HONORABLE TERRY SANFORD

Base Commander Proclaims October 6 'Governor's Day'

North Carolina's Governor, Terry Sanford will make his first official visit to Camp Lejeune Oct. 5 and 6 with an extensive base tour and inter-service football classic highlighting his stay.

In honor of the Governor, Maj. Gen. James P. Berkeley, base commander, has proclaimed Oct. 6 as "Governor's Day."

Following arrival and review of military honors at the Air Facility, New River, the Governor will attend a briefing at Camp Geiger conducted by Lt. Col. Lawrence W. Smith, Jr., commanding officer, 1st Infantry Training Regiment and his staff officers.

The briefing will include the mission of the training facility and will be succeeded by live demonstrations at the infiltration course, the flamethrower firing area and Leadville.

At Leadville, Governor Sanford will witness combat and assault techniques in built-up areas, under actual war-like situations by more than 100 Marines of "O" Co., 2d Battalion commanded by 1st Lt. Gerald R. Weidner.

During the afternoon, the Governor, accompanied by Maj. Gen. Frederick L. Wieseman, 2d Division commander, will see a Battalion Landing Team static display conducted by the 1st Battalion, 8th Marines under the command of Lt. Col. James E. Wilson, Jr.

Rounding out a busy day, the Governor will travel to Service Battalion commanded by Col. James A. Donovan, Jr., where he will tour the mount-out warehouse and be briefed on the Division's preparedness.

Saturday morning, Governor Sanford will attend the Camp Lejeune Fort Belvoir football game, where he will be honored during special half-time ceremonies.

Featuring the music of "The March King," John Phillip Sousa, former leader of the Marine Corps Band, local bands will present a "Band-O-Rama" during the ceremonies.

Half-time music will include, "Semper Fidelis," "Old North State," "High School Cadets," "The Thunderer," "The Liberty Bell,"

"Manhattan Beach" and "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Participating bands will consist of the 2d Division band along with Lejeune, Jacksonville, Richlands, Georgetown, Kenansville, Beaufort and Edenton High Schools.

United Fund Helps Area

The 1962 Camp Lejeune-Onslow County United Fund campaign got underway last Monday with the first donation of $50.00 coming from Mr. Robert L. Williams of the First Citizens Bank and Trust Company, Camp Lejeune.

Unit key-men are now canvassing their organizations to bring this year's goal of $106,500 well over the mark. As of GLOBE press-time no unit totals had been established.

However, both Lt. Col. J. P. Wilson, Camp Lejeune Chairman and Mr. Robert Mendelson of Jacksonville feel this year's drive will exceed the some $4,000 collected above the 1961 goal.

Starting in next week's GLOBE will be a series of articles, explaining the benefits derived from each organization sharing in the United Fund.

as Mailing Begins Soon

Period Nov. 1-20 has been set for mailing of Christmas parcels by surface transport to members of our Armed Forces overseas. For airmail the Dec. 1-10. Greeting cards to Armed Forces overseas are mailed within the period designated for parcels if they have a reasonable expectation of delivery prior to Christmas.

Parcels should be packed in wood, metal, solid fiberboard or strong doubled-faced corrugated fiberboard. Fiberboard boxes should be wrapped in heavy paper to materially strengthen them. Each box should be well packed and tightly filled, so it is unlikely to be crushed.

Use cushioning material to prevent any or loosening of articles in the package.

Showing a list of contents of the package should be enclosed with the parcel.

'Proud Of Marines,' Says Gov. Sanford

Since the early days of World War II, Camp Lejeune has served as one of the strong posts in the line of defense of freedom for America and for the entire free world. Marines trained at Camp Lejeune helped win the island battles in the Pacific. During the Korean War, Marines trained at Camp Lejeune helped stop the Communist aggression. On numerous occasions, when the Cold War has begun to heat up, Marines from Camp Lejeune have been at the trouble spots to help cool them down again.

North Carolina is proud of the part which Marines from a base in our State have taken in the front lines of freedom.

This State also is fully aware of the tremendous impact which Camp Lejeune has on the economy of Eastern North Carolina. We know that some $120 million a year is pumped into the economic life stream of this State by payrolls and purchases at Camp Lejeune. We know of the tremendous amounts of money for construction. We know that the military and civilian population of Camp Lejeune makes it one of the larger "cities" in our State.

But more beneficial than the payrolls, the vouchers, and construction is the influence of the military personnel of Camp Lejeune in the life of our State through their personal participation in the churches, the schools, and civic organizations.

On behalf of all of the citizens of North Carolina, I am happy to salute the Marines of Camp Lejeune.

Lejeune Kicks Off First Home Game

The Camp Lejeune Marine varsity football team kicks off their 1962 home season as they face the Fort Belvoir Engineers Saturday morning at Liversedge Field.

Winless in two occasions on the road, the Marine varsity, under the direction of Capt. Phil Monahan, will be making their first bid for the East Coast Interservice Conference crown after dropping their first two outings to non-conference members.

In an effort to break into the win column, Monahan, who led an underdog Lejeune Marine team last year to an amazing 8-1 season record and a second place conference berth, plans to start newcomer Tony Harris, a 5'10", 170 lb. graduate from Eastern Kentucky State in the quarterback slot. At halfback, the head coach will remain with Danny Droze on the right side but will switch to Eddie Hatchett on the left side. Monahan will also stick with Bill Tasker at fullback.

The line, averaging 202 lbs per man, boasts four returnees from last year's winning squad. Left end Percy Price will be making his first start this season as is Tom Harwell at left guard. At the tackle slot on the left side is Larry Wagner. The right side of the line lists one returnee from last year, Norm Haffler at guard, in his third season with the Marines. Also bolstering the right side will be Art Whittier at tackle and Ken Williams at end. Dallas Ziebler will handle the center's chores.

This is the first of three consecutive home games for the Lejeune Marines. On successive Saturdays, the Lejeune varsity will play host to Fort Devens and Fort Campbell.

100 To Train HIBRIGLEX-62

Gen. R. McC. Tompkins, assistant division commander, will command the landing force HIBRIGLEX-62. Vice Adm. J. W. Rivero, commander of the Fleet Amphibious Forces, will lead the exercise.

Scheduled to begin Oct. 15, the exercise will be climaxed by a landing on Vieques Island. The maneuvers will include a two-ship water-borne and helicopter assault, involving ships and every type command of the Fleet.

More than 40 ships and 20,000 personnel will take part in the exercise which will end Oct. 30.

According to Admiral Rivero, the exercise is one of a series designed to maintain the readiness of the Marine Corps amphibious

Division, Force Troops Assist In Medical Film

Marines from Force Troops and 2d Division were used in making a series of medical training films at Camp Lejeune in September.

The films, each 20 minute features, and done by Calvin Productions, concern medical aspects of Marine amphibious assaults and were the result of a joint effort of the Commandant of the Marine Corps and the Navy Bureau of Medicine.

They are the end result of a report made in 1957 to SHAPE Headquarters by Col. William P. Oliver, Jr., presently commanding officer of 10th Marines, and Capt.

George Donabedian, MC, USN, medical officer at Headquarters Marine Corps.

The script was written from this report by Col. Oliver and Capt. Donabedian who with Francis Blake, Bureau of Medicine were technical advisers.

The four films are being made for the training of medical teams who support assault troops in amphibious operations, and include aspects of the organization of air-ground assaults, general and special situations, medical planning and condition of landings.

Marines of the 8th Marines, and 2d Medical Bn., were employed in filming the assault scene at Onslow Beach and the old OE Strip.

Force Troops Marines were used in scenes at the U. S. Naval Headquarters' in the mythical country of Gallia.

Films on Cold War Available From Library

The Training Aids Library has received two new films of general interest for all units at Camp Lejeune.

These films may be checked out from the Training Aids Library Bldg. 67 by utilizing Form MCBCL-1 signed by your training officer.

MF 7-9848 "The Village That Refuses to Die." This is a documentary on the work of Father Nguyen Lac Hoa at Binh Hung, South Vietnam. The dynamic leadership of Father Hoa and the spirited determination of his people have made the village of Binh Hung a tiny oasis of freedom against attack and infiltration of Communist guerrilla forces. After two and one half years of resistance, Binh Hung has become a moving force in the battle for men's minds. Details of civil as well as military counterinsurgency actions of Father Hoa's forces are shown and compared with Communist activities. The political, military, and economic inroads being made in this area to gain the confidence and cooperation of the peasants in the fight against the Communist threat are highlighted. (Adopted Commercial Film) B&W — 54 min.).

MF 7-9744 "Counterinsurgency." This film describes the Army's role and missions in counterinsurgency, and appraises the importance of the U. S. counterinsurgency policy to the national security and the Free World. The nature, causes and history of insurgency since 1945 are reviewed. Examples of insurgency are cited to underscore the major reasons for insurgent movements in foreign lands, and the strategy used to gain the entrenchment of Communist doctrine and rule. The positive nature, scope, and military-civilian teamwork of the U. S. counterinsurgency program in foreign countries are described. Particular focus is placed on work of MAAG in implementing its dual mission: 1) to increase the combat capability of indigenous forces and 2) to advise the local forces on how to gain the support of the civilian population against insurgent elements. The effectiveness of these military teams in helping the indigenous people in underdeveloped areas to gain a better way of life and to preserve their liberty is emphasized. (B&W — 21 min.).

During World War II, individual Marines were assigned special missions with underground units in Europe.

Shipp, Dykes Named Honor Men At School

Less than fourteen hundredth of one percent separated two Camp Lejeune Marines who led the recently graduated Personnel Administration Class at Parris Island. Sgt. Alvin W. Shipp had 96.65% and second place SSgt. Henry J. Dykes, 96.51%.

One of the highest class averages for the Personnel Administration Courses was recorded by this class with the top 20 men all in the 90 percent average area.

With the ending of this class the nine-week period of schooling also ended. Starting with the next class the course will be cut to eight weeks.

Subjects covered include office management, personnel accounting, officer and enlisted records, separation and discharge, correspondence and publications.

Sergeant Shipp, enlisted in the Marine Corps at Atlanta, Ga., in July 1954. He is serving with the 2d Bridge Company, Force Troops at Camp Lejeune.

SSgt. Dykes enlisted in the Marine Corps in July 1954 at Jacksonville, Fla. He is a member of 2d Force Service Regiment.

Force Troops Helps Honor Lowly Mules

Beauty queens, mules, floats, horses, high school bands, a football game and the Force Troops Drum and Bugle Corps helped Benson, N. C., celebrate its 75th anniversary and honor the lowly mule.

Farmers instituted "Mule Day" in 1949 when tractors began to replace the mule. It was decided to honor the mule as a symbol of the changing times.

In addition to the parade and concert, the Drum and Bugle Corps, led by Sgt. William Aliferis, put on a half-time drill exhibition between halves of the Benson-Millbrook high schools.

The Marines were treated to an old-fashioned barbecue and played a final concert for the lowly mule.

The tune most favored by the mules?

"Donkey Serenade," of course.

MSgt. J. W. Cain Receives Citation

On the eve of his departure for Newfoundland, MSgt. Jesse W. Cain of the East Coast Food Services Team was awarded a meritorious mast by Col. Rodney M. Handley, head of Marine Corps Supply Schools.

According to his citation, Cain earned this recognition for "having proven himself to be a Marine of outstanding ability" as the team's bakery instructor. He displayed "exceptional skill in organizing and supervising personnel," the citation continued, and in order to teach better he devoted long hours to research.

The sergeant accompanies the team to Marine installations throughout the East demonstrating the latest cooking, baking, meat cutting and mess management techniques to cooks and bakers. BLT 2-6 Joins With Greek, Turkish Forces For Landing

By SSGT. E. D. BREY

WITH THE SIXTH FLEET IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, KAVALLA, GREECE (Delayed) — Top ranking military leaders of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization watched Marines of Battalion Landing Team 2/6 storm ashore here Sept. 25 in a full-scale amphibious landing operation during NATO exercise FALL TRAP.

King Paul of Greece watched parts of the operation from ships of the Royal Hellenic Navy participating in the exercise and paid an afternoon visit to the spectator stands.

The Marines, acting in conjunction with Allied forces in NATO's Southern region, kicked off operation FALL TRAP with a two-pronged assault using both helicopters and water-borne craft.

Operation FALL TRAP is one of a series of NATO training exercises planned during the past year under the coordination of Lt. Gen. Frederic J. Brown, USA, commander, Allied Land Forces, Southeastern Europe.

The multi-nation force included ships of the United Kingdom, the Royal Navy, and the U. S. Sixth Fleet (including the world's only nuclear-powered aircraft carrier—the USS Enterprise); the Sixth Allied Tactical Air Force, the United Kingdom's 16th Parachute Brigade, the Royal Air Force's 38th Air Transport Group, the First Hellenic Army, the First Turkish Army, a joint Greek-Turkish landing force, U. S. Navy Amphibious Squadron Six, and the Marines of Battalion Landing Team 2/6.

The Marines' part in the exercise was to establish a beachhead on territory held by the "enemy aggressors" in northern Greece between the Struma and Axios Rivers. A follow-up force of Greek and Turkish troops under the command of Col. V. Alpogan, Turkish Army, landed in the beachhead and relieved the Marines on line that afternoon.

In addition to King Paul, the more than 250 observers included Greek Minister of Defense Kunderos; Sir Hugh Stockwell, Deputy Supreme Allied Commander for Europe; Adm. James S. Russell, Commander-in-Chief, Allied Forces, Southern Europe; Air Vice Marshal P. G. Wykeham, Director of the United Kingdom Joint War Staff; Lt. Gen. Frederic J. Brown; Vice Adm. David L. McDonald, USN, Commander, U. S. Sixth Fleet, and Naval Striking and Support Forces, Southern Europe and Lt. Gen. Peter Sakellariou (Greece), Commanding General, Hellenic First Army.

After being relieved by the Turkish and Greek follow-up forces, Battalion Landing Team 2/6 reembarked aboard the ships of Amphibious Squadron Six for departure from the area.

Rangefinder Being Tested

MARINE CORPS SCHOOLS, QUANTICO, VA. — A lightweight rangefinder which will enable a forward observer to fix any target's exact position is now under consideration by the Marine Corps. Known as the Laser Rangefinder, and under development by the Army, it is an optical radar which emits a high energy light ray of extremely short duration — about a billionth of a second. Local studies are being made by the Marine Corps Equipment Board here.

This new equipment may possess high potential value to artillery units or other organizations concerned with distance measuring activities.

In functioning, the ray is aimed at a target, "illuminating" it for detection by the Laeser's receiver. Such illumination is not noticeable to human eye; but the receiver can measure the light's traveling time to the target, translating the time into range.

This metrical range is presented directly to the operator, who uses it and his compass to "plot" the targets location.

When development is completed, transmitter and receiver will be contained in a single item resembling a large shotgun and weighing approximately 20 pounds.

Rise In World; Join Lejeune's Mountain Club

Do you like to climb? Are you interested in aspiring to greater heights?

A mountain climbing club is in the process of being formed at Camp Lejeune, with the big problem being that of finding enough interested personnel so that the organization can become a reality.

SSgt. Joseph W. Lonton, a graduate of the Mountain Leadership Course in Bridgeport, Calif., came up with the idea of a club. He said that when the club was formed there was much experience to be gained by members.

A formal letter requesting permission to form the club was forwarded to the Division commander, Maj. Gen. F. L. Wieseman, who approved the idea provided enough Marines participate to make the club a success and worthwhile as a volunteer project.

The present requirements call for "preferably graduates of the Mountain Leadership Course at Bridgeport or experienced climbers." Sergeant Lonton said the club is strictly voluntary and that while beginners will be welcome at a later date, it is felt that safety is a prime factor and after the club has more experienced climbers, then a beginners class would begin.

The club's goal is to have one man in each company or three or four in each battalion. The participant would learn how to build rope bridges, use vertical hauling lines, rappelling (lowering lines and having members descending), cliff evacuation (removing casualties from mountains), and naturally, climbing.

Further information can be obtained by calling Sergeant Lonton at 7-3539 during working hours and 346-4370 after working hours. SSgt. John Grubbs, at 7-3190, is also available for information.

Trac Bn. Holds Training Problem

Amphibian Tractor Battalion, held its training problem in the Mile Ham area last week for a battalion exercise. The battalion out, moved en masse to set up tactical defenses around post, and, at 2 a.m. morning of September 27, tactical displacement of the total blackout conditions distance of some five to 10 miles the move, they were by aggressors with tear gas and use of guerrilla and guerrilla tactics. The exercise was held for the entire battalion in February 1962; since that time there has been nearly a 100 percent turnover in personnel, except for the "hard core professionals"—the LVT commanders and senior SNCOs. The great turnover is due to the nature of the training facilities at Camp Lejeune for amphibious vehicles.

NCOs Have To Work If They Want Prestige

Many times we Marine non-commissioned officers ask ourselves, "What has happened to the prestige of the NCO's?" Perhaps the best way to get the answer to this question is to analyze our own actions . . . as NCO's.

The prestige is still there, as much as ever, to be enjoyed by us if we desire it.

To begin with, no single factor has been more detrimental to the NCO's prestige than the NCO himself. Many of us, young and old alike, acquire the attitude that with each promotion comes less work and responsibility. The opposite is true. Each promotion warrant which we receive should inspire us to be more exact in our responsibilities to subordinates. Yes, responsibilities TO our subordinates.

Let's read between the lines on that piece of paper. It means much more than a pay raise. Each step up the ladder tells us that the Marine Corps has more trust and confidence in our abilities. And below us, our charges look increasingly toward us for decisions and, more importantly, pace-setting examples.

Remember how we, as "boots," looked to our D.I. for guidance and examples because we wanted to become Marines? After all, we couldn't just go to San Diego or Parris Island, pick up a copy of the Guidebook for Marines, spend 12 weeks reading and expect to walk out the gate as competent, professional members of the greatest fighting machine on earth. Nor did we reach that goal during recruit training even with all the splendid instruction and training we did receive during that brief span in our lives.

After boot camp we became increasingly aware of the tremendous amount of various facets of our profession we had yet to learn. For guidance, we looked to the NCO's and tried to emulate them.

Just as we scrutinized our superiors, we are being scrutinized today by the men we are leading. In order to gain the confidence and respect of these men, we must lead, guide and set examples for them to follow. We must be the kind of Marine they will try to pattern themselves after.

Many of us who complain about our loss of prestige have brought it upon ourselves by lack of firmness. Remember the three F's of good leadership . . . Firm, Fair and Friendly? They apply today as much as ever before.

When we instruct Pvt. Joe Blow to fall out tomorrow morning with shined shoes and then fail to inspect his shoes that morning, we are inviting his contempt and distrust. When we order a subordinate to do something we must follow through to see that it is done. Pvt. Blow expects it, that's why he joined the Corps. He doesn't expect things to be easy.

The better leaders we become, the more faith our leaders will have in us and, consequently the more prestige we will regain. Prestige is not something to be complained about but rather, something to strive for. We can have it if we are willing to work for it.

If You Ask Me:

WHICH OFFICERS' TRAINING PROGRAM DID YOU CHOOSE AND WHY?

1st Lt. R. H. TAYLOR, Executive Officer, Hq. Co., MCB—I don't believe many officers were fortunate enough to be able to select an officer program. Usually it was a case of which program the person was qualified for. I was commissioned under what is now the Career NCO program. I had been in the Marine Corps for eight years at the time and had made TSgt. E-6. It was, and still is, my desire to advance myself as far as possible in my chosen profession.

WO DOROTHY L. VOLLMER, Personnel Officer, MCB—Women Marine NCOs are limited in the number and variety of programs offered to them. Women Marine Staff NCOs with over 10 years' service are further limited to one program, Phase II of the WO and LDO Program. My application in this program was motivated by a desire for continual advancement. It is my belief that a person should strive to do her very best in everything she undertakes and endeavor to advance as far as her capabilities will allow.

2d Lt. M. R. ARNOLD, Assistant ISO Officer—My first step toward a commission was through the Phase I Warrant Officer Program. I chose this program because I was too old for any other officer program except the Limited Duty Officer Program and at that time didn't have the necessary active duty for LDO. I had reached master sergeant and intended to serve 10 or 12 more years in the Corps. I felt that it was only natural and desirable that a career Marine continually try to advance in rank as well as in other ways, and I believed that the Warrant Officer Program would increase my chances of gaining an LDO commission. I now feel sure that my selection as a Limited Duty Officer was largely due to my success in the Warrant Officer Program. To any young Marines who want a commission I strongly recommend that they see their Career Advisory NCOs and learn what programs they can qualify for and apply as often as they are eligible. I was selected for warrant officer the fifth time I applied.

2d Lt. THOMAS R. HORN, Platoon Commander, 8" HOW. Btry.—I received my commission via Naval Enlisted Education Program. While attending college I received full pay with allowances. The program also paid for books and tuition. It is the only program open to both high school and bachelor's degree holders which leads to a commission and diploma. It's a golden opportunity for who qualify.

1st Lt. CLYDE O. CHILDRESS, Hq. Co., MCB—I chose the Marine Aviation Cadet Program because it led to a goal that I had always dreamed of. Since I was knee-high to a grasshopper I have wanted to be a pilot and when I heard of the MarCad Program I knew that it was for me. It is a great program and I recommend it to all Marines who meet the requirements and have the desire to be a Marine Officer and aviator.

2d Lt. W. N. SILVEY, Deputy District Officer—Women Officers Training Program—With the exception of the Navy Enlisted Scientific Education Program, WOTC is the only program which appoints women to commissioned grade in the USMCR which is open to a female Enlisted Marine under two years' service. Had there been a more varied series of programs, I believe I would still have chosen WOTC. While the program is designed to produce a well-rounded basic officer with stress on development of the requisite for military leadership, it provides enlightenment in areas peculiar to women. Regardless of the extent of a woman officer's specialization during her military career, the somewhat general firm background she receives in the program remains invaluable to her.

The Marine Corps last week published a new policy relative to annual flying requirements for aviators.

The policy, promulgated by Marine Corps Order 3710.1, emphasizes that aviators, regardless of duty assignment, are encouraged to gain operational and productive flying experience in order to enhance their professional competence and combat readiness.

The order further specifies that proficiency flying is to be accomplished only when no other flying is available. It also establishes guidelines for flying performance related to duty assignments.

Marine Brig. Gen. Lewis J. Jones was promoted to major general by Col. William K. Jones was advanced to brigadier general during ceremonies held at Headquarters Marine Corps October 1.

A three-day conference, called to insure orderly transition of the A2F Intruder and the F4H Phantom into Marine aviation, will begin at Headquarters Marine Corps, October 23.

Representatives from the Air Wings and Stations will discuss potential problems which may arise when the new aircraft are introduced to Marine squadrons. Problems which have occurred during the recent phase-in of the F4H Phantom will also be considered.

Actual phase-in dates of the Intruder and Sea Knight aircraft are not yet firm.

In these days the word "radar" is a word to conjure with. Hardly a day passes that we do not read of some almost unbelievable feat performed through the modern miracle of radar. Missiles are guided to their destination, space vehicles are tracked in their orbits, aircraft are brought to safe landings, beams are even bounced off the moon.

Radar exposes itself to sounds which come from outside itself. In this sense, it is an "outer-directed" instrument. It performs its mission with an amazing degree of competency, and for that we are grateful.

But if we apply this principle to ourselves we do not come off quite so well. Many of us are also "outer-directed," living as though we had a radar set fastened to our heads telling us what others expect of us. We get our motives from others. We can respond, but cannot choose.

One of the biggest questions of your life is whether your motivations come from inside or outside yourself. Do you simply conform, or are you directed by inner aims and purposes and devotions? St. Paul had a word on this problem. He wrote: "Be not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed by the renewal of your mind." St. Paul never heard of radar, but his words apply to the matter of being a "radar person." Life's great art is the renewal of mind and spirit which is dedicated not to the conforming, but to the transforming, of life.

Field Inspection

WITH THE 10TH MARINES AT FT. BRAGG, N. C., Sept. 28 — Marines on an ARMY post?

That's right, and they are at Fort Bragg, N. C., on the average of twice each year.

Commanded by Col. William P. Oliver Jr., the 10th Marines, 2d Marine Division, wound up its second Field Firing Exercise this year last Friday at the Army installation. The unit conducted its 10-day Exercise in two phases

Reservist Speaks

"Great," is what Pvt. Gary L. Lacock, one of the nearly 20 six-month active duty Reservists training with the Regiment, had to say about the first phase of training.

"I feel I am really lucky to have received the training at Fort Bragg that I did. I know the other members of my Reserve unit haven't had one-tenth the practical training on the guns that I have, and I know I am better prepared now to do my job in the Marine Corps thanks to the training I have received while with the 10th Marines," the young Iowa Marine concluded.

During this phase, which began on Sept. 18, the individual battalions and batteries improved their combat capabilities by holding extensive precision artillery firing and registration exercises.

Night Displacements

The exercises included high burst artillery registration, center of impact registration, illumination missions, air observation missions including artillery registration, construction of observed artillery firing charts, and radar missions on unobserved and uncharted targets. Each of the battalions and batteries also conducted night displacements utilizing blackout night driving in convoy and tactical occupation of observation posts

Throughout the first phase of training "Battery Tests" were held. Firing batteries from each of the four battalions were tested for proficiency, accuracy and speed by a select group of 10th Marine officers and enlisted men.

"The Battery Tests were fabulous," said A. Trimble, a Marine Reservist. "It showed us what could be accomplished through teamwork and it also showed us the importance of a gun and it also showed us the importance of a gun."

egg For Big-Bore Shoot

Exercise which combined all of the previous training and practice and put it to practical use under combat conditions. The operation emphasized employment of artillery in direct, reinforcing, and general support roles. Also during this phase, the individual battalions and batteries were utilized by the Regimental Headquarters to receive the maximum amount of controlled accurate fire which each unit could provide.

CG Visit

One of the highlights of the Exercise was a visit Sept. 28 by Maj. Gen. Frederick L. Wieseman, Commanding General of the 2d Marine Division. The General visited each of the battalion areas, several gun emplacements, and was given a run-down of the Regiment's activities at Ft. Bragg.

Field life was made a little more like "home life" by the Regiment's supporting detachments from other 2d Division units and Force Troops. There were field kitchens which served hot meals to the artillerymen, impromptu barber shops, hot showers supplied by members of 2d Service Battalion, and helicopter and aerial observation support from VMO of the New River Air Facility.

Religious services were also held in the field on Sunday Sept. 23. Lt. Cmdr. J. W. Wagenseil, Chaplain's Corps, USMR, the Regimental Chaplain, officiated at Protestant services while one of Ft. Bragg's Army Chaplains conducted the Roman Catholic services. Members of the Jewish faith were afforded the opportunity to attend services at the post's Main Camp.

Return to Camp

With the conclusion of the FFEX, the Regiment returned to Camp Lejeune Sept. 29 confident it was better equipped to fulfill its obligations as the artillery arm of the 2d Marine Division.

Division Grid Win Sparked By Last Minute Touchdown

Roddy Fain's dramatic last-minute touchdown gave the undefeated 1st Battalion, 22d Marines, a thrilling 31-30 victory over 2d Service Battalion last week highlighting activities in the intra-division six-man tackle football league.

The men from the 22d are currently tied for first place with Headquarters Battalion, who trounced Hq. Co., 8th Marines, 25-0, on Sept. 26. Both 1/22 and Hq. Bn. are 2-0 on the year. In the other game played last week, Duane Horton's running gave the 2d Bn., 8th Marines, a close 14-12 verdict over a hard-fighting 3d Bn., 6th Marines.

Before Fain closed the book on Service Battalion, 1/22 was losing the game, 30-25. Then, with less than a minute remaining in the contest, halfback Fain caught quarterback Tom Stewart's long pass and went charging over for the winning touchdown. Marvin Brice contributed two TD's for the winners, while Allen Minor and Jack Goen scored one each. Stewart also ran for an extra point. Defensively for the newly reactivated battalion, linebacker Frank Williams and middle guard Elmer Hall were outstanding. A brilliant 70-yard run by Gene Harris resulted in one Service Battalion touchdown; others were scored by Buck Strauss, Al Robbins and "Hoss" Cartwright. Billy Lynch, Dennis Vance and George Taliaferro were other individual stars for the losers.

The hard-charging Headquarters Battalion six, led by Jim Plautz's three touchdowns, also kept its unbeaten record intact by wallowing Hq. Co., 8th Marines, 25-0. Plautz carried for two TD's and caught a pass from quarterback Frank Toldo for the other. Big Bob Vann, Hq. Bn.'s centerman-coach, charged across for the other tally. Al Sims ran for an extra point in the winning effort. Defensively, Jim Brandon III, John Andresek, Isaac Turpin and Bill Dube preserved the shutout. For the losers, Don Johnson, Howard

Greene and Bob Jones were outstanding.

Duane Horton's brilliant all-around playing, which included the scoring of 13 of his team's 14 points, gave 2d Bn., 8th Marines, their 14-12 victory over the 3d Bn., 6th Marines. Horton grabbed 3/6's kickoff in the late minutes of the 4th quarter and stamped 75 yards to put 2/8 into a 13-12 lead. Moments later, he scored the extra point, and 2/8 never looked back. Fritz Tener completed the scoring for the winners by running for the other point. For Bob Lucas' 6th Marines, Paul Caradoza scored both touchdowns, with Billy Jackson and Ben Sack shining on defense.

Lejeune Cage Team Announces Practice

Base Special Services has encouraged all interested personnel to try out for the Camp Lejeune varsity basketball team.

Tryouts will be held from Oct. 8 through 19, beginning at 1 p.m. daily. All interested personnel are requested to report to Goettge Memorial Field House, Bldg. 751, equipped with basketball shoes, trunks, socks, supporters and towels which will be provided by their unit Special Services.

The Lejeune cagers, third place finishers in the East Coast Interservice Conference last year, under Jack Whelan, will be sparked by Art Musselman, a former college star with The Citadel and a member of the 1961 All-Marine Quantico cage team. He was also selected for a berth on the National AAU team for his performance in the National AAU championships last season at Denver, Colo.

'Pups Tackle Swansboro Hi Friday Night

After sneaking past highly touted Beaufort High School last Saturday night with a 14-6 upset victory, Coach Tom McGhee's unbeaten Camp Lejeune Devilpups invade Swansboro tomorrow evening as they attempt to post their fifth consecutive victory of the current season and their 19th straight win over the past three years.

In last week's upset victory over Beaufort, the Devilpups fought right down to the wire, pushing across a tally as the game ended, to move in front of Beaufort's Seadogs, by the 14-6 final margin.

The 'Pups, once again paced by the passing arm of Jim Barrett, took an early lead in the action by scoring on the fifth play of the game.

With nine minutes remaining in the initial quarter, Barrett, one of the best signal callers in the state, burst over left tackle and scampered 36 yards for the first score. He also added the extra point pushing the underdog Devilpups in front, 7-0.

Completely dominating play in the second quarter, Beaufort set up their only score of the night, capping a 69-yard drive in 14 plays, with star halfback Gene Mason carrying to paydirt from one yard out. On the try for the extra point, the Seadogs sent Walt House around right end, but the ball carrier ran into the outstretched arms of Jim Barrett and Lejeune maintained their slim 7-6 margin.

The third and fourth quarter were almost a complete standstill, with both teams being forced to punt occasionally.

Turning Point

With a little more than four minutes remaining in the contest, Buddy McAlee stopped the Seadog's final drive when he intercepted a forward pass on the Devilpup 20-yard stripe.

With the clock moving, the 'Pups, behind the hard running of halfbacks Rick Lowder and Al Kyle, moved up-field and within scoring distance.

After Lowder, slanting off right guard, picked up seven yards and moved the ball to the three, Kyle blasted through the center of the line with the game ending tally as the clock ran out. Barrett added the extra point to close out the scoring.

The New York Yankees were the first team in the Major League to win the pennant five years in succession.

HEMMEED IN—After picking up six yards on an end sweep, jeune High signal caller Jim Barrett runs into the Beaufort secondary and is stopped cold. Hampered in his usual passing, a hard rushing Beaufort line, Barrett stayed on the ground, led the Devilpups in rushing with 85 yards in 16 carries during the contest. 'Devil-Clerks' Still Unbeaten In Force Troops Grid Play

By JERRY SIMMONS Force Troops ISO

Headquarters, Force Troops, paced by quarterback Ralph Brown, end Bill Jenkins and defense men Lou Santangelo, Bob Brewster and Keith Weeks, extended their unbeaten skein in the Force Troops Intramural Touch Football League last week as they downed 8th Comm. Bn., 19-6, and followed with their second victory of the week, shutting out 8th Motors, 6-0.

The pair of victories by the Headquarters "Devil-Clerks" ran their season total to nine in a row, as they moved into a two-game lead over 2d Tank Bn., which remained in second place with a 6-1 slate.

Tanks, who suffered their only defeat to Headquarters during the early part of the season, moved from third to second place by posting three straight wins during last week's play.

A well-balanced seven, both offensively and defensively, 2d Tank Bn., behind the arm of quarterback Dennis Barksdale and two sticky fingered ends, Bob Blase and Joe Inman, tore the defense of their foes to shreds. The defense, Tankers was a stone wall. T. V. (The Beast) Gray, Young and John Flynn and teams they played only one point.

As a result of the two wins, 2d Tank Bn., 2d AmTrac, took third place in the standings last week. Their overall record at 4-3, with only five points remaining on their schedule.

In other action last week, Comm. Bn. moved out of the by downing 2d ANGLICO, their first win of the season coming back the following week, edging 2d Composite Radio, 10-0, in one of the most exciting games played this season.

With the Radiomen leading 8th Co., guided by the play of quarterback Daniel, bounced back into the game, 10-yard pass play from Eugene Brown with four left in the game. Jenkins, with the point after touchdown, a similar pass play to Communications into the end.

A short kick by 8th Comm. Bn. the touchdown enabled them to move into scoring position less than two minutes to go in the contest. Breaking up the game-winning scoring play, stepped into the line and intercepted the site Radio pass on the line and ran out the clock, only squashing the Radiomen down but insure the victory for the Communications.

Prickett Wins Second Race In Fall Series

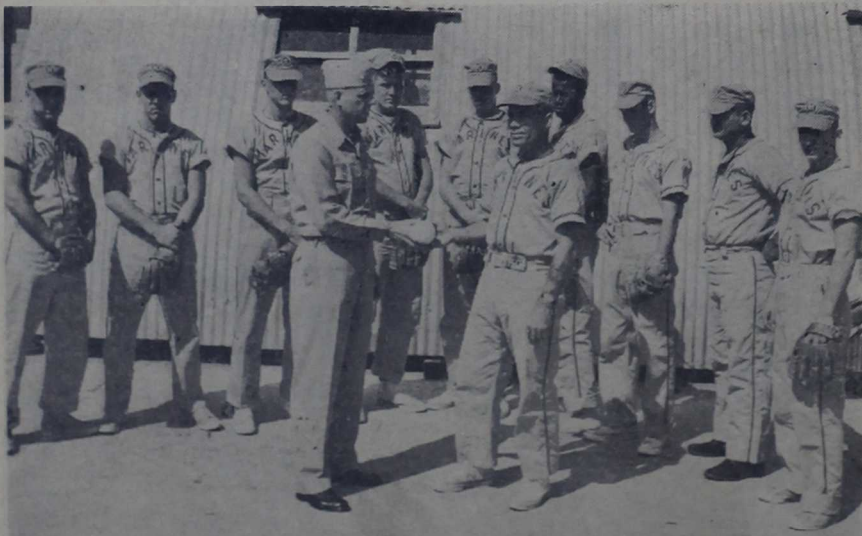

After a week's layoff because of high winds, Camp Lejeune's sailors resumed their Fall Sailing Series with Pfc L. G. Prickett, of H&S Co., 3d Bn., 2d Marines, taking top honors for the second time in as many races.

Sailing last Sunday in a light to moderate wind, Prickett took the lead over a fleet of nine boats at the beginning of the second leg of the race and maintained that lead through the remainder of the contest. Prickett's earlier victory was a tie for first with Breck Lardner, another member of the Lejeune Sailing Club.

Second place honors in the race went to Capt. L. S. VanGaasbeek with third place going to Pfc T. W. Barnett, also of 3d Bn., 2d Marines.

The race last Sunday was a close match throughout and only on the second leg did the first three finishers pull away from the remaining boats. As evidenced in the recent America's Cup races, sailing in a light breeze presents the greatest challenge to contestants. Every change, every slight increase in the breeze must be expected and used to the boater's advantage.

The next race in the series will take place this Sunday at Wallace Creek. Boat drawings will take place at 1:30 p.m. and the race will commence shortly after. All interested skippers are encouraged to participate.

Varsity Gridders Face Belvoir Saturday

Team Shuffle Moves Harris to Lead Quarterback Slot

Camp Lejeune Marine elevens in two outings, begin their season with the East Coast Conference title when they riddled Fort Belvoir Ensigns Saturday morning, at Liv-Field, during Governor's Wities honoring the Hon-ary Sanford, Governor of Carolina.

Back-off time scheduled for coach Phil Monahan's Ma-ty gridders will be mak-debut in 1962 East Coast ice competition although compiled an unimpressive record to date.

For a better performance played against Pensacola ago when they bowed to Navy team, 14-0. Monahis assistants have done fiffing among the squad come up with a virtual ulocal fans, Tony Harris, to signals for the varisty t. Belvoir.

Quantico Veteran
Three-year-old Harris, a eutenant with the Marine pply Schools, is a graduate of Eastern Kentucky State College and lettered for three years in football while attending the school. Prior to joining the Lejeune varsity, the 5'10", 170 pound field general called the plays for the 1961 Quantico Marines squad.

Backing up Harris with the quarter-backing chores for the Marines will be either 'old reliable' Vince Cesare or Frank James, Lejeune's alternate quarterbacks during the first two games of the season.

Only one other change in the backfield took place this week in an effort to inject some zip into the Lejeune offense. Starting at halfback for the Belvoir game will be Eddie Hatchett, a 5'10" speedster who was selected by the coaching staff as Player of the Week in the opening game of the season against Ft. Benning, which ended up in a 21-14 setback for the Marines.

The remaining members of the backfield, Danny Droze at right halfback and Bill Tazaker at full-back stay the same for the Belvoir contest.

The Forward Wall
Lejeune's forward wall has undergone some changes since the Pensacola loss. Starting at left end Saturday will be 6'1", 210 pound Percy Price. Price was moved up to the starting slot as a result of his defensive work against Pensacola. He did not play in the opening game of the season.

Larry Wagner, Lejeune's All-Marine tackle last season, remains in the lineup to bolster the left side of the line while Tom Harwell has been moved up to a starting slot at left guard, replacing the injured Jack Ebbitt.

The right side of the line remains almost the same with Ken Williams at end, Art Whittier at tackle and Norm Hafner at guard. Dallas Zieber will fill the duties at center.

A Look At Belvoir
Lejeune will be facing an almost totally different team than they faced a year ago when they romped to a 39-6 victory at Belvoir's Pullen Field.

Rick Alba, a stocky quarterback from New Mexico State and the Engineer's best passer has been moved into the halfback slot for the Lejeune contest. The signal calling chores will be shared by Paul Golazewski, a University of Illinois product and Bob Switzer, a Ferris Institute of Michigan graduate. Switzer, hampered by a knee injury during fall practice sessions was forced to sit out the opening game, which was handled entirely by Golazewski.

The other halfback post will be manned by stubby Dick Chilton, 5'5", 160 lbs, in his second year with the Engineers, while Ken Suter will fill in at the fullback slot. Suter, a graduate of Drexel University, will also handle the punting chores for Belvoir. During the 1960 season with Drexel, the Belvoir punter held the second highest punting average in the East.

Belvoir, plagued in the early part of the season with lack of interested candidates, started with only 31 prospective gridders after the initial call went out.

With a few additions, the rebuilding under head coach, Nelson Peterson, in his fourth season with the Engineers, was slow and tedious. The Engineers lost their opener against Ft. Dix, 14-6, two weeks ago and followed with a setback at the hands of Fort Devens last Saturday.

Coach Optimistic
Although suffering in both depth and speed, plus the loss of many key players through injuries, Peterson remains optimistic about his ball club and states that before the season is over, "We'll hurt somebody."

This is Peterson's fourth season with Belvoir. Last year, the stocky head mentor was out most of the season after being hospitalized from injuries sustained in an auto accident.

A graduate of West Virginia Wesleyan College, Peterson lists professional football experience with the old Cleveland Rams and the Washington Redskins in the National Football League.

Despite the fact that Ft. Belvoir won only one ball game in 1960, Peterson has maintained an outstanding overall average of 89 wins, 29 losses, and one tie.

Force Troops Plans Local Cage Clinic

A basketball clinic will be held at the Force Troops gym, Bldg. 300, for all officials, coaches and team players to better their knowledge of the 1962-63 basketball rules and changes.

The clinic will be given by a North Carolina Athletic Official Association Interpreter at no cost to the personnel attending. It is open to personnel desiring to officiate intramural basketball, to unit coaches and to team members. The classes will be held at 4:30 p.m. from Oct. 29 to Nov. 1.

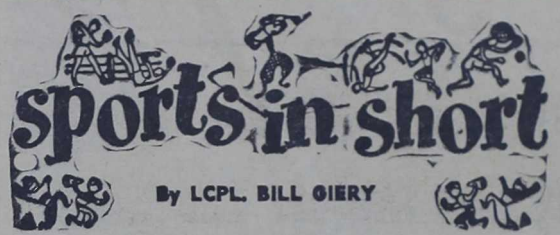

Units are requested to submit names of personnel desiring to attend this clinic to the Force Troops Athletic NCO at 7-5519, prior to Oct. 26.

Tork Leaves Corps To Continue Studies

First Lieutenant Dave Tork, the Marines' last 16-foot pole vaulter and former world champion has been discharged from the Corps and is continuing his post-graduate studies at Southern Illinois University via an athletic scholarship.

The 28-year old former Marine established a new Marine Corps Schools Relays record at Quantico earlier this year with a leap of 15-feet, 7 3/4 inches. Two weeks later, the slender Camp Pendleton athlete vaulted 16-feet-2, setting a new world's record, which was formerly held by another former Marine, John Uelses of Quantico.

Both Tork and Uelses are attending the same school this fall, as Uelses entered Southern Illinois since his release.

At Last We Picked One Right
That's about the whole story in a nutshell. Last week we wrote that Benning was going to move a step closer to the Missile Bowl when they faced the Pensacola "Goshawks", and we finally picked one right.

The Doughboys, coasting along with an impressive 3-0 record did quite a job on the Goshawks last Saturday, coming up on the winning end of a 30-7 rout.

The victory for Benning can be narrowed down into just a few words. Superior running, passing, blocking, and anything else that happens on the gridiron.

Other Action
Other results received from last week's games show the Quantico Marines over Fort Lee by a 13-7 margin and the Wheels from Ft. Eustis blanking Fort Dix, 47-0.

We might have been a bit hasty with Eustis again this season. In three games so far, the big Wheels, even bigger than last year, have not been scored upon. They hold impressive victories over Whitman, Mass., Athletic Club, 41-0; Springfield, Mass., Athletic Club, 19-0; and Dix, 47-0. They are scheduled to face Ft. Benning this Saturday. LET'S GO, BENNING!!!!

To Err Is Human
We not only picked a winner finally, which happens once in a lifetime, so it seems, but we also committed quite a goof last week.

In our write-up on the formation of the Camp Lejeune boxing team, it was stated that Matt Hardimann has taken over the duties again this year as head coach. Whoops, we goofed. Although Hardimann is working out with the Lejeune boxers, Base Special Services wishes to make it clear that no head coach has been selected. Sorry . . .

The Burger Bucket
Next Sunday marks the resumption of conflict for the Ol' Burger Bucket, an inscribed bucket which is actually a trophy for golf supremacy between Lejeune and our neighbors from the Air Wing at Cherry Point. At present the Bucket is resting atop the trophy case at Paradise Point Golf Course clubhouse, and with support, it can remain there for another six months. We urge all golfers who can swing a club to sign up for the tourney so that this can be realized.

Conference Gridiron Action Features Two League Games

East Coast Interservice Conference football resumes action this weekend with two league games on tap while three conference squads will be featured against major independent teams.

Opening action in conference play, the Camp Lejeune Marines, winless in two outings will be trying for their first win of the year and in ECIC action as they play host to Fort Belvoir's Engineers Saturday morning at Lejeune's Liversedge Field.

Also on the ECIC schedule, the Fort Lee Travellers looking to get back into the win column after dropping to Quantico last Sunday, will see action against the Fort Devens Hornets at Fort Lee on Sunday. Both teams boast 1-1 records in the conference.

Heading the list of non conference tilts will see last year's National Championship team, the Fort Eustis Wheels, boasting a current record of 3-0, face the powerful Ft. Benning Doughboys, who racked Pensacola last weekend, 30-7, and boast a similar 3-0 record. Both teams are playing magnificent football this season. Benning, in posting wins over Gordon Military Academy, 61-0; Lejeune, 21-14, and Pensacola last weekend, have established themselves as one of the top grid squads on the East Coast, and will be looking for a bid to the Missile Bowl this year.

Other non-conference tilts this weekend will see the once beaten Quantico Marines facing the Fort Campbell Screaming Eagles at Fort Campbell tomorrow afternoon. Rounding out the action this week, the Fort Dix Burros will play host to the Bears from Stamford, Conn., this Sunday.

Marine Soccer Team Tops NC State 10-1

Camp Lejeune Marine booters romped to the second straight victory last Saturday as they put together a five goal first half and then duplicated their feat in the final half to crush the North Carolina State Wolfpack, 10-1, at Raleigh.

The 10-goal onslaught was made possible by fine defensive work on the part of Marine center halfback Hans Kramps of 2d FSR.

High scorer for the Marines was center forward Hans Weiss of 2d Pioneer Bn., who booted in three goals. He was challenged for game high scorer by Peter Kriz of 2d Tanks, Bob Smith of 1st Bn., 2d Marines and Chris Slater of 2d FSR, who all added a pair of goals apiece. Frank Wilhelm of Service Bn., booted in the final score of the day just before the final gun sounded ending the contest.

The victory over North Carolina State pushed the Marines over the 500 mark, with an overall record of 2-1.

The Marine booters, following a week off, resume action on Oct. 13, against Fort Bragg here.

THE OLD AND THE NEW—Sgt. Maj. William A. Umlauf, seated, explains his duties as 2d Division's senior enlisted Marine to Sgt. Maj. Frederick W. Huppert, Jr., who relieved Umlauf last Monday.

Sgt. Maj. Umlauf has been assigned to the Naval Ammunition Storage Depot at Earle, N. J. Sgt. Maj. Huppert arrived at the 2d Division following a tour of duty at Rota, Spain.

Sgt. Maj. Huppert Assigned Division's Top Enlisted Duty

Two of the Marine Corps' senior enlisted men (with well over 60 years service between them) met last Monday at Camp Lejeune — but not to compare 'sea stories' about the Old Corps.

They were the principal Marines of a ceremony which marked the turnover of the 2d Marine Division's top enlisted billet — that of Division Sergeant Major. High ranking officers of the Division, including Maj. Gen. Frederick L. Wieseman and members of his staff, were present to see the ceremonial sword of office passed to Sgt. Maj. Frederick W. Huppert, Jr.

He relieved Sgt. Maj. William A. Umlauf, who has been Division Sergeant Major for two years, and is scheduled to depart for duty at the Naval Ammunition Storage Depot at Earle, N. J.

Sergeant Major Huppert comes to the 2d Division from Rota, Spain where he served three-and-one-half years as Sergeant Major of Marine Barracks.

Between the two, they wear about as many four-year-service stripes on their sleeves as a tailor can make room for. Each has more than 30 years active service, and each has been around most of the world.

Sergeant Major Huppert originally entered the Marine Corps in 1926. He has been on active duty since, making him one of the really senior noncommissioned officers in the Corps with more than 36 years service.

A graduate of the Marine Corps' sea school in San Diego, Calif. — class of 1932, Sergeant Major Huppert served aboard the old four-stacked cruiser USS Louisville.

He also qualifies as an 'Old China Hand' by his service with the 4th Marine Regiment in China during the 1930's.

Like many Marines of his generation, he became an officer during World War II and served as a warrant officer from 1943 until 1946. He then reverted to his permanent enlisted rank.

He was promoted to Sergeant Major in 1955.

Among his ribbons and decorations, Sergeant Major Huppert wears the Good Conduct Medal with nine stars, the China Service Medal, the American Campaign Medal, the World War II Victory Medal, the National Defense Service Medal, the United Nations Medal, the Navy Occupation Medal and the Korean Service Medal.

Both he and his predecessor, Sgt. Maj. Umlauf, are among the few remaining enlisted Marines entitled to wear the Nicaraguan Service Medal for service in the fabled "Banana Wars" of the 1930's.

October's GAZETTE To Feature Discipline

Feeling frustrated? Have doubts about the future? If so, you have a lot of company, says Hanson W. Baldwin, whose two-part "No Need for Despair" begins in the October Marine Corps Gazette. Author Baldwin's article, especially adapted from a just-published book, launches first into WWI—"The First Total War"—and the noticeable effect it had on the apparent preoccupation and self-pity that exists today. Mr. Baldwin is military editor of The New York Times.

Perhaps one answer to that despair is self-discipline, Capt. David W. Howell says. "Let's Teach Discipline," this month's Merit Award winner. Noting the hand-in-glove relationship between laxity in leadership and disciplinary problems, the captain urges "positive discipline" as the solution. He also lists personal traits the well-disciplined Marine should have. A closely related subject is touched by Lt. Gen. Samuel T. Williams, USA (Ret.), in "Reflections on Leadership," called a "masterful re-statement of leadership principles."

"Counter-Insurgency in Indonesia—1958" is an on-the-spot account obtained by Capt. D. G. Loomis, M. C., Canadian Army, from an Indonesian operations officer whose regiment was committed against guerrilla forces. The story of how a once-conventional force defeated a hide-and-seek enemy provides an object lesson to be remembered.

Know what RAWIN is? If so, you're set to fire that next mission during an hurricane. If not, read Lt. Col. George W. Carrington Jr.'s "RAWIN: Our Electronic Weather Eye." Now you know what it is! One subject all Marines should be interested in is "Russia's Small Arms and Tactics," Jac Weller, recognized as one of the leading experts in infantry weapons, tells you what the Russians have and how they use it.

Tank officers should strike a rapport with Maj. F. E. Grube, who says they all should be prepared to "get out and get under" if need be. In "Wheels, Tracks and Officer Mechs," he maintains they can't command effectively if they're not qualified mechanics.

October's MCA Newsletter runs the gamut from what's in store in military housing to a postmortem on the Camp Perry matches. A special R&D report, "Accent Coming on Armor," sizes up the situation for Marines in OF 18.
