MAAG Roles Important Building Of Nation

Monday, in the free world's struggle against Communism, the U. S. Military Assistance Group plays a somewhat silent but highly important role.
What does MAAG do? What is its mission? How does it operate?
Essentially, MAAG units are created to help underdeveloped, Communist-threatened nations to help themselves. MAAG accomplishments in these cases are small and little publicized, but they are significant to the overall picture when they slow, halt or crush a Communist threat.

An example of the MAAG role is found in a recently completed project in the Republic of Viet Nam, dubbed Hai Yen II. Its two-fold mission:
To create in the isolated village of Tuy Hoa a more favorable attitude toward the government and the military forces, and to lay down an effective psychological barrage at Communist Viet Cong who menaced the village.

Metropolitan Liberty Runs In Store For Camp Lejeune Based Marines

A program of Special Services bus trips, enabling 2d Division Marines to visit major east coast cities, was announced last week.

Maj. J. W. Hammond, Jr., 2d Division Special Services Officer, revealed the first trip's destination will be to New York City during mid-April.

In order that as many Marines as possible can make the trip, the mid-April Division pay day has been moved up also.

The trip to New York is scheduled for the weekend of April 17-20. Personnel will depart Camp Lejeune at 7:30 a.m. April 17, and the 10 hour trip will put them in New York City at approximately 6 p.m. that evening.

Tickets for the trip will be sold at the pay tables during the first pay day in April. The mid-April pay day will be rescheduled for Division personnel for April 16.

The cost per man for the trip will be $24.25 with accommodations for Friday and Saturday nights at the Sloane House YMCA. If the Marine has a place to stay then he need pay only $18.75.

Busses for the return trip to Camp Lejeune will commence leaving the city at 6 p.m. Sunday with the last bus departing at 8 p.m. Liberty for the Marines will expire on board the busses in New York.

The trip will be made in the most modern up-to-date air conditioned busses.

Once the Marines reach their destination they will be on their own for the weekend. There will be qualified personnel at the Sloane House who will provide information on where to go and what to see for those desiring it.

Marines going on the trip will be required to wear the Winter Service "A" uniform while traveling to and from New York.

Other units from Marine Corps Base and Force Troops will be allowed to participate only after 2d Division personnel have had an opportunity to exercise their priority.

More information on the forthcoming trip may be obtained by calling the 2d Division Special Services NCO at extension 7-5623 and referring to Division Bulletin 1710.17A (dtd Mar. 16, 1964).

Future trips will include visits to such cities as Philadelphia, Pa.; Washington, D.C.; Baltimore, Md.; Atlanta, Ga.; Charlotte, N. C. Prices for these trips will be rated according to the distances involved.

New York has many and varied things of interest to offer the casual tourist. For baseball fans, there will be a home game between the New York Mets and Pittsburgh April 18-19. The price of admission to armed forces personnel in uniform is 50 cents. The New York Yankees have no home games scheduled for this weekend.

All USO's in New York City provide free tickets to movies, television programs, plays, sports events, and exhibits. Naval personnel in uniform may get free tickets at the Times Square USO.

Sight seeing tours at moderate rates will be available to Marines going on the trip. Places of interest to see while in the city include the United Nations Headquarters, Hayden Planetarium, the Statue of Liberty, the Empire State Building, Rockefeller Center, the American Stock Exchange and many other points of interest. Most of these places are either free or have reduced rates for servicemen in uniform.

Easter Pets Dangerous

After Easter of 1960 and 1962 Salmonella enteritis infections were noted among small children. These children had received an Easter chick. These chicks were prime suspects and could very well have been involved in the infections. Several very highly qualified persons with the Georgia Department of Public Health have suggested prohibiting the sale of Easter chicks and ducks as pets for small children as a means to eliminate a sizable potential source of Salmonella infections. Camp Lejeune's Base Medical Officer concurs with the suggestion.

BLT 1/8, WITH THE U. S. SIXTH FLEET—After 44 consecutive days at sea, Marines from Battalion Landing Team 1/8 form at Soudha Bay, Crete, for relief from the close quarters of shipboard life. The Marines are currently deployed in the Mediterranean area as the amphibious striking arm of the U. S. Sixth Fleet. The unit, commanded by LtCol. H. E. Ing, Jr., is scheduled to return to the United States in mid-June.

Rodriguez in appreciation for the admiral's visit to BLT Marines ashore at Soudha Bay, Crete. The admiral said he would hang the plaque in his cabin and remember that he had received it from "one of the best landing forces ever assigned to the U. S. Sixth Fleet." The BLT is currently deployed on a six-month joint operational and "good will" tour of the Mediterranean as the Sixth Fleet's amphibious striking force.

TAL Has New Training Films

The Training Aids Library, Bldg. 67, aboard Camp Lejeune, has two new films in stock and ready for use in training.

The films are as follows: United States Arriving, film no. MN9928. This film is a narrative of the late President Kennedy's visit to the First Fleet in June 1963. The film is in color, sound, unclassified, 28 minutes in length and was produced for the Chief of Information.

The Vote, film no. AFIF128, traces the practice of voting from its first known use to the present, with special emphasis, in modern times, on voting by people in uniform. In doing so, nine key points are brought into focus. Running time for this black and white film is 10-1/2 minutes.

Over 500 Seabees Arrive To Start Infantry Training

Five hundred and Ninety-two enlisted men and forty-three officers of Reserve Mobile Construction Battalion's 13 and 24 landed at Camp Lejeune on March 1 to begin phase two of infantry combat training.

Phase two is one of the five phases of training the RMCB's are engaged in at various bases throughout the nation.

A total of five battalions will be trained at Camp Lejeune this year.

RMCB's are direct descendants of the famous WW II mobile construction battalions which were nicknamed "Seabees".

The task of the MCB's has remained the same as the original CB's, "Build and Fight" and do it with the "can do" spirit.

On March 5th, they celebrated their 22nd anniversary.

Seabees of today must be thoroughly familiar with modern infantry weapons and techniques in order to maintain the high degree of military readiness required of them.

In keeping with the traditional spirit of Seabees, to work and fight side by side with Marines, the MCB's take the regular six-week course crammed into two weeks.

They operate as integral units staffed with their own supply, medical, administration and operations officers.

Free Oral Polio Vaccine Available To Dependents

The administration of oral polio vaccine to all dependents of military personnel on a voluntary basis at no cost to the individual has been scheduled. The oral type vaccine is recommended by the American Medical Association in addition to the injection type for further protection against poliomyelitis.

The following schedule has been set for the administration of the vaccine:

March 23, 3-5 p. m.--Marston Pavilion, Tarawa Terrace Community Center, Knox Traller Park Recreation Center, Midway Park Community Center, Camp Geiger Community Center.

April 20, 3-5 p. m.--Marston Pavilion, Tarawa Terrace Community Center, Knox Traller Park Recreation Center, Midway Park Community Center, Camp Geiger Community Center.

May 18, 3-5 p. m.--Same locations as above.

This series of immunizations is for those dependents who have not previously received oral type vaccine and those who have received partial or completed series of injection type vaccine. Those individuals who have already received the series of oral type vaccine need not be immunized.

This series of oral polio vaccine will be administered in three doses to be given at intervals of approximately one month. A medical team will be at the locations listed above, at the times specified.

Children 12 years of age and under must be accompanied by their parents or have written permission to receive the vaccine. Evidence in writing will be given the individual that the vaccine has been received, or an entry will be made on immunization records of those individuals presenting them at the time of receipt of vaccine.

All dependent personnel, especially children, are urged to take advantage of this opportunity to be immunized against poliomyelitis as it is required by the North Carolina State School System for entry into local schools.

Marines On The Move The World Over

Marines around the world were on the move in early March in the Corps' largest deployment of troops since the end of the Korean War. Approximately 43,000 Marines were deployed from the area of their home stations in training exercises.

Largest of these training exercises was "Winter Night" conducted at Twentynine Palms, California, and included units of the 1st Marine Division, the 3d Marine Aircraft Wing, and Force Troops, Pacific.

All types of Marine equipment and combat skill came into play during "Winter Night" with special emphasis being placed on counter-guerilla operations, night operations, and day and night tactical air support, all within a situation involving sustained desert warfare.

In the Far East, U. S. Marines joined Republic of China forces in exercise "Back Pack" on Taiwan.

"Back Pack" was a full scale amphibious landing exercise in which U. S. Marines and Republic of China Marines landed to halt the advance of a hypothetical aggressor force that had invaded southern Taiwan. The exercise was designed to test the readiness and functioning of Marine units and to strengthen the ready forces of the U. S. Seventh Fleet.

Other Marine forces were in ships of the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean, with elements of the Seventh Fleet in the Far East, and on maneuvers in Yuma, Arizona; Point Mugu, California, and in the Caribbean.

How do you feel about being selected for the NESEP Program?

LCpl. J. D. Wright

I was very happy when I found out I had been selected to attend college under the NESEP Program. I have a year and a half of college already and this will give me a chance to finish. After prep-school, I hope to attend Stanford University on the West Coast.

PFC J. D. Edwards

I feel pretty good! When I took the NESEP exam I didn't think I would pass but I guess I did because I'm going to prep-school in May. I would like to study Electrical Engineering at the University of Pittsburgh after prep-school.

Cpl. T. J. French

It's hard to explain, but something I've looked forward to for a long time, and it's a wonderful opportunity for me. I think the NESEP Program is the best officer program in the Marine Corps has. I have seen the latest list of college yet, but I hope to attend one on the West Coast.

PFC J. E. Scott

I feel good about it. Now I'll be able to finish college. I attended the Naval Academy for awhile but I quit to get married. After prep-school, I would like to go to a Midwestern college if possible.

Engineers Boost Education Course

By Lt. J. K. Wingfield

(Editor's Note: The GLOBE welcomes contributing copy such as that written by Lt. Wingfield. TIO's or individuals may increase coverage of their units by submitting typewritten, double spaced articles to Division or Force Troops ISO or if in MCB or FSR, mail to GLOBE, Bldg. 13, Camp Lejeune.)

A new program at MCES has served both to increase off duty education and General Military Subjects proficiency. The new program is one in which the military subject under instruction in the MCES training program is supplemented by a related MCI course. This method of instruction enables a Marine at MCES to obtain credit for an MCI course and gives him the opportunity to complete the instruction under qualified supervision.

The program has met with enthusiastic approval by the men of Engineer School and has caused an increase in participation in other types of off duty education. This was evidenced by an increase in the number of men enrolled at East Carolina College, the number of men satisfactorily completing H. S. GED tests, and the number of personnel enrolled in Armed Forces Institute courses.

During the month of Feb. 85% of the overall strength of MCES were engaged in some form of off duty education. One hundred and fifteen Marines completed the MCI course on map reading and 95 persons started the MCI course on Squad Tactics. Six men completed courses of instruction at East Carolina College and three men satisfactorily completed H. S. GED tests.

AMERICAN HERITAGE

Submitted by Sgt. W. J. McCreary Jr.

The purpose of this story is to give the reader a birds eye view of Communism, by far the greatest threat to International Tranquility.

Pick up a daily newspaper, a magazine, turn on the radio or television and what do you read or hear? Communism, and what it is doing to the Cold War and the Free World. We accept what we read and hear at face value and try to combat it. I say try, for fundamentally, Communism is something we know very little about.

To defeat what the Communist are doing in the free world, we must know what we are up against, thus, by knowing, we are able to fight for what we believe in and our democratic way of life.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower gave the warning in 1956 when he said, "Competition for men's minds begins when they are students. This is when they must be taught to discriminate between truth and falsehood. Specifically they must be taught to discriminate between the American form of government and the Soviet form. When they have all the facts, I am confident they will make the correct choice, as they have done for the last 181 years."

Before discussing the origin and theory of Communism, we must first know what Communism is; Theoretically, it is a system of Social Organization based socially on the principle of all holdings of property in common, all economical activities, socially planned and controlled. In accordance with, "From each according to his ability, to each according to his needs."

In a specific sense the present day basis for Communism came into being in France after 1848. However, it was expounded by the Greek Philosopher Plato in his book "The Republic" during the 4th century B. C. The early Christians applied true Communism in some of their communities, which shared all things in common.

In practice, however, the original idea of Communism does not exist in any communist state today, nor is there any indication it will be attained in the foreseeable future. Under present day Communism, the facilities and equipment or means of production belong to the state. Furthermore, the foundation of modern day Communism was laid down by Karl Marx and his associate Friedrich Engels in their Communist Manifesto, published in 1848. The Manifesto, along with a few revisions, are the by-laws of the Communist Party.

Marx and Engels used the term Communism to distinguish their program from Socialism, which, in the 1840's meant economic and social reform. Yet in the end Socialism and Communism are virtually interchangeable terms as defined in almost any dictionary or standard text book. The essence of both is that the means of production shall belong to the community.

After Marx and Engels came the Russian Nikolai Lenin, who brought the Communist Manifesto up to date as "World Revolution". In 1928 Lenin's work was declared to be of equal importance with that of Marx. Justifying the designation of Communism theory as Marxism-Leninism.

Lenin stressed many times that, "War is the continuation of politics by other means." Soviet policy presumes permanent conflict (ALTHOUGH NOT NECESSARILY ARMED), even in peace. In Soviet doctrine and strategy, the distinction between peace and war is obliterated, except for the difference in the degree of armed force used. War is not the goal of Soviet strategy, they prefer to gain their objectives by pacifist means—by forcing appeasement on the enemy. They would be pleased to drop violent methods if the ruling class agreed to give way to the working class.

Wide use is made of subversion, sabotage, colonial rebellion and satellite aggression in such a manner as not to risk a formal state of war. Communist leadership does not consider complete armed conflict necessary for attaining total involvement, as the case of the battles with Japan on the Manchurian and Mongolian frontier in 1934-1939, Hungary 1956, Korea 1950-1953, and presently Vietnam.

Lenin said, "This machine cannot be remanded, it is more likely to change us than be changed by us."

What do we the average American do to strengthen the Communist Cause? We turn our backs on illiteracy; we fail to exercise our right to worship and respect the beliefs of others; we sow the seed of doubt in the minds of others. The Communists capitalize on our short comings as we play their type of game.

It is our choice to live and let live—or to live on others may live—but behind a RED FLAG, but behind a RED, WHITE and BLUE BANNER blowing free. Remember these words, "Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country."

If you are proud to be an American—Show It.

Freedom Was Priceless Then; It Is Just As Precious Now

Freedom never can be taken for granted, lest it be lost. Neglected, it withers and dies, like a flower denied moisture and nourishment . . .

Or is smothered by the creeping weeds of tyranny's lust for domination and for ever-spreading aggrandizement.

Those who came to what is now our United States of America in longing search for freedom were aware of this. They had known tyranny and its ways firsthand in the Old World.

So, when they and their descendants found it necessary to give their lives, their all, to achieve that freedom by establishing a government, of by and for free men, their first thought was of a Constitution which would safeguard what they so agonizingly had won.

Thus it was that the Constitution for the United States of America came into being Sept. 17, 1787, at the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia.

And that, further to safeguard the rights of the individual and of the states, the historic Bill of Rights — the first 10 Amendments — became part of the Constitution Dec. 15, 1791, upon ratification by the states.

Yet, farseeing though they were, these safeguards for the dignity and freedom of the individual cannot alone preserve this heritage.

Neglected, they wither and die.

Or are erased or subverted by ambitious or foolish men, from foreign shores or within our own land.

So it is that Americans of our troubled and perilous times must remain as aware of the origins and meaning of our Constitution and Bill of Rights, and as vigilant in guarding them, as were the Founding Fathers who achieved them.

The Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, a nonpolitical, non-profit, nonsectarian organization, is dedicated to maintaining that awareness and vigilance.

It has formulated a "Credo of the American Way of Life," an expression of the political and economic rights provided us by the Constitution, the Bill of Rights, and the laws of the nation stemming from these.

That the first freedom mentioned in this credo is the "right to worship God in one's own way" seems particularly fitting and significant.

For it comes, of course, from the very first clause of the first Article of the Bill of Rights:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; . . ."

Further, the search for freedom of worship and the concept of self-government went hand in hand in the beginnings of the United States of America.

H. G. Wells, in his "The Outline of History," describes the Plymouth Colony settlers as "republican-spirited men, hopeless of resistance to the Grand Monarchy of James I and Charles I."

The Pilgrim fathers, along with desire to worship according to their own lights, carried also the spark which well may have given the first glow to the beacon of self-government.

They gave expression to that belief even before stepping ashore at Cape Cod in 1620.

"Before landing," Clement Wood writes in his "A Complete History of the United States," the Pilgrims assembled in the cabin of their little boat, the Mayflower, and pledged themselves to form a government, and obey it. This was the first instance of an agreement to abide by complete self-government in the history of the European settlement of the Americas."

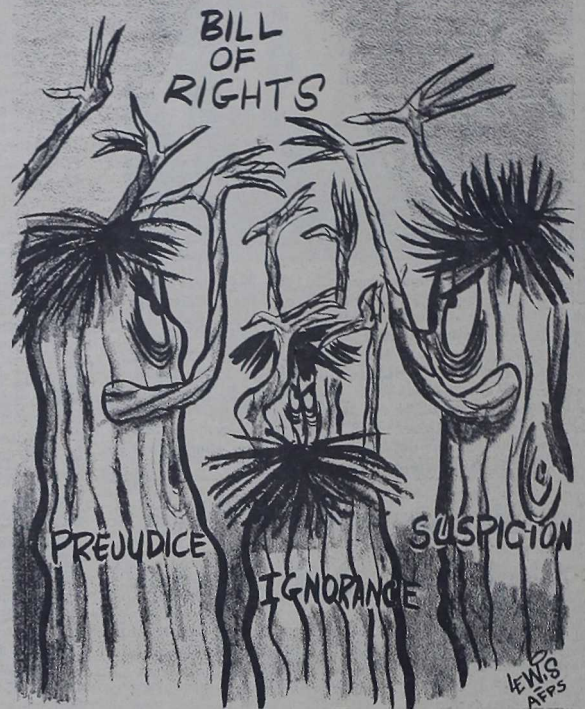

That freedom of worship was so preeminent in the minds of the founders of free America carries a further significance.

It is a right which always is among the first to be limited or wiped out by those who, like the Communists, put the state above all individual rights and freedoms.

Freedom of worship is one of the stones in the arch of liberty which the Constitution raised in protection over Americans.

This is a stout and stalwart arch, if those whom it protects keep it in repair and safe from assault.

And, in an arch, each stone must be forever kept firm and un-riven. For, if one is lost, the whole structure tumbles into dust.

Chaplain's Corner

The curious crowd was now gone. Only a few remained and watched as the lifeless, scarred Body of Jesus was gently lowered from the cross and laid upon the waiting, stretched out shroud. Reverent hands slowly removed the thorny crown, as though fearful of inflicting still further pain upon Him. A kneeling Mother cradled His bleeding head in her lap and stroked the matted hair. Sad figures quietly prepared the Body for burial. Thus, came to a close the first Good Friday.

It was finished. This was the end of a week that was very dramatic. In a couple of days, a completely new life would begin but this was the end of a different week. This was Holy Week which began with the Sunday before — Palm Sunday.

Each succeeding day was a step closer to The Redemption of the human race by the Son of God. Each day would be remembered by a special name as the Christ was preparing to "lay down His life for His friends," the people that make up the human race.

Holy Week is a different week because it commemorates in a few days all that was so important to God and to man. It is a holy week because holiness and closeness to God is richly experienced.

Was this the end? We know now that it was not. For Easter Sunday was the fulfillment of Holy Week. Without Easter, the days before would have no meaning. Our Christian faith now has a basis and purpose. We see this in the writings of St. Paul, "If Christ is not risen, then vain is your faith." What Jesus of Nazareth set out to do was finished, but for us, it has just begun. Remembering Holy Week and applying its meaning to our daily lives will insure that for us, it is not finished.

Movie Reviews

FLIPPER

Here is a thoroughly delightful and decidedly different sort of story, in the sense that the boy and his dog tale is amazingly switched to a boy and his dolphin and the result is an amusing, heart warming item of family entertainment.

When the home spun story is set in and beside the crystal clear waters of the Florida Keys, with land, water and under water photography in MetroColor, the result is a treat to the eye as a strong plus factor in the ingredients for sale.

The story concerns a Keys fisherman, Chuck Connors, and his son. Special mention certainly must be made of Mitzi, who plays Flipper, and who cavorts before the camera as though to the manner born.

POCKETFUL OF MIRACLES

Based on a Damon Runyon short story, Pocketful of Miracles stars Glenn Ford, Bette Davis, Hope Lange, Arthur O'Connell. Produced and directed by Frank Capra.

MAAG Roles —

An 11-man team—an American military advisor, eight Vietnamese psychological warfare men and two Vietnamese doctors—entered the village, raised the national colors and set up a public address system.

The doctors opened a dispensary and tacked up public health posters. The men used loudspeakers and passed out leaflets to explain the reasons for their presence.

"This is a visit from your government," the team told villagers. "Movies tonight. Free medical treatment in the marketplace. We will hold contests. You can win prizes."

After Hal Yenli, the villagers had visual proof of what their government could do and was trying to do. Their morale was lifted and government support strengthened.

Thus, the Military Civic Action Program, or the United States military role in nation building, aids armed forces of other countries to carry out civil projects that contribute to economic and social development of their country and to good relations between the military and civilian population.

In the words of the late President Kennedy, "The new generation of military leaders has shown an increasing awareness that armies cannot only defend their countries—they can help to build them."

19th Hole

By BOB SPENCER

The tip for this week concerns the right putter for your game.

The well known saying "Drive for show and putt for Dough" never was more true than it is today. Putting is the most crucial part of the game.

Who will ever forget "Little" Jerry Barber's fantastic streak in the 1961 PGA Tournament at Chicago. Behind Don January four strokes with three holes to play, 45 year old Jerry waved his magic wand and knocked in successive putts of 20-40 and 60 feet for a tie. His putter stayed hot to shoot a 67 the next day in a playoff and became the oldest man ever to win the PGA Championship.

How often have you seen a similarly hot putting streak break up a foursome match at your own course.

The best players are not always the best putters, but bad putters almost never become champions. If you putt badly, it works into the rest of your game.

Most playing professionals have developed an individual putting style which can keep their scores down even when they're not hitting other shots well. A player's style is often better suited to one type of putter than any other.

What kind of putter is best? The one in the most confident hands. Professionals and top amateurs alike use a mixture of mallets and blade-type instruments. No one type seems to be more successful than another. The main factor is the mental attitude of the player at the end of the stick.

BLADE PUTTERS:

Popularity of putters seems to run in streaks. The fad changes from time to time.

Currently most popular among the professionals seems to be a blade type with a small flange running along the lower half of the back. It usually has a straight shaft connecting at the heel, but center shafts are also popular.

I have used all kinds of putters at one time or another. I occasionally experiment with different types just to try and regain my touch.

The bull's-eye type with a center shaft is a variation of my favorite. It feels good to me, but I putt erratically with it. This may be, because the blade looks shorter to me when I stand over the ball than does the type where the shaft connects at the heel.

MALLET PUTTERS:

Then there's the mallet. Manufacturing imagination has turned out a great many kinds of mallets. The shape you use should be strictly according to your taste.

CROQUET MALLET:

Putting with a croquet mallet just doesn't seem natural. I've tried it but it gives the rest of my game a strange feeling. Most croquet putters have a bent shaft, enabling the player to get his hands well in front.

SHAFT MATERIALS AND SHAPES

Most pros use a much stiffer shaft than the normal one you would find in stock pro shop putters. Again, the reason is to give the ball a much more solid hit without it springing off the clubhead.

If you want to change putters, try using one of an entirely different style.

Once you pick a style you can order one with the shaft length and flex, blade lie and grip best for you.

Next week: Know your greens.

More Information Made Public On Revolutionary Jet

Further details have been made public concerning the A-11 jet airplane, which is attributed by President L. Johnson as far exceeding that of any other aircraft in the world today.

The fact that we have this plane was first disclosed by the President at a televised press conference Feb. 29. Last week's GLOBE covered the initial release.

"The Thing", as the aircraft is called by its designers, is reportedly able to fly at an altitude of more than 100,000 feet, and the twin engines, rated at 80,000 pounds of thrust at full power, will push the plane at more than 4,000 miles per hour. The engines are four times as powerful as the biggest military jet engine.

Originally the A-11 was designed for high-altitude reconnaissance work, however the plane is now being armed with anti-aircraft rockets and being tested as a long-range interceptor.

One of the big problems inherent to ultra-high speed aircraft is the coping with extreme heat built up through friction. Part of the solution to this problem was to plate the outside of the fuel tanks with gold. The gold conducts heat away from the fuel. Titanium, a lightweight, heat-resistant metal that was recently perfected, is used extensively in the fuselage.

Although the A-11 is strictly military now, it is expected that the aircraft will provide technical data to help speed up the manufacture of large supersonic jets for commercial use.

History Of Communism

What Can Americans Do To Stay The Red Tide?

(Nineteenth of a series of 20 articles entitled The History of Communism by MSGT. Walter M. Stewart, USMC. Reprinted by AFPS from the San Diego Chevron, Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, Calif.)

Having traced communism from its first rumblings in the czarist era to the present, we are left with the question of what can be done to stay the Red tide.

Manifestly, something must be done; it now embraces the lives of almost one billion human beings...a third of the world's population.

But what can we ordinary people—people who individually do not hold cabinet or legislative positions—do to keep the moral rot of Communism out of our lives?

Is the answer a strong military force? No, essential as military might is, it obviously is not a complete answer, because Red rule sometimes comes from within—without a shot being fired.

In truth, there is no single all-encompassing solution. But there are some things we can do which will help the cause of freedom and liberty: through morality and knowledge—in tandem—we can present a formidable barrier.

What about morality? By morality, we refer to religion in the broadest application—being for right because it is right and being against wrong because it is wrong...acknowledging the existence of a Supreme Being as the source of love and goodness and our subservience to Him—being a dedicated foe of tyranny over mind or man...

believing in the ultimate triumph of good over evil...that is the morality we must have.

What about knowledge? By knowledge, we refer to the accrual of facts available to us in a thousand books. We should know the provisions of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution...we should know the political, social and economic history of these United States, so that we may offer our country more than blind obedience. On the other side of the coin, we should know the history of communism, communist tactics and the communist ideology...in short, we must know the enemy.

How can we gain this knowledge? There are so many excellent books on American history, we would be hardpressed to select the best 50 or 100. But do not settle for one; read several. And in the study of communism, it is especially important that we read more than one book; six would be minimum.

The writer, having read books and three magazine articles in his research for the series which does no more than scratch the surface of the subject, would recommend the combined reading of the following books which are available almost at all libraries:

The Soviet Design for a World State, Elliot R. Goodman; Masters of Deceit, J. Edgar Hoover; The Russian Revolution, A. J. A. Morehead; The Grand Tactician, Lizar Pistrak; Stalin: A Political Biography, I. Deutscher; and A Primer on Communism, George W. Crony.
