Social Security Credit Not Always Reported

There are two ways a Marine can help the Social Security Administration to keep his wage record accurate. First, he should make sure his social security number is recorded at disbursing exactly as shown on his social security card. When a report is made with the wrong number, there's a good chance the Marine won't get any social security credit for his work. It's impossible for social security to credit wages when no number at all is reported.

The second step a Marine can take to help social security prevent errors is to check his record every three years. The social security office has free post card forms that can be used to request a copy of a social security record. If an error is spotted in a record, social security will help straighten it out. The New Bern Social Security Office at 308 New Street will send one of these free post card forms to any one desiring one. The only expense to the Marine is the stamp for the post card.

Corps Beefs Up Strike Command

That lone Marine on the staff of joint Army/Air Force Strike Command at MacDill AFB, Fla., is getting reinforcements. Planners say they are increasing the Marines assigned to STRICOM due to DOD's decision to give that unified command responsibility for Middle East, Africa south of the Sahara, and Southern Asia.

The Marine assignments came in recognition of the requirement for CinCStrike (Gen Paul Adams) in his new responsibility as CinCMEAFSA to plan for the employment of Naval Forces in the MEAFSA area of responsibility.

Seventeen officers and eleven enlisted Marines are being assigned. They are headed by BGen L. E. English, late of CincNEM, London, (since dissolved) who becomes Deputy Director, J-5 (Plans and Policies).

2d Division Training Matches Hymn Lines

"....In the snow of far off northern lands and in sunny tropic scenes; you will find us always on the job—....."

These lines in the second verse of The Marines' Hymn aptly describes the different climates that members of the famed 2d Marine Division train in from year to year.

Training for Leathernecks of the Division is already off to a big start in this first month of the new year with a Marine battalion each training in the Mediterranean and Caribbean areas.

As for training in northern lands, more than 300 Marines of the 2d Division are participating in Operation SNOW-FEX 1-64, held at Camp Drum, N. Y., January 18-28.

Company "L", 3d Bn., 6th Marines, commanded by Capt. Donald A. Kozischek, will be the principal unit participating in this the first cold weather operation for members of the Division in 1964.

vision in 1964.

A detachment from Battery "D", 10th Marines, the 2d Division's artillery regiment, will also be participating in the exercise. Officer in Charge of the detachment is Capt. D. L. Vogler. Officer in Charge of the overall operation is Maj. T. W. Ford, executive officer, 3d Bn.

Training for the leathernecks during the 10-day exercise will include; military snowshoeing and skiing, conditioning marches, camouflage, concealment and field fortification. They will also receive instructions on hygiene and first aid, how to build improvised shelters, and survival techniques.

Service Regiment Unique In Mission, Organization

World War II found many units in the front lines actively engaging the enemy. Where was this front line? It has been said that if a man was on the island he was in the front lines. How was he supplied? Usually the Navy brought the gear and left it on the beach. How was the equipment maintained? In most cases before displaying and after battle.

Where was the front line in Korea? Far from the coast and constantly changing. How did we supply them? Over long mountain roads and by air when we could. Maintenance? Motor Transport, Ordnance, Engineer, Communication, all carried their own-up to 3rd echelon. Fourth echelon and field maintenance for the combat units was carried out by Combat Service Groups. It was complicated, cumbersome and inefficient. A new concept was necessary to keep up with the changing face of warfare.

An organization organic to the Fleet Marine Force, available for rapid deployment, that could be organized and equipped to provide sustained logistic support to the Marine Division, to the Wing and to Force Troops was needed.

This new outfit must also provide sustained logistical support to isolated components of these units, either when employed separately, or as a Marine Expeditionary Force. It should be capable of supporting two Marine Expeditionary Brigades (RLT/MAG) in amphibious operations and in their subsequent operations ashore.

For this mission the 2d Combat Service Group was reorganized and redesignated as the 2d Force Service Regiment on March 1, 1957.

Parade And Review Set For Jan. 31 As Part of Div. Birthday Celebration

The 2d Marine Division will celebrate its 23rd anniversary January 31 with ceremonies which will include a division parade and review, and a special holiday meal.

The parade is scheduled to start at 10:30 a. m. at the Camp Lejeune parade ground. Massed troops of the Division will pass in review.

Vice Admiral John S. McCain Jr., USN, Commander

Amphibious Forces, Atlantic Fleet, with headquarters at Norfolk, Va., will be the reviewing officer. In addition to former commanders of the 2d Marine Division, local dignitaries have been invited to witness the colorful ceremonies.

Spectators may park their cars in either the Marine Corps Exchange parking lot or at the Goettge Memorial Field House.

A special holiday meal will be served in all Division mess-halls. Families and guests of Marines are invited and will be charged the standard fee in accordance with regulations.

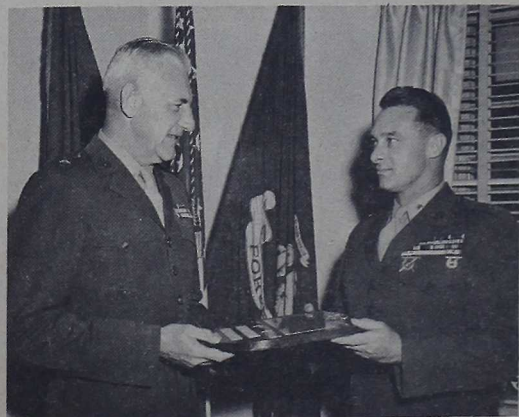

February Month For Telephones

Barring inclement weather, the first of 400 telephones for residents of Berkeley Manor will be connected for service during the first week of February. The phones should be operational by mid-February. CWO O. W. Bailey, Base Telephone Officer, stated that the 18,000 feet of underground cable needed to provide telephone service to this area has been laid.

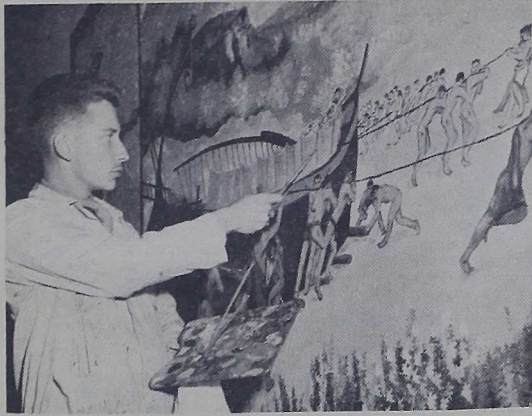

Since the phones for this area are reserved for use through previous requests, Mr. Bailey has urged Berkeley citizens to adopt a policy of "Don't call us, we'll call you."

At present, HQMC has authorized only 400 phones for Berkeley Manor. Future requests for telephone service will be placed on a waiting list.

The completion of this project brings the total of telephone cable at Camp Lejeune to approximately 275 miles.

AMTRACS ARE TOPS—Brig. Gen. Donn J. Robertson, left, Commanding General, Force Troops, presents the Commanding General's Unit Rifle Marksmanship Qualification Trophy to Lt. Col. T. W. Clarke, CO, 2d AmTrac Bn., last week. AmTracs fired a 95.2% to top all other battalion/group size units in Force Troops and it was later learned also topped all other units of their size firing at Camp Lejeune in 1963.

ARTIST AT WORK—Cpl. LeRoy Grochowski puts the finishing touches to a mural he painted in his off-duty time for the Central Area Service Club. Grochowski, of HqCo., H&S Bn., MCB, is an illustrator for the Base Training Aids Library.

Hungarian Refugee Now Undergoes Training Here

Seven years ago, a twelve year old boy walked more than 60 miles from Szeged, Hungary, across the Iron curtain to Szabadka, Yugoslavia, in 20 degree weather.

Today, the same young man, Gabor N. Feher, is a Marine PFC undergoing his first week of Infantry Training with "O" Co., 2d Bn at Camp Geiger.

PFC. GABOR N. FEHER

No ordinary Marine, PFC Feher was selected outstanding member of his platoon while at Parris Island. He also received the Leatherneck Magazine's Dress Blue Uniform Award and was meritoriously promoted to his present rank.

Here is the story of what happened during those seven years between the time Feher left Hungary and became a Marine:

A day-and-a-half after walking out of Hungary, Feher, his mother and 14-year-old brother, Kalman, Jr., arrived in Yugoslavia. They remained there for six months. First in the Mataruska Banja refugee camp then in the Gerovo refugee camp.

Next came a three day train trip through Switzerland, Italy and into LeHavre, France where the three caught a ship for the ten day voyage to Canada.

Arriving in Quebec City, the Feher's joined Mr. Kalman Feher, Sr., the father, who, six years before had arrived in Canada.

They moved to Montreal where the family stayed for two years before moving to San Juan Vier where they lived for another two years.

For three years now, the family has lived in Pierrefonds, Quebec, Canada.

Schooling for PFC Feher started in Hungary where he was tutored for six years. Arriving in Canada, the young lad attended a French school for four years.

Rounding out his education, PFC Feher attended night school for two more years and learned English. Now a trilingualist, he speaks Hungarian, French and English fluently.

New Catholic Chaplain Assigned to MCB

Navy Catholic Chaplain Lt. Jg. Ramon T. Matuszewski recently reported aboard Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N. C., to serve with the Chaplains Staff assisting Captain F. A. Burke.

Chaplain Matuszewski was previously the Assistant Pastor for a civilian parish in the city of Saginaw Michigan. He entered the Chaplain Corps on October 28, 1963. Before reporting to Camp Lejeune he spent two months at the Navy Chaplain's school located at Newport, R. I.

Painting Cpl.'s Mural Brightens Club's Wall

GLOBE readers who have visited the topside lounge of the Central Area Service Club can tell you that Cpl. LeRoy Grochowski is no amateur with a brush.

Replacing a flat paint base on the main wall in the lounge now is a 7'X35' mural, appraised at between $600 and $800.

The mural, depicting scenes from ancient Egypt, Greece and Rome, was painted in two month's time by Grochowski during his lunch hours. A gift from Grochowski to the club, the mural has three panel sections.

Grochowski, illustrator for Base Training Aids Library, underwent formal schooling in the field of art at the Chicago

Art Institute, Chicago, Ill., and at the Illinois Institute of Technology and Institute of Design.

This schooling represented two of seven scholarships offered Grochowski on the merit of his art work. "Ski" has also won numerous art and poster contests.

More of Grochowski's work may be seen in Messhall #9, where five small "Americana" murals were placed by him in April of 1963.

Army General Visits Lejeune As Guest Of Force Troops

BGen. John A. Seitz, U. S. Army, Commanding General, XVIII Airborne Corps Artillery, visited Camp Lejeune on January 15 as a guest of BGen. Donn J. Robertson, Commanding General, Force Troops.

During his tour BGen. Seitz visited 2d Amphibian Tractor Bn. where he was briefed by Lt. Col. T. W. Clarke, battalion commander, on the mission and capabilities of the amphibian tractor.

Various types of amphibian tractors were displayed including an amphibian tractor retriever, a command tractor and the new LVT-EL tractor which is capable of clearing mine fields and barbed wire entanglements.

A simulated beach landing demonstration was then performed by amphibian tractors debarking two Marine rifle squads, a 105 howitzer, a mule-mounted 106 recoilless rifle and a mighty mite jeep with trailer.

He also observed an amphibian tractor equipped with a litter kit capable of evacuating 15 battle casualties.

Next the general visited 2d Air and Naval Gunfire Liaison Company where he heard a briefing on the mission and operation of the company by Lt. Col. J. W. Tuma, company commander.

The general concluded his visit by viewing a static display of communication equipment used for close air support and observed a working display of Naval Gunfire spot teams.

Citizenship Instructor Needed For Classes

The Base Education Office is in need of volunteer instructors to teach aliens in the subjects of basic English and American Government. If instructors can be procured, these citizenship classes should begin in February.

Military Study Of Lung Cancer

The Public Health Service's widely publicized cigarette report linking smoking to lung cancer is now under military study for an official Armed Forces position on the matter.

Department of Defense officials said the report is now being reviewed by the Surgeons General of the Armed Forces. A comprehensive look into the report, relative to the health and welfare of service men and women, is expected to take several weeks.

In short, the cigarette report says: "The greater the number of cigarettes smoked daily, the higher the death rate from lung cancer, Pulmonary diseases, cardio-vascular diseases, etc."

In the past the Armed Forces have reminded military personnel of the "ever-increasing evidence linking cigarette smoking with cancer."

An Air Force letter in Sept, 1962, directed that "cigarettes not be accepted for free distribution in the USAF hospitals, nor will they be placed in flight lunch boxes."

"To allow the free distribution of cigarettes in our hospitals and in flight lunches," the letter explained, "suggests to our personnel that the Air Force Medical Service, in effect, condones cigarette smoking."

However, the Defense Department noted that free cigarettes are still distributed to patients in some Army and Navy hospitals.

SNUG-AS-A-BUG — Mollie Walker, decorating Miami Beach, shows that winter sunshine is a commodity still in full supply in America's subtropics. But if the chilly winds should begin to blow, Mollie has her rug to keep her warm. Rug or no rug, the effect is pleasing.

Vaccine Recommended For Measles Protection

U. S. Naval Hospital officials have recommended that the measles virus vaccine be given to children between the ages of 9 months and 15 years.

The immunization consists of two intramuscular injections given on the same day.

One injection consists of live measles vaccine and the second consists of measles gamma globulin. The gamma globulin used has been tested for its amount of measles protection.

The Naval Hospital does not have sufficient funds to provide the measles immunization.

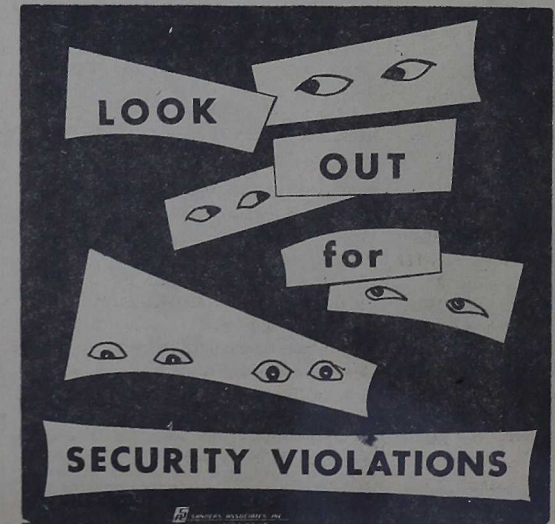

Individuals who desire to purchase the measles vaccine locally may do so by obtaining a prescription on Ward 2 at the Naval Hospital, Monday through Friday between the hours of 8 a. m. and 4 p. m.

After the vaccine has been purchased, the injections may be given in the Treatment Room, Ward 2.

It is essential that the vaccine be kept frozen from time of purchase to time of administration. Should the vaccine be presented in a thawed-out condition, hospital personnel will not be permitted to administer it because of the probable loss of potency.

TEEN DANCE—SSgt. O. R. McHefey, in dark suit, of Hq. Co., Force Troops, introduces Cpl. J. E. Gruden, second from left, and his four piece combo at a teen dance held at Richlands, N. C. SSgt. McHefey and his wife, Isabel, started the club in 1960 with six members. The group now has 350 members and is the largest teen club on the east coast of North Carolina.

CHANGE IN THE FIELD—Members of Headquarters & Maintenance Squadron-26, MAG-26, MCAF New River, use the expeditionary maintenance hoist to change the engine of a downed helicopter in a tobacco field near Tarboro. The pilot of the helicopter, Lt. Col. C. L. Champion, who developed the hoist being used, was flying from his home base of MCS Quantico to Jacksonville, Fla., via New River.

Navy-MC Team Aids National Heart Study

For some time now, Camp Lejeune's Naval Medical Field Research Laboratory has been studying the effect exercise has on the body. Specifically, the study has been concerned with how exercise burns up harmful body fats.

The Lejeune Lab has been working directly with New York University Medical Center and its director, Dr. Menard M. Gertler on a series of reports. Dr. Gertler recently published the book, "You Can Predict Your Heart Attack and Prevent It", which is related to studies conducted here.

One of the reports made by the local research unit, "The Effects of Measured Exercise on Serum Lipids (Fats) During Ingestion of Saturated and Unsaturated Fat Meals", will be presented by the unit's commanding officer, Captain George L. Calvy, MC, USN, at an American Heart Association Conference in Chicago on 1-2 February.

Dr. Calvy will present this and other aspects of research at Western Reserve University School of Medicine on the MEND (Medical Education for National Defense) Program on February 5, at Cleveland.

Simply, the report by NMFRL points out that young Marines tested seem to be able to consume high calorie meals containing considerable fat without harmful effect because exercise burns up the excess. It is believed by most medical experts that unless excess fats are eliminated from the blood stream it could lead to arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries).

Lejeune's Field Research Laboratory will continue active investigation of this exciting and productive project with collaborative assistance from New York University Medical Center and the Duke University School of Medicine.

FAT BURN-UP MEASURED—Members of 2d Recon Bn., stop at mobile testing station set up by Navy Medical Research Lab during a field exercise. Blood samples were taken to measure fat content.

Helicopter Crew Changes Engine In Tobacco Field

MCAF NEW RIVER, N. C., JANUARY 21—Southern hospitality in the form of home cooking with hot biscuits was an unexpected treat for Marine helicopter pilot Lt. Col. C. L. Champion and his crew last week, after making an emergency landing at Penny Hill, N. C.

The unexpected "dinner guests" were provided with a hot dinner and all the comforts of home by Mrs. Adell Nichols and her three sons, who manage the tobacco farm the disabled aircraft utilized for an emergency landing strip.

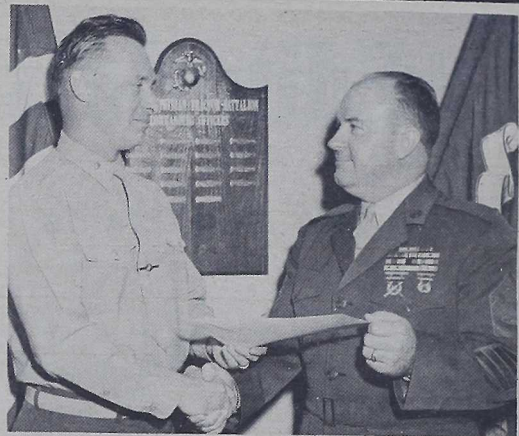

Lt. Col. C. L. Champion, pilot of the aircraft was on a routine flight from the Landing Force Development Center, Quantico, Va., to the Marine Corps Air Facility, N. C., when his aircraft developed engine trouble. Oil pressure gauges and warning lights on the aircraft indicated metal particles were in his oil system and the immediate need for a landing area was necessary.

He spotted an open tobacco field and landed the helicopter without injury to pilot and crew. The Nichols family greeted Lt. Col. Champion and his crew at the disabled aircraft, and offered assistance. The Colonel used the Nichols phone to place a call to Capt. Early Splars, assistant operations officer at Marine Aircraft Group-26 Operations, New River, and then with his crew joined the Nichols family in a delicious home cooked dinner.

A few short hours later, a MAG-26 helicopter arrived on the scene with a maintenance crew and a new engine. Only two hours after their arrival, the seven man maintenance crew under the supervision of SSgt. A. X. Fraker, H&MS-26 engine shop had the old engine removed. However night fall delayed the installation of the new engine until morning.

The field maintenance hoist utilized by the maintenance crew to lift the old engine out and insert the new was developed by Lt. Col. Champion and one of his passengers, GySgt. Boatwright of the Development Center.

With a new engine in his "chopper", Lt. Col. Champion was ready to continue his flight. After thanking the Nichols family, he said, "The Southern hospitality couldn't have been better", then added, "Mrs. Nichols, you make the finest biscuits I've ever eaten".

PROFESSIONAL LEADERSHIP—GySgt. Lee E. Morrow, right, of "B" Co., 2d Amphibian Tractor Battalion, Force Troops is congratulated and presented with a Meritorious Mast by Battalion Commander, Lt. Col. T. W. Clarke, on Jan. 7.

2d Amph. Tractor Bn. Marine Receives Meritorious Mast

GySgt. Lee E. Morrow, of Company "B", 2d Amphibian Tractor Battalion, Force Troops was congratulated and presented with a Meritorious Mast for "his outstanding performance of duty," by Battalion Commander, Lt. Col. T. W. Clarke, on January 7. The Meritorious Mast awarded read in part:

"When this Battalion's Motor Transport chief was admitted to the hospital in September 1963, you were assigned the responsibilities of this billet.

"With a very limited amount of Motor Transport experience you immediately applied yourself to learning proper and efficient procedures. You gained the instant respect of the men in the Motor Transport section by demonstrating the highest degree of professional leadership. Morale within the section was raised and remained at a high level during the three and one-half months that you held this billet.

"Your rapid transition to the Motor Transport field was soon evident with a decrease in the percentage of deadlined vehicles. You installed effective methods for the proper utilization of men and equipment. The constant neatness and cleanliness of the Motor Transport area is especially noteworthy.

"The professional manner in which you performed contributed directly to the high standards that this Battalion's Motor Transport Section now enjoys. It is with a great deal of pleasure that I congratulate you on this outstanding performance of duty."

Pride In Self And 'Home'

How little pride a man must have in himself and the way he lives that he can allow himself to turn his living area into a well-disordered and littered trash heap.

The paper cups, cigarette butts, candy wrapper and other litter carelessly strewn about the squadbay only tends to destroy the efforts taken during the day to keep the "home" a clean place to live in.

It only takes a little forethought, before dropping that litter on the deck, to do one's part in keeping his living or working area looking decent and respectable.

With at least one GI can in every Marine Corps squadbay, the barracks litterbug shows himself to be thoughtless for others, that he has no pride in himself or his habits of cleanliness and that he does not care how his actions reflect upon his homelife and the way his parents raised him.

Every man living in a squadbay has a stake in the appearance of that squadbay. It is this personal stake in the cleanliness that should make a man remind the litterbug, when caught, not to be so lazy that he can't take the few steps to the GI can to dispose of his litter.

That trash he throws on the deck not only reflects on the litterbug himself but also on the men who live with him. Take pride in yourself and your "home" — keep it clean.

Our Economy And You

The President of the United States has directed that an all out effort be made to trim government spending of four billion dollars by 1967.

As large consumers of the government dollar, we of the Marine Corps and Navy are challenged to reduce our own operating costs. In order to do this effectively, we must first fully understand our relationship to our nation.

We, as Armed Forces in effect, an expensive insurance policy, bought and paid for by every American taxpayer. A policy whose only dividend to the people is the guarantee of freedom.

With the advent of the missile age has come unbelievably expensive weapon systems, all considered necessary in order that our policy remain effective. To trim here or in other critical areas could prove unwise.

Basically then, the responsibility falls to each of us individually.

To ask 20 Sailors or Marines what they feel they could do to save government money would probably result in twenty different answers ranging from the elimination of food wastes in our mess halls to the returning of "borrowed" silverware.

It behooves us all, as individuals, to take a realistic look at our everyday duties not only to see how we can stop waste but to initiate also, any effective measures that can result in fuller utilization of existing equipment and supplies. Even turning out the lights when not needed will help.

Our country is counting on us to meet this special challenge and we can only meet it with special effort.

Chaplain's Corner

There is in Germany an unpopular member of God's little feathered creatures known as the Kiebitz. This bird is particularly noted for his insatiable curiosity about all things. The species has been plentiful, the description continues, since the dawn of history. It so happens that his eggs are delicious, and his unpopularity can be pardoned. He has a disagreeable way of beating his wings in the face of any raiding party, raucously crying out as if his life were being throttled. Thus the "Kiebitz," ever in search of something new, squawking loudly at those who even accidentally happen near his nest.

Any semblance of the Kiebitz to someone you know is strictly intentional, for of course this is where we get the name of that unfeathered species we call the kibitzer. His habitat is generally in the vicinity of a card game, and he has also been plentiful since the era B.C. (Before Culbertson). This is the kind of person that's got to have the latest dope about everyone else, that spends his whole time squawking in your ear the latest tidbit. Norman Cousins has said in our time "silence" and "meditation" have almost become forgotten words.

It's no wonder with all the Kibitzers. But there is one place you can go and always find silence, where the species above is strictly off base. Try the silence of the Marine Chapel, search out your own soul there, close out for a few moments the noise of the world. Here there is no one looking over your shoulder at the letter you just got from home. Here is real quiet, real peace, and that sacred kibitzer that always goes with you, God's Holy Spirit.

IF YOU ASK ME

What can we of Camp Lejeune do to economize?

CPL. L. V. SILVA, Hq. Co., Force Troops—To economize here at Camp Lejeune, all Marines should be urged to handle all equipment entrusted to them with better care.

LCPL. L. E. BEECHLER, Service Co., H&S Bn., MCB—One way to economize is by messhalls preparing smaller amounts of food, such as salads, which go uneaten meal after meal.

CAPT. J. G. GULBRANSEN, S-4 Officer, Base Material Bn.—By the proper placement and effective use of our own military personnel both here and abroad.

LT. J. L. STANTON, Hq. Co., 2d Marine Division—We Marines of Camp Lejeune can take over some of the jobs that civilians try to do but never seem to get to — namely maintenance of our barracks.

SSGT. A. C. BLAIR, Hq. Co., H&S Bn., MCB—The best way for individuals to economize is for personnel coming through the chow line to take only what they think they can eat thereby preventing food waste and the amount of dollars going into GI cans.

LCPL. B. J. MARTIN, Base Photo Lab—I think the Base should utilize money to buy more small equipment, making jobs easier. More can be done with up-to-date equipment on hand.

MOVIE REVIEWS

THE L-SHAPED ROOM

The Little Leslie Caron of "Lili" and "Gigi", who passed from the dew-dappled stage with her more mature offering of "Fanny" now comes to full professional age. She gives a stunning, mature performance.

ance in the British-made film "The L-Shaped Room."

Miss Caron plays a French miss in London, who while carrying an illegitimate child, falls in love with a struggling young writer and has a torturing affair with him. The actress pours into this role a so much powerful feeling, so much heart and understanding, that she imbues a basically threadbare story with tremendous compassion and charm.

THE HAUNTING

A monstrous Victorian mansion dominates this horror mystery tale. In its ninety year history, Hill House has witnessed scandal, insanity, murder and suicide, and it is said that within its decaying walls the dead are not quite. An anthropologist, hoping to prove the existence of the supernatural, rents the place. To share his experience he invites three people to join him. The skeptical heir to the estate and two young women. Used as live bait for whatever malevolent spirits are at large, the visitors are horrified by uncanny noises, strange manifestations and a sense of unseen presences. With these eerie settings a suspense will be raised in the audience to set them wondering who will win, the four visitors or the house.

SIEGE OF THE SAXONS

An Arthurian movie produced by the British with King Arthur who has outlived his knights of the round table and his young daughter, King Arthur is beset upon by Saxon invaders from without and an unsuspected traitor from within. A trusted Cornish Knight who seeks the crown for himself. The king's good old wizard, Merlin has disappeared and the king is lost without him for he has only the magic sword Excalibur and a devilish outlaw, whose achievements and manners mark him as the possible ancestor of Robin Hood. This roasting adventure has plenty of action ranging from a dimly lit castle where danger lurks in every shadow to jousting, hard riding, pursuits through the greenwood. A competent cast maintains the right period spirit and flavor, starring Ronald Lewis and Janet Scott.

2d FSR Supplies, Support

FSR became the new concept — the answer to sustained logistical and maintenance support. But how could duplication of effort and personnel in peacetime be avoided? The answer came in assigning the operational management, technical and administrative control of the three FMF battalions in FSR to the Commanding General, Marine Corps Base. In this way FSR must provide day to day garrison logistic support not only to FMF units, but to Marine Corps Base activities as well.

During periods of alert or imminent deployment CG, FMFLant may resume complete operational control of FSR, if deemed necessary. For this reason personnel assignment and reassignment of FSR remains under CG Force Troops, an FMF organization.

To assist in the peacetime garrison support of these many activities, the Base Materiel Battalion is placed under the command of FSR. However, this Battalion will remain under CG, MCB in the event of deployment of FSR.

FSR performs field maintenance beyond the capabilities of the units supported, provides support services, most of which are not otherwise available such as air delivery, shoe and textile repair, cold storage, laundry/dryer units, bulk fuel, bakery, EOD, fumigation chambers and countless others, and provides sustained supplies for supported units.

Supply support responsibilities for high usage items may be handled early in the operation or with assault elements have been grouped into the Automatic Supply Distribution (ASD) Bn., consisting of Hq. Co., Supply Co., Bulk Fuel Co., and Ammunition Co. Within these companies, we find Fleet Stock Account, Ration Plt., Medical Supply, EOD Plt., Nuclear Ordnance Plt., Bakery Plt., (can make 16,000 lbs. of dough daily), Fuel Handling Plts. (present capacity of 1,800,000 gallons) and others.

Camp Lejeune To Host Division, MC Matches

The 1964 schedule for the Regional Division, and Marine Corps Rifle and Pistol Matches has been announced by Headquarters, Marine Corps.

Camp Lejeune has again been selected as the site for the Eastern Division and Marine Corps Matches. Camp Lejeune hosted both events last year. Firing in the Eastern Division Matches will begin May 25, and the last day of shooting will be May 30.

The Marine Corps Matches, in which the cream of Marine marksmen will compete, is scheduled for June 8-13.

Winners and shooters who place in the regionals (Far Eastern, Pacific, Western and Eastern) compete in the Marine Corps Matches. Competitors are selected to represent the Marine Corps in the National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, on the basis of their performance in the Marine Corps Matches.

Locations and dates for the other regional matches are as follows:

Far East--3d Marine Division, Okinawa, May 11-16.

Pacific--Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, May 11-16.

Western--Camp Pendleton, Calif., May 11-16.

The M1 rifle will be used in both the Division and Marine Corps Matches, however the M14 will be required in matches requiring the service rifle at Camp Perry.

Another big change in the Eastern Division and Marine Corps Matches concerns the 2700 aggregate match. This event has been deleted from the schedule, however the match will be fired at Camp Perry. The 2700 aggregate is a combined total of scores fired with the .22, .38, and .45 caliber pistols. The only competition to be fired this year in the Division and Marine Corps Matches will be with the .45 caliber service pistol.

Marine Corps Bulletin 3591 gives the Division and Marine Corps Match schedule. Detailed information concerning the matches can be found in Marine Corps Order 2591.2E.

Champion Leathernecks In '63 Service Athletics

The 1964 sports year will produce many new and some veteran champions in the world of sports. Before this sports year starts let us re-cap the 1963 season and see who the champions were and if they can repeat.

In the All-Marine Corps Boxing Tournament held during February 18-23 at the Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif., Maurice Frilot won the championship in the welterweight class (147). In the light heavyweight division (178) Gilbert Tindley from MAG-11 was crowned champion. In the middleweight division (165) Mike Frazier outlasted his opponents. Leander Moore from Camp Lejeune championed the lightweight class (132), and Mike Adame also from Camp Lejeune fought his way to the bantamweight crown (119).

The All-Marine Corps Judo Championship held February 22-23 at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S. C., saw Ira E. Bonar from Camp Lejeune walk away with the 150 lb. and under class championship. Ernest Cates from Parris Island won the open class championship and for the fifth consecutive year won the A. J. Drexel Biddle Memorial Award. In the 176 lb. class David Garratt from Parris Island won the judo crown. The unlimited and heavyweight class championship was taken by Charles Reeves from Parris Island.

The All-Marine Corps Bowling Championships held May 9-11, 1963, placed Forest Ottinger from the Naval Marine Corps Reserve Training Center, Pittsfield, Mass., first in the men's division in total pinfall. Sharon R. Mauldin, Hq. Bn., Hq. MC took first place in the women's division. Second place in total pinfall went to Eldon Gardner, Naval and Marine Corps Reserve Training Center, Springfield, Mo., in the men's division and in the women's division Mary Thompson from Quantico won the position. Ronald Kryss from Twenty-nine Palms and Estelle Rhodes from Camp Lejeune came in for total pinfall, in the men's and women's division.

With the Olympics coming up this year, these are some of the Marines to keep an eye on and from the unknown ranks we will have future champion Marines.

Marines Vs. Eustis Here Tues. Night

The Camp Lejeune basketball team will have their work cut out for them next Tuesday night when they take on the East Coast Interservice Conference leading Fort Eustis "Wheels" at Goettge Memorial Field House.

The following night, January 29, the Marines will host Fort Belvoir. Both games start at 8 p. m.

Earlier this year the Marines played Fort Eustis on the home court of the "Wheels", and lost 89-75. The Wheels are reported to have good players that make very few mistakes in their games.

Last week the Fort Dix "Burros" won both games against Camp Lejeune, with each game being undecided until the second half was well underway.

Scoring for the Marines was Charlie Dennis with 23 points, Joe Gallagher with 17, Jim McGee with 16, Bill Gross with 11, and Nick Weldon with 1.

In the first bout the Marines led until the last 6-1/2 minutes; then the Burros came on strong behind the hard hitting of Billy Donovan and Ed Washington to bucket 26 points and take the game 85-68.

Billy Donovan led the Burros with 20 points, followed by Tom Wynne with 19, Ed Washington with 14, and Fred Edelman with 12.

In the second contest the "Burros" stretched a 39-38 halftime lead to 100-76 by the end of the game.

The Lejeune quintet, although staying in reach through the first half, had plenty of trouble in all phases of the game. Scoring in the game was as follows:

Class Begins Soon For Local Boaters

This spring more boats will be on the water than ever before. Many of the boat operators will be novices, and some of the operators have been handling boats for years, but still pull novice stunts.

It figures that with the increase in the number of boaters there will be an increase in boating mishaps unless something is done to prevent them.

This is part of the reason that the New River Power Squadron sponsors classes about safety and small boat handling.

The spring session will begin on January 28 at the Jacksonville Auditorium at 7:30 p. m. Classes will be held every Tuesday for 12 weeks, and will be 1-1/2 to 2 hours long.

If you expect to be boating this year you can pick up a lot of good information to help make your boating more pleasurable, and these classes could save you from a bad accident.

Baseball Tryouts

Tryouts for the varsity baseball team will commence on January 27. Personnel interested in trying out for the team should report to Goettge Memorial Field House at 1 p. m. to fill out athletic questionnaires.

Pitchers and catchers will start working out January 27, while infielders and outfielders will begin work on February 10.

If you can play baseball here's your chance to get on a fine team. They compiled an excellent record last year, and walked away with the East Coast Interservice Conference title.

Camp Lejeune High School Forms Swimming Team

The newly formed Camp Lejeune High School swimming team opened their season recently with determination and promise in establishing the sport of swimming at the school. With only one week of practice they entered the 9th Invitational Swimming and Diving competition held at East Carolina College, January 11th, ending up in 4th place with six third place medals.

The coaches for the team are George Slaughter, Jr., and Jack Hayes. Coach Jack Hayes is a former Canadian amateur swimming star who also coaches the Camp Lejeune dependent's swimming team.

Their second swim meet held last Saturday saw the Camp Lejeune High School swimming team place third against Greenville high school.

According to Coach Slaughter the response to the newly formed team was good. At the present time he has 14 boys signed up to represent the school. He further stated that the team is shaping up nicely under the present training schedule and competition afforded them. They are slowly overcoming their inexperience through enthusiasm, hard work and practice.

The team will meet Greenville High School on February 8th at the area 5 pool. Future plans are tentatively set for an interscholastic meet at Chapel Hill, N. C., on February 14th.

Coaches, Officials Needed For Little League Players

Boys League officials have announced final registration periods for dependent boys interested in the newly established basketball program. Last chance to sign up for either the Major League Division (for ages 12 through 14) or the Minor League (for boys 9 through 11) will be as follows: Boys from Midway Park, Berkeley Manor, Hospital Point and Paradise Point may register at Goettge Memorial Field House between 1000 and 1500, Saturday, January 25. Boys from New River Air Facility, Camp Geiger and Knox Trailer Parks, Tarawa Terrace and off-station housing will be registered at the Montford Point Gym between 0900 and 1200, January 25.

The League is in need of basketball coaches and officials. Personnel interested in assisting are invited to phone Sgt. R. R. Burns at 7-5184 during working hours and 2-390 after hours. Games are scheduled for Saturdays only with the first game planned for February 8. The basketball season will close on April 11, 1964.

Handball Court Plans Approved

Headquarters, Marine Corps has approved plans for two handball courts to be built at Hadnot Point. Plans are in the hill for four more courts, two at Montford Point, and two at Camp Geiger.

There is no date set for completion of the two courts that have been approved, but it is expected that they will be ready for use by summer. The courts are to be four-walled, and lighted.

A proposed program has also been submitted to light and resurface all the tennis courts on the base that have not already been renovated.

New Free Fall Record Set By Service Jumpers

EL CENTRO, CALIF.--A 13-man Army-Air Force team of parachutists has set a world record by falling 41,000 feet, almost eight miles, before opening chutes.

The team beat the Russian world record by 4,350 feet. The old mass-jump record was 36,650 feet, set by a nine-man Russian team in 1961.

The U. S. parachutists jumped in pairs from a C-130 turboprop Air Force transport over El Centro, Calif.

All of the parachutists, trained at the Army Special Warfare Center, Ft. Bragg, N. C., fell for three minutes and 20 seconds before opening their parachutes.

The chutists are participating in a series of tests called Operation Halo (high altitude, low opening).

In the free fall, the temperature was 67 degrees below zero when the men left the plane. The jumpers carried oxygen bottles good for eight to 10 minutes in thin atmosphere.

Each man also carried a sealed barograph which automatically measured variations in atmospheric pressure.

These devices will be used by the Federation Internationale Aeronautique in Paris to establish the jump altitude and parachute opening altitude of each.

The purpose of the jump was to confirm current procedure and to develop further military application.

The 19th Hole

By BOB SPENCER

The tip for this week concerns playing from up-hill and down-hill lies.

On uphill and downhill lies a good rule to follow is to always play the ball closer than normal to the higher foot. This allows you to hit the ball before contacting the ground on a downhill lie and to miss the ground before hitting the ball on an uphill lie. You should concentrate your weight on the highest foot.

It is a normal tendency to slice from downhill lies, because the ball is farther back in your stance, and to hook on uphill shots when the ball is farther forward. You should allow for these tendencies when aiming.

When you play the ball back in the stance on the downhill lies, it reduces the loft of your club.

You should use a more lofted club than you normally use for the same distance.

On uphill shots use left loft sidehill lies will cause the ball to curve in the same direction that the hill slopes.

So when the hill slopes down to your feet, expect your shot to hook to the left. (If you are right-handed.) So all you do is aim to the right of the target.

So when your feet are higher than the ball, it will produce a slice, so aim more to the left.

Naturally, when the ball is above your feet, it is, in effect, closer to your hands. You should take a shorter grip on the club.

When the ball is below your feet, it will be farther from your hands. So you must stand closer to the ball and grip near the end of the club.

Local Fighters Compete In AAU Boxing Tourney

The Camp Lejeune boxing team left Tuesday morning for High Point, N. C., for participation in the Carolina Amateur Athletic Union Boxing Tournament. The tourney begins today and ends Saturday.

This could be the initial step toward a berth on the Olympic team for Camp Lejeune fighters.

By winning in the Carolina AAU's a fighter would be eligible to compete in the National AAU's being held this year at Las Vegas, Nevada, April 8-10. If he won there he would be eligible for an Olympic trial.

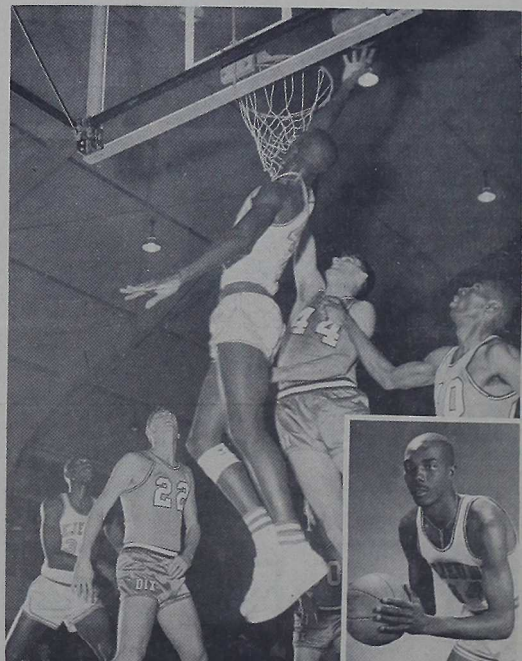

Another way a fighter could get in the trials would be to win an Interservice Championship. For a Marine to do this he would have to win in the All-Marine Tournament which will be at Camp Pendleton, Calif., during the week of March 27. By virtue of his All-Marine title he would be eligible for competition in the Interservice Tourney, which will pit the champions of all branches of service against each other. The Interservice Championship Tournament will be held here May 4-6.

The Eastern and Western regional tryouts leave still another door open to a Marine with Olympic aspirations. The Eastern regionals will be held in Washington, D. C. The date has not yet been determined.

Even though it is farfetched, the Marine Corps could have four entries in each weight class representing it in the Olympic trials. There could be a Marine Interservice Champion, National AAU winner, a winner from the regional tryouts, and the fourth man could be entered as a part of the Marine Corps Boxing Team. Each branch of service can send one team to the trials.

The common belief is that Camp Pendleton has the market cornered on boxers, however, Camp Lejeune's boxing coach, Chuck Lawler, feels that he has a couple of men who could go all the way.

Know Your Team

There is a menace named Dennis who lurks in the corners during the Camp Lejeune basketball games.

He's Charlie "Snake" Dennis and he is one of the hottest shots on the Marine quintet. In 14 games Dennis has racked up 263 points for an 18.8 point average.

Coach Joe Walsh says the 6' 20-year-old hardcourt ace "is a good all-around ball player. He's a cool performer and when he isn't in the game you can feel it."

The coach continued, "Charlie is very fast, and like the rest of the team is in good shape. He has a strong jump shot from the corner, and aside from the points he contributes, he keeps the defense honest. They can't start sagging on us. He also gets a lot of rebounds."

Dennis is in his first season with the Camp Lejeune team. He played two years varsity basketball in his hometown high school, in Charlotte, N. C.

After graduating from West Charlotte High, Dennis went to John C. Smith University, in Charlotte. He played about one-half year with the varsity team, and then joined the Marine Corps. It was at Smith U. under the coaching of Ed McGrout, that Dennis developed the corner shot that is his trademark now.

Charlie Dennis is a member of 2d Bn., 8th Marines.

Karate Classes

Beginners karate classes will be held in Bldg. 400 area gym Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday from 6 to 8 p.m. now through the 31st of January. Anyone interested may get more information by contacting Sgt. Sam Pearson at ext. 7-3787.

RELEASE ACCELERATOR—Cpl. Robert W. Vandeventer, right, of ITR's 2d Training Bn., Hq. Co., is rewarded with a Meritorious Mast by ITR's Commander, Col. A. Caputo, for outstanding performance in supervising the release of 748 six-month re-servists.

DEVOTION TO DUTY—Three members of Co. "E", 2d Bn., 6th Marines, were awarded a Meritorious Mast by their Battalion Commander, Lt. Col. C. B. Redman, (right), on January 8. British Royal Marine Capt. Leslie E. Hudson, commanding officer, Co. "E", looks on as the three Marines receive the Mast for their "devotion to duty." The three recipients are: (left to right) PFC J. S. Reaves, LCpl. R. G. Pearson, and Sgt. L. F. Dall.

Thus the theme of the ball will be "Grecian Splendor".

The tickets will go on sale Monday, January 20, and will be prorated to the groups according to the number of paid

The dress will be formal attire and music will be furnished by the Divisionaires.

Queen Of England Picks Grandfather

Camp Lejeune and its personnel have often been associated with persons of high standing and importance and now steps up to the Court of Queen Elizabeth II of England.

Mrs. Jeanette Henning, wife of Sgt. Richard Henning, has just recently received word that her grandfather has been nominated into Her British Majesty's Court as Officer of the Order of the British Empire. There is special distinction in this nomination in that the nomination itself was made by Queen Elizabeth II.

Moving from London, England to La Paz, Bolivia, in 1911, Mrs. Henning's grandfather has long been an active participant in social and charity organizations within the British communities of Bolivia.

New GMST Cycle Back On Schedule For April

Headquarters Marine Corps has revamped the General Military Subjects Test that was administered to eligible personnel in August of 1963 and testing is back on schedule for April of this year.

In December, a new order (MCO 1418.17) was issued directing resumption of tests and it listed the subjects which would be covered and the references Marines should study.

Questions on the subject "Marine Rifle Squad" were revised and another reference substituted for the Fleet Marine Force Manual 6-5 chapters one through nine, which is not due to be distributed until February.

It was felt that this was insufficient time to allow Marines to become familiar with its contents, so the April test questions on the rifle squad will be based on material in NAVMC 1046 DPP, parts one through six and in the Guidebook for Marines, chapters 12, 13, 16, 17, 18, and 22, both of which are available in the field.

Other subjects covered by the new GMST and the study references for each are:

Equipment and Uniforms — Landing Party Manual, chapter 4; Guidebook for Marines, chapter 7.

Field Sanitation, Personal Hygiene and First Aid — Landing Party Manual, chapter 7, sections I, III and IV; Guidebook for Marines, chapters 8 and 9.

Tactical Training of the Individual — Landing Party Manual, chapter 9, section VI.

Field Fortifications and Camouflage — Landing Party Manual, chapter 10, section IX; Guidebook for Marines, chapter 14.

The Rifle Platoon in Offensive and Defensive Combat — Landing Party Manual, chapter 10, sections IV and XI.

AMA Warns Motorists Of Deadly Gas Poisoning

The American Medical Association recently pointed out that carbon monoxide poisoning is now recognized as one of the most treacherous menaces of winter driving.

Medical experts feel that leaky exhaust systems are responsible for uncounted highway deaths and are a particular menace to motorists who warm up cars in inclosed areas.

The Medical Association report explains that carbon monoxide is the result of incomplete combustion and is always present in the exhaust of an automobile.

The gas, according to the report, kills quickly because of its affinity for red blood cells. Carbon monoxide is absorbed by the red cells about 250 times faster than oxygen and when it unites with the hemoglobin, it prevents oxygen from reaching the tissues of the body.

Symptoms of the gas are recognized by a sensation of tightness about the forehead, headache, dizziness and a sudden tired feeling.

Other symptoms, according to the findings of medical men, are blurred vision, nausea and a fluttering and throbbing of the heart.

These initial effects are quickly followed by unconsciousness and, in most cases, death.

A complete check of your automobile exhaust system now, could save your life.

2d Amphibian Tractor Battalion Fires Highest At RR For 1963

Brig. Gen. Donn J. Robertson, Commanding General, Force Troops presented the Commanding General's Unit Rifle Marksmanship Qualification Trophy to Lt. Col. T. W. Clarke, Commanding Officer, 2d Amphibian Tractor Battalion last week.

Second Amphibian Tractor

Bn. received the trophy for firing a 95.2% with 587 personnel firing to top all other battalion group size units in Force Troops.

According to the Camp Lejeune Rifle Range this was the highest percentage for a battalion size unit firing for qualification at Camp Lejeune in 1963.

'FAB Four' To Train At Lejeune

U. S. Naval Mobile Construction Battalion FOUR, consisting of 550 officers and men under the command of Commander Charles G. Miller, CEC, USN, arrived here on January 8th, 9th and 10th, for six weeks of advanced military training.

The training started on January 13th and will continue through the 21st of February. MCB-4 will have the best of instructors. The Marine Corps is furnishing top NCO's to handle the training. Officers and Men of MCB-4 will receive training in all phases of combat including, marksmanship, field survival, and specialties such as heavy weapons, combat engineering, field cooking and field first aid, just to mention a few of the highlights of the training period.

The motto of the Seabee is "We Build, We Fight". The men of MCB-4 are, by training at Camp Lejeune, keeping this motto alive.

Camp Lejeune is not foreign to FAB FOUR. She was here the last time in May of 1962, and the training that she received then served her well. She was in Guantanamo Bay Cuba during the "Cuban Crisis", manning strategic positions on the U. S. Naval Base there.

Today's Seabees carry on the tradition of the WW II "Bees" who became famous for their various construction feats under the most difficult of conditions, in both the Atlantic and Pacific.

History of Communism

Furious Scramble Arises For Successor To Stalin

Communist forces (the 187,000-man North Korean Army) attacked South Korea, whose forces numbered 96,000 on Sunday, June 25, 1950. It was a blatant act of aggression, with a goal of territorial and political acquisition.

No excuse was offered. The fact that the attack was offensive was denied under the pretext of "defending" home ground from "ruthless" South Korean aggression. The "limited war" raged until mid-1953.

Almost certain to have had a bearing on the 1953 armistice was the death of Joseph Stalin the preceding March. The succeeding Soviet administration immediately faced an explosive economic crisis and needed a period of peace in which to get itself established.

Less than a month after Stalin's death, communist forces opened negotiations for peace in Korea. A truce was signed July 27.

In place of Stalin's one-man rule came a "collective leadership" formed by a 10-man Party Presidium. The group included (and, presumably, in the order of their standing); Georgi Malenkov, former secret police official and member of Stalin's personal secretariat; Lavrenti Beria, terrorist and former chief of the Soviet secret police; Vyacheslav Molotov, a veteran member of the Communist hierarchy; Kliment Voroshilov (unimportant to this article); Nikita S. Khrushchev; Nikolai Bulganin, also a party faithful and member of the hierarchy; and four others.

It took five years (June 1957) for Khrushchev to become the undisputed head of the Communist Party and Soviet Government. The former miner and locksmith, whose party career history contains virtually nothing colorful or spectacular, went about his coup in almost identically the same way as did Stalin.

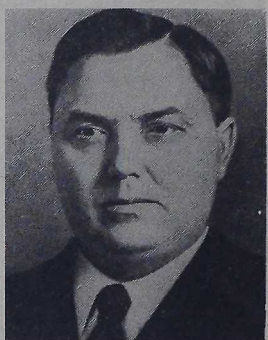

Like Stalin, Khrushchev had his predecessor's respect, but was not the heir apparent (Malenkov was); he held tremendous power over a large segment of the non-Russian republics; he was a quiet plodder who, ostensibly, represented no threat in the way of a power grab; he was a member of the Politbureau.

In attaining his ascendancy, Khrushchev also followed in Stalin's footsteps. Beria was liquidated as the result of his alleged attempt to mount the Voroshilov purge victims as was Bulganin, with whom Khrushchev shared the world spotlight briefly.

Other than attempts at internationalization (the successes and failures of which will be the subject of the next installment), Stalin's successors have alternately held forth the olive branch and rattled their sabers, occasionally achieving both acts at the same time.

The B & K Happiness Boys, as they were often referred to in the American press, proposed a ban on nuclear weapons and complete disarmament (without inspection) at the 1955 Geneva summit conference; made a goodwill journey through Great Britain; welcomed a visit by a delegation of Anglican clergy and others; opened parts of Russia to American tourists; and acquiesced to the Russo-American exchange of cultural groups.

AND THEN CAME MALENKOV—On March 6, 1953, Georgi M. Malenkov was named as successor to Joseph Stalin. Five years later, Malenkov stepped down with a healthy push from Nikita Khrushchev.

On other occasions, the Russians; tried to scuttle NATO by proposing its amalgamation with the Soviet bloc; taunted the U. S. with its space successes; insulted President Eisenhower over the U-2 incident; made frequent threats to deny western access to West Berlin; ordered a wall built between East and West Berlin to stop the flow of East Germans out of that country (The wall was not built to "taunt" the U. S., but to prevent East Germany from bleeding to death through loss of refugees—2,000 a day); and supplied Castro with planes and armament, promising the bearded insurgent Russian rockets for defensive use against the United States.
