8th Marines Mark Anniversary

Col. J. O. Bell
Commanding Officer

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

The 8th Marines, one of the famed regiments of the 2d Marine Division, celebrated its 46th anniversary yesterday.

No special ceremonies had been arranged to mark the occasion other than special noon meals at the three battalion mess halls.

Other than that the members of the 8th Marines carried out their usual daily activities--training.

The Young Regiment

First formed during World War I, the Regiment wasn't given, as its first mission, a combat assignment overseas. Instead, soon after forming at Quantico, Va., on Oct. 9, 1917, the regiment was transferred to Fort Crockett, near Galveston, Tex., to guard the Mexican oil fields.

While at Fort Crockett the Regiment trained for war service, and was later joined there by the 9th Marines, and the two Regiments became the 3d Marine Brigade, the Marine Corps' first Advanced Base Force in World War I.

Created when the fighting on the Western Front in Europe was at a critical stage, the advanced Base Force was designed to react instantly should the powerful German Fleet break out of the North Sea into the Atlantic area. If this should happen the Marine force would establish and defend an advanced naval base in the Atlantic or Caribbean area so that our fleet could operate against the enemy fleet, and thereby protect our vital shipping to Europe.

However, the force was doomed to disappointment. Although highly trained, it never saw combat, for the German force was unable to break through the British and United States Fleets.

Post WW I

In early 1919, after the Armistice in France, the 8th Marines were demobilized.

However, this inactivity didn't last long, for the regiment was reactivated in January 1920, and sent to Haiti for operations against bandits there.

Marines had been fighting these bandits off-and-on since 1914, but now the 8th Marines systematically covered every area, using relays of fresh patrols, giving the bandits no rest. The bandits were killed and captured in numerous battles, which eliminated banditry from that country. Their mission completed, the 8th Marines was once again deactivated as peace reigned in Haiti.

When it became clear that our country would soon become involved in World War II, the Marine Corps expanded to meet the threat, and in 1940 the 8th Marines were again activated... this time at San Diego, commencing with the 1st Bn., on April 15, 1940.

WW II Role

Well-trained by the time the U. S. entered World War II, the 8th Marines was the first Marine Regiment to sail into the Pacific from the United States. The Regiment's mission was to hold the Samoan Islands, which were the key to the air and surface life line between the United States and Australia.

Here the 8th Marines organized the defense of the Islands and spent considerable time training in jungle warfare. They were called to the aid of the 1st Marine Division on Guadalcanal and arrived there Nov. 4, 1942.

Shortly after arriving on Guadalcanal the regiment participated in a mighty drive to the west of the Matanikau River. Along with other units at Guadalcanal, the 8th Marines received the Presidential Unit Citation for this, and subsequent actions on Guadalcanal.

Beset with malaria, the 8th Marines left Guadalcanal in March 1943, and retrained for their next combat assignment in a field camp near Wellington, New Zealand. In six months time, at a peak of readiness, the 8th Marines again embarked as part of the 2d Marine Division for a highly secret destination.

Tarawa

On Nov. 20, 1943, the 2d Bn., with the 2d Marines, made an H-hour assault on Betio, in the Tarawa Atol. Two hours later the 3d Bn., and early the next morning the 1st Bn., were forced by treacherous coral reefs to disembark from their landing craft hundreds of yards from the beach and wade ashore under withering Japanese fire.

In 76 hours one of the briefest and bloodiest battles in American history was won. For this victory the 8th Marines (as part of the 2d Marine Division) was awarded its second Presidential Unit Citation.

After Tarawa the regiment moved back to Hawaii. Here the regiment replaced its losses and trained for more combat. In May 1944, the regiment mounted out again, this time for the key stronghold of Japan's inner-island empire--Saipan.

Saipan

On June 15, 1944, the 8th Marines, on the right flank of the 2d Division, stormed ashore over the western beaches just north of the sugar-refining town of Charan Kanoa. After 25 days of continuous assault, the island was secured. The 8th Marines (assisted by the 1st Bn., 29th Marines) had attacked and captured the roughest, highest part of the spine-backed island, Mount Tapotchau, strongly influencing the outcome of the battle by seizing the key terrain feature.

The regiment, after a 15-day rest, took an active part in the assault and capture of Tinian, which lay close by Saipan. In the final assault on the high plateau at the southern end of the island, the 2d Marine Division employed all three regiments abreast. The 8th Marines, advancing on the right, received the brunt of the Japanese defensive fires.

Inching forward despite fierce resistance, the regiment in coordinated attack managed to scale the heights first and gain a slender foothold on top of final plateau. Holding on against violent counterattacks throughout the night, the forward elements were slowly reinforced by other elements of the regiment and by the other regiments of the Division. Organized resistance on the island soon ended.

Okinawa

Now the entire 2d Division licked its wounds and trained at Saipan for its last Marine island campaign of the war--Okinawa. The 8th Marines were the only ones employed ashore during the battle on Okinawa.

Initially the regiment seized the off shore islands of Thier and Aguni and prepared for further action in support of the main attack by the 1st and 6th Marine Divisions. After weeks of fighting, the divisions, with victory in sight, were faced with two stubborn pockets of Japanese resistance.

To split the enemy defenses the 8th Marines spearheaded a fresh attack for a decisive thrust to the sea. This concerned the attack of the whole force from the back of the last enemy resistance on Okinawa, and brought the Pacific Island campaign to a victorious close.

With the surrender of Japan the 8th Marines spent five months on occupation duty before returning to the United States and their new home Camp Lejeune, in July 1945.

Share In Cold War

Since 1946, the 8th Marines have been based and trained at Camp Lejeune. Together with the other elements of the division, they have helped maintain the peace during "cold war" and other crises. Taking their turn at providing the land force for the U. S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean, and training maneuvers, the 8th Marines continue to play a major role in guaranteeing the peace by being constantly ready should an aggressor threaten our nation. The most recent example was the Cuban crisis and prior to that the "Lebanon Operation", in which the 1st and 2d Bns., actively participated.

Mother Sends Letter Of Thanks For Son's Life, Kindness Shown

(Editor's Note: The GLOBE would like to add its own thanks to those persons involved in the following letter from a Marine's grateful mother.)

"On July 7, 1963, my son, Cpl. Richard Lippold, H&S Co., 2d Recon Bn., was swimming at Wrightsville Beach and sustained a fractured neck. He would have drowned had not Cpl. George Owens, of the same unit, pulled him from the water.

In August he was transferred to the Naval Hospital at Camp Lejeune where he was given excellent care and arrangements were made to air evacuate him to Omaha.

With the cooperation of many people under Capt. Norris (commanding officer, U. S. Naval Hospital) this was done in eight days. Having no place to stay, Oliver and Wilma Husak of Swansboro took me home with them. He is attached to Co. "G", 2d Bn., 6th Marines. Mrs. Husak drove me to the hospital twice every day.

So, I'd like to take this chance to thank all the many Marines and Navy personnel who showed me so much kindness and consideration during the eight days I spent at your beautiful camp.

I'm nappy to report Richard is now moving his arms and getting feeling in his hands and can sit in a wheel chair without a brace. I know he would like to hear from some of his old friends. His address is the V. A. Hospital, 41st and Woolworth streets, 9E, Omaha, Neb.

So, from a grateful mother all I can say is 'thanks for giving me back my son'. My husband and I appreciate everything that was done for my son and myself."

NOT STUDY—Researchers operate a cinefluorography unit, using high-speed movies of heart action made visible by a specially adapted fluoroscope. Pilot research, as part of an intensive study to provide new data about the functioning of healthy and "sick" hearts, is financed by grants from the United Medical Research Foundation, a United Fund service.

Answers Found In Study; HF Aids Heart Research

loft of pigeons and a 10 piece of equipment, purchased through funds from the United Medical Research Foundation of North Carolina, Inc., may take scientists at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine one step closer to a solution to the major health problem of atherosclerosis.

Atherosclerosis, popularly known as a form of hardening of the arteries, is the chief cause of heart attacks and strokes. It involves primarily a growth or deposit on the inner walls of the large and medium-sized blood vessels, an accumulation that tends to clog the vessels just as rust and debris closes water pipes. The accumulation, or plaque as it is called by physicians, consists of fat overlaid by a gristle-like scar tissue.

In 1959, scientists at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine discovered that pigeons, like humans, get atherosclerosis naturally.

Since that time, a multi-disciplinary group of six Bowman Gray faculty members have investigated various aspects of the disease in pigeons.

The latest project is a pilot study supported by funds from the United Medical Research Foundation of North Carolina, Inc.

With the aid of a gas chromatograph, a study is being made of the fatty acid composition of tissues from pigeons. The hydrogen flame detector of the chromatograph was bought with UMRF funds.

This study is aimed at determining the origin of lipid (acid) deposits in fats of arterial walls (atherosclerotic fats). It is expected to establish a basis for further studies—studies which someday may help solve the major health problem of atherosclerosis.

Aid Asked Of Troops On Leave

Marines on leave are asked to give their recruiter a hand with their work.

Leave papers from now on will include a statement which runs something like this:

"You are requested, while on leave and if consistent with your plans, to call on the nearest Marine Corps recruiting representative. Your assistance will be appreciated."

Vacationing Leathernecks are invited to bring likely-looking prospects along with them when they visit the recruiting station. They can earn a five-day extension to their leave by doing this, regulations say.

Remember, proper conduct on leave and liberty often has a healthy influence on prospective recruits.

Postgrad Study Deadline Nears

Applications for postgraduate education in fiscal year 1965 must be received by Marine Corps Headquarters before Nov. 1.

Eight courses are open to officers who have a bachelors degree and certain other qualifications, Marine Corps Bulletin 1520 of September 13 said. Applicants must have completed two years at their station or nine months in an overseas without-dependents billet before June 1964.

The Bulletin said preference would be given those who have not attended a school for two or more years.

All but two of the courses open to Marines are at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, Calif. The two exceptions are financial management, which runs for a year at George Washington University, and management and industrial engineering at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., an 11-month course.

Held at Monterey are aeronautical engineering, for two or three years; Communications Engineering, two years, engineering electronics, two or three years; nuclear engineering, two years; operations analysis, two years, and weapons systems, two or three years.

28 Graduate From Labor Department Safety Course

The U. S. Department of Labor ended a "Safety Training For Supervisors" course here September 27.

The 30 hour course, under the direction of C. Grundmann, safety consultant, U. S. Department of Labor, was terminated with the presentation of 28 course completion certificates to 18 civilian and 10 Lejeune Marines whose position is that of a supervisor. During the graduation ceremony, Col. T. S. Ivey, Assistant Base Commander, encouraged the graduates to continue to help maintain a low accident rate in the Base Industrial area by instructing those under their charge in proper safety techniques.

The safety course is sponsored yearly by the Camp Lejeune Safety Office, instructing participants in the basic principles of industrial accident prevention.

STEPPING UP—Not only is actress Chris Noel stepping up the ladder to cut flowers; she also is stepping up to success in her career. Chris has a regular part in the TV series, "The Lieutenant."

Editorials

Tail Riders

The GLOBE has frequently used editorials to chastise the careless and reckless drivers in its attempt to enlist such drivers into the ranks of the safe drivers. The highway menace we aim at this week is the "Tail Rider."

He is seldom publicized but is seen everyday. He is the one who appears to attach his front bumper to the rear of the car ahead. This tail rider uses no tow bars, ropes or chains. He uses optical magnetism. One thing he should, but does not use, is the common sense of safe driving.

The tail rider leaves himself little or no time to react properly in an emergency. This is one sure way of winding up as part of a pile-up or worse.

A brother to the tail rider is the "Jumper." This is a tail rider that sees an opening between two cars in the adjacent lane, regardless of how small, and jumps over without thought of the second car. The safe driver, allowing the accepted reaction distance, finds his headlights about to meet the tail lights of the jumper.

Tail riding, whether through carelessness or simply disregard for others and self is a menace to the safety of all motorists — not the tail rider alone. Lejeune motorists, keep in mind the distance rule of one car length ahead for every 10 miles of speed. Increase the ranks of safe drivers. Drive carefully.

While on the subject of bad drivers, we will relate an incident witnessed two days ago, during heavy fog.

There was a fairly long line of cars moving rather slowly, due to the fog, along one of the main traffic arteries. One driver, finding caution, due to the fog not to his liking, moved into the left lane to pass the car ahead of him. However, there was a car approaching from the opposite direction.

The approaching car left the road, skidded from the road shoulder back into the road, spun around completely and stopped in the ditch opposite the direction he was traveling. Luckily, his car wasn't damaged, and there was no blood shed in the incident.

The careless driver should be happy to read the outcome of his action, because he didn't even stop to find out if the man he had ran off the road was injured or needed help to get out of the ditch.

Chaplain's Corner

A brilliant philosopher once said, "We know better than to demand justice; What we need is mercy." It is very difficult, if not impossible, to distinguish between the sin (separation from God) of commission and the sin of omission when it comes to the point of judgment between them. Should we judge the one more harshly than the other? Going to church or taking part in any religious activity with the wrong attitude can be as bad as or worse than one's failure to take part at all. Both can lead to estrangement from God and man.

Man's greatest need is for a right relationship with God. In a few rare cases this greatest need of man has been fulfilled away from church buildings or attendance at religious gatherings. This need cannot continue to be fulfilled apart from a fellowship of persons who have found the satisfaction that comes from a right relationship with God.

The sin of omission in the lives of a number of "good people" might well be a failure to take part in the latter fellowship just mentioned. In judging this sin we know better than to demand justice. What we need is mercy. A single soul and voice lost to song or prayer or worship are all sounds that echo through the chambers of evil in our lives. The sin of commission has its own judgment also. It serves only to criticize rather than to change. In either case the sin is there. Let us not ask what others are doing. What we need is mercy.

COLUMBUS GAVE US A NEW WORLD.

YOU CAN HELP KEEP IT FREE!

Columbus — Determination

Today, in the age of the astronaut, the orbital flight and the hydrogen bomb, one could possibly overlook the story of the intrepid Italian navigator who, 471 years ago October 12, heard a look-out call, "Tierra! Tierra!"

This now historic event — the discovery of America — happened as the look-out on the Pinta spotted the island now called San Salvador.

This happy discovery when the dauntless Christopher Columbus, after 59 days at sea, was almost ready to forsake his determination to find land and yield to the demands of his crew that he turn back and give up dream.

His dream was not one of conquest — except as one concerns nature — but was a magnificent obsession with the idea that a ship could reach the East by sailing West.

His determination must be rated alongside Perry's at Erie, Washington's at Vicksburg, the Marine Corps' through the Korean cold sea, and John Paul Jones' engaging the British ship Soleil with his Bon Homme Richard.

It is just this type of determination that keeps America free.

It is the same determination the U. S. Army showed at Iwo Jima, the Air Force on the Ploesti, the Navy at Midway and the Marine Corps at Belleau Wood and Iwo Jima.

So as we celebrate Columbus Day 1963, let us resolve with a determination as firm as that of Columbus' — that we remain ready to fight — if need be, for freedom.

Earned Thanks

An article in last week's GLOBE announced the presentation of an American Heritage award to the GLOBE's staff. This award was not earned through the efforts of any one person or group of persons.

As in any other achievement, it was won only through cooperation and teamwork. A well deserved and sincere "thanks" goes to the service personnel and dependents of Camp Lejeune who contributed to the effort with their personally written American Heritage articles. Special attention is brought to the cooperation of the students and instructors of the Citizenship classes underway during the contest.

Where "A picture is worth a thousand words", the Base Photo Section came through with flying colors. We are proud to have them as part of the informational team. Many earned thanks go to SSgt. R. F. Rhoads, LCpl. B. J. Martin and the other photographers who gave their time and effort to aid the contest entry with pictures and special photographic effects.

It was only through this teamwork, working together toward one common goal, that your GLOBE was able to come out as the top Marine Corps photo offset American Heritage entry. Once again, a sincere thanks to all.

MOVIE REVIEWS

U.S.O. CLUB NEWS

SAVAGE SAM
 Take one blue tick bound dawg named "Sam" who just doesn't know the meaning of fear; add a scrappy youngster who thrives on attacking anything but farm chores, and an 11-year-old brother with a stalwart sense of responsibility; bring in a hard-riding, two-fisted uncle, a flaxen-haired girl, her reprobate father; and bring on a marauding bunch of

THE MAIN ATTRACTION
 In a radical change from his usual roles, Pat Boone plays a drifting American singer, involved in a shady affair with a performer in an Italian circus. She is a frankly predatory part of her act, and after taking him as a lover, resents his friendship with bareback rider, Nancy Kwan. Nancy Kwan's gaiety and grace, and Pat Boone's four agreeable songs lighten the melodramatic plot. The British Film's unsavory personal involvements are lightened by the excellence of the circus acts and the glorious Alpine scenery.

BEACH PARTY
 A teen age romp on the beach somewhere in Southern California, complete with song and dance, color and wide screen, names that look well on the marquee and a lively yarn of no consequence but reasonable amusement make up the ingredients of American International's first big musical.

On arrival at the beach cottage where he's planned a vacation alone with pretty marriage-minded Annette Funicello, young Frankie Avalon finds that she has invited a dozen or so teenagers to join them. Anthropologist Bob Cummings and his Girl Friday, Dorothy Malone, observe the shenanigans for their scientific comparison of the sex habits of American youth with those of primitive South Seas tribes. The film is full of quick, lively action, and a sprinkling of pleasant songs.

CAPTAIN SINDBAD
 Fantasy and derring-do are meat and wine to the legendary Captain Sindbad, who swashbuckles his way through this adventure-fairy tale film. Guy Williams, as Sindbad, returns from a long voyage to find his country in the hands of a cruel usurper, who has the old king, the beautiful princess and even the court musician in his power.

Sindbad, with the ample aid of trick photography and excellent special effects, battles a legion of monsters to win back the kingdom, and the princess.
THE STRIPPER
 Grade "R" all the way! This stink-ovitch little melodrama floundered around the East Carolina coast late this summer without much success. As befits the quality of the film, playing up sex and sensationalism (which fall to save this tawdry, laboring soap opera), the film drags along, failing to deliver much, if anything promised by the extensive promotion campaign seen in nearby cities in recent months.

THE TRAITORS
 A British spy melodrama crowds a good deal into its short running time. Vital information on a top secret military project is getting to the Reds, and a British Intelligence officer, a British American major in NATO, security are assigned to uncover the spy cell. Bits of romance and mystery coupled with a fine, fast-moving plot make the film passable entertainment.

JACKSONVILLE—There will be a weekend movie at the Jacksonville USO with a color cartoon. Showings on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, run as follows: Friday, 7:30 p. m. only, Saturday, 3 and 7 p. m., and Sunday at 1 and 5 p. m.

A Hospitality Hour is held each Sunday at 4 p. m. with free refreshments being served.

The club features two complete T. V. rooms, air conditioned, a brand new music room, full length lockers, clean shower facilities and a stereo HiFi with over 700 records.

Rides may be obtained from the U. S. O. on Sunday mornings to the church of your choice, also. Join us at 10 a. m. for free coffee and doughnuts.

renegade injuns to capture the girl and the two young heroes: toss in some assorted cowboy characters to master chief Walt Disney, and sit back in your seat to enjoy 103 minutes of one of the finest Westerns to come your way in years. This one is good family entertainment.

HORROR HOTEL
 Two and a half centuries ago, the populace of Whitewood, Mass., became a pretty local inhabitant because of a suspicious witchcraft. As the flames lick about her feet, she makes a rather grisly pact with the Devil: human sacrifices in return for eternal life. Centuries later, a young student checks into a hotel run by the immortal victim of the witch burning, and the horror fun begins.

Guerrillas Fight Tough

Guerrilla Warfare Operation SWAMPEX, came to a close October 4, with the guerrilla forces on the losing end after putting up a tough battle against the 4th Marine Expeditionary Brigades and supporting elements of the 2d Division and Force Troops. Air support was provided by Provisional Marine Air Group-40 (Prov MAG-40). Aggressor forces consisted of Co. "A", 2d counter - insurgency/counter-guerrilla environment.

A mythical Joint Task Force (JTF-14) had been created to add realism to the exercise. Psychological warfare, civil affairs and civic action endeavor was an integral part in the operation. Small unit and individual training in tactics and techniques was also continuous throughout the exercise.

Prior to the arrival of the MEB in the troubled area, guerrilla forces issued a thirst-quenching bounty for the capture of any of the Marine officers. The bounty varied with the rank of the officer. A nine-village "Tarheel Province" had been established and manned by Marines acting as foreign-speaking civilian populace for the exercise. Both friendly and guerrilla forces were to attempt to gain civilian support by various means, including coercion, armed force and psychological warfare techniques.

The Marines of the province were specially trained for their roles and conversed only in a foreign language. This caused all friendly unit commanders to call upon interpreters within their own units to deal with the civilians.

On September 30, the Governor of Tarheel Province, Pablo Reyes (SSgt. Jeter J. O'Neill), Joseph J. O'Neill, Force Troops, requested that the 4th MEB enter his province to oppose guerrilla forces in the area.

SWAMPEX activity shifted October 1, from offensive combat to the realm of civil affairs and counter-insurgency after a military assistance pact was signed by Governor Reyes and 4th MEB Commander, Brig. Gen. R. McC. Tompkins (Assistant 2d Division Commander).

Following a visit to the Croatan National Forest battleground, Maj. Gen. Rottet, exercise director, was pleased with the SWAMPEX Marines' ability to find and destroy the guerrilla forces, predicted a complete victory by the end of the next day.

Operation SWAMPEX came to a successful conclusion Friday, October 4, when Gen. Tompkins accepted the unconditional surrender of Gen. Roberto Fuego and his remaining guerrilla forces.

Gen. Tompkins explained that the greatest value of the problem was the practical demonstration of a civil affairs plan in operation where American forces are introduced into a county that is essentially friendly to the U. S.

He also pointed out that the counter-guerrilla operation afforded all Marines, private to general, the practical experience they would need if they were ever called upon to perform anti-guerrilla operations.

Gen. Rottet, SWAMPEX director, was highly pleased by the way the Marines filled their guerrilla or anti-guerrilla roles and was particularly impressed by the superb manner in which Marines carried out their roles as villagers during the exercise. Gen. Rottet also felt that SSgt. O'Neill, as Governor Pablo Reyes, and the other Marines acting as the civilians, provided the right ade in Croatan National Forest.

The six-day field exercise, involving thousands of Marines, got underway September 30, when members of the 4th Marine Expeditionary Brigade jumped-off on Operation SWAMPEX. SWAMPEX was a counter-guerrilla warfare exercise using the combined forces of the 2d Marine Division, 2d Marine Aircraft Wing, and Force Troops, Atlantic, under the direction of Maj. Gen. Ralph K. Rottet, deputy commander, FMF, Atlantic.

It was the largest exercise this year, covering thousands of acres in Croatan National Forest and surrounding farm land donated by the local citizens.

Marine ground elements participating in the SWAMPEX were the 2d Bn., 6th Marines, 3d Bn., 8th Ma-

Recon Bn., and a Composite Company from the 1st Bn., 8th Marines.

The basic objective of the exercise was to perfect techniques required of a military commander and his forces when subjected to a the guerrillas had over the Brigade Marines.

Throughout the exercise, propaganda and psychological warfare techniques were put to use by both forces. Initially, guerrillas entered all nine of the Province villages and told the residents they would protect them. They offered to help till the fields, harvest crops, build better sanitation systems and die, if necessary, to see that the "Yankee invaders" were driven from their country.

The MEB, prior to landing their forces, dropped leaflets over the Province telling the populace that the guerrilla forces were savage, unkept, anti-religious, cruel and liars. To counter this friendly propaganda, the guerrillas revisited the villages to disprove the claims against them. One band of guerrillas actually went to church with the townsfolk to show they were not atheists as claimed.

According to Gen. Tompkins, both the MEB and guerrilla forces were successful in executing their plan of operation and tactics in the guerrilla warfare exercise "Operation SWAMPPEX."

The signing of the pact allowed the Brigade to occupy Tarheel Province in protection of the nine villages from enemy guerrilla forces and to aid in the establishment of a provincial government. Marines of the Brigade conducted the evacuation and relocation of the citizens of three villages to provide better protection and control.

MEB ground units opened SWAMPPEX September 30 with an attack on guerrilla forces surrounding Lake Village, Capitol of Tarheel Province. The guerrilla forces were routed from the area and mopping up action began the following day. Brigade forces then turned their attention to within the province to uncover enemy agents and civilians who were sympathetic toward the guerrilla forces.

News arrived at MEB headquarters that early in the second day, a small band of guerrillas had infiltrated at Bogue Field and inflicted heavy simulated damage to aircraft fuel equipment and claimed to have destroyed a number of helicopters and motor vehicles.

The following morning a flag of freedom went up over Lake Village marking the beginning of peaceful living for the citizens of the village. All was not peaceful, however, in many of the other villages within the province.

Attacks by guerrillas were reported on the villages of Holston and Hadnot, with the latter reporting the kidnapping of the mayor's son. Village officials were also dissatisfied with the civil relations thus far set up by the MEB.

Governor Reyes strongly resented the assignment of a "lowly lieutenant" to serve as liaison between the Governor and the 4th MEB Commander. The sensitive Governor instructed his populace not to actively cooperate with the friendly forces until the lieutenant was replaced by an officer of higher rank and influence.

It was this civilian resistance, coupled with highly effective hit-and-run strikes by guerrilla forces that caused a near stalemate in sentiment in his favor when he assigned a civil affairs expert to assist Governor Pablo Reyes in establishing a provincial government. Gifts of food supplies, medical aid and the return of the kidnaped boy to his mayor-father also helped in building favorable relations between the Tarheel Province citizens and the MEB.

A battle between the Brigade and guerrilla forces turned in favor of the Marines after heavy losses were inflicted on the Guerrillas, reducing their number to a relatively small band of outlaws. Exercise officials estimated that approximately one-third of the original guerrilla band remained intact after the mock-battle.

Jet aircraft and troop laden helicopters assisted the infantry units in reducing the guerrilla activity throughout the province. The infantrymen themselves became swiftly skilled in counter-guerrilla tactics, which they put to very efficient use.

STRETCH OUT—Head mentor for the boxing team, 1st Lt. Charles Lawler gives one of his novice pupils a few pointers in the ring. This will be coach Lawler's second year of coaching the Lejeune Boxing Team.

Camp Lejeune Boxing To Begin This Month

Boxing season has started at Camp Lejeune and with the start, Charles Lawler and Earnest Dawson will begin their usual jobs of coaching and training the boxing team.

1st Lt. Lawler will start his second year as head mentor for the boxing team. Lawler holds from Athens, Alabama where he attended school but didn't get into the sport of boxing until he entered Tennessee Tech in 1957.

In 1958 he was the Tennessee Upper Cumberland champion, a runner-up in the Southern Golden Gloves in 1959, and in 1960 a semi-finalist in the olympic trials.

Last year with the help of Lawler and Dawson the Camp Lejeune team boasted second place in the All-Marine Boxing tournament, plus Mike Adame and Leander Moore, both pupils of Lawler and Dawson, finished as All-Marine Champs.

Lawler and Dawson were also Percy Price's staff, a well known Lejeune boxer who participated in the 1960 Olympics.

Screening for the boxing team started last week with 15 candidates showing up. Three of the 15 have previous boxing experience. Coach Lawler hopes to have at least 20 men out for the team this year. There will be an open and novice team with 10 men to each team.

The screening will consist of running and light bag work for the first week, with the actual sparring starting in the second week.

Lawler stated that "This is a good year for boxing because we have the Olympics coming up again and I am going to do all I can to put as many of my boxers in there as possible. I am looking forward to a good year."

The Devildogs turned victorious in last Friday's grid battle against Ft. Belvoir, Va., as they creamed the Army eleven 21-0, to rack up their first win of the season.

This game also marks the first of eight East Coast Interservice Conference games.

Featuring a well balanced attack and a bruising defensive team, the Marines led 7-0 in the first half, and came out fired up in the second half to completely dominate the game.

The Devildogs pushed their first TD of the game, and the season, across early in the initial period.

The Marine scoring drive began after the Engineers found themselves in a punting situation on their own 25 yard line. On the snap-back, the charging leatherneck line tore through to block the kick. The Marines then recovered the ball on the Belvoir 26.

Four plays later Art Redden blasted through the line to paydirt. Clark Blake kicked for the extra point, setting the score at 7-0.

Chuck Heard brought sudden disaster to the Engineers on the opening kick-off in the second half. The Devildogs turned victorious in last Friday's grid battle against Ft. Belvoir, Va., as they creamed the Army eleven 21-0, to rack up their first win of the season.

The offense looked better in their first two games, half. Taking the ball on his five yard line, Heard cut to the center of the field to pick up blockers, covered about 15 yards down the middle, then headed to the right side-line. A Marine blocker cut down the last Engineer who could have touched Heard on the 40 yard line and from there it was Heard all the way. His 95 yard touchdown run boosted the score to 13-0, and Blake made the conversion kick.

The Engineers ran one series of plays after Heard's run, then had to punt. The Devildogs returned the kick to their own 34 yard mark to start another scoring drive.

Mixing a series of runs, had considerable success in the air and on the ground.

At the same time, the Devildogs seemed to be hitting hard and getting into the back more. Several times they took the Ft. Belvoir quarter or more yards before they hit him, and once they nailed for a 25 yard loss.

All in all, it looks like the team has started "clicking" and should win some ball games now.

Their next game is DeWitt, Mass., Oct. 13. DeWitt "Hornets" stands at four losses and wins. Ft. Belvoir beat the nets 51-0 two weeks ago.

Players Of The Week

Left halfback Art Redden has been named offensive player of the week for his performance in the Ft. Belvoir game; defensive quarterback Ben Sack was designated defensive player of the week.

Ben Sack

Bernhard "Ben" Sack did an outstanding job as defensive quarterback, diagnosing the offense and calling the defensive formations to meet the attack. He did a fine job linebacking, and led the team in tackles. The 5' 10" defensive ace is from Villanova, Pa.

Art Redden

Redden, a native of Wilmington, Delaware, gained more than 80 yards rushing, averaging 5.6 yards per carry. He played both defense and offense in the game, making runs of 14 yards or more around right end, capitalizing on the bone-rattling blocks of halfback Gary Barnes.

Football History Goes Back Many Centuries

Football has probably the oldest history of any other team sport. The name "football" almost explains its origin. From its title, one can assume that it is played with feet and a ball. The game played today can hardly be described as played with feet and a ball.

The Greeks had a game they called "harpaston". This was played with a ball which could be passed, carried or kicked. In 9 or 28 B. C., the Romans had a game they called "harpum". This game had a team of twenty-seven men and the object was to carry or kick the ball to a designated goal.

The Greeks and the Romans were not the only people who played a game similar to football. The Eskimos and the Polynesians also participated in a game of this style, and not far off from the Irish. Antiquarians state that this sort of game was going on some 2,000 years ago. The Japanese poet, Iwano, back in the B. C. period, wrote of this game.

From the year 217 comes an account of the Britons celebrating the slaying of the Romans by a game resembling football.

In the middle of the sixteenth century, it was a well established and recognized game played by the Britons. Shakespeare in his comedy "The Taming of the Shrew" (act II) wrote: "And round with you, as you round with me. That like a football do spur me thus."

The first picture of a football game on American soil is dated 1806, however, the game was played some thirty years earlier. Another artist drew a picture of a game at Harvard. This was a "class rush" between the freshmen and the sophomores. It looked like

Walsh Designated Head Coach

Coach Walsh has been named head coach for the varsity basketball team.

Although this is his first year as a coach, Walsh has plenty of playing experience. He began competing in organized basketball while in high school, at Trenton, N. J.

After four years on the Trenton Central High School team, Walsh played four more years at Villanova, one year on the Manhattan team, and three seasons on the varsity squad. He played as a center and a forward.

When asked his plans for the coming season, Coach Walsh said that he "would have to wait and see what kind of material I have before I make any plans."

He said he is still out for basketball players, although training began earlier this year.

The New River Officials Association will begin a series of Basketball Officials' clinics tonight at 7:30 at the Pettie Memorial Field house.

organized disorder more than a football game.

November 6, 1869 is a memorable date in the game of football. This was the date that Rutgers and Princeton clashed at New Brunswick, N. J. Each side had a total of 25 men on a team. It was a running kicking, continuous game. However the players could not run with the ball. They had to kick or bat the ball to forward its progress. Actually the game was version of soccer with a few changes. Rutgers won the game, six to four, and became the first college football team in history to defeat another college.

In 1870 Rutgers beat Columbia, six to three, in the only game played that year. No more games were played between colleges until 1872 when Yale and Columbia met. There was no uniformity of rules, the game was mongrelized type of football with rules being determined before the start of the game. No one invented American football. Like baseball, it was developed from many English sources of games resembling each other.

One man, Walter Camp, "The Father of Football," was the great architect of football. In 1871 he wrote the first book on the game. He developed the scrimmage line, the eleven-man team, the signal calling and the quarterback position.

Even more important, he originated the rule whereby the team had to give up the ball unless it was advanced five yards (now ten) by the third down (now fourth). This is the heart of today's game.

The 19th Hole

By BOB SPENCER

TIP OF THE WEEK: Choking up for control.

On many shots you can get better results if you choke up on the club, that is, slide your hands down the grip toward the clubhead.

You will find that a choked grip will help you to force the clubhead through the ball from a heavy lie. It will also improve your accuracy on delicate shots around the green. When I play a delicate chip shot, I often get right down on the "Iron" with the fingers of the right hand, the degree of loft I get depending, of course, on the club I select.

They may be pushed, flicked or squeezed. For example when the situation calls for chipping the ball up in the air quickly, you will get greater success if you use a light grip and more wrist action at impact. But where you have an unobstructed chip shot, keep the wrists fairly stiff, as you would in putting.

You will find that it is quite easy to "scoop up" the ball from a down-the-grip position, and such shots feel as if the ball were thrown under-hand.

Practice using every club with a choke grip. There's more than just one way to maneuver a golf ball around and through the green.

Next week's tip: Pitching for Bitter.

Rod & Gun Club

The Camp Lejeune Rod and Gun Club will hold their monthly meeting tonight at 7 p.m. at the club house located on French Creek. All hunters are cordially invited to attend.

Sit-Ups No Chore For Drill Instructor

An unofficial world sit-up record was set at Parris Island recently by Marine Cpl. Wayne Rollings, a drill instructor at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, The Ellmore, S. C., native accomplished the feat by doing 5,000 consecutive sit-ups in a period of 2 hours, 26 minutes.

The previous known record was 3,033.

Rollings, who began his sit-ups at 8:13 a. m., was shooting for 4,500 but, at the 4,450 mark, he decided to for 5,000. He finished at 10:39 a. m.

He maintained a steady pace throughout, doing 2,053 during the first hour, 2,040 during the second hour, and 907 during the final 26 minutes.

The 22-year-old five foot, eight inch Marine weighed in at 178 pounds and lost nine pounds during the almost two and one half hour stint. As he stood up, his only comment was that he "felt a little dizzy."

Official verifier for the event was Rollings' series officer, 1st Lt. W. R. McAdams of Atlanta, Ga., who stated that "Rollings is in the best shape of any drill instructor I have ever seen here."

Official counters were SSgt. Paul Fulton of Charleston, W. Va., Sgt. Dave Jones of Maringo, Indiana, and Sgt. Tom Sheridan of Brooklyn, N. Y., all stationed at PI.

Rollings is a junior drill instructor with Plt. 262, "K" Company, 2nd RTB. He enlisted in the Marine Corps June 27, 1960 at Greenville, S. C.

Lejeune Sgt. Emerges On Top In Pl Pistol Match

Marine SSgt. Donnie Romine, Hq. Co., 6th Marines, 2d Mar. Div., who has been shooting competitively for just two years, won the individual title at the 1963 South Carolina State Pistol Championships held at Parris Island.

At the conclusion of the matches, Romine was presented a replica of the Bergard G. Betke Cup by the retired Marine championship shooter after whom it is named. A replica is awarded to the state champion each year.

Romine, who is from Camp Lejeune, fired a grand aggregate score of 2580-92X, three points better than runner-up SSgt. Jake Wise of the 2d Marine Aircraft Wing, Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, who had a 2577-83X.

Rounding out the top six were GySgt. Albert Froede, 2d FSR Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, 2576-69X; Sgt. A. B. Moore, 12th Army Corps, Atlanta, Ga., 2565-83X; Chief Warrant Officer Anthony Mucci, Parris Island, 2554-84X; and Cpl. Vincent Fuller, Rifle Range Detachment, Camp Lejeune, 2553-75X.

Top civilian shooter was Eddie Bradley of Savannah, Ga., with a 2540-80X score which took 11th place in a field of 70 shooters. Next was retired Navy chief Norm Walters of Charleston, S. C., with a 2510-73X for 20th place.

State champion Romine copied second places in the .22 caliber aggregate and the center fire aggregate and third place in the .45 caliber aggregate to prove the most consistent shooter overall during the championships. Froede copied the .22 aggregate, Mucci the center fire, and Wise the .45 caliber.

The Second Marine Aircraft Wing won the team competition with a 3382-98X aggregate, followed by Second Marine Division, from Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, at 3374-97X.

Other competition during the championships included the individual .45 caliber hardball match, won by Wise with a 282-8X score, and the team hardball match, won by Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, with a 1097-21X.

Also fired was the S. C. State Pistol Match by a 11 man team composed of state residents. This match, fired over the .22 caliber National Match Course, was in competition against similar squads from the other 49 states. The S. C. team posted a 2822-78X score with Mucci's 295-14X leading the way.

Camp Lejeune Observes Natl. School Lunch Week

The Congress of the United States by a joint resolution has designated a week known as National School Lunch Week.

The week of October 13-19 has been set as National School Lunch Week in recognition of the services rendered the youth through the school lunch program.

The primary purpose of the lunch program is to safeguard the health and well-being of the school children by making available to them nutritionally adequate lunches each day.

The Camp Lejeune Lunch-room Program teaches the pupils the importance of a balanced school lunch. Instead of eating snacks all the time, students are taught to eat regular meals that have the necessary vitamins and proteins.

During National School Lunch Week parents of Camp Lejeune students are invited to have lunch at the cafeteria where their children attend school. There they will observe the facilities of the cafeteria and the methods of food preparation.

MSgt. Follis Commended By Base CG

One day last week Maj. Gen. A. L. Bowser was flying from his Headquarters at Hadnot Point to Camp Geiger by helicopter when he saw something which merited special attention.

While passing over the quarters area at Berkeley Manor he noticed a house with the grounds surrounding it presenting an outstanding appearance.

Not knowing the identity of the occupant of these quarters, the general requested that Base Sergeant Major R. O. Baker find out who lived there.

This action led to a commendatory letter from General Bowser to Master Sergeant Norman J. Follis.

The letter stated in part, "You have set a high standard for your neighbors to copy. Additionally, you have the satisfaction of knowing that your quarters present an outstanding appearance to anyone who sees them."

Arriving Friday evening, the Scouts will be met at the Main Gate and will proceed to main-side for an evening meal and billeting.

After breakfast early Saturday morning, two groups of the scouts, accompanied by an escort officer will visit the 2d AmTrac Bn., and Marine Corps Engineer Schools, Courthouse Bay, eat lunch there, observe Karate demonstrations, then return to main-side again for evening meal and a trip to one of the base movies.

On Sunday morning, the Scouts will have the opportunity to attend church services of their choice, and will depart on the return trip to Raleigh.

Marines Agree On UF; One Donation Aids All

The opinions of Camp Lejeune Marines sampled by the GLOBE show that they agree that their one contribution to the United Fund helps all Marines. Their opinions are reported below.

Col. H. E. L. Zastrow, HQMC Liaison Officer and United Fund Campaign Director:

"Those organizations which benefit the Marines at Camp Lejeune most directly are the American Red Cross, the local USO and the Jacksonville, Swansboro and Holly Ridge Rescue Squads.

The other agencies may affect us directly or may be of dependents, relatives or friends.

Those funds which are used to assist the remaining agencies are used for purposes which at any time may be of direct benefit to us or our dependents. In the case of Carolinas United, the funds are utilized for larger scale programs which do assist us directly in many cases, and in some instances are reflected in support of local organizations, particularly the USO."

Pvt. Earl C. Terry, Jr., Truck Co. H&S Bn., 2d FSR: "I like the United Fund because it covers in one collection many organizations. It keeps the small foundations from coming right behind one another asking for donations when Marines do not have the money to give.
