cargo pounds at speeds over 150 knots during ship-to-shore or shore-to-shore operations—will eventually phase out the UH-34D, "work horse of the Marine Corps," which has only a ten-troop capacity.

Six of the seven jet chopper pilots who will finish the Boeing school and return with the new planes about June 1, are transition pilots who are checked out in jet and prop, fixed wing aircraft, as well as the present day reciprocating engine-powered Marine helicopters.
